AN ## EPISTLE to the READER;

Candid Reader,

T*HE following Diſcourſe comes to thy hand in that native plainneſs wherein it was preached. I was conſcientiouſly unwilling to alter it, becauſe I found by experience, the Lord had bleſſed and proſper'd it in that dreſs, far beyond any other Compoſures on which I had beſtowed more pains. Let it not be cenſured as vanity or oſtentation that I here acknowledg the goodneſs of God in leading me to, and bleſſing my poor Labours upon this Subject. Who, and what am I, that I ſhould be continued, and again imployed in the Lord's Harveſt, and that with ſucceſs and encouragement; when ſo many of my Brethren, with their much richer Furnitures of Gifts and Graces, have in my time been called out of the Vineyard, and are now ſilent in the Grave! 'Tis true, they injoy what I do not; and 'tis as true, I am capable of doing ſome Services for God which they are not. In Preaching theſe Sermons I had many occaſions to reflect upon the myſtical ſenſe of that Scripture,* Amos 9. 13. The Plowman ſhall overtake the Reaper, and the Treader of Grapes, him that ſoweth Seed. Sowing and Reaping times trod ſo cloſe upon one another, that (in all humility I ſpeak it to the praiſe of God) it was the buſieſt and bleſſedeſt time I ever ſaw, ſince I firſt preached the Goſpel.

England hath now a day of ſpecial Mercy: There is a wide door of Opportunity opened to it; O that it might prove an effectual door! 'Tis tranſporting and aſtoniſhing, that after all the high and horrid provocations, the Atheiſm, Profaneneſs, and bitter enmity againſt Light and Reformation; this ſweet voice is ſtill heard in England, Behold, I ſtand at the door and knock. The Mercies and Liberties of this day are a new Trial obtained for us by our potent Advocate in the Heavens: If we bring forth Fruit, well; if not, the Ax lieth at the root of the Tree. Let us not be ſecure. Jeruſalem was the City of the great King: The Seat of his Worſhip, and Symbols of his Preſence were fixed there. It was the joy of the whole Earth, the Houſe of Prayer for all Nations; thither the Tribes went up to worſhip; the Tribes of the Lord, unto the Teſtimony of Iſrael. For there were ſet Thrones of Judgment, the Thrones of the Houſe of David, Pſal. 22. 4, 5. Theſe Privileges ſhe enjoyed through the ſucceſſion of many Ages, and had remained the glory of all Nations to this day, had ſhe known, and improved, in that day, the things that belonged to her peace; but they neglected their Seaſon, rejected their Mercies, and miſerably periſhed in their ſins: for there ever was and will be found an inſeparable connection betwixt the final rejection of Chriſt, and the deſtruction of the Rejecters, Matth. 22. 5, 6, 7. The contemplation whereof drew thoſe compaſſionate Tears from the Redeemer's eyes, when he beheld it in his deſcent from the Mount of Olives, Luke 19. 41, 42.

Let all that are wiſe in Heart henceforth depoſe their animoſities, ſadly reflect on their paſt Follies, encourage and aſſiſt the Labours of their Brethren in the Lord's Harveſt; and rejoice that God hath ſet them at liberty by Law, whoſe aſſiſtance, in ſo great an opportunity, is ſo neceſſary and deſirable. It is againſt the Laws of Wiſdom and Charity, to envy the Liberty, and much more the Succeſs of our Brethren, 1 Cor. 13. 4. If the Workmen contend and ſcuffle in a catching Harveſt, who but the Owner ſuffers damage by it? If after ſo miraculous, recent, and common a Salvation as this, we ſtill retain our old prejudices and bitter envyings; if we ſmite with the Pen and Tongue when we cannot with the Hand; and ſtudy to blaſt the Reputations and Labours of our Brethren; and ſtill hate thoſe we cannot hurt: In a word, if we ſtill bite and devour one another, we ſhall be devoured one of another. Let us not lay the fault upon others, we our ſelves have been the Authors and Inſtruments of our own ruin; and this muſt be the inſcription upon our Tombſtone, O England, thou haſt deſtroyed thy Self. I am more afraid of the rooted enmity, and fixed prejudices, that are to be found in many againſt Holineſs, and the ſerious Profeſſors of it; and inflexible obſtinacy and dead formality in many others, (the tokens of a tremendous Infatuation) than I am of all the whiſpered fears from other Hands, or common Enemies upon our borders.

To prevent theſe miſchiefs, and promote zeal and unanimity among the Miniſters of the Goſpel, I have preſumed to addreſs them in the following Epiſtle. I judged it neceſſary on ſeveral reaſons to write it in Latin, as what allowed me a greater freedom of expreſſion, than might ſeem convenient in the common Language. I am conſcious of my own unworthineſs to be their Monitor, and of the defects their judicious Eyes will eaſily diſcern in the ſtile wherein it is written; and yet can promiſe my ſelf a becoming reception of what is ſo faithfully, ſeaſonably, and honeſtly deſigned for their good. I am ſatisfied that no candid and ingenuous Perſon will put Words upon the Rack, quarrel a Similitude, or expoſe a Trifle, when he finds the deſign Honeſt, and the matter Good and Neceſſary.

As to the Treatiſe it ſelf, thou wilt find it a Perſuaſive to open thy Heart to Chriſt. Thy Soul, Reader, is a magnificent Structure built by Chriſt; ſuch ſtately Rooms as thy Underſtanding, Will, Conſcience, and Affections, are too good for any other to inhabit. If thou be in thy unregenerate ſtate, then he ſolemnly demands, in this Text, admiſſion into the Soul he made, by the conſent of the Will: which if thou refuſe to give him, then Witneſs is taken that Chriſt once more demanded entrance into thy Soul which he made, and was denied it. If thou haſt opened thy Heart to him, thou wilt, I hope, meet ſomewhat in this Treatiſe that will clear thy Evidences, and chear thy Heart: Pray, Read, Ponder, and Apply.

I am
Thine and the Churches Servant,

JOHN FLAVEL.

EPISTOLA Dilectiſſimis, & in Chriſto perquam Reverendis Evangelii Miniſtris; nunc demum miranda Dei providentia libertati reſtitutis: Senioribus quidem ſupplex, Junioribus vero & Candidatis Parænetica.

Patres, Fratreſq; in Chriſto Colendiſſimi;

QUamvis nobis non convenit pro arbitratu noſtro cudere Metaphoras, eas tamen amplecti convenit, quas ipſe Spiritus Scriptura ſignavit: ſignavit autem & graphice depinxit exulantis Eccleſiæ liberationem, ingruentis & amœni veris ſuavibus deliciis, Cant. II. v. 11, 12.

Sub ſole vernali tellus velut parens benigniſſima ſinus ſuos recludit, herbas varias expromit, prata florum copia condecorat; arbores prioribus viduatæ, novis frondibus ſe induunt: pulſo frigore, aer tepet; pecudes ubera tumentia domum referunt,

Avia tunc Avibus reſonant virgulta Canoris. Virg.

Revireſcunt, & rident omnia. Tempus quidem propitium, beneficum; & rebus omnibus, præcipue viventibus, mirifice commodum ac amicum.

Quæ omnia a Brightmanno noſtro, ſumma quidem induſtria, ac miro ingenii acumine, accommodantur inſigni iſti temporis periodo, qua Cyrus Edictum ſuum (nunquam ſatis laudandum) de liberando populo emittebat. Conſimilis providentiæ radii animantes, veluti Sol Arietem ingrediens, nos ſemi-mortuos revireſcere fecerunt.

Non nos latet (adhuc enim crudeſcunt vulnera) quam dura & acerba a multis retro annis conſcientiæ cauſa ſuſtinuimus; heu! quæ non vidimus! quæ non perpeſſi fuimus indigna! Durante hac hyeme aſpera, triſti, & omnimodè moleſta, vidimus æquora horridis tumentia procellis; quibus aliqui territi ac attoniti, cuilibet vento vela dedere. Vidimus arbores tam fructu, quam forma aliis præcellentes, nimboſis ventis proſternatas; alias ſine fructu vel fronde quaſi ſideratas: Montes crebris pruinis albicantes, flumina glacie concreſcentia, terras nivibus obrutas, imo ſepultas: Alituum pecudumque greges famelicos undique diſperſos & anguſtiis preſſos: aucupes aſtutos retia ſua non ſine ſucceſſu diſpandentes. Ut verbo abſolvam, vidimus eheu! Eccleſiam Chriſti propriis pennis transfixam: Rempublicam legibus fundatam legibus fere ſubverſam, inauſpicata omnia, & in deterius indies vergentia.

Diu direq; in hoc malorum pelago agitati fuimus. Juvenes inibamus, Senes emergimus; idem nobis evenit quod in obſidione Tyri recordatur, Ezek. XXIX. 18. Omne caput decalvatum, & omnis humerus depilatus eſt. Attamen hæc omnia moleſta potius quam miranda illi videntur, qui ſerio perpendit verba fatidica magni Apoſtoli, 2 Tim. III. 1. ἐν ἐσχάταις ἡμέραις ἐνστήσονται καιροὶ χαλεποί. De quibus temporibus formidoloſis ita Lactantius: Propinquante igitur hujus ſeculi termino, humanarum rerum ſtatum commutari neceſſe eſt; & in deterius nequitia invaleſcente prolabi: ut etiam noſtra hæc tempora quibus iniquitas & malitia uſque ad ſummum gradum crevit, in illius tamen inſanabilis mali comparationem fælicia & prope aurea poſſint judicari. Ita enim juſtitia rareſcet, ita impietas, & avaritia, & cupiditas, & libido crebreſcent, ut ſi qui tum forte fuerint boni, prædæ ſint ſceleratis, ac divexentur undique ab injuſtis. Soli autem mali opulenti ſint, boni vero in omnibus contumeliis atque in egeſtate jactentur. Confundetur omne jus, & leges interibunt, nihil quiſquam tunc habebit niſi aut male quæſitum, aut manu defenſum, audacia & vi omnia poſſidebunt. Non fides in hominibus, non pax, non humanitas, non pudor, non veritas erit; atq; ita neque ſecuritas, neq; regimen, neq; requies a malis ulla; omnis enim terra tumultuabitur, frement ubique bella. Omnes gentes in armis erunt, & ſeinvicem oppugnabunt, Civitates inter ſe finitimæ præliabuntur; tunc peragrabit clades orbem metens omnia, & tanquam meſſem cuncta proſternans: cujus vaſtitatis & confuſionis hæc erit cauſa, quod Romanum nomen quo nunc regitur Orbis, (horret animus dicere, ſed dicendum, quia futurum eſt) tolletur de terra.

Quid tibi videtur Lector? noſtrane heic tempora deſcribuntur, an longius expectandum donec hoc hominum genus peſtiferum in Scenam prodeat? nemo ſane de iis dubitet quæ ſanis ac illæſis ſenſibus perſentiſcit.

Cæterum Deus tandem noſtri miſertus, virum pietatis amantem, & veri ſtudioſum excitavit; qui ſummis laboribus & maximis periculis cauſam ſuam fortiter aſſeret, & faciem terræ renovaret. Secundum hoc tempus dicetur, quid operatus eſt Deus! Nunc omni impedimento ſublaturo, horrida procella ſedata; (quæ nos huc illuc ſicut ſtipulas diſpergebat) Deus noſter propitius nos ita alloquitur, Surge Amica mea & veni, ecce enim hyems tranſiit, pluvia præteriit, flores conſpiciuntur in terra, tempus minuritionis advenit; & vox Turturis auditur in terra noſtra. q. d. jam ſatis domi latitaſti, potes in publicum prodire. Signa ſalutis, & incitamenta laboris undiquaque apparent. Sic Hyemis aſperitas nobis commendat ſuavitatem Veris.

Ad me quod attinet, quamprimum vox læta libertatis aurem attigerat, proprio & exoptato operi meipſum ſtatim accingere cœpi. Si enim tanta Dulcedo in mathematicarum artium ſtudiis invenitur, ut cum quis eam deguſtaverit, quaſi Circeis poculis captus ſe non ſinit ab illis divelli: dulciſſimum erit labores noſtros quamvis exantlatos, gloria Chriſti, & animarum ſalute ultro impendere. Gaudio igitur non vulgari gaviſus ſum, quod demum ſalcem meam fere rubigine exeſam, in meſſem Domini μετὰ τῶν λοιπῶν συνεργῶν μȣ immitterem. Gratias ago Deo meo benigniſſimo, qui opportunitatis oſtium non tantum tempeſtive aperuit, quin etiam (mihi ſupplicanti) ſalubrioris doctrinæ πορίσματι ſuppeditavit; multiſque jamdudum benedixit.

Haſce ergo primitias reſtitutæ libertatis, quales, quales, quas autem non pauci acrius efflagitarunt, ut in apricum feram; vobis perquam humillime offero. Venia ſit fratri, omnium minimo; ſeque infra omnes Chriſti Legatos merito æſtimanti; ſi ſignata & celeberrima hac occaſione, audacius paulo quam pro eruditionis aut experientiæ modulo, ſeſe efferat Chriſtianus fervor.

Pompaticam eloquentiam non ambiit Concionator veſter. Oratione populari, non polita; preſſa, non præculta, per totum uſus fui. Non minus enim de rebus Theologicis dicendum duxi, quam de Philoſophicis Cicero. Iſtiuſmodi res dicere ornate puerile eſt; plane autem & perſpicue expedire poſſe, docti & intelligentis viri. Merito diſpliceat, ſi doctrinam Chriſti crucifixi; ſtylo non crucifixo, hoc eſt turgido, pertractarem.

I.

Lætemur libertate noſtra lætitia debite temperata: lætitia dico, ſuis ponderibus æque librata; & utrinque munita, peccatorum ſc. præteritorum mœſtitia, nec non futurorum metu. Legimus Jer. XXIX. 12. de voce gemitus ac fletus qua ſub tempus liberationis agnoſcerent fideles priſtina ſua peccata, quibus Deum laceſſiverant; & eadem emollitis Cordibus ex animis lugerent. Et quam congrua fuit vox iſta Eccleſiæ, vel ad jacta fundamenta redivivi Templi? vox læta vociferatione, ac uberi fletu æqualiter miſta, Ezra III. 10. Multi flebant voce magna, multi vociferatione ex lætitia efferebant vocem; ita ut populus non internoſceret ſonum vociferationis ex lætitia, a voce fletus populi. Nec pudet ſanctos lapſus ſui & dedecoris ad gloriam Dei meminiſſe; nihil enim nobis decedit, quod cedit in illius honorem. Venuſtæ admodum & amabiles conſpectu ſuo erunt facies noſtræ, cum lachrymas plorantes gratulabundis lachrymis ſupervenientes viderit! veri pœnitentis eſt flere commiſſa, ne flenda committeret.

Præceſſit nobis Aſaphus laudabili ſuo pœnitentiæ exemplo, Pſal. LXXIX. 8. Ne recorderis (inquit) iniquitatum priorum, &c. Recordari Deus dicitur iniquitatum, cum peccata quaſi ad calculum vocans, & tam magnitudinem quam multitudinem horum æſtimans, punire conſtituit. Loquitur de Deo more humano, homines enim gravius offenſi, & pœnas de liberis ſuis ſumpturi; in memoriam ſibi vocant priora delicta omnia quæ liberi commiſerunt: Revocemus itidem, & ex animis ploremus deſidiam noſtram præteritam, libertatem male concomitantem. Ardenti deſiderio non ita flagravimus; ex imo pectore non ingemiſcimus: Ex cerebro ſæpe, non medullitus proloquuti fuimus. Nimis frigide de rebus vere tremendis inter orandum & prædicandum diſſeruimus. Anteceſſores ſuperioris ſeculi non æquis paſſibus ſequuti ſumus. Gravitate morum, & utilitate ſermonum majeſtatem religionis non conſervavimus. Quorum cauſa Deus noſter juſtam concepit iram, eamque præteritis calamitatibus patefecit, & patefaciendo de futuro nos palam admonuit.

II.

Secundo.

Proinde Fratres in viſceribus Chriſti enixe poſtulo, ne excidat vobis illud Paulinum, Si fieri poteſt, & quantum in vobis eſt, cum omnibus hominibus in pace viventes, Rom. XII. 18. Duplex additur limitatio. Prima, Si fieri poteſt, nempe ſalva juſtitia, pietate, ac veritate: Ratio veritatis non eſt ſic habenda, ut pacis cura prorſus negligatur, nec unitas talis ambienda qua veritas deſeratur: ſed ἀληθεύετη ἐν ἀγάπῃ, ut ipſe loquitur, Eph. IV. 15. Neutram enim ex animo diligunt (ut recte Davenantius noſter) qui utramque non diligunt. Chriſtiani ergo, εἰρηνεύοντες ἐν ἀληθείᾳ, ϗ ἀληθεύοντες ἐν ἀγάπῃ, maxime ornant Chriſtianum nomen. Altera, quantum in vobis eſt, i. e. omnium amici eſte, ſi fieri poteſt; ſi non poteſt utrinque, certe ex veſtra parte amici eſte. Veritas inter improbos odium parit, & pietas ſemper inviſa eſt; cujus rei hanc rationem reddit Lactantius, Quod is Lact. de juſtitia l. 5. p. 382, 383. qui peccat vult habere liberum peccandi locum, non aliter ſe putat malefactorum voluptate ſecurius perfrui poſſe, quam ſi nemo ſit cui delicta non placeant. Ergo tanquam ſcelerum & malitiæ ſuæ teſtes extirpare funditus nituntur, & tollere; graveſque ſibi putant tanquam vita eorum coarguatur: horum igitur amicitia pietas periclitatur.

Bernardi Sermo 33. in Cantic. Alios habemus formam pietatis induentes, ſed qui vim ejus abnegarint. De his ita queſtus eſt Bernardus: Væ generationi huic a fermento Phariſæorum quod eſt hypocriſis! ſi tamen hypocriſis dici debet, quæ jam latere præ abundantia non valet, & præ impudentia non quærit. Serpit hodie putida Tabes per omne corpus Eccleſiæ: & quo latius, eo deſperatius; eoque periculoſius, quo interius. Nam ſi inſurgeret apertus inimicus hæreticus, mitteretur foras. Si violentus inimicus, abſconderet ſe forſitan ab eo. Nunc vero quem ejiciet, aut a quo abſcondere ſe? Omnes Amici, & omnes Inimici; omnes Neceſſarii, & omnes Adverſarii. Omnes domeſtici, & nulli pacifici. Omnes proximi, & omnes qui ſua ſunt quærentes. Miniſtri Chriſti ſunt, & ſerviunt Antichriſto. Honorati incedunt de bonis Domini, cum Domino honorem non deferunt, &c. De his dicam, In Concilium eorum non veniat anima mea, in Cœtu illorum non ſit gloria mea.

Multi vero ſunt pacis & veritatis ſtudioſi, in fundamentalibus conſentientes, & contra communes reformatæ religionis hoſtes pariter conſcripti; qui nihilominus, proh dolor! in non neceſſariis diſſiliunt, & ſuos utrinque ad partes & pugnas vocant. Dum pugna hæc hoſtilis gliſcit inter fratres, hoſtibus ſuis perpetuas inſultandi & nocendi opportunitates ſuppeditant. Si quis huic morbo epidemico medicamentum reperire poſſet, bene de Eccleſia mereret: ac cum tot annorum experientia ſit compertiſſimum, illud vix, aut ne vix fieri poſſe pulvere ſcolaſtico luctando, aut conſcientiam pœnis premendo; conſultius eſſet omnia hæc certamina conſopire, quam fruſtra luctando Eccleſiam dilaniare; & tandem ad utiliſſimam, ſi non unicam iſtam pacis regulam redire, Phil III. 16. In eo ad quod uſque pervenimus, eadem incedamus regula, &c. cui convenit ſaluberrimum iſtud Toſſani conſilium, Academiæ Tubingenſi his verbis traditum.

Tollenda merito omnis criminandi & maledicendi amarulentia, & judicium filio Dei domino noſtro Jeſu Chriſto ipſiſque poſteris noſtris, qui certaminis non auctores, ſed ſpectatores, æquius ſepoſitis affectibus judicaturi ſunt permittendum. Adverſarii noſtri etiamnum vivunt, & quotidie audaciores fiunt. Noctes & dies hoc agunt & meditantur, ut exortum Evangelii lumen extinguant, antiquaſq; tenebras revocent. Interea nos qui initio unanimos per Dei gratiam Evangelium enunciavimus, converſis armis in mutua vulnera ruimus; gratumque hoſtibus ſpectaculum exhibemus: qui plus præſidii atque fiduciæ in concertationibus noſtris, quam inani cauſæ ſuæ fundamento collocant.

Iterum iterumque reſpiciamus illud Apoſtoli, Gal. V. 15. Quod ſi alii alios mordetis ac exciditis, videte ne viciſſim alii ab aliis conſumamini. Quod enim Cicero de clarorum virorum diſcordiis dixit, id Davenantius noſter de Eccleſiarum diſcordiis non dubitat affirmare; non alios ſolere eſſe illarum exitus, niſi aut univerſarum interitum, aut victricium in reliquas injuſtum dominatum. Valde metuendum eſt ne hiſce diuturnis & funeſtis contentionibus (quod Deus avertat) ſuum omnes accelerent interitum. Nec dubito diſcordias inter pios extingui poſſe, quicquid in contrarium aliqui obtendant, ſi quorundam mentes ab omnis ſuſpicionis, iræ, ac invidiæ ſpumis & ſcoriis bene expurgatæ eſſent. En Fratres, quam propriam tempeſtivamque παρηγορίαν prudentiſſimus noſter Medicus nobis omnibus hoc tempore adaptavit! det Deus effectum deſideratum, ne Vulnus in antiquum redeat male firma cicatrix.

Pii ubique gemunt præſentem & deplorandum Eccleſiæ ſtatum: & ex clade nonnullorum, conjecturam faciunt quid periculi immineat univerſis.

—— —— En quo diſcordia gentes

Nec poteſt quiſquam inficias ire ſanctos & ſapientes ex utraque parte (quantum inter ſe diſſentiunt) in hoc ſaltem unanimos eſſe, quod hæc non ſunt litigandi, ſed orandi, & redintegrandi tempora; tales enim voces ubique effundunt: Convertat Deus cor patrum ad filios, & cor filiorum ad patres; ne veniens percutiat terram anathemate. Suis non recte conſulunt, qui ob Controverſias nunquam fortaſſe inter doctos terminandas, perpetuis diſſidiis lacerant Eccleſiam. Fratres noſtri qui ſerio profitentur ſe nulla alia cauſa a nobis diſſentire in minutioribus Religionis, quam formidine peccandi; ambabus ulnis ſunt amplectendi: Cito igitur tollantur omnia offendicula, ne bis impingeremus in eundem lapidem. Si iterum collidimur, fruſtulatim frangimur; nolumus illis hanc laudem concedere, quod illi pacis & concordiæ ſtudioſiores quam nos evaderent; in fundamentalibus & neceſſariis conformitatem exigite, in ἀδιαφόροις & non neceſſariis debitam, amplam & non hamatam libertatem concedite. Nemo ſibi arroget licentiam dividendi Eccleſiam, & diſſolvendi fraternam unitatem ex ea cauſa quam nec Chriſtus, nec Apoſtoli, nec Eccleſia pure primitiva unquam approbaſſet.

Omnes Controverſias e medio tolli non poſſe concedimus, ſed omnibus diſcordiis valedicere poteramus; Opinionum enim varietas, & Opinantium unitas non ſunt ἀσύστατα. Quid facit in pectore Chriſtiano Luporum feritas, Canum rabies, venenum lethale Serpentum, cruenta ſævitia Beſtiarum? ut olim Cyprianus. Nova atque inaudita (inquit Gregorius) eſt iſta prædicatio, quæ verberibus exigit fidem; faceſſat ergo omnis criminandi & maledicendi amarulentia; tranquillus Deus tranquillet omnia.

III.

Præcipue ac præ omnibus ſuppliciter vos rogo, ut ſepoſitis omnibus levioris naturæ ſtudiis, hoc unum intendatis, quomodo animas vobis commiſſas, (quibus omnia terrena ſunt longe poſtponenda) Chriſto lucrifaciatis: Hic labor, hoc opus eſt.

Procul abſit a vobis deteſtanda illa donorum parſimonia, mundanorum immunda cura, corporis viliſſimi nimis cautela; non magnum nobis videatur vilem ſudorem noſtrum illarum gratia diſpendere, cum Chriſtus pretioſiſſimum ſuum ſanguinem tam libere ac libentiſſime effudit. Si Domini talenta ſudario abſcondimus, ubi ſudaria inveniemus cruentas lachrymas noſtras pro tanto facinore exſiccare?

Recolligite Fratres, omne tempus nobis impenſum, requiretur a nobis qualiter ſit expenſum. Quantum temporis inutili ſilentio jamdudum amiſimus!

ſimus ! Sed inter omnia gravamina ſub quibus diu gemuiſtis, nullum perſuaſiſſimum habeo ægrius tuliſtis quam oribus occluſis inter animas-egenas tam diu latitaſſe; præſens opportunitas labilis eſt, quod ad futurum attinet, nubes poſt pluvias revertantur. Surgite ergo viri optimi, agite hoc negotium, & erit Dominus vobiſcum. Communes carnis querelas deſpicite, Coronam iſtam Cœleſtem proſpicite. Splendebunt prudentes quaſi ſplendor expanſi, & qui multos inſtituunt, quaſi ſtellæ in ſempiterna ſecula.

Hac ſpe labefactantes animos erigamus & muniamus adverſus irriſiones & moleſtias quas Evangelii nomine expectandas habemus; quæ non induenda viſcera miſericordiæ, cum tales de ſalute recuperanda, & exitio ad quod in inſtanti abripi poſſunt, vitando, cum interim nihil minus de ſe cogitant; alloquimur? Conqueritur apud Ameſium Author laudatus, Verba vitæ in quorundam doctorum & prædicatorum labiis quantum ad virtutem & efficaciam, moriuntur. Adeo enim tepide, adeo remiſſe verba Dei enunciant, ut extincta in labiis eorum penitus videantur; unde ſicut ipſi frigidi ſunt & extincti, ſic frigidos & extinctos relinquunt. Novi quendam propter hoc de civitate Pariſiaca aufugiſſe: Dicebat enim ſe prædicationibus & lectionibus Pariſienſibus de die in diem, amplius & amplius infrigidari, & ſe timere ſi moram diuturniorem ibi traheret, ne tandem ſpirituali gelicidio extingueretur: propter quod tranſtulit ſe ad viros ferventes, velut ad carbones vivos, ut inter eos converſans ardorem nutriret, & augeret.

Attollite oculos, & regiones ſpectate; albæ enim jam ſunt ad meſſem. Nonne videtis voſmet eſurientium animarum turmis undique ſtipatos, hianti ore, ſolicitiſque oculis, a vobis panem poſcentibus? ſi viſcera Paſtorum Principis nobis inſunt, paſcamus oves ſuas. Nonnulli ſenectute & variis ærumnis pene confecti ſunt, alii minutiis Scripturæ majeſtatem minuunt; aureſque vulgi vano verborum ſtrepitu complent, aut lenociniis titillant. Interea, ſi vos quoque qui omnigena donorum copia locupletati eſtis, & opportunitatem tam commodam & amicam habetis, zelo Dei & animarum non ardeſceretis, horreſcam proſpicere funeſtiſſimum ac vere miſerabilem omnium exitum.

IV.

Poſtremo, paucis expediam quæ neceſſaria dicenda duxi junioribus Theologis, & ſacri Miniſterii Candidatis; qui tempore perneceſſario huic operi ſeipſos libentiſſime dederunt, vel daturi ſunt: Nos æſtum pondusque diei longe portavimus: Milites pene emeriti ſumus; dabit poſterior ætas tractabiliores fortaſſe animos, mitiora pectora quam noſtrum habet ſeculum.

Fauſtis Natalitiis veſtris ergo congratulor; præſertim ſi veſtra γέννησις διὰ παλιγγενεσίας nobilitata & ſanctificata ſit vel fuerit; idque eo magis; quia jam omnes præſtantiſſimi Chronologi, & temporum Indagatores qui computationi operam dederunt, evaſerunt ſimiles mulieri gravidæ temporis pariendi computum ſuum prætergreſſæ; quæ ſingulis horis partus dolores expectare neceſſe habet. # SERMON I.

Revel. III. 20.

[Behold] I ſtand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and ſup with him, and he with me.

THIS day hath our compaſſionate Redeemer opened unto us a door of liberty, liberty to us to preach, and liberty for you to hear the glad tidings of the Goſpel. This is a day few looked for: how often have I ſaid in the years that are paſt, God hath no more work for me to do, and I ſhall have no more ſtrength and opportunities to work for God? And how often have you ſaid in your Hearts, we have ſinned our Miniſters out of their Pulpits, and our Eyes ſhall no more behold thoſe our Teachers? But lo, beyond the thoughts of moſt hearts, a wide and (I hope) an effectual door is now opened in the midſt of us. Oh! that it might be to us as the Valley of Achor was to Iſrael, for a door of hope, Hoſea 2. 15. (i. e.) not only making the troubles they met with in that Valley an Inlet to their mercies, as ours have been to us; but giving them that Valley pignoris nomine, as a pledg of greater mercies intended for them. Upon the firſt appearance of this mercy, my next thoughts were how to make the moſt fruitful improvement of it amongſt you, leſt we ſhould twice ſtumble at the ſame ſtone, and ſin our ſelves back again into our old bondage.

In the contemplation of this matter, the Lord directed me to this Scripture, wherein the ſame Hand that opened to you the door of liberty, knocks importunately at the doors of your Hearts for entrance into them, for union and communion with them. It will be ſad indeed if he that hath let you into all theſe mercies, ſhould himſelf be ſhut out of your hearts: But if the Lord ſhould help you to open your Hearts now to Chriſt, I doubt not but this door of liberty will be kept open to you, how many ſoever the adverſaries be that envy it, and will do their utmoſt to ſhut it up, Ezek. 39. 29. The mercies you enjoy this day, are the fruits of Chriſt's interceſſion with the Father for one tryal more: if we bring forth fruit, well; if not, the Ax lieth at the Root of the Tree. Under this conſideration I deſire to preach, and even ſo the Lord help you to hear what ſhall be ſpoken from this precious Scripture, Behold I ſtand at the door and knock, &c.

Theſe words are a branch of that excellent Epiſtle dictated by Chriſt, and ſent by his ſervant John to the Church of Laodicea, the moſt formal, hypocritical and degenerate of all the ſeven Churches; yet the great Phyſician will try his skill upon them, both by the rebukes of the Rod, ver. 19. and by the perſwaſive power of the Word; ver. 20. Behold I ſtand at the door and knock, &c.

This Text is Chriſt's wooing voice, full of Heavenly Rhetorick to win and gain the Hearts of Sinners to himſelf; wherein we have theſe two general parts.

1. Chriſt's Suit for a Sinners Heart.
2. The powerful Arguments enforcing his ſuit.

Firſt, Chriſt's Suit for a Sinner's Heart, wherein we have (1*ſt*) the ſolemn Preface, uſhering it in, behold: (2*dly*) the Suit it ſelf. The Preface is exceeding ſolemn: for beſide the common uſe of this word behold, in other places, to excite attention, or exaggerate and put weight into an affirmation; it ſtands here, as a Judicious Expoſitor notes, as a term of notification, or publick record, wherein Chriſt takes witneſs of the moſt gracious offer he was now about to make to their Souls, and will have it ſtand in perpetuam rei memoriam, as a teſtimony for or againſt their Souls to all Eternity, to cut off all excuſes and pretences for time to come.

Durham in loc.

2. The Suit it ſelf, wherein we have,
   1. The Suitor, Jeſus Chriſt.
   2. His poſture and action; I ſtand at the door and knock.
   3. The Suit it ſelf, which is for opening, if any Man open.

1. The Suitor, Chriſt himſelf, I ſtand; I that have a right of Sovereignty over you; I that have ſhed my invaluable Blood to purchaſe you, and might juſtly condemn you upon the firſt denial or demur, behold I ſtand: this is the Suitor.

2. His poſture and action, I ſtand at the door and knock; the word is in the Preter Tenſe, I have ſtood, but being here joined with another Verb of the Preſent Tenſe, it is fitly tranſlated, I ſtand, yet ſo as that it notes a continued Action. I have ſtood, and do ſtill ſtand with unwearied patience; I once ſtood perſonally and bodily among you in the days of my fleſh, and I ſtill ſtand ſpiritually and repreſentatively in my Ambaſſadors at the door, (i. e.) the mind and conſcience, the faculties and powers which are introductive into the whole Soul.

The word Door is here properly put to ſignify thoſe introductive faculties of the Soul which are of a like uſe to it, as the Door is to the Houſe. This is the Redeemer's poſture, his action is knocking, (i. e.) his powerful eſſays, and gracious attempts to open the Heart to give him admiſſion. The word Knock ſignifies a ſtrong and powerful knock; he ſtands patiently, and knocks powerfully by the Word outwardly, by the convictions, motions, impulſes, ſtrivings, and inſtigations of his Spirit inwardly.

κρȣ́ω à κέρας Cornu, & ſic fit κερȣ́ω, & per ſyncopen κρȣ́ω.

3. The deſign and end of the Suit, it is for opening (i. e.) conſenting, receiving, embracing, and hearty accepting of him by Faith. Acts 16. 14. The Lord opened the heart of Lydia, (i. e.) perſwaded her Soul to believe; implying, that the Heart by nature is ſtrongly barr'd and lock'd up againſt Chriſt, and that nothing but a power from him can open it.

Secondly, The powerful Arguments and Motives uſed by Chriſt to obtain his Suit, and get a grant from the Sinners heart; and they are drawn from two ineſtimable benefits accruing to the opening or believing Soul, viz.

1. Union.
2. Communion with Chriſt.

1. Union, I will come in to him, that is, I will unite my ſelf with the opening believing Soul; he ſhall be myſtically one with me, and I with him.

2. Communion, I will ſup with him, and he with me; that is, I will feaſt the believing Soul with the delicates of Heaven: ſuch comforts, ſuch joys, ſuch pleaſures as none in the World but Believers are capable of.

And to ſet home all, theſe ſpecial benefits are propoſed by Chriſt to all ſorts of Sinners, great and ſmall, old and young; If any Man hear my voice and open the door: that ſo no Soul might be diſcouraged from believing, by the greatneſs or multitude of his Sins, but the vileſt of Sinners may ſee Free Grace triumphing over all their unworthineſs, upon their conſent to take Chriſt according to the gracious offers of the Goſpel.

The words thus opened, afford many great and uſeful points of Doctrine, comprehending in them the very ſum and ſubſtance of the Goſpel. The firſt, which ariſeth from the ſolemn and remarkable Preface Behold, will be this:

Doct. 1. That every offer of Chriſt to the Souls of Sinners is recorded and witneſſed with reſpect to the day of account and reckoning.

Here we ſhall enquire into three things.

1. Who are God's Witneſſes to all Goſpel tenders?
2. What are the object matters they witneſs to?
3. Why God records every offer of Chriſt, and takes witneſs thereof?

1. Who

I. Who are God's Witneſſes to all the tenders and offers made of Chriſt by the Goſpel, and they will be found to be more than a ſtrict legal number; for,

1. His Miniſters by whom he makes them, are all Witneſſes as well as Officers of Chriſt to the People. Acts 26. 16. I have appeared unto thee for this purpoſe, to make thee a Miniſter and a Witneſs. Here you ſee Miniſters have a double office, to propoſe and offer Chriſt, and then to bear witneſs for or againſt thoſe to whom he is thus offered: They are expreſly called God's Witneſſes, Rev. 11. 6, 7. Their Labours witneſs, their Sufferings witneſs, their ſolemn Appeals to God witneſs; yea, the very duſt of their feet ſhaken off againſt the refuſers of Chriſt, turns to a teſtimony againſt them, Mark 6. 11. Every groan and ſigh, every drop of ſweat, much more of blood, are placed in God's Book as Marginal Notes by all their Sermons and Prayers, and will be produced and read in the great day againſt all the refuſers and deſpiſers of Chriſt.

2. The Goſpel it ſelf, which is preached to you, is a Teſtimony or Witneſs for God, for or againſt every one that hears it: John 12. 48. He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him; the Word that I have ſpoken, the ſame ſhall judg him in the laſt day. And this is the ſenſe of Chriſt's word, Mat. 24. 14. And this Goſpel of the Kingdom ſhall be preached in all the World, for a Witneſs to all Nations, and then ſhall the end come. Ah Lord, what a ſolemn record is here! Every Sermon you hear, yea, every reproof, perſwaſion and conviction is a Witneſs for God to caſt and condemn every Soul in Judgment, that complies not obediently with the calls of the Goſpel: So many Sermons, ſo many Witneſſes.

3. Every man's own Conſcience is a Witneſs for God, that he hath a fair offer once made him: the very Conſciences of the Heathens that never ſaw a Bible, that had no other Preachers but the Sun, Moon and Stars, and other works of Nature; yet of them the Apoſtle ſaith, Rom. 2. 15. That they ſhew the work of the Law written in their hearts, their conſcience alſo bearing witneſs, and their thoughts the mean while accuſing or excuſing one another. Certainly if ſuch vigour and activity was put into the conſciences of Heathens, who could only read the will of God by the dim Moonlight of natural Reaſon; how much more vigorous and active will Conſcience be in its accuſing office againſt all that live under the bright beams of Goſpel-Light? Their Conſciences will be ſwift Witneſſes, and will ring ſad Peals in their ears another day. Ezek. 2. 5. You ſhall know that there hath been a Prophet among you. This ſingle Witneſs is inſtead of a thouſand Witneſſes for God.

4. The Examples of all thoſe that do believe and obey the Goſpel, are ſo many Witneſſes for God againſt the deſpiſers and neglecters of the great Salvation. Every mourning trembling Soul among you is a Witneſs againſt all the dead-hearted, unbelieving, diſobedient ones, that ſit with them under the ſame ordinances. Hence it is ſaid, 1 Cor. 6. 7. Know ye not that the Saints ſhall judg the World? They ſhall be Aſſeſſors with Chriſt in the great day, and condemn the world by their examples, as Noah did the old world. Thus John, Mat. 21. 32. came unto you in the way of righteouſneſs, and ye believed him not, but the Publicans and Harlots believed him; and ye when ye had ſeen it, repented not afterwards, that ye might believe him. q. d. What ſhift did you make to quiet your conſciences, and ſtifle your convictions, when you ſaw Publicans the worſt of Men, and Harlots the worſt of Women, repenting, believing, and hungering after Chriſt! Their examples ſhall be your Judges. Theſe are God's Witneſſes.

II. Next let us conſider what are the object matters unto which they give their Teſtimony, and that will be found two-fold, according to the two-fold event the Goſpel hath upon them that hear it: of both which the Apoſtle gives this account, 2 Cor. 2. 16. Unto ſome we are the ſavour of life unto life, and unto others the ſavour of death unto death. Accordingly a double Record is made,

1. Of the Obedience and Faith of ſome, which Record will be produced to their joy and comfort in the day of the Lord, when he ſhall come to be glorified in his Saints, and to be admired in all them that believe, becauſe our teſtimony among you was believed in that day. Miniſters are Inſtruments of eſpouſing Souls to Chriſt, and Witneſſes to thoſe eſpouſals and contracts made betwixt him and them, 2 Cor. 11. 2. Both theſe Offices are exceeding grateful and pleaſant to every faithful Miniſter.

2. A Record is made, and Witneſs taken of all the refuſals, diſobedience, and ſlightings of Chriſt by others. Thus Moſes will be the accuſer of the Jews; Joh. 5. 45. Do not think I will accuſe you to the Father; there is one that accuſeth you, even Moſes in whom you truſt. This is the ſaddeſt part of a Miniſters work; the forethoughts of it are more afflictive than all our Labours and Sufferings. There is a three-fold Record made in this caſe: (1.) Of the time Men have injoyed under the means of Salvation; how many years they have ſat barren and dead-hearted under the labours of God's faithful Miniſters; Luke 13. 7. Behold, theſe three years I come ſeeking fruit on this Fig-tree, and find none. Behold, the ſame term of Notification with that in the Text, applied to the time of God's patience towards them. And again, Jer. 25. From the thirteenth year of Joſiah even unto this day, (that is, the three and twentieth year) the word of the Lord hath come unto me, and I have ſpoken unto you riſing early, and ſpeaking, but you have not hearkened. O conſider, all the years and days you have ſpent under the Goſpel, are upon your Doomſday-book. (2.) Records are alſo made of all the Inſtruments that ever God employed for the Converſion and Salvation of your Souls. So many Miniſters, whether fixed or tranſient, as have ſpent their labours upon you, are upon the Book of your account. Jer. 25. 4. The Lord hath ſent unto you all his ſervants the Prophets, riſing early, and ſending them; but ye have not hearkned, nor enclined your ear to hear. They have waſted their Lungs, dropt their compaſſionate tears, and burnt down one after another as Candles to direct you to Chriſt and Salvation, but all in vain. (3.) Every Call, Perſwaſion and Argument uſed by them to eſpouſe you to Chriſt, is likewiſe upon the Book of account. Prov. 1. 24, 25. Becauſe I have called and you refuſed, I have ſtretched my hand, and no man regarded, but you have ſet at nought all my Counſels, and would none of my Reproofs. Theſe Calls and Counſels ſels are of too great value with God (tho of none with you) to be loſt and left out of your account.

III. We ſhall in the laſt place inquire into the grounds and reaſons of theſe judicial procedures of God, why he will have every man's Obedience and Diſobedience regiſtred and witneſſed for or againſt him under Goſpel-adminiſtrations; and there are two weighty reaſons thereof.

1. That wherever the end of the Goſpel is attained in the Converſion of any ſoul, that ſoul, and all that were inſtrumentally employ'd about the Salvation of it, may have their proper reward and comfort in the great day: 2 Cor. 1. 14. As alſo you have acknowledged us in part, that we are your rejoicing, even as ye alſo are ours in the day of the Lord Jeſus. This will be matter of joy unſpeakable, both to you that ſhall receive, and to them that ſhall give ſuch a comfortable teſtimony for you. O the joyful Congratulations that will be in that day between laborious Faithful Miniſters, and their believing obedient Hearers! Lord, this was the bleſſed Inſtrument of my happy Illumination and Converſion; tho I might have ten thouſand Inſtructers in Chriſt, yet not many Fathers; for by the bleſſing of thy Spirit upon this man's Miniſtry, my Soul was begotten to Chriſt. And on the other ſide, Lord, theſe are the Souls for whom I travelled as in Birth until Chriſt was formed in them. 'Tis a glorious thing to ſay as the Prophet, Here am I, and the Children God hath given me.

Nay, thoſe that were but collaterally uſeful to help on the work of God begun by others, muſt not loſe their reward in that day. John 4. 36. And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal, that both he that ſoweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together.

2. Records are now made, and Witneſſes taken, that thereby the Judicial Sentence of Jeſus Chriſt in the laſt day may be made clear and perſpicuous to all the World; that every mouth may be ſtopt, and no Plea or Apology left in the mouth of any condemned Sinner. For Chriſt in that day cometh, Jude 15. to convince all that are ungodly; to convince by demonſtration, that all that are Chriſtleſs now, may be found ſpeechleſs then, Mat. 22. 12. Hence it is ſaid, Pſal. 1. 5. That the wicked ſhall not ſtand, or riſe up in the Judgment. And no wonder when ſo many full Teſtimonies and unexceptionable Witneſſes ſhall come point blank againſt them, the Miniſter that preached, the Word they preached, their own Conſciences, and the Examples of all Believers will be produced againſt them.

2*d* Infer. What a ſpur is here to Miniſterial diligence and faithfulneſs? 'Tis an awful work that is under our hands; the effects of the Goſpel which we preach, will be the ſavour of life or death to them that hear us. If the Lord proſper it in our hands, we ſhall be Witneſſes for you, it will be an addition to our glory in Heaven; Dan. 12. 3. They that turn many to righteouſneſs, ſhall ſhine as the brightneſs of the Firmament, and as the Stars for ever and ever. But if we be ignorant, lazy, Men-pleaſers, our people will come in as ſwift Witneſſes againſt us, and their blood will be required at our hands; it will be an intolerable aggravation to our miſery in Hell, to have any that ſat under our Miniſtry thus upbraiding us! O cruel Man! thou ſaweſt my ſoul in danger, and never dealt faithfully and plainly with me; the ſame time and breath that was ſpent in idle and worldly diſcourſe, might have been inſtrumental to have ſav'd me from this place of torment. Let Miniſters conſider themſelves as Witneſſes for God, and their People as Witneſſes for or againſt them; and under that conſideration, ſo ſtudy, preach and pray, that they may with Paul take God to record, that they are free from the blood of all men; no ſort of men upon earth have more ſpurs to diligence and faithfulneſs than we have.

3*d* Infer. What a Pill is this to purge Formality out of all that hear us? Every Sabbath, every Sermon is recorded in Heaven for or againſt your Souls; at what rate ſoever you attend to the Word, all that you hear is ſet down in the book of your account: think not you ſhall return as you came, the Word will have its effect and end, it ſhall not return in vain, Iſa. 55. 11. but ſhall accompliſh the end for which it is ſent. The decrees of Heaven are executed by the Goſpel, ſome ſouls ſhall be quickened, and others ſhall be ſlain by the Words of God's mouth. The Goſpel is a River of the waters of Life, which quickens and refreſhes every thing that lives; but the miry and marſhy places ſhall not be healed. How weighty therefore is that caution of our Lord, Luke 8. 18. Take heed how you hear? When you come under an Ordinance, you are ſowing ſeed for eternity, which will ſpring up in the world to come. Preaching and hearing may be conſidered two ways, Phyſically or Morally: in the former reſpect, theſe acts are quickly over and paſs away. I ſhall by and by have done preaching, and you hearing; this Sermon will be ended in a little time, but the conſequences thereof will abide for ever. Therefore for the Lord's ſake away with formality, no more drowſy eyes or wandering thoughts. O when you come to attend upon the Miniſtry of the Goſpel, that ſuch thoughts as theſe might prepare your minds! The Word I am going to hear will quicken or kill, ſave or damn my Soul; if I ſit dead under it, and return barren from it, I ſhall wiſh one day that I had never ſeen the face of that Miniſter, nor heard his voice that preached it.

4. Infer. What a dreadful condition are all thoſe in that are real and profeſſed Enemies to the Goſpel, and them that preach it! That inſtead of embracing and obeying the meſſage of the Goſpel, reject and deſpiſe it; inſtead of opening their Hearts to receive it, open their blaſphemous Mouths againſt it, to deride it, and hiſs it (if it were poſſible) out of the world. Ah, what a Book of Remembrance is written for ſuch men? I fear there never was an Age ſince Chriſtianity bleſſed this Nation, that was more deeply drench'd in the guilt of this ſin than the preſent Age. How are the Meſſengers of the Goſpel ſlighted and rejected? What have we done to deſerve it? Is not our caſe this day much like that of the Prophet? Shall evil be recompenſed for good? for they have digged a Pit for my Soul; remember that I ſtood before thee to ſpeak good for them, and to turn away thy wrath from them, Jer. 18. 20. What brutiſh madneſs hath poſſeſt the Souls of theſe men? but alas, it is not ſo much they, as Satan acting in them; he is a jealous Prince, the Goſpel alarms him, his Subjects are in danger of revolting from him: No wonder therefore he makes an outcry at the liberty of the Goſpel, as is uſed to be made when an Enemy invades a Kingdom. In this caſe Chriſt directs his Miniſters to ſhake off the duſt of their Feet for a teſtimony againſt them, Mar. 6. 11. The ſignification and meaning whereof is this, that look as you ſhake off the duſt of your feet, even ſo Jeſus Chriſt will ſhake off thoſe men that deſpiſe the Goſpel, and abuſe its Meſſengers.

5. Infer. Hence it likewiſe follows, that the caſe of the Pagan World will be eaſier in the day of Judgment, than theirs that live and die unregenerate and diſobedient under the Goſpel of Chriſt. There are more Witneſſes prepared, and Records filed againſt the day of your account, than can poſſibly be againſt them: they have abuſed but one Talent, the light of Nature; but we thouſands, even as many thouſands as we have had opportunities and calls under the Goſpel. Upon this account Chriſt ſaith, Whoſoever ſhall not receive you, nor hear your words, ſhake off the duſt of your feet. Verily, I ſay unto you, it ſhall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of Judgment, than for that City, Mat. 10. 14, 15.

Ah, what a fearful Aggravation doth it put upon our ſin and miſery, that we are not only accountable for all the Light we had, but for all that we might have had in the Goſpel-day! Capernaum was lifted up to Heaven in the enjoyment of means and precious opportunities, Mat. 11. 23. and had an anſwerable downfal into the depth of miſery from that height of mercy; as the higher any one is lifted up upon a Rack, the more terrible is the jerk he receives by the fall.

6. Infer. Laſtly, hence it appears, That the day of Judgment muſt certainly take up a vaſt ſpace of time: For if God will bring every thing into Judgment, Eccleſ. 12. 14. not only ſinful actions, but words, Mat. 12. 36. not only words, but heart-ſecrets, Rom. 2. 16. If all the Records and Regiſters now made, ſhall then be opened and read, all the Witneſſes for or againſt every man examined and heard; judg then what a vaſt ſpace of time will that great Day take up. Some Divines are of opinion it may laſt as long as the World hath laſted; but this is ſure, things will not be hudled up, nor ſhuffled over in haſt; you have taken your time for ſinning, and God will take his time for judging.

Conſider the multitudes, multitudes without number, that are to be judged in that day, even all the poſterity of Adam, which are as the Sand upon the Sea-ſhore; that not only ſo many perſons, but all that they have done, muſt come into Judgment, even the very thoughts of their Hearts, which never came to the knowledg of Men; their Conſciences to be interrogated, all other Witneſſes fully heard and examined: how great a day muſt this day of the Lord then be?

The Second Uſe.

But the main of this Point will be for Exhortation, that ſeeing all the offers of Chriſt are recorded and witneſſed with reſpect to a day of account, every one of you would therefore immediately embrace the preſent gracious tender of Chriſt in the Goſpel, as ever you expect to be acquitted and cleared in that great day: take heed of denials, nay of delays and demurs. For if the word ſpoken by Angels was ſtedfaſt, and every tranſgreſſion and diſobedience received a juſt recompence of reward; how ſhall we eſcape if we neglect ſo great Salvation? Heb. 2. 2, 3. The Queſtion is put, but no Anſwer made; How ſhall we eſcape? The wiſdom of Men and Angels cannot tell how. To enforce this Exhortation, I ſhall preſent you with ten weighty Conſiderations upon the matter, which the Lord follow home, by the bleſſing of his Spirit, upon all your Hearts.

1. Conſider how invaluable a mercy it is, that you are yet within the reach of offered Grace. The mercies that ſtand in offer before you this day, were never ſet before the Angels that fell; no Mediator was ever appointed for them. O aſtoniſhing mercy! that thoſe Veſſels of Gold ſhould be caſt into everlaſting Fire, and ſuch clay Veſſels as we are thus put into a capacity of greater happineſs than ever they fell from: Nay, the mercy that ſtands before you is not only denied to the Angels that fell, but to the greateſt part of your fellow Creatures, of the ſame rank and dignity with you: He ſheweth his Word to Jacob, his Statutes and his Judgments unto Iſrael; he hath not dealt ſo with any Nation, and as for his Judgments they have not known them: praiſe ye the Lord. Pſal. 147. 19, 20. A mercy deſervedly celebrated with a joyful Allelujah. What vaſt Tracts are there in the habitable World, where the name of Chriſt is unknown! 'Tis your ſpecial mercy to be born in a Land of Bibles and Miniſters; where it is as difficult for you to avoid and ſhun the Light, as it is for others to behold and enjoy it.

2. Conſider the nature, weight, and worth of the Mercies which are this day freely offered you. Certainly they are mercies of the firſt rank, the moſt ponderous, precious, and neceſſary among all the mercies of God. Chriſt the firſt born of mercies, and in him Pardon, Peace, and eternal Salvation are ſet before you: it were aſtoniſhing to ſee a ſtarving Man refuſing offered bread, or a condemned Man a gracious pardon. Lord what compoſitions of ſloth and ſtupidity are we, that we ſhould need ſo many intreaties to be happy!

3. Conſider who it is that makes theſe gracious tenders of Pardon, Peace and Salvation, to you; even that God whom you have ſo deeply wronged, whoſe Laws you have violated, whoſe Mercies you have ſpurned, and whoſe Wrath you have juſtly incenſed. His patience groans under the burden of your daily provocations; he loſes nothing if you be damned, and receives no benefit if you be ſaved; yet the firſt motions of Mercy and Salvation to you, freely ariſe out of his Grace and good pleaſure. God intreats you to be reconciled, 2 Cor. 5. 20. The bleſſed Lord Jeſus, whoſe blood thy ſins have ſhed, now freely offers that blood for thy Reconciliation, Juſtification and Salvation, if thou wilt but ſincerely accept him e'er it be too late.

4. Reflect ſeriouſly upon your own vileneſs, to whom ſuch gracious offers of Peace and Mercy are made. Thy ſins have ſet thee at as great a diſtance from the hopes and expectations of pardon, as any ſinner in the World. Conſider Man, what thou haſt been, what thou haſt done, and what vaſt heaps of guilt thou haſt contracted by a life of ſin; and yet that unto thee Pardon and Peace ſhould be offered in Chriſt, after ſuch a life of Rebellion, how aſtoniſhing is the mercy! The Lord is contented to paſs by all thy former Rebellions, thy deep-died Tranſgreſſions, and to ſign an Act of Oblivion for all that is paſt, if now at laſt thy Heart relent for Sin, and thy Will bow in obedience to the great commands and calls of the Goſpel, Iſa. 55. 2. & 1. 18.

5. Conſider how many offers of mercy you have already refuſed, and that every refuſal is recorded againſt you: How long you have tried and even tired the patience of God already, and that this may be the laſt overture of Grace that ever God will make to your Souls. Certainly there is an offer that will be the laſt offer, a ſtriving of the Spirit which will be his laſt ſtriving; and after that no more offers without you, no more motions or ſtrivings within you for evermore. The Treaty is then ended, and your laſt neglect or rejection of Chriſt recorded againſt the day of your account; and what if this ſhould prove to be that laſt tender of Grace which muſt conclude the Treaty betwixt Chriſt and you! what undone wretches muſt you then be, with whom ſo gracious a Treaty breaks off upon ſuch dreadful terms!

6. Conſider well the reaſonable, mild, and gracious nature of the Goſpel-terms, on which Life and Pardon are offered to you. Acts 20. 21. The Goſpel requires nothing of you but Repentance and Faith. Can you think it hard when a Prince pardons a Rebel, to require him to fall upon his Knees, and ſtretch forth a willing and thankful Hand to receive his Pardon? Your Repentance and Faith are much of the ſame nature. Here is no legal ſatisfaction required at your hands, no reparation of the injured Law by your doings or ſufferings, but a hearty ſorrow for ſins committed, ſincere purpoſes and endeavours after new obedience, and a hearty thankful acceptation of Chriſt your Saviour; and for your encouragement herein, his Spirit ſtands ready to furniſh you with Powers and Abilities: Turn you at my reproof, behold I will pour out my Spirit unto you, I will make known my Words unto you, Prov. 1. 23. And Iſa. 26. 12. Lord, thou haſt wrought all our Works in us.

7. Again, Conſider how your way to Chriſt by Repentance and Faith is beaten before you by thouſands of ſinners for your encouragement. You are not the firſt that ever adventured your Souls in this path: multitudes are gone before you, and that under as much guilt, fear and diſcouragement as you that come after can pretend unto; and not a man among them repulſed or diſcouraged: here they have found reſt and peace to their weary Souls, Heb. 4. 3. Acts 13. 39. Here the greateſt of Sinners have been forth for an enſample to you that ſhould afterwards believe on his Name, 1 Tim. 1. 16. You ſee if you will not, others will joyfully accept the offers of Chriſt; What diſcouragements have you that they had not? or what greater incouragements had they which God hath not given you this day? Therefore they ſhall be your Judges.

8. Conſider the great hazard of theſe precious ſeaſons you now enjoy. Opportunity is the golden ſpot of time, but it is tempus labile, a very ſlippery and uncertain thing: great and manifold are the hazards and contingences attending it. Your life is immediately uncertain, your breath continually going in your Noſtrils; and that which is every moment going, will be gone at laſt. The Goſpel is as uncertain as your life; God hath made no ſuch ſettlement of it but that he may at pleaſure remove it, and will certainly do ſo, if we thus trifle under it; 'tis but a Candleſtick, tho a golden one, Rev. 2. 5. and that you all know is a moveable thing: and not only your life, and the means of your eternal life, I mean the Goſpel, are uncertain things; but even the motions and ſtrivings of the Spirit with your Souls are as uncertain as either. Work out your own ſalvation with fear and trembling, for it is God that worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleaſure, Phil. 2. 12, 13. That God now works with you, is matter of great incouragement to your work; but that he works at his own pleaſure, as a free arbitrary Agent who can ceaſe when he pleaſes, and never give one knock at your hearts more, ſhould make you work with fear and trembling.

9. Think what a fearful aggravation it will be, both of your ſin and miſery, to periſh in the ſight and preſence of an offered remedy; to ſink into Hell betwixt the outſtretched Arms of a compaſſionate Redeemer, that would have gathered you, but you would not.

Heathens, yea Devils will upbraid you in Hell for ſuch unaccountable folly, and deſperate madneſs: Heathens will ſay, Alas, we had but the dim Moon-light of Nature, which did indeed diſcover Sin, but not Chriſt the Remedy. Ah, had your Preachers and your Bibles been ſent among us, how gladly would we have embraced them! Surely, ſaith God to Ezekiel, had I ſent thee to them, they would have hearkned unto thee, Ezek. 3. 5, 6. Mat. 11. 21. The very Devils will upbraid you; O if God had ſent a Mediator in our nature, we had never rejected him as you have done; but he took not on him the nature of Angels.

10. Laſtly, How clear, as well as ſure, will your condemnation be in the great day, againſt whom ſuch a cloud of Witneſſes will appear! O how manifeſt will the Righteouſneſs of God be! Men and Angels ſhall applaud the Sentence, and your own Conſciences ſhall acknowledg the equity of it. You that are Chriſtleſs now, will be ſpeechleſs then, Mat. 22. 12. Knowing therefore the terrors of the Lord, I perſwade Men, 2 Cor. 5. 11. as one that trembles to think of being ſummoned as a Witneſs againſt any of your Souls. O that I might be your rejoycing, and you mine in the day of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt!

SERMON II.

Revel. III. 20.

Behold [I] ſtand at the Door, &c.

HAving in the former Sermon ponder'd Chriſt's ſolemn Preface to his earneſt Suit; the next thing that comes under our conſideration, is the Perſon ſoliciting, and pleading for admiſſion into the Heart of Sinners, which is Chriſt himſelf.

Behold [I] ſtand. The only difficulty here is rightly to apprehend the manner of Chriſt's Preſence in Goſpel-adminiſtrations: for it is manifeſt the Perſon of Chriſt was at this time in Heaven; his Bodily Preſence was removed from this lower World above ſixty years before this Epiſtle was written to the Laodiceans. John's baniſhment into Patmos is by Euſebius, out of Irenæus and Clemens Alexandrinus, placed in the fourteenth year of the Emperor Domitian, and under his ſecond Perſecution, which was about the ninety ſeventh year from the Birth of Chriſt.

Yet here he ſaith, Behold I ſtand; not my Meſſengers and Miniſters only, but I by my Spiritual Preſence among you, I your Sovereign Lord and Owner, who have all right and authority by Creation and Redemption to poſſeſs and diſpoſe of your Souls; 'tis I that ſtand at the Door and knock, I by my Spirit, ſoliciting and moving by the Miniſtry of Men. You ſee none but Men; but believe it, I am really and truly, tho ſpiritually and inviſibly preſent in all thoſe Adminiſtrations; all thoſe Knocks, Motions and Solicitations are truly mine, they are my Acts, and I own them, and ſo I would have you conceive and apprehend them. Hence the ſecond Note is this,

Doct. 2. That Jeſus Chriſt is truly preſent with men in his Ordinances, and hath to do with them, and they with him; tho he be not viſible to their carnal Eyes.

Thus runs the Promiſe: Where two or three are gathered together in my Name, there am I in the midſt of them, Mat. 18. 20. The middle place was the Seat of the Preſident in the Jewiſh Aſſemblies, where he might equally hear and be heard of all. So will I be in the midſt of the Aſſemblies of the Faithful, met together in my Name and Authority, to bleſs, guide and protect them. Hence the Church is called the place of his Feet, Iſa. 16. 13. a manifeſt alluſion to the Ark, called God's Footſtool, Pſal. 99. 5. And agreeably hereunto, Chriſt is ſaid to walk among the ſeven golden Candleſticks, Rev. 2. 1. There are the Spiritual walks of Chriſt, there his converſes and communion with Men: And this preſence of Chriſt was not the peculiar privilege of the firſt Churches, but is common to all the Churches of the Saints to the end of the World, as appears by that glorious promiſe comfortably co-extended with the Church from firſt to laſt; Lo, I am with you always to the end of the World, Mat. 28. ult. This Promiſe is the ground and reaſon of all our Faith, and expectations of benefit from Ordinances; and the Subjects of it are not here conſidered Perſonally, but Officially, to you and all that ſucceed you in the ſame Work and Office; not to you only as Extraordinary, but to all the ſucceeding Ordinary ſtanding Officers in my Church. As for the Apoſtles, neither their Perſons, nor extraordinary Office was to continue long, but this Promiſe was to continue to the end of the World.

Nor is this Promiſe made abſolutely, but conditionally; the connection of the Promiſe with the Command, enforces this qualified ſenſe; as 2 Chron. 15. 2. The Lord is with you, whilſt you are with him. Ignorant idle unqualified Perſons cannot claim the benefit of this gracious grant.

Once more, this Promiſe is made to every hour and minute of time. I am with you, all the days, as it is in the Greek Text; in dark and dangerous, as well as peaceable and encouraging days: and it is cloſed up with a ſolemn Amen, So be it, or, So it ſhall be.

To open this Point diſtinctly, we are to conſider that there is a threefold preſence of Chriſt.

1. Corporeal.
2. Repreſented.
3. Spiritual.

1. There is a Corporeal Preſence of Chriſt, which the Church once enjoyed on Earth, when he went in and out amongſt his People, Acts 1. 21. when their Eyes ſaw him, and their Hands handled him, 1 John 1. 1. This Preſence was a ſingular conſolation to the Diſciples, and therefore they were greatly dejected when it was to be removed from them. But after Redemption-work was finiſhed on Earth, this bodily Preſence was no longer neceſſary to be continued in this World, but more expedient to be removed to Heaven, John 16. 7. as indeed it was, and muſt there abide until the time of the reſtitution of all things,

Acts 3. 21. And in this reſpect he tells the Diſciples, John 16. 28. I leave the World, and go to my Father.

2. There is a Repreſented Preſence of Chriſt in Ordinances. As the Perſon of a King is repreſented in another Country by his Ambaſſadors, ſo is Chriſt in this World by his Miniſters: We then are Ambaſſadors for God; as tho God did beſeech you by us, we pray you in Chriſt's ſtead, be ye reconciled to God, 2 Cor. 5. 20. Chriſt is about other work for us in Heaven, but we ſtand in his ſtead on Earth. And this ſpeaks the great Dignity of the Miniſterial Office; whatever abuſes or contempts are caſt on them, they reflect upon Chriſt: He that deſpiſeth you, deſpiſeth me, Luk. 10. 16. It alſo teacheth us whence the validity of Goſpel-adminiſtrations is; Chriſt ratifies and confirms them with his own Authority. It alſo inſtructs us how wiſe, ſpiritual, and holy Miniſters ſhould be, who repreſent Chriſt to the Word. A Drunkard, a Perſecutor, a ſenſual Worldling, is but an ill Repreſentative of the bleſſed and holy Jeſus.

3. Beſide and above the two former, there is a Spiritual Preſence of Chriſt in the Churches, and Ordinances; and this Preſence of Chriſt by his Spirit, who is his Vicegerent, is to be conſidered as that from which all Goſpel-Ordinances derive,

1. Their Beauty and Glory.
2. Their Power and Efficacy.
3. Their awful Solemnity.
4. Their Continuance and Stability.

1. From the preſence of Chriſt by his Spirit, the Ordinances and Churches derive their Beauty and Glory: To ſee thy Power and thy Glory, ſo as I have ſeen thee in the Sanctuary, Pſal. 27. 4. Look as the beauty of the Body is a reſult from the Soul that animates it; and when the Soul is gone, the Beauty of the Body is gone alſo: ſo the Beauty and Glory of all Ordinances comes and goes with the Spirit of Chriſt, which is the very Soul of them. The Churches are indeed golden Candleſticks, but the Candleſtick hath no light but what the Candle gives it; hence that magnificent deſcription of the new Temple is cloſed up in this expreſſion, The name of that City ſhall be, The Lord is there, Ezek. 48. ult.

2. From this Spiritual Preſence of Chriſt, all Goſpel-Ordinances derive that Power and Efficacy which is by them exerted upon the Souls of Men, either in their Converſion or Edification. This power is not inherent in them, nor do they act as natural, neceſſary agents, but as inſtituted means, which are ſucceſsful or unſucceſsful, according as Chriſt by his Spirit co-operates with them: He that plants is nothing, neither he that watereth, but God that giveth the increaſe, 1 Cor. 3. 7. that is, they are nothing to the purpoſe, nothing to the accompliſhment of Mens Salvation without the concurrence of the Spirit of Chriſt. For when the Apoſtle makes himſelf and Apollos, with all other Miniſters, nothing, we muſt underſtand him ſpeaking not abſolutely, but comparatively, and relatively; they are neceſſary in their places, and ſufficient in their kind, for what they are appointed to, elſe it would be a reflection upon the wiſdom of God that inſtituted them: but ſingly in themſelves, and diſjunctively conſidered, they are nothing; as a Trumpet or Wind-Inſtrument is nothing, as to its end and uſe, except breath be inſpired into it, and that breath modulated by the art and skill of the Inſpirer; like Ezekiel's Wheels that move not but as the Spirit that was in them moved, and directed their motions. If Ordinances wrought upon Souls naturally, and neceſſarily, as the fire burneth, then they could not fail of ſucceſs upon all that come under them: But it is with them as with the Waters of the Pool of Betheſda, whoſe healing virtue was only found at that ſeaſon when the Angel deſcended and troubled them.

3. This Spiritual Preſence of Chriſt gives the Ordinances of the Goſpel that awful ſolemnity which is due upon that account to them. The Preſence of Chriſt in them commands reverence from all that are about him. God is greatly to be feared in the Aſſemblies of his Saints, and to be had in reverence of all that are round about him. Hence is that ſolemn caution or threatning, Lev. 26. 23, 24. If you walk contrary unto me, then will I alſo walk contrary unto you; the Hebrew word in that Text ſignifies to walk raſhly or at an adventure with God, ſine perſonæ diſcrimine, without conſidering with whom we have to do, and what an awful Majeſty we ſtand before. And the puniſhment is ſutable to the ſin; I alſo will walk at an adventure with you, making no diſcrimination in my Judgments betwixt your Perſons and the Perſons of the worſt of Men. O that this were duly conſidered by all that have to do with God in Goſpel-inſtitutions!

4. 'Tis the Spiritual Preſence of Chriſt in his Churches and Ordinances that gives them their continuance and ſtability: whenever the Spirit of Chriſt departs from them, it will not be long before they depart from us; or if they ſhould not, their continuance will be little to our advantage. When the Glory of the Lord once diſmounted from betwixt the Cherubims, when that ſad voice was heard in the Temple, migremus hinc, let us go hence, how ſoon was both City and Temple made a deſolation! And truly Chriſt's Preſence is not ſo fixed to any Place, or any Ordinances, but the ſins of the People may baniſh it away, Rev. 2. 5. Who will tarry in any place longer than he is welcom, if he have any where elſe to go?

But more particularly, let us here diſcuſs theſe two Points.

I. How it appears Chriſt is thus Spiritually preſent with his Churches and Ordinances.

II. Why it is neceſſary he ſhould be ſo.

Firſt, By what evidences doth it manifeſtly appear that there is ſuch a preſence of Chriſt with his Churches and Ordinances. And this will appear by two undeniable evidences thereof.

1. By their wonderful Preſervations.
2. From their ſupernatural Effects.

1. From their wonderful Preſervations: for it is wholly unaccountable, and unconceivable, how the Churches, Miniſters and Ordinances, ſhould be ſupported and preſerved without it, amidſt ſuch Hoſts of potent and enraged Enemies. If Chriſt were not among them, they had certainly been ſwallowed up long ago. 'Tis he that holds the Stars in his right hand, Rev. 2. 1. His walks among the ſeven golden Candleſticks is their beſt ſecurity. The Burning Buſh, Exod.

3. 3. is a rare emblem to open this Myſtery; the buſh burned with fire, but was not conſumed. The buſh was a reſemblance of the Church of God in Egypt, the flames upon it was their terrible Perſecution; the wonder, that no aſhes appeared as the effects of thoſe terrible flames; the reaſon thereof was, God was in the buſh, Jeſus Chriſt was in the midſt of his people.

By virtue of this Preſence we are here this day, in the enjoyment of Goſpel-Liberties; no Society of Men in the World have ſuch ſecurity as the Church hath upon this account. The mightieſt Monarchies have been overturned, no Policies nor human Power could preſerve them; but the Church and Ordinances are ſtill preſerved, and ſhall ever be by virtue of that gracious Promiſe, Jer. 30. 11. For I am with thee, ſaith the Lord, to ſave thee: tho I make a full end of all Nations whither I have ſcattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee.

The Babylonian, Perſian, Grecian Monarchies have deſtroyed and ruined one another:

———— Sic Medus ademit
Aſſyrio, Syroque tulit moderamina Perſes, &c.

but ſtill the Church of Chriſt lifts up its Head, and beholds their ruins.

2. This Preſence of Chriſt in and with his Ordinances is undeniably evinced from their ſupernatural effects upon the Souls of Men: 2 Cor. 10. 4. The Weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty thro God to the pulling down of ſtrong holds. 'Tis the Spirit of Chriſt that gives them their ſucceſs and efficacy: The Sword of the Goſpel hath its point and edg, but it is impoſſible the Heart of a ſtupid hardned ſinner ſhould ever be prickt or wounded by it, if the Spirit of Chriſt did not manage it. When Sinners fall down convinced under the authority of the Word, they feel, and readily acknowledg that God is in it of a truth, 1 Cor. 14. 25. Ruffinus reports, that at the Council of Nice, a godly man, of no great learning, was the inſtrument of converting a learned Philoſopher, whom the Biſhops with all their Arguments could not perſuade: of which the Philoſopher himſelf gave this remarkable account, Whilſt you reaſoned with me, ſaid he, againſt words I oppoſed words, and what was ſpoken I overthrew by the art of ſpeaking; but when inſtead of words, power came out of the mouth of the ſpeaker, words could no longer withſtand truth, nor Man reſiſt the power of God.

And this indeed is the true and juſt account of all thoſe marvellous and gracious changes made upon the Souls of men by the preaching of the Goſpel: Can the vaniſhing breath of a dying Man, think you, inſpire ſpiritual and eternal Life into the Souls of other Men? Can he ſearch the Conſcience, break the Heart, and bow the Will at this rate? No, no, this is the Power and Operation of Chriſt; and of that Preſence we muſt ſay, ſaith a * Reverend Author, as Martha did to her Saviour concerning the Death of her Brother Lazarus, John 11. 21. Lord if thou hadſt been here, my Brother had not died. So, ſay I, if that Preſence and Power of Chriſt were felt by all, which hath been certainly experienced and felt by many, they had not remained in the ſtate of Spiritual Death as they do. But tho there be thouſands under Ordinances that never felt this Power of Chriſt upon them, yet bleſſed be God there are alſo multitudes of Witneſſes and Evidences of this Truth, that there is a real, ſpiritual, energetical Preſence of Chriſt in his own Appointments; which was the firſt thing to be evinced.

* Mr. Burgeſs on 1 Cor. 3.

Secondly, The ſecond thing requiring Explication, is the Uſes and Ends which make ſuch a Preſence of Chriſt neceſſary. And they are,

1. To preſerve and ſupport his Miniſters and Churches amidſt ſuch Hoſts of potent and enraged Enemies: This Preſence of Chriſt is as a Wall of Fire round about them. It was the divine Preſence with Jeremiah that was as a Life-Guard to him againſt the rage of the Princes and Nobles of Iſrael: Jer. 15. 20, 21. I will make thee to this People a fenced brazen Wall, and they ſhall fight againſt thee, but they ſhall not prevail againſt thee; for I am with thee to ſave thee, and to deliver thee, ſaith the Lord: And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of the terrible.

It was eaſier for the Roman Army to ſcale the Walls, and batter down the Towers of Jeruſalem, than for all the Enemies in Jeruſalem to deſtroy this Prophet of God thus immur'd by the Divine Preſence. Athanaſius and Luther had the Power of the Empire ingaged againſt them, yet the Preſence of Chriſt was their ſecurity. The Witneſſes could not be ſlain till they had finiſhed their Teſtimony, Rev. 11. 7. To this Preſence alone the faithful Witneſſes of Chriſt owe their marvellous preſervation at this day; had not Chriſt ſaid, Lo, I am with you, you had not ſaid at this day, behold our Miniſters are ſtill with us.

2. The Preſence of Chriſt is neceſſary to aſſiſt and enable his Miniſters in their Work, for it is a Work quite above their own ſtrength; for it is well we are workers together with God, elſe we ſhould ſoon faint under our labours. When Moſes objected, I am not eloquent, the Lord told him, I will be with thy Mouth, Exod. 4. 10. When God guides the Tongue, how powerful and perſuaſive muſt the Language be! When the Apoſtles, illiterate men, were ſent out to convert the World, Chriſt promiſed to give them a Mouth and Wiſdom, Luke 21. 15. a mouth to ſpeak, and Wiſdom to guide that mouth; and then their words were demonſtrations, all their adverſaries could not reſiſt that Spirit and Power by which they ſpake. Empires and Kingdoms full of Enemies, received the Goſpel; but the reaſon of this wonderful ſucceſs is given us in Mark 16. 20. They went out and preached every where, the Lord working with them. 'Tis ſweet and proſperous working in fellowſhip with Chriſt: The Spirit of Chriſt gives a manifold aſſiſtance to his Miniſters in their work; 'tis he that guides and directs their minds in the choice of thoſe Subjects wherein they labour with ſuch ſucceſs to their Hearers. He dictates the Matter, influences their Affections, guides their Lips, follows home their Doctrine with ſucceſs. And this is a ſpecial uſe and end of Chriſt's Preſence with his Miniſters and Ordinances.

3. The ſpiritual Preſence of Chriſt is neceſſary for the preparation and opening of the Peoples hearts to receive and embrace the Goſpel to Salvation; not a Heart will open to receive Chriſt till the Spirit of Chriſt unlock them. Paul and

Timothy were extraordinarily called to preach the Goſpel at Macedonia, there Lydia was converted; but how? Not by their Skill or Eloquence, but by the Spirit's Influence; The Lord opened the Heart of Lydia, Acts 16. 14. The Church could not be propagated without Converſion; Converſion could never be wrought without Chriſt's Influence and ſpiritual Preſence. So that this Preſence is of abſolute neceſſity; the Church cannot ſubſiſt, nor the great ends of Ordinances be attained without it.

Infer. 1. Is Chriſt really preſent in all Goſpel-Adminiſtrations, how awfully ſolemn then is every part of Goſpel-Worſhip? we having to do with Chriſt himſelf, and not with Men only, in Goſpel-Ordinances. Happy were it, if under this Conſideration all our People did receive the Word we preach, as the Theſſalonians did, 1 Theſſ. 2. 13. not as the Word of Man, but as the Word of God; then it would work effectually in us as it did in them. But alas! We have looſe and low apprehenſions of the Word; we come to judg the Gifts of the Speaker, not to have our Minds informed, our Conſciences ſearched, our Luſts mortified, and our Lives regulated. But O that Men would realize the Preſence of Chriſt in Ordinances, and ſeriouſly conſider that Word of his, Rev. 2. 23. All the Churches ſhall know that I am he which ſearcheth the Reins and Hearts, and I will give to every one of you according to your Works.

How would it compoſe vain and wandring Hearts unto holy ſeriouſneſs! O if Men would but conſider that they are before the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as Cornelius and his Family did, Act. 10. 33. We are all here preſent before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God. If they would conſider the Word as the executioner of God's eternal Decrees, which returns not in vain, but accompliſhes that whereto God ſends it, Iſa. 55. 11. and eventually proves the ſavor of Life or Death eternal to them that ſit under it, 2 Cor. 2. 16. In a word, were it but conſidered as the Rule by which its Hearers ſhall be judged in the great day, Joh. 12. 48. then how would men tremble at the Word? What mighty effects would it have upon their Hearts? How would it run and be glorified? But alas, as Job ſpeaks, Job 9. 11. He goeth by me, and I ſee him not; he paſſeth on alſo, but I perceive him not. Few realize the ſpiritual Preſence of Chriſt in Ordinances.

Infer. 2. If Chriſt be really preſent with his Churches and Ordinances, how vain are all attempts of Enemies to ſubvert and deſtroy them? That Promiſe, Mat. 28. ult. ſuppoſes the continuance of a Goſpel Church Miniſtry to the end of the World, elſe there would be a Promiſe without a Subject: as de jure, there ought to be a Church, ſo de facto there ſhall be a Church with Miniſters and Ordinances, let Satan and Antichriſt do their worſt. I do not ſay this Promiſe ſecures this or that particular Church or Nation, for the preſence of Chriſt is moveable from one place to another, but ſtill the Church is ſafe. And here are three things that ſecure it againſt all hazards.

1. The invaluable Treaſures God hath lodged in the Church, viz. his Truths, his Worſhip, and his Elect; ſuch a precious Cargo ſecures the Veſſel that carries it, whatever Storms or Tempeſts may befal it.

2. The Covenant and Promiſe of God with the Church, is its abundant ſecurity: Mat. 16. 18. Upon this Rock will I build my Church, and the Gates of Hell ſhall not prevail againſt it. The faithfulneſs of God is pawned for his Peoples ſecurity. If the Church fail, God's faithfulneſs muſt fail with it.

3. But above all, the Preſence of Chriſt, in the midſt of it, puts it out of all danger of miſcarrying. In that Promiſe, Lo, I am with you alway, are found all munitions and fortifications whatſoever: Here we have his Eye of Providence, his Hand of Power, and whatſoever elſe is needful to ſupport and ſecure it. God accounts his Preſence our ſafety, Exod. 14. 25. The Enemies of God and his People account it ſo too; and ſhall it not be ſo in our own account? Provoke not the Lord Jeſus to withdraw his Preſence, and fear not the conſultations and oppoſitions of Hell or Earth.

Infer. 3. From this ſpiritual Preſence of Chriſt all his faithful Miniſters ſhould draw incouragement amidſt the manifold difficulties and diſcouragements they daily encounter in his Work and Service. Chriſt is with them, they work in fellowſhip with him, let them not be diſmaid.

The difficulties and diſcouragements the Miniſters of Chriſt meet with are great and many; and the more faithful and ſucceſsful any of them are in their Maſters Work, the fiercer oppoſition they muſt expect: beſides all the diſcouragements riſing out of their own Hearts, which are not a few, they muſt encounter,

Firſt, The oppoſition of Enemies from abroad. Secondly, the obſtinacy and ſtubbornneſs of the Hearts they work upon. Satan is a jealous Prince, and will raiſe all manner of outcries and oppoſitions againſt thoſe heavenly Heralds, that come to proclaim a new Prince in his Dominions, and withdraw his miſerable Subjects from their curſed Allegiance to him. What is it to preach the Goſpel (ſaid Luther) but to derive the fury of the World upon the Head of that Preacher? But this would be eaſily ſupportable, did our Work but proſper upon the Hearts of our Hearers. But this alas, is the killing conſideration of all; we know the worth of Souls, and how great a ſervice it is to ſave them from death, James 5. 20. We alſo know the Terrors of the Lord, which excite our utmoſt endeavours to perſuade Men, 2 Cor. 5. 11. We feel the compaſſions of Chriſt ſtirring in our own bowels, which makes us long after their Salvation, Phil. 1. 8. We preach, we pray, yea, we travail again as it were in birth until Chriſt be formed in them, Gal. 4. 19. And when we have done all, we find their Hearts as Iron and Braſs, Jer. 6. 28. We mourn in ſecret when we cannot prevail, and ofttimes our Hands hang down with diſcouragement, and we are ready to ſay with the Prophet, Jer. 20. 9. We will ſpeak no more in his Name. But here is our relief, under all diſcouragements from abroad and at home; the Work is Chriſt's, the Power is his, he is with us, and we are Workers together with him. There was a time when three thouſand Souls were born to Chriſt at one Sermon, it may be now three thouſand Sermons may be preach'd and not a Soul converted: Yet let us not be diſcouraged, a time of eminent Converſions is promiſed, and to be expected in theſe latter days, when the living Waters of the Goſpel ſhall make every thing to live whither they come, Ezek. 47. 9. and when the Fiſhers, i. e. the Miniſters of Chriſt, ſhall not fiſh with Angles as now they do, taking now one, then another ſingle Convert, but ſhall ſpread forth their Nets, and incloſe multitudes at a draught; When they ſhall flee as a Cloud, and as the Doves to their Windows. God now opens a door of opportunity beyond expectation; O that the Hearts of Miniſters and People were ſutably enlarged, and the People made willing in the day of his Power.

Infer. 4. Hence we alſo infer the great dignity of the Miniſterial Office, and the ſutable Reſpect and Honour due to all Chriſt's faithful Miniſters. The Lord Jeſus himſelf is repreſented by them, they ſtand in his ſtead, 2 Cor. 5. 20. his Authority is clothed upon them; the Honors and Diſhonours given them, redound to the Perſon of Chriſt. The Galatians received Paul as an Angel of God, even as Chriſt Jeſus, Gal. 4. 14.

Yet how have their Perſons and Office been vilified and deſpiſed in this degenerate age! How many Learned, Pious, Laborious, Peaceful Miniſters of Chriſt have in this age been hunted up and down the World as wild Beaſts, been made the filth and offſcouring of all things to this duy? 1 Cor. 4. 13. The word ſignifies that dirt and filth which Scavengers rake together in the Streets, to be carried to the Dunghil. No doubt but Satan drives a great deſign in this to invalidate their Miniſtry, diſcourage their Labours, and break their Hearts: but Jeſus Chriſt will ſupport us under all theſe abuſes, wipe off the dirt thrown at us for his name ſake, and reſerve ſome of us for better days.

Infer. 5. Is Chriſt preſent in his Ordinances, what a ſtrong engagement then lies upon you all to attend and wait aſſiduouſly upon the Miniſtry of the Word, and to bring all yours, that are capable, there to wait upon Chriſt with you? We read, in the days of Chriſt's fleſh, when he performed his miraculous Cures upon the Sick, what thronging there was after him; how Parents bought their Children, Maſters their Servants, preſſing in multitudes, untiling the Houſe to let down their Sick to him, Luke 12. Ah, ſhall Men be ſo earneſt for a Cure for their Bodies, and ſo indifferent for their Souls? 'Tis true, the Spirit of Chriſt is not tied by any neceſſity to act always with the Word; he acts as an arbitrary Agent; John 3. 8. The Wind bloweth where it liſteth: but it is engagement enough to wait continually upon his Ordinances, that he ſometimes graciouſly and effectually concurreth with them. 'Tis good to lie in the way of the Spirit, and there is a bleſſing pronounced upon them that wait continually at his Gates, Prov. 8. 34. O therefore neglect no ſeaſon within your reach, for who knows but it may be the ſeaſon of life to thy Soul?

Infer. 6. What an unſpeakable loſs is that of the Goſpel, ſeeing the preſence of Chriſt comes and goes with it? When the Goſpel departs, the Spirit of Chriſt departs with it from among Men; no more Converſions, in God's ordinary way, are then to be expected: well therefore might the Lord ſay, Hoſea 9. 12. Wo to them when I depart from them. The Spirit may in ſome ſenſe depart, whilſt the Ordinances are left ſtanding for a time among the People; but then expect no ſuch bleſſings or benefits from them. But when God takes away Ordinances and Spirit too, wo indeed to that People; and are there no Sins amongſt us preſaging ſuch a Judgment? O England, reflect upon thy barrenneſs under it; where be the fruits anſwerable to ſuch precious means? The Goſpel is a golden Lamp, the Graces of the Spirit communicated by it are golden Oil; as in that ſtately viſion, Zach. 4. Will God maintain ſuch a Lamp, fed with ſuch precious Oil, for Men to trifle and play by?

And no leſs ominous and portentous is that bitter enmity to the Goſpel and the ſerious Profeſſors of it, which (I cannot ſpeak without horror) is every where found among us; this great hatred brings on the days of viſitation, and the days of recompence with a ſwift and dreadful motion upon any People, Hoſea 9. 7.

Infer. 7. If Chriſt be preſent by way of Spirit and Energy in his Ordinances, then there is no reaſon to deſpair of the Converſion and Salvation of the greateſt of Sinners that yet lie dead under the Goſpel. What tho their Hearts be hard, their Underſtandings dark, and their Wills never ſo perverſe and obſtinate? all muſt give way and open in the day of Chriſt's power, when his Spirit joins himſelf with the Word. This makes it an irreſiſtible Word; 'tis glorious to obſerve the hearts of Publicans and Harlots opening and yielding to the voice of Chriſt, Mat. 21. 31. What were thoſe 3000 Perſons prickt at the heart by Peter's Sermon, Acts 2. 36. but the very Men that with wicked hands had crucified the Lord Jeſus? And what were the converted Corinthians, but Idolaters turned from dumb Idols, Whoremongers, Adulterers, Effeminate? &c. 1 Cor. 12. 2. and 6. 11. God hath his Elect among the vileſt of Men: The Goſpel will find them out, and draw them home to Chriſt, when the Spirit of Chriſt animates and bleſſeth it. Well might the Apoſtle therefore ſay, that the Goſpel preached with the Holy Ghoſt, ſent down from Heaven, is an object worthy for Angels to behold with admiration, 1 Pet. 1. 12. What tho Satan has ſtrongly fortified their Souls againſt Chriſt, with ignorance, prejudice and enmity; yet the weapons of our warfare are mighty thro God to pull down theſe ſtrong holds. Deſpair not therefore of your carnal and dead-hearted relations, bring them to the Goſpel upon the encouragement of theſe words of Chriſt, John 5. 25. The hour cometh, yea and now is, that the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear it ſhall live.

Infer. 8. Is Chriſt ſpiritually preſent in his Ordinances, O then what an indeared affection ſhould every gracious Soul bear to the Ordinances of God! They are the walks of Chriſt and his Spirit, the appointed times and places for your meeting and Communion with him; there your Souls firſt met with Chriſt, there you began your acquaintance with him; there you have had many ſweet converſes with him ſince that day; they were the ſeed of your Regeneration, 1 Pet. 1. 23. the Bread of Life by which your Souls have been ſuſtained ever ſince, and therefore to be more eſteemed by you than your neceſſary food, Job 23. 12. Here you have found the richeſt Cordials to revive and recover your drooping Spirits, when ready to ſink away in a faint fit under ſin within you, and afflictions upon you. No wonder David's Soul even fainted for the Courts of God, Pſal. 119. 50. and that Hezekiah deſired a ſign on his ſick bed, that he ſhould go up to the Houſe of the Lord. Here are the choiceſt comforts of the Saints upon Earth; all our freſh Springs are in Zion. What a Dungeon, what a barren Wilderneſs were this World without them! Prize the Ordinances, love the Ordinances, wait aſſiduouſly upon the Ordinances, and pray for the liberty and efficacy of the Goſpel, that it may ſet no more in your days, nor in the days of your Poſterity.

SERMON III.

Revel. III. 20.

Behold I [ſtand] at the door, and knock, &c.

Having finiſhed Chriſt's ſolemn Preface, and cleared the manner of his Preſence in his Churches and Ordinances: I now come to a third obſervation, which is neceſſarily implied in theſe words, Behold I ſtand at the door and knock; and that ſad Truth therein implied is this,

Doct. 3. That the Hearts of Men are naturally lockt up and faſt barr'd againſt Jeſus Chriſt their only Saviour.

If it were not ſo, what need were there of all that pains and patience, uſed and exerciſed by Chriſt, in waiting patiently, and knocking importunately, for entrance into the Hearts of Men? To keep a clear method in this Point, three things muſt be ſtated in the doctrinal Part.

1. How it appears the Hearts of Men are thus ſhut up.
2. What are thoſe Locks and Bars that ſhut them up.
3. That no Power of Man can remove theſe Bars.

Firſt, That all Hearts are naturally ſhut and made faſt againſt Chriſt, is a ſad but certain truth; we read, John 1. 11, 12. He came unto his own, and his own received him not, &c. He came unto his own People, from whoſe Flock he ſprang up; a People to whom he had been prefigured in all the Sacrifices and Types of the Law, and in whom they might all clearly diſcern the accompliſhment of them all. His Doctrines and his Miracles plainly told them who he was, and whence he came; yet few diſcerned or received him as the Son of God. Chriſt found the Doors of Mens Hearts generally ſhut againſt him, ſave only a few whoſe Hearts were opened by the Almighty Power of God, in the way of Faith, verſ. 12. Theſe indeed received him, but all the reſt excluded and denied entrance to the Son of God. So again, John 5. from v. 33 to 40. Chriſt reaſons with them, and gives undeniable Demonſtrations, that he was the Meſſiah come to ſave them; proves it from the teſtimony of John, verſ. 33. Ye ſent unto John, and he bare witneſs unto the Truth: Tells them the deſign of his coming among them was their Salvation, verſ. 34. ſhews them the great Seal of Heaven, his uncontroulable Miracles, verſ. 36. The Works that I do, bear witneſs of me, that the Father hath ſent me: And if that were not enough, he reminds them of the immediate teſtimony given of him from Heaven, verſ. 37. The Father himſelf which hath ſent me, hath born witneſs of me. He did ſo at his Baptiſm, Mat. 3. 17. And lo a voice from Heaven, ſaying, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleaſed. And ſo again, at his transfiguration upon the holy Mount, Mat. 17. 5. While he yet ſpake, behold a bright cloud overſhadowed them; and behold a voice out of the cloud, which ſaid, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleaſed, hear ye him. He bids them ſearch the Scriptures, and critically examine his perfect correſpondence to them, John 5. 39. Enough one would think to open the door of every Man's Underſtanding and Heart to receive him with fulleſt ſatisfaction: and yet after all behold the unreaſonable obſtinacy and reſiſtance of their Hearts againſt him, verſ. 40. Ye will not come unto me that ye might have Life.

Not a Soul will open, with all the reaſons and demonſtrations in the World, till the Almighty power of God be put forth to that end. If another come in his own Name (ſaith he, verſ. 43.) him will ye receive; Any body rather than the Son of God: Every cheat can impoſe upon you eaſily, 'tis to me only your Hearts have ſuch ſtrong averſions. Now there is a twofold ſhutting up of the Heart againſt Jeſus Chriſt.

2. Judicial.

1. Natural. Every Soul comes into this World ſhut up and faſt cloſed againſt the Lord Jeſus. The very Will of Man, which is the freeſt and moſt arbitrary faculty, comes into the World barr'd and bolted againſt Chriſt, Rom. 8. 7. The carnal mind is enmity againſt God, for it is not ſubject unto the Law of God, neither indeed can be. Phil. 2. 13. 'Tis God that worketh in you both to will and to do of his own good pleaſure. This is a diſmal effect of the Fall. Who feels not ſtrong averſations, violent rebellions, and obſtinate reſiſtances in his own Heart, when moving towards Chriſt in the firſt weak and trembling acts of Faith?

2. There is a Judicial ſhutting up of the Heart againſt Chriſt. This is a ſore and tremendous ſtroke of God, puniſhing former rebellions: Pſal. 81. Iſrael would have none of me, ſo I gave them up to their own Hearts luſts. This looks like a prelude of Damnation, a very near preparation to ruin. Iſrael would have none of me, there's the Natural ſhutting up of the Heart; ſo I gave them up, there's the Judicial ſhutting up of the Heart; they would not hear, they ſhall not hear. O fearful Judgment! Thus the Lord gave up the Heathens, Rom. 1. 26. they had abuſed their natural light, and now their minds are judicially darkned; given up to a ſottiſh and injudicious mind, not able to diſtinguiſh Duty from Sin, Safety from Danger; a mind that ſhould elect the worſt things, and reprobate the beſt. This was the reprobate mind unto which God gave them up; what ſadder word can the Lord ſpeak than this, unleſs it be, Take him Devil! 'Tis true, thoſe that God ſhuts up he can open, and thoſe whom Juſtice ſhuts up, Mercy can ſet free, but it is beyond all the power of Angels and Men to do it: Job 12. 14. He ſhutteth up a Man, and there can be no opening. Theſe two cloſures of the Heart are not always found together in the ſame Subject, and bleſſed be God they are not. Chriſt meets with many a repulſe, and indures with much patience the gainſayings of ſinners, before he pronounces that dreadful ſentence upon them, Iſa. 6. 9, 10. Go and tell this People, Hear ye indeed, but underſtand not; and ſee ye indeed, but perceive not: Make the heart of this people fat, &c.

But when it comes to this once, dreadful is the caſe of ſuch Souls; and none are in greater danger of this Spiritual Judicial ſtroak of God, than thoſe that have ſat long under the Light, rebelling againſt it. That's the firſt thing, The Hearts of Men by nature are lockt and ſhut up againſt Chriſt.

Secondly, In the next place, let us examine what thoſe Locks and Bars are which oppoſe and forbid Chriſt's entrance into the Hearts of poor Sinners. And they will be found to be,

1. Ignorance.
2. Unbelief.
3. Pride.
4. Cuſtom in ſin.
5. Preſumption.
6. Prejudices againſt the ways of Holineſs.

Bars enough to ſecure the Soul in Satan's poſſeſſion, and fruſtrate all the deſigns of mercy, except an Almighty Power from Heaven break them aſunder.

1. The firſt Bar making faſt the Soul of Man againſt Chriſt, is Ignorance, that obex infernalis, that helliſh Bolt, which effectually keeps Chriſt out of the Soul.

If Knowledg be the Key that opens the Heart to Chriſt, as it's plain it is from Luk. 11. 52. where Chriſt denounceth a wo to them that took away the Key of Knowledg; then Ignorance muſt needs be the ſhutter that makes faſt the door of the Heart againſt Chriſt. Upon this ground Chriſt told the Woman of Samaria, that her Infidelity grew upon the root of her Ignorance; Joh. 4. 10. If thou kneweſt the gift of God, and who it is that ſaith to thee, Give me to drink, thou wouldſt have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water. Ah ſinners, did you but know what a Chriſt he is that is offered to your Souls in the Goſpel; did you ſee his beauty, fulneſs, ſutableneſs, and feel your own neceſſities of him, all the World could not keep you from him: You would break through all reproaches, all ſufferings, all ſelf-denials, to come into the enjoyment of him. But alas, it is with you as it was with thoſe, Cant. 5. 9. What is thy beloved (ſay they to the Spouſe) more than another beloved, that thou doſt ſo charge us? Unknown Excellencies attract not: Ignorance is Satan's Scepter, which he ſways over all his Kingdom of darkneſs, and holds his Vaſſals in miſerable bondage to him: Hence the Devils are called, Eph. 6. 12. The rulers of the darkneſs of this World. Alas, were the Eyes of ſinners but opened to ſee their woful ſtate, and their remedy in Chriſt, he could never hold them in ſubjection one day longer; they would break away from under his cruel Government, and run over by thouſands to Chriſt: for ſo they do as ſoon as ever God opens their eyes; in the ſame hour they are turned from darkneſs to light, Acts 28. 16. they are alſo turned from the power of Satan to God. O that you did but know the worth of your Souls, the dreadful danger they are in, and the fearful wrath that hangs over them, the willingneſs and ability of Chriſt to ſave them, you could not ſleep one night longer in the ſtate you are: The next cry would be, What ſhall I do to be ſaved? Who will ſhew me the way to Chriſt? Help Miniſters, help Chriſtians, yea, help Lord; theſe would be the laments and cries of them that are now ſecure and quiet. But the God of this World hath blinded the Eyes of them that believe not: No cries for a Phyſician, becauſe no ſenſe how their Souls are ſtabbed by ſins of commiſſion, and ſtarved by ſins of omiſſion. O that the great Phyſician would once apply his excellent Eye-ſalve to your Underſtandings, which are yet darkned with groſs ignorance both of your miſery and remedy.

2. The ſecond Bar or Lock that ſhuts Chriſt out of Mens Souls, is the ſin of Unbelief; this is one of the ſtrongeſt holds of Satan wherein he truſteth; this is a ſin that not only locks up the Heart of a ſinner, but alſo binds up the Hand of a Saviour: Mat. 13. 58. He could do no mighty works there, becauſe of their unbelief.

It obſtructed his miraculous Works when he was on Earth, and it obſtructs his gracious Works now he is in Heaven. A Saviour is come into the World, but poor Unbeliever, thy Soul can neither have Union nor Communion with him till this Bar of thy unbelief be removed. The Goſpel is come among us with mighty Arguments to convince, and powerful Motives to perſwade, but little ſaving effect follows; its main deſign is to many fruſtrated, and all this thro unbelief, ſhutting up and hardning Mens Hearts under it. The Word preached did not profit them becauſe of their unbelief. Ah curſed Bar! which ſhuts up thy Heart, ſhuts out thy Saviour, and will effectually ſhut thee out of Heaven except the Almighty power of God break it aſunder. They could not enter in becauſe of unbelief. The ruin of Souls is laid at the door of Unbelief; 'tis the damning ſin, Mark 16. 16. and truly called ſo, becauſe no other ſin could damn but in virtue of this ſin. That's the ſecond Bar to Chriſt.

3. The Third Bar denying entrance to Chriſt into the Hearts of ſinners is Pride, and ſtoutneſs of Spirit. The natural Heart is a proud Heart; it lives upon its own ſtock, it cannot ſtoop to a ſincere and univerſal renunciation of its own righteouſneſs: Being ignorant of the righteouſneſs of God, and going about to eſtabliſh their own righteouſneſs, οὐκ ὑπετάγησαν, they have not ſubmitted to the righteouſneſs of God, Rom. 10. 3. Pride ſtiffens the Will that it cannot ſtoop or condeſcend to declare their own emptineſs, diſcover their own ſhame, and live wholly on the righteouſneſs of another. Proud Nature had as live be damned as deny it ſelf in ſuch a point as this is: this makes Faith ſo exceeding difficult, becauſe it involves ſuch deep points of ſelf-denial in it; to give up all to Chriſt, to draw all from Chriſt, and to be willing to part with all for Chriſt. What Will can be brought to a deliberate conſent to ſuch things as theſe, unleſs an omnipotent Power bow it? 'Tis natural to Men rather to eat a brown cruſt, or wear a coarſe ragged Garment which they can call their own, than to feed upon the richeſt Dainties, or wear the coſtlieſt Garments which they muſt receive as an alms or gift from another. O how hard is it to ſubdue this pride of the Heart, even after light and conviction is come into the Soul; to convince Men of their undone condition, and the abſolute neceſſity of another and higher Righteouſneſs than their own? When Souls are in a treaty with Chriſt, and the match is almoſt made; this is the ſin that makes the laſt oppoſition. Feign would they come to Chriſt, ten thouſand Worlds for a Chriſt; but yet they think they muſt not approach him without ſome qualifications which are yet wanting. But Soul, if ever Chriſt and thou conclude the match, thou muſt deny Self even in this, the moſt refined form and intereſt of it, and come as Abraham did, naked and empty-handed to him that juſtifieth the ungodly. Down with this Houſe Idol, thy ſelf, thy righteous ſelf, trimmed up like another Agag with ſuch precious pretences of humility.

4. The fourth Bar forbidding Chriſt's entrance into the Soul is cuſtom in ſin. Sin hath ſo fixed it ſelf by long continuance in the Soul, the Soul is ſo ſettled and confirmed in its courſe, that all arguments and perſuaſions to change our way are ſwept away by the power of cuſtom, as ſtraws and feathers are by the rapid courſe of a mighty torrent: Jer. 13. 23. Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the Leopard his ſpots? then may ye alſo do good that are accuſtomed to do evil. Soap and Nitre may as ſoon make a Blackmoor white, or fetch the ſpots out of the Leopards skin (which are not accidental, but connate) as the reaſonings of Men can prevail to remove the mighty power of cuſtomary ſin. Phyſicians find it a hard thing to cure a Cachexia or ill habit of body. 'Tis a grave and ſerious note of Seneca, Ateneris aſſueſcere, multum eſt: 'Tis a great matter to be accuſtomed this way or that from our Childhood; every repeated act of ſin confirms and ſtrengthens the habit; and hence it is that we ſee ſo few Converſions in old Age. It was a wonder in the primitive times that Marcus Caius Victorius imbraced Chriſtianity in the ſixtieth year of his age. Take an habituated Drunkard, a ſelf-righteous Moraliſt, lay before them the neceſſity of a change, and you ſhall find it as eaſy to ſtop the courſe of a River with the breath of your Mouth, as to ſtop them in a cuſtomed courſe of ſinning. That's the fourth Bar.

5. The Fifth Bar oppoſing and reſiſting Chriſt's entrance into the Soul is the ſin of Preſumption; this is the ſin that parts Chriſt and thouſands of Souls in the World; preſuming, they hope, and hoping, they periſh: when Men preſume their condition is ſafe already, their Souls never make out after a Saviour. This was the ruin of Laodicea; Rev. 3. 17. Becauſe thou ſayeſt, I am rich, and increaſed with goods, and have need of nothing, and knoweſt not that thou art wretched, and miſerable, and poor, and blind, and naked. This damning Preſumption is diſcovered in three things, (1.) Many think they have that grace which they have not, miſtaking the ſimilar for the ſaving Works of the Spirit; a fatal miſtake never rectified with many thouſands till it be too late. (2.) They preſume to find that mercy in God, which they will never find; for all the ſaving mercies of God are diſpenſed to Men through Chriſt in the way of Regeneration and Faith. (3.) They preſume upon that time for Repentance and Faith hereafter, which their Eyes ſhall never ſee. And thus Preſumption doth lock up the Heart againſt Chriſt, and leaves ſinners periſhing even in the preſence of a Savionr. They make a bridg of their own ſhadow, and ſo periſh in the Waters.

6. The ſixth and laſt ſin barring up the Heart againſt Chriſt, is a ſtrong prejudice againſt Holineſs, and the ſtrict duties of Religion. Thus in the very infancy of Chriſtianity the World was ſcared and driven off from Religion by the common prejudices that lay upon the Profeſſors of it: As concerning this Sect, we know that every where it is ſpoken againſt, Acts 28. 22.

Thus Juſtin Martyr complains, that Chriſtians were every where condemned διὰ τὴν φήμην, by common fame; and upon this account Chriſt pronounces a wo upon the World becauſe of offences, Mat. 18. 7. Alas! it will be the ruin of thouſands; ſome have ſuckt in ſuch prejudicate Opinions and vile Notions of Religion, and its Profeſſors, as makes them irreconcilable enemies to it. Satan hath dreſt it up in their fancies in ſuch an odious form and repreſentation, that makes them loath both name and thing. Theſe prejudices are drawn from various things; ſometimes from the neceſſary duties of Chriſtianity, which are laid as crimes upon the people of God: When I wept, and chaſtned my Soul with faſting, that was to my reproach, Pſal. 69. 10. Sometimes the groundleſs and malicious ſlanders and inventions of the Enemies of Chriſtianity, are the occaſions of real prejudices to the World; Come let us deviſe devices againſt Jeremiah, and let us ſmite him with the Tongue, Jer. 18. 18. Sometimes the innocent and ſerious Profeſſors of godlineſs are cenſured and condemned for hypocritical Profeſſors ſakes, who never heartily eſpouſed Religion. And laſtly, the ways of Holineſs ſuffer for the ſlips and infirmities of weak Chriſtians, who commonly give too many occaſions to diſguſt the World againſt the ways of God.

By theſe things multitudes are kept off from attendance upon the means of Grace, and multitudes more have their Hearts ſhut up from receiving any ſaving benefit under them.

Theſe are the common Bars and Locks by which the ſtrong Man armed ſecures his poſſeſſion in the Souls of ſinners; and theſe Bars are too ſtrong for any power beneath the Almighty Power and Arm of God to remove or break. 'Tis ſaid, that the Lord opened a door of Faith to the Gentiles, Acts 14. 27. The Arm of the Lord muſt be revealed, or none will open to Chriſt by Faith, Iſa. 53. 1.

1. The Iron Bar of the Law, that thundering terrible Law, cannot force open the Heart of an Unbeliever; all the dreadful curſes flying out of its fiery mouth, make no more impreſſion than a Tennis-ball againſt a wall of Marble. You read of them that hear the words of this curſe, yet bleſs themſelves in their Heart, ſaying, they ſhall have peace tho they walk in the imagination of their Hearts, to add Drunkenneſs to Thirſt. Deut. 29. 19.

They play with Hell and eternal Torments, ruſh into iniquity as the Horſe ruſheth into the Battel, act as men in love with their own Death, as thoſe that are at an agreement with Hell. O the beſotting, hardning, infatuating power of Sin!

2. The Doctrine of free Grace cannot in it ſelf remove theſe Bars, and open Mens Hearts to Chriſt; We have piped unto you, but ye have not danced, Mat. 11. 17. The melodious and delicious Airs of Grace, Mercy, Peace and Pardon, affect not the dead Hearts of Unbelievers: Like deaf Adders they ſtop their Ears at the voice of the Charmer, charm he never ſo wiſely. Theſe Goſpel-melodies only diſpoſe them to a more quiet ſleep in ſin.

3. No works of Providence are in themſelves ſufficient to open the Hearts of Men to Chriſt. (1.) The Judgments of God cannot do it; thouſands have been made ſick with ſmiting, that yet cannot be made ſick for ſin. I have conſumed them, but they refuſed to receive correction; they have made their Faces harder than a Rock, they have refuſed to return, Jer. 5. 3. Meſſengers of Judgment are abroad, ſmiting ſome in their Eſtates, ſcattering in one day the labour of many years; and therein giving a warning-blow at the Conſcience to make ſure of Chriſt, and the World to come, ſince their comfort and happineſs is ſcattered in this World. Some are ſmitten in their deareſt Relations, Death knocks at their doors, and carrys out the delight of their Eyes, and with the ſame admoniſheth their Souls to place their happineſs in more durable comforts: Some are ſmitten in their Bodies with Diſeaſes, giving warning of the near approach of their latter end, and bidding them prepare for another habitation; but all in vain. (2.) No Mercies of God are in themſelves ſufficient to open the obſtinate Hearts of Sinners to Chriſt. God hath heapt up Mercies by multitudes upon many of you; all theſe mercies of God lead you to repentance, Rom. 2. 4, 5. They take you in a friendly way by the hand, and thus talk with you: Ah ſinner! how canſt thou grieve and diſhonour that God that thus feedeth, clotheth and comforteth thee on every ſide? Do you thus requite the Lord, O fooliſh People and unwiſe? Yet all will not do, neither Judgments nor Mercies can afright or allure the carnal Heart to Jeſus Chriſt. 'Tis his Spirit, his Almighty power alone that opens theſe everlaſting Gates, and makes theſe ſtrong Bars give way and fly at his voice.

Infer. 1. Behold here the diſmal ſtate of Nature, the woful condition of all unregenerate Souls; Chriſt the Redeemer ſhut out, Sin and Satan ſhut in. This is the horrid ſtate of Nature ſhut up in unbelief, Rom. 4. 32. Ah Lord, what a condition is this! We ſhould certainly account it an unſpeakable miſery to be ſhut into a Houſe haunted by the Devil, where we ſhould be continually ſcared and frighted with dreadful noiſes and apparitions; but alas, what is an apparition of the Devil without us, to the inhabitation of the Devil within us? Nay, what is the poſſeſſion of a Body, to Satan's poſſeſſion of the Soul? Yet this is the very caſe of the Unregenerate, Luke 11. 21. The ſtrong Man armed keepeth the Palace, till Chriſt diſpoſſeſs him by Sovereign victorious Grace. Poor wretch, canſt thou ſtart at a ſuppoſed viſion of a Spirit, and not tremble to think that thy Soul is the habitation of Devils? There is a twofold miſery lying upon all Chriſtleſs unregenerated Perſons; Satan is,

1. Their Ruler in this World.
2. Their Tormentor in that to come.

1. He is their Ruler in this World, the Spirit that now worketh in the Children of diſobedience, Epheſ. 2. 3. Look as the holy Spirit of God dwells and rules in ſanctified Souls, walks in them as in hallowed Temples, guiding and comforting the Souls of the Saints; ſo Satan dwells in unregenerate Hearts, actuating their luſts, inflaming them with his temptations, uſing their faculties and members as inſtruments of unrighteouſneſs. And then,

2. He will be their Tormentor in the World to come: he that tempts now, will torment then, Mat. 25. 41. Depart from me ye curſed into everlaſting fire prepared for the Devil and his Angels. Flee therefore and eſcape for your lives, ſleep not quietly another Night in ſo diſmal and dreadful eſtate. If the Son make you free, then are you free indeed.

Infer. 2. What a glorious and admirable effect of Sovereign omnipotent Grace is the effectual Converſion of a ſinner unto God!

If every Heart by Nature be ſecured for Satan under ſo many Locks and Bars, then the opening of any Heart to Chriſt is deſervedly marvelous in our Eyes. You all acknowledg that the opening of the Graves at the Reſurrection will be a glorious diſplay of Almighty Power, and ſo it will: it will be a wonderful thing to behold the Graves opened and the dead raiſed at the voice of the Arch-Angel and the Trump of God; but yet give me leave to ſay, That the opening of thy Heart, poor ſinner, to receive Chriſt, is a more glorious work than that of raiſing the dead: It is therefore deſervedly put into the firſt rank of the great myſteries of Godlineſs, that Chriſt is believed on in the World, 1 Tim. 3. 16. He that well views and conſiders Chriſt, may juſtly wonder that all the Hearts in the enlightned World do not ſtand wide open to embrace him; and he that ſhall conſider the frame and temper of the natural Heart, and how ſtrongly Satan hath intrenched and fortified himſelf in it, may juſtly wonder to hear of a work of Converſion. O brethren, conſider the marvels of Converſion, the wonderful works of God upon the Soul that opens unto Chriſt by Faith.

1. There's a new Eye created in the Mind: The Son of God is come, and hath given us an underſtanding, that we may know him that is true, 1 Joh. 5. 20. O that Eye, that precious Eye of Faith, which ſhews the Soul as it were a new World, a World of new and raviſhing objects, Eph. 5. 8. All the Angels in Heaven, Miniſters, and Libraries upon Earth, cannot create ſuch an Eye, give ſuch an Illumination; 'tis only he that commanded the light to ſhine out of darkneſs, that thus ſhineth into our Hearts, to give the light of the knowledg of the Glory of God in the face of Jeſus Chriſt, 2 Cor. 4. 6.

2. And what a glorious ſupernatural Work is the conviction of the Conſcience by the powerful ſtroak of the ſaving beams of Light upon it? Now the Conſcience, that lay in a dead ſleep, begins to ſtartle and look about it with fear and horror. Life and Senſe is got into it, and now cries, Ah, ſick, ſick, ſick at the heart for Sin, ſick for a Saviour.

3. And no leſs marvelous an effect of the Almighty power is the bowing of the ſtubborn Will ſo efficaciouſly, ſo congruouſly, and ſo determinately and fixedly to the Lord Jeſus.

The Will is efficaciouſly determined ſo as no power of Hell or Nature can reſiſt or fruſtrate that mighty Power which worketh effectually in all them that believe, 1 Theſ. 2. 13. Yet it works not by way of compulſion, but in a way congruous and agreeable to the Nature of the Will, Hoſea 11. 4. I drew them with the cords of a Man, with the bands of Love. Satan bids for the Soul, Chriſt infinitely outbids all his offers; Eternal, ſpiritual, and unſearchable Riches, inſtead of ſenſitive periſhing Injoyments, which determin the choice of the Will in its own natural method, by the ſight of the excelling glory of ſpiritual things. And thus the mighty ſupernatural Power of God opens that Heart which Satan had ſecured ſo many ways againſt Chriſt.

Infer. 3. Hence it alſo follows, that Man hath no free will of his own to ſupernatural Good. The Will cannot by its own power open it ſelf to receive Chriſt by faith. When it doth open to him, it is not virtute innata, ſed illata; not by its natural power, but by the power of God upon it. The admirers of Nature talk much of the Sovereignty, Virginity, and Liberty of the Will, as if it alone had eſcaped the Fall, and that no more but a moral Swaſion is needed to open it to Chriſt; that is, that God need do no more to ſave Men than the Devil doth to damn them. But if ever God make you ſenſible what the work of ſaving Converſion is, you will quickly find that your Will is lame, its freedom to ſpiritual things gone; you will cry out of a wounded Will, as well as of a dark Head, and a hard Heart. You will quickly find, That it is God alone that worketh in you both to will and to do of his own good pleaſure, Phil. 2. 13. That the birth of the new Creature is not of the will of Man, but of God, John 1. 13.

Infer. 4. Learn hence the neceſſity of Converſion in order to Salvation. Chriſt and Heaven are ſhut up againſt you till your hearts be ſavingly opened unto him. Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, you muſt be born again, John 3. 5. O ſinner, that hard Heart of thine muſt be humbled; thy ſtubborn and refractory Will muſt be bowed; all the powers of thy Soul muſt be unlockt and opened unto Chriſt; he muſt come into thy Soul, or thou canſt never ſee the face of God in peace. It is Chriſt in you that is the hope of glory, Col. 1. 27. Till thy Heart be opened, Chriſt with all the hopes of Glory ſtand without thee. And if hopes from the death of Chriſt without us, without the application of his Perſon, be enough to ſave Men, then why are any damned? Conſult 1 Cor. 1. 30. Adam's ſin damns none but only ſuch as are in him, and Chriſt's righteouſneſs ſaves none but thoſe only that are by faith in him; the eternal purpoſe of the Father, the meritorious death of the Son, puts no Man into the ſtate of Salvation and Happineſs till both be brought home by the Spirit's powerful application in the work of ſaving Converſion. 'Tis good news, good indeed, that Chriſt died for ſinners; 'tis good news that Chriſt is brought to our very doors in the tenders of the Goſpel, and that the Spirit knocks at the door of our Hearts by many convictions and perſwaſions to open to him, and enjoy the unſpeakable benefits of his death: theſe things bring us nigh to Chriſt, the next door to Salvation: and yet all this may be eventually but a dreadful aggravation of our damnation, and will certainly be ſo to them whoſe Hearts are but almoſt opened to Chriſt.

Infer. 5. See hence the neceſſity of fervent Prayer to accompany the preaching of the Goſpel. Without the Spirit and Power of God accompanying the Word, no Heart can ever be opened to Chriſt: Alas, ſuch Bars as theſe are too ſtrong for the breath of Man to break. Let Miniſters pray, and the People pray, that the Goſpel may be preached with the Holy Ghoſt ſent down from Heaven, 1 Pet. 1. 12. It greatly concerns us that preach the Goſpel to wreſtle with God upon our knees, to accompany us in the diſpenſation of it unto the People; to ſteep that Seed we ſow among you in tears and prayers before you hear it: and I beſeech you Brethren let us not ſtrive alone, join your cries to Heaven with ours, for the bleſſing of the Spirit upon the Word. How doth Paul beg of the People, as a beggar would beg for an alms at the door, for their aſſiſtance in Prayer, Rom. 15. 30. I beſeech you, brethren, for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſake, and for the love of the Spirit, that ye ſtrive together with me in your prayers to God for me.

For want of ſuch wreſtlings with God in prayer, there is ſo little efficacy in Ordinances. Martha told her Saviour, John 11. 21. Lord if thou hadſt been here, my brother had not died; and I may tell you that if the Spirit had been here, your Souls had not remained dead under the Word as they do this day. O when the Sabbath draws near, let fervent cries aſcend from every Family to Heaven, Lord pour out thy Spirit with thy Word; make it mighty thro thy Power to open theſe Gates of Iron, and break aſunder theſe Bars of Braſs.

Second Vſe of Exhortation.

Seeing the Caſe ſtands thus, that all Hearts by nature are barr'd and ſhut up againſt Chriſt; let every Soul do what it can, and ſtrive to its uttermoſt to get the Heart and Will opened to Chriſt: Strive to enter in at the ſtrait Gate; Chriſt is at the Door, O ſtrive with your ſelves, as well as with God, now to get it opened, now Salvation is ſo near your Souls.

Object. But have you not told us that no ſinner can open his own Heart, nor bow his own Will to Chriſt?

Anſw. True, he cannot convert himſelf, but yet he may do many things in order to it, that have a remote tendency to it, which he doth not do; and ſo he periſheth not, becauſe he cannot, but becauſe he will not.

Divers things may be done by poor ſinners with their own Hearts, which are not done; and tho in themſelves they are inſufficient, yet being the way and method in and by which the Spirit of God uſually works, we are bound to do them. As, (1.) Tho it be not in your power to open your hearts to Chriſt, yet 'tis in your power to forbear the external acts of ſin, which faſten your Hearts the more againſt Chriſt: Who forces thine Hands to ſteal, thy Tongue to ſwear or lye? who forces the Cup of exceſs down your throat? (2.) So tho you cannot open your hearts under the Word, yet it is in your power to wait and attend upon the external Duties and Ordinances of the Goſpel: Why cannot thoſe Feet carry thee to the Aſſemblies of the Saints, as well as to an Ale-houſe? (3.) And tho you cannot let the Word effectually into your Hearts, yet certainly you can apply your minds with more attention and conſideration to it than you do. Who forces thine Eyes to wander, or cloſes them with ſleep, when the awful matters of eternal Life and Death are ſounding in thine Ears? (4.) Tho you cannot open your Hearts to embrace Chriſt, yet certainly you can reflect upon your ſelves when the obvious characters of a Chriſtleſs ſtate are plainly held forth before your Eyes: God hath given you a ſelf-reflecting power; The Spirit of Man knoweth the things of a Man, 1 Cor. 2. 11. When you hear of Convictions of ſin, compunctions of Heart for ſin, deep concernments of the Soul about its eternal ſtate, hungerings and thirſtings after Chriſt, reſtleſs and anxious Days and Nights about Salvation, others have felt; you can certainly turn in upon your ſelves, and examine whether ever it were ſo with you; and if not, methinks it were not hard to aggravate your own miſery, to take your poor Souls aſide, and bemoan them, ſaying, Ah my poor Soul, canſt thou endure everlaſting burnings? What will become of thee if Chriſt paſs thee by, and his Spirit ſtrive no more with thee? Why can't you throw your ſelves at the Feet of God, and cry for mercy? Prayer is a part of natural Worſhip, diſtreſs uſually puts Men upon it that yet have no Grace, Jonah 1. 5. Do but this towards the opening and ſaving of your own Souls, which tho it be not in it ſelf ſufficient, nor puts God under any meritorious obligation or neceſſity to add the reſt; yet it puts you into the way of the Spirit. And is not thy Soul, ſinner, worth as much as this comes to? have you not taken a great deal more pains than this for the trifles of this World? And will it not be a dreadful aggravation of ſin and miſery to all eternity that you periſhed ſo eaſily? Don't you ſee many ſtriving round about you for Chriſt and Salvation, whilſt you ſit ſtill with folded Arms as if you had nothing to do for another World? The Kingdom of Heaven ſuffereth violence, and the violent take it by force, Mat. 11. 12.

Why ſhould other Mens Souls be dearer to them than yours unto you? What diſcouragements have you, which other Men have not? Or what encouragements have they, which you have not?

Object. Say not, We have no aſſurance our pains ſhall proſper, or our ſtrivings be made effectual to converſion; if there were any promiſe in the Goſpel that ſuch endeavours ſhould be ſeconded from Heaven, and made available to Salvation, then we would ſtrive as long as breath and life ſhould laſt; but all this may be to no purpoſe, we may be Chriſtleſs, and hopeleſs when all is done.

Sol. But yet remember it is poſſible God may bleſs theſe weak endeavours, and come in by his Almighty Spirit with them: Nay, it is highly probable that he will do ſo; and is a ſtrong probability nothing with you? Do you uſe to do no actions about your civil callings without an aſſurance of ſucceſs? When the Merchant adventures his Life or Eſtate at Sea, is he ſure of a good return? Or doth he not adventure upon the mere hopes and probabilities of a gainful Voyage? When the Husbandman plows his Land, empties both his bags and purſe upon it, is he ſure of a good harveſt? May not a blaſt come that ſhall defeat all his hopes? Yet he ploweth and ſoweth in hope, and ordinarily God maketh him partaker of his hope; but without ſuch induſtry his expectations would be vain. Away then with vain excuſes, up and be doing in the uſe of all appointed means, and the Lord will be with you.

Third Uſe for Trial.

Before I diſmiſs this Point let us try our ſelves by it, whether God hath opened our Hearts to Chriſt, broken theſe Bars of Ignorance, Unbelief, Cuſtom, Prejudice, &c. and the Will ſtand wide open to receive Chriſt Jeſus the Lord.

This is a ſolemn Uſe, the conſequence of it great; O that our faithfulneſs and ſeriouſneſs in the trial might be anſwerable. Try your ſelves by theſe following marks.

Mark 1. If your Eyes be not opened to ſee Sin in its vileneſs, and Chriſt in his glory, ſutableneſs, and neceſſity; then ſure your Hearts were never yet effectually opened by the Goſpel. I confeſs mens Eyes may be opened to ſee ſin, and yet their Hearts at the ſame time ſhut up by unbelief againſt Chriſt; but no mans Heart can be opened to Chriſt whilſt his Eyes are ſhut: John 6. 40. This is the will of him that ſent me, that every one which ſeeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlaſting life. The work of Faith is always wrought in the light of Conviction; the cure of the Heart begins at the Eye of the Mind, Acts 26. 18. To open their Eyes, and turn them from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan to God. God opens Mens Hearts by ſhining into them, 2 Cor. 4. 6. If therefore any man's Eyes be ſtill blinded with Ignorance, Prejudice, &c. ſo that he apprehends not his own guilt and miſery, nor ſees the worth and neceſſity of a Saviour; that man's Heart is ſtill under Satan's Lock and Bar, Sin is ſhut in and Chriſt is ſhut out of that man's Soul.

Mark 2. No Heart opens to Chriſt by Faith till it be firſt prickt and wounded by Compunction and Humiliation; this Heart-wounding work is always antecedent to the work of Faith. I doubt not but your thoughts fore-run my Diſcourſe to that famous Scripture, Acts 2. 37. where Peter preaching to thoſe that had crucified Chriſt, and bringing up his Diſcourſe cloſe to their Conſciences, in the application of that Sermon, convincing them not only what a horrid and atrocious crime the crucifying the Son of God was in it ſelf; but alſo charging it home upon them, Whom you have taken, and with wicked hands have crucified and ſlain: When they heard this, they were pricked at the Heart; and cried out, Men and Brethren, what ſhall we do? Upon this out-cry three thouſand Souls opened in one hour to Chriſt. Now conſider whether your Hearts have been thus prickt and wounded: Hath ſorrow for ſin pierced thy Soul? Vain ſinner, that frothy Heart of thine muſt be made to bleed under Compunctions for ſin, or there will be no room for Chriſt in it. Come Souls, 'tis in vain to flatter your ſelves in your own eyes; reflect upon the frames of your Hearts, call back the days that are paſt, and ſay, When was the Time, and where was the Place when thou layeſt at the Foot of God ſobbing and mourning upon the account of thy Sins? Did ever God hear ſuch a cry as this from thy Soul? Ah Lord, my Soul is diſtreſſed, I roll hither and thither for eaſe and comfort, but find none: O the inſupportable weight of Guilt! O the bitterneſs of Sin! My Soul fails under it. Lord undertake for me. I do not ſay, the degrees of Compunction and Humiliation are equal in all Converts; neither their ſins nor abilities to bear ſorrows for them are equal: but this I ſay, thy Heart muſt ake for ſin, or it will never open to Chriſt; he binds up none but broken hearts, Iſa. 61. 1.

Mark 3. If Chriſt be come into thy Heart, then the love and delight of every ſin is gone out of thy Heart. Chriſt and the love of ſin cannot dwell together: what Chriſt ſaid to the Soldiers that apprehended him in the Garden, the like he ſaith to every Soul that comes to apprehend him by Faith, If you ſeek me, let theſe go their way; away with the ſin thou moſt delighteſt in: Chriſt cannot come in till theſe be gone, Iſa. 55. 6, 7, 8. Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: let the wicked forſake his way, and the unrighteous Man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. Here be the terms of your Acceptation and Salvation plainly laid down, forſake thy ways and thoughts; the way notes the external acts of ſin, and the thoughts the internal acts, both of contrivance, and delight in ſin: both theſe muſt be forſaken; and that's not all, for this makes up but a negative holineſs. Let him return to the Lord, and he will have mercy. It is in vain for Men to make the door of Salvation wider than God hath made it; we cannot bring down Chriſt's terms lower than he hath ſet them; if we will not come up to them, Chriſt and we muſt part. And this makes the great ſtruggle, the ſharp debate in the Souls of Converts: O 'tis hard to give up pleaſant and profitable luſts; but away they muſt go, a Bill of Divorce muſt be ſigned for them, or you cannot be eſpouſed to the Lord Jeſus. This will be found to be a harder tug than to part with all externals for Chriſt's ſake.

Mark 4. No Heart can open truly to Chriſt that is not made willing upon due deliberation to receive him, with his croſs of ſufferings, and his yoke of obedience, Mat. 16. 24. & 11. 29.

An exception againſt either of theſe is an effectual Bar to thy Union with Chriſt; he looks upon that Soul as not worthy of him, that puts in ſuch an exception, Mat. 10. 38. If thou judgeſt not Chriſt worth all ſufferings, all loſſes, all reproaches, he judges thee unworthy to bear the name of his Diſciple. So for the duties of obedience, called his yoke; he that will not receive Chriſt's yoke, can never receive his Perſon, nor any benefit by his Blood.

Mark 5. Every Heart that opens ſincerely and Evangelically to Chriſt, opens to him in deep humility and ſenſe of its emptineſs and unworthineſs; all ſelf-righteouſneſs is given up as dung and droſs: thus Abraham came unto him, at to one that juſtifieth the ungodly, Rom. 4. 5. Now to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, his Faith is counted for righteouſneſs. Yea, here's the true way of Juſtification indeed; where the imputed Righteouſneſs of Chriſt comes, all ſelf-righteouſneſs vaniſhes before it. By him that worketh not, underſtand not an idle, lazy believer, that takes no care of the duties of obedience; no, no, an idle Faith can never be a ſaving Faith: but the meaning is, he worketh not in a Law-ſenſe, to the ends and intentions of the firſt Covenant; to make up a righteouſneſs to himſelf by his own working, to cover himſelf with a robe of righteouſneſs of his own ſpinning and weaving, a home-made Cloth; no, not a rag of that: Thou muſt receive Chriſt into an empty, naked, unworthy Soul, or not receive him at all. Bleſſed Paul heartily rejected all his own righteouſneſs, caſt down that Houſe-Idol to the ground, that he might be found in the imputed righteouſneſs of Chriſt, Phil. 3. 8. Caſt that Idol out of door, it ſtands in the way of a better Righteouſneſs. There be divers ways wherein ſinners maintain their own righteouſneſs to their own ruin: there is a groſs, and a more refined ſelf-righteouſneſs; the one more palpable and eaſily liable to conviction, the other much harder to be diſcovered and cured. Ask ſome Men upon what their hopes of Salvation are grounded? and they will tell you, they are juſt in their dealings with Men, and conſtant in their prayers to God, that's all, and therefore they doubt not of their Salvation: Thus they ſubſtitute a righteouſneſs of their own in the room of Chriſt's blood, and are their own Deſtroyers by ſeeking this way to be their own Saviours. But then there is a more refined way of ſelf-righteouſneſs, dreſt up with ſuch pretences of humility, that Men are hardly to be convinced of it. I pity many poor Souls upon this account, who ſtand off from Chriſt, dare not believe, becauſe they want ſuch and ſuch qualifications to fit them for Chriſt. O ſaith one, could I find ſo much brokenneſs of Heart for ſin, ſo much reformation and power over corruptions, then I could come to Chriſt; the meaning of which is this, if I could bring a price in my hand to purchaſe him, then I ſhould be encouraged to go unto him. Here now lies horrible pride covered over with a veil of great humility: Poor ſinner, either come naked and empty-handed, according to Iſa. 55. 1. Rom. 4. 5. or expect a repulſe; for Chriſt is not the Sale, but the Gift of God.

Mark 6. Laſtly, Whatever Soul opens ſavingly to Chriſt, it opens finally and everlaſtingly to him; the Heart once opened to Chriſt, muſt ſtand open for ever to him, never to ſhut out Chriſt any more. And here is a very obſervable difference betwixt a Man that comes to Chriſt in a ſudden fright of Conſcience, and parts with him again when that fright is over; and a Man that receiveth Chriſt not to ſojourn, but to dwell in his Heart by faith, Epheſ. 3. 17. When Chriſt comes into the Heart, he ſaith, Here will I dwell for ever; and Lord, ſaith the Soul, So I receive thee; this is the day of union, O let me never know a day of ſeparation; let it never be in the power of Life or Death, Angels, Principalities, or Powers, things preſent or to come, to make a ſeparation betwixt thee and me. Soul ſaith Chriſt, thou ſhalt be mine whilſt I am in Heaven; and Lord, ſaith the Soul, I will be thine whilſt I am on Earth. I will never leave thee nor forſake thee, ſaith Chriſt: O my Lord, ſaith the Soul, hold me faſt in thy Hand, that I may never leave nor forſake thee; my Eſtate, Liberty, and Life, may and muſt go; but it is in the fixed purpoſe of my Heart never, never to let thee go. The eſpouſals betwixt Chriſt and the Soul are for ever, Hoſ. 2. 19. I will betroth thee unto me for ever, yea for ever. And here lies another great difference betwixt the Hypocrite that takes Chriſt with a politick reſerve, that will venture with Chriſt at Sea no farther than he can ſee the ſhore; and the upright Heart that imbarks it ſelf with Chriſt without reſerves, come what will; that ſaith to him, as Ittai to David, when perſwaded to go back in a time of danger, nay, ſaith he, Where my Lord Jeſus Chriſt is, whether it be in Liberty or in Priſon, in Life or in Death, there alſo will I be. Fleſh may perſwad to a retreat; nay ſaith the Soul, I cannot retreat; but wherever the truths of Chriſt, the intereſt and glory of Chriſt are, there alſo muſt I be; for upon theſe terms I firſt received him, and opened the door of my Heart to him. Theſe things are no ſurpriſes to me, Chriſt and I have debated them long ago; he dealt fairly with me, and I muſt deal faithfully with him.

Now Brethren, view over theſe ſix Trials: Have your eyes been opened to ſee Sin in its vileneſs, Chriſt in his beauty and neceſſity? Have your hearts been prick'd and wounded with compunction and ſorrow for ſin? Are the loves and delights of ſin gone out of your Souls? Have you no exceptions either to the croſs or yoke of Chriſt? Have you given up all your own righteouſneſs, whether groſs or refined, for dung and droſs, and received Chriſt for ever? Then thy Heart is ſavingly opened to him.

Fourth Vſe.

The laſt Uſe that cloſeth this Point, will be Conſolation to all thoſe whoſe Hearts the Lord hath thus opened to receive Chriſt at his knocks and calls of the Goſpel.

Hath God indeed opened any of your Hearts, and made you ſincerely willing to receive Chriſt? then there are ten ſweet Conſolations like ſo many boxes of precious ointment to be poured forth in the cloſe of this diſcourſe upon every ſuch Soul. And the Firſt Conſolation ſhall be this: The opening of any Heart to receive Chriſt, is a clear ſolid Scripture-evidence of the Lord's eternal love to, and ſetting apart that Man for himſelf from all eternity. I do not ſay that every Man whoſe Heart is opened by Faith, is thereupon immediately aſſured and ſatisfied that God hath choſen him to Salvation; but whether he apprehend it or no, the thing in it ſelf is certain and real: conſult 1 Theſſ. 1. 4, 5. Knowing, brethren beloved, your election of God; for our Goſpel came not to you in word only, but alſo in power and in the Holy Ghoſt, &c. Their election of God was the thing to be proved; but alas, might they ſay, who can know that but God alone? It is among the Divine ſecrets; yes ſaith the Apoſtle, we know it, and by this we know it, for our Goſpel came not unto you in an empty ſound, but in mighty efficacy, effectually opening your Hearts to believe. A more clear and certain evidence of your Election cannot be given in this World. Look again into Rom. 8. 30. Moreover, whom he did predeſtinate, them he alſo called; and whom he called, them he alſo juſtified; and whom he juſtified, them he alſo glorified.

There are two great and raviſhing Truths cleared in this Scripture; the one is this, That the whole number of the called upon Earth is taken out of ſuch as were predeſtinated to Life before the World was. The other is this, That as the whole number of the glorified Saints in Heaven, is made up of Souls called and juſtified upon Earth: ſo the called Soul, that is, the Soul that ſavingly opens to Chriſt by Faith, may from that work of the Spirit upon him, ſolidly reaſon backward to God's electing Love before all time; and forward, to his glorification with God, when time ſhall be no more.

O how ſtrong is the Conſolation flowing out of this glorious work of the Spirit upon our Hearts! That's one thing.

II. Conſolation. The opening of the Heart to receive Chriſt is the peculiar effect of the Divine and Almighty Power of God; the Arm of an Angel is too weak to break thoſe ſtrong bars before mentioned. Therefore the exceeding greatneſs of his Power is applied unto this work of believing, Epheſ. 1. 19. And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his Power toward us who believe, according to the working of his mighty Power which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead. Here is Power, the Power of God, the greatneſs of his Power, the exceeding greatneſs of his Power, the very ſame Power which wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead; and all this no more than needs to make the Heart of Man open by Faith to receive Chriſt: the only Key that fits the croſs Wards of Man's Will, and effectually opens his Heart, is in the Hand of Chriſt, Revel. 3. 7. He hath the key of David, he openeth and no Man ſhutteth.

How long have ſome of you ſat under able Miniſters, ſearching Sermons, and rouzing Providences, yet all to no purpoſe, till this Almighty Power came with the Word, and then the work was done. The people ſhall be willing in the day of thy power, Pſal. 110. 3. What a glorious Power was that which opened Chriſt's grave, when he lay in the Heart of the Earth, with a mighty Stone rolled upon his Sepulcher? And how mighty a Power is that which breaks aſunder all thoſe Bars which kept thy Soul in the ſtate of ſin and death? None feel this Power but thoſe only whom God intendeth for Salvation; and having once wrought this, it is engaged to go through with all the reſt which yet remaineth to be done to perfect thy Salvation.

III. Conſolation. The opening of thy Heart to Chriſt is not only an effect of Almighty Power, but ſuch an effect of it, without which all that Chriſt hath done and ſuffered had been of no avail to thy Salvation; neither the eternal Decrees of God, nor the meritorious ſufferings of Chriſt, are effectual to any Man's Salvation, until this work of the Spirit be wrought upon his Heart. The offering up of Chriſt is in its kind and place ſufficient to purchaſe our Redemption, but it is the receiving of Chriſt by Faith that brings home Salvation to our Souls; where there be many concauſes to produce one effect, that effect is not produced until the laſt cauſe have wrought. Thus 'tis here, the moving cauſe, viz. the free-grace of God, hath wrought; and the meritorious cauſe, the death of Chriſt, hath alſo wrought; but ſtill the Heart even of an elect Man remaineth under guilt and condemnation, until the Spirit, who is the applying cauſe, have alſo wrought this bleſſed effect we now ſpeak of. It is Chriſt in us, i. e. in union with our Souls, which is to us the hope of glory, Col. 1. 27. 1 Cor. 1. 30. Behold then the laſt ſtroak given in this opening of the Heart by Faith; herein electing Love hath brought home Chriſt with all the purchaſes and benefits of his death into the actual poſſeſſion of thy Soul. O how tranſporting and raviſhing a conſideration is this!

IV. Conſolation. In this work, the opening of the Heart by Faith, the great deſign and main intention of the Goſpel is alſo anſwered and accompliſhed. You behold in the Church a glorious frame of Ordinances ſet up by divine Inſtitution, Miniſters appointed to preach Sermons, Sacraments, Prayers, Singing, variety of Ordinances ſet up, excellent gifts given to Men as the fruit of Chriſt's aſcenſion into Heaven. Now what was the deſign of God in the inſtitution of all theſe things, but that by them, as Inſtruments in his hand, our ignorant, dead, unbelieving Hearts might be opened to Chriſt in acts of Repentance and Faith, and built up to a perfect Man? Miniſters are ſent to open your Eyes, turn you from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan to God, Acts 26.18. They are not ſent by Chriſt into this World to get a living, to drive ſo poor a Trade as that for themſelves, but to bring you to Faith, 1 Cor. 3. 5. When God's Elect are thus brought in and built up in Chriſt, you ſhall ſee this glorious frame of Ordinances taken down; there will be no more preaching nor hearing, the end of all theſe things being accompliſhed; 1 Cor. 15. 24. Then cometh the end, when he ſhall have delivered up the Kingdom to God, even the Father, &c. Now the conſideration of the accompliſhment of the great and principal deſign of the Goſpel thus far upon thy Heart, is matter of tranſporting joy; Miniſters may and muſt die, Ordinances may be removed, but this bleſſed effect of them upon thy Soul ſhall never die: God will perfect what he hath begun; that's the fourth Conſolation.

V. Conſolation. And then 5*ly*, That day wherein thy Heart is ſavingly opened to receive Chriſt, that very day is Salvation come to thy Soul. When Zacheus his Heart was opened to Chriſt, he tells him, Luke 19.9. This day is Salvation come to thy Houſe. Salvation was come into the World before thou waſt born, yea Salvation was come to thy doors in the tenders of the Goſpel before, but it never came into thy Soul till the day wherein thy Heart opened to Chriſt by Faith. And is not this matter of ſingular conſolation? If Salvation be not, what is? No wonder that the Eunuch went home rejoicing when he had received Chriſt by Faith, Acts 8. 39. that the Jaylor rejoiced with all his Houſe, Acts 16. 34. Neither blame, nor wonder at Men for rejoicing, for 'tis the day of their Salvation. 'Tis true, their Salvation is not finiſhed that day, there may be many things yet to be done and ſuffered by them before the compleating of it; but it is begun that day, the foundation is laid in the Soul that day, and the Top-ſtone ſhall be ſet up with ſhouting in due time, crying, Grace, Grace, unto it.

VI. Conſolation. The opening of a ſinners Heart to Chriſt makes joy in Heaven, a triumph in the City of our God above: Luke 15. 7. I ſay unto you likewiſe, that joy ſhall be in Heaven over one ſinner that repented, more than over ninety nine juſt perſons which need no repentance.

As when a young Prince is born, all the Kingdom rejoices, the Conduits run with Wine, and there's all demonſtration of joy and thankfulneſs in every City and Town: 'tis much more ſo in Heaven, when a Soul is born to Chriſt under the Goſpel; 'tis a ſatisfaction to the Heart of the Lord Jeſus who now beholds more of the travel of his Soul, and to all the Angels and Saints, that another Soul is eſpouſed to him.

Beloved, when the Goſpel is effectually brought home by the Spirit to the Heart of a Sinner, and wounds him for Sin, ſends him home crying, O ſick, ſick of Sin, and ſick for Chriſt; the news thereof is preſently in Heaven, and ſets the whole City of God a rejoicing. Chriſt never rejoiced over thee before, thou haſt wounded him and grieved him a thouſand times, but he never rejoiced in thee till now; and that which gives joy to Chriſt may well be matter of joy to thee: that's the ſixth Conſolation.

VII. Conſolation. And then 7*ly*, That day thy Heart is unlockt, unbarr'd, and ſavingly opened by Faith, that very day an intimate, ſpiritual, and everlaſting union is made betwixt Chriſt and thy Soul; from that day Chriſt is thine, and thou art his. Chriſt is a great and glorious Perſon, but how great and glorious ſoever he be, the ſmall and feeble Arms of thy Faith may ſurround and embrace him; and thou mayſt ſay with the Church, My Beloved is mine, and I am his: for mark what he ſaith in the Text, If any Man open to me, I will come in to him. That Soul ſhall be my habitation, there will I dwell for ever. Thus will Chriſt dwell in your Hearts by Faith. What Soul feels not it ſelf advanced by this union with the Son of God? Hereby the Believer becomes a Member of his Body, Fleſh and Bones; this is an honour beſtowed upon thy Soul above and beyond all that honour that ever God beſtowed upon any Angel in Heaven; to them Chriſt is an Head by way of Dominion, but to thee by way of vital influence. Angels are as the Barons and Nobles of his Kingdom, but the Believer his Spouſe, and all the Angels of Heaven miniſtring Spirits unto ſuch. That's the ſeventh Conſolation.

VIII. Conſolation. And then 8*ly*, The opening of thy Heart to Chriſt brings thee not only into union with his Perſon, but into a ſtate of ſweet Soul-enriching communion with him. So he ſpeaketh in the Text, If any Man open the door, I will ſup with him, and he with me. Poor Soul, thou haſt lived many years in the World, and never hadſt any communion with God till this day. Chriſt and thy Soul have been ſtrangers till now. 'Tis true, thou haſt had communion with Ordinances, and communion with Saints, but for communion with Chriſt thou couldſt know nothing of it till thou receivedſt him into thy Soul by Faith. Now thou mayſt ſay, Truly my fellowſhip is with the Father, and with his Son Jeſus Chriſt, 1 John 1. 3.

And thenceforth thy communion with Men is pleaſant and deſirable.

IX. Conſolation. The opening of a Man's Soul to Chriſt by Faith is a ſpecial and peculiar mercy, which falls to the ſhare but of a very few. God hath done that for thee which he hath denied to millions; Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the Arm of the Lord revealed? i. e. to how ſmall a remnant in the World, Iſa. 53. 1. And the Apoſtle puts the work of Faith among the great myſteries of Godlineſs, among the wonders of Religion, 1 Tim. 3. 16. Preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the World.

The ſound of the Goſpel is gone forth into the World; Many are called, but few are choſen. There were many Widows in Iſrael, in the days of Elias, but to none of them was Elias ſent, ſave unto Sarepta, a City of Sidon, unto a Woman that was a Widow, Luke 4.25,26. To allude to this, there were many hundreds that ſat under the ſame Sermon which opened thy Heart to Chriſt, but it may be unto none of them was the Spirit of God ſent that day to open their Hearts by Faith, but unto thee; thou wilt freely acknowledg thy ſelf as unlikely and unworthy as the vileſt ſinner there. O aſtoniſhing mercy!

X. Conſolation. And then laſtly, In the ſame day thy Heart opens by Faith to Chriſt, all the treaſures of Chriſt are unlockt and opened to thee. In the ſame hour God turns the key of Regeneration to open thy Soul; the key of free Grace is alſo turned to open unto thee the unſearchable riches of Chriſt; then the righteouſneſs of Chriſt becomes thine to juſtify thee, the Wiſdom of Chriſt to guide thee, the holineſs of Chriſt to ſanctify thee; in a word, he is that day made of God to thee, wiſdom, righteouſneſs, ſanctification and redemption, 1 Cor. 1. 30. All is yours, for you are Chriſt's, and Chriſt is God's, 1 Cor. 3. ult. And thus I have ſhewed you ſome of thoſe great things God doth for thoſe Souls that will but do this one thing for him, viz. open their Hearts to receive Chriſt upon the tenders and terms of the Goſpel.

SERMON IV.

Revel. III. 20.

Behold I* [ſtand] at the Door and knock, &c.

THE verb ἕστηκα here rendred I ſtand, is of the preter tenſe, and would ſtrictly be rendred I have ſtood; but being joined with a verb of the preſent tenſe, is here rendred I do ſtand, a frequent Hebraiſm in Scripture: and it notes the continued patience and long-ſuffering of Chriſt; I have ſtood and ſtill do ſtand, exerciſing wonderful patience towards obſtinate ſinners. Which gives us this fourth Obſervation.

Doct. 4. That great and admirable is the patience of Chriſt in waiting upon trifling and obſtinate Sinners.

Thus Wiſdom, i. e. Chriſt, expreſſes himſelf, Prov. 1. 24. I have called, and ye refuſed; I have ſtretched out my Hand, and no Man regarded. Here you have not only Chriſt's earneſt Calls, but ſutable Geſtures alſo, to gain attention. The ſtretching out of the Hand was a ſignal given to procure attention, Acts 21. 40. Yet none regards; and this the Lord doth not once or twice, but all the day long, Iſa. 65. 2. ſhewing forth all long-ſuffering, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 1 Tim. 1. 16. In the opening of this Point I will ſhew you,

1. What Divine Patience is.
2. Wherein it is evidenced.
3. Why it is exerciſed towards ſinners.

Firſt, Of the nature of Divine Patience; it is an ability in God not only to delay the execution of his wrath for a time towards ſome, but to delay it in order to eternal Salvation of others. Let me ſpeak to the parts of this deſcription of Divine Patience.

1. It is an ability or power in God, not the effect of Impotence, or want of opportunity: All ſinners are continually within the reach of the Arm of his Juſtice, and he can ſtrike when and where he will. Eſau had a revengeful mind againſt Jacob, but wanted opportunity, and therefore was forc'd to delay the execution of his conceived wrath, until the days for mourning for his Father were come; and then ſaith he, I will ſlay my Brother Jacob, Gen. 27. 41. But in God it is a glorious effect of power, Nah. 1. 3. The Lord is ſlow to anger, and great in power.

The greatneſs of his patience flows from the greatneſs of his power: ſo the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Rom. 9. 22. What if God willing to ſhew his wrath, and to make his power known, endured with much long-ſuffering the Veſſels of wrath, fitted, or made up to deſtruction? And therefore when Moſes prays for the exerciſe of Divine Patience towards the provoking Iſraelites, he doth it in this form, Numb. 14. 17, 18. And now I beſeech thee, let the power of my Lord be great, according as thou haſt ſpoken, ſaying, The Lord is long-ſuffering, &c. He could exerciſe this Almighty power upon thee, and cruſh thee by it as a Moth is cruſhed; but behold he exerciſes it upon himſelf, in ſtopping the propenſions of his own Juſtice, which daily ſollicit him to cut thee off; 'tis the power of God over his Wrath, bridling and reſtraining it from day to day.

2. This Patience is exerciſed towards ſuch as periſh, in a temporary delay of their damnation; and tho this be but a mere ſuſpenſion of his wrath for a time, yet it is a glorious act of Patience in him; as that forecited Text, Rom. 9. 22. ſhews. Is it nothing for a ſinner condemned as ſoon as born, to be reprieved ſo many years out of Hell? Thou haſt been provoking him daily and hourly to cut thee off and ſend thee to thy own place; and yet to be on this ſide the everlaſting burnings, this is wholly owing to the riches of his forbearance. Ah, how is God to be admired in this his glorious power over his own wrath! When we look abroad into the World, and ſee every where ſinners ripe for deſtruction, daring the God of Heaven to his face, yet forborn, how admirable is this Power of God!

3. God doth not only exerciſe this Power in a temporary ſuſpenſion of his Wrath againſt ſome, who alas, muſt feel it at laſt; but he delays the execution of his Wrath in a deſign of mercy towards others that they may never feel it, Iſa. 48. 8, 9. Thus he bears with his own Elect, all the years of their lives wherein they lay in the ſtate of nature, and went on in a courſe of rebellion againſt God; and this long-ſuffering of God towards them proves their Salvation, as you have it in 2 Pet. 3. 15. And account that the long-ſuffering of our Lord is Salvation. What's the meaning of that? Ah! Chriſtian, thou mayſt eaſily know the meaning of it, without turning over many Commentaries; thou art now in Chriſt, ſafely eſcaped out of the danger of Wrath to come; but thou oweſt thy Salvation to the patience and long-ſuffering of God towards thee. For what if he had cut thee off in the days of thy ignorance and rebellion againſt him (and thou knoweſt thou didſt give him millions of provocations ſo to do) where hadſt thou now been? thou hadſt never ſeen Chriſt, nor the leaſt dawning hope of Salvation by him. Remember how oft you lay in thoſe days upon beds of ſickneſs, upon the brink of the grave; what was it that ſaved thee from eternal Wrath but this admirable Patience of Chriſt? Well therefore may the Apoſtle ſay, Account the long-ſuffering of God to be Salvation.

This Patience of God ſeems to be a branch ſpringing out of his mercy and goodneſs; only it differs from mercy in this, that Man as miſerable is the object of Mercy, but Man as criminal is the object of Patience. Thus briefly of the Nature of Divine Patience, a power of God over his own wrath, not only to ſuſpend it for a time towards them that periſh, but to delay the execution of it, in a deſign of Salvation towards others.

Secondly, Next we come to ſhew the various evidences of this Divine Patience, or wherein it appears in its glorious manifeſtations towards provoking ſinners; and there are ſeven full evidences and diſcoveries of it, which ſhould make the Hearts of Sinners melt within them whilſt they are ſounding in their ears. Ah methinks ſuch things as theſe ſhould melt down your hard hearts before the Lord.

1. And the firſt Evidence of the riches of his patience ſhall be taken from the multitude of Sins that Men and Women are guilty of before him, the leaſt of which is a burden too heavy for any Creature to bear; the Pſalmiſt ſaith, Pſal. 40.12. Innumerable evils have compaſſed me about. It was true, as applied to the perſon of David; and tho it be three applied to the perſon of Chriſt, yet not one of them were his own ſins, but ours; called his, by God's reckoning or imputing them to him. Men can number vaſt Sums, Millions of Millions, but no Man can number his own ſins, they paſs all account. There is not a member of the Body, tho never ſo ſmall, but hath been the inſtrument of innumerable evils. For inſtance, the Tongue, the Apoſtle tells us, is a World of iniquity, Jam. 3. 6. And if there be a World of ſin in one member, what then are the ſins of all? How many idle, frothy, vain words hath thy Tongue uttered? And yet for them, Chriſt ſaith, Men ſhall give an account in the day of Judgment, Mat. 12. 36. And what have the ſins of thy thoughts been? The thought of fooliſhneſs is ſin, ſaith Solomon, Prov. 24. 9. O who can underſtand his errors? Yet the Patience of God hath not crackt and broken under ſuch innumerable evils. O glorious Patience! Well may it be uſhered in in the Text with a term of admiration, Behold, I ſtand!

2. The ſecond Evidence of the Divine Patience ſhall be taken from the heinous nature of ſome ſins above others, whereby ſinners fly, as it were, in the very Face of God; and yet he bears with much long-ſuffering, lets not looſe his Hand to cut them off. All ſins are not of one ſize, ſome have a ſlighter tincture, and ſome are deeper, called upon that account Scarlet and Crimſon ſins, Iſa. 1. 18. double-died abominations, ſins in grain; ſuch are ſins againſt Knowledg, ſins committed after Convictions and Covenants, and rebukes of Providence. I do not only ſpeak of outward groſs acts of ſin; for as the School-men well determine, tho outward ſins are ſins of greater infamy, yet inward ſins may be ſins of greater guilt: Even thoſe ſins that never took air to defame thee in the World; but whatever they be (Reader) whether outward or inward, thy Conſcience is privy to them, and thy Soul may ſtand amazed at the Patience of God in forbearing thee all this while under ſuch Provocations, and horrid Rebellions againſt him; eſpecially conſidering how many there be this day in Hell that never provoked God by ſinning with ſuch a high hand as thou haſt done.

3. It is yet a greater Evidence of the Patience of God in bearing with, and forbearing us, under the guilt of that ſpecial ſin, viz. The ſlighting and neglecting of Jeſus Chriſt: Here's a ſin that goes to the very heart of Jeſus Chriſt, he can bear any other ſin rather than that; and yet this hath Chriſt born from every Soul of you. You are the Men and Women that have ſpurned at the yerning bowels of his Mercies, ſlighted his Grace, trampled his precious Blood under foot, and yet he hath forborn you unto this day; read Mat. 22. 5. and let thy Conſcience anſwer, whether thou art not equally deep in the guilt of making light of Chriſt with thoſe wretches upon whom it is there charged. Chriſt hath ſuffered the wrath of God in thy room, brought home Salvation in Goſpel-offers to thy door: and then to be ſlighted! no Patience but his own could bear it. Every Sermon and Prayer you have ſat under with a dead Heart; every motion of his Spirit which you have quencht, what is this but the making light of Chriſt, and the great Salvation? Here the deepeſt project of infinite Wiſdom, and the richeſt gift of free-grace, wherein God commends his love to Men, are vilely undervalued as ſmall things: and thus have you done days without number; and yet his Hand is not ſtretched out, to cut thee off in thy Rebellion; Who is a God like unto thee! What Patience like the Patience of Chriſt!

4. The length of time the Patience of Chriſt hath indured thee, ſpeaks the perfection and riches of his Patience towards thee.

Conſider ſinner, what Age thou art of, how many years thou canſt number, and that all this hath been a time of Patience, for thou waſt a tranſgreſſor from the Womb, Iſa. 48.8,9. yet for his Name ſake hath he defer'd his anger, and hath not cut thee off. How ſoon did the wrath of God break forth upon the Angels when they ſinned in Heaven! And how long hath it born with thee, whilſt thou haſt been provoking him on Earth? Was there ever Patience like the Patience of God! Many thouſands have been ſent away to Hell ſince thy day, but thou art yet ſpared; O that the long-ſuffering of God might be Salvation to thee!

5. 'Tis a great Evidence of the power of Divine Patience that may be drawn from the grievouſneſs of our Sins to God, during the whole time of his forbearance: 'Tis true, there is no proper paſſion in the Divine Nature, no real perturbation, his anger is a mild and holy flame; yet the contrariety of ſin to the holineſs of his Nature is what makes his patience miraculous in the Eyes of Men. The Scripture ſpeaking in a condeſcending Language to the underſtanding of the creature, repreſents God as wounded to the heart by the ſins of Men; ſo in Ezek. 6. 9. I am broken with their whoriſh Heart, which hath departed from me; and Amos 2. 13. Behold I am preſſed under you, as a cart is preſſed that is full of ſheaves; when the Axel-tree is ready to crack under the load: and 2 Chron. 36. 16. 'tis ſaid, The wrath of the Lord aroſe againſt his people till there was no remedy; his Patience would bear no longer; and therefore when he executes his wrath upon provoking ſinners, that execution is repreſented in the nature of an eaſe or relief to his burdened Patience and Juſtice, Iſa. 1. 24. Ah, ſaith he, I will eaſe me of my enemies, and avenge me of my adverſaries. Yet obſerve it comes in with an (ah) with a kind of regret and reluctancy; ſo in Iſa. 10. 25. Yet a very little while and the indignation ſhall ceaſe, and my anger in their deſtruction. God could have given eaſe and reſt this way to his anger long ago, but he chuſes rather ſtill to bear with thee, than on theſe terms to eaſe himſelf of thee.

6 Evidence. The vaſt expences of his Riches and Bounty upon us, during the whole time of his forbearance and patience towards us, ſpeak him unconceivable and infinite in his long-ſuffering towards us, Rom. 2. 4, 5. Deſpiſeſt thou the riches of his goodneſs, and forbearance, and long-ſuffering, not knowing that the goodneſs of God leadeth thee to repentance? q. d. Vile ſinner, canſt thou compute the treaſures of bounty and goodneſs, thou haſt been riotouſly ſpending and waſting all this while? Doſt thou know what vaſt ſums Chriſt hath ſpent upon thee to preſerve thee ſo long out of Hell? There be two Treaſures ſpending upon ſinners all the time of God's forbearance of them; there's the precious Treaſure of thy time waſted, and the invaluable ſtreams of Goſpel-Grace running all this while at the waſte Spout: thy time is precious; the whole of thy time, which is betwixt thee and Eternity, is but little, and the moſt thereof has been waſted in ſin, and caſt away upon vanity: but that's not all, the Treaſures of Goſpel-Grace have been waſting all this while upon thee. In Zach. 4. 12. it is compared to Golden Oil, maintaining the Lamps of Ordinances; ſo it is ſet forth to us in that ſtately Emblem. Who would maintain a Lamp with Golden Oil for wanton Children to play by? Yet this hath God done while thy Soul hath dallied and trifled with him. The Witneſſes or Miniſters of Chriſt, in Rev. 11. 3, 4. are compared to thoſe Olive-Trees that drop their precious Oil, their Gifts, Graces, yea and their natural Spirits with them, into this Lamp to keep it burning; all this while the Blood of Chriſt hath been running in vain, the Miniſters of Chriſt preaching and beſeeching in vain, the Spirit of Chriſt ſtriving with you in vain. You burn away Golden Oil, and yet your Lamp is not gone out. O marvelous Patience! O the riches of God's forbearance!

7. Laſtly, the riches of Divine Patience towards you, are greatly heightned and aggravated by the quick diſpatch the Lord hath made of other ſinners, whilſt he hath ſpared and paſt over you. This comparative conſideration calls upon you in the Apoſtle's language, Rom. 11. 22. Behold the goodneſs and ſeverity of God; on them which fell, ſeverity; but towards thee, goodneſs, if thou continue in his goodneſs, otherwiſe thou ſhalt be cut off. Some ſinners have been cut off in the beginning of their days, many in the very acts of ſin, and thoſe not greater than thy ſins; they are gone to their own place, and thou ſtill left for a Monument of the Patience and Forbearance of God. The ſin of Achan was not a greater ſin than thy covetouſneſs, and the earthlineſs of thy Heart is; the ſin of Nadab and Abihu in offering up ſtrange fire, than thy ſuperſtition, and offering up uncommanded Services to God: yet the hand of God fell upon them, and ſmote them dead in the place; in the day and place wherein they ſinned, they periſht; they were taken away in their iniquities, but thou reſerved. O that it might be for an inſtance and example of the riches of Divine Patience, which may at laſt lead thee to repentance!

Thus I have given you ſeven Evidences of the wonderful Patience of Chriſt, who hath ſtood, and ſtill doth ſtand at the door and knock. Next we will enquire into the grounds and reaſons of this marvelous Patience of Chriſt, this aſtoniſhing long ſuffering of God towards ſinners; and there are divers obvious reaſons of the long ſuffering of God towards Men.

Reaſon 1. The exerciſe of his Patience is a ſtanding teſtimony of his reconcilable and merciful nature towards ſinful Man. This he ſhewed forth in his Patience toward Paul, a great example of his merciful Nature for a pattern to them that ſhould hereafter believe on him, 1 Tim. 1. 16. The long-ſuffering of God is a ſpecial part of his manifeſtative Glory; and therefore when Moſes deſired a ſight of his Glory, Exod. 34. 6. he proclaims his Name, The Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long-ſuffering, and abundant in goodneſs and truth. He would have poor ſinners look towards him as an atonable Deity, a God willing to be reconciled, a God that retaineth not his anger for ever; but if poor ſinners will take hold of his ſtrength, and make peace with him, they may have peace, Iſa. 27. 4. This long-ſuffering is an attribute very expreſſive of the Divine Nature; he is willing ſinners ſhould know, whatever their provocations have been, there is room for pardon and peace, if they will yet come in to accept the terms. This Patience is a Diadem belonging to the Imperial Crown of Heaven; the Lord glories in it as what is peculiar to himſelf, Hoſ. 11. 9. I will not execute the fierceneſs of my anger, for I am God, and not Man: q. d. Had I been as Man, the holieſt, meekeſt, and mortifiedſt Man upon Earth, I had conſumed them long ago; but I am God, and not Man, my Patience is above all created Patience; no Husband can bear with his Wife, no Parent with his Child, as God hath born with you. That's one reaſon of Chriſt's waiting upon trifling ſinners, to give proof of his gracious, merciful and reconcilable nature towards the worſt of ſinners.

Reaſon 2. The Lord exerciſes this admirable Patience towards ſinners with deſign thereby to lead them to repentance; that's the direct aim and intention of it. The Lord deſires and delights to ſee ingenuous relentings and brokenneſs of Heart for ſin, and there is nothing like his Forbearance and Patience promotes ſuch an Evangelical Repentance. All the terrors of the Law will not break the Heart of a ſinner, as the Patience and long-ſuffering of God will do; therefore it is ſaid, Rom. 2. 4. That the Goodneſs, Forbearance and Long-ſuffering of God lead Men to Repentance: theſe are fitted to work upon all thoſe principles of humanity, which incline Men to Repentance; Reaſon, Conſcience, Gratitude, feel the influences of the goodneſs of God herein, and melt under it; Saul's Heart relented in this caſe, 1 Sam. 24. 17. Is this thy voice, my Son David? and Saul lift up his voice and wept; And he ſaid to David, Thou art more righteous than I, for thou haſt rewarded me good, whereas I have rewarded thee evil. Thus the goodneſs and forbearance of God doth as it were take a ſinner by the hand, leads him into a corner, and ſaith, Come, let thou and I talk together; Thus and thus vile haſt thou been, and thus and thus long-ſuffering and merciful have I been to thee; thy Heart hath been full of ſin, the Heart of thy God hath been full of pity and mercy. This puts the ſinner into Tears, breaks his Heart in pieces; if any thing in the World will melt a hard Heart, this will do it. O how good hath God been to me! How have I tried his Patience to the uttermoſt, and ſtill he waiteth to be gracious, and is exalted that he may have compaſſion; the Sobs and Tears, the ingenuous Thaws and Relentings of a ſinners Heart under the apprehenſions of the ſparing mercy and goodneſs of God, is the Muſick of Heaven.

Reaſon 3. The Lord exerciſes this long-ſuffering towards ſinners, to clear his Juſtice in the damnation of all the obſtinate refuſers of Chriſt and Mercy. Chriſt waits at our doors now, that he may be clear in his ſentence againſt us hereafter. This Patience of Chriſt takes away all Apologies and Pleas out of the Mouths of impenitent ſinners; the more Chriſt's Patience hath been, the leſs defence or plea they will have for themſelves.

Think with thy ſelf, ſinner, what wilt thou anſwer in the great day, when Chriſt ſhall ſay, Did not I ſtand at thy door from day to day, from Sabbath to Sabbath, from year to year, calling, wooing, perſwading thee to be reconciled, and accept Pardon and Mercy in the proper ſeaſon of them, and thou wouldſt not? Rev. 2. 21. I gave her ſpace to repent, and ſhe repented not. Well, the Lord gives you time now, a ſpace of repentance, ſuch a ſpace as millions of Souls gone out of time into a miſerable Eternity never had. With whomſoever Chriſt hath been quick and ſevere, to be ſure he hath not been ſo with you. This time of Chriſt's Patience will be evidence enough to clear Chriſt and condemn you; Men and Angels ſhall applaud the ſentence as dreadful as it is, and ſay, Righteous art thou, O Lord, in judging thus.

Reaſon 4. The Lord draws forth and exerciſes his admirable Patience towards ſinners for the continuation and propagation of the Church. The Church muſt be continued and propagated from Age to Age; and if God ſhould be quick in cutting off ſinners as ſoon as ever they provoke him, whence ſhould the Elect of God riſe in this World? There are thouſands of God's Elect in the Loins of God's Enemies. Many that will heartily embrace Chriſt, muſt riſe from ſuch as reject him.

Now if God ſhould cut off theſe in the beginning of their provocations, how ſhould the Church be continued? Where had good Abijah and Hezekiah been, if wicked Jeroboam and Ahaz had been cut off in their firſt tranſgreſſions? The Lord ſuffers many a wicked Parent to ſtand for a time under his Patience, becauſe Children are to ſpring from them who will obey and embrace that Chriſt whom their wicked Parents rejected: Yea, the Wicked do not only propagate the Church, but are uſeful to preſerve and defend it; as the uſeleſs chaff is a defence to the Wheat. Rev. 12. 16. The Earth ſhall help the Woman.

Reaſon 5. To conclude, the Lord exerciſeth this long-ſuffering towards Sinners in a gracious condeſcenſion to the Prayers of his People. Were it not that the Lord had left a ſmall remnant, we had been as Sodom, we had been like unto Gomorrah, Iſa. 1. 9.

The Prayers and Interceſſions of the Saints are a skreen betwixt wicked Men and the wrath of God for a time, Job 22. 30. The innocent preſerve the Iſland. The World ſtands by the Prayers of the Saints; what multitudes of rebellious, Chriſt-deſpiſing ſinners ſwarm this day in every part of this Nation? ſuch as declare by their open practice they will not have Chriſt to reign over them, who contemn his offers, deſpiſe his Meſſengers; but bleſſed be God, yea and let them bleſs him too, that there are others mourning to the Lord for them, beſeeching his forbearance towards them. Little do the wicked know how much they are beholden to the Prayers of the Saints. Theſe and ſuch like reaſons prevail with the Lord Jeſus to ſtand in a waiting, patient poſture, at the doors of ſinners. Ah, how loth is he to give them up! We now proceed to the Uſes of this Point by way of,

1. Information.
2. Exhortation.
3. Conſolation.

I. Uſe.

And firſt, this Point will be very fruitful for Information of our Underſtandings in divers great and uſeful Points, both Doctrinal and Practical, wherein every Soul among you is deeply concerned; and therefore I beſeech you let them be heard and pondered with an anſwerable attention and ſeriouſneſs of Spirit: and the firſt Inference ſhall be this.

Infer. 1. If the Lord Jeſus do exerciſe ſuch admirable Patience towards ſinners, Then how much better is it for poor ſinners to be in the Hands of Chriſt, than in the Hand of the beſt and holieſt Man in the World? O ſinner, 'tis better for thee to fall into the Hands of the Meek and Merciful Jeſus, than into the Hand of the deareſt Friend thou haſt upon Earth; no creature can bear what Chriſt bears; no Patience like the Patience of Chriſt: 'tis ſaid of Moſes, Numb. 11. 12. Now the Man Moſes was meek above all Men upon the face of the Earth. There was never ſuch a Man born into the World, for Patience, Meekneſs, and Long-ſuffering, as Moſes was; and yet for all that, this mirror of Meekneſs could not bear the provocations of Iſrael: You Rebels, ſaith he, muſt I draw Water for you out of the Rock? Thus was his Spirit ruffled with the provocations of Iſrael, and this loſt him the Land of Canaan. Jonah was a good Man, a Prophet of the Lord; yet becauſe the Lord would not be ſo quick and ſevere with Niniveh, as Jonah would have had him, in what uncomely Language doth his angry Soul return upon his God? Jonah 4. 2. O Lord, ſaith he, was not this my ſaying when I was yet in my Country? Therefore I fled before unto Tarſhiſh, for I knew thou wert a gracious God and merciful, ſlow to anger and of great kindneſs, and repenteſt thee of the evil; therefore now, O Lord, take I beſeech thee my life from me, for it is better for me to die than to live: q. d. Ah, Lord, I knew it would come to this, I knew thy gracious Nature, how inclinable thou art to mercy, and that upon the firſt appearance of their repentance, thou wouldſt repent of the evil, and ſo free-grace would make me as a lier among them.

Nay, give me leave to ſpeak a higher word than all this, and let it not ſeem ſtrange that the Patience of the glorified Saints in Heaven is nothing to the Patience of Chriſt towards provoking ſinners upon Earth. Thoſe glorified Souls that be above, tho they have Patience, among other ther Graces, perfected in its kind, yet ſtill it is but created, finite Patience, and it cannot bear what Chriſt's Patience bears: take an inſtance of it out of Rev. 6. 9, 10, 11. I ſaw under the Altar the Souls of thoſe that were ſlain for the word of God, and for the teſtimony which they held; and they cried with a loud voice, ſaying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, doſt thou not judg and avenge our Blood on them that dwell on the Earth? And it was ſaid unto them, That they ſhould reſt for a little ſeaſon. Here you ſee glorified Souls leſs able to bear the ſlow pace of Juſtice towards their Enemies, than Chriſt was. 'Tis true, here was no ſinful impatience, but yet a Patience ſhort of Chriſt's infinite Patience. Ah if you were to depend upon the patience of any Creature in Heaven or Earth, you had worn it out long ago. I will not execute the fierceneſs of my anger, for I am God and not Man. Ah, 'tis well we have to do with a God; if a Man find his Enemy, will he let him go away? 1 Sam. 24. 19. No, no, he will reckon before he part with him. Sinner, the Lord finds thee daily in thy ſins, and yet lets thee go; yet beware thou try not his Patience too far, leſt vengeance overtake thee at laſt, and pay the Juſtice of God with all the arrearages due to his Patience.

Infer. 2. Hence it follows, that convinced and broken-hearted Sinners need not be diſcouraged in going to Jeſus Chriſt for mercy, ſeeing he exerciſes ſuch wonderful Patience towards obſtinate and refuſing ſinners.

This Inference breaths pure Goſpel; it is a Cordial to chear the Heart that is moving towards Chriſt with fear and trembling. 'Tis a great artifice of the Devil to daunt and diſcourage poor convinced ſinners, by telling them there is no hope of mercy for them; that they ſhall find the Arms of Mercy cloſed, the Bowels of Compaſſion ſhut up; that the time of Mercy is now paſt, they come too late. O how buſie is Satan with ſuch ſuggeſtions as theſe in many of your Souls? But I am come to tell you this day, that theſe are but the artifices of the Enemy; you are going to the Fountain of Mercy, Patience, Goodneſs and Long-ſuffering; go on, and you ſhall find abundantly more than you expect. He will not caſt off a Soul that comes mourning and panting towards him, and is willing to ſubſcribe the Goſpel-Articles of Reconciliation: No, he will not ſhut out ſuch a Soul, whatever its rebellions and provocations have been. Sinner, thou art going to the meek and merciful Jeſus, Mat. 11. 28. Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy-laden, and I will give you reſt; take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly. You are going to Meekneſs and Mercy it ſelf; he is the Lamb of God, that is his Name: go on then poor trembling ſinner, don't ſtand any longer at, ſhall I, ſhall I? with Chriſt; but make a bold but neceſſary adventure of Faith; try him once, and then report what you find him to be: Certainly if he exerciſes ſuch Patience towards the Veſſels of wrath, whilſt they are fitting to deſtruction, as he doth, Rom. 9. 22. he will not want Patience for a Veſſel of Mercy, preparing by Humiliation and Faith for Chriſt and Glory. Doth he forbear thoſe that ſtand in defiance, and will he fall upon thoſe that are mourning to him upon the knee of ſubmiſſion? Shall a damned wretch, that is preparing for Hell, find ſo much forbearance, and a poor broken-hearted ſinner none? It cannot be. If Jeſus Chriſt forbear thee when thy Heart was as hard as a Rock, and could not yield one Tear, one Sigh for ſin, will he execute his Wrath upon thee, will he ſhew thee no Mercy, when thy Heart is broken all to pieces with ſorrow, and filled with loathing and deteſtation againſt ſin, and thy ſelf for ſin? Did he forbear thee when ſin was thy delight? and will he deſtroy thee now it is thy burden? It cannot be.

Moreover, if the Lord Jeſus had not a mind to ſhew Mercy to thy poor Soul, now, now, that thine Eyes are opened and thine Heart touched to the quick, why hath he forborn the execution of his wrath ſo long? He might have taken his own time to cut you off when he would, he might have made any day the execution-day: But ſure among all the days of thy life, the day of thy Humiliation, the day of thy Faith, is not like to prove that day.

Again, as great and vile ſinners as thy ſelf have adventured upon the Grace of Chriſt, and found it infinitely beyond their expectation. Theſe the Lord Jeſus hath ſet forth as incouraging examples to all the broken-hearted ſinners that are coming after; that they ſeeing how it hath fared with their forerunners to Chriſt, might be encouraged to come on with the more confidence, 1 Tim. 1. 16. But I obtained mercy, that in me firſt Chriſt might ſhew forth all long-ſuffering, for a pattern to them that ſhould hereafter believe on him to life everlaſting. Well then, ſhut your Ears againſt all the whiſpers of Satan, entertain no evil reports of Chriſt; the Devil loves to draw a falſe picture of Chriſt, and repreſent him in the moſt diſcouraging form to poor trembling ſinners, but you will not find him ſo. What can Chriſt ſay more to convince and ſatisfy Souls than he hath done? He hath left the boſom of the Father, he hath taken union with thy Nature, he hath poured out his Soul unto Death; he hath told us, Thoſe that come unto him, he will in no wiſe caſt out. Thouſands are gone before us in the paths of Repentance and Faith, and found it according to his Word; you have been ſpared all your Life to this day of Mercy, O do not ſtand off now upon ſuch weak objections.

Inference 3. The long-ſuffering of Chriſt towards ſinners, inſtructeth and teacheth his Miniſters to imitate their Lord in a Chriſt-like Patience and Long-ſuffering. Chriſt is our pattern of Patience; if he wait, much more may we: we think it much to ſtand from Sabbath to Sabbath, wooing, pleading and inviting, and are apt to be diſcouraged when we ſee no fruit follow. The want of ſucceſs is apt to caſt us under Jeremiah's temptation, To ſpeak no more in his Name; and to lament with Iſaiah, That we have laboured in vain: 'tis a hard caſe to ſtudy, pray and preach, and ſee all our labours return in vain. 'Tis not ſo much the expending as the returning of our labours upon us in vain, that diſcourageth our Hearts. Miniſters would not die ſo faſt, ſaith Mr. Lockier on Coloſ. nor be grayheaded ſo ſoon, did they ſee the fruit of their labours upon their People. But let us look to our pattern in the Text, Behold I ſtand at the door and knock. If the Maſter wait, let not the Servant be weary: The Servant of the Lord muſt not ſtrive, but be patient toward all; waiting, if at any time God will give them repentance, 2 Tim. 4. 24.

Tho the beginnings be ſmall, our latter end may greatly increaſe: tho we now fiſh with Angles, and take but now one, and then another; the time may come, and we hope is at the door, when we ſhall ſpread our Nets, and incloſe multitudes. Aretius a pious Divine comforteth himſelf thus, under the inſucceſsfulneſs of his Labors, Dabit poſterior ætas tractabiliores fortaſſe animos, mitiora pectora quam noſtra habent tempora. Future days will afford more tractable Spirits, and eaſier tempers of Mind than our preſent times afford. Beſide, the fruit of our labours may ſpring up to a bleſſed harveſt when we are gone. John 4. 37. One Man ſoweth, and another reapeth; but if not, our reward will not be meaſured by the ſucceſs, but the ſincerity of our deſigns and labours. Our Zeal for converſion of Souls to Chriſt will be accepted, but our diſcouragement in his ſervice will certainly diſpleaſe him. If Iſrael be not gathered, yet ſhall we be glorious in the Eyes of the Lord. However, let this be a caution to you that hear us, that you caſt not our Souls under ſuch diſcouragements. If I may ſpeak the ſenſe of others from my own experience, then I can aſſure you, that the fixedneſs of your Hearts in the ways of ſin, and your untractableneſs to the calls of God, are a greater burden and diſcouragement to us than all the ſufferings we have met withal from the World; yet are we contented to pray in hope, and preach in hope, incouraging our ſelves (the Lord grant it be not without ground) that a crop ſhall yet ſpring up, which ſhall make the Harveſt-men laugh.

Inference 4. From the Patience and Long-ſuffering of Chriſt, we may learn the invaluable preciouſneſs of Souls, and the high eſteem Chriſt hath for them.

Tho your Souls be cheap in your own eyes, and you are contented to ſell them for a trifle, for a little ſenſual pleaſure and eaſe, ſome of you will hazard them for a Shilling; yet certainly Jeſus Chriſt hath an high eſteem of them, elſe he would never ſtand knocking with ſuch importunity, and waiting with ſuch wonderful patience for the Salvation of them. Chriſt knows their worth, tho you do not; he accounts, and ſo ſhould you, one of your Souls more worth than the whole World, Matth. 16. 26. The Soul of the pooreſt Child, or meaneſt Servant, that hears me this day, is of greater value in Chriſt's Eye than the whole World; and he hath given three great evidences of it, (1.) That he thought it worth his Heart-Blood to redeem and ſave it: 1 Pet. 1. 19. You were not redeemed with Silver and Gold, but with the precious Blood of the Son of God. Had they not been precious in his Eyes, he would never have ſhed his moſt precious Blood to ranſom them. (2.) Were they not highly valuable in his Eyes, he would never wait with ſuch unwearied Patience to ſave them as he doth. He hath born thouſands of repulſes, and unreaſonable denials from you: Sinner, Chriſt hath knockt at thy door in many a Sermon, in many a Prayer, in many a Sickneſs, in all which thou haſt put him off, denied him or delayed him; yet ſtill he continues knocking and waiting. Thou couldſt not have made the pooreſt Beggar in the World wait at thy door ſo long as thy Redeemer hath been made to wait, and yet he is not gone. At this day his Voice ſounds in thine ears, Behold I ſtand at the door and knock. Here's clear demonſtration of the preciouſneſs of thy Soul in the Redeemer's Eyes. And then laſtly, When Chriſt ends the Treaty, and gives up the Souls of Men for loſt, and unperſwadable, with what regret and ſorrow doth he part with them! Never did one Friend part from another with ſuch demonſtrations of ſorrow as Chriſt parteth with the Souls of ſinners. The Bowels of his compaſſion roll together; for he knows what is coming upon them, and what that eternal miſery is into which their wilful rejection of him will caſt them: In Luke 19. 42. you find the Redeemer's tears wept over obſtinate Jeruſalem, And when he came nigh to the City, he wept over it, and ſaid, O Jeruſalem, Jeruſalem, if thou hadſt known, at leaſt in this thy day, the things that belong to thy peace; but now they are hid from thine Eyes. Like unto this is that expreſſion, Iſa. 1. 24. Ah, I will eaſe me of mine enemies, &c. Tho it be an eaſe to his Juſtice, yet he cannot give them up without an ah, an interjection of ſorrow; ſo in Hoſea 11. 8. How ſhall I give thee up, Ephraim? How ſhall I deliver thee, Judah? I muſt do it, but how ſhall I go about it? All theſe expreſſions ſhew the great value God hath for your Souls; and did you know it alſo, certainly you would not make Chriſt wait one hour longer.

Inference 5. Hence it follows, That greater is the ſin, and ſeverer will be the condemnation of them that periſh under the Goſpel, than of all other People in the World. Let me ſpeak freely to you that hear me this day, Jeſus Chriſt hath ſpent more of the riches of his Patience upon you in one year, yea in this very day, than he hath ſpent upon the Heathen World in all the days of their lives; they never heard of Chriſt, and the great Salvation, they have had no calls to Faith and Repentance, as you have had; don't think God hath dealt at this rate with other Nations. You have his Sabbaths, Miniſters, Calls; he hath not dealt ſo with other Nations, and as for theſe things they have not known them, Pſal. 147. 19. God hath dealt in a peculiar way with us, and theſe ſpecial favors will make dreadful accounts. He told the Jews, among whom he had preacht and wrought his Miracles, It would be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of Judgment, than for them; and in his Name I will tell you this day, that barbarous Indians and Americans will have a milder Hell than you; Mitius ardent: and as the Lord told Ezekiel, chap. 3. 5, 6. Thou art not ſent to a People of a ſtrange Speech, and of a hard Language, whoſe words thou canſt not underſtand; ſurely had I ſent thee to them, they would have hearkened unto thee: but the houſe of Iſrael will not hearken unto thee, for they will not hearken unto me: For all the houſe of Iſrael are impudent and hardhearted.

Ah Brethren, 'tis a ſad Truth, that the Miniſters of Chriſt have found more fruit of their Labours among the Salvage Americans, than in England, a People born and bred up under the Goſpel. Had heatheniſh People your Sabbaths, your Miniſters and Bibles, they would not deal by Chriſt as you have done: But look you to it, for certainly the ſeverity of his Juſtice will at laſt recompence the expence of his Patience: There are two Glaſſes turned up this day, and both almoſt run down; the Glaſs of the Goſpel running down on Earth, and the Glaſs of Chriſt's Patience running down in Heaven. Be ſure of it that for every ſand of Mercy, every drop of Love that runs down in vain in this World, a drop of Wrath runs into the vial of Wrath which is fitting in Heaven.

Inference 6. If Chriſt has exerciſed ſuch admirable Patience and Long-ſuffering towards you, before he could gain entrance into your Heart; then you have all the reaſon in the World to exerciſe your Patience for Chriſt, and account all long-ſuffering to be your unqueſtionable duty. Chriſt was not weary in waiting upon you, be not you weary in waiting upon him, or for him. Now there are three things wherein the People of God will have much occaſion to exerciſe their Patience with reſpect to Chriſt.

(1.) You will need a great deal of Patience to wait for the returns and anſwers of your Prayers; you knock and wait at the door of Mercy, and no anſwer comes; hereupon diſcouragement and wearineſs ſeizeth your Spirits. Poſſibly ſome of you have Prayers many years gone upon the file in Heaven, ſome upon Spiritual accounts, and ſome upon Temporal; and becauſe the anſwer is not diſpatcht, your Eyes are ready to fail with waiting: for the Lord may bear long with his own Elect, Luke 18. 7. The ſeed of Prayer lies under the clods, and will at laſt ſpring up, for he never ſaid to the ſeed of Jacob, Seek me in vain; none ſeek God in vain but thoſe that ſeek him vainly. Now you ſhould not be too quick and ſhort-breathed in waiting upon God for the returns of Prayer, conſidering how long you made Chriſt wait upon you.

(2.) You will have occaſion to exerciſe your Patience in bearing the burden of reproaches, and ſufferings for Chriſt; For to you it is given in the behalf of Chriſt, not only to believe, but alſo to ſuffer for his ſake, Phil. 1. 29. Sufferings you ſee are the Gifts of Chriſt, the comfort of ſuffering is his Gift, and ſo are the abilities to ſuffer alſo; and that which will increaſe your ſuffering ability, will be the conſideration of Chriſt's long-ſuffering towards you, and the hard things he endured for you and from you.

(3.) You will have occaſion to exerciſe your Patience for the day of your compleat Redemption and Salvation. If you love Chriſt fervently, the time of your ſeparation from him will be born difficultly; vehement love needs the allay of Patience, 2 Theſ. 3. 5. The Lord direct your Hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Chriſt. Others need much Patience to die, but ſuch will need as much Patience to live; but whatever the exerciſes of your Patience ſhall be, whether in waiting for the returns of your Prayers, in bearing the croſs and ſufferings of Chriſt, or in waiting for the day of your compleat Redemption and enjoyment of Chriſt: This ſingle conſideration, that Chriſt ſtood and waited ſo long upon you, is enough to fortifie your Patience againſt all the difficulties it ſhall encounter.

Inference 7. Laſtly, If Chriſt thus patiently wait upon trifling and obſtinate ſinners; then let no godly perſon be diſcouraged becauſe their unregenerate Relations have not yet made their firſt ſtep towards Chriſt in the way of Repentance and ſaving Faith.

It may be you have laid up a great ſtock of Prayers for them, the believing Husband hath prayed for his unbelieving Wife, and the believing Wife for her unbelieving Husband; godly Parents for their ungodly Children, and the gracious Child for his ungodly Parents; and yet no returns of Prayer appear. Many cries are gone up to Heaven like that of Abraham, Gen. 17. 18. O that Iſhmael might live before thee. Well, be not diſcouraged, Chriſt is contented to wait, and therefore well may you. Thoſe cries of Parents, Lord, my poor Child is in the ſtate of Nature, look in mercy upon him, open his Eyes, break his Heart for ſin, draw his Will to Chriſt; theſe cries may not be loſt, tho the fruit of them yet appear not: conſider how long Chriſt waited upon you. There be three things that encourage hope: (1.) That your Hearts and theirs were of the ſame natural complexion and temper; and the ſame Power which opened your Hearts can open theirs; thy Underſtanding was once as dark, thy Heart as hard, and thy Will as inflexible as thy carnal Relations now are. The ſame Hand that opened thy Heart, can open theirs. Don't think Chriſt had an eaſier task to win thy Heart, than he will have to win theirs. Almighty Power wrought upon you, and the ſame Power can work effectually upon them; the Lord's Hand is not ſhortned. (2.) You have reaſon to wait, for as much as it is probable you your ſelves have put ſtumbling-blocks in the way of their Souls to Chriſt, and hindred the returns of your own Prayers for the converſion of your carnal Relatives. O Chriſtians, there is more due to them than your Prayers, Prayers muſt be backt with Examples; had they not only heard your cries to God for them, but ſeen your ſutable encouraging Pattern ſet before them alſo, you and yours might have rejoiced together long ago. But (3.) conſider that God many times makes the fruit of ſuch Prayers to ſpring up after thoſe that ſowed them are dead and gone. The Lord may give life to your Prayers when you are dead: Certainly your Prayers die not with you. 'Tis the opinion of ſome that Paul's converſion was the return of Stephen's Prayer, Lord lay not this ſin to their charge. Stephen died, but his Prayers lived, and were anſwered upon one that ſtood by and conſented to his death. But however it be, wait on; if your Prayers come not into their boſoms, they will certainly return into your own. Here's duty diſcharged, love to Chriſt and their Souls manifeſted; which will be your comfort however God diſpoſes the event.

II. Uſe.

Secondly, The Doctrine of Chriſt's Patience puts a great and ſerious Exhortation into my Mouth this day, to preſs one of the greateſt Duties upon you that ever I preſſed in the whole courſe of my Miniſtry among you: And could I deliver this Exhortation to you upon my Knees, with Tears of Blood mingled with my words, might that prevail, I would ſurely do it. My Exhortation is to all that are in an unregenerate ſtate, that they preſume not to try the Patience of Chriſt any longer. If you have any regard to your eternal Happineſs, exerciſe not his Patience beyond this hour. O that this hour might put an end to Chriſt's waiting, and your danger! Hitherto you have wearied Men, but will you weary God alſo? Chriſt hath called, but you have refuſed; he hath ſtretched out his Hands, but you have not regarded. Your thoughts have been wandering after vanity, whilſt the voice of the Goſpel hath been ſounded in your Ears; ſome of you have been ſottiſh and uncapable to apprehend ſpiritual Truths; others of you ſenſual, given up to the pleaſures of the World, and abandoning all ſerious thoughts about the World to come. Some of you have been buried alive in the cares of the World, and others ſettled upon a dead formality in Religion; and to this day Chriſt hath called upon you in vain. Now that which I exhort you to, is that you venture not to try the Patience of Chriſt one day longer: if you have any regard to the everlaſting happineſs of your Souls, come not under the guilt and danger of one denial or delay more. If you aſk me why? Why may we not venture a little longer? Chriſt hath born all this while, and will he not bear a little longer? May we not take a little more pleaſure in ſin? May we not hazard one Sermon, or Sabbath more, and yet not periſh? I anſwer, No. If your Souls be precious in your eyes, let there be no more denials nor delays to Chriſt's Suit. For,

1. How patient and long-ſuffering ſoever Chriſt hath been, yet there will be an end of the day of his Patience; a time when he will wait no longer, when his Spirit ſhall ſtrive no more with you. There is a knock of Chriſt at the Heart, which will be the laſt knock that ever he will give; and after that no more knocks: A time when the Maſter of the houſe will riſe up, and the door be ſhut. You have had to do with a meek and patient Chriſt hitherto; but believe it ſinners, there is a day called the day of the wrath of the Lamb, and that day is dreadful, Rev. 6. 16. where you find ſinners crying to the Rocks and Mountains to fall upon them, and hide them from the wrath of the Lamb. O if his wrath be once kindled, tho but a little; bleſſed are they that truſt in him, that have finiſhed their agreement with him. The day of Chriſt's Patience towards Jeruſalem was a long day, but it had an end, Mat. 23. 37. and it ended in their deſolation: therefore try the Patience of Chriſt no further; you know not the limits of it, it may end with your next refuſal, and then where are you? 2. The longer Chriſt hath exerciſed his Patience already towards you, the more terribly will he avenge the abuſe of it in Hell upon you. 'Tis paſt doubt with me that there are different degrees of Torment in Hell; the Scriptures are plainly and clearly for it. Now among all the aggravations of the Torments of Hell, none can be greater than the reflections of damned Souls upon the abuſed Patience and Grace of Chriſt. Thoſe that had the beſt means, the loudeſt calls, and the longeſt day under the Goſpel, will certainly have the hotteſt place in Hell, if the goodneſs and long-ſuffering of Chriſt do not now lead them to Repentance; the cries of ſuch Souls will be heard above the cries of all the other miſerable wretches that are caſt away. 'Twill be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah, than for Capernaum, Mat. 11. 23. O Friends, you little know the ſmart reflections of Conſcience in Hell, upon ſuch hours as you now enjoy; ſuch wooing, charming voices and allurements to Chriſt as you now hear. There are many thouſands of Souls in Hell, that came thither out of the dark heatheniſh parts of the World, where they never heard of Chriſt; but your miſery will be far beyond theirs, your reflection more ſharp and bitter: Therefore delay no longer, leſt you periſh with peculiar aggravations of miſery. 3. Try the Patience of Chriſt no further, I beſeech you, for as much as you ſee every day the Patience of Chriſt ending towards others: Patience coming down, and Juſtice aſcending the Stage, to triumph over the abuſers of Mercy. You don't only read in Scripture the finiſhing and ending of God's Patience with Men, but you may ſee it every day with your own Eyes. If you look into Scripture, you may find the Patience of God ended towards multitudes of Sinners, who poſſibly had the ſame preſumptions, and vain hopes for the continuance of it that you now have: If you look into 1 Pet. 3. 19, 20. you ſhall there find that Chriſt went and preached to the Spirits in Priſon, which ſometimes were diſobedient, when once the long-ſuffering of God waited in the days of Noah. The meaning of it is this, that in the days before the Flood, Chriſt by his Spirit ſtrove with diſobedient and rebellious ſinners, in the Miniſtry of Noah, who then were living Men and Women as now we are, but now are Spirits in priſon, i. e. damned Souls in Hell, for their diſobedience: And truly, Brethren, you may frequently behold the glaſs of Patience run down, the very laſt ſand in it ſpent upon others. Whenever you ſee a wicked Chriſtleſs Man or Woman die, you ſee the end of God's Patience with that Man or Woman; and all this for a warning to you, that you adventure not to trifle and dally with it as they did. 4. Laſtly, Do not try God's Patience any longer (if you love your Souls) for this Reaſon, becauſe when Men grow bold, and incourage themſelves in ſin, upon the account of God's forbearance and long-ſuffering towards them, there cannot be a more certain ſign that his Patience is very near its end towards that Soul. 'Tis time for God to put an end to his Patience when it is made an encouragement to ſin. God cannot ſuffer ſo vile an abuſe of his glorious Patience, nor endure to ſee it turned into wantonneſs: This quickly brings up ſin to its finiſhing act and perfection, and then Patience is juſt upon finiſhing alſo. That Patience is thus abuſed, appears from Eccleſ. 8. 11. and when it is ſo abuſed, look for a ſudden change. O therefore beware of provoking God, for now the day of Patience is certainly near its end with ſuch ſinners, Prov. 1. 24, 25, 26. Becauſe I have called and ye refuſed, I have ſtretched out my Hand and no Man regarded; but ye have ſet at nought all my counſel, and would none of my reproof: I alſo will laugh at your calamity, and mock when your fear cometh; when your fear cometh as deſolation, and your deſtruction cometh as a whirlwind. Ah, when ſinners ſcoff and mock at the threatnings of God, and bear themſelves up upon his Patience, as that which will never crack under them; then look out for a Whirlwind, a ſudden Tempeſt of wrath which will hurry ſuch Souls into Hell. Then miſery comes like a ſtorm blowing furiouſly from all Quarters. Well, the Heavens are yet clear over you, but a ſtorm is nigh, and may certainly be preſaged from ſuch vile abuſes of the glorious Patience of Chriſt towards you. That's the firſt Exhortation, try not the Patience of Chriſt by any further delays.

Exhort. 2. Admire Chriſt's patience and forbearance of you until now, that he hath not cut you off in your ſin, but lengthned out his Patience unto this day, and brought about your Salvation by his long-ſuffering towards you. Here now I muſt change my voice, and turn it unto thoſe whoſe Hearts the Lord hath opened: Stand amazed at the riches of his Grace towards you, and ſee that you account this long-ſuffering of God to be your Salvation; for in plain truth it is ſo: your Salvation was bound up in Chriſt's forbearance; if Chriſt had not born as he did, you had not been where you are. I could heartily wiſh that all the time you can redeem from the neceſſary employments you have in the World, may now be ſpent in an humble thankful admiration of this admirable Grace and Patience of Chriſt, and anſwerable duties to the intentions and ends thereof. To this end I ſhall ſubjoin divers weighty Conſiderations, which methinks ſhould melt every Heart wherein the leaſt dram of ſaving Grace is found.

Conſid. 1. Bethink your ſelves of the great and manifold provocations you have given the Lord to put an end to all further Patience towards you; not only in the days of your vanity and unregeneracy, but even ſince your reconciliation to him. Do you not believe thouſands of Sinners are now in the depths of Hell, who never provoked the Lord at a higher rate than you have done? Were you not herded once among the vileſt of Sinners? 1 Cor. 6. 11. And ſuch were ſome of you; as vile as the vileſt among them: yet you are waſhed in the Blood of Chriſt, and your companions roaring in the loweſt Hell; or if your lives were more clean, ſure your Hearts and Natures were as filthy as theirs. And certainly your ſins ſince the time of reconciliation have had ſpecial aggravations in them, enough to put an end to all further mercies towards you. Light and Love have aggravated theſe ſins, and yet the Lord will not caſt you off.

Conſid. 2. How often have you been upon the very brink of Hell, in the days of your unregeneracy? Every ſickneſs, and every danger of life which you eſcaped in thoſe days, was a mavelous eſcape from the everlaſting wrath of God. Had thy diſeaſe prevailed one degree further, thou hadſt been paſt hope, and out of the reach of mercy's Arm now. Doubtleſs ſome of you can remember when in ſuch and ſuch a diſeaſe, you were like a Ship riding in a furious ſtorm by one Cable, and two or three of the ſtrands of that Cable were ſnapt aſunder. So it hath been with you, the thred of life, how weak ſoever, hath held till the bonds of union betwixt Chriſt and your Souls are faſtned, and the eternal hazard over. This is admirable Grace.

Conſid. 3. How often has Death come up into your Windows, entred into your Houſes, fetcht off your neareſt Relations; but had no commiſſion to carry you out with them, becauſe the Lord had a deſign of mercy upon your Souls?

This cannot but affect a gracious Heart, that God ſhould ſmite ſo near, and yet ſpare you.

Conſid. 4. Laſtly, This is affecting, yea very tranſporting, that God hath not only given you time beyond others, but in that time the precious opportunities and means of your Salvation, both external and internal; there's the very marrow and kernel of the mercy: had God lengthned out his patience for a while, but given you no means of Salvation; or afforded you the means, but denied you the bleſſing and efficacy of them; at the moſt it could have been but a reprieve from Hell: but for the Lord to give you the Goſpel, and with the Goſpel to ſend down his Spirit, to perſuade and open thy Heart to Chriſt; here is the riches of his goodneſs as well as forbearance.

Exhort. 3. This Doctrine of the Patience of Chriſt exhorts all that have felt it, to exerciſe a Chriſt-like Patience towards others; as you have found the benefit of Divine Patience your ſelves, ſee that you exerciſe the meekneſs and long-ſuffering of Chriſtians towards thoſe that have wronged and injured you. Who ſhould ſhew Patience more than thoſe that have found it? Don't be ſevere, ſhort and quick with others, who have lived your ſelves ſo many years upon the long-ſuffering of God. We are poor ſhort-ſpirited Creatures, quick to revenge injuries; but O had God been ſo to us, miſerable had our condition been. Chriſt hath made this duty the very ſcope of that excellent Parable, Mat. 18. from ver. 25. onward, where the King takes an account of his Servants, reckoning with them one by one, and amongſt them finds one which owed him ten thouſand Talents, and having not to pay, commands him, his Wife and Children, and all he had to be ſold, and payment to be made; but the Servant falling down, and begging patience, his Lord was moved with compaſſion, and looſed him, and not only forbore, but forgave the debt: one would think the Heart of this man ſhould have been a fountain of compaſſion towards others; but ſee the deep corruption of Nature, the ſame Servant finding one of his fellow-Servants which owed him but a hundred pence, laid hands on him, and took him by the throat. Alas, the wrongs done to us are but trifles, compared with our injuries done to God; where others have wronged you once, you have wronged God a thouſand times. Methinks the patience of Chriſt towards you ſhould melt your Hearts into an ingenuous eaſineſs to forgive others; eſpecially conſidering that an unforgiving Spirit is a dreadful ſign of an unforgiven Perſon.

Exhort. 4. Burden not the patience of Chriſt after your admiſſion of him, and reconciliation to him; let it ſuffice that you tried his Patience long enough before, give him no new exerciſes now he is come to dwell in and with you for ever. There be two ways wherein God's own People do greatly provoke him after their reconciliation.

1. By ſluggiſhneſs in Duty.
2. By ſinning againſt Light.

1. By ſluggiſhneſs and deadneſs of Spirit in the ways of Duty and Obedience; turning a deaf ear to the calls and motions of Chriſt's Spirit exciting them to the ſweet and pleaſant Duties of Religion. We have a ſad inſtance of this in the Spouſe, Cant. 5. 2, 3. It is the voice of my beloved that knocketh, ſaying, Open to me my Siſter, my Love, my Dove, my Undefiled; for my Head is filled with dew, and my Locks with the drops of the night. One would think that Chriſt might have opened the Heart of his own Spouſe with leſs ſolicitation, and importunate Arguments than he here uſeth; what Wife could ſhut the door upon her own dear Huſband, and bar him out of his own houſe? And yet ſee the lazy excuſe ſhe makes, ver. 3. I have put off my coat, how ſhall I put it on? I have waſhed my Feet, how ſhall I defile them?

O the ſluggiſhneſs of Fleſh, even in regenerate Perſons! Thoſe that have opened the door to Chriſt by Regeneration, even they do often ſhut the door againſt Chriſt in the hours and ſeaſons of Communion with him. Strange, that ſuch a Suitor as Chriſt ſhould be put by, moving and calling to ſuch heavenly pleaſant exerciſes as Communion with him is; but fleſh will be fleſh even in the moſt ſpiritual Chriſtians: little do we know what a grief this is to Chriſt, and loſs to us.

2. Many grieve Chriſt's Spirit, and ſorely try his Patience, even after reconciliation, by ſinning againſt Light and Love: that caution, Epheſ. 4. 30. is not without weighty cauſe, And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, by which you are ſealed to the day of Redemption.

Do we thus requite the Lord? is this the return we make him for all his admirable kindneſs and unparallel'd Love towards us? Certainly Chriſt can put up a thouſand injuries from his Enemies, eaſier than ſuch affronts from his own People. Did you not promiſe him better obedience? Did you not engage to more holineſs and watchfulneſs, in the day that you ſued out your pardon, and made up your Peace with him? Are all thoſe Vows and Covenants forgotten? If you have forgotten them, God hath not.

Exhort. 5. Improve the time that remains in this World with double diligence, becauſe you made Chriſt wait ſo long, and caſt away ſo great a part of your life, before you opened your Hearts to receive him. The morning of your life, which was certain the freſheſt and freeſt part of it, was no better than time loſt with many of us; all the days of your unregeneracy Chriſt was ſhut out, and vanity ſhut into your Hearts: You never began to live till Chriſt gave you life, and that was late in the day with many of you. How ſhould this provoke to extraordinary diligence in thoſe few remains of time we have yet to enjoy? It was Auſtin's lamentation, O Lord, it repents me, ſaith he, that I loved thee ſo late. This conſideration excited Paul to extraordinary diligence for Chriſt. It made him fly up and down the World, as a Seraphim, in a flame of holy zeal for Chriſt. Thoſe that have much to write, and are almoſt come to the end of their Paper, had need write cloſe. Friends, you have ſomething to do for God on Earth, which you cannot do for him in Heaven, Iſa. 38.18,19. You that have carnal Relations, have ſomething to do for them here, which you cannot do in Heaven. You can now counſel, exhort and pray, in order to their Converſion and Salvation; but when you are gone down to the Grave, theſe opportunities of ſervice are cut off.

Exhort. 6. Let us all be aſhamed and humbled for the baſeneſs of our Hearts and Natures, which made Chriſt wait at the door ſo long, before we opened to him. O what wretched Hearts have we! that were no more affected with the groans of Chriſt's Heart, than with the groans of a Beaſt, nor ſo much neither, if that Beaſt were our own. O the vileneſs of Nature, to make the Prince of the Kings of the Earth, bringing Pardon and Salvation with him, to ſtand ſo long unanſwered! let who will cry up the goodneſs of Nature, I am ſure we have reaſon to look upon the vileneſs of it with amazement and horror. You could not have found in your hearts to make the pooreſt beggar wait ſo long at your door, as you have made Chriſt wait upon you.

Exhort. 7. Laſtly, Let us all bleſs and admire the Lord Jeſus for the continuation of his Patience, not to our ſelves only, but to that whole ſinful Nation in which we live. We thought the Treaty of Peace had been ended with us; many good Men looking upon the iniquities and abominations of theſe times, conſidering the vanities and backſliding of Profeſſors, the Heaven-daring provocations of this Atheiſtical Age, concluded in their own hearts, that God would make England another Shiloh. Many faithful Miniſters of Chriſt ſaid within themſelves, God hath no more work for us to do, and we ſhall have no more opportunities to work for God: When lo, beyond the thoughts of all hearts, the merciful and long-ſuffering Redeemer makes one return more to theſe Nations, renews the Treaty, and with compaſſions rolled together, ſpeaks to us this day, as to Ephraim of old, How ſhall I deliver thee? Look upon this day, this unexpected day of mercy, as the fruit and acquiſition of the interceſſion of your great Advocate in Heaven, anſwerable to that, Luke 13. 7, 8, 9. Well, God hath put us upon one Trial more: if now we bring forth fruit, well; if not, the ax lies at the root of the Tree. Once more Chriſt knocks at our doors, the voice of the Bridegroom is heard; thoſe ſweet voices, Come unto me, Open to me: your opening to Chriſt now, will be unto you as the Valley of Achor, for a door of hope. But what if all this ſhould be turned into wantonneſs and formality? what if your obſtinacy and infidelity ſhould wear out the remains of that little ſtrength and time left you, and that former labours and ſorrows have left your Miniſters? Then actum eſt de nobis, we are gone for ever; then farewel Goſpel, Miniſters, Reformation, and all, becauſe we knew not the time of our Viſitation. What was the diſmal doom of God upon the fruitleſs Vineyard? Iſa. 5. 5. I will take away the hedg thereof, and it ſhall be eaten up; and break down the wall thereof, and it ſhall be trodden down: I will alſo command the Clouds, that they rain not upon it. The Hedg and the Wall are the ſpiritual and providential preſence of God; theſe are the defence and ſafety of his People; the Clouds, and the Rain are the ſweet influences of Goſpel-Ordinances. If the Hedg be broken down, God's pleaſant Plants will ſoon be eaten up; and if the Clouds rain not upon them, their Root will be rottenneſs, and their Bloſſom go up as duſt; our Churches will ſoon become as the Mountains of Gilboa: ſee therefore you know and improve the time of your Viſitation.

III. Uſe of Conſolation.

I ſhall wind up this fourth Doctrine, in two or three words of Conſolation, to thoſe that have anſwered, and are now preparing to anſwer the deſign and end of Chriſt Jeſus in all his patience towards them, by their compliance with his great deſign and end therein. O bleſſed be God, and let his high praiſes be for ever in our Mouths, that at laſt Chriſt is like to obtain his end upon ſome of us, and that all do not receive the Grace of God in vain. And there be three Conſiderations able to wind up your Hearts to the height of Praiſe, if the Lord hath now made them indeed willing to open to the Lord Jeſus.

Conſid. 1. The Faith and Obedience of your Hearts makes it evident, that the Lord's waiting upon you hitherto hath been in purſuance of his deſign of electing Love. What was the reaſon God would not take you away by death, tho you paſſed ſo often upon the very brink of it, in the days of your unregeneracy? And what, think you, was the very reaſon of the revocation of your Goſpel-liberties when they were quite out of ſight, and almoſt out of hope? why ſurely this was the reaſon, that you, and ſuch as you are, might be brought to Chriſt at laſt. Therefore tho the Lord let you run on ſo long in ſin, yet ſtill he continued your Life, and the means of your Salvation, becauſe he had a deſign of Mercy and Grace upon you. And now the time of Mercy, even the ſet time is come, Praiſe ye the Lord.

Conſid. 2. You now alſo ſee the Soveraignty and Freeneſs of Divine Grace in your vocation: your Hearts reſiſted all along the moſt powerful means, and importunate calls of Chriſt; and would have reſiſted ſtill, had not Free and Soveraign Grace over-powered them when the time of Love was come. Ah, it was not the tractableneſs of thine own Will, the eaſy temper of thy Heart to be wrought upon; the Lord let thee ſtand long enough in the ſtate of Nature to diſcover that; there was nothing in Nature but obſtinacy and enmity. Thou didſt hear as many powerful Sermons, melting Prayers, and didſt ſee as many awakening Providences before thy Heart was opened to Chriſt, as thou haſt ſince: yet thy Heart never opened till now; and why did it open now? Becauſe now the Spirit of God joined himſelf to the Word; victorious Grace went forth in the Word to break the hardneſs, and conquer the rebellions of thy Heart. The Goſpel was now preached (as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 1 Pet. 1. 12.) with the Holy Ghoſt ſent down from Heaven, which things (ſaith he) the Angels deſire to look into. Ah Friends, it is a glorious ſight, worthy of Angelical obſervation and admiration, to behold the effects of the Goſpel preach'd, with the Holy Ghoſt ſent down from Heaven; to ſee when the Spirit comes along with the Word, the blind Eyes of ſinners opened, and they brought into a new World of raviſhing objects; to behold Fountains of Tears flowing for ſin, out of Hearts lately as hard as the Rocks; to ſee all the Bars of Ignorance, Prejudice, Cuſtom and Unbelief, fly open at the voice of the Goſpel; to ſee Rebels againſt Chriſt laying down their Arms at his Feet, come upon the Knee of ſubmiſſion, crying, Lord I will rebel no more; to ſee the proud Heart, centered and wrapt up in its own righteouſneſs, now ſtripping it ſelf naked, loading it ſelf with all ſhame and reproach, and made willing that its own ſhame ſhould go to the Redeemer's Glory. Theſe, I ſay, are ſights which Angels deſire to look into.

Certainly your Hearts were more tender, and your Wills more apt to yield and bend in the days of your youth, than they were now when ſin had ſo hardened them, and long continued cuſtom riveted and fixed them; yet then they did not, and now they do yield to the calls and invitations of the Goſpel. Aſcribe all to ſoveraign Grace, and ſay, Not unto us, not unto us, but to thy Name give the glory. The obſervation and experience of our own Hearts will furniſh us with Arguments enough to reſiſt all temptations of ſelf-glorying and conceit.

Certainly you were born not of Fleſh, nor of Blood, nor of the will of Man, but of God.

Conſid. 3. Laſtly, This is a comfortable Conſideration, that he that waited upon you ſo long, and won your Hearts at laſt, will not forſake you now, that hath gained you at the expence of ſo much pains and patience. Poor Souls, I queſtion not but there are many fears and jealouſies within you, that all will come to nothing, and you ſhall periſh at laſt. Divers things foment theſe jealouſies within your hearts: the weakneſs of your own Graces, which alas, are but in their infancy; the ſenſe you have of your own corruptions, and the great ſtrength they ſtill retain: the ſubtilty of Satan, who imploys all his policies to reduce you; ſometimes roaring after his eſcaped prey with hideous injections, which make your Souls to tremble; ſometimes the diſcouraging apprehenſions of the difficulties of Religion, how far the ſpirituality of active obedience, and the difficulty of paſſive obedience is above your ſtrength; ſometimes feeling within your ſelves ſad alterations, by the hiding of God's face, and withdrawment of ſweet and ſenſible Communion with him. Theſe, and ſuch like things as theſe, cauſe many a qualm to come over your Hearts; but chear up, Chriſt will not loſe at laſt what he purſued ſo long; he that waited ſo many years for thy Soul, will never caſt it away now he hath ſeated himſelf in the poſſeſſion of it.

SERMON V.

Revel. III. 20.

Behold I ſtand at the door, [and knock] &c.

IN the former Point we have ſeen the Redeemer's poſture, a poſture of condeſcending humility, rather the poſture of a Servant than the Lord of all; Behold I ſtand at the door. We now come to conſider his action, or motion for entrance, I ſtand and knock: this metaphorical action of knocking, ſignifies nothing elſe but the motions made by Chriſt for entrance into the Souls of Sinners; and affords us this fifth Obſervation, Doct. 5. That every conviction of Conſcience and motion upon the Affections of Sinners, is a knock of Chriſt from Heaven for entrance into their Souls.

This action of knocking is aſcribed ſometimes to the Soul, and is expreſſive of its deſires to come into the gracious Preſence and Communion of God; ſo Mat. 7. 7. To him that knocks it ſhall be opened, i. e. to him that ſeeks by importunate Prayer, Fellowſhip and Communion with the Lord: but here it is applied to Chriſt, and is expreſſive of his importunate deſire to come into union and communion with the Souls of ſinners. Here I ſhall open to you the following particulars:

1. What are the doors of the Soul at which Chriſt knocks.
2. What his knocking at theſe doors implies.

3. By what Inſtruments he knocks at them.

4. In what manner he performs this action.

Firſt, What are the Doors of the Soul at which Chriſt knocks. You all know that the term Chriſt here uſed cannot be proper, but metaphorical; 'tis a figurative ſpech, the Door is that part which is introductive into the Houſe; and whatever is introductive into the Soul, that is the door of the Soul. Now in the Soul of Man there are many powers and faculties that have this uſe, and are of an introductive nature to let things into the Soul of Man. Some are more outward, as we may ſpeak comparatively; and ſome more inward, as the doors of our houſes are.

Chriſt knocks orderly at them all, one after another, for the operations of the Spirit diſturb not the order of Nature.

1. The firſt door that opens and lets into the Soul is the Underſtanding; nothing paſſes into the Soul, but it muſt firſt come through this door of the Underſtanding; nothing can touch the Heart or move the affections, but what hath firſt toucht the Underſtanding. Hence we read ſo often in Scripture of the opening of the Underſtanding, that being as it were the foredoor of the Soul.

2. Within this is the Royal Gate of the Soul, viz. The Will of Man, that noble and imperial Power. Many things may paſs into the Mind or Underſtanding of a Man, and yet be able to get no further, the door of the Will may be ſhut againſt them. There were many precious Truths of God let into the Underſtandings of the Heathens by the light of Nature, but could never get further, their Hearts and Wills were lockt and ſhut up againſt them; as you may ſee, Rom. 1. 18. They held the Truths of God in Unrighteouſneſs; that is, they bound and impriſoned thoſe common notices the Law of Nature impreſt upon their Minds concerning the Being and Nature of God, and the duties of both Tables. Theſe Truths could get no further into their Souls: and, which is of ſad and dreadful conſideration, Chriſt himſelf ſtands betwixt theſe two doors in the Souls of many perſons; he is got into their Underſtandings and Conſciences, they are convinced of the poſſibility and neceſſity of obtaining Jeſus Chriſt, but ſtill the door of their Will is barr'd againſt him, which drew from him that ſad complaint, John 5. 40. You will not come unto me that you might have life. When this door of the Will is once effectually opened, then all the inner doors of the Affections are quickly ſet open to receive and welcom him. Deſires, Joy, Delight, and all the reſt ſtand open to him. Theſe are the doors at which the Redeemer knocks.

Secondly, Next we muſt conſider what is meant by Chriſt's knocking at theſe doors, and what that action implies. In the general, knocking is nothing elſe but an action ſignificative of the deſires of one that is without to come in, 'tis a ſign appointed to that end: And what is Chriſt's knocking but a ſignification to the Soul of his earneſt deſires to come into it; a notice given to the Soul of Chriſt's willingneſs to poſſeſs it for his own habitation? And it is as much as if Chriſt ſhould ſay, Soul, thou art the Houſe that was built by my Hand, purchaſed and redeemed by my Blood; I have an unqueſtionable right to it, and now demand entrance. More particularly, there are divers great things implied in this gracious act of Chriſt's knocking at the door of the Soul.

1. It implies the ſpecial favour and diſtinguiſhing grace and goodneſs of Jeſus Chriſt, that he will ſtand and knock at our doors, when he paſſes by ſo great a part of the World, never giving one ſuch knock or call at other Mens doors; it is certainly a moſt glorious and admirable condeſcenſion and favour of Heaven, and wherever it is ſucceſsful, it ſpeaks a Man highly favoured of God. O that when Chriſt paſſes by the Souls of Thouſands, and Millions, that would certainly afford him as comfortable an habitation as our Souls can do, and will not give one effectual knock, or call at their doors all the days of their life; that he will pleaſe to turn aſide to thy Soul, and wait, and knock there for entrance: I ſay, here is one of the greateſt acts of favour that can be ſhewn to the Soul of a ſinner. How many Souls be there in the World equal in natural Dignity to yours, and of ſweeter natural Tempers, whom yet the Lord Jeſus lets alone in the quiet poſſeſſion of Satan, Luke 11. 21. There is a deep ſilence and ſtilneſs in their Conſciences, no ſtirrings nor diſturbances by Convictions, but through a dreadful Judgment of God they are left in a deep ſleep; and if their Conſciences at any time begin to grumble, how ſoon are they huſht and quieted again by Satan? What the condition of the World was in former Ages we may ſee in Acts 14. 16. Who in times paſt ſuffered all Nations to walk in their own ways. O 'tis the greateſt Mercy in the World for the ſleepy Conſcience of a ſinner to be rouſed by Convictions, becauſe it is introductive to all other Spiritual Mercies. I confeſs this act of Grace is little apprehended by the Sons and Daughters of Men; much rather would poor ſinners be let alone than be thus diſturbed by troubleſom convictions; and when Chriſt diſturbs their reſt, how do they ſtartle at the knocks of his Word and Spirit? How angry be they that they cannot be let alone to enjoy their quiet ſleep in ſin till the flames of Hell awaken them? Mr. Fenner, that great and eminent Inſtrument of God in this Work, tells us in one of his Sermons, how it fared with a certain Man that came to hear him preach: It ſeems the Word had got entrance into his Conſcience, and gave it a terrible Alarm, and as he was going home, ſome that followed him, heard him thus blaming and bemoaning himſelf; O what a fool, what a beaſt was I to come under this Sermon to day? I ſhall never have peace and quietneſs any more. And what is the reaſon that ſmooth and general Preaching is ſo much applauded and affected in the World, and cloſe convincing Doctrine ſo much ſhunned and hated, but this, that ſinners are very loth to be diſquieted and have their Conſciences throughly awakened? Well, whatever your apprehenſions be, certainly it is an unſpeakable mercy for Chriſt to knock and diſquiet the Souls of ſinners by his calls. That's the firſt thing.

2. The next thing implied in this action of Chriſt is this, That the firſt motions towards the recovery and ſalvation of ſinners begin not in themſelves, but in Chriſt. We never knock at Heavens door by Prayer till Chriſt hath firſt knockt at our doors by his Spirit: Did not Chriſt move firſt, there would be no motions after him in our Hearts; we move towards him, becauſe he hath firſt moved upon our Souls. Chriſt might ſit long enough unſought and undeſired, did he not make the firſt motion. All our motions are ſecondary and conſequential motions, Iſa. 65. 1. I am found of them that ſought me not. As we love him becauſe he firſt loved us, ſo we ſeek after him becauſe he firſt ſought us. Alas, poor ſinners are as well ſatisfied as any People in the World can be, to lie faſt aſleep in the Devil's Arms. When the Spirit of God goes forth with the Word of Conviction, he finds the Souls of Men in the very ſame poſture which the Angels, that had ſurveyed the World, reported the whole Earth to be in, Zach. 1. 11. Behold all the Earth ſitteth ſtill, and is at reſt. Every man ſettled and ſatisfied in his own way; what a ſtrange ſtillneſs, and midnight ſilence is there amongſt ſinners? Not a ſigh, not a cry to be heard for ſin: So the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 14. 2. repreſents the caſe of ſinners; The Lord looked down from Heaven upon the Children of Men, to ſee if there were any that did underſtand and ſeek God. They are all gone aſide, &c. There is one thing that is admirably ſtrange in this caſe, that even thoſe Men and Women whoſe Rattles of earthly pleaſures and delights, which brought them into this ſleep and ſecurity, are taken away from them by the hand of Providence, I mean their Eſtates, Health, Children, &c. yet they awake not; there are no ſtirrings after God. O what a dead ſleep hath Sin caſt the Souls of ſinners into! You have a notable Scripture to this purpoſe, in Job 35. 9, 10. they are the words of Elihu concerning Men and Women under grievous oppreſſion, Perſons ſqueezed and ground by the cruel Hands of wicked Men: by reaſon of the multitude of oppreſſions they make the oppreſſed to cry; they cry out by reaſon of the Arm of the Mighty: but none ſaith, Where is God my Maker, who giveth ſongs in the night? i. e. Succour, Comfort and Refreſhment to the afflicted.

Here are Men turned out of their Eſtates, thrown into Priſons, caſt upon all extremities and miſeries; and what do theſe poor Creatures do? Why, ſaith he, they cry by reaſon of their oppreſſion: O my Father, or my Mother, my Wife, my Child, my Eſtate, my Liberty; but none ſaith, where is my God? O my ſin, or my miſery by reaſon of ſin! Where is he that giveth Songs in the night? The People of God when they lye muſing upon their beds under affliction, they have their Songs in the Night; in the midſt of the multitude of their troubled thoughts within them, the Comforts of God delight their Souls. Thoſe are their Songs in the Night, but no ſuch word or thought in carnal Men. How plain is it, that all the firſt motions of Salvation have their firſt ſpring and riſe in God, and not in us? That's the ſecond thing implied in Chriſt's knocking.

3. Chriſt's knocking at the door of the Heart, implies the method of the Spirit in Converſion, to be congruous and agreeable to the nature of Man's Soul. Mark Chriſt's expreſſion in the Text, he doth not ſay, Behold I come to the door and break it open by violence; no, Chriſt makes no forcible entries whether Sinners will or no; he will come in by conſent of the Will, or not at all. I ſtand and knock; if any man open the door, I will come in to him. There is a great difference between a friendly admiſſion by conſent, and a forcible entrance: in a forcible entrance bars of Iron are brought to break open the door; but in a friendly admiſſion one knocks, and the other opens. Forcible actions are unſutable to the nature of the Will, whoſe motions are free and ſpontaneous; therefore it is ſaid, Pſal. 110. 3. The People ſhall be willing in the day of thy power. 'Tis true, the power of God is upon the Will of Man in the day of his Converſion, or elſe it would never open to Chriſt; but yet that power of God doth not act againſt the freedom of man's Will, by co-action and force; no, but of unwilling he makes it willing; taking away the obſtinacy and reluctancy of the Will by the efficacy of his Grace, which ſome Divines call victrix delectatio, a ſweet and pleaſant victory; and ſo the door of the Will ſtill opens freely. Hoſea 11. 4. I drew them with the cords of a Man, with the bands of Love. I drew them, there's Almighty Power: but how did this Power draw them? With the cords of a Man, i. e. with rational Arguments, convincing the Judgment. Beaſts are driven and forced, but Men are drawn by Reaſon, and will not move without it if they act like themſelves. It muſt be confeſſed, that when the day of God's Power is come for the bringing home of a poor ſinner to Chriſt, he cannot reſiſt the power of God's Spirit that draws him effectually; Every one that hath heard and learned of the Father, cometh unto me: yet ſtill the Soul comes freely by the conſent of his Will; for this is the method of Chriſt in drawing Souls to him. There is in the day of a ſinner's Converſion a Kid, an Offer made for the Will both by Satan and Chriſt. Satan bids Riches, Honours, and Pleaſures, with eaſe and quietneſs to the Fleſh in the enjoyment of them; abide where thou art, ſaith Satan, remain with me, and thou ſhalt eſcape all the perſecutions, loſſes and troubles of the World, which Conſcience entangles other Men in; thou ſhalt draw thy life through peace and pleaſure to thy dying day. O ſaith the Fleſh, this is a good motion, what can be better for me? But then ſaith Chriſt, doſt thou not conſider that all theſe enjoyments will quickly be at an end, and what ſhall become of thee then? Behold, I offer thee the free, full, and final pardon of thy ſins; Peace and Reconciliation with God, Treaſures in Heaven, all theſe ſhall be thine, with Troubles, Reproaches and Perſecutions in this World. The Underſtanding and Conſcience of a ſinner being convinced of the vanity of earthly things, and the indiſpenſable neceſſity of pardon and peace with God: I ſay, when a convinced Judgment hath duly ballanced theſe things, and laid them before the Will, and the Spirit of God puts forth his Power in the renovation of it; it moves towards Chriſt freely, and yet cannot according to its natural order act otherwiſe than it doth. And doubtleſs this is the true meaning of that expreſſion, ſo often miſtaken and abuſed, in Luk. 14. 23. Compel them to come in. What! by forcing Men againſt the light of their Conſciences? No, no; to the ſhame of many Proteſtants let us hear the Gloſs of Stella a Popiſh Commentator upon the place. Chriſt (ſaith he) compels Men to come in, by ſhewing to their Will ſuch an excelling good as it cannot but embrace: For voluntas naturaliter fertur in bonum; the Will is naturally carried to the beſt good. And thus the Spirit works upon the Soul harmoniouſly and agreeably to its own Nature. That's the third thing implied in Chriſt's knocking.

4. Chriſt's knocking at the door of the Soul, manifeſtly implies the immediate acceſs of the Spirit of God unto the Soul of Man; that he can come to the very innermoſt door of the Soul at his pleaſure, and make what impreſſions upon it he pleaſeth. As for other inſtruments uſed in this Work, they have no ſuch privilege or power; Miniſters can but knock at the external door of the Senſes. Thine Eyes ſhall ſee thy Teachers, we can ſee their Perſons and hear their voices; we can reaſon with Sinners and plead with their Souls; but awaken them we cannot, open their Hearts we cannot. We can only lodg our meſſage in their Ears, and leave it to the Spirit of God to make it effectual. 'This is a Royalty belonging unto the Spirit of God, incommunicable to Angels or Men. If an Angel from Heaven were the Preacher, he could not give one immediate ſtroke to the Conſcience, much leſs can Man; we have no dominion over your Conſciences: The Keys of the doors of your Souls hang not at our girdles, but are in the Hands of Chriſt, Revel. 3. 7. He hath the key of David, he openeth and no Man ſhutteth; and he ſhutteth and no Man openeth. The Conſcience and all the Faculties lie naked and open to the ſtroke of God's Spirit; he can wound them and heal them, and make what impreſſions he pleaſeth upon them. Learn hence what need there is both for Miniſters and People, before they enter upon the ſolemn Ordinances of God, to lift up their Hearts by Prayer for the bleſſing and power of the Spirit upon them. Lord, ſend forth thy Spirit, pour it forth upon, and with thy Word. Ah, how many Sermons have we preach'd and you heard, and yet there is no opening? Theſe are the four things implied in Chriſt's knocking at the door, viz. Condeſcending Grace; All firſt motions begin in God; The motions of his Spirit are congruous and agreeable to the nature of the Soul; and that his Spirit can have immediate acceſs to the innermoſt faculties and powers of the Soul at his pleaſure. Now in the next place let us conſider, Thirdly, By what Inſtruments Chriſt knocks at the Doors, that is, the Judgment, Conſcience and Will of a ſinner. And theſe are two, viz.

1. His Word.
2. His Providence.

Here my Work will be to ſhew you how the Spirit of God makes uſe both of the Word and Works of God, to rouſe and open the Conſciences and Hearts of ſinners. Theſe are the two Hammers or Inſtruments of the Spirit by which he knocks at the door of the Heart.

1. The Word, written or preached, but eſpecially preached: to this Chriſt gives the preference above all other Inſtruments imployed about this Work; and anſwerably the Word is called God's hammer, Jer. 23. 29. Is not my Word like Fire, and as the Hammer which breaketh the rocks in pieces? By this Hammer Chriſt raps at the door of a ſinners Soul, to give warning that he is there. The Spirit of God can open the Heart immediately if he pleaſeth; but he will honour his word in this Work. And therefore, when Lydia's Heart was to be opened, Paul, the great Goſpel-Preacher, muſt be invited even by an Angel to come over to Macedonia, and aſſiſt in that bleſſed Work, Acts 16. 9. Lydia was to be converted, her Heart muſt be opened to Chriſt; the Angel could not do it, but calls for the help of the Apoſtle, God's appointed Inſtrument to carry on that Work. I have made thee (ſaith God to Paul) a Miniſter and a witneſs to open their Eyes, and turn them from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan to God, Acts 26. 18. Now there be three ways in which the Spirit uſes the Word as his Hammer in knocking at the door of the Soul.

(1.) He knocks by the particular convictions of the Word upon the Conſcience; this knock by conviction rings and ſounds through all the rooms and chambers of the Soul; particular and effectual Conviction wounds to the very centre of the Soul. Ah, when the Word ſhall come home by the Spirit's particular application, like that of Nathan's to David, Thou art the Man; then all the powers of the Soul are rouzed and alarmed; now it pierces as a two-edged Sword, Heb. 4. 12. divides the Soul and Spirit, the ſuperiour and inferiour faculties of it; cuts down by the back-bone, lays open the ſecret guilt, and innermoſt thoughts of a Man's Heart, before which the ſinner cannot ſtand. The ſecrets of his Heart are made manifeſt; and falling down on his Face, he muſt acknowledg that God is in the Word of a truth, 1 Cor. 14. 24. O theſe convictions of the Word are ſuch a rap, ſuch a knock at the door of the Conſcience, as will never be forgotten, no not in Heaven, to all Eternity.

(2.) Chriſt knocks in the Word by its terrible comminations and awful threatnings, menacing the Soul that opens not with eternal ruin; theſe are dreadful knocks: O ſinner, ſaith Chriſt, wilt thou not open? Shall all the tenders of my Grace made to thee be in vain? Know then that this thy obſtinacy ſhall be thy damnation. Thus the Word denounces ruin in the name of the great and terrible God to all wilful impenitents and obſtinate unbelievers, John 3. 36. He that believeth not the Son, ſhall not ſee life; but the wrath of God abideth on him. O dreadful ſound! like unto which is that, John 8. 24. If ye believe not that I am he, ye ſhall die in your ſins: q. d. Thy Mittimus for Hell ſhall be made and ſigned. Will you not come to me that you might have life? then I will foretel what death you ſhall die, you ſhall even die in your ſins. O it were better for thee to die like a Dog in a ditch, than to die in thy ſins. Theſe are loud knocks of the Word, terrible ſounds, yet no more than needs to ſtartle the drouſy Conſciences of ſinners. And then,

(3.) The Spirit knocks by the gracious invitations of the Word, the ſweet allurements and gracious inſinuations of it; and without this no Heart would ever open to Chriſt. It is not froſt and ſnow, ſtorms and thunder, but the gentle diſtilling dews, and cheriſhing Sun-beams, that make the flowers open in the Spring. The terrors of the Law may be preparative, but the grace of the Goſpel is that which effectually opens the ſinners Heart. The obdurate flint will ſooner fly when ſmitten upon the ſoft pillow, than upon the anvil. Now the Goſpel abounds with alluring invitations to draw the Will and open the Heart of a ſinner; ſuch is that, Mat. 11. 28. Come unto me all ye that labour, and are heavy laden; and I will give you reſt. O what a charming voice is here! He that conſiders it, may well wonder what Heart in the World can reſiſt it: like unto this is that in Iſa. 55. 1. Ho, every one that thirſteth, come ye to the waters; and he that hath no money let him come; yea, let him come and buy Wine and Milk without mony and without price. q. d. Come ſinner, come; tho thou have no qualifications, nor worthineſs, nor righteouſneſs of thy own; tho thou be but a heap of ſin and vileneſs, yet come; my Grace is a gift, not a ſale: and ſuch is that in John 7. 37. In the laſt day, the great day of the feaſt, Jeſus ſtood up and cried, If any Man thirſt, let him come to me and drink. q. d. My Grace is no ſealed Fountain, 'tis free and open to the greateſt of ſinners; if they thirſt, they are invited to come and drink. This is that Oil of Goſpel Grace which makes the Key turn ſo pleaſantly and effectually amongſt all the croſs wards of Man's Will. And thus you ſee how the Word preached becomes an Inſtrument in the Spirit's Hand, to open the door of a ſinners Heart, at which it knocks by its mighty Convictions, dreadful Threats, and gracious Invitations.

2. We next come to the ſecond Hammer by which the Spirit knocks at the ſinners Heart, and that is the providential Works of God. Theſe in ſubſerviency to the Word, are of excellent uſe to awaken ſinners, and make them open their Hearts to Chriſt. God hath magnified his Word above all his Name; yet there are ſome of the providential Works of God greatly ſerviceable in this caſe; the Word ſanctifies Providences, and Providences aſſiſt the Word, and make it work. Now there are two ſorts of Providential Diſpenſations which the Lord Jeſus makes uſe of to gain entrance for him into the Hearts of Men, viz.

(2.) Mercies.

(1.) Judgments and Afflictions: the Word of God many times works not till ſome ſtroke of God come to quicken and aſſiſt it; thus did the Lord open the Heart of that Monſter of wickedneſs Manaſſeh, the Word would not work alone, but a ſmart rod quickned its operation: 2. Chron. 33. 10, 11, 12. And the Lord ſpake to Manaſſeh, and to his People; but they would not hearken. Wherefore the Lord brought upon them the Captains of the hoſt of the King of Aſſyria, which took Manaſſeh among the thorns, and bound him with fetters, and carried him to Babylon. And when he was in affliction, he beſought the Lord his God, and humbled himſelf greatly before the God of his Fathers.

Thus the Heart of this Man relented under the Word aſſiſted by the Rod. Ah, 'tis good that God takes ſuch a courſe with ſome ſinners, elſe the Word would do them no good: and to this purpoſe is that in Job 36. 8, 9, 10. And if they be bound in fetters, and holden in cords of affliction; then he ſheweth them their work and their tranſgreſſion, that they have exceeded; and openeth their Ears to Diſcipline. This is that rough courſe the obſtinacy of Mens Hearts makes neceſſary for their recovery; and therefore it is very obſervable that ſome words of God have lain dead in ſome ſinners Hearts for years together, and at laſt have begun to work under ſome ſmart and cloſe Rod. Alas, while all things are pleaſant and proſperous about us, the Word hath but little operation and effect: Jer. 22. 21, 22. I ſpake unto thee in thy proſperity, but thou ſaidſt I will not hear: this hath been thy manner from thy youth, that thou obeyedſt not my voice. The wind ſhall eat up all thy paſtures, and thy lovers ſhall go into captivity; ſurely then ſhalt thou be aſhamed and confounded for all thy wickedneſs. q. d. Your Eyes are ſo dazled with the beautiful Flowers, and your Ears ſo charmed with the Syren Songs and Lullabies of earthly delights, that my Word can take no place upon you. Let an Eaſtwind blow, and wither up theſe Flowers; then the Word ſhall work, and Conſcience reſent the concernments of Eternity. This courſe God is feign to take with many of you; here you ſit from Sabbath to Sabbath under the Word, and nothing takes place upon your Hearts. Will you not hear the voice of my Word? Go Death, ſaith God, and ſmite that Man's Child dead; I will try what that will do; go Poverty, and blaſt his Eſtate, and ſee what that will do; go Sickneſs, and ſmite his Body, and ſhake him over the Graves Mouth, I will ſee what that will do. Thus God ſends to ſinners, as Abſalom ſent to Joab, who refuſed to come near him, till he ſet fire to his field of Corn, and then away comes Joab, 2 Sam. 14. 29, 30, 31. And thus the Lord opened the Heart of the Jaylor, by putting him into a fright, a panick fear of Death, Acts 16. 27. And thus doth the Lord deviſe means to bring back his baniſhed.

(2.) As God makes uſe of the hammer of Judgments, ſo he makes uſe of Mercies to make way for Chriſt into the Hearts of Men. Every Mercy is a call, a knock of God: and truly if there be any ingenuity left unextinguiſhed in the Heart, one would think Mercy ſhould prevail more than all the Judgments in the World, Rom. 2. 4. Knoweſt thou not that the goodneſs of God leadeth thee to Repentance? q. d. Doſt thou not ſee the hand of mercy ſtretched out to lead thee into a corner, there to mourn over thy ſins committed againſt ſo gracious and merciful a God? By every mercy you receive, Chriſt doth as it were fee you to open your Hearts to him; they are ſo many gifts ſent from Heaven to make way for Chriſt into your Hearts. It would be an endleſs task to enumerate all the Mercies beſtowed to this end upon the unregenerate: but ſurely this is the errand of them all; and the Lord takes it very ill when his end is not anſwered in them: hence is that complaint, Jer. 5. 24. Neither ſay they in their Heart, Let us now fear the Lord our God, that giveth us rain, both the former and the latter, in his ſeaſon. Some of you have been marvelouſly preſerved in times of common Contagion and Death, when thouſands have fallen at your right hand and left: then have you been preſerved or recovered, according to that, Exod. 15. 26. I will put none of thoſe Diſeaſes upon thee, for I am the Lord that healeth thee. I am Jehovah Rophe, the Lord the Phyſician: many of you have been at the Graves mouth, in many Diſeaſes, others upon the Deeps; yet the hand of mercy pulled you back, and ſuffered you not to drop into the Grave and Hell in the ſame moment. O what a knock was here given by the hand of Mercy at thy hard Heart! Certainly if Men would but obſerve, they might ſee a ſtrange, marvellous working and moulding of things by the hand of Providence, for the production of thouſands of Mercies for them; and if Mercy would do the work, and win you over to Chriſt, many rods had been ſpared, which your obſtinacy hath made neceſſary. O ungrateful ſinners! Doth your Redeemer thus woo and fee you by ſo many gifts of Mercy, and yet will you ſhut him out? Do ye thus requite the Lord, O fooliſh People and unwiſe? For which of all his benefits do your ungrateful Souls ſhut the door upon him?

Fourthly, You ſee what Chriſt's knocking at the Soul of a ſinner implies, and by what inſtruments it is performed. In the laſt place, we will conſider the manner how this action is performed, in the ten following Particulars, wherein much of the myſtery of Converſion will be opened; the Lord grant your experience may anſwer them. We cannot indeed exactly deſcribe ſcribe and mark all the footſteps of the Spirit in this Work upon the Souls of Men; yet theſe things ſeem eminently obſervable.

1. The knocks of Chriſt at the ſinners Heart are ſilent and ſecret to all perſons in the World except the Soul it ſelf at whoſe door he knocks: here be many hundreds of you this day under the Word; if the Lord ſhall this day knock by Conviction at any Man's Heart, none will hear that knock, but that Man only; for it is a knock without ſound or noiſe to any but the particular Soul concerned in it. It was fore-propheſied of our Redeemer, and of this very act of his, Iſa. 42. 2. He ſhall not cry, nor lift up, nor cauſe his voice to be heard in the Street. The Kingdom of God cometh not into the Souls of Men with publick obſervation: you read in 1 Cor. 2. 11. No Man knoweth the things of a Man, ſave the Spirit of a Man that is in him. None knows what Convictions another Man's Conſcience fels, until he himſelf ſhall diſcover them; you hear the ſame ſound of the Goſpel, but you hear not the inward ſtroaks it gives to another Man's Conſcience. Chriſt's approaches to the Soul make no noiſe; little do we know what the Spirit of Chriſt whiſpers in the Ear of him that ſits next us. 'Tis ſaid of the inward comforts of the Spirit, I will give him the hidden Manna which no Man knows but he that eateth of it. This is true alſo of inward terrors and troubles. Chriſt's knocks by Conviction are but a ſecret whiſper of his Spirit in the Ear of a ſinner, ſaying, Thou art the Man, this is thy caſe. That is the firſt thing in the manner of Chriſt's knocking, 'tis a ſilent knock without publick ſound.

2. Theſe ſilent inward knocks of the Spirit of Chriſt, tho they are heard by none but the Soul it ſelf, yet do they greatly differ as to the terror, or mildneſs of them in different ſubjects. Some hear them with more terror and aſtoniſhment, others in a mild and gentle manner. When the Lord knockt at the Jaylor's Conſcience, Acts 16. 29, 30. it was a terrible ſtroak; he called for a light, and ſprang in like a Man diſtracted; and trembling and aſtonied fell down at the Apoſtles feet, crying, Sirs, what muſt I do to be ſaved? Here was a terrible knock indeed, which almoſt affrighted his Soul out of his Body; it is as if he had ſaid, Tell me, for the Lord's ſake, and tell me quickly, whether there be any way of Salvation, and where it lies, for I am a loſt Man, an undone Soul. But when the Lord opened the Heart of Lydia, there were no ſuch terrors, the Lord ſpake to her in a more mild and gentle voice; as you ſee verſ. 14. The Spirit of God varies his method according to the temper of the Soul he worketh on. Knotty pieces need greater wedges and harder blows to rive them aſunder: and as he directs his Miniſters, Jude 22. to make a difference, to deal tenderly and compaſſionately with ſome; but others, to ſave with fear; ſo he himſelf obſerveth like different methods.

3. Some knocks of Chriſt are ſucceſsful, and obtain the deſired effect. He knocks and the Soul opens; but others are inſucceſsful, he knocks once and again by Convictions, which may cauſe the Conſcience for the preſent to ſtartle a little, but there is no opening to Chriſt by Faith. O friends, this is of dreadful conſideration, Prov. 1. 24. I called, and you refuſed; I ſtretched out my Hand, and no Man regarded. There's a call without an anſwer, a knock and no opening; and theſe things are very common, eſpecially among the unconverted, that live under a lively Goſpel rouzing Miniſtry: of this Chriſt complains, Mat. 11. 16, 17. Whereunto ſhall I liken this generation? They are like unto Children ſitting in the market-place, and calling to their fellows, ſaying, We have piped unto you, and you have not danced: We have mourned unto you, but you have not lamented. q. d. Neither the delicious airs and melody of Goſpel-grace, nor the mournful and dreadful threats of damnation to unbelievers avail any thing to open your Hearts to embrace me; no voices from mount Gerezim or mount Ebal will prevail with you. Ah, how many ſad witneſſes unto this truth have I now before mine Eyes! But God forbid it ſhould be thus all round. No, no, there be ſome Souls who hear and open, even every one that hath heard and learned of the Father, John 6. 45. When the Spirit of God puts forth his Power with the Word, then, and not till then it becomes ſucceſsful.

4. Sometimes Chriſt knocks with a thick ſucceſſion of Convictions, a quick repetition of his calls. Some Men have had thouſands of Convictions in a few years; for in this caſe the Lord ſaith, as it is Exod. 4. 8. If they will not hearken to the voice of the firſt ſign, yet they may believe the voice of the latter ſign. And yet ſometimes neither the former nor the latter avail any thing. How oft would I have gathered thy Children, and ye would not? Matth. 23. 37. How often? intimating the many calls Chriſt gave Jeruſalem to come unto him, yet all in vain. Obſtinate ſinners, Chriſt hath been knocking and calling at ſome of your Conſciences from your very Child-hood; thouſands of Convictions have been tryed upon ſome of you, and yet to this day your Souls are ſhut faſt againſt him. The Lord hath waited from year to year for your anſwer, by this ſignifying how loth he is to part with you; ſuch a time thou waſt upon a ſick-bed nigh unto Death; at ſuch a time under ſuch a Sermon, and then Chriſt knockt at thy Soul: if all this be in vain, ſo many Convictions as you have ſtifled, ſo many fagots you carry with you to Hell to increaſe your flames and torments. Yet commonly thoſe quick repetitions and redoublings of the ſtroaks of Convictions end well; and it is a good ſign when one Conviction revives another, and the Lord keeps the Soul ſtill waking. But O take heed and try not his Patience too long, leſt the next ſtroak be more dreadful than all the former; not to open your Hearts, but ſmite dead your hopes for Heaven.

5. Sometimes Chriſt knocks intermittingly, knocking and ſtopping, a call and ſilence, and that at a conſiderable time and diſtance; a conviction this day, and it may be not another in many Months. There be ſome aged ſinners that have not had more than one or two remarkable rouzings of Conſcience in fifty or ſixty years time, and then no more. Don't think that the Lord will make his Spirit always ſtrive with Men, Gen. 6. 3. no, there is a time when God ſaith to the Word, convict the Conſcience of that Man or Woman no more, not a ſtroak more by way of Conviction, but henceforth be thou for Obduration, not to open but to ſhut him up, Iſa. 6. 10. Reader, bethink thy ſelf, how long was it ſince thy Conſcience was rouzed and awakened? O ſaith one, ſeven or ten years ago I heard ſuch a Sermon, which tore my Conſcience to pieces. I fell under ſuch a ſad Providence which rouzed and awakened all my fears, but ſince that time all hath been ſtill and quiet; the Lord give a ſecond awakening leſt you awake with the flames of God's wrath about you. I obſerve, it is uſual when God works upon any very early, he knocks thus intermittingly: now the Conſcience is active and full of trouble, then the vanities of Youth extinguiſh theſe Convictions again; but the Lord follows his deſign, and at laſt the Conviction ſettles and ends in Converſion.

6. Chriſt ſometimes knocks with both Hands at once, with the Word and with the Rod together; the latter in ſubſerviency to the former: and if ever the Soul be like to open, it will open then, when Ordinanees and Afflictions work together. The Word ſmites the Conſcience with Conviction, and at or about the ſame time Providence ſmites the outward man with ſome affliction, to make the Word work effectually; or under ſome ſmart Affliction, a ſutable word is ſeaſonably directed to the Conſcience: and thus Juncta juvant, the one aſſiſteth the other, and both together produce the deſired effect. Thus the Lord wrought upon the Theſſalonians, 1 Theſſ. 1.6. And ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, having received the Word in much affliction. A Child dies, an Eſtate is loſt, or a Sickneſs ſeizeth at the time when Conſcience is prepared by a Conviction from the Word, or Afflictions have prepared it for the Word. The Rod upon the Back, helps the Word to work upon the Heart; and if both theſe working in fellowſhip will not do the work, there is little hope that any thing will do it.

7. Every knock of Chriſt diſturbs the ſinful reſt of the Soul; it rouzeth guilt in the Conſcience, and puts the inner-man into great diſtreſs and trouble: before Chriſt comes and knocks at the door of the Heart, all is ſtill and quiet within; the Soul is in a quiet ſleep of ſinful ſecurity, no fears or troubles moleſt its reſt. Luke 11.21. When a ſtrong man armed keepeth his Palace, his goods are in peace: But when a ſtronger than he ſhall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he truſted. The armour which Satan puts into the Hands of ſinners to defend themſelves againſt the convictive ſtroaks of the Word, are the general Mercy of God, the outward Duties of Religion, partial Reformations, &c. But when Chriſt comes by effectual Conviction, he diſarms the ſinner of all theſe pleas, and then the Soul ſees what broken Reeds it leaned upon. When the Commandment came, (ſaith Paul) ſin revived, and I died, Rom. 7. 9. i. e. all my vain hopes expired; no artifice of Satan can any longer quiet the ſinners Conſcience; he apprehends himſelf in a miſerable condition, meditates an eſcape; farewel now to ſound and quiet ſleep; no peace till out of danger.

8. Every effectual knock of Chriſt gives an alarm to Hell, and puts Satan to all his ſhifts and arts to ſecure the poſſeſſion of the convinced ſinner. The Devil is a jealous Spirit, and when his intereſt is in danger, he beſtirs himſelf to purpoſe; the time of Conviction is an hour of temptation. We wreſtle not with fleſh and blood, (ſaith the Apoſtle) but againſt Principalities, againſt Powers, againſt the Rulers of the darkneſs of this World, againſt Spiritual wickedneſs (or wicked Spirits) in high-places, or about heavenlies, Eph. 6.12. The ſtrife betwixt Satan and the Soul is now for no leſs than the prize of eternal Life; 'tis now for all, or none; for life or death, for Heaven or Hell: the Powers of Hell are now all in Arms to deſtroy Convictions, and ſecure the poſſeſſion of the Soul againſt Chriſt; as when a Granado falls into a Gariſon, the firſt care of the Defendants is, to ſtifle and choak it before it break. Whilſt Chriſt is ſpeaking by his Spirit in one Ear, the Devil is whiſpering in the other; and the things he whiſpers to quench Convictions are uſually ſuch as theſe: It is time enough yet, what need ſuch haſt? Enjoy thy pleaſures a little longer, thou may'ſt come to Chriſt and be ſaved at laſt: if that will not do, then he changeth his voice, To what purpoſe wilt thou go to Chriſt? 'Tis now too late; the time of Grace is over; hadſt thou come to him in thy youth, and obeyed his firſt call, it had been ſomewhat, but now it is to no purpoſe. If this will not quiet the Soul, then he ſaith, Thy ſins are too great to be pardoned, there's no hope for ſuch a prodigious ſinner as thou art. If the Lord help the Soul to overcome this, by diſcovering to it the riches of mercy, pardoning the greateſt of ſinners; then he repreſents the multitudes which are in the ſame caſe with the convinced ſinner; Come, fear not, if it go ill with thee, it will be as bad for millions of Men and Women; if thou go to Hell, thouſands will go with thee: but if the Soul be loth to be damned for company, then he bids it look upon the train of troubles and afflictions that come along with Chriſt, and will certainly follow him if the door be opened to let him in; if Chriſt come in, reproaches, loſſes and ſufferings will certainly come in with him; troops of miſeries and calamities follow him; himſelf hath told thee ſo, and art thou mad to ruin all thy comforts in the World, and plunge thy ſelf into a Sea of trouble, for what thine Eyes never ſaw? But if the Soul reply, Theſe are more tolerable than damnation, better my fleſh ſuffer for a time than my Soul be caſt away for ever; then he repreſents the inſuperable difficulties of Religion, what a hard thing it is to be ſaved, how many painful duties and acts of mortification the Soul muſt paſs through. Thus you ſee what an alarm Conviction gives to the powers of Hell.

9. Every effectual knock of Chriſt is followed on, and new Convictions revive old and former ones; and the Lord never leaves knocking till the door be opened; if one Sermon will not do, another ſhall; if one wound be plaiſtered, and healed by the art of Satan, a freſh wound ſhall be made; if a former Conviction vaniſh, the next ſhall be ſealed upon the Soul; and when the Spirit of the Lord ſealeth a Conviction upon the Conſcience, raze it out who can? And here's the difference betwixt ſpecial and common Convictions; common Convictions come and go, they put the Soul in a fright for a day or a month, and then trouble it no more for ever; but ſpecial Convictions will be continued, one thing backs another, for Chriſt is in purſuit of the Soul, and will give it chaſe till at laſt he overtake and come up with it.

10. Laſtly, All the knocks of Chriſt ceaſe and end when the ſinners day of Grace is ended. This is of dreadful conſideration; when the time of Mercy is over, no more ſtrivings of the Spirit with a Man after that. Chriſt ſaith to the drouſie ſinner, as he ſpake to the drouſie Diſciples in the Garden, Sleep on now, and take your reſt. So here, I called thee in ſuch a Sermon, but thou heardeſt not; by ſuch a Providence, but thou obeyedſt not; ſleep on now, and take thy reſt: My people would not hearken to my voice, and Iſrael would none of me; ſo I gave them up to their own Hearts luſt, to walk in their own counſels, Pſal. 81. 11, 12. q. d. I have done with them, the treaty is ended, I will make no more eſſays towards their Converſion and Salvation. So I gave them up. Methinks it ſounds as much as this, Take him Sin, Take him Devil, I will have no more to do with him. So Hoſea 4. 17. Ephraim is joined to Idols, let him alone. His Heart is glued faſt to ſin, he is enamoured upon other Lovers, let him alone. O beloved, 'tis a dreadful thing for God to ſay, Let this Man alone in his formality, and that Man in his carnal ſecurity. Let not this be miſapplyed by poor trembling Souls under Conviction. I know the fear of this Judgment is upon their Hearts, nothing makes them tremble more than leſt the day of Grace be ended with them. But there is no ground for this fear whilſt the Spirit continues convincing, and the Soul trembling leſt his Convictions ſhould prove ineffectual. Thus much of the nature, inſtruments, and manner of Chriſt's knocking at the door of a ſinners Heart. Our way is now opened to a fruitful Application of this Point, which I will wind up in divers neceſſary Uſes.

I. Uſe for Information.

And firſt, The Point before us will be uſeful for Information, in the following Inferences and Deductions.

Infer. 1. Into how deep a ſleep hath Sin caſt the Souls of ſinners, that Chriſt muſt ſtand ſo long, and give ſuch loud repeated knocks, before it will awake and open to him? There is the Spirit of a deep ſleep fallen upon Men, like that into which God caſt Adam. God ſpeaks once, yea twice, but Man regards it not; 'tis the hardeſt thing in the World to rouze and awaken a Man out of his carnal ſecurity. Look over Satan's Kingdom, and you ſhall find a general ſtilneſs and quietneſs among his Subjects. There's no trouble for Sin, no ſtrivings after Salvation, no cryings out, What ſhall we do to be ſaved? Go into the Crouds of carnal Men and Women, and you ſhall find them all intent and buſie about other matters. How long ſhall you be in their company, before you hear one groan for ſin, or ſee one tear ſlide from their Eyes on that account? Oh, what a marvelous thing is here! Do not their Conſciences know the guilt that lies upon them? Are they not aware of a day of reckoning which approacheth? Yes, yes, theſe things are not hid from their Conſciences: What art then is uſed to keep them ſo ſtill and quiet? Why, there are divers Rattles to ſtill the Conſciences of ſinners, and they do it effectually. There are four cauſes and occaſions of this wonderful ſtilneſs in the Souls of ſinners.

1. Ignorance of the nature of regenerating Grace, taking that for Regeneration which is none of it; thus did the Jews, John 8. 25. confidently affirm God to be their God, and yet they did not know him. How many poor ignorant creatures think there is no need of any other work of Regeneration, but what paſſed upon them in Baptiſm? They were born and baptized Chriſtians, and that's enough they think to ſave them, Mat. 3. 9. We have Abraham to our Father; they thought it ſufficient that Abraham's blood ran in their Veins, tho there were not a ſpark of Abraham's faith kindled in their Souls: the Lord forgive the ſin of thoſe Men that lead poor Souls into ſuch fatal miſtakes. O if Men were but aware of the neceſſity of a greater and further Work to paſs upon their Souls than their Baptiſm, common powerleſs profeſſion, or the ſimilar Works which appear upon formal Hypocrites, Heaven and Earth would ring with their cries. But ignorance of the nature and neceſſity of ſpecial regenerating Grace, like a doſe of Opium, caſts the Conſciences of many into this deep ſleep.

2. Freedom from groſſer ſins and pollutions of the World, ſtills and quiets the Conſciences of thouſands; they have had a civil, ſober and fair Education; and tho there be no Grace and Regeneration, yet what Saints do they ſeem to themſelves, being adorned with ſobriety and civility! This ſtilled the Conſcience of the Phariſee, Luk. 18. 11. God I thank thee that I am not as other Men are, extortioners, unjuſt, adulterers, or even as this Publican. Thus like delicate Agag they ſpruce up themſelves with moral homolitical virtues, wherein many thouſand Heathens were more gay than themſelves; but Juſtice will hew them to pieces as Agag was, for all their moral ornaments and endowments.

3. The ſtrict performance of the external Duties of Religion quiets the Conſciences of many; they queſtion not but thoſe that do ſo well ſhall fare well, and that God will never damn Men and Women that keep their Church, and ſay their Prayers as they do. Thus the carnal Jews deluded themſelves, crying, The Temple of the Lord, The Temple of the Lord: as malefactors in ſome of our neighbouring Kingdoms, fly to the Church from the hand of Juſtice, ſo do theſe; but God will pluck them from the Horns of the Altar, and convince them that the empty name of Religion is no ſecurity from damnation.

4. Many Conſciences are ſtill'd and quieted in a natural ſinful ſtate, by miſinterpreting the voices of Providence; it may be God proſpers your earthly affairs, ſucceeds and ſmiles upon your undertakings; and this you conclude muſt be a token of his love and favour: But alas, this is a great miſtake, the Lord give you better evidences of his Love than theſe; for who proſper more in the World than wicked Men? And who are moſt croſt than the People of God? Read Job 21. and Pſal. 73. and compare both with Eccleſ. 9. 1. and you will quickly find the vanity of all hopes built upon ſuch a foundation.

However by ſuch things as theſe are, the God of this World blinds the Eyes of multitudes.

Infer. 2. If every conviction be a knock of Chriſt, how deeply are all Souls concerned in the ſucceſs and iſſue of them?

Conviction is an Embrio of the new Creature; if it go out its full time, and come to a perfect new Birth, it brings forth Salvation to your Souls; if it miſcarry finally, you are finally loſt. It is of infinite concernment therefore to every Man and Woman to be tender over thoſe Convictions their Conſciences go big withal. 'Tis true, Conviction and Converſion are two things; there may be Conviction without Converſion, tho there can be no Converſion without Conviction. The bloſſoms upon the Trees in the Spring of the Year, cannot properly be called Fruit, they are rather the rudiments of Fruit, or ſomething in order to fruit: if they open kindly and knit or ſet firmly, perfect Fruit follows them; but if a blaſt, or a froſty morning kill them, no Fruit is to be expected. Thus it is here, great care therefore ought to be taken about the preſervation and ſucceſs of Convictions, both by

1. The Soul it ſelf that is under them,
2. And by all others that are concerned about them.

1. What care ſhould the Soul it ſelf have, upon whom Convictions are wrought: Have a care Friends how you quench them, divert or hinder the operations of them; leſt you hinder, as much as in you lies, the very conception of Chriſt in your Souls by them. I remember it is ſaid, Exod. 21. 22. If Men ſtrive and hurt a Woman with Child, and miſchief follow; life ſhall be given for life. The life of your Souls is bound up in the life of your Convictions. I know it is hard for Men and Women to dwell with their own Convictions; Guilt and Wrath are ſad Subjects for Mens thoughts to dwell upon; but yet 'tis far better to dwell with the thoughts of Sin and Wrath here, than to lie ſweltring under them in Hell for ever. You may be rid of your Convictions and your Salvation together; be not too eager after Peace, a good Trouble is better than a falſe Peace. And on the other ſide, beware that your Convictions and Troubles turn not into diſcouragements to Faith; this will croſs the proper intention of them: They are Chriſt's knocks for entrance, and were never intended to be bars or ſtumbling blocks in your way to him; not ſtops, but ſteps in your way to Chriſt.

2. Let all others that are concerned about convinced Souls beware what Counſels they give, and what Rules they preſcribe, leſt they render them abortive, and deſtroy all in the bud. There are two errors too commonly committed, one in exceſs, perſwading Souls under trouble of Conſcience that there's no coming for them to Chriſt, unleſs they be ſo and ſo prepared, humbled juſt at ſuch a degree; this is dangerous Counſel, it over-heats the troubles of Conſcience, and keeps the Soul from its proper preſent duty and remedy. I am ſure Paul and Silas took no ſuch courſe with the convinced Jailor, nor Peter with the three thouſand wounded Conſciences, Acts 2. Nor do I find where God hath ſtated the time and degree of Spiritual Troubles, ſo that there muſt be no addreſſes to Chriſt in the way of Faith, until they have ſuffered them ſo long, and to ſuch an height: If they have imbittered ſin to the Soul, and made it ſee the neceſſity of a Saviour, I think they cannot move too ſoon after Chriſt in the way of Faith. Let not Men ſet bounds where God ſets none.

There is another error committed in defect, when Promiſes and Comforts are preſently applied, before the nature of Faith is known, or one act of recumbency put forth towards Chriſt: Theſe haſty comforts come to nothing; they will not, they cannot ſtand. 'Tis a dangerous thing to apply Goſpel-cordials, and pour out the precious Ointment of the Promiſes upon them that were never heartſick for ſin; when upon every ſlight trouble, which is but as an early dew, the peculiar conſolations of penitent and believing Souls are hand over head applied to them: How many ſuch unskilful Empericks are there in every place? ſuch as the Prophet Jeremy complains of, They have healed the hurt of the Daughter of my People ſlightly, crying Peace, Peace, where there is no Peace. Remember the foundation is now laying for Eternity, and that this is the time of deep conſideration; Men and Women muſt ponder the terms, and count the coſt, and deliberately accept and cloſe with Chriſt, before the Conſolations of the Promiſes can be regularly adminiſtred to them.

Infer. 3. What a ſingular bleſſing is a rouzing faithful Miniſtry among the People? By ſuch a Miniſtry Chriſt knocks powerfully; this is one of the greateſt bleſſings God can beſtow upon a People, next to the ſaving effects of it, when he ſends among them Powerful, Judicious Preachers of the Goſpel, under whoſe Miniſtry their Conſciences cannot ſleep quietly. Theſe are the proper Inſtruments Chriſt knocks at Mens Hearts by: and as for thoſe Prophets that ſow pillows for drowſie ſinners to ſleep quietly upon, the Lord owns them not for his, Lam. 2. 14. Thy Prophets (not mine but thine) have ſeen vain and fooliſh things for thee, they have not diſcovered thine iniquity.

'Tis true, thoſe Miniſters that give Men no reſt nor quietneſs in their ſins, muſt expect but little reſt and quietneſs themſelves. What is it for Miniſters to preach home to the Conſciences of others, but to pull down the rage of the World upon their own Heads? But certainly you will have cauſe to bleſs God to Eternity for caſting your lot under ſuch a Miniſtry; and the Lord accounts ſuch a mercy ſufficient to recompence any outward affliction that lies upon you, Iſa. 30. 20. You fare richly under ſuch Doctrine, tho the Lord ſhould feed you with the bread of affliction, and give you the waters of adverſity to drink; this makes amends for all, Thine Eyes ſhall behold thy Teachers, and they ſhall be driven no more into corners. O bleſſed be God that England's corners are this day emptied, that its Pulpits may be filled with laborious faithful Miniſters. O that the knocks of Chriſt might this day be heard in all the Cities, Towns, and Villages of this Nation! The Kingdom of God is come nigh unto us; this mercy is invaluable; pray that the Lord would continue it, and make all your Miniſters and Means, whether more publick or private, ſucceſsful.

Infer. 4. And then Laſtly, let all Men beware of thoſe things that deafen their Ears, and drown the ſound of Chriſt's knocks and calls in the Goſpel.

What pernicious Enemies to the Souls of Men are thoſe Perſons and things that turn away Mens Ears from attending to the knocks and calls of Chriſt in his Word? Such are (1.) Prophane wicked Men, who like Elimas the Sorcerer, make it their buſineſs by wicked inſinuations, flouts and jeers, to turn away Mens Ears from the Goſpel, Acts 13. 10. O full of all ſubtilty, and all miſchief, thou child of the Devil, thou enemy of all righteouſneſs; wilt thou not ceaſe to pervert the right ways of the Lord? All oppoſition of Godlineſs hath a ſpice of Deviliſhneſs; and no Child more reſembles his Father than a ſcoffing Enemy reſembles his Father the Devil. But beſſed be God for that good Providence which, in a great meaſure, hath ſtopt the Mouths both of the Father and his Children this day. (2.) Take heed of carnal and ungodly Relations which diſcourage and threaten their Children, Servants, and all that depend on them, from attending upon the means, or giving way to the Convictions which God by them hath ſet upon their Hearts. Cruel Parents, who had rather ſee their Children turned into their Graves, than turning to the ways of ſerious Godlineſs. O that any ſhould dare to quench the beginnings of ſpiritual life in thoſe to whom they were inſtruments to convey natural life. (3.) Take heed of the World, its diſtracting cares and charming pleaſures; what a din, what a confuſed buz and noiſe do theſe things make in the Ears of Men! Mark 4. 19. The cares of this World choak the Word, and it becometh unfruitful. Tell not them of getting Chriſt, they muſt ſtudy how to get Bread. Theſe are ſome of thoſe diſtracting and diverting ſounds which drown the voice of Chriſt's knocks and calls in the Goſpel. As you value your Souls beware of them.

II. Uſe for Exhortation.

Chriſt is now come near us in the Goſpel, Behold he ſtands at the door and knocks: And I am here this day to demand your anſwer, and in his name I do ſolemnly demand it; what ſhall I return to him that ſent me? What ſayeſt thou ſinner? Wilt thou open to Chriſt, or wilt thou ſhut him out; and with him thy own Pardon, Peace and Salvation? Once more let me try the force of a few more arguments upon your Hearts, and refute your vain Pleas to the contrary; methinks no Heart ſhould be able to reſiſt ſuch Motives and rational Perſwaſions as theſe following will be found to be.

Motive 1. You are in extream need of Chriſt; you want him more than Bread or Breath: many things are convenient for your Bodies, but Chriſt is the one thing neceſſary for your Souls, Luke 10. 9. One thing is neceſſary. Neceſſity is an Engine that will open any thing in the World that can be opened; Neceſſity will make all fly before it. Now there is a plain, preſent, abſolute neceſſity lying upon every one of you to open your Hearts to Chriſt, and that without delay. Neceſſity goes before the face of Chriſt to open the way for him into the Heart; thou muſt have him, or be loſt for ever. Chriſt and Faith are not among the may bees, but the muſt bees, to the happineſs of thy Soul. A man may be poor, and happy; reproached, and bleſſed; but he cannot be Chriſtleſs, and ſafe; nor Chriſtleſs, and comfortable: you muſt have Chriſt, or you cannot have life, John 3. 36. You muſt have Chriſt, or you can have no hope, Col. 1. 27. Chriſt and Life, Chriſt and Hope go together; no Chriſt no Life, no Chriſt no Hope: ſinner, thou muſt have Chriſt, or thou canſt have no pardon; for Chriſt and Pardon are undivided, Epheſ. 1. 7. In a word, you muſt have Chriſt or you can have no Salvation, Acts 4. 12. Well then, if thou canſt have no life, nor hope; no Pardon, nor Salvation without Chriſt; then a plain neceſſity goes before Chriſt to open his way into thine Heart: methinks, thou ſhouldſt now ſay, Then will I open to Chriſt whatever the terms be. Come ſufferings, loſſes, reproaches, yea death it ſelf, all is one; Chriſt I muſt have, and Chriſt I will have; neceſſity is layed upon me, and my Heart is opened to Chriſt by it; wo to me for ever if I miſs of Chriſt.

Motive 2. The Lord Jeſus is this day come nigh to every one of your Souls. I may ſay to you as Chriſt did to them, Luke 10. 9. The Kingdom of God is come nigh unto you. The Lord grant he be not as nigh to ſome of you as ever he ſhall be; for he muſt come nearer or elſe you are loſt for ever. It is not Chriſt among you in the means of Grace, but Chriſt within you by the work of Grace, which muſt be unto you the hope of Glory, Col. 1. 27. He is not only among you in reſpect of external means, but he is come into your Underſtandings and Conſciences. Yea, ſome motions of his you may feel upon your affections, there wants but a little more to make you eternally happy. O what would one effectual touch upon your Wills be worth now! The Head-work is done, but O that the Heart-work were done too. You are almoſt ſaved; but to be almoſt ſaved, is to be wholly and eternally loſt, if it go no further. 'Tis a ſad thing for a Man that hath one Foot in Heaven, to ſlide from thence into Hell. 'Tis ſad to be ſhipwrack'd at the Harbours mouth.

Motive 3. Jeſus Chriſt hath unqueſtionable right to enter into and poſſeſs every one of your Souls. Satan is but an Uſurper. Chriſt is your lawful Owner and Proprietor; thy Soul, ſinner, hath not ſo full a Title to thy Body, as Chriſt hath to thy Soul. Satan keeps Chriſt out of his right. Chriſt knocks at the door of his own Houſe; he built it, and therefore may well claim admiſſion into it; it is his own Creature, Col. 1. 16. By him were all things made, whether they be viſible or inviſible; Bodies or Souls. The inviſible part, thy Soul, is his Workmanſhip, a ſtately ſtructure of his own raiſing. He hath alſo a right by Redemption, Chriſt hath bought thy Soul, and that at the invaluable price of his own Blood. Who then can diſpute the right of Chriſt to enter in to his own Houſe! But alas he cometh to his own, but his own receive him not.

Motive 4. Open the door to Chriſt, for a train of bleſſings and mercies come in with him; a troop of privileges follow him: In the ſame day and hour that Chriſt comes into thine Heart by a full conſent and deliberate choice, a Pardon comes with him of all the ſins that ever thou committedſt in thought, word or action. Will ſuch a Pardon be welcome to thy Soul? Then let Chriſt be welcome, Eph. 1. 7. for where Chriſt comes, pardon comes: if you open to Chriſt, you open to peace; and who would ſhut the door of his Soul againſt Peace? If Peace be welcome, let Chriſt be welcome; for Peace follows faith in Chriſt, Rom. 5. 1. Where Chriſt comes, liberty comes, John 8. 36. If the Son therefore ſhall make you free, then are you free indeed. Are you in love with Bonds and Fetters? Satan's Laws are written in Blood: Chriſt's yoak is eaſy, and his commands not grievous. If you love liberty, love Chriſt. In a word, where Chriſt comes, Salvation comes; for he is the Author of eternal Salvation to all them that obey him. If therefore you love Pardon, Peace, Liberty and Salvation, ſhut not the door againſt Chriſt; for all theſe follow him wherever he goes.

Motive 5. Chriſt this day ſolemnly demands entrance into thy Soul, he begs thee to open to him, 2 Cor. 5. 20. he commands thee to open to him, 1 John 3. 23. He denounceth eternal Damnation to thoſe that refuſe him entrance. Now conſider well, here is entrance demanded under pain of the eternal wrath of God; this demand is filed and recorded in Heaven, at your own peril be it if you ſhut the door againſt him: only this will I ſay in my Redeemers's behalf, If you refuſe, bear witneſs Heaven and Earth this day, that Chriſt ſolemnly demanded entrance into thy Soul, and was refuſed; bear witneſs, that the door was ſhut againſt the only Redeemer, who intreated, commanded, and threatned eternal Damnation to the rejecters of him. O methinks that Scripture, Prov. 1. 24, 25. is able to ſtrike terror into the very center of that Soul that refuſes the offers of Chriſt.

Motive 6. And ſo I have done my Maſter's errand; if you now refuſe the knock of Chriſt at your Hearts, he may never knock more; and where are you then? There is a knock which will be the laſt knock, a call which will be his laſt call; and after that no more knocks or calls, but an eternal ſilence as to any overture of Mercy or Grace.

Object. But if I do open to Chriſt, he will never come into ſuch a filthy polluted ſinful Soul as mine is.

Anſw. Who ſaith ſo? Who dare affirm ſo impudent a falſhood in the very face of the Text? If any Man open unto me, I will come in to him.

Object. 2. If I open to Chriſt, I muſt bid farewel to eaſe and reſt in this World; reproaches, ſufferings, loſſes follow him.

Anſw. If Chriſt, Pardon, and Salvation, be not worth the enduring and ſuffering theſe ſmall things, ſure thou valueſt Chriſt and thy Soul at a low rate. O who can ſufficiently bewail the ignorance and folly of Unbelievers, that will ſell their Souls and hopes of Heaven for ſuch trifles! And if Chriſt and thy Soul muſt part upon theſe terms, then hear me ſinner, and let it ſink into thine Heart; thy Damnation will be both

1. Juſt and Righteous.
2. Unavoidable and ſure.

1. Thy Damnation will be Juſt; for thou hadſt thy own choice, and deliberately preferredſt the inſignificant trifles of this World before Chriſt and Salvation. It was plainly told thee what the iſſue of thy rejecting Chriſt would be, and yet after ſufficient warning thou adventuredſt upon it; whatever other ſinners will plead I know not, but as for thee thou muſt be ſpeechleſs, Mat. 22. 12. If thou die Chriſtleſs, thou muſt appear at his Bar ſpeechleſs; and the day of Judgment will be the day of the revelation of the righteous Judgment of God, Rom. 2. 5.

2. It will alſo be unavoidable, for there is no other way to Salvation but this, Acts 4. 12. No Chriſt, no Heaven; no Faith, no Chriſt: How ſhall we eſcape, if we neglect ſo great Salvation? Heb. 2. 3. Mercy it ſelf cannot ſave thee out of Chriſt, for all the ſaving Mercy of God is diſpenſed to Men through him, Jude 21. 'Tis to no purpoſe to cry Mercy, Lord, Mercy, when Chriſt, in whom all the Mercies of God are diſpenſed to Men, is rejected by thee.

III. Uſe for Conſolation.

This Point winds up in Conſolation to all ſuch, as hearing the knocks of Chriſt, have opened, or are now reſolved to open their Hearts unto him; and that nothing henceforth ſhall keep Chriſt and their Souls aſunder: to ſuch I ſhall addreſs the following grounds of Comfort.

Conſolation 1. An opening Heart to Chriſt is a work wholly and altogether Supernatural; a ſpecial work of the Spirit of God, never found upon any but an elect Soul. There are common gifts of the Spirit, ſuch as Knowledg, vaniſhing Convictions, &c. but the opening of the Heart by Faith is the ſpecial, ſaving, and peculiar work of the Spirit, John 6. 29. This is the work of God, that ye believe. Yea, it is the effect of the Almighty Power of God, the exceeding greatneſs of his Power is exerted in the work of Faith, Eph. 1. 19. It riſes not out of Nature, as common gifts do; but of this it is expreſly ſaid, Eph. 2. 8. It is not of your ſelves, it is the gift of God. Where this work is effectually wrought, we may reaſon as ſolidly, as comfortably from it; both backward, to the electing love of God; and forward, to our eternal glorification with him, Rom. 8. 30.

Conſolat. 2. The opening of thy Heart to Chriſt by ſaving Faith, gives thee intereſt in Chriſt the very ſame hour; the relation is then conſtituted, the conjugal tie or bond is faſtned betwixt him and thy Soul: John 1. 12. To as many as received him, to them gave he power (viz. right or privilege) to become the Sons of God, even to as many as believed on his Name. You neither need nor may expect an extraordinary meſſenger or voice from Heaven to tell you that Chriſt is yours, and you are his; you have a better foundation in this Word and Work of Faith: for my part if God will give me the clear and ſatisfying experience of this Work upon my Heart, I would never deſire more ſatisfaction on this ſide Heaven. I know not but the Devil may counterfeit an extraordinary voice, and cheat the Soul by a lying Oracle; but if I really feel my Heart and Will ſincerely opening to Chriſt upon Goſpel-terms, I am ſure there is no deceit in that.

Conſolat. 3. The opening of thy Heart to Chriſt by Faith, is a good aſſurance that Heaven ſhall be opened to thy Soul hereafter: Heaven is ſhut againſt none but thoſe that ſhut their hearts againſt Chriſt by Unbelief. Will you bar Chriſt out of your Souls by Ignorance and Unbelief, and then cry, Lord open to us? No, God will open to none but them that open to Chriſt. Eternity it ſelf ſhall but ſuffice to bleſs God for this opening act of Faith; He that believeth ſhall be ſaved, Mark 16. 16.

Conſolat. 4. The opening of thy Soul to Chriſt by Faith makes it Chriſt's habitation for ever; in that hour out goes Sin and Satan, and in comes Chriſt and Grace: If any Man open unto me, I will come in to him, ſaith the Text. Of ſuch a Soul Chriſt ſaith, as it was ſaid of the Temple, Pſal. 132. 13, 14. The Lord hath deſired it for his Habitation. This is my reſt for ever: here will I dwell, for I have deſired it. Thy Soul now becomes an hallowed Temple to the Lord; as he hath ſaid, I will dwell in them, and walk in them, and will be their God, and they ſhall be my People, 2 Cor. 6. 16. O what a Heaven upon Earth is here! Chriſt dwelling in the Soul, is the glory of the Soul; as God's dwelling in the Temple was the glory of the Temple.

Conſolat. 5. In a word, the opening of the Heart to Chriſt is that work which anſwers the great deſign of the Goſpel. Wherefore hath God ſet up Ordinances and Miniſters, yea wherefore is the Spirit ſent forth, but to open the Hearts of ſinners to Chriſt by Faith? When this is done, the main end and intention of the Goſpel is attained and anſwered; the union is effected betwixt Chriſt and the Soul; it is now put out of hazard. The whole work of the Goſpel after that is but to build up, confirm and comfort the Soul; ripen its implanted Graces, and make it meet for glory.

And thus through the aſſiſtance of the Spirit I have finiſhed the fifth Obſervation, That every Conviction of Conſcience, and motion upon the Affections, is a knock or call of Chriſt for entrance into the ſinners Heart.

SERMON VI.

Revel. III. 20.

Behold I [ſtand] at the Door and knock, &c.

[I ſtand and knock.]

HEre's pains and patience, all means uſed by Chriſt to gain entrance into the Souls of ſinners. It ſpeaks the earneſtneſs of his ſuit, and vehemency of his deſire to be in union with the Souls of Men. The ſixth Obſervation therefore will be this,

Doct. 6. That Jeſus Chriſt is an earneſt Suitor for union and communion with the Souls of ſinners.

This Point lies directly and fully in the very eye and intention of the Text. In the opening of it two things muſt be ſpoken to in the Doctrinal part, viz.

I. The demonſtration of this Truth that he is ſo.

II. The marvelous and admirable grace and condeſcenſion of Chriſt that he ſhould be ſo.

I. For Demonſtration of this Truth, That Chriſt is an earneſt ſuitor for Union and Communion with the Souls of ſinners. I ſhall draw down the Demonſtration of this Truth from a view and conſideration of the diſpoſitions, carriages and actions of the Lord Jeſus towards poor ſinners from firſt to laſt: And when you have compared them all together, and by them ſeen the temper of his Heart, how great and clear a light will ſhine upon this Point! That his Heart hath ſtill enclined towards union and communion with ſinful Man, will evidently appear by conſidering him in a fourfold ſtate, and time.

1. Before his Incarnation.
2. In the days of his Fleſh.
3. At his Death. And,
4. At, and ſince his Aſcenſion into Heaven.

Firſt, Conſider him before his Incarnation, and you will find two things in that ſtate which plainly ſpeak his deſires after union with us.

1. Demonſt. In the Covenant of Redemption he made with God concerning us before this World had a being; for ſuch Covenants and Promiſes did really paſs betwixt him and the Father before all time, or elſe I know not how to underſtand that Scripture, Tit. 1. 2. In hope of eternal Life, which God that cannot lie, promiſed before the World began. To whom could that Promiſe be made, but unto Chriſt, which bears date before the Creation? what elſe can this mean but the Covenant of Redemption, made betwixt the Father and the Son; the terms whereof are ſet down in Iſa. 53. 10, 11. where you find what Chriſt was to do, viz. To put his Soul an offering for ſin? And what ſhould be his reward for pouring out his Soul unto Death, viz. To ſee his Seed, to ſee the travail of his Soul, even a Church purchaſed with his own Blood? Whether this be not a great demonſtration of the propenſion and inclination of Chriſt's heart and deſire towards union and communion with poor ſinners, let all Men judg. O what a value did Chriſt ſet upon our Souls, that upon ſuch coſtly terms he would conſent to redeem them? Unto this agreement God the Father held him, Rom. 8. 32. God ſpared not his own Son. And this very Covenant Chriſt pleaded with the Father, John 17. 6. I have manifeſted thy Name to the Men whom thou gaveſt me out of the World; thine they were, and thou gaveſt them me. This plainly ſhews the vehement deſire of Chriſt's Heart to be in union with Men; according to that, Prov. 8. 31. Rejoicing in the habitable parts of his Earth, and my delights were with the Sons of Men. Bleſſed Jeſus! nothing but the ſtrength of thine own deſire and love could ever haave drawn thee out of that Boſom of delights, to ſuffer ſo many things for the ſake of poor ſinners.

2. Demonſt. Secondly, Let us conſider Chriſt's temper and diſpoſition towards union and communion with ſinners, within time; and every thing done by Chriſt carries and confirms this Concluſion.

1. His Aſſumption of our Nature plainly ſpeaks it.
2. His whole Life upon Earth evidently diſcovers it.
3. His Doctrine is a clear proof of it.
4. His Joy at the Converſion of Souls proves it.
5. His Sorrows for Mens unbelief evidence it.
6. His indefatigable Labours plainly ſhew it.
7. His admirable Encouragements to coming ſinners.
8. His dreadful Menaces to obſtinate ſinners.
9. His ſending and encouraging Miniſters to draw and gather the World to himſelf.

All theſe things, which were tranſacted in the Life of Chriſt, plainly demonſtrate how greatly and earneſtly his Heart did propend and incline towards this deſirable union with the Sons of Men.

1. Chriſt's Aſſumption of our Nature manifeſteth his deſire after union with us. Herein he gave two incomparable proofs of his tranſcendent love to us, and deſire after us.

(1.) In paſſing by a more excellent Nature.

(2.) In marrying our Nature to himſelf.

(1.) He paſſed by a ſuperiour and more excellent lent Nature, Heb. 2. 16. Verily he took not on him the Nature of Angels. Angels were excellent Creatures, but behold veſſels of Gold caſt into the fire, and Earthen potſherds fitted for glory. 'Tis true, the Angels that kept their integrity are members of Chriſt's Kingdom; he is a Head to them by way of Dominion, but unto us by way of Vital union. Chriſt takes the Believer into a nearer union with himſelf than any Angel in Heaven; but for the multitudes of apoſtate Angels, he never deſigned their recovery, but left them, as they were before, bound in chains of darkneſs unto the Judgment of the great Day, Jude verſ. 6. This preterition of Chriſt heightens his love to poor Man.

(2.) In marrying our Nature to himſelf, and that after ſin had blaſted its beauty, and let in ſo many direful calamities upon it. Rom. 8. 3. He was found in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, i. e. Fleſh ſubject to wearineſs, pains and death, which tho there be no ſin in them, yet are the effects and conſequences of ſin: Such a Nature he aſſumed into a perſonal union with himſelf, not to experience any new pleaſure in it, but to capacitate himſelf to ſuffer and ſatisfie for us; and therein to give a convincing proof of the ſtrength of his love, and vehemency of his deſire to us. His perſonal union with our Nature ſhews his deſire after a myſtical union with our Perſons. He would never have been the Son of Man, but to make us the Sons and Daughters of the living God; He came in our likeneſs, that we by Sanctification might be made in his likeneſs. Behold how near Chriſt comes to us by his Incarnation! O what a ſtoop did he make therein to recover us! Rather than loſe us, he was contented to loſe his manifeſtative glory for a time; for his Incarnation made him of no reputation, Phil. 2. 7. Behold the deſires of a Saviour after union with ſinners.

2. The whole Life of Chriſt upon Earth was an evident proof and demonſtration of the deſires of his Heart to be in union and communion with us, John 17. 19. For their ſakes I ſanctify my ſelf. The Life of Chriſt was wholly ſet apart for us; therefore it is ſaid, Iſa. 9. 6. Unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given. What was the errand and buſineſs upon which Chriſt came into this World, but to ſeek and to ſave that which was loſt?

All the Miracles he wrought on Earth were ſo many works of Mercy; he could have wrought his Miracles to have deſtroyed and ruined ſuch as received him not; but his Almighty Power was imployed to heal and ſave the Bodies of Men, that thereby he might win their Souls unto him: Acts 10. 38. God anointed Jeſus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghoſt and with Power; who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppreſſed of the Devil: for God was with him. When the Apoſtles deſired a Commiſſion from him to fetch fire from Heaven to deſtroy the Samaritans, he rebuked them, ſaying, Ye know not what manner of Spirit ye are of, for the Son of Man came not to deſtroy Mens lives, but to ſave them, Luke 9. 54, 55, 56. The whole Life of Chriſt in this World was nothing elſe but a wooing, drawing motive to the Hearts of ſinners; he rejected not the vileſt of ſinners, Luke 7. 39. He rejected none that came unto him; he would not have little Children forbid to be brought unto him, Mark 10. 13. What his winning carriage ſhould be, was long before predicted by the Prophet, Iſa. 42. 3. A bruiſed Reed ſhall be not break, and ſmoaking Flax ſhall be not quench. Lentulus, the Proconſul, in his Epiſtle ad S. P. Q. R. having graphically deſcribed the Perſon of Chriſt, gives this account of his carriage and deportment; In his reproofs he was terrible, in his admonitions fair and amiable, chearful without levity; he was never ſeen to laugh, but often to weep; his words grave, few, and modeſt, &c.

Chriſt was in the World as a load-ſtone drawing all Men to him; his deportment was every way ſutable to his Commiſſion, which was to preach good tidings to the Meek, to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the priſon to them that are bound, Iſa. 61. 1.

3. As his Life, ſo his Doctrin was a wooing, and inviting Doctrin; a moſt pathetical invitation unto ſinners: Never Man ſpake as he ſpake; whenever he opened his Lips, Heaven opened, the very Heart of God was opened in it to ſinners; the whole ſtream and current of his Doctrin was one continued powerful perſwaſive to draw ſinners to him. This was his Language, Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy-laden, and I will give you reſt, Matth. 11. 28. In the laſt day, the great day of the feaſt, Jeſus ſtood up and cried, If any Man thirſt, let him come to me and drink, John 7. 37. Himſelf reſembles it to the clucking of a Hen to gather her Chickens under her wings, Luke 13. 34. O Jeruſalem, Jeruſalem, how often would I have gathered thy Children together, as a Hen doth gather her brood under her wings! Certainly the whole ſtream of the Goſpel is nothing elſe but the charming voice of the Heavenly Bridegroom.

4. The Joy he always expreſt for the ſucceſs of the Goſpel, ſpeaks him to be an earneſt ſuitor for the Hearts of Sinners. 'Tis very remarkable that all the Evangeliſts who have recorded the life of Chriſt, never mentioned one laugh or ſmile that ever came from him, for he was a Man of ſorrows: yet once you read that he rejoiced in Spirit; and you ſhall ſee the occaſion of it, in Luke 10. 21. In that hour Jeſus rejoiced in Spirit. And what was it that gladded his Heart, but the report brought him by the Seventy, who returned with joy, ſaying, Lord even the Devils are ſubject to us through thy Name; and he ſaid unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from Heaven, verſ. 17, 18. Satan's Kingdom; was going down in the World, and the myſteries of Salvation revealed unto Babes; this made his holy Heart leap with Joy within him, to behold the ſucceſs of the Goſpel, deſtroying Satan's Kingdom; and the pooreſt, meaneſt among Men inlightned and converted by it. This was a Cordial to his very Soul, and ſpeak the earneſtneſs of his deſire after union and communion with ſinners.

5. His Sorrows and Mournings upon the account of the obſtinacy and unbelief of ſinners, ſpeak the vehemency of his deſire after union with them; it is ſaid, Mark 3. 5. When he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardneſs of their Hearts, &c. You ſee from hence, that a hard Heart is a grief to Jeſus Chriſt. O how tenderly did Chriſt reſent it, when Jeruſalem rejected him! 'Tis ſaid, Luke 19. 41. That when Jeſus came nigh to the City, he wept over it. The Redeemer's tears wept over obſtinate Jeruſalem, ſpake the zeal and fervency of his affection to their Salvation; how loth Chriſt is to give up ſinners: what a mournful voice is that, in John 5. 40. And you will not come unto me that you might have life. How fain would I give you life? but you will rather die than come unto me for it: What can Chriſt do more, to expreſs his willingneſs? All the ſorrows that ever toucht the Heart of Chriſt from Men were upon this account, that they would not yield to his calls and invitations.

6. This appears to be the great deſign of Chriſt, by the unwearied labours he underwent Day and Night to accompliſh it; many weary Journies Chriſt took, many Sermons and Prayers he preached and poured out, and all upon this deſign, to open the Hearts of ſinners to him, and win the conſent of their Wills to become his; this was the Work which he preferred to his neceſſary food, John 4. 34. My meat is to do the will of him that ſent me, and to finiſh his work: q. d. My bringing home the Elect of God, and ſaving them from wrath to come, is more to me than meat and drink; ſo vehement and intenſe were his deſires after the winning of ſinners, that he would loſe no occaſion to accompliſh it. If he were never ſo weary with his travels and labours, yet if any occaſion offered to ſave a loſt Soul, he would be ſure to improve it; you have an inſtance of this in John 4. 6. Then cometh he to a City of Samaria, called Sychar, &c. now Jacob's well was there. Jeſus therefore being wearied with his Journey, ſat thus on the well, &c. Chriſt was weary with his Journey, and ſat on the Well for a little reſt and refreſhment, in the heat of the day; at the ſame time comes a Woman of Samaria to draw water, a great ſinner ſhe was; Chriſt compaſſionately beholding this miſerable object, forgets his own wearineſs, preſently falls a preaching Repentance to this ſinner, and opens her Heart; a greater refreſhment to him than that Well could afford him, by giving him a ſeat to ſit on, or water to drink.

7. The great and admirable Encouragements Chriſt always gave to coming and willing Souls, plainly ſpeak the earneſt deſire of his Heart after union with them; never were the like Encouragements given that Chriſt gave, to draw the Souls of Men to him. 'Tis remarkable in what general terms and forms of expreſſion he delivered them, that none might be diſcouraged, but come on in hope towards him: Come unto me all ye that labour, Matth. 11. 28. If any Man thirſt, John 7. 37. All along the terms of invitation are exceeding large, which ſpeak the deſires of his Heart to be ſo alſo; and his practice was anſwerable to his invitation; his mercies and compaſſions never failed when the vileſt of ſinners came to him in the way of Repentance and Faith: you read in Luke 7. 41, 42. that when Chriſt ſat at meat in the Houſe of Simon the Phariſee, there came in a poor convinced ſinner who had guilt enough upon her to ſink ten thouſand Souls to the bottom of Hell; this poor wretch comes with a great deal of humility unto Chriſt, not preſuming to come before his Face, but falls down behind him, kiſſeth his Feet, waſhes them with Tears, and wipes them with the hair of her Head; all demonſtrations of a broken Heart: And how did the merciful Jeſus welcome this poor ſinner? He ſeals her pardon, commends the fervor of her affections, and ſends her away a joyful Soul; herein making good that gracious promiſe, John 6. 37. He that cometh unto me I will in no wiſe caſt out.

8. The dreadful Threatnings of Chriſt againſt all that refuſe him, and ſhut the doors of their Hearts againſt him, ſpeak his vehement deſires to prevent the loſs and ruin of Souls. The threats of Chriſt are not intended to diſcourage any from coming to him, to fright away Souls from him; no, no, that's not their intention; but to bring them under a bleſſed neceſſity of compliance with his terms. O the dreadful threatnings which, like claps of Thunder, brake from the Mouth of Chriſt againſt all that ſhould refuſe or delay to come unto him. If you believe not, you ſhall die in your ſins: He that believeth not, ſhall not ſee life, John 3. 36. What a terrible Thunderclap is that againſt all Unbelievers? So Mark 16. 16. He that believeth not, ſhall be damned. All theſe, and many more, are warning pieces ſhot off from Heaven to prevent the ruin and damnation of Men; the very threatnings of the Goſpel carry a deſign of Mercy in them; damnation is threatned, that it may be prevented.

9. And then in the laſt place, herein appears the earneſtneſs of Chriſt after union with ſinners, that when he could be no longer a Preacher to this World in his own Perſon, he ordained a ſucceſſion of Miniſters in his Bodily abſence from us, to gather and build the Church, and to continue to the end of the World; to carry on the Suit that Chriſt had begun, as long as there was one elect Soul in the World lying in the ſtate of Sin and Nature.

Reader, Chriſt could not always abide here; he muſt die, or we could not live; he muſt riſe again, or we could not be juſtified; our buſineſs call'd him to another Place and State: Now when Chriſt was to aſcend to Heaven, what doth he do? Why, he chuſeth and calleth Men, Men made of the ſame clay with our ſelves, whoſe preſence and appearance ſhould not afright or diſcourage us; who ſhould treat with us in a familiar way about the great concerns of our Salvation in his Name and ſtead, 2 Cor. 5. 20. We then are Ambaſſadors for Chriſt; as tho God did beſeech you, we pray you in Chriſt's ſtead, be ye reconciled to God. He did not commiſſionate Angels to be his Legates, their preſence would confound and terrifie us; but Men caſt into the ſame mould with your ſelves, who may ſay to you as Elihu ſaid to Job, Job 33. 6, 7. Behold, I am according to thy wiſh in God's ſtead; I alſo am formed out of the clay. Behold, my terror ſhall not make thee afraid, neither ſhall my Hand be heavy upon thee. Upon theſe Commiſſion-Officers of Chriſt he poured forth excellent gifts in great diverſity, and uſeful variety, to fit the capacities and various diſpoſitions of Mens Souls: When he aſcended up on high, he gave gifts unto Men; this Miniſterial Office is by him eſtabliſhed in the Church, Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledg of the Son of God, to a perfect Man, unto the meaſure of the ſtature of the fulneſs of Chriſt, Epheſ. 4. 11, 12, 13. Unto theſe his Miniſters he gives the higheſt encouragements to quicken them to their labours: if one do but one part of the work, and another the other; one ſoweth, and another reapeth; he tells them both, He that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he that ſoweth, and he that reapeth may rejoice together, John 4. 36. He tells them, that every Soul they win to him ſhall be as a Jewel in their Crown of glory, Dan. 12. 3. And they that be wiſe, ſhall ſhine as the brightneſs of the Firmament; and they that turn many to righteouſneſs, as the Stars for ever and ever. What is Chriſt's intention in all theſe incouragements to his Miniſters? Surely it is as if he ſhould ſay to his Servants, Study hard, Pray earneſtly, Plead with ſinners affectionately; every Soul you win to me ſhall make an addition to your glory in Heaven.

Weigh now the force of this ſecond Demonſtration from the Life of Chriſt; will you have a proof of Chriſt's earneſt ſuit to gain the Hearts of ſinners? his whole Life upon Earth was a great proof of it; his Doctrin, ſo full of pathetical invitations, proves it; the Joy of his Heart at the ſucceſs of the Goſpel; his Tears and Sorrows for the obſtinacy of unbelievers; his Labours and Travels to gather ſinners to him; his admirable Encouragements put into general invitations; his dreadful Threatnings to all that reject his motions; his commiſſionating and qualifying, continuing and encouraging his Miniſters to carry on this Suit in his Name: all theſe things make up a full Demonſtration that Jeſus Chriſt is an earneſt ſuitor for union and communion with the Souls of ſinners; which was the thing to be proved.

3. Demonſt. Thirdly, The Death of Chriſt is the fulleſt Demonſtration that ever was, or can be given of his love to ſinners, and deſire after union and communion with them. His Doctrin and Life diſcovered much, but his Death and Sufferings abundantly more; in his Doctrin he ſpent his Breath, but upon the Croſs he ſpent his Blood. Here he comes a ſuing to the Souls of ſinners in his Scarlet robes, his Red garments; garments dipt in his own Blood. You may now propound the ſame admiring queſtion the Church propounded, Iſa. 63. 1, 2. Who is this that cometh from Edom, with died garments from Bozrah? this that is glorious in his apparel, travelling in the greatneſs of his ſtrength? Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the Wine-fat? Wilt thou know ſinner why he comes to thee in Red garments? It is to give thee ſuch a Demonſtration of his love as may draw forth all the love of thy Heart to him; by this Blood he hath bought and purchaſed thy Soul for a Spouſe for himſelf, Acts 20. 28. Now there are two things in the Death of Chriſt evidential of the fervency of his deſires after us.

1. The greatneſs of the ſufferings which he endured.
2. The Uſe and End to which they were deſigned.

Both theſe ſhew how the Heart of Chriſt is heated with the vehemency of his own deſires after union with our poor Souls.

1. The greatneſs of the ſufferings of Chriſt diſcover the ardency of his affection. Chriſt's ſufferings are two-fold.

(1.) External, in his Body.
(2.) Internal, in his Soul.

Both together making up the fulneſs of his Sufferings: When you ſhall hear what Chriſt hath endured in both kinds to purchaſe you to himſelf, then you may gueſs what value he put upon you, what deſire he hath after you. Now (1.) as to the external Sufferings of Chriſt in his Body, they were exceeding great, for the Death he died was not a Natural but a Violent Death; indeed he could not die a Natural Death, for there was no ſin in his Nature to open a door to Death that way: His Body was intended for a Sacrifice to God, and as a Sacrifice it died; therefore it is ſaid, 1 Pet. 3. 18. He was put to Death in the Fleſh; his Soul and Body were violently rent aſunder in the fulneſs and perfection of his ſtrength and vigour. And this violent Death was alſo a curſed Death; He was made a Curſe for us, For it is written, Curſed is every one that hangeth on a tree, Gal. 3. 13. A ceremonial Curſe was affixed to the Death of the Croſs; He that is hanged is accurſed of God, ſaith the Law: The intention of that Death was to ſhew the Perſon that died, to be ſo vile, that he was not worthy to touch Heaven or Earth, and therefore was hanged betwixt both. Moreover, this violent Death Chriſt died was a moſt painful Death; full of Torture, and very ſlow and lingering: the Croſs was a Rack to the Body of Chriſt; I may tell all my bones, ſaith he, they look and ſtare upon me, Pſal. 22. 17. But yet (2.) the Sufferings of his Body were but the Body of his Sufferings; it were the Sufferings of his Soul, that were the very Soul of his Sufferings. Theſe inward Sufferings of Chriſt may likewiſe be conſidered two ways. (1.) In his bitter propaſſions in the Garden; O what Agonies and Conflicts, what ſharp Encounters and Diſtreſſes did his Soul there meet with, from the Wrath of God there endured for your ſakes! Once and again he cried out, Abba Father, all things are poſſible, let this Cup paſs; Father, if it be poſſible, let this Cup paſs: thrice he returned to the ſame place, rolling himſelf on the ground. The Sufferings of his Soul caſt his bleſſed Body into a bloody Agony. His ſweat was as it were great drops of Blood falling to the ground, Luke 22. 43, 44. (2.) In the fulneſs of his Paſſions on the Croſs, there was his bleſſed Soul for a time deſerted of the Father, as to any ſenſible communications of Joy and Comfort from him; which occaſioned that bitter out-cry, Mat. 27. 46. My God, my God, why haſt thou forſaken me? Never was there ſuch a cry heard ſince the Heavens were ſpread over the Earth; never had Chriſt ſeen one frown in his Father's Face from Eternity before this time: but now the ſmiling Face of God was hid, and a ſtrong impreſſion of his Wrath made upon him. And now, Brethren, you ſee what Chriſt hath endured both in his Body and in his Soul, and all for the ſake of Sinners. What think you now, is not Chriſt an earneſt Suitor? Doth not all this fully and plainly ſpeak the ardours of his Love, the fervency of his deſires after union and communion with us? If this do not, then nothing can demonſtrate Love and Deſire. That's the firſt thing, the greatneſs of the Sufferings he endured.

2. Let us next conſider the Uſe and Intention of theſe Sufferings of Chriſt, and how this alſo demonſtrates the earneſtneſs of his deſires after conjugal union with us. Now there was a double Uſe and End of the Sufferings of Chriſt.

(1.) To make us free, that we might be capable of Eſpouſals.
(2.) To win our Affections by the argument of his Sufferings.

(1.) One end of Chriſt's death was to purchaſe our Freedom, that we might be capable of being eſpouſed to him; for you muſt know that we were not in a capacity whilſt under the curſe of the Law, to be married unto Chriſt: the Apoſtle, Rom. 7. 2, 3, 4. compares the Law to a Husband, to whom the Wife is bound as long as he liveth, and not capable of a ſecond marriage until her Husband be dead. The death of Chriſt was the death of the Law, as a Covenant of Works holding us under the bond of the Curſe of it; and ſo it gave us a manumiſſion or freedom from that bond, and a capacity of eſpouſals to Chriſt, as verſ. 4.

Wherefore my Brethren, ye alſo are become dead to the Law by the Body of Chriſt, that ye ſhould be married to another, even to him who is raiſed from the dead. A Slave to another is not capable of being diſpoſed in marriage until made free; you were in bondage to the Law, the ſlaves of Sin and Satan: Chriſt bought out your liberty (for his Blood is call'd a ranſom, Mat. 20. 28.) and ſo put you in the capacity of being eſpouſed unto himſelf; here you ſee Chriſt loved you not for any advantage he could have by you, for you had nothing to bring him; nay, he muſt purchaſe you, and that with his own Blood, before he can be united to you. O incomparable Love! O fervent Deſires!

(2.) Another deſign and end of the death of Chriſt was to win and gain our Hearts and Affections to himſelf, by the argument of his death; this himſelf hath declared to be the very end and intention of it, John 12. 32. And I if I be lifted up from the Earth will draw all Men unto me; this he ſaid, ſignifying what death he ſhould die. Chriſt endured all that you have heard, and infinitely more than the Tongue or Pen of Man can expreſs; and all to draw thy Soul, and win thy conſent to come unto him: the Lord Jeſus by his ſufferings caſts a threefold cord over the Souls of Sinners to draw them to himſelf.

1. The Death of Chriſt obtains compleat Righteouſneſs for guilty ſinners; and if any thing in the World will draw the Heart of a ſinner, this will. The anxious ſearch and enquiry of a convinced Sinner is after a perfect Righteouſneſs to juſtifie him before God. O that's it the ſinner wants! Conſcience ſaith, thou haſt broken all the Laws of God, and art therefore a Law-condemned wretch; the ſentence of the Law caſts thee for Hell. Now what would a poor ſinner give for a releaſe from this ſentence of the Law? O ten thouſand Worlds for a Pardon! Why here it is, ſaith Chriſt, Come unto me, and thou ſhalt receive a free, full and final Pardon; my Blood cleanſeth from all ſin, my Righteouſneſs anſwers all the demands of the Law. I have taken away the Hand writing that was againſt thee, and nailed it to my Croſs, Col. 2. 14. Come unto me, and take up thy Bonds, thy cancelled Bonds; come unto me, and that dreadful attribute of Divine Juſtice ſhall never ſcare or fright thy Conſcience any more; nay, thou ſhalt build thy hope upon it. You read, Rom. 3. 25. That God hath ſet forth Chriſt to be a propitiation through Faith in his Blood, to declare his righteouſneſs for the remiſſion of ſins that are paſt, through the forbearance of God: To declare, I ſay, at this time his righteouſneſs; that he might be juſt, and the juſtifier of him that believeth in Jeſus. Here you ſee the juſtification and pardon of a ſinner built upon that very attribute which was ſo frightful and dreadful to him before. Well then, poor ſinner, is there guilt upon thy Conſcience? And doth thy Soul ſhake and quiver to think how it ſhall ſtand before the juſt and terrible God in the great Day? Hearken to the voice of Chriſt crucified, who calls thee to him to receive thy diſcharge; which if thou refuſe, the Law ſtill ſtands in its full force and virtue againſt thy Soul. This is one cord Chriſt caſts from the Croſs over the Souls of guilty ſinners, to draw them to him.

2. The death of Chriſt purchaſes and procures perfect cleanſing from the filth and pollution of Sin, to waſh the defiled Souls of ſinners from all their uncleanneſs. For this is he that came by water and by blood; not by blood only, but by water alſo, 1 Joh. 5. 6. He comes by way of Sanctification as well as by way of Juſtification. Lord, ſaith a convinced ſinner, what an unclean Nature, Heart and Life have I? O I am nothing but a heap of uncleanneſs, an abhorrence to God and my ſelf; how ſhall ſuch a Heart as mine, ſuch an Augean Stable be cleanſed? Come unto me, ſaith Chriſt, I came by Water as well as Blood; in me thou ſhalt find a Fountain for Sanctification, as well as Juſtification; come unto me, my Spirit ſhall undertake the cleanſing of thy Heart; he ſhall take away the pollutions of ſin perfectly, ſo that it ſhall be preſented to God without ſpot.

3. And laſtly, The tranſcendent love of Chriſt ſhines out in its full ſtrength upon the Souls of Sinners from the Croſs; and there's nothing like Love to draw love: when Chriſt was lifted up upon the Croſs, he gave ſuch a glorious demonſtration of the ſtrength of his Love to ſinners, as one would think ſhould draw love from the hardeſt Heart that ever lodged in a ſinners Breaſt. Herein is love (ſaith the Apoſtle) not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and ſent his Son to be a propitiation for our ſins, 1 Joh. 4. 10 q. d. Here's the triumph, the riches and glory of Divine Love, never was ſuch love manifeſted in the World. There's much of God's love in Temporal Providences, but all's nothing to this, this is Love in its higheſt Elevation, Love in its Meridian Glory; before it was none like it, and after it ſhall none appear like unto it. And thus you ſee Chriſt from the Croſs caſting forth a threefold cord (which is not eaſily broken) to draw the Hearts of ſinners to him.

4. Demonſt. Fourthly, to conclude, What mighty Demonſtration of the deſires of his Heart towards us, did our Redeemer give at, and ſince his Aſcenſion into Heaven? As the whole Life of Chriſt upon earth was a perſwaſive Argument to draw ſinners to him, ſo his Aſcenſion to Heaven hath many things in it which are mighty attractives to the Hearts of Men. I will only mention two,

1. The gifts he beſtowed at his Aſcenſion.
2. The ends and deſigns of his Aſcenſion.

1. The gifts he beſtowed on Men at his Aſcenſion, for this very end and purpoſe; whereof the Pſalmiſt gives this account, Pſal. 68. 18. Thou haſt aſcended on high, thou haſt received gifts for Men; yea, for the rebellious alſo, that the Lord God might dwell among them. He alludes to the Roman Conquerors, who in the day of their triumph did ſpargere miſſilia, ſcatter their largeſſes among the People. Thus Chriſt at his Aſcenſion ſhed forth the gifts of the Spirit in various kinds, qualifying Men for the Work of the Miniſtry; to enable them to plead with your Souls, and carry on his ſuit when he ſhould be in Heaven. Theſe gifts were extraordinary in the firſt Age; as the gift of Tongues, and Miracles, &c. and ordinary, to continue to the end of the World, Eph. 4. 8, 9. To ſome he gives depth of Learning and Judgment, to others a mighty Pathos, a melting influence upon the Affections; but all deſigned to win over your Hearts to Chriſt. This ſhews what care he took, and what proviſion he anſwerably made, for the ſucceſs of his great deſign, to draw the Hearts of ſinners to him.

2. The ends of his Aſcenſion, as they are declared in Scripture, plainly ſpeak the vehemency of Chriſt's deſire to draw Souls to him. Now the declared ends of his Aſcenſion were, (1.) To make way for the Spirit's coming to convince, convert and comfort the Souls of all that come unto him, Joh. 16. 7. Nevertheleſs I tell you the truth, it is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come to you; but if I depart, I will ſend him unto you. And when he is come, he will reprove the World of ſin, and of righteouſneſs, and of judgment. Without the Conviction of theſe things no Man can come to Chriſt; and no ſuch Convictions can be wrought upon the Conſcience of any Man without the Spirit; and the Spirit could not come to effect theſe things upon Mens Hearts if Chriſt had not aſcended. Joh. 7. 39. But this ſpake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him ſhould receive: for the Holy Ghoſt was not yet given, becauſe that Jeſus was not yet glorified. Thus Chriſt provided for the carrying on his great deſign upon your Hearts when he was entring into his own glory: The thoughts of that Glory made him not to forget his great deſign upon Earth. (2.) Another end of Chriſt's Aſcenſion was to make interceſſion with the Father for all and every Soul that ſhould come unto him; that their future ſins might make no breach of the Bond of the Covenant betwixt God and them. A Privilege able to draw the Hearts of all ſinners to him, 1 Joh. 2. 1, 2. My little Children, theſe things write I unto you, that ye ſin not: Mark it, the interceſſion of Chriſt muſt incourage and embolden no Man to ſin; that would be a vile abuſe of the Grace of God. But if any Man ſin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the righteous; and he is the propitiation for our ſins. i. e. If ſin ſurprize and deceive any gracious Soul, the bent of whoſe Heart is againſt it, let him not be diſcouraged, he hath a potent Advocate aſcended into the Heavens to continue the Peace betwixt God and that Soul. O what an encouragement is here to gain the conſent of a ſinner's Heart to embrace Jeſus Chriſt! (3.) Another declared end of Chriſt's Aſcenſion was to lead Captivity captive, as in the forecited place, Pſal. 68. 17. that is, to captivate, and triumph over Satan as a conquered Enemy; who led us captive in the days of our vanity: He conquered Satan upon the Croſs, Col. 2. 15. but he triumphed over him at his Aſcenſion: And without ſuch a conqueſt and triumph no Soul could come to Chriſt. (4.) In a word, Chriſt aſcended into Heaven to prepare Manſions of reſt and glory for every Soul that ſhould embrace him in the way of repentance and faith in this World, John 14. 2. In my Father's Houſe are many manſions, if it were not ſo I would have told you; I go to prepare a place for you. q. d. It ſatisfies me not to enjoy my glory in Heaven alone, all that come unto me by Faith ſhall be with me where I am; let them know for their encouragement, that the glory which God hath given me, I have given them, John 17. 22. All theſe things loudly ſpeak the fervent deſires of Chriſt's Soul after union and communion with poor ſinners; which was the thing to be demonſtrated.

II. Having proved the Point, that Chriſt is an earneſt Suitor for union and communion with the Souls of ſinners; we next come to ſhew the marvellous and admirable Grace, and Condeſcenſion of Chriſt that it ſhould be ſo. And this will appear five ways, to the aſtoniſhment of every conſidering Soul.

1. Tho Chriſt be thus intent and earneſt in his ſuit for your conſent, yet he gaineth nothing by you when you do conſent; the gain is to your ſelves, but not to him: He is over all God bleſſed for ever, Rom. 9. 5. above all acceſſions from the Creature. What doth the Sun gain by enlightning and animating the lower World? Or what doth a Fountain gain when Men drink and are refreſhed by its Waters? If any Soul that heareth me this day, ſhould preſently reſolve henceforth to break aſunder all the ties and engagements betwixt him and Sin, to ſubſcribe the Articles of the Goſpel, to give away himſelf Soul and Body to Chriſt, to live henceforth as a hallowed dedicated Creature to the Lord Jeſus; this indeed would turn to the infinite and everlaſting advantage of ſuch a Soul, but yet Chriſt cannot be profited thereby.

2. And that which ſtill encreaſes the wonder is this, that tho Chriſt makes no gain or profit by our Converſion, yet hath he impoveriſhed himſelf to gain ſuch unprofitable Creatures as we are to him. He hath made himſelf poor to make us rich; ſo ſpeaks the Apoſtle in 2 Cor. 8. 9. For ye know the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that tho he was rich, yet for your ſakes he became poor, that ye thro his poverty might be rich. He expends his riches, makes no advantage unto himſelf; his Incarnation impoveriſhed his reputation, Phil. 2. 7. How poor was Chriſt when he ſaid, Pſal. 22. 6. But I am a Worm, and no Man; a reproach of Man, and deſpiſed of the People? How poor in temporal comforts, when he ſaid, Mat. 8. 20. The Foxes have holes, and the Birds of the air have neſts; but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his Head. Yea, how poor was he in ſpiritual Comforts, when that aſtoniſhing outcry break from him upon the Croſs, Mat. 27. 46. My God, my God, why haſt thou forſaken me? O let it aſtoniſh us that Chriſt ſhould earneſtly deſire union with our Souls upon terms of ſuch deep ſelf-denial to himſelf.

3. Tho Chriſt gain nothing by you, and impoveriſhed himſelf for you; yet doth he endure many vile repulſes, delays and denials of his Suit, and will not leave it for all that. O aſtoniſhing Grace! One would think that the leaſt delay, and much more a refuſal of an overture from Chriſt, upon ſuch terms as you have heard, ſhould make his indignation preſently to ſmoak againſt ſuch a Soul; and that he ſhould ſay, Thou haſt refuſed my offer, ſo full of ſelf-denying and condeſcending grace, never ſhall another offer be made to ſo unworthy a Soul; and yet you ſee he is contented to wait as well as knock, Behold I ſtand at the door and knock.

4. Herein the admirable Grace of this heavenly Suitor appears, that Jeſus Chriſt paſſeth by millions of Creatures of more excellent Gifts and Temperaments, and never makes them one offer of himſelf, never turneth aſide to give one knock at their door; but comes to thee the vileſt and baſeſt of Creatures, and will not be gone from thy door without his errands end.

Knoweſt thou not, ſinner, that among the unſanctified there are to be found multitudes of Men and Women of more raiſed and excellent Parts, nimble Wits, ſtrong Memory, ſolid Judgments; yea, Men and Women of cleaner Converſations, ſtrict Morality, adorned with excellent homilitical Virtues, capable if called to do him abundantly more ſervice than thou canſt; yet theſe are paſt by, and he becomes a Suitor to ſuch a poor worthleſs thing as thou art; yea, and rejoices in his choice, Mat. 11. 24. I thank thee, Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, becauſe thou haſt hidden theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and haſt revealed them unto Babes. Here is the triumph of Free-grace.

5. And laſtly, This juſtly increaſes the wonder, That ever Jeſus Chriſt ſhould deſire and delight to dwell in ſuch an unclean Heart as thine, which from the beginning hath been the Seat and Throne of Satan, full of all uncleanneſs and abominations. O that ever Chriſt ſhould make an overture of love to ſuch a polluted Soul! That he ſhould chooſe to erect his Throne where Satan's Seat was! Look into thine Heart ſinner, and think what can Chriſt ſee here to be deſired? Thou knoweſt thy Heart hath been a ſink of ſin, thy Conſcience like the common ſhoar, into which all the filth of thy life hath been caſt; yet Chriſt paſſeth by thee, as thou lieſt in thy blood and filthineſs, and caſteth love upon thee, and deſire towards thee, as it is Ezek. 16. 6, 8. All theſe things put together make it juſtly admirable and aſtoniſhing in our Eyes, that ever Jeſus Chriſt, the Lord from Heaven, ſhould become an earneſt Suitor for union and communion with the Souls of ſinners.

I. Uſe for Information.

Infer. 1. If Chriſt be ſuch an earneſt Suitor for union and communion with the Souls of ſinners, then it follows, That ſinners can juſtly charge their damnation upon none but themſelves. Your blood muſt be upon your own Heads; Salvation by Chriſt is not only freely offered, but you are with great importunity perſwaded to accept it. Chriſt offers you life, you chooſe rather to die than accept it upon his terms; where now can your damnation be charged, but upon your own wilful obſtinacy? Hoſ. 13. 9. O Iſrael, thy deſtruction is of thy ſelf. Thou art the Author of thine own ruin: I would have gathered thy Children, ſaith Chriſt to Jeruſalem, but thou wouldſt not; your ruin therefore lies upon your ſelves, and upon none beſide. Indeed if the Miniſters of Chriſt be negligent in their duty, they may come in as acceſſories to your deſtruction; but that's a poor relief to you; as for my ſelf, I hope I may with Paul take God to record this day, that I am free from the blood of all Men. Now conſider what a diſmal aggravation of your deſtruction this will be, that you periſhed by your own Hands; this cuts off all Plea and Apology.

Infer. 2. Hence it alſo follows, That diſtreſſed Sinners have no reaſon to queſtion Chriſt's willingneſs to receive them, when their Hearts are made willing to come unto him. It were no leſs than a blaſphemous imputation of inſincerity to Chriſt himſelf to queſtion his willingneſs to receive broken-hearted ſinners, after ſo many proteſtations as he hath made in the Goſpel, of his zeal and earneſtneſs for their Salvation; that Scripture, John 6. 37. puts it out of doubt, He that cometh unto me I will in no wiſe caſt out. I know Guilt breeds many fears and jealouſies in the Hearts of ſinners; Will Chriſt ever accept, and receive ſuch a one as I? Try him Soul, he hath ſaid he will; let him have but the deliberate conſent of thy Heart to his terms, and then if thou be rejected, thou wilt be the firſt Soul in the World that ever met with a repulſe from him.

Infer. 3. By Chriſt's earneſt Suit for the Souls of ſinners you may eſtimate the invaluable worth and precious Nature of the Soul of Man. Were not the Soul a Creature of great value, Jeſus Chriſt would never be ſo deeply concerned about the winning and ſaving of it. Sinners have a vile eſteem of their own Souls, they will ſell them for nought; but Chriſt knows their true worth, and his ſolicitude to ſave them is anſwerable to his eſtimation of them; he counts when he hath gained a Soul, he hath gained a Treaſure. Therefore he pleads, ~~woos~~ and waits ſo earneſtly and aſſiduouſly for the Salvation of them. Two things ſpeak the great value of the Soul of Man.

1. That is is a marriageable Creature to Chriſt now.
2. That it is capable of Glory with Chriſt hereafter.

1. It is a marriageable Creature to Chriſt now, capable of eſpouſals to the Son of God; upon which account it is Chriſt ſo earneſtly ſeeks its love, and ſues for its conſent. Now this is a dignity beyond all other Creatures in Heaven or Earth; no Angels in Heaven, no other Creature but the Soul of Man on Earth, is capable of eſpouſals to Chriſt; 'tis a dignity above that of Angels, for Chriſt took not on him their Nature, and the Hypoſtatical union is the ground and foundation of the Myſtical union. They are Members indeed of Chriſt's Kingdom, and he is to them a Head of dominion; but this honor was never conferred upon Angels to be Members of his Body, Fleſh and Bones, as the Saints are, Eph. 5. 30.

2. As the Soul is capable of eſpouſals to Chriſt on Earth, ſo it is capable of glory with Chriſt in Heaven, throughout eternity, John 17. 24. Father, I will that they alſo whom thou haſt given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold the glory which thou haſt given me. It hath a natural capacity of enjoying eternal Bleſſedneſs, which the Souls of other Creatures have not. And this will be the aggravation of Hell-torments, that Men capable of the higheſt happineſs ſhould as it were receive that capacity in vain; but that which conſtitutes an actual right to the everlaſting enjoyment of Chriſt in glory, is the Soul's eſpouſals to him here in the way of Grace. Upon theſe two accounts it is that Chriſt puts ſuch a price upon them, courts their love ſo paſſionately, laments their loſs ſo pathetically; and encourages his Miniſters to all diligence in perſwading ~~and wooing~~ them for him with ſuch abundant rewards, Dan. 12. 3. Know then your own worth and dignity, neither pawn nor ſell ſo precious a thing as thy Soul for any thing Satan can ſet before thee by way of exchange for it; What ſhall a Man give in exchange for his Soul?

Infer. 4. Is Chriſt ſuch an earneſt Suitor for union with ſinners? then certainly they are the enemies of Chriſt and the Souls of Men, that any way endeavour to hinder or break off the match betwixt Chriſt and them.

Some there are that labour to create jealouſies, and beget diſtaſtes and prejudices in the Souls of Men againſt Chriſt and his ways; Men that bring up an evil report upon Chriſt, and ſtrict Religion, as that which will beggar them, and expoſe them to all the miſeries of the World: Who, inſtigated by Satan, whiſper ſuch ſtories into the Soul's ear whom Chriſt is wooing for himſelf, that the ſeverity of Religion will certainly extinguiſh all their joys and pleaſures; they ſhall never laugh more, never be merry more. Beſide, it will expoſe all their comforts upon Earth to hazard, their Eſtates and Lives muſt fall a prey to their Enemies; and this is the Eſtate which Chriſt will jointer them in if they conſent to his terms: and that this is no groundleſs jealouſie of their own, but that Chriſt himſelf hath openly declared as much; That he that will come after him, muſt hate Father and Mother, Wife and Children, yea and his own Life alſo. This is what they muſt expect as the fruit of their conſent to Chriſt's propoſals. But O what will theſe Men have to anſwer, and how will they ſtand before Chriſt another day, who are ſuch profeſſed enemies to his Croſs, and ſet themſelves ſo directly in oppoſition to the great deſign Chriſt is driving on in the World! It is not enough that you will not enter your ſelves, but you will hinder them that would, Mat. 23. 13. Thus carnal Parents diſcourage their Children, one Relation another. But to help Souls under this diſcouragement, I will leave only this one Caveat with them, That ſuch ſeeming Friends are their real mortal Enemies, their Words are poiſon to your Souls: Satan hath fee'd them to do his Work, hired their Tongues for his Service. But if the ſerious cares of Salvation and fervent love of Chriſt be in thy Heart, thou wilt reſolve as Jerom did, If my Father who begat me, and my Mother who bare me, ſhould hang about my Neck with tears and entreaties, to keep me from Chriſt, I would fling off my Father, and tread upon my Mother that bear me, to go to Chriſt.

To this Head alſo belong all thoſe ſcandals and offences which looſe and careleſs Profeſſors caſt in the way, to diſcourage others from coming unto Chriſt; Wo to the World (ſaith Chriſt) becauſe of offences, Mat. 18. 7. Wo to the World, this will be their ruin and undoing; by this means ſuch prejudices will be begotten in their Souls againſt Chriſt and Religion, as they will never be able to free themſelves from. But wo to them by whom ſuch offence cometh; it were better a milſtone were hanged about their Necks, and they caſt into the bottom of the Sea. Chriſtians, look carefully to your Converſations, for beſides the evil effects of ſin upon your ſelves, you ſee the miſchievous effects of it upon others. And thus we may underſtand thoſe words, Cant. 2. 7. I charge you, O ye Daughters of Jeruſalem, by the Roes, and by the Hinds of the field, that ye ſtir not up nor awake my Love till he pleaſe. Roes, and Hinds, are timorous Creatures, the leaſt crack of a ſtick will ſtartle and fright them away; ſuch are comers on toward Chriſt, young beginners in the ways of Religion; how ſmall a matter may damp and diſcourage them? O friend, you have ſins enough of your own, bring not the ſin and ruin of other Men upon your account alſo.

Infer. 5. To conclude, How great is the blindneſs and ignorance of ſinners, that need ſo much entreaty and importunity to be made happy? 'Tis your ignorance, ſinners, that makes all the Goſpel-importunity neceſſary; did you know your own miſery, and ſee Chriſt in his neceſſity, ſutableneſs, and excellency, all theſe perſwaſions might be ſpared; nay, you your ſelves would become importunate Suitors for Chriſt, you would not need to be twice offered: there is a Conſcience in every Man and Woman ſet there on purpoſe by the Lord to give them an Alarm; but the Alarm goes off for want of a ſpring, to wit, the knowledg of our ſin and miſery. Ah Soul, didſt thou but know who it is that ſues for thy love, what the benefits of union with Chriſt are, thou wouldſt anſwer his firſt call in ſuch Language as this: Lord Jeſus, write down thine own terms; be they what they will, I am ready to ſubſcribe them with the fulleſt conſent of Heart and Will; and then how ſoon would the match be made betwixt Chriſt and you! Yea, you would watch for and hang on half a word of encouragement from Chriſt's Mouth, as Benhadads Servant did on that word of Ahab, my brother Benhadad, 1 Kings 20. 32, 33. There is no need of Rhetorick to perſwade a condemned Malefactor to accept his pardon, a hungry Man to ſit down at a full Table; but alas, Sin is not felt, Chriſt is not known, therefore the one is not bewailed, nor the other deſired.

II. Uſe.

In the next place, the Point naturally leads us to a Uſe of Exhortation, to perſwade ſinners to embrace Chriſt's motion, ſubſcribe his terms, and huckle no more with him, but end the treaty in a cordial preſent conſent; and ſo cloſe up the match betwixt him and your own Souls. How long ſinner wilt thou be at, ſhall I, ſhall I? and thy Will hang undetermined betwixt Chriſt and Sin, bivious and unreſolved in ſo great and deep a concernment? O that Chriſt's next overture might bring the matter to an Iſſue; why will you trifle and dally with him at this rate? There is indeed a Treaty on foot betwixt Chriſt and you, but you may periſh for all that; there's no concluſion or agreement made, Chriſt and you may yet part. The Lord help you therefore to ponder, and deliberate with all ſpeed and ſeriouſneſs the terms propounded by Chriſt in the Goſpel; to count the coſt, and yet not always to be deliberating neither, but to bring matters to an Iſſue, and that with all the convenient ſpeed you can; in order whereunto I will lay two things before you, for you to weigh and ſeriouſly ponder.

1. What are the advantages you will gain by Chriſt?
2. What is the moſt you can loſe by your conſent to his terms? and then bring your thoughts to an Iſſue.

Firſt, Ponder well the advantages you will gain by Chriſt; theſe are ſo great and manifold, that 'tis impoſſible for me to enumerate or value them: it ſhall ſuffice in this place to ſhew you one of thoſe bunches of the Grapes of Eſhcol, that by it you may eſtimate the riches and fertility of that good Land, ſettled upon you by Chriſt as a Dowry or Joynture; and theſe are four.

1. The payment of all your debts to the Law.
2. An Honour above Angels.
3. An eternal inheritance in Heaven.
4. A glorious and joyful preſentation of you to the Father in the great day, by Chriſt, as his Spouſe and Wife.

1. The ſame day and hour you give your cordial conſent to take Chriſt upon Goſpel-terms, that is to ſay, Chriſt with his yoak of obedience, and Chriſt with his Croſs of ſufferings, all your debts to the Law are diſcharged and paid. What have you been doing ever ſince you came into the World but running upon ſcore to God, deeper and deeper every day? O what a vaſt ſum oweſt thou to his Juſtice? and not able to pay one farthing. If thou conſent not to Chriſt's offer, the Bailiff and Executioner, Death and the Devil, will ſhortly be upon thy back, and hurry thee away to that priſon from whence thou ſhalt not come until thou haſt paid the laſt farthing, Mat. 5. 25, 26. If thou conſent to Chriſt's terms, thy debts are paid upon thy marriage day; thy bonds cancelled, and thy diſcharge in Heaven ſealed. Rom. 8. 1. There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Chriſt; and the reaſon is given, verſ. 4. in this, That the righteouſneſs of the Law is fulfil'd in us that believe. But how in us? certainly the meaning is not that the τὸ credere, the act of Faith doth, as it is a work of ours, ſatisfy the demand of the Law, and fulfil its righteouſneſs; no, but it apprehends the righteouſneſs of Chriſt, applies it, and makes it ours, and ſo the righteouſneſs of the Law is fulfil'd in us that believe. Is it an eaſe, is it a comfort to be out of debt? Then embrace the offer of Chriſt, for after thy eſpouſals to him, the Law cannot touch thee by any act of condemnation; it goes to the Husband Chriſt, thou art diſcharged. Well then, reſolve what to do; Shall the debt run on and increaſe till Juſtice come to levy it upon you in Hell-torments? Or will you accept of Chriſt and the riches of Righteouſneſs that are in him, and ſo be fully and finally acquitted from all your debts at once, and be able to lie down in peace, and enjoy your lives without ſlaviſh fear? He that owes nothing, fears no Bayliffs, but may (as we uſe to ſay) whet his Knife upon the Counter threſhold.

2. Your conſent to Chriſt's terms will advance you to an Honor above and beyond the Honor of Angels: 'Tis ſaid, That the Children of the Reſurrection ſhall be equal unto Angels; and it is moſt ſure that in ſome reſpect their union with Chriſt advances them far above Angels; for the Apoſtle tells us, Heb. 1. 14. They are miniſtring Spirits ſent forth for the good of them that ſhall be heirs of Salvation. As the great Peers and Nobles in a Kingdom, count it no diſhonour to perform their ſervice to the Heir apperent. The Miniſtry of Angels is a myſtery which we little underſtand, but by it we receive great and manifold advantages, and it certainly puts a great deal of Honour upon all the Members of Chriſt.

3. Chriſt will not only pay all your debts, and exalt you to a dignity above Angels; but in that day wherein you cordially conſent to his terms, he will intitle you to the moſt glorious inheritance purchaſed by his Blood; You ſhall be heirs of God, and joint heirs with Chriſt, Rom. 8. 17. O what an inducement is here to cloſe the match betwixt Chriſt and our Souls! If I conſent to take Chriſt upon Goſpel-terms, I ſhall thereby be intitled to all the Glory that is in Heaven; it ſhall be mine as truly as it is Chriſt's. 'Tis true, the glory of Chriſt will in ſome reſpects far ſurpaſs the glory of the Saints; he will ſhine among them as the Sun compared with the Stars; but yet the glory which God gave him, that is, the communicable glory, ſhall be truly theirs as it is his, John 17. 22. The glory which thou gaveſt me, I have given them. Tell my Brethren (ſaith he) John 20. 17. I aſcend unto my Father, and your Father; to my God, and your God. This you ſhall gain alſo by cloſing this Treaty with a hearty conſent to Chriſt's terms and propoſals.

4. If you will conſider and conſent, you ſhall be preſented by him to the Father, pure and ſpotleſs, with exceeding joy and gladneſs in the great day. This will be ſuch a preſentation of your perſons to God, as will make your Hearts leap for joy, to read what the Scriptures ſpeak about it. This methinks ſhould induce every Soul, without farther delay, to preſent himſelf, Soul and Body, chearfully and willingly to Jeſus Chriſt. For (1.) Chriſt will bring you in the great day to his Father, in the ſhining beauty of perfect Holineſs, not a ſpot or wrinkle upon your Souls, Epheſ. 5. 27. The Blood of Chriſt perfectly waſhes off every ſpot of guilt, for then the Spirit of Chriſt hath perfectly cleanſed the Soul from all the defilement and filth of ſin; ſo that it ſhall come to God a pure and beautiful Creature out of Chriſt's Hand. (2.) This preſentation will be made with greateſt honour and ſolemnity; we little think in what ſtate and triumph Chriſt intends to bring the pooreſt believer to his Father, Pſal. 45. 14, 15. With joy and gladneſs ſhall they be brought, &c. So Jude verſ. 24. They ſhall be preſented faultleſs before the preſence of his glory, with exceeding joy: Joy running over, Joy upon all hands; God himſelf will rejoice that ever he created ſuch a Soul as hath ſincerely beſtowed it ſelf upon Chriſt: Jeſus Chriſt will rejoice that ever he ſhed his Blood for that Soul, that now places his ſole righteouſneſs therein; the Holy Spirit will rejoice, that ever he came with a commiſſion from the Father, and the Son, to draw ſuch a Soul to Chriſt, who hath obeyed his voice. The Angels will rejoice with joy unſpeakable, Luke 15. 10. There is joy in the preſence of the Angels of God over one ſinner that repenteth. If the conſent of any of your Souls ſhall be this day gained to Chriſt, if the Word you have heard this day ſhall ſend any poor Soul hence to his Cloſet, or into a Corner, there to make his Covenant with Chriſt, (for that's the way of making up the match with Chriſt) in that hour the news of it will be in Heaven, and excite joy among the Angels of God. Lay theſe and many other Privileges together, which I want time to mention, but the Scriptures will abundantly furniſh you with them; and then conſider what a rich bargain, what an advantageous match Jeſus Chriſt is for your Souls.

Secondly, Upon the other ſide caſt up the account, what you may loſe by your conſent to be Chriſt's; and whether thoſe loſſes be ſufficient to ballance or preponderate the gain that comes by ſuch a conſent; that ſo your choice of Chriſt may be a deliberate and full choice, and you may never repent afterwards of the choice you have made. It is a rule in the Civil Law, Non conſentit qui non ſentit; he cannot conſent, that doth not think, underſtand and deliberate: and this is the reaſon of ſo much flinching from Chriſt, and ſhameful apoſtacy in times of Perſecution; Men did not think of ſuch ſufferings and loſſes, they are meer ſurpriſals to them. To forelay all ſuch occaſions of offence, our Lord deals candidly and openly with us, and tells us beforehand what are the worſt things that may befal us for his ſake, Joh. 16. 1, 2. Theſe things have I ſpoken unto you, that you ſhould not be offended: they ſhall put you out of the Synagogues; yea, the time cometh that whoſoever killeth you will think he doth God ſervice. But verſ. 4. he adds, Theſe things have I told you, that when the time ſhall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. q. d. Remember your ſelves in times of Perſecution, that all theſe things were propounded, conſidered and conſented to; they were the very terms you ſubſcribed to me; had you not liked them, you might at the everlaſting damage and ruin of your immortal Souls have refuſed and rejected them. Now the things you are to ballance lance with the gain of Chriſt, muſt by you be ſorted into two Ranks.

1. Things that muſt be parted with.

2. Things that may be parted with for Chriſt.

1. The things that you muſt part with, viz. your Luſts, and all the vicious pleaſures you have had in them: how much profit or pleaſure ſoever they have brought you in, away they muſt go; they muſt be devoted to deſtruction and mortification, or you can have no intereſt in Chriſt: you muſt ſhake hand for ever with all your ſinful courſes and companions, Rom. 6. 16. His Servants you are to whom you obey. Be they as pleaſant and profitable as your right Hand or Eye, they muſt be pluckt out, and cut off, Mat. 5. 29, 30. Doth this ſound harſh and unpleaſant to your Ears? Doth this cauſe the demur? O conſider, what it is to part with ſin; it is but to part with the Diſeaſe of your Souls, and the Inſtruments of your everlaſting ruin. Which of you would not be glad to part with a Fever, the Stone or Dropſie? What is Paſſion, but the Fever of the Soul? What is a hard Heart, but a Stone? What is Covetouſneſs and Earthly-mindedneſs, but the inſatiable Dropſie of the Soul? Now if Men would be glad to be rid of ſuch dreadful Diſeaſes in their Bodies, and be reſtored to ſoundneſs, eaſe and health; how much more ſhould you be glad to be rid of your Corruptions, and have the rectitude, eaſe and pleaſure of your Soul reſtored again? yea, inſtead of theſe impure, vitious, brutiſh pleaſures you have taken in ſin, you ſhall enjoy the pure, divine, ſutable and everlaſting pleaſures of Holineſs. Conſider now, and accordingly make your choice, whether you will take the pleaſures of Sin which are but for a ſeaſon, in exchange for the everlaſting Joys which are at God's right Hand for ever.

2. There are other things which you may be called to part with, and give up for Chriſt; it is uncertain whether God may actually call you to part with your Liberties, Eſtates, Relations, and Lives for Chriſt. Many are never actually called forth to ſuch ſufferings; but becauſe many are, and every one of you may be ſo called, you muſt realize them, ponder them, and ſubſcribe thoſe very terms, making full account of theſe things as if they were now before you, Luk. 9. 23. For ſo Chriſt hath propounded them; but then withal, weigh theſe troubles with the gain and advantages you ſhall have by them, and not ſingly and alone by themſelves; for ſo Chriſt hath preſented them to you, Mat. 19. 28. And every one that hath forſaken Houſes, or Brethren, or Siſters, or Father, or Mother, or Wife, or Children, or Lands, for my Name ſake, ſhall receive a hundred fold, and ſhall inherit everlaſting life.

Now, if you think ſuch gainful troubles, ſuch Soul-inriching loſſes, be worth accepting for Chriſts ſake; then cloſe the match with Chriſt, and bring the matter to a concluſion: Do not befool your ſelves with a fond and groundleſs preſumption that theſe things will never befal you. I fear many flatter themſelves with ſuch vain hopes; the Lord knows how ſoon theſe ſuppoſitions, at a diſtance, may be turned into realitys before your Eyes: You have much reaſon to expect them, and much more to embrace them whenever Chriſt ſhall call you to them. This is the great Work you have now to do; and really you cannot ſafely demur any longer; this matter muſt come to a concluſion, and the ſooner the better. For you know (1.) that your Lives are immediately uncertain, and it is an unaccountable madneſs to let the great concern of your Salvation lie one day or night at hazard; your breath is continually coming and going, and that which is going, muſt at laſt be gone, James 4. 14. Your Souls hang over everlaſting dangers by the ſingle thred of that feeble breath which plays in your Noſtrils, and every Diſeaſe is like the flame of a Candle held under that thred; and can it either be ſafe or comfortable, to delay ſo great Work as this, upon which all your expectations of eternal bleſſedneſs depend? (2.) Not only your Lives are hazardous and uncertain, but the enjoyment of the Goſpel, and all the opportunities and means of your Converſion, are as uncertain as they. 'Tis true, and to the glory of God be it acknowledged, we now enjoy the freedom and fulneſs of Goſpel-mercies: but where has God made any ſuch ſettlement of theſe bleſſings upon you as puts the enjoyment of them out of hazard? The rain is over, but yet the clouds may return after the rain; we are upon our good behaviour: if it bring forth the fruits of your Converſion, well; if not, the Ax lieth at the root of the tree, Mat. 3. 10. And if God removes the Goſpel from among us, (as our delays and triflings provoke him to do) then the Treaty is ended, and there's little probability that any thing further will be done betwixt Chriſt and you, Luk. 13. 25. (3.) Bring this matter to an iſſue, with all due ſpeed, becauſe you are not capable to give one ſound reaſon for a moments delay of ſo great and weighty a concernment. Can you be ſafe too ſoon? Can you be happy too ſoon? Certainly you cannot be out of the danger of Hell too ſoon; and therefore why ſhould not your cloſing with Chriſt upon the terms propounded, be your very next work? For certainly if the buſineſs, the main work and buſineſs of every Mans life, be to fly from the wrath to come, as indeed it is, Mat. 3. 7. and to fly for refuge to Jeſus Chriſt, as indeed it is, Heb. 6. 18. then certainly, all delays are highly dangerous in ſuch a buſineſs as this; the Manſlayer, when flying to the Refuge-City before the avenger of Blood, when his Heart was hot within him, did not think he could recover the City too ſoon. And now ſet all your own reaſon to work upon this matter; put the caſe as really it is: I am fleeing from wrath to come; the Juſtice of God, and Curſes of the Law are cloſely purſuing me; is it reaſonable that I now ſit down in the way to gather flowers, or play with trifles? For ſuch are all our other concernments in this World compared with our Salvation. (4.) Bring this Treaty to an iſſue with all due ſpeed, becauſe moſt Souls that periſh, periſh by delays; Men think they have time enough before them, and that to morrow will be as to day, and ſo Satan gets part by part, when he had not confidence to demand in the whole lump. Moſt that periſh under the Goſpel, had convictions upon their Conſciences, and vain purpoſes in their Hearts; but not bringing them to a ſpeedy execution, that was their undoing, James 1. 24. He beholdeth himſelf and goeth his way, and ſtraightway forgets what manner of perſon he was. It is an alluſion to a Man that looks in the morning into a Glaſs, where he diſcerns a ſpot upon his Face, and reſolves with himſelf anon to waſh it off; but ſome diverſion or other falls in, other matters take up his thoughts, and ſo the ſpot remains all day, and he carries it with him to bed at night.

O

O theſe delays are the undoing of millions. (5.) Delay not to cloſe this Treaty with Chriſt, becauſe all delay increaſes the difficulty, and the longer you neglect, the more will your Hearts be hardned by the deceitfulneſs of ſin, Heb. 3. 13. Continuance in ſin, and quenching of Convictions, do ſenſibly harden the Heart, and ſtiffen the Will. Under the firſt convictions the Heart is tender, the affections flowing: O if this advantage were apprehended, and purſued, how ſoon might the work come to a comfortable concluſion! but after a while thoſe Soul-affecting words, Sin, Chriſt, Heaven, Hell, Death and Eternity, will become words of a common ſound. (6.) And laſtly, Beware of delays in this matter, becauſe you can never expect a fitter and fairer opportunity and ſeaſon for the diſpatch of this great concernment, than by the ſpecial indulgence of Heaven you enjoy this day, 2 Cor. 6. 1, 2. Now is the accepted time, now is the day of Salvation. You have now the Wind and Tide with you; if you will not weigh Anchor now, you may lie Windbound to your dying day; what advantages can you reaſonably expect, which God hath not furniſhed you with at this day? You have the means of Grace among you, you have liberty and freedom to attend on thoſe means without fear. Say not, I have ſuch, or ſuch troubles and encumbrances in the World; for you muſt never expect to be without them, except you only ſhall find the World another thing than all others find it. Have you health? O what a precious ſeaſon and advantage is that! Art thou ſick? O what a ſpur is that! What is to be done muſt be done quickly.

III. Uſe for Direction.

But it may be ſome Souls will plead ignorance, that they know not how to manage and tranſact ſo great a concernment with Chriſt, and therefore ſet not about it; and it is very likely there may be much truth in that Plea. For the help and aſſiſtance of ſuch Souls, I will gather up the ſum of what hath been, and ought to be further ſpoken about this matter, in the following Directions; ſo that nothing but your unwillingneſs and ſlothfulneſs ſhall remain to hinder you.

Direct. 1. If ever you bring the Treaty betwixt Chriſt and your Souls to a happy iſſue and concluſion, you muſt, as before was noted, ſit down and count the coſt, Luke 14. 28. 'twill be in vain elſe to engage your ſelves in the profeſſion of Religion; it is not Chriſt's deſign to draw you under a raſh inconſiderate engagement, and ſo to reap more diſhonour by your Apoſtacy and Hypocriſy than ever he ſhall have glory by your Profeſſion. No, he would have you to foreſee and ſeriouſly bethink your ſelves of all the outward troubles and inconveniences you may afterwards meet with for his ſake. You are to embark your ſelves with Chriſt, and abide with him in ſtorms, as well as Halcyon days; you muſt follow the Lamb whitherſoever he goeth, Rev. 14. 4. There's no retreating after engagement to Chriſt; If any Man draw back, my Soul ſhall have no pleaſure in him, Heb. 10. 38. 'Tis eternal death by that martial Law of Heaven to run from Chriſt's colours in the day of battel. Well then, retire thy ſelf into the innermoſt cloſet of thy Soul; ſit quiet and patiently there till thou haſt debated this matter fully with thy own thoughts, and haſt ballanced the good and the evil, the profits and loſſes of Religion; for want of this the Church is filled with Hypocrites, and Hell with inconſiderate and raſh Profeſſors: the more we deliberate, the better we ſhall conclude.

Direct. 2. Having debated the matter over and over in thy moſt ſedate and ſerious thoughts, let not Satan diſcourage thee from caſting thy Soul at Chriſt's Feet with a hearty conſent to all his terms, for want of ſuch and ſuch qualifications as thou canſt not find in thine own Soul. 'Tis uſual for Satan to ſuggeſt at this time, the want of greater ſorrow and humiliation for ſin; that the Soul hath not lain long enough under the humbling work of the Law; that the aggravations of its ſins have been ſuch, that there is no hope of acceptance. Free thy Soul from theſe ſnares of Satan by the conſideration of this unqueſtionable truth; That Chriſt expects from thee no more humiliation than what produceth ſuch a hearty deliberate conſent, as thy Will is now to give; and ſuch a conſent once gained, no aggravation of ſin is pleadable againſt the duty of believing.

Direct. 3. Diſtruſt not the ſincerity of Chriſt in thoſe gracious offers he makes unto coming Souls. Be ſatisfied, he ſpeaks his very Heart in them to thee; the Devil labours to ſow jealouſie and beget ſuſpicions in the Hearts of poor convinced ſinners, that they will not find ſuch a welcom entertainment with Chriſt as he ſeems to promiſe them, in thoſe encouraging Scriptures, Mat. 11. 28, 29. John 6. 37. but that ſomething elſe lies hid in thoſe Scriptures, as a myſtery which they underſtand not; and ſo by ſhaking the aſſenting act, labours to hinder the accepting act of Faith. This is a caſe as common as it is ſad; the Lord help poor Souls to avoid this ſnare, leſt inſtead of honouring Chriſt by a reſolved adherence to him, they make him a lier, and impute inſincerity to the God of truth. For he that believeth not, hath made him a lier.

Direct. 4. Look up to God for power to enable you to come to Chriſt in this ſupernatural and difficult work of Faith. Don't think Faith is of the growth of thine own Heart; No Man can come unto me, ſaith Chriſt, except my Father, which hath ſent me, draw him. There is a legal Spirit working under Evangelical pretences in many Souls; they look within them to find that which is quite above them: the Apoſtle points you to the fountain of Faith, in Eph. 2. 8. It is not of your ſelves, it is the gift of God. 'Tis one of the greateſt difficulties in the World to believe. For if the power of God muſt be owned as the cauſe of every new degree of Faith, in the greateſt believers in the World, as is plain, Luke 17. 5. The Apoſtles ſaid unto the Lord, Increaſe our Faith: How much more is the production of Faith it ſelf, and the firſt vital act thereof, to be aſcribed to the Almighty Power of God?

Direct. 5. Keeping thine Eye of Expectation upon that Almighty Power, pray and plead with the Lord aſſiduouſly and importunately for the exerting of that Power upon thy Soul; and give not over thy Suit till thou feel that Power coming upon thee. The time of believing is a time of earneſt pleading thine own danger and neceſſity; and the Spirit of the Lord improving them, will abundantly furniſh thee with Pleas, and Arguments to inforce this Suit. Such as theſe, (1.) Lord, I have thy call and invitation, yea, I have thy command to encourage me to believe; it is not preſumption therefore in thy poor Creature to come after thou haſt invited and commanded me; hadſt thou not encouraged me, I durſt not have moved towards thee: Lord, whoſe Word is it, 1 Joh. 3. 23. is it not thine own? This makes my Faith an act of obedience. (2.) Yea, Lord, I have thy promiſe as well as thy command, made upon no other condition but my coming to thee: Bleſſed Jeſus, haſt not thou ſaid, John 6. 37. Him that cometh unto me I will in no wiſe caſt out? An invitation is much, but thy promiſe is more. (3.) O my God, I have not only thy command making it my duty to believe, and thy promiſe to encourage me to that duty, but I have the examples of other ſinners that came unto thee long ago, and thou didſt not reject them; nor do I abuſe thoſe examples in drawing incouragement from them, for it was thy very deſign in recording them, that they might be ſo many patterns to all that ſhould hereafter believe on thee, 1 Tim. 1. 16. (4.) O my God, I am ſhut up under a plain neceſſity, I have no other way to take; thus ſtands the caſe with me, I am beaten off from all other refuges, there is no help for me in Angels nor Men, in duties or ſelf-righteouſneſs, in thee only my Soul can find reſt. I am ſhut up to thee as to the only door of hope, Gal. 3. 23. here I muſt ſpeed or periſh; my Soul is burdened and wearied, I know not how to diſpoſe of it, but into thy Hands; nor where to lay the burden of my guilt but upon thee: If I miſs here, I am gone for ever. (5.) Lord, I am willing to renounce and abandon all other hopes, refuges and righteouſneſſes, and to ſtick to, and rely upon thee only. Duties cannot juſtifie me, tears cannot waſh me, reformation cannot ſave me; nothing but thy Righteouſneſs can anſwer my end: I come to thee a poor naked Creature, ſaying as the Church, Hoſ. 14. 3. Aſhur ſhall not ſave us, &c. for in thee do the fatherleſs find mercy. Thus plead it with God, and ſtill remember you are pleading for Life, yea, for your eternal Life.

Direct. 6. Labour to make a reſolved adventure upon Chriſt amidſt all thoſe encouragements, let the iſſue be what it will; reſolve to venture tho you have not the leaſt degree of aſſurance that you ſhall be accepted and pardoned. This is that brave and noble act of Faith which carries the Soul to Chriſt; much as Heſter came to the King, Yet will I go in to the King, and if I periſh, I periſh, Heſt. 4. 16. It pities me to think how the ſaving act of Faith is groſly miſtaken in the World; the generality think it is enough for them to believe that Chriſt died for ſinners, and therefore for them as well as any other; but you ſee Faith is another matter: O there are great difficulties and mighty wreſtlings in the Work of Believing; 'tis a great matter for a poor convinced ſinner, in the face of ſo much guilt and vileneſs, and amidſt ſuch manifold damps and diſcouragements from Satan, to caſt and adventure himſelf upon Chriſt, and that upon ſuch ſelf-denying terms: but the pinch of neceſſity will bring the Soul to this, for now it reaſons with it ſelf as the Lepers did, 2 Kings 7. 4, 5. If we go to the Camp of the Aſſyrians, we can but die; and if we abide here, we muſt certainly die: thus here, if I ſit ſtill in the ſtate of Nature, and ſtill continue demurring and delaying, my damnation is unavoidable, to Hell I muſt go; and if I caſt my ſelf upon Chriſt, I can but be rejected: but he hath ſaid, He will not caſt out thoſe that come unto him; in this way of Faith there is a poſſibility of Salvation, yea, there dawns from it a ſtrong probability; this therefore is my only way, To him I will go, and if I periſh, I periſh.

Direct. 7. Never meaſure the grace of God, nor the mercy of Chriſt, by the Rule of your own narrow conceptions and apprehenſions of him; but believe them to be far greater than your contracted narrow underſtanding repreſents them to you. Our caſting of the pardoning power and mercy of God into the mold of our own thoughts, disfigures and alters them, ſo that they look not like themſelves, but with a very diſcouraging aſpect upon our Souls; by this Satan keeps off many a Soul from coming to Chriſt; The Lord knows how to forgive thee, tho thou ſcarce knoweſt how to forgive thy ſelf for the injuries thou haſt done againſt him; that's a very conſiderable Scripture to this purpoſe, in Iſa. 55. 7, 8, 9. Let the wicked forſake his way, and the unrighteous Man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, ſaith the Lord. For as the Heavens are higher than the Earth, ſo are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts. Man lies under a double miſery, one by reaſon of Affliction, another by reaſon of Tranſgreſſion; concerning both theſe, God's thoughts are not as ours, but far above what we can think: either (1.) with ſimple cogitation; i. e. we cannot think ſuch thoughts to others, under miſery in themſelves, or under tranſgreſſion againſt us, as God doth towards us. Or (2.) by way of reflexive comprehenſion; i. e. we cannot conceive what thoſe thoughts of God are towards us, when we are under miſery or ſin, juſt as he thinks them; ſtill his thoughts will be above ours, as the Heavens are above the Earth: ſuch is the altitude of Heaven above the Earth, that the vaſt body of the whole Earth is but a ſmall inconſiderable point to it; the higheſt Cedars, Mountains, Clouds, cannot reach it. God's thoughts are infinite, ours finite; his thoughts are continued, ours interrupted and at a ſtand; his are immutable, ours changeable; his are intuitive, ours diſcurſive: therefore never meaſure his by your own; the thoughts of pardoning Grace in him, are rich, plenteous, and glorious; but when our unbelieving Hearts have practiſed upon them, they are quiet another thing. Thou ſayeſt, how can ſuch a Wretch as I obtain mercy? Thou knoweſt not, but the Lord knoweth. O if we could take in ſuch a proper Idea and apprehenſion of the mercy and goodneſs of God, as he hath given of them himſelf, in Exod. 34. 6, 7. this would bring you to Chriſt with much incouragement.

Direct. 8. Be not diſcouraged in the work of Faith, tho no peace or comfort ſhould come in by the firſt act of it; nay, tho there ſhould be an increaſe of trouble for the preſent: the firſt ſaving act of Faith certainly puts you into a ſtate of peace, but it may not preſently produce the ſenſe of peace; you may after you have believed and really cloſed with Chriſt, meet with ſome diſcouragements which may make you queſtion whether Chriſt has received you or no, whether he has any love for your Souls or no? Yet hold on, whether comfort come or not; tho Chriſt and Comfort are inſeparable, yet Chriſt and the ſenſe of Comfort are not ſo: think not that all your troubles ſhall be over as ſoon as ever you believe, becauſe it is ſaid, Heb. 4. 3. We who have believed do enter into reſt: That Scripture ſpeaks of a ſtate of reſt, and not of the preſent or continued ſenſe of reſt. The Woman of Canaan, in Matth. 15. 26, 27. did really believe in Chriſt, yet met with ſore trials under the firſt act of her Faith; yet this took her not off from the work of Faith, but rather quickned and inflamed her the more; ſhe was glad of a word from Chriſt, and ſhe expected deeds. O but the words were diſcouraging, It is not meet to take the Childrens bread and give it to Dogs; yet this beats not off her Faith, the Dog belongs to the Family, and crumbs to the Dog. O Woman, ſaith Chriſt, great is thy Faith. If you reſolve for Chriſt, you muſt not be diſcouraged, a reſolute Faith overcomes all difficulties. You pray, you believe, and yet no comfort; well, the viſion of Peace is for an appointed time, at the end it will ſpeak and not lie.

Direct. 9. In your treating with Chriſt have a care of all ſecret reſerves, that will ſpoil the bargain betwixt Chriſt and you; If I regard iniquity in my Heart, God will not hear my prayer, ſaith David: If there be but a reſerve of one luſt, that reſerve will break off the Treaty; be honeſt with Chriſt, and ſay not of any ſin, the Lord be merciful to me in this; and be ſure there be no ſecret purpoſe or reſerve in thy Heart for a retreat in time of danger, but imbark thy ſelf with Chriſt for Storms and Tempeſts, Troubles and Afflictions, as well as Peace and Proſperity. Chriſt beſtows himſelf wholly upon you, and he expects the ſame from you; give up all, or you will get nothing from him.

Direct. 10. Cloſe up your Treaty with Chriſt by a ſolemn Covenant with him; ingage your ſelves to be the Lord's: One ſhall ſay I am the Lord's, and another ſhall ſubſcribe with his Hand to the Holy One of Iſrael. Here you have two things to do: (1.) To give your ſelves up to Chriſt, according to that expreſſion, 2 Cor. 8. 5. You gave your ſelves to the Lord. Make over Soul and Body, Time and Talents, henceforth to be dedicated things to his Service. (2.) Take Chriſt in both his Natures, and in all his Offices to be yours; and to this Covenant you are to ſtand to the laſt breath, whatever times or troubles ſhall come. This conſent of thy Heart to be Chriſt's, this choice of thy Will in taking him for thine, is but the eccho of Chriſt's choice of thee; and I would rather have ſuch an evidence of my intereſt in him, than a voice from Heaven to aſſure me that Chriſt is mine.

SERMON VII.

Revel. III. 20.

Behold I ſtand at the door and knock; [if any Man] hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will ſup with him, and he with me.

If any Man.

ἐάν τὶς. Qualiſcunque fuerit peccator, Hypocrita, qui diu obſtitit Evangelio.

THIS expreſſion extends the gracious offer of Chriſt, and brings it home to every hearer. 'Tis a Proclamation with a Si quis, if any Man; as if Chriſt ſhould ſay, I will have this offer of my Grace to go round to every particular perſon; if thou, or thou, or thou, the greateſt, the vileſt of ſinners, of what quality or condition ſoever, old or young, profane or hypocritical, will hear my voice and open to me, I will come in to their Souls. And hereby all objections are obviated; as for example, I am the greateſt of ſinners, ſaith one; I have been a ſelf-cozening hypocrite, ſaith another; I have reſiſted Grace too long, and doubt the time of Mercy is paſt, ſaith a third. The ground of all theſe, and a thouſand more objections, is taken away by the gracious extent of Chriſt's offer in the Text: For who is he that can limit where Chriſt doth not? This gives us a Seventh profitable and comfortable Obſervation, which is this,

Doct. 7. That Jeſus Chriſt will not refuſe to come in to the Soul of the vileſt ſinner, when once it is made heartily willing to open to him.

If any Man open, I will come in to him. It is not unworthineſs, but unwillingneſs that bars any Man from Chriſt: thouſands have miſt of Chriſt by their unwillingneſs, but Chriſt never put off one Soul upon account of its unworthineſs; Chriſt is not the Sale, but the Gift of God; you come not to make a bargain, but to receive a free gift: Faith is a marriage with Chriſt, wherein nothing but your hearty conſent is expected; ſo runs the ſtrain of the whole Scriptures, Iſa. 55. 1. Ho every one that thirſteth, come ye to the waters; and he that hath no money, (i. e. no merit, no worthineſs of his own) let him come. Behold the free grace of Chriſt to the vileſt and unworthieſt of ſinners. So Rev. 22. 17. Let him that is athirſt come; and whoſoever will, let him come, and take the water of Life freely. And in the very phraſe of my Text he ſpeaks again, John 7. 37. If any Man thirſt, let him come to me and drink. 'Tis very obſervable, throughout the whole Goſpel, that Chriſt never made any objection againſt any Soul that came to him upon the account of its ſinfulneſs and unworthineſs; but all the complaints of Chriſt are ſtill upon the account of their unwillingneſs: ſo in his complaint over Jeruſalem, Luke 13. 34. I would, but you would not; ſo again, John 5. 40. You will not come unto me, that you might have life. The complaint is ſtill upon their unwillingneſs. In the ſtating of this Point, I ſhall Doctrinally diſcourſe theſe two things.

1. What it is to be truly willing to receive Jeſus Chriſt.
2. How it appears that they who are ſo, ſhall cercertainly be received, and graciouſly accepted of him.

Firſt, What it is to be truly willing to receive Jeſus Chriſt; for this is meant by opening to him. Now this implies and involves in it many great and weighty things.

1. It implies and neceſſarily includes the right underſtanding and true apprehenſion of Goſpel Terms and Articles: theſe muſt be known, pondered and duly conſidered, before the Will can ſavingly open in an act of conſent to Chriſt's offer. I deſire this may be eſpecially obſerved, becauſe multitudes are miſtaken and deceived about this thing: he that doth not conſider, doth not conſent; you muſt exerciſe your underſtandings upon the Terms and Articles of Chriſtianity, or elſe your conſent is raſh, blindfold and unſtable. This in Luke 14. 13. is called conſulting; the conſent of Faith is the reſult of many previous conſultations and debates in the mind; the Soul that comes to Chriſt muſt take up Religion in his moſt ſedate and ſerious thoughts; turn both ſides of it, the dark as well as the bright ſide of Religion, to the Eye of his mind; ballance all the conveniencies and inconveniencies, loſſes as well as gains. If I open to Chriſt, this I ſhall gain, but that I muſt loſe; I cannot ſeparate Chriſt from ſufferings, Chriſt will ſeparate me from my ſins; if I ſeek him, I muſt let them go; if I profeſs Chriſt, Providence will one time or other bring me to this Dilemma, either Chriſt or earthly Comforts muſt go: 'tis neceſſary therefore that I now propound to my ſelf what Providence may one time or other propound to me; he hath ſet down his terms, Mat. 16. 24. If any Man will come after me, let him deny himſelf, and take up his croſs and follow me. This ſelf-denial deſerves ſerious conſideration; for Chriſt extends it to natural ſelf, righteous ſelf, and civil ſelf; and requires that I give up my Life, my Liberty, my Eſtate and Relations, my own Righteouſneſs, as hard to be parted with as any of the former. I muſt take up my Croſs, that is, the ſufferings and troubles God ſhall appoint for me, and which I cannot avoid or eſcape without ſin; and I muſt follow Chriſt, follow him whitherſoever he goes. I know not what Religion may coſt me before I die; all this it hath coſt others; and there is no bringing down Chriſt's terms lower than he has laid them. I muſt come up to them, they will not come down to me; if I like them not as Chriſt hath left them, the Treaty between him and me is ended: Mat. 10. 37, 38. He that loveth Father or Mother more than me, is not worthy of me: And he that loveth Son or Daughter more than me, is not worthy of me: And he that taketh not his Croſs, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me. Where by worthineſs we are not to underſtand the meritoriouſneſs of theſe acts, but the neceſſary qualification of the Will, and due qualification of a comer unto Chriſt; theſe previous conſultations, and debates in the Mind, prepare and enable the Will to make a ſerious and well adviſed choice of Chriſt, and for want of this there are ſuch ſwarms of Hypocrites and Apoſtates in the World.

2. It implies ſuch a ſenſe of miſery in us, and of the neceſſity and excellency of Chriſt, as determines the Will to the choice of him, notwithſtanding all thoſe difficulties and troubles which have fallen, or can fall under conſideration and debate in the Mind. When the Soul ſees that in Chriſt which preponderates all ſufferings, all loſſes, all reproaches, &c. and then determins, I will have Chriſt tho I ſacrifice all that is dear to me in the World for him; this is to be truly willing to open to Chriſt. 'Tis true, the enjoyments of this World are underſtood by Chriſtians as much as other Men; they have a feeling ſenſe of the ſweetneſs and comfort of earthly enjoyments; their Souls have as much affection to the Body as other Men; they underſtand the charming Language of the World, and their dear Relations in it as well as others; only they ſee a greater neceſſity of Chriſt, and a greater worth in Chriſt, than they do in theſe things. You read, Lam. 1. 11. that in the famine of Jeruſalem they gave their pleaſant things for meat to relieve their Soul; Jewels, Bracelets, Gold, Silver, any thing for Bread: they underſtood the worth of thoſe things, knew the price and coſt of them; but away they go to preſerve Life. So 'tis here, no earthly enjoyment, of what value ſoever it be, hath ſuch an excellency in it, ſuch an abſolute neceſſity of enjoying it as Chriſt hath.

Obj. But O ſaith the poor Soul, Who can do this? I am willing to have Chriſt, and to come up to every term he hath laid down in the Goſpel; I am willing to part with every ſin, and to endure any ſuffering for Chriſt: but O I tremble to think, if it ſhould come to a Priſon, to a Stake, to an actual ſeparation from all my Comforts and Relations in the World, what I ſhall do for ſtrength to go thro ſuch hard and difficult work as this. Here's the great rub in the way of many Souls, they find a willingneſs, but fear the want of ſtrength.

Anſ. How or where you ſhall find ſtrength to endure and ſuffer theſe things for Chriſt, is not the queſtion now before you. God will take care for that, and it ſhall be given you that hour, and ſo others have found, who have had the very ſame fears you have. I ſay, the queſtion is not whether you be able, but whether you be heartily willing. Chriſt asks but your Will, he will provide Ability: the greateſt Believer in the World cannot ſay I am able to ſuffer this or that for Chriſt; but the leaſt Believer in the World muſt ſay, I am willing, the Lord aſſiſting me, to endure and ſuffer all things for his ſake. And this is the ſecond thing included in opening to Chriſt.

3. The third thing which perfects and conſummates the whole act, is an entire choice of Jeſus Chriſt upon all thoſe terms preſcribed by him; the entireneſs of the choice, without halving or dividing, excepting or reſerving, makes the conſent full and effectual. There is a twofold conſent of the Will to Chriſt.

(1.) One partial, and with exception.

(2.) The other entire, and without any reſervation.

(1.) There is a partial conſent which is always hypocritical, defective, lame and ineffectual; thus the Hypocrite conſents to the offer of Chriſt: he is really willing to have the pardons of Chriſt, and the glory purchaſed by Chriſt; but to part with his beloved luſts, and to give up his earthly enjoyments, that his Will cannot conſent to.

(2.) There is a full and entire conſent of the Will, called, A believing with all the Heart, Acts 8. 37. Now this integrity and fulneſs of the Will's choice, is that which cloſes the match betwixt Chriſt and the Soul, and frees a Man from the danger of hypocriſie. And there are three things which make the conſent to, and choice of Chriſt compleat and full.

1. When we give up all we are and have, to him.
2. When we derive and draw all we want, from him.
3. When we are ready to deny any thing for his ſake.

1. We do then heartily conſent to be Chriſt's when we give up all we are and have, to him; ſo that after this choice of Chriſt we look upon our ſelves thenceforth as none of our own, but bought with a price, to glorifie God in our Body and Soul, which are his, 1 Cor. 6. 19, 20. Soul and Body is all that we are, and both theſe parts of our ſelves do now paſs, by an act of our own conſent, into the Redeemer's right; we are not to have the diſpoſe of them, that belongs to him that purchaſed them. You know in all purchaſes Property is altered: you did live as your own, followed your own Wills, Luſts, Paſſions, were under the dominion and at the beck of every Luſt; but now the caſe is altered, Titus 3. 3. We our ſelves were ſometimes fooliſh, diſobedient, deceived, ſerving divers luſts and pleaſures: So many Luſts, ſo many Lords; but now the caſe is altered, we have given our ſelves to Chriſt, no more to be ſwayed this way or that, againſt his Word, and the voice of our own Conſcience. Thus our Souls and Bodies are his, hallowed, dedicated things to Chriſt, Temples for God to dwell in: and then all other things follow of courſe; if I am the Lord's, then my time, my talents, and all that I have is his.

2. As we muſt give up all to Chriſt, ſo we muſt derive and draw all we want from him; elſe your choice of Chriſt is not entire and full: God hath ſtored up in Chriſt all that you want, a ſutable and full ſupply for every need; and made it all communicable to you, 1 Cor. 1. 30. Who of God is made unto us wiſdom and righteouſneſs, ſanctification and redemption. All the believers freſh ſprings are in Chriſt: Have I any difficult buſineſs to do that requires counſel? then I muſt repair to Chriſt for Righteouſneſs: Is my Soul defiled by corruption? then muſt I go to Chriſt for Sanctification: Do I groan under troubles of Soul or Body, temptations, afflictions? &c. then muſt I relieve my ſelf by the Faith and Hope of that compleat Redemption, and final deliverance procured by Chriſt from all theſe. If you conſent to be Chriſt's, you muſt not look for Juſtification, partly upon his Righteouſneſs, and partly upon your own Graces and Duties; but muſt make mention of his Righteouſneſs, even of his only. If there be but one Conduit in a Town, and not a drop of Water to be had elſewhere, then all the Inhabitants of that Town repair thither for Water. In the whole City of God there is but one Conduit, one Fountain, and that is Chriſt; there's not a drop of Righteouſneſs, Holineſs, Strength or Comfort to be had elſewhere: Then do we fetch all from Chriſt, when we live upon him, as the new-born Infant doth upon the Mothers Breaſt.

3. Then is our conſent to, and choice of Chriſt intire and full, when we are ready to deny, give up, and part with any thing we have for his ſake; reckoning nothing to be loſt to us, which goes to the glory of Chriſt; how dear ſoever our Liberties, Eſtates or Lives are to us, if the Lord have need of them, we muſt let them go: thus you read, Rev. 12. 11. They loved not their lives unto the death. Theſe three things ſhew ſaving Faith to be another manner of thing than the World generally underſtands it to be; and it is impoſſible for any Mans Will to open to, and receive Chriſt upon terms of ſuch deep ſelf-denial as theſe, until there be,

1. A Conviction of our ſin and miſery.
2. A Diſcovery of Chriſt in his glory and neceſſity.
3. The drawing Power of the Spirit upon the Soul.

1. Conviction of our ſin and miſery makes theſe terms of Religion acceptable; poor ſinners ſtand huckling with Chriſt, excepting and objecting againſt his terms until the Lord hath ſhaken them by Conviction over Hell, made them to ſee the dreadful danger they are in; and then the next cry is, Men and Brethren, what ſhall we do? Acts 2. 37. q. d. Preſcribe any means, impoſe upon us the greateſt difficulties, we are willing to comply with them.

2. Nor will Souls ever comply with theſe terms of the Goſpel until a diſcovery hath been made to them of Jeſus Chriſt in his glory and neceſſity: when a Man feels his wants, and ſees a compleat remedy, his Will then complies and bows readily and freely; the convinced Sinner ſees a full and ſutable ſupply in Chriſt for all his wants, a compleat Saviour in whom there is nothing defective, but in all reſpects according to the wiſh of a ſinners heart, 1 Cor. 1. 24.

3. To all this muſt be ſuperadded the powerful drawings of the Spirit; in the virtue whereof the Will comes home to Chriſt, John 6. 44. No Man can come unto me, except the Father which hath ſent me, draw him. When theſe things are paſt upon the Soul, then it hears Chriſt's voice, his powerful call, which breaks aſunder all the ties and bonds betwixt a Man and his Luſts, a Man and his earthly enjoyments; and without theſe things the Will is unperſuadable to comply with the difficulties and ſeverities of Religion. This is the firſt thing, what the opening of the door, or conſent of the Will to receive Chriſt is.

Secondly, the next thing to be opened in its order, is, How it appears that Jeſus Chriſt will not refuſe to come into the Soul of any ſinner, be his ſins or unworthineſs never ſo great, when once he is made heartily willing thus to embrace and receive Chriſt upon his own terms. O ſinner, what good tidings are theſe to thy Soul, that Chriſt will not diſdain to be in union and communion with thee, as vile as thou art, if thy Will thus ſtand open to him! The tidings are ſweet, and I hope thou wilt find them as ſure and certain, as they are ſweet and comfortable, when thou ſhalt have ſeriouſly peruſed and pondered the following Evidences.

Evidence 1. The truth of this ſweet aſſertion clearly evidenceth it ſelf from the form and manner of Goſpel-invitations; they are deſignedly put into large, general, free, and moſt extenſive terms, to aſſure ſinners that Chriſt will not be ſhy of the worſt ſinner in the World, thus made willing to embrace him; they are ſo framed on purpoſe to anticipate or take away all objections from ſinners. No other condition is put in the Goſpel, but this only, Art thou heartily willing to take Chriſt upon his own terms? The offers of Chriſt are extended to all that thirſt and deſire after him, John 7. 37. to the greateſt of ſinners, upon this only condition, that they be willing and obedient, Iſa. 1. 18, 19. Go preach the Goſpel to every Creature: He that believeth ſhall be ſaved, Mark 16. 15, 16. 'Tis extended to all Nations, For in Chriſt Jeſus there is neither Greek nor Jew, Circumciſion nor Uncircumciſion, Barbarian, Scythian, Bond or Free, Col. 3. 11. If there be any poor Soul, of any quality or condition whatſoever, under the cope of Heaven, whoſe Will is wrought up to a hearty compliance with the terms of the Goſpel, Chriſt will not be ſhy of coming into that Soul, tho it have been never ſo vile and abominable; the Heart of a Mary Magdalen, which had been a Habitation of Devils; the Soul of a Saul, a bloody raging perſecutor, will make as delightful Habitations for Chriſt, as the Soul of the moſt civilized perſon in the World, when once the Will is thus opened.

Evidence 2. The truth of this aſſertion further appears, from the incouraging Promiſes made by Chriſt unto all who are thus made willing to come unto him: All the promiſes, with one Mouth, aſſure the willing ſinner of a welcome with Chriſt; ſo doth that glorious Promiſe to which ſo many thouſand Souls have been beholden for encouragement and help, at their firſt coming to Chriſt, John 6. 37, 38. All that the Father hath given me, ſhall come to me; and him that cometh to me, I will in no wiſe caſt out. For I came down from Heaven not to do mine own will, but the will of him that ſent me. Note here, (1.) That this is not a Promiſe made to them that are already in Chriſt, that they ſhall never be caſt out by Apoſtacy, or final deſertion; but it is a Promiſe made to coming Souls, to ſuch as are moving towards Chriſt under great diſcouragements, fears and tremblings. When a poor ſinner looks to Chriſt, ſees his fulneſs and ſutableneſs; and feels the pinching need and want of him; O ſaith he, that I had an Intereſt in him, tho I ſhould beg my Bread in deſolate places! But looking into his own Heart, and ſeeing ſuch a heap of guilt and unworthineſs there, then ſaith he, how can I think that ever Jeſus Chriſt will come into ſuch a Heart as this? Theſe are the Perſons upon whom this Promiſe caſts an encouraging aſpect. (2.) And becauſe the fears of ſuch poor Creatures are double to the fears that others have, Chriſt hath put a double negative into this Promiſe, for the Souls encouragement; I will not, in no caſe, or at any hand, caſt out ſuch a Soul as this. (3.) And to put all out of doubt, he doth not only aſſure the Soul that he will not, but condeſcends to give it the reaſon why, verſ. 38. I came down from Heaven not to do mine own Will, but the Will of him that ſent me. As if he ſhould ſay, This was the very errand upon which I came from Heaven; it was my great buſineſs to receive all that were made willing to embrace me; for this I had my Father's Commiſſion, Iſa. 61.1. To preach good tidings to the meek, and to bind up the broken-hearted; and to comfort all them that mourn. I cannot be faithful to the truſt committed to me by my Father, ſhould I ſhut the door upon ſuch Souls: How can Chriſt comfort the Soul that mourns, but by opening his Arms of mercy to receive it? If Chriſt ſhould ſay to a convinced mourning ſinner, Hold thy peace Soul, I will give thee Riches, Honours, and Pleaſures in the World; but as for me thou canſt not have union with me: I ſay, this would never comfort the Heart of a convinced ſinner; 'tis Chriſt, and none but Chriſt can quiet it. Like unto this is that Teſtimony and Promiſe, made on purpoſe for the incouragement of willing Souls, Acts 10. 43. To him give all the Prophets witneſs, that through his Name, whoſoever believeth in him ſhall receive remiſſion of ſins. This you ſee is a truth confirmed by the Teſtimony of all the Prophets, who foretold what his gracious readineſs to receive poor broken-hearted ſinners ſhould be; and ſure they neither did, nor could conſpire to deceive the World: Theſe gracious Aſſurances and Promiſes cut off all Pleas againſt Faith, from the greatneſs of ſin; and why ſhould we except, where God hath not excepted? Had Chriſt ſaid, all ſinners of ſuch a ſize and degree may come unto me, but let all others ſtand back, the caſe had been otherwiſe; but this Promiſe aſſures us, all that are ſincerely willing ſhall be truly welcome to Jeſus Chriſt. Moreover, theſe univerſal Promiſes take away all fear and doubt of preſumption in coming to Chriſt. That's the caſe of many a poor Soul; I am afraid, I am running out of deſpair into preſumption; I doubt I am an unbidden, and therefore ſhall be an unwelcome gueſt to Chriſt. All this is prevented and cut off by thoſe ſweet univerſal Terms inſerted on purpoſe in theſe Promiſes for our encouragement. That's the ſecond Evidence of this truth.

Evidence 3. The willingneſs of Chriſt to receive the willing Soul, how many and great ſoever its ſins and unworthineſs be, appears from the actual grants of Pardon and Mercy, even to the vileſt ſinners that ever were upon the Earth, when they thus came unto him. Here you ſee how the Waters of Free Grace riſe higher and higher; an Invitation is much, a Promiſe of welcome is more; but the actual grant of Mercy is moſt ſatisfying of all. Come on poor trembling Soul, don't be diſcouraged, ſtretch out the ſmall weak Arms of thy Faith to that great and gracious Redeemer; open thy Heart wide to receive him, he will not refuſe to come in: he hath ſealed thouſands of Pardons to as vile Wretches as thy ſelf; he never yet ſhut the door of Mercy upon a willing, hungering Soul. It is a great matter to have the Way beaten, and the Ice broken before thee, in thy way to Chriſt. If thou wert the firſt ſinner that had caſt thy Soul upon Chriſt, I confeſs I ſhould want this encouragement I am now giving thee; but when ſo many have gone before thee, and all found a welcome beyond their expectation, what incouragement doth this breath into thy trembling diſcouraged Heart, to go on and venture thy ſelf upon Chriſt as they did? What an Example have we in Manaſſeh, 2 Chron. 33. from verſe 3 to 12. an Idolater, one that uſed Enchantments and Divinations, familiar Spirits, ſhed innocent Blood in the Streets of Jeruſalem? A Man might rake the World, and hardly bring to ſight a viler Wretch, a greater Monſter in ſin and wickedneſs; yet his Heart being broken, and his Will bowed, this Man found Mercy. How great a ſinner was Mary, that came to Chriſt in the Houſe of Simon the Phariſee, Luke 7. 39. ſo notorious a ſinner, that Simon took offence at Chriſt for ſuffering ſo vile a Wretch to come into his preſence. If this Man were a Prophet, ſaith he, he would have known who, and what manner of Woman this is that toucheth him; for ſhe is a ſinner. Yet Mary's Heart being broken for ſin, and made willing to accept of a Saviour; what a gracious demonſtration of welcom did Chriſt give her, and to all other ſinners a ſingular encouragement in her Example? Once more, you have an eminent example of the abundant welcom of another ſinner to Chriſt, who own'd himſelf for the greateſt of ſinners; a Perſecutor, a Blaſphemer, Injurious; but ſaith he, I obtained Mercy, 1 Tim. 1. 16. And the Example of his gracious Entertainment with Chriſt, is recorded on purpoſe for an encouragement unto all that ſhould hereafter believe. How many thouſands are now in Hell that never ſtood guilty of greater enormities than the Corinthians did; Fornicators, Idolaters, Adulterers, Thieves, Covetous, Drunkards, Revilers, Extortioners, ſuch were ſome of them; yet Sanctified, Waſhed, Juſtified, in the Name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of our God. If ever Chriſt would have ſhut the door of Mercy upon any; if ever he would have been coy and ſhy of coming into any Souls, certainly theſe were the Souls he would have diſdained to come near. O what a demonſtration is here of that comfortable Point before us! That Chriſt will not refuſe to come into the Soul of the vileſt Sinner when once it is made heartily willing to open to him.

Evidence 4. A further Evidence of this comfortable Truth ſhall be taken from the Scripture-reſemblances of the abundant Grace of God, and riches of Mercy in Chriſt towards all broken-hearted and willing Sinners. There are ſome choſen Reſemblances and excellent Emblems, which bring down the Grace of God before the very Eyes of Men; amongſt which I will ſingle out three glorious Reſemblances of Free Grace, choſen by his Wiſdom on purpoſe for the incouragement of poor drooping Sinners. A Reſemblance from the Heavens, a reſemblance from the Sun, and a Reſemblance from the Sea; all ſuch as the Wiſdom of Men and Angels could never have choſen for ſuch a purpoſe as this is.

1. A Reſemblance from the Heavens, thoſe vaſt extended Heavens that cover and compaſs this Earth. What an inconſiderable ſpot is the whole Terreſtrial Globe, to thoſe high and all ſurrounding Heavens? and yet theſe Heavens are not at ſo vaſt a diſtance above the Earth, as the pardoning Grace of God is above the guilt, yea and the very thoughts of poor Sinners. For of the pardoning Grace of God to penitent and willing Souls, that precious Scripture ſpeaks, Iſa. 55. 8, 9. Let the wicked forſake his way, and the unrighteous Man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. O ſaith the Soul, I cannot think God will ever have Mercy on ſuch a Wretch as I; why ſaith he, verſ. 8. My thoughts are not your thoughts, and 'tis well they are not; but as the Heavens are higher than the Earth, ſo are my thoughts higher than your thoughts. You cannot take the height, nor ſound the depth of my pardoning Grace. That's one Emblem, from the unconceivable height of the Heavens above the Earth.

2. Another is taken from the Sun in the Heavens, a Creature of admirable Power and Virtue. You know, that anon this part of the World will be the Throne of Darkneſs, the Sable curtains of the Night will be ſpread over all the beauties of this part of the Earth, and it may be in the Morning a thick Fog or Miſt will cover it; thick and dark Clouds may darken the Heavens: but behold this glorious Creature the Sun chaſing before him the darkneſs of the Night, breaking up the Miſts and Fogs of the Morning, ſcattering the dark and thick Clouds of Heaven; they are all gone, and there is no appearance of them. Juſt ſo, ſaith God, ſhall it be with thy ſins, and thy Cloudy fears ariſing out of ſin, Iſa. 44. 22. I have blotted out as a thick Cloud thy tranſgreſſions, and as a Cloud thy ſins. Thy Soul is beclouded, thy fears have bemiſted thee, ſo that thou canſt not ſee the grounds of thine encouragement; but my Grace ſhall ariſe upon thee, like the Sun in the Heavens, and ſcatter all theſe diſmal Clouds both of guilt and fear, and make a clear Heaven over thee, and a clear Soul within thee. Unto you that fear my Name, ſhall the Sun of righteouſneſs ariſe with healing under his wings, Mal. 4. 2.

3. Another Reſemblance you have from the Sea, the great Abyſs, that vaſt Congregation of Waters, whoſe depth no line can fathom; Veer out as much Line as you will, you cannot touch the bottom. To this unfathomable Ocean the pardoning Grace of God is alſo reſembled, Mich. 7. 18, 19. Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and paſſeth by the tranſgreſſion of the remnant of his heritage? he retained not his anger for ever, becauſe he delighteth in mercy. He will turn again, he will have compaſſion upon us; he will ſubdue our iniquities, and thou wilt caſt all their ſins into the depths of the Sea. If the loftieſt Pyramid, or higheſt Mountain were caſt into the depth of the Sea, it would never be ſeen more by the Eyes of Men. God hath on purpoſe choſen theſe Emblems of his Grace to obviate that common diſcouragement of Satan taken from the greatneſs and aggravation of ſin; and in that caſe thou art to make uſe of them, and bleſs the Lord for them; he never deſign'd them for incouragement to Sin, but for incouragement to Repentance and Faith. That's the fourth Evidence of the Truth before us.

Evidence 5. The Truth of this Concluſion will alſo evidently appear, from the innate characters and properties of the Grace and pardoning Mercy of God towards penitent and hungring Sinners. Now there are three glorious Characters of Divine Grace, which all aſſure ſuch ſinners welcom to Chriſt, whatever they have been or done; the Grace of God ſhines forth in Scripture in three illuſtrious Characters.

1. As ſuperabounding Grace.
2. As Free Grace.
3. As Grace exerciſed with delight.

1. It is ſuperabounding Grace. Waters do not ſo abound in the Ocean, nor Light in the Sun, as Grace and Compaſſion do in the bowels of God towards broken-hearted and hungry ſinners: Iſa. 55. 6. Let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. The compaſſions of our God inſerted that word on purpoſe to relieve poor Souls fainting under the ſenſe of their abounding iniquities. Here's abundant Pardon, for abounding Guilt; and yet leſt a deſponding ſinner ſhould not find enough here to quiet his fears, the Lord goes yet farther in the expreſſion of his Grace, Rom. 5. 20. Where ſin abounded, Grace did much more abound. It overflowed all the bounds, it roſe quite above the highwater mark of Sin and Guilt; but theſe overflowings of Grace run only through that channel of all Grace, Jeſus Chriſt, to broken-hearted and obedient Sinners.

2. The Grace of God to ſuch Souls is free, every way free; it is the very deſign of the Goſpel to exhibit it in this its glory. It coſts you nothing but acceptance; it's free without merit, yea free againſt merit: you can deſerve nothing of God, therefore his Grace is free without merit; yea, you have deſerved Hell, as often as you have ſinned againſt him, and ſo it is free againſt merit. If a pardon were to be purchaſed by us, we want a ſtock for ſuch a purchaſe; neither can we borrow from Men or Angels a ſufficient ſum for ſuch a purchaſe: Bleſſed be God therefore, that it flows freely to us without money and without price, Iſa. 55. 2.

3. Grace glorious in another property alſo; which is very encouraging to the Soul of a drooping ſinner, viz. That it is the darling Attribute which God greatly delights to exerciſe. The tender Mother draws not out her aking Breaſt with ſuch delight to her hungry crying Child, as the Lord doth his Mercy and Compaſſion to broken hearted and hungry Sinners. In this Attribute, and in this property of it, his people therefore admire him: Mich. 7. 18. Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and paſſeth by the tranſgreſſion of the remnant of his heritage? He retaineth not his anger for ever, becauſe he delighteth in mercy. You cannot put Jeſus Chriſt upon a more delightful imployment, than to bind up the Wounds, and ſet the broken Bones of poor convinced humbled Sinners. Let every ſuch Soul come to Chriſt and welcom, for he greatly delights in ſuch imployments.

Evidence 6. Such Sinners need not doubt a welcome reception with Chriſt: for ſhould he reject and turn back ſuch as theſe, then none can have the benefit of his Blood; and conſequently it muſt be ſhed in vain as Water ſpilt upon the ground. The Blood of Chriſt is invaluably precious, and it cannot be loſt; it were a deſperate impeachment of the Wiſdom and Goodneſs of God to think ſo; yet ſo it muſt be, if broken-hearted and willing Souls be rejected and turned back from him. There are but two ſorts of Sinners in all the World, viz. hardned and broken-hearted Sinners; willing and unwilling Sinners. The whole World falls into theſe two ranks; as for impenitent, hardned, and obſtinate ſinners, 'tis certain they can have no benefit by the Blood of Chriſt; they ſhall die in their ſins; the Goſpel cuts them off (ſo continuing) from all expectation of pardon and mercy. x Now there is but one ſort of Sinners more left in the World, and they are convinced and humbled Sinnres, who are made heartily willing to receive Chriſt upon his own terms; who ſtretch forth the Hands of their deſires to him, and pant after an intereſt in him. Should Chriſt reject theſe alſo, who then ſhall receive the benefit of his Blood? Did Chriſt die in vain? Or can the Counſels of Heaven to prove abortive? No, no; fear not therefore to go to Chriſt, thou broken-hearted Sinner, thou poor panting, longing Soul; fear not, he will not caſt thee out.

Evidence 7. Moreover, for the encouragement of all ſuch Souls, mercy and pardon are deſigned for, and beſtowed upon the greateſt and vileſt of ſinners, to enhance and raiſe the glory of Free Grace to the higheſt pitch. God picks out ſuch ſinners as you are, on purpoſe to illuſtrate the glory of his Grace in and upon you; he knows that you to whom ſo much is forgiven, will love much, Luke 7. 47. You that have done ſo much againſt his Name and Glory, will excel others in zeal and obedience, 1 Cor. 15. 9, 10. You will go beyond others in ſervice for God, as you did in ſinning againſt him. All theſe things laid together make up a full demonſtration of the Point, That Jeſus Chriſt will not refuſe to come into the Soul of the vileſt Sinner, when once it is made heartily willing to open unto him. Which was the thing to be proved; and now our way is open to the Application of the Point, which will be exceeding uſeful for Information, Exhortation, and Conſolation.

I. Uſe for Information.

Infer. 1. Learn hence what an invaluable Mercy it is to enjoy the Goſpel in its light and liberty, which is ſo great a relief to the diſtreſſed Conſciences of ſinners.

Here only that Balm is to be found, that heals your ſpiritual Wounds. The Goſpel hath been a low-prized commodity in England, the Lord pardon the guilt thereof to us. x Ah Brethren, if you were in the Heathen World with your ſick and wounded Conſciences, what would you do? There are no Bibles, Miniſters, or Promiſes, not a breath of Chriſt, or the Blood of ſprinkling, which are the true and proper remedies of ſick Souls: that's a pitiful cry, Mich. 6. 6. Wherewith ſhall I come before the Lord, and bow my ſelf before the high God? Shall I come before him with burnt-offerings, with Calves of a year old? Will the Lord be pleaſed with thouſands of Rams, or ten thouſand Rivers of Oil? Shall I give my firſt-born for my tranſgreſſion; the fruit of my Body for the ſin of my Soul? Behold here the anguiſh of a diſtreſſed, ſin-burdened Conſcience, it would give up any thing in the World for peace and eaſe; they would caſt their Children, their deareſt Children, their firſt-born, into the burning flames, if that might be an atonement for their ſins. O the efficacy of Conſcience! and the miſery of an unrelieved Conſcience! But the Goſpel which you enjoy leads you to the Fountain of pardon and peace, Iſa. 53. 5. By his ſtripes we are healed. The voice of the Goſpel is peace, peace to every one that believeth; a rational peace, founded upon the full ſatisfaction of Chriſt, Epheſ. 1. 7. in whom we have redemption through his Blood, even the forgiveneſs of ſins, according to the riches of his Grace. Here you ſee Juſtice and Mercy kiſſing each other; God ſatisfied, and the Sinner juſtified: for Conſcience demands as much to ſatisfy it, as God demands to ſatisfy him; if God be ſatisfied, Conſcience is ſatisfied. O bleſſed are the people that hear this joyful ſound, Pſal. 89. 15. And doubtleſs it is a joyful ſound to every convinced humbled Soul; Beautiful upon the Mountains are the Feet of them that bring good tidings, that publiſh peace. It is a Goſpel worthy of all acceptation, 1 Tim. 1. 15. it brings with it a fulneſs of bleſſings among the People. O England! O Dartmouth! Provoke not thy God to extinguiſh this bleſſed Light. Great is our wantonneſs, and ominous is our barrenneſs and ingratitude; Yet a little while the light is with you, walk whilſt ye have the light, leſt darkneſs come upon you: for he that walketh in darkneſs, knoweth not whither he goeth, John 12. 35. Should God blow out this light, whither will you go? Who ſhall pour in Balm to your diſtreſſed bleeding Conſciences?

Infer. 2. Hence in like manner it follows, that the greatneſs, heinouſneſs of paſt ſins is no bar to believing and accepting Chriſt upon Goſpel-terms. Let no ſinner be diſmay'd by the atrocity and heinouſneſs of ſins paſt, from coming unto Jeſus Chriſt for remiſ-x - Bleſsed be God since this Sermon was delivered - both Bibles and Ministers have been sent to Heathen Lands tion and peace. I am aware what miſchievous uſe Satan makes of former ſins, to diſcourage Souls from the work of Faith; by heaping them together, he raiſeth up a Mountain betwixt Chriſt and the diſtreſſed Soul: but behold this day Chriſt leaping over theſe Mountains, and skipping over theſe Hills. Could this objection be rolled out of the way, ſinners would go on in hope; but certainly if God hath given thee a broken Heart, and a willing Mind, the greatneſs of thy ſin need not diſcourage thee from believing. For (1.) thou haſt ſufficient encouragement from the ſufficiency of the cauſes of pardon, whatever thy particular enormities have been; there is a ſufficiency in the impulſive cauſe, the Free Grace and Mercy of God, Exod. 34. 6, 7. Micah 7. 18, 19. Iſa. 55. 7, 8, 9. It is well there is Mercy enough in God to heal and cover all: and there is no leſs ſufficiency in the meritorious cauſe of pardon, the Blood of Jeſus Chriſt, which taketh away all ſin, 1 John 1. 7. John 1. 29. And it muſt needs be ſo, becauſe it is Divine Blood, Acts 20. 28. Neither is there any defect in the applying cauſe, the Spirit of God, who hath already begun to work upon thy Heart, and is able to break it and bow it, and bring it home fully to Chriſt, and to compleat the work of Faith upon thee with Power. Thou complaineſt, thou canſt not mourn, nor believe as thou wouldſt; but he wants no ability to ſupply all the defects of thy repentance and faith. Well then, if the mercy of God be ſufficient to pardon the ſin of a Creature; if the Blood of Chriſt, the Treaſures and Revenues of a King be able to pay the debts of a Beggar; if the Spirit of God, who works by an Almighty Power, be able to convince thee of righteouſneſs, as well as ſin, John 16. 9. I ſay, if all the three cauſes of forgiveneſs be ſufficient, every one in its kind, the firſt to move, the ſecond to purchaſe, and the third to apply; what hinders but thy trembling Conſcience ſhould go to Chriſt, and thy diſcouraged Soul move onward, with hope, in the way of believings, whatever thy former enormities have been? (2.) If God raiſes glory to his Name, out of the greatneſs of the ſins he pardoneth, then the greatneſs of ſin can be no diſcouragement to believing; but ſo God doth, as appears from Jer. 33. 8, 9. I will cleanſe them from all their iniquity, whereby they have ſinned againſt me; and I will pardon all their iniquities whereby they have ſinned, and whereby they have tranſgreſſed againſt me: And it ſhall be to me a name of joy, a praiſe and an honour before all the Nations of the Earth, which ſhall hear all the good I do unto them. And they ſhall fear and tremble for all the goodneſs, and for all the proſperity that I procure unto it. As a cure performed upon a Man labouring under a deſperate Diſeaſe; it magnifies the Phyſician, and ſpreads his Name far and near. The Devil envies God this glory, and thy Soul this comfort; and therefore ſcares thee off from Chriſt, by the aggravations of thy ſins. David was willing to give God the glory of pardoning his great iniquities, and with that very argument moves him for a pardon, Pſal. 25. 11. Pardon mine iniquity, for it is great. You ſee there are ſtrange ways of arguing in Scripture, which are not in uſe among Men; this is one, Lord pardon my ſin, for it is great: he doth not ſay, Lord pardon it, for it is but a ſmall offence; no, but pardon it, becauſe it is great; and the greater it is, the greater Glory wilt thou have in pardoning it. And then there is another way of arguing for pardon in Scripture, which is peculiar; and that is to argue from former pardons unto new pardons: when Men beg their pardon one of another, they uſe to ſay, I never wronged you before, and therefore forgive me now; but here it is quite otherwiſe; Lord thou haſt ſigned thouſands of pardons heretofore, therefore pardon me again: ſuch is that plea, Numb. 14. 19. Pardon, I beſeech thee, the iniquity of this people, according to the greatneſs of thy mercy, and as thou haſt forgiven them from Egypt even until now. (3.) As great ſins as thoſe that now ſtare in the Face of thy Conſcience, have been actually forgiven to Men, upon their humiliation and cloſing with Chriſt. Poor ſinners under trouble of Conſcience, are apt to think, there is no ſin like theirs. God forbid I ſhould diminiſh and extenuate ſin, but certain I am that Free Grace hath pardoned as great Sinners as thou art, upon their repentance and faith. What think you, had you had a hand in putting Chriſt to Death, would not that ſin have been as dreadful as any that now diſcourages you? Yea, certainly you would have thought that an unpardonable ſin; and yet behold that very ſin was no bar to their pardon, when once they were pricked at their heart, and made willing to come to Chriſt, Acts 2. 36, 37, 38. (4.) If it be the deſign and policy of Satan to object the greatneſs of your ſins, to prevent the pardoning of them; then certainly 'tis neither your duty nor intereſt to plead it to the ſame end the Devil doth, to lay a confederacy, and join with your mortal Enemy in a plot againſt the Honour of Chriſt, and Salvation of your own Souls: take heed what you do, ſeal not Satan's concluſions. Do you think it is a ſmall matter to be confederate with the Devil? Certainly this is his deſign, he magnifies your ſins, on purpoſe to diſcourage you from faith: while you were ſecure and carnal, the Devil never aggravated, but diminiſhed your ſins to you; but now the Lord hath opened your Eyes, and you are come near to the door of hope, mercy and pardon, now he magnifies them; hoping thereby to hamſtring and lame thy faith, that it ſhall not be able to carry thee to Chriſt. (5.) If thy ſin be really unpardonable, then God hath ſomewhere excepted it in the Goſpel-grant. He hath ſomewhere ſaid, The Man that hath committed this ſin, or continued ſo many years in ſin, ſhall never be forgiven: but now in the whole Goſpel there is but one ſin that is abſolutely excepted from the poſſibility of pardon, and that ſuch a ſin as thy ſorrows and deſires after Chriſt do fully acquit and clear thee from the guilt of; this indeed is excepted, Mat. 12. 31. But the ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt ſhall never be forgiven. This is that which the Scripture calls a ſin unto death. Let Apoſtate Profeſſors, transformed into Perſecutors, Scoffers, and Haters of Godlineſs and the profeſſors of it, look to themſelves; the dreadful ſymptoms of this ſin ſeem to appear upon ſuch. But the humbled, thirſty Soul after Chriſt, ſtands clear of the guilt of that ſin. (6.) If there were no forgivneſs with God for great ſinners, then great ſinners had never been invited to come to Chriſt. The invitations of the Goſpel are no mockeries, but things of moſt awful ſolemnity. Now ſuch ſinners are called and invited under the encouragement of a pardon; conſult Iſa. 1. from verſ. 10 to 17. and ſee the horrid aggravations of that Peoples ſins; and yet at verſ. 17, 18. you may read the gracious invitations of God, with conditional Promiſes of a plenary remiſſion. So in Jer. 3. from 1 to 13. what a ſad Catalogue of ſins, with their horrid aggravations, do you find there? and yet it is ſaid, verſ. 12. Go and proclaim theſe words towards the North, and ſay, Return thou backſliding Iſrael, and I will not cauſe mine anger to fall upon you, for I am merciful. (7.) If thy ſins had not been capable of remiſſion, God would never have given thee conviction and compunction for ſin, nor have drawn forth the deſires of thy Heart in this manner after Chriſt. He hath tack'd remiſſion to repentance, Acts 5. 31. a bleſſing to gracious deſires and hungerings, Mat. 5. 6. There is therefore hope that when God hath given the one, he will not long withhold the other. This very wounding of thy Heart by compunction, and drawing forth thy Will by inclination, ſhews that remiſſion is not only poſſible, but even at the door. (8.) And Laſtly, Let this be thine encouragement, (whatever Satan, or thine own Heart ſuggeſts to diſcourage thee) that great Sinners are moving in the way of repentance and faith to a great Saviour, who hath merit enough in his Blood, and mercy enough in his Bowels, to ſave to the uttermoſt all that come unto God by him, Heb. 7. 25. The Lord open to the Eyes of your Faith, that rich Treaſury of Free-Grace, Exod. 34. 6, 7. and give you a ſight of that plenteous Redemption and Forgiveneſs that is with God, Pſal. 130. 4, 7. that you may not at once caſt reproach upon the moſt glorious Attribute of God, impeach the precious Blood of Chriſt, and ſtab your own Souls with a death-wound of deſperation; which is that the Devil intends, and the whole ſtrain of the Goſpel deſigns to prevent.

Infer. 3. If the vileſt of ſinners ſtand as fair for pardon and mercy upon their cloſing with Chriſt by faith, as the leaſt of ſinners do; then certainly the pardon and ſalvation of ſinners is not built upon any righteouſneſs in themſelves, but purely and only upon the Free Grace of God in Jeſus Chriſt. Don't think God hath ſet the Blood of Chriſt to ſale, and that thoſe only are capable of the benefits of it, who have lived the ſtricteſt and ſobereſt lives. No, no; tho ſobriety, morality, and ſtrictneſs in Religious duties be things commanded, and commended in the Goſpel; yet no Man by theſe things can purpchaſe a pardon for the leaſt ſin, Rom. 11. 6. And if by Grace, then it is no more of Works, otherwiſe grace is no more grace; but if it be of works, then it is no more grace, otherwiſe work is no more work. See how theſe exclude one another: thus Titus 3. 5. Not by works of righteouſneſs which we have done, but according to his mercy he ſaved us. No Man can ſatisfy God by any thing himſelf can do or ſuffer; not by doing, for all we do is mixt with ſin, Job 14. 4. and that which is ſinful can be no atonement for ſin. All we do or can do, is due debt to God, Luke 17. 10. and one debt cannot ſatisfie for another. Nor yet by ſuffering, for the ſufferings awarded by the Law are everlaſting; and to be ever ſatisfying, is never to ſatisfie: So then by the works of the Law ſhall no fleſh living be juſtified in his ſight. The Saints in all generations have fled to Mercy for remiſſion, Pſal. 130. ult. The two debtors, Luke 7. 43, 44, 45. tho there were a vaſt difference in the debts; yet of the leſſer, as well as of the greather, it's ſaid they had nothing to pay; nothing but the Satisfaction of Chriſt can quit your ſcores with God.

Infer. 4. If the Grace of Chriſt be thus free to the greateſt of ſinners, then it is both our ſin and folly to ſtand off from Chriſt, and draw back from believing, for want of ſuch and ſuch qualifications, which we yet find not to be wrought in our Hearts. Poor convinced Souls think, O if they had more humility, tenderneſs, love to God, ſpirituality of mind, this would be ſome encouragement to believe; but becauſe they have no ſuch ornaments to dreſs up their Souls withal, they are not fit to go to Chriſt. Now to remove this great miſtake, let two things be conſidered.

1. That ſuch a conceit as this croſſes the very ſtream of the Covenant of Grace, where nothing is ſold, but all freely given: this is the very Spirit of the Covenant of Works, fain we would find ſomething in our ſelves to bring to God, to procure his favour and acceptance; but the Goſpel tells us we muſt come naked and empty handed, to be juſtified freely by his Grace, Rom. 2. 24. We muſt be juſtified as Abraham was, who believed in him that juſtifieth the ungodly; Rom. 4. 5. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteouſneſs. The meaning is, to him that worketh not in a Law-ſenſe, to procure pardon and acceptance by and for working. Go then poor ſinner unto God through Chriſt, and tell him thou haſt nothing to bring him; thou comeſt not to bring, but to receive: Lord, I am a vile ſinner, I have nothing to plead but thy mercy, and Chriſt's merit. This is the Spirit of the Goſpel.

2. By ſtanding off from Faith for want of theſe qualifications, you invert the ſettled order of the Goſpel; by putting conſequents in the place of antecedents, and antecedents in the place of conſequents: it is as if a Man ſhould ſay, If I were cured of ſuch and ſuch diſeaſes, then I would go to the Phyſician; alas, could you otherwiſe procure the healing of your corruptions, or the gracious qualifications you ſpeak of, you would have no need to go to Chriſt at all; nothing is required of us in our coming to Chriſt, but ſuch a ſenſe of, and ſorrow for ſin, as makes us heartily willing to accept Chriſt, and ſubſcribe the terms on which he is offered in the Goſpel.

Infer. 5. Behold the admirable condeſcenſion of Chriſt, that he will come into the Heart of the vileſt ſinner, and not diſdain to take his abode in that Soul which hath been the ſeat of Satan, where he hath ruled, and every unclean luſt hath been harbour'd!

There are two things wherein the admirable condeſcenſion of Chriſt appears. (1.) In taking union with our Nature after ſin had blaſted the beauty of it; this was a marvellous ſtoop indeed, and juſtly admired by the Apoſtle, Phil. 2. 7. He made himſelf of no reputation, and was found in the likeneſs of Man. Yea, God ſent his own Son in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, Rom. 8. 3. But (2.) 'tis juſtly admirable in our eyes, that Chriſt ſhould alſo take union with our Perſons, and take his habitation and abode in our Hearts, after Satan and Sin had ſo long inhabited and defiled them; that he ſhould accept thoſe Members as inſtruments of his ſervice, that very Tongue to praiſe him that had blaſphemed him, &c. yet ſo he is willing to do, and commands us to deliver them up to him, Rom. 6. 19. As ye have yielded your members ſervants to uncleanneſs, and to iniquity unto iniquity; even ſo now yield your members ſervants to righteouſneſs unto holineſs. One would have thought Jeſus Chriſt ſhould have ſaid, Vile wretch, Satan hath had the uſe and ſervice of thy Soul and Body from thy beginning to this day; thy Memory hath been his Storehouſe, thy Mouth his Shop, thy Will his Throne, and all thy Members his Tools and Inſtruments to ſin againſt me; thou haſt been a Creature dedicated to Satan, and to him thou ſhalt go. No, but the merciful Lord declares his willingneſs, if thou wilt open thy Soul to receive him, to cleanſe it by his Spirit, and make it his Temple to dwell in. O admirable grace!

Infer. 6. Laſtly, How juſt and inevitable will their damnation be, who conſent not to the neceſſary and reaſonable terms of the Goſpel, which is the only point on which Chriſt and their Souls part for ever?

The terms required by the Goſpel are every way equal and reaſonable; if a gracious Prince will beſtow a Pardon upon a Traitor on this condition, that he lay down his Arms, acknowledg his Offence, and liſt himſelf in his Prince's Service, and he ſhall refuſe ſo to do, how juſt and unpitied will his deſtruction be? and what elſe doth God require of thee but only this? Let the wicked forſake his way, and the unrighteous Man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon, Iſa. 55. 7. And as the damnation of ſuch is juſt, ſo it will be inevitable: for if there be no way to Glory but by Chriſt, as you know there is not, Acts 4. 12. Neither is there Salvation in any other: And if there be no way to Chriſt but by our accepting him upon theſe very terms, as it plainly appears, from Luke 14. 26. there is not; what then remains but inevitable damnation to all that come not up to the terms of the Goſpel? If you think not Chriſt a good bargain with all the ſufferings, loſſes and reproaches that attend him; your Mouths will be ſtopt, no plea will be left you in the great Day. You refuſed a fair offer when it was ſeaſonably and graciouſly made you by the Goſpel, and now you muſt expect no more ſuch offers to Eternity; thy Blood, ſinner, be upon thine own Head; the freeneſs and importunity of the tenders of Grace will then only ſerve to illuſtrate and clear the righteouſneſs of God in thy condemnation.

II. Vſe for Exhortation.

In the next place, the point naturally leads me to a vehement perſwaſive unto all ſinners, of what rank or ſize ſoever they be, to hearken to the voice of Chriſt, who takes them all within the compaſs of his gracious invitation in the Text, ſaying, If any Man open I will come in. Let all ſorts of ſinners bleſs God for the extenſiveneſs of this invitation, and that they find themſelves by it as yet within the reach and compaſs of the Arms of a merciful Redeemer: And that there is nothing wanting to ſecure their Salvation, but the hearty conſent of their Wills to the reaſonable and neceſſary terms of the Goſpel. Look over the whole Book of God, and you ſhall there find but one caſe abſolutely excepted from the poſſibility of forgiveneſs; but one wound abſolutely incurable, of which Chriſt ſpeaks, Matth. 12. 31, 32. And what may be the reaſon that this only is an incurable wound? certainly it cannot be, becauſe the malignity of this ſin exceeds the meritorious and pardoning virtue of the Blood of Chriſt; but rather becauſe there is no ſacrifice appointed by the Lord for it. God never deſigned that the Blood of Chriſt ſhould be an expiatory Sacrifice for that ſin, as the Apoſtle plainly ſpeaks, Heb. 6. 4, 5, 6, 7. Other ſins and blaſphemies ſhall be forgiven unto Men, ſaith Chriſt; that is, they are capable of forgiveneſs upon ſincere and actual repentance and faith; yea, they have been actually pardoned unto many: now the greater any Man's ſins have been, the greater need he hath to haſten to Chriſt for pardon. There are ſome of you greater ſinners than others; for tho no ſin be venial, light and trivial in it ſelf, yet compared one with another, there is a vaſt difference found betwixt them in the weight and aggravations of them. Now I will labour to ſhew you by what rules men are to eſtimate the greatneſs and aggravation of ſin; and then to convince you that the greateſt of ſinners ſtand yet fair for mercy, as well as the leſſer, and ſometimes much fairer: Publicans and Harlots go into the Kingdom of God before you, ſaith Chriſt, Mat. 21. 31. Now the rules to eſtimate the aggravations and greatneſs of ſin by, are theſe.

1. There be ſins of infirmity, committed out of weakneſs, and there are crying ſins in the Ears of the Lord; of the former ſort, ſins of infirmity, you read Gal. 6. 1. where it is called a being overtaken in a fault; here's no premeditation, nor deliberate conſent, but a ſurprize; theſe go not to the account of groſs and heinous enormities, called in Scripture crying ſins, ſuch as are the ſin of oppreſſion, Hab. 2. 10, 11. The ſtone ſhall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber ſhall anſwer it. The meaning is, that the injuſtice and oppreſſion which Men have uſed in raiſing their own Houſes, ſhall cry in the Ears of the Lord for vengeance. The Stone in the Wall ſhall ſay, I was digged out of the Quarry, hewn, and laid here by the unrewarded labours of the poor Maſon; and the Timber out of the Beam ſhall ſay, I was hewn, ſquared and placed here by the unrewarded Hands of the poor Carpenter. This is a crying ſin; ſo alſo is the ſin of Murder, when our Hands have been defiled with innocent blood; this makes a diſmal cry to Heaven, Gen. 4. 10. The voice of thy Brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground. A ſin that makes a horrid outcry in both Worlds at once; in Heaven, and in the ſinners Conſcience. Such alſo is the ſin of unnatural luſts; the ſin of Sodom made a cry which came up to Heaven, Gen. 18. 20. Becauſe the cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and their ſin is very grievous. Compare theſe ſins with the ſins of common infirmity which come by way of involuntary ſurprize, and what vaſt odds will be found in the weight and aggravations of them?

2. You find in Scripture a great difference put betwixt ſins committed againſt the clear ſhining light of Knowledg in the ſinners Conſcience, and ſins of Ignorance which are committed for want of Knowledg: Chriſt himſelf puts a great difference betwixt them, Luke 12. 47, 48. and ſo doth the Apoſtle, James 4. 17. To him that knoweth to do good, and doth it not, to him it is ſin; Sin with a witneſs.

3. There are ſingle acts of ſin, and continued or repeated acts of ſin, Sins committed after Convictions, Promiſes, and Reſolutions. Now there is not ſo much of guilt in a ſingle act of ſin, as there is in a repeated and continued courſe of ſin, called Deut. 29. 19. Adding of drunkenneſs to thirſt; and Iſa. 30. 1. Adding ſin to ſin. For as it is in numbring, ſo it is in ſinning; if the firſt figure be 1, the ſecond is 10, the third 100, the fourth 1000; and every addition makes a greater multiplication. O what a dreadful reckoning will here be for the Conſciences of poor ſinners!

4. Contrivers and Studiers of ſin are always in Scripture placed in the firſt rank of ſinners. The beſt Servant God hath in the World may be ſurpriſed by the deceitfulneſs of ſin, againſt the gracious bent and reſolution of his Soul; but the contrivance and plotting of ſin is quite another thing: therefore it is ſaid of the wicked, Job 15. 35. They conceive miſchief, and bring forth vanity, and their belly prepareth deceit. That is, Sin like the Fœtus in the Womb, hath its time of conception, growth, and birth; and all this by the deliberate conſent of the naughty Heart and Will, which foſters and cheriſhes it.

5. There are ring-leaders in ſin, and ſingle perſonal ſins, which ſpread no farther than our ſelves: a ringleader in ſin, is in Scripture reckoned amongſt the greateſt of ſinners; ſo Rev. 2. 14. Thou haſt them that hold the Doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balak to caſt a ſtumbling block before the Children of Iſrael. Thus Jeroboam the Son of Nebat made Iſrael to ſin. There is the ſame difference betwixt theſe and ſingle perſonal Sins, as there is betwixt a chain-ſhot, and a ſingle bullet: Mind this, you that have induced others to Sin by your counſel or example.

6. There are Sins in which men glory and take pleaſure, and Sins for which men groan and mourn. Now the more pleaſure any man takes in Sin, the greater doth the Sin ariſe in its aggravation. We read of ſome, Job 20. 12. in whoſe mouths wickedneſs is ſweet, and they hide it under their tongue: that is, they draw a great deal of contemplative delight before and after the commiſſion of Sin, as well as in the commiſſion of it. 'Tis bad enough to ſin and ſigh, to ſin and weep; but to ſin and boaſt, to ſin and make a mock of ſin, what a prodigious way of ſinning is this? O Sinner, what a Heart haſt thou, that canſt play and ſport with that which grieves God, crucified Chriſt, and which without deep and ſound Repentance will damn thine own Soul!

7. The more Bonds of reſtraint any Man breaks aſunder to commit Sin, the greater and more aggravated always that Sin is in the ſight of God. There be ſome Perſons upon whom God hath laid more bonds of reſtraint to keep back their Souls from iniquity, than he hath upon others. The more mercies he hath beſtowed upon yon, the more reſtraints from ſin. So many mercies, ſo many ties, Jer. 2. 5, 6. eſpecially ſpiritual Mercies; as Light in your minds, Pardons ſealed to your Conſciences, Love manifeſted to your Souls. Such alſo are your own Vows, Promiſes and Reſolutions; Jer. 2. 20. Thou ſaidſt, I will no more tranſgreſs. Didſt not thou promiſe me, ſaith God, more care and circumſpection for time to come? And ſuch are all the Examples and Warnings God hath given us by his Judgments upon others, 1 Cor. 10. 11. Theſe things put an Accent upon Sin, and make it out of meaſure ſinful.

And now my Friends, what have I been driving at all this while, in opening the greatneſs and aggravations of Sin? The deſign of all this is to ſhew you the indiſpenſible need of Repentance and Faith to carry you to Chriſt.

Obj. But I am the Perſon on whom theſe crying aggravated ſins are found. You tell me of going to Chriſt; alas, there is no hope of mercy for ſuch a wretch as I am. There it ſticks. Poor ſinners think 'tis to no purpoſe, they had as good go on in ſin, for they conclude there's no hope for them.

Anſw. Come ſinners, give me leave to tell you, you have a Text before you, that clears the way of your Duty and Salvation at once; If any Man, be he what he will, be his ſins never ſo great, yet if he bear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, ſaith Chriſt. There is mercy in Jeſus Chriſt for thee who art guilty of crying ſins: For thee, that haſt ſinned againſt light and knowledg: For thee, that haſt added drunkenneſs to thirſt: For thee, that haſt contrived ſin with deliberation: For thee, that haſt induced others to ſin by counſel or example: For thee, that haſt taken pleaſure in Iniquity, and made a ſport of ſin: Yea, and for thee alſo, that haſt broken aſunder the bonds of Mercies, Vows and Warnings, provided thou wilt now hear the voice of Chriſt, and thy Will open to him with a hearty firm conſent, Iſa. 55. 4. You are great and heinous ſinners, but I ſhew this day a Great and Almighty Saviour; one that is able to ſave to the uttermoſt all that come unto God by him, Heb. 7. 25. There is a Sacrifice laid out and appointed for theſe ſins. O bleſs God for that. They are no where excepted from the poſſibility of forgiveneſs. Nothing but the impenitency of thy Heart, and obſtinacy of thy Will, can bar thee from a full and final Pardon. Jeſus Chriſt can ſave thee to the uttermoſt. Say not within thy ſelf, Can the virtue of his Blood extend it ſelf to the remiſſion of this or that ſin? He can ſave to the uttermoſt. Look round about thee to the uttermoſt Horizon of all thy Guilt, and Chriſt can ſave thee to the uttermoſt that the Eye of thy Conſcience can diſcern, yea and beyond it too; but then thou muſt come unto him. You ſpeak of the greatneſs of Sin, and you have cauſe to have ſad thoughts about it; but in the mean time you conſider not, that your Unbelief, by which you ſtand off from Chriſt your only Remedy, is certainly the greateſt of all the ſins that ever you ſtood guilty of againſt the Lord. This is the ſin that binds the guilt of all your other ſins upon you. Let me therefore addeſs my ſelf, (1.) To you who cry out of the greatneſs of ſin, that diſcourages you from going to Chriſt. (2.) To leſſer ſinners, who becauſe they are clear of great Enormities, ſee not their need of Chriſt.

1. This Exhortation ſpeaketh to you, whoſe Conſciences are ſeared with the horrid and hideous aggravations of your ſins, by reaſon whereof your own miſgiving Hearts, aſſiſted by the policy of Satan, diſcourage you from all Attempts to gain Chriſt and Pardon in the way of Repentance and Faith. Let me at this time hint three or four Conſiderations to you by way of Encouragement.

(1.) The ſparing Goodneſs of God till now, gives ſome encouragement that God may have a reſerve of mercy for ſo great and vile a ſinner as thou art. O what a mercy is it that thy life hath been ſpared hitherto! Many of thy Companions in ſin are beyond hope and mercy, whilſt thou art left. I confeſs this is no ſure ſign God's gracious intention to thee, unleſs his Goodneſs and Forbearance do lead thee to Repentance: then the gracious intention of God in prolonging thy life would evidently appear. But however, it is in it ſelf a very great mercy, becauſe without it no ſpiritual mercy could be expected.

(2.) 'Tis matter of encouragement and hope, that tho your Diſeaſe be dreadful, yet it is not deſperate and incurable. The Text takes it within the compaſs of mercy: O bleſs God for that, If any Man, &c.

(3.) As great ſinners as you have been have found mercy, 1 Tim. 1. 16. and God would have it to be recorded for your encouragement. If now the Lord ſhall make thy Heart to break, and thy Will to bow, whatever thy ſins have been, they ſhall not bar thee from mercy and forgiveneſs. But if thou reſolve to go on in ſin, or ſit down deſponding or diſcouraged, and wilt not come in at the Invitation and Call of Chriſt, then thy Wound is incurable indeed; and there is but one way with thee, thy Mittimus is already made for Hell; and that Scripture in 1 Cor. 6. 9. will tell thee whither thou art going. But God forbid that this ſhould be the Iſſue of Chriſt's gracious Invitations to thee, and forbearance of thee. Seeing Mercy is tendred to any man that will accept it upon Chriſt's terms, exclude not thy ſelf when he hath not excluded thee.

2. I will cloſe up this Uſe of Exhortation to another ſort of Perſons who are not of the notorious, infamous rank of profane Sinners, but their lives have been drawn more ſmoothly through a courſe of Civility. Theſe have as great need to be preſt to Repentance and Faith as the moſt notorious Sinners in the World. Theſe are a Generation that bleſs themſelves in their own Eyes, and thank God with the Pharisee, Luk. 18. 11. That they are not as other men. They acknowledg Converſion to be the duty of the profane; that ſuch Sinners as I laſt dealt with, ſtand in apparent need of it. But as for themſelves, they ſcarce know where to find matter for Repentance, nor do they feel any need of Chriſt. Now I would lay three Conſiderations before ſuch Perſons, to convince them that their caſe is as ſad and hazardous, yea, and in ſome reſpect more hazardous than the ſtate of the moſt notorious Sinners in the World; and that a change muſt alſo paſs upon them, or elſe it had been good for them they had never been born.

Conſid. 1. Let the civilized part of the World lay this thought cloſe to their Hearts, That tho their ſins be not ſo groſs and horrid to appearance as other mens are, yet continued in, they will prove as mortal and deſtructive, as thoſe greater abominations of other men. No ſin abſolutely conſidered is ſmall. Every ſin is mortal and damning without Chriſt; Rom. 6. ult. The wages of ſin is death. 'Tis no great odds, if a man be killed, whether it were by a broad Sword, or by a ſmall Penknife. The leaſt ſin violates the whole Law, James 2. 10. He that offendeth in one point is guilty of all. The leaſt tranſgreſſion of the Law pulls down the guilt and curſe of the whole Law upon the Sinners head. And this is your miſery that are out of Chriſt, and ſtand under the rigorous terms of the firſt Covenant. Moreover, the Law of God is violated groſly and externally, or ſpiritually and more internally. Thus every unchaſt thought is Adultery: And the very inward burning of Malice and Anger in the Heart is Murder. Now if the Lord ſhall bring the ſpiritual ſenſe of the Law home to your Conſciences, as he did to Paul's, Rom. 7. 9. you will certainly give up that Plea, that you have not ſo much need of converſion as other Sinners have. There are ſins of greater infamy, and ſins of deeper guilt. There may be more guilt in thoſe ſins that are ſtifled in thy Heart, and never defamed thee, than there may be in ſome ſins that make a louder noiſe in the World.

Conſid. 2. You are guilty of one ſin (how civil and blameleſs ſoever your lives are) which is certainly more great and heinous than any outward act of ſin can ordinarily be, and that is, your truſting to your own Righteouſneſs, as the Phariſees did, Luke 18. 9. He ſpake this Parable unto certain which truſted in themſelves that they were righteous, and deſpiſed others. Here's an Idol of Jealouſie ſet up in the room of Chriſt. 'Tis true, this ſin makes not ſo loud a noiſe in the World, raiſes not ſuch a duſt as the ſins of profane ones do. But certainly it is as abominable in the Eyes of God, as the ſins that ſtink ſo much in the noſtrils of Nature. Civilized Perſons thus truſting to their own Civility, and neglecting Jeſus Chriſt, will be one day put into the Van of that wretched Crew that are going to Hell; a portion with Unbelievers, as the Scripture ſpeaks.

Conſid. 3. Laſtly, It hath been always found a more rare and difficult thing to convince and bring home to Chriſt the civilized part of the World, than it is to convince and work upon the profane part of it, Mat. 21. 31. Publicans and Harlots go into the Kingdom of God before you. Publicans were reckoned the vileſt ſort of men, and Harlots the worſt ſort of Women; yet either of theſe were eaſier to be brought to Chriſt, than ſelf-rigtheous Phariſees. Well then, away with your vain and idle pretenſions, that your caſe is ſafer and better than others. By what hath been ſaid, it evidently appears that you ſtand in as much need of Chriſt as the moſt infamous Sinners in the World do.

III. Uſe.

This Point winds up in encouragement to every willing and obedient Soul whom the Lord ſhall perſwade to comply with the Call of the Goſpel, whatever his former Rebellions have been. There are ſome whoſe Hearts the Lord hath touched with a deep ſenſe of their ſin and miſery, and of the all-ſufficient remedy that is in Chriſt; but the ſenſe of former rebellions appals and daunts them, they cannot hope for acceptance with him. Here's good news for ſuch Souls; Chriſt is at the door, and former Rebellions are no Bar to him, provided there be now a hearty compliance with his voice; I will come into him. A glorious promiſe, compriſing five ineſtimable benefits or mercies in it. (1.) This is the moſt glorious work of God that ever was or can be wrought upon the Heart of a poor ſinner, to open it by Repentance and Faith, and put Chriſt into the full poſſeſſion of it. The Power of all the Angels in Heaven, Miniſters on Earth, Duties and Ordinances cannot effect this; this is the peculiar work of God, 1 Cor. 1. 30. But of him are ye in Chriſt Jeſus. Look, as it was the marvellous work of God to unite our Nature unto Chriſt by an Hypoſtatical Union; ſo it is no leſs a marvellous work of God to unite our Perſons to Chriſt by a Myſtical Union, to prepare the Soul as a habitation for Chriſt, and give him the poſſeſſion of it. (2.) This coming of Chriſt into the Soul is the very foundation of all our hopes for Glory; till this be done, we are without hope. But in the ſame hour Chriſt comes in to the Soul, a ſolid Foundation of the hopes of Glory is laid in that Soul, Col. 1. 27. Which is Chriſt in you the hope of Glory. I know the unregenerate World is full of hope, but their hopes are built upon the Sand. Union with Chriſt is the ſteady foundation on which the hopes of Heaven are laid. (3.) I will come in to him, that is, to dwell in his Soul for ever, never to leave him more: Therefore (Eph. 3. 17.) he is ſaid to dwell in our Hearts by Faith; not ſojourn for a night, but abide there for ever: Nothing can ſeparate Chriſt and that Soul, Rom. 8. 35. Thy Soul ſhall never be an habitation for Satan any more. When Chriſt comes in, he ſaith, as of the Temple, Here will I dwell for ever. (4.) This coming in of Chriſt intitles the Soul to all Spiritual Privileges; 1 John 5. 12. He that hath the Son hath life: and 1 Cor. 3. ult. All is yours, for ye are Chriſt's. (5.) This is the higheſt honour that ever God put upon a Creature, I will come in to him. O how ſhould the Soul feel it ſelf advanced by ſuch an honour as this! What, to be the living Temple of Jeſus Chriſt! for Chriſt to dwell and walk in thy Soul! as it is 2 Cor. 6. 16. I tell you this is an honour beyond and above the honour done to Angels.

And how near art thou to all theſe bleſſed Privileges in the day that thy Heart is wounded for ſin, thy thoughts become ſolicitous about union with Chriſt, and thy Will begins to bow and yield, after a ſerious debate of the terms of the Goſpel in thy moſt ſolemn thoughts! Now is the door half open, and Chriſt ready to make his firſt entrance into thy Soul. God forbid any thing ſhould now hinder the compleating of ſo great a Work.

SERMON VIII.

Revel. III. 20.

Behold I ſtand at the door and knock; [if any Man hear my voice] and open the door, I will come in to him, and will ſup with him, and he with me.

IN the former Sermon Chriſt's free and general Invitation to ſinners hath been conſidered; in the next place, we are to take into conſideration the principal means or inſtrument by which the Heart of a ſinner is opened to receive Chriſt; and that is not by the native power of his own Will, nor by the alone efficacy of the Goſpel preached, but by the voice of Jeſus Chriſt, which opens the Will, and makes the perſwaſions of the Goſpel effectual. If any Man hear my voice.

Hearing is either External, or Internal; for the Soul hath its Ear, as well as the Body. He that hath an Ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the Churches, Rev. 2. 17. i.e. He that hath a Spiritual Ear, to perceive and judg the voice of the Spirit by. And it is a ſore Judgment when God denies ſuch an Ear to the Soul, Iſa. 6. 9. Go tell this People, hear ye indeed, but underſtand not. Spiritual hearing is the Work of the inner Man. And tho we have many Auditors, yet in this ſenſe no more Hearers than Believers; Words of ſenſe do in Scripture connote affections. This hearing of Chriſt's voice implies not only the receiving of the ſound of the Goſpel into the external Organ; but it notes the work of the Underſtanding, which by the Ear trieth words, as the Mouth taſteth meat, Job 12. 11. And the work of the Affections, which receive the truth in love, 2 Theſ. 2. 10. It alſo implies the Obedience of the Soul to what we hear. We cannot be ſaid in this ſenſe to hear what we obey not. Our minds may be delighted with the pleaſant air and melody of the Goſpel, and yet it is all one as if we heard it not, when obedience doth not follow hearing: Ezek. 33. 32. Thou art unto them a very lovely ſong, &c. for they hear thy words, but they do them not. But in this place it eſpecially ſignifies the vital ſound of Chriſt's efficacious internal voice, which is the principle of Spiritual Life to the Souls of dead ſinners; according to that expreſſion of Chriſt, John 5. 25. Verily, verily I ſay unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear ſhall live.

From hence the Eighth Obſervation will be this,

Doct. 8. That no Mans Will ſavingly and effectually opens to receive Chriſt, till the Spiritual quickning Voice of Chriſt be firſt heard by the Soul.

Now touching this Almighty Spiritual voice of Chriſt, by which the Hearts of ſinners are effectually opened; Six things muſt be explained in order.

1. The divers ſorts and kinds of Chriſt's voices.
2. The general Nature of this internal voice.
3. The innate Characters and ſpecial Properties of it.
4. The Objects to whom it is directed.
5. The Motives inducing Chriſt to ſpeak to one, and not to another.
6. The ſpecial Effects wrought and ſealed by it upon eeery Soul that hears it.

Firſt, We will ſpeak of the divers ſorts and kinds of Chriſt's voices. I am here only concerned about two, viz.

1. His External.
2. His Internal voice.

1. There is an External voice of Chriſt, which we may call his Miniſterial voice in the preaching of the Goſpel; the Scriptures are his Word, and Miniſters his Mouth, Jer. 15. 19. He that heareth them, heareth Chriſt,

2. There is alſo an Internal energetical voice of Chriſt, conſiſting not in Sound, but Power: And betwixt theſe two, there are two remarkable differences. (1.) The External or Miniſterial voice of Chriſt, is but the Organ or Inſtrument of conveying his Internal and Efficacious voice to the Soul; in the former he ſpeaks to the Ear, and in or by that ſound conveys his Spiritual voice to the Heart. (2.) The External voice is evermore ineffectual and ſucceſsleſs, when it is not animated by this Internal Spiritual voice. It was marvellous to ſee the walls of Jericho falling to the ground at the ſound of Rams-horns; there was certainly more than the force of an external blaſt, to produce ſuch an effect; but more marvellous it is, to ſee at the ſound of the Goſpel, not only the Weapons of iniquity falling out of ſinners Hands, but the very Enmity it ſelf out of their Hearts. Here you ſee is a voice in a voice, an Internal efficacy in the External ſound; without which the Goſpel makes no ſaving Impreſſion.

Secondly, this Spiritual voice of Chriſt muſt be conſidered in its general Nature, which implies two things in it:

1. Almighty Efficacy.
2. Great Facility.

1. Almighty Efficacy, to quicken and open the Heart with a word, O what manner of voice is this, which carries ſuch a vital power along with it! In all the mighty works of Chriſt, his power was ſtill put forth in ſome voice, as at the Reſurrection of Lazarus, Joh. 11. 43. He cried with a loud voice, Lazarus come forth; and he that was dead came forth. So in curing of the deaf Man, Mark 7. 34. He ſaith unto him, Ephphatha, and ſtraightway his Ears were opened. Thus in the exerting of his Almighty glorious Power in quickning a Soul ſpiritually dead, and opening the Heart that was lockt up by ignorance and unbelief; an Internal Almighty Efficacy paſſeth from Chriſt, along with the voice of the Goſpel, to effect this glorious work upon the Soul; an Emblem whereof we have in Ezek. 37. 9, 10. Then ſaid he unto me, Propheſie unto the wind, propheſie Son of Man to the wind, ſaith the Lord God; Come from the four winds, O Breath, and breath upon theſe ſlain, that they may live. So I propheſied as he commanded me, and the Breath came into them, and they lived and ſtood up upon their Feet, an exceeding great Army. The animating vital Breath which quickned the dead, came in or with the four winds of Heaven, as this Almighty power of Chriſt doth with the ſound of the Goſpel; and before it the Heart opens, the Will bows, Pſal. 110. 3. Man can no longer oppoſe the power of God; Man and Man ſtand upon equal ground; the power of Man can repel the power of a fellow Creature; but when the power of Chriſt comes along with the voice of Man, there is no more power to reſiſt. * This voice of Chriſt then, of which the Text ſpeaks, is an Almighty impreſſion made upon the Soul inſtead of a voice; and as fully expreſſive of God's mind concerning it, as any articulate voice in the World can be. It is a beam of light ſhining immediately from the Spirit, into the Soul of a ſinner; as plainly and evidently diſcovering both its danger and duty, as if a voice from Heaven had declared them: thus it is ſaid, Iſa. 8. 11. The Lord ſpake to Iſaiah with a ſtrong Hand, that is, by a mighty impreſſion upon the Prophet's Spirit, which was as a voice to him. Thus here, the Lord not only directs a ſutable word to a ſinners condition; but alſo impreſſes it with ſuch a ſtrong hand upon his Heart, as leaves no doubt behind it, but that it was the Lord himſelf that ſpake to his Soul. This is Chriſt's way of ſpeaking by his Spirit, to the inner Spiritual Ear of the Soul; not by oraculous voices, which I take to be but the ſuppoſitions of an overtroubled fancy; but by an efficacious impreſſion upon the Heart. As to oraculous voices, we may ſooner meet Satanical deluſions, than Divine illuminations in that way. The Learned Gerſon ſpeaks of a good Man who being in Prayer ſeemed to hear ſuch a voice as this; I am come in perſon to viſit thee, for thou art worthy: but he juſtly ſuſpecting a deluſion of Satan, ſhut his Eyes and ſaid, Nolo hic videre Chriſtum, &c. I will not ſee Chriſt here, it ſhall ſuffice me to ſee him in glory. I am ſure Chriſt's voice in the written Word is more ſure than a voice from Heaven, 2 Pet. 1.19. This inward ſpiritual impreſſion is Chriſt's effectual call from Heaven; and it is a voice ſine ſtrepitu ſyllabarum, without ſound of ſyllable.

* Clamor hic & pulſatio ſignificant cogitata a Deo injecta, ad monendam peccatoris conſcientiam; id Deus aliquamdiu facit, non ſemper. Pools Synopſ. in loc.

2. As this voice of Chriſt implies Almighty Efficacy, ſo it implies in like manner the facility of converſion unto Chriſt; he can do it eaſily with a word of his Mouth: as in the bodily cures performed by him in the days of his fleſh, how ſuddenly and eaſily did Chriſt effect them? Speak the word only, ſaid the Centurion, and my Servant ſhall be healed. Thus let the Spirit but ſpeak internally to the deadeſt Soul, and it lives. Elijah did but caſt his mantle upon Eliſha, as he was plowing in the Field, and he preſently entreats the Prophet to give him leave to go home and bid his Friends farewel, and he would follow him; thus it is here, let a beam of ſaving light ſhine from the Spirit into a Mans Heart, let an effectual impreſſion be made upon his Soul, and he is preſently made willing to quit and give up his deareſt Luſts and Intereſts, and to imbrace Chriſt upon the ſevereſt terms of the Goſpel. Converſion is too difficult a work for Angels or Men to effect in their own ſtrength; but Chriſt can do it with a word. And thus much of the general nature of Chriſt's Spiritual Internal voice; but all this gives us but a remote imperfect knowledg of it: Therefore,

Thirdly, I ſhall endeavour to open the innate Characters and ſpecial Properties of this Internal Spiritual voice of Chriſt, which muſt be heard, or there can be no opening the door of the Heart to receive him.

I. Character. And the firſt Character is this, It is a ſecret and a ſtill voice; whereby ſomewhat is as it were whiſpered into the Ear of the Soul, making a particular application of what is ſpoken externally to the Ear, much like that of Nathan to David, Thou art the Man. This ſtill voice ſounds throout the whole Soul, yet none hear it but the Soul concerned in it; it is ſaid, 1 Sam. 9. 15. The Lord told Samuel in his Ear, the night before, &c. that is, he whiſpered the ſecret into the Prophet's mind: ſo the Spirit of Chriſt whiſpers a word into the Ear of a ſinner, which makes his Heart to tremble, after this manner, This is thy very ſtate and condition; this is thy ſin, which is now opened by the Goſpel in thine Ears. This is a voice without ſound or noiſe to any others, but very intelligible to the Soul unto whom it is ſpoken. You read in 1 Kings 19. 11, 12. when Elijah ſtood upon the Mount before the Lord, there came a great and ſtrong wind which rent the Mountains, and brake in pieces the Rocks before the Lord; but the Lord was not in the wind; and after the wind an earthquake, but the Lord was not in the earthquake; and after the earthquake a fire, but the Lord was not in the fire; and after the fire a ſtill ſmall voice: And it was ſo, when Elijah heard it, that he wrapped his face in his mantle, &c. So is is here. Dreadful things are thundred againſt men by the voice of the Law, the Terrors of the Lord are made known, Hell and Damnation are ſet before the Eyes of Sinners; but until the Lord come in the ſtill voice of his Spirit, and apply thoſe things to the Conſcience, the Sinner never covers his face with ſhame and confuſion, nor goes aſide to mourn and lament his miſery. This voice of God ſounds to the very Center of the Soul. As for the outward voice of the Goſpel alone, it ſignifies little; in hearing men hear not, Mat. 13. 13. They hear the voice of man, but not the voice of God: they hear the ſound, but feel not the power of the Word. What is ſpoken externally, dies in the Ear that hears it: But this ſtill voice of the Spirit by ſecret paſſages makes its way to the Heart, and none knows what God ſpeaks but the Soul to whom he ſpeaks. That is the firſt Character.

II. Character. The Internal Spiritual voice of Chriſt is a perſonal and particular voice, ſpeaking diſtinctly and particularly to the caſe and ſtate of the Soul, as if it were by name. Miniſters do and muſt ſpeak in general; they draw the Bow of the Goſpel at a venture, not knowing to whom God will direct the Arrow; but the Spirit guides it to the Mark. He applies general Truths unto particular Perſons, ſo as the Soul to whom he directs it, is fully convinced and ſatisfied the Lord intends and means it, in ſuch a convictive and threatning Expreſſion. O ſaith the Soul, hath the Lord ſingled me out in ſpecial? this is my very ſtate and caſe. You read John 10. 5. that Chriſt calleth his Sheep by name. How doth he call them by name? but by ſpeaking directly and particularly to their Condition and Caſe, as if he called them by their particular Names. He doth not now in an extraordinary way, as of old, call Samuel, Samuel; or Saul, Saul; but he ſends a Beam of convincing light into the Conſcience, plainly diſcovering this or that to be our ſin, danger, or duty; and ſo as to the effect, it is all one as if God named him: And truly, till it comes to this, the Word hath no ſaving operation upon the Soul. A man may hear ten thouſand general Truths, aſſent to them, and never be the better for them. How ſtill and quiet was David's Conſcience, till Nathan ſtruck the nail upon the Head, by a home perſonal application, and then his Conſcience ſtartled? Thus God ſingles out one man or woman from among a thouſand in the Congregation, ſpeaks to the Heart, rips up the ſecure Conſcience; the reſt hear the ſame words, but feel not the ſame efficacy. And truly, 'tis a choice mercy when God ſhall pleaſe thus to ſingle out one Perſon from among many after this manner to ſpeak to his Heart. As Chriſt ſaid in Luke 4. 25, 26. Many widows were in Iſrael in the days of Elias, &c. but to none of them was Elias ſent ſave unto Sarepta a City of Sydon, unto a woman that was a widow: So here, Multitudes ſate with you under the ſame Prayer or Sermon, but unto none of them at that time was the Spirit ſent, to make a particular convictive application thereof, but unto thee. In this the peculiar goodneſs of God ſhines out, and ſhould for ever be admired in the eyes of that Soul.

III. Character. This Spiritual Internal voice of Chriſt is diſtinguiſhable by the Soul that hears it from all other voices, John 10. 4. The Sheep know his voice. As in the ſtile of the Scriptures, there is a Weight and Majeſty which diſtinguiſhes it from all human compoſures; ſo in this voice of Chriſt, there is a Majeſty, a peculiar Efficacy, a divine and awful Authority, by which the Soul diſtinguiſhes it from all human voices. It was ſaid of Chriſt in the days of his fleſh, John 7. 46. Never man ſpake like this man. The ſame may we ſay of his ſpiritual voice, the Soul never heard ſuch a voice before; it ſeals the truth upon the Heart ſo firmly, that no objections are left againſt it. It was not ſo when we heard the voice of man. And there are two things in this inward voice of Chriſt, which apparently difference it from all human voices. (1.) A marvellous Light comes into the Soul with it, which diſcovers all the ſecrets of the Heart. God ſhines into the Heart the ſame time he ſpeaks unto it, 2 Cor. 4. 6. and now the ſecrets of the Heart are manifeſt, and God is acknowledged to be in that Word of Truth, 1 Cor. 14. 25. (2.) A marvellous Power accompanieth this voice, to make a deep and firm impreſſion of what is ſpoken upon the Soul: and this Power is an innate Character of the voice of God, whereby the Soul receives it as his, with much aſſurance, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 1 Theſſ. 1. 5. Our Goſpel came not to you in Word only, but alſo in Power, and in the Holy Ghoſt, and in much Aſſurance. They could not be more certain of any thing in the World, than they were of this, That is was the Lord that ſpake to them in that Word. 'Tis true, at the firſt inſtant the Soul may be amazed, and at a loſs, as Peter when he was delivered out of priſon, Acts 12. 11. thought at firſt he had ſeen a Viſion; but when he was come to himſelf, Now, ſaid he, I know of a ſurety that the Lord hath ſent his Angel, &c. Thus it is with the Soul, it is amazed, and doubts what manner of Call or Power this is; ſure it is, it never heard ſuch a voice, nor ever felt any thing like this before: But the matter is quickly cleared up when the Soul hath reflected duly upon it, and finds (as it quickly doth) ſuch a wonderful change of the frame and temper of the Heart following upon it. I now ſpeak not of thoſe into whom Grace is diſtilled in the way of godly Education in their tender years, but of adult Perſons, and eſpecially ſuch as have been groſſer Sinners.

IV. Character. This Spiritual Internal voice of Chriſt is a ſurprizing voice, altogether unexpected by the Soul that hears it; I am found of them that ſought me not, Iſa. 65. 1. Little do we foreſee the deſigns God hath upon us in bringing us to ſuch a Place, and under ſuch a Sermon, at ſuch or ſuch a time; even as little as Saul thought of a Kingdom when he was ſeeking his Father's Aſſes. 'Tis much with us as it was with the Apoſtles when Chriſt called them; little did Matthew think when he ſat at the Receipt of Cuſtoms, or Saul think when poſting unto Damaſcus upon the Devil's errand, that Chriſt and Salvation had then been ſo near them. Some have come to ſcoff and deride the Meſſengers and Truths of God; others to gratifie their curioſity; and many in a cuſtomary courſe, not knowing where elſe, with peace to themſelves or reputation with others, to ſpend that hour: But God's thoughts were not theirs; the time of mercy was now come, and whatever ſinful or low ends brought them thither, the Lord's deſign was then and there to manifeſt himſelf to them. It is with ſuch Souls in ſome reſpect, as it was with the Spouſe, Cant. 6. 12. to whoſe expreſſion I may here allude, Or ever I was aware, my Soul made me as the Chariots of Amminadab. I went to the Congregation for Company, I was ſitting under the Word with a careleſs wandring Heart, as at other times; when lo, above all the thoughts of my Heart, an Arrow of Conviction was ſuddenly ſhot into my Conſcience, which ſo ſtartled, wounded, and diſquieted it, as it is now beyond the power of any but Chriſt himſelf to ſettle and ſatisfie it.

V. Character. This Spiritual Internal voice of Chriſt is energetical, great and mighty in power, piercing the Heart, cleaving as it were the very reins; full of efficacy to the Soul that hears it. The power of God comes along with this voice of God. You read Heb. 4. 12. The Word of God is quick and powerful, and ſharper than any two-edged Sword; piercing even to the dividing aſunder of the Soul and Spirit, of the Joynts and Marrow. Now this efficacy is not inherent in the Word it ſelf, it works not thus as a natural Agent, then all would feel this power that come within the ſound of it. No, this comes from the Spirit of Chriſt, ſpeaking in it to the Sinners Conſcience; when it is the adminiſtration of the Spirit, then it becomes thus efficacious. You read in Pſal. 29. from v. 3 to 10. of the wonderful efficacy of God's Providential voice: The voice of the Lord is powerful; The voice of the Lord is full of majeſty; it breaks the Cedars, divides the flames of fire, ſhakes the wilderneſs, maketh the Hynds to calve. This the providential voice of God in the winds, thunders and lightnings, can do; but alas, what's this to the efficacy of his Spiritual voice? What is the breaking of the Cedars of Lebanon to the breaking of the Heart of a Sinner? What is the ſhaking of the Trees in the Wilderneſs, to the fears of wrath to come, which ſhake the Souls of convinced Sinners, and make their very Hearts to tremble? Acts 16. 30. What is the dividing of the flames of fire, to the dividing of a Soul from its beloved Luſts? The weapons of our warfare (ſaith the Apoſtle) are mighty through God, to the pulling down of ſtrong holds, caſting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth it ſelf againſt the knowledg of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Chriſt, 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. Here be the glorious effects of this Voice, which plainly diſcover from whom it comes. The voice of God is no leſs to be admired in its magnificent effects, in the new Creation, than in the firſt Creation, with which the Apoſtle compares it, 2 Cor. 4. 6. God that commanded the light to ſhine out of darkneſs, hath ſhined into our Hearts. It was marvelous to ſee, at the word of Chriſt, Lazarus, that was dead in his Grave, to come forth bound in his Grave-cloths; and no leſs to ſee a Soul dead in ſin, bound in the bonds of corruption, at a word of Chriſt to ariſe, and come forth with Spiritual Life: John 5. 25. The dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear it ſhall live.

VI. Character. This Spiritual voice of Chriſt is ſo convictive to the Conſcience of a Sinner, that it puts a final end to all ſhifts and evaſions: Whilſt Man only ſpake, the Soul had a thouſand ſhifts to evade and put off what was ſpoken; but now all diſputes and debates are at an end; no more Subterfuges and cunning Evaſions now. The Spirit, when he cometh, he ſhall convince the World of ſin, John 16. 8. The word ſignifies to convince by demonſtration; and that is, to ſhew a thing to be impoſſible to be otherwiſe than we repreſent it to be. Formerly when the Terrors of God were threatned againſt ſin, the ſhuffling Heart was wont to ſay, This concerns me no more than others; if it go ill with me, it will go ill with thouſands as well as me. 'Tis true, this is my evil, and who is without them? I have ſome evils in me, but yet I have ſome good too. But no ſooner doth the Spirit ſpeak conviction to the Conſcience, but all theſe Pleas are out of doors. It may be the ſtate of the Sinner's Soul was doubtful to him before, but it is not ſo now. It had ſome fears of Hell, but ballanced with ſome vain hopes of Heaven. But now the debate is ended, the great Queſtion determined, Whatever I am, or have, whatever Duties I have done, and whatſoever ſins I have avoided, I ſee I am not regenerated, I am in my natural Chriſtleſs ſtate, and except I be changed I muſt be damned. This was the effect of Chriſt's convictive voice unto Paul, Rom. 7. 9. I was alive without the Law once; but when the Commandment came, ſin revived, and I died. He had read the Law many a time, and had the literal knowledg of it: but under theſe things his vain hopes lived and flouriſh'd, until the Spiritual ſenſe of the Law came home to his Heart by the teaching voice of the Spirit, and then his vain hopes gave up the Ghoſt, and his ſin and guilt ſtared in the face of his Conſcience.

VII. Character. The voice of Chriſt whereof we now ſpeak is generally and ordinarily conveyed to the Souls of Men thro the Word preached, which is the choſen Organ or Inſtrument of its Conveyance. We cannot abſolutely and univerſally affirm that Chriſt always ſpeaks to men this way, but certainly this is his ſtanding and ordinary courſe; 1 Theſſ. 1. 5. Our Goſpel came not to you in word only, but in power, and in the Holy Ghoſt. Our Goſpel, becauſe preached and miniſtred by us; but had that been all, it had come to you in word only, as it doth to many thouſand others in the World, who hear and feel nothing in it more than what is human: but unto you it came in power, and in the Holy Ghoſt; that is, our Words were the Vehicle or Organ thro which the vital power of the Spirit was conveyed into your Souls. Providences have their voices, as well as the Word; and ſometimes the voice of Chriſt hath accompanied the voice of Providence, to the Converſion of Mens Souls; but this is more rare and unuſual: The eſtabliſhed and ordinary way of Chriſt's ſpeaking to the Hearts of Sinners is by the Word, and eſpecially the Word preached, which upon that very account and conſideration, as it is the Organ of conveying the voice and power of Chriſt to the Soul, is therefore called the power of God to Salvation, Rom. 1. 16. This Inſtrument the Lord generally uſes and honours for the conveyance of Spiritual Life into the Souls of men, tho it be deſpiſed and contemned in the World. The preaching of the Croſs is to them that periſh fooliſhneſs, but unto us which are ſaved it is the power of God, 1 Cor. 1. 18. i. e. the choſen Inſtrument by which the ſaving power of God communicates it ſelf to the Souls of men: And although God may exert his ſaving power through Providences, yet we ſeldom or never find he doth ſo where the Word may be had, but is deſpiſed and neglected. And truly herein God conſults our peace and ſatisfaction; for ſuppoſe he ſhould make uſe of another medium, as a voice from Heaven, &c. and after Calling (which is an uſual caſe) the called Soul ſhould queſtion all, and ſay, How do I know but all this may be a Deluſion? may not Satan impoſe upon poor Mortals, and this voice from Heaven be a counterfeit voice? my eternal Eſtate depends upon it, and I had need to be ſure it was the very voice of God himſelf. In ſuch a caſe as this it would be hard to give ſuch clear diſtinguiſhing Characters as had heard and anſwered the voice of Chriſt, That might be to the ſatisfaction of the Soul, and clearly difference the one from the other. But now when God makes the Word his Inſtrument in this matter, it yields abundantly more ſatisfaction, we have a more ſure Word of Propheſie, ſurer than a voice from Heaven, 2 Pet. 1. 19. And tho Paul was converted by a voice from Heaven, yet the Lord ſends him to Ananias to preach the Goſpel to him, Acts 9. 17. The Lord will honour his Word. Providences may make way, and prepare the heart, but the Word is the Inſtrument by which the Lord puts forth his power ordinarily to ſalvation.

VIII. Character. The voice of Chriſt leaves abiding effects and laſting impreſſions upon the Soul that hears it. The words of Men are ſcattered into the wind, but the effects of Chriſt's voice are durable and laſting things; Pſal. 119. 93. I will never forget thy Word, for by it thou haſt quickened me. How many hundred Sermons have we heard, and all thoſe excellent Truths vaniſhed away as a Dream? O, but if ever thou heardeſt Chriſt ſpeaking to thy Heart in any Sermon, or Prayer; to be ſure that will ſtick by thee for ever: his words are ſealed upon the Soul for ever, they are written in the heart, Jer. 31. 33. What Job wiſhed concerning his words, that is really perform'd in the words of Chriſt, they are written as in the Rock for ever. We have ſlippery Memories, but the weakeſt Memory will and muſt retain the words of Chriſt, ſpoken to the heart by his Spirit, for they are ſealed upon it. Job 33. 16. He ſealeth their inſtructions; and this ſecures them. Thus you have the innate Characters of Chriſt's Voice.

Fourthly, I ſhall next ſpeak to the perſonal Objects unto whom Chriſt ordinarily directs this his internal, efficacious, and ſaving Voice or Call. And although it be true that the Spirit of Chriſt is a free Agent, acting with the greateſt liberty, and calleth whom he will, according to that, John 3. 8. The wind bloweth where it liſteth: And it is true de facto, That Chriſt hath made ſome of all ſorts and ranks of men to hear his voice; yet if we conſider the way he commonly takes, we ſhall find that it is very rare and ſeldom that Chriſt directs this ſaving voice or call of his to the great and wiſe of this world: 1 Cor. 1. 26. You ſee your Calling, Brethren, how that not many wiſe men after the fleſh, not many mighty, not many noble are called. He ſaith not any, but not many. Some Chriſt doth call; Leſt (as one notes) the World ſhould think that Chriſtians were deceived thro their ſimplicity and weakneſs. One rich Joſeph of Arimathea; one honourable Nicodemus, but not many. Men of the greateſt fame and renown in the world have been the greateſt and fierceſt Enemies againſt Chriſt. Galen the chief Phyſician, Porphyry the chief Ariſtotelian, Plotinus the chief Platoniſt, Lybanus and Lucian the chief Orators, were all the profeſſed Enemies of Chriſt. Two things make a man great in the eye of the world; The external endowments of Providence, heaping up Riches and Honours upon the outward man; and internal gifts and endowments of the Mind, adorning the inward man, as ſtrong Reaſon, ſharpneſs of Wit, &c. When both theſe meet (as many times they do) in one and the ſame perſon, they make him great in the eye of the world, and uſually in his own eyes too; yea, too great to ſtoop to the ſimplicity of the Goſpel, and the humbling ſelf-denying terms thereof. Theſe the Lord uſually paſſes by, and directs his voice to the poor; the poor receive the Goſpel: God hath choſen the poor of this World, rich in faith, and Heirs of the Kingdom, James 2. 5. And this choice of God Chriſt bleſſeth him for, Mat. 11. 25. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, becauſe thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and haſt revealed them unto babes; even ſo Father, for ſo it ſeemeth good in thy ſight. And indeed the Wiſdom of God deſerves our admiration in this diſpenſation: For,

(1.) Hereby the freeneſs of his Grace is vindicated. None can now pretend that any earthly excellency commends any man to God, or that the favour of Heaven is engaged by the ſame motives that the reſpects of this world are: For now you ſee the truth of that Scripture, Job 34. 19. before your eyes, He accepteth not the perſons of Princes, nor regardeth the rich more than the poor, for they are all the work of his hands. Earthly Riches and Honours, as empty things as they are, yet are too much idoliz'd by men: What would they be, could they procure our favour and acceptance with the Lord? (2.) By ſuch a choice as this the Lord plainly ſhews us, That Religion needs not worldly props to ſupport it. As at firſt it was ſpread by the power of God in the world by poor contemptible Men, ſo it is ſtill upheld without human policy or riches. The Church is called the Congregation of the poor, Pſal. 74. 20. The Lord will have us know that he is able to maintain and carry on his counſels in the world without the wealth of rich men, the authority of great men, or the policies of wiſe men; he needs them not. (3.) By this choice he pours contempt upon thoſe things which are moſt admired among men: So he tells us, 1 Cor. 1. 27. God hath choſen the fooliſh things of the world to confound the wiſe, and the weak things of the world to confound the things that are mighty. And certainly, ſhame and confuſion of face will cover the great ones of this world, in the world to come; when they ſhall ſee thoſe poor Chriſtians, whom they contemned and ſcorned upon earth, as not worthy to come into their preſence, to be ſo infinitely preferred before them in the favour of God. In a word, this efficacious ſpiritual voice of Chriſt is directed but to a few, even of the many that ſit within the ſound and call of the Goſpel, Matth. 22. 14. Many are called, but few are choſen. Chriſt's flock is a little flock. There be many Birds of prey, to one Bird of paradiſe: Many common Pebles, to one Saphir or Diamond. 'Tis not for us to diſpute the Reaſon, but to adore the Sovereignty of God in this matter. And of thoſe few whom he calleth, the greateſt part are of the lower rank and order of men. The glitter and dazle of this world blinds the eyes of the greateſt. Extremity of pinching wants diverts the minds of the very loweſt; but betwixt theſe two extremes there is a third ſort of perſons whom the Lord moſt uſually calls.

Fifthly, If it be queried why the voice and call of Chriſt ſhould be directed to this perſon rather than to that? Certainly it is not from any dignity or excellency outward, or inward, that Chriſt ſees in one above another; for all are ſhut up under the ſame common ſin and miſery of the fall; and therefore the Apoſtle told the Epheſians, who had they were by nature children of wrath even as others, Eph. 2. 3. If it were not ſo, Man would have ſomething to glory in before God; but Chriſt reſolves this whole diſpenſation into its proper cauſe, the good pleaſure of the Divine will, Mat. 11. 26. Even ſo Father, for ſo it ſeemed good in thy ſight. This good pleaſure of the Will of God ſometimes orders thoſe to hear the voice of his Son, that ſeem to ſtand at a far greater diſtance and improbability to hear it than others do. 'Tis ſaid of the Epheſians, that they were afar off, Eph. 2. 13. yet they heard the voice of Chriſt; when that diſcreet Scribe, Mark 12. 34. who was not far from the Kingdom of God, and Agrippa, Acts 26. 28. who almoſt or within a very little was perſwaded to be a Chriſtian, never heard it; therefore it is ſaid, Matth. 8. 11, 12. Many ſhall come from the Eaſt and Weſt, and ſhall ſit down with Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob, in the Kingdom of Heaven; but the children of the Kingdom ſhall be caſt out into outer darkneſs. O marvelous diſpenſation! Many a poor Soul under the greateſt diſadvantages, a poor Servant that hath but little time and multitudes of encumbrances, yet ſuch a one is often called effectually by this voice of Chriſt; when thoſe that enjoy multitudes of opportunities, and have abundance of time lying upon their hands, which they know not what to do with; who have the choiceſt Books at command, yet hear nothing, feel nothing amidſt all theſe advantages to any purpoſe; all this is wholly to be reſolved into the good pleaſure of the Will of God.

Sixthly, In the next place, let us view the effects of this voice of Chriſt upon the Souls of Men, and we ſhall find divers remarkable effects wrought upon the Heart by it.

I. Effect. And the firſt Effect of the voice of Chriſt is Conviction upon the Conſcience; Conviction both of ſin and miſery. John 16. 9. The Spirit when he cometh, ſhall convince the World of ſin. This is a voice of terror, it ſtrikes dead the vain hopes of a ſinner, Rom. 7. 9. Now the Soul that was before ſecure and quiet, becomes the ſeat of trouble and anxiety. 'Tis true, there was a general Conviction of ſin before, they knew that all are ſinners; that they denied not: but alas, this general Conviction is quite another thing to what the Soul feels now; it can ſhift and wave the matter no longer. This voice of Chriſt ſhews them their iniquities, and how they have exceeded, as the expreſſion is, Job 36. 8, 9. exceeded in number, and exceeded in heinouſneſs of aggravation. A general Conviction of ſin affects a Man no more than the ſight of a painted Lion upon a Sign-poſt; but when a particular Conviction is ſet on upon the Conſcience by this ſpecial inward voice of Chriſt, ſin is now like a living Lion meeting a Man in the way, and roaring dreadfully upon him. This is the firſt Effect of Chriſt's voice, and is introductive unto the

II. Effect. Which is Humiliation, and contrition of Heart for ſin; thoſe threats of Scripture againſt ſin and ſinners, which were wont to be ſlighted, are now trembled at; thoſe Jews, Acts 2. 37. to whoſe Hearts Chriſt ſpake in Peter's Sermon, as ſoon as ever they heard his voice, ſounding Conviction in their Conſciences, they were preſently pricked at the Heart; no Sword, or Poniard can make ſuch a wound, and put a poor creature into ſuch pain as a ſight of ſin will do; therefore Zach. 12. 10. they are ſaid to mourn for Chriſt as for an only Son. Now this is the glorious prerogative of Jeſus Chriſt, to be able to reach and wound the Heart with a word: The voice of Man cannot do it; but the Spirit of a Man lies naked and open both to be wounded and healed by a word from the Mouth of Chriſt. No ſooner hath a poor ſinner heard the awful voice of Conviction ſpoken to his Conſcience by the Lord Jeſus, but he feels himſelf ſick at Heart; home he goes from that Sermon, by which Chriſt ſpake effectual Conviction to him, crying, O ſick, ſick; my Soul is diſtreſſed becauſe of ſin. There is indeed a great difference in the depth and degrees of this contrition and humiliation; it ſoaks deeper into ſome Hearts than others, and holds them longer under it; but certain it is, whoever hath heard the convincing voice of Chriſt, he feels ſo much ſorrow for ſin as for ever ſeparates him from the love of it.

III. Effect. This voice of Chriſt rouzes and awakens the careleſs and ſluggiſh mind to the greateſt ſolicitude and thoughtfulneſs after deliverance, and eſcape from the danger that hangs over it. Acts 16. 30. Trembling and aſtoniſhed, he cried out, Sirs, what muſt I do to be ſaved? All the powers of the Soul run into ſolicitude and care about deliverance. You ſhall generally obſerve in convinced and humbled ſinners, three evident ſigns of extraordinary ſolicitude about Salvation. (1.) There is a ſtrong intention of their minds and thoughts, they ſtand night and day like a Bow at the full bent; their thoughts are ſtill poring upon this matter, their ſleep departs, for their ſin and danger is ever before them. (2.) It appears by their ſearching inquiſitiveneſs about the way of eſcape; the queſtion they carry with them from company to company, where they meet with any whom they judg able to reſolve or direct them, is this; What courſe ſhall I take? What ſhall I do? Is there any hope for ſuch a one as I? Did you ever know a Soul in my condition? (3.) It appears by the little notice they take at this time of their outward troubles and afflictions; which it may be are ſtrong and ſharp enough to overwhelm them at another time; but now they take little notice of them. Sin lies ſo heavy, that it makes heavy afflictions lie light.

IV. Effect. A fourth Effect of the voice of Chriſt, is encouragement and hope, putting the Soul upon the uſe of means in order to the attainment of Chriſt and Salvation; for it is an inviting as well as a convicting voice: and this is a remarkable difference betwixt the voice of Chriſt and the voice of Satan, with reſpect to ſin. Satan labours to cut off all hope, and ſtrike the Soul dead under deſpair of mercy; as well knowing that if he can cut off hope, all emotions and endeavours of the Soul after Chriſt are effectually ſtopt, and at a dead ſtand: but how much convincing terrors ſoever there are in the voice of Chriſt, there is always ſomething left behind it upon the Heart to breed and ſupport hope. And truly the Soul amidſt theſe ſad circumſtances hath great need of ſome encouragement; accordingly the Lord uſually after ſharp convictions, ſets on upon the Soul ſuch a word as that, John 6. 37. Him that cometh to me I will in no wiſe caſt out; for I came down from Heaven not to do mine own will, but the will of him that ſent me. Wherein Chriſt offers the moſt rational ſatisfaction, and greateſt encouragement imaginable, that a poor convinced ſinner, if he be made willing, ſhall certainly find a hearty welcom and acceptation with Chriſt. For mark how he argues it on purpoſe for the ſatiſfaction of ſuch Souls; I came not down from Heaven to do mine own Will, but the Will of him that ſent me. The force of the encouragement lies here, I and my Father are one; one in Will, and one in Deſign; our Wills never did, nor poſſibly can jar and claſh one with another; that would be utterly repugnant to the perfect unity that is betwixt us. Now, ſaith he, I came down from Heaven not only to do my own Will (which muſt neceſſarily be ſuppoſed to be intently ſet, and ſtrongly enclined to receive and ſave all convinced and willing ſinners, this being the very end of my Incarnation and Death) but alſo to do the Will of my Father; who hath ſent me to bind up the broken-hearted, and anointed me to preach good tidings to the meek, Iſa. 61. 1. and therefore no ſuch Soul can rationally doubt of a welcom reception with me. And becauſe the fears and jealouſies of a convinced Conſcience are great and many, and the Devil ſets in with them to aggravate them beyond the hopes of mercy; therefore it is uſual with the Lord, at ſuch a time as this, to direct the convinced and trembling ſinner to ſuch a Scripture as that, Heb. 7. 25. Wherefore he is able alſo to ſave them to the uttermoſt that come unto God by him, &c. making the fulneſs of Chriſt's ſaving power to ſhine with a chearful beam into the dark and diſtreſſed Soul of a ſinner, from ſuch a word as that.

V. Effect. A fifth effect or conſequent of Chriſt's powerful voice, is an attractive efficacy, or ſweet allicion of the Soul to Chriſt, by that power and efficacy which it communicates to the Soul, John 6. 44, 45. No Man can come to me except the Father, which hath ſent me, draw him. Every Man therefore that hath heard and learned of the Father, cometh unto me. Mark it, this voice ſpeedily puts the Soul into motion after Chriſt; coming follows hearing: When once the Soul hath heard the voice of God, away it comes from all the engagements in the World; all bonds and ties betwixt the Soul and ſin break aſunder, and give way; nothing can hold it from Chriſt. There is a ſtrange reſtleſneſs in the Spirit of Man, nothing but Chriſt can center and quiet it.

VI. Effect. And then laſtly, The laſt Effect of Chriſt's voice or call is ſweet reſt and conſolation to the inner Man. When once the Soul is come home to Chriſt by the efficacy of this heavenly call or voice, it enters into peace, Heb. 4. 3. We which have believed do enter into reſt; not only ſhall, but do enter into reſt. As the firſt Effect of Chriſt's voice was terror and great trouble to the Soul, ſo the laſt Effect is peace; it puts the Soul into the moſt excellent poſition in the World, for comfort and joy; it never ſtood upon ſuch ground before; for this vocation ſtands betwixt predeſtination, and glorification, Rom. 8. 30. Moreover, whom he did predeſtinate, them he alſo called; and whom he called, them he alſo juſtified; and whom he juſtified, them he alſo glorified. See here into what a bleſſed Mount of viſion the voice of Chriſt calleth the Souls of ſinners? where let the Soul look backward or forward, from eternity to eternity, there is nothing but a viſion of peace before its Eyes. This call of God points it backward to God's eternal choice, which by this very call it is now manifeſt he made of that Soul before the World was; and it alſo points forward, to that eternal glory unto which God is leading it. Theſe are the Effects of this Almighty voice of Chriſt, and theſe the ſpecial inſtructions ſealed by it upon the Hearts of Men.

But now, this voice of Chriſt is not heard at all times, but in ſome ſpecial ſeaſon or hour, as Chriſt calls it, John 5. 25. The hour cometh when the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God. And elſewhere, by the Apoſtle, it is called the accepted Time, the day of Salvation, 2 Cor. 6. 2. And the conjunction of the Spirit of Chriſt with the Word, Ordinances, or Providences of God; but eſpecially the Word, makes this bleſſed hour. The Word alone, tho never ſo excellently preacht, conduces no more to the Conviction and Salvation of a ſinner, than the Waters of Betheſda did, when the Angel came not down to trouble them, John 5. 4. But when the Lord pours out his Spirit with the Word, according to that promiſe, Prov. 1. 23. I will pour out my Spirit upon you, and make known my Words unto you; then Chriſt ſpeaks to the Heart; this great conjunction of the Word and Spirit makes that bleſſed nick, and ſeaſon of Salvation. The time of love, the time of life. Now the voice of Chriſt is heard with effect; the Ordinances impregnated with convincing and converting efficacy. There was an abundant effuſion of the Spirit in the firſt Age of Chriſtianity, and then the voice of Chriſt was heard by multitudes of Souls at once: There hath ſince been a reſtraint of the Spirit, comparatively ſpeaking; whereas three thouſand Souls were then converted at one Sermon, poſſibly three thouſand Sermons have ſince been preached, and not one Soul effectually called. This hath made the Church like a Wilderneſs, a Land of drowth; and ſo 'tis like to remain, until the Spirit be poured upon us from on high, and the wilderneſs be a fruitful field; according to that promiſe, Iſa. 32. 15. And ſuch a time we expect, Lord haſten it; when the waters of the Ordinances ſhall be healed, and every thing that liveth, which moveth whitherſoever the River ſhall come, ſhall live. And fiſhers ſhall ſtand upon it from Engedi even unto Eneglaim, they ſhall be a place to ſpread forth nets, their fiſh ſhall be according to their kinds, as the fiſh of the great Sea, exceeding many, Ezek. 47. 9, 10. Then Miniſters ſhall no longer fiſh with Angles, catching now one, then another; but ſhall ſpread forth their nets, and incloſe whole ſhoals, multitudes of Converts. In the mean time there are ſome ſignal periods, and happy ſeaſons, wherein Chriſt uttereth his Almighty voice in the Word; but that ſeaſon is utterly unforeknown to Man; we cannot ſay when it will come, but are to wait for it, as the Man did at the pool of Betheſda. Miniſters muſt preach in hope, wait in hope, if at any time God will give the people repentance, 2 Tim. 2. 25. We are often miſtaken in our conjectures; when we have made the beſt preparations, and find a more than ordinary enlargedneſs of Spirit, we are apt to conclude certainly this is the bleſſed hour wherein Chriſt will ſpeak to the Heart as we do to the Ear; but we oft-times find our ſelves miſtaken, yet we muſt wait in hope, and ſo muſt our people. Such a happy time may come, and when it doth, it will be a day for ever to be remembred; becauſe then the firſt actual application of Chriſt will be made to your Souls; without which all that the Father had done in Election, and the Son in his meritorious Redemption, had been of no benefit or advantage to your Souls. And therefore you ſhall find that this work of the Spirit ſtands betwixt both thoſe works, and makes them both effectual to our Salvation, 1 Pet. 1. 2. This is that bleſſed hour upon which your eternal bleſſedneſs depends; Eternity will be taken up in bleſſing God for this hour; it will be celebrated for ever in your praiſes in the World to come. O what an influence hath this hour into all eternity! The hearing of this voice of Chriſt effectually opens the Cabinet-counſels of Heaven, and brings to light the eternal Counſels of God concerning you: 1 Theſ. 1. 4, 5. Knowing brethren, beloved, your election of God: for our Goſpel came not unto you in word only, but alſo in power, and in the Holy Ghoſt. This gives greater aſſurance of the eternal love of God to a Mans Soul, than the ſweeteſt ſmile of Providence, or any oraculous Voice from Heaven can do. This is the time of life, the day of your ſpiritual Reſurrection, John 5. 25. A greater and more glorious Reſurrection by far than that of your Bodies at the laſt day; ſo much greater as the value of your Souls is above your Bodies. As alſo, becauſe the bleſſedneſs of your Corporeal Reſurrection depends upon this your Spiritual Reſurrection by the voice of Chriſt. Dreadful will the voice of Chriſt be at the Reſurrection of your Bodies, except you firſt hear this vital voice of Chriſt quickning your Souls on Earth with ſpiritual life. To conclude, this is the great Æra or head of account from which you are to reckon and date all your ſpiritual ſanctified mercies: for as the Lord ſaid unto the Jews, Hag. 2. 19. From henceforth will I bleſs you; ſo ſaith the Lord to you, From this hour wherein you have heard and obeyed the voice of Chriſt, will I bleſs you for ever with all ſpiritual Bleſſings in heavenly places in him.

I. Uſe of Information.

This Point preſents us with abundant matter of Lamentation and mourning over the greateſt part of thoſe that ſit under the ſound of the Goſpel: but yet as Chriſt ſpeaks of the Jews, John 5. 37. who have not heard the voice of God at any time; the miniſterial voice of Chriſt they hear daily; but this efficacious internal voice, which makes the miniſterial voice the Word of Life and Power, they have not heard. The Goſpel, to the moſt of our hearers, is but an empty ſound: this is a ſad ſymptom, 2 Cor. 4. 3. If our Goſpel be hid, it is hid to them that are loſt; in whom the God of this World hath blinded the minds of them that believe not,&c. This hiding of the Goſpel is not oppoſed to the external miniſtration of it, nor yet to the underſtanding of the true ſenſe and meaning of the truths delivered by it; but only to that internal efficacy which is here called the hearing of Chriſt's voice. Our People are generally well ſatisfied when they have heard a Sermon, much more if they can remember ſomething of it; tho the Lord hath not ſpoken one truth they have heard, home to their Hearts. Now this is a ſad caſe, and God grant it be not that very judgment threatned, Iſa. 6. 9. Hear ye indeed, but underſtand not; and ſee ye indeed, but perceive not. So that hearing the mere voice of Man, without feeling the power of God, is all one as if we heard not. Reflect ſadly upon this, you that ſit as unconcerned under the Word as the Seats you ſit upon. God ſpeaketh once, yea twice, but Man perceiveth it not. Well, the eternal Decrees and Counſels of God are now executing upon the Souls of Men under the Goſpel. As many as are ordained to eternal Life, ſhall believe and feel the power of God's truths upon their Hearts, Acts 13. 48. And methinks it ſhould be of a ſtartling conſideration, when you ſhall ſee others ſtruck to the Heart, caſt into fears and tremblings, by the ſame Word that doth not in the leaſt touch your Hearts. It may be you think this is but fancy and melancholy; that very thought is an artifice of Satan to blind your Eyes. I am ſure Chriſt makes another uſe of it, when he told the ſecure and ſelf-righteous Jews, Matth. 21. 32. John came unto you in the way of righteouſneſs, and ye believed him not; but the Publicans and Harlots believed him: and ye when ye had ſeen it, repented not afterward that ye might believe him. q. d. What ſhift did you make to quiet your Conſciences, when you ſaw other poor Sinners ſo humbled, and brought to Faith under John's Miniſtry? 'Tis ſtrange there ſhould be no reflections in your Conſciences upon your own ſtate and condition; but thus it muſt be, one ſhall be taken and another left; to ſome it ſhall be the ſavour of life unto life, and to others the ſavour of death unto death. O who can look over ſo great a part of a Congregation, without melting bowels of compaſſion? conſidering that unto this day the Lord hath not given them Eyes to ſee, nor Ears to hear: They have heard multitudes of Sermons; they have heard alſo what effects they have had upon other Mens Hearts, but none upon theirs. O that ſuch poor Souls would cry to the Lord Jeſus, in ſuch Language as that, Cant. 8. 13. The companions hearken to thy voice, cauſe me to hear it. Lord let me not ſit under the Word any longer, deaf to the voice of thy Spirit in it. Open and unſtop the Ears of my Soul, that I may hear thy voice, and feel thy power; otherwiſe the external miniſterial voice will be ineffectual to my Salvation. 'Twill be but a Rattle to ſtill and quiet my Conſcience for a little while, and a dreadful aggravation of my miſery in the iſſue.

II. Uſe for Information.

Secondly, The Point before us preſents five other Truths with equal clearneſs to our Eyes.

I. Inference. In the firſt place hence it follows, That we have this day before our Eyes a great Seal and Confirmation of the truth of the Scriptures. No miracles can ſeal it firmer than the events of it do, which are viſible to all that will obſerve them. What you read in the Word, you may ſee every day fulfill'd before your Eyes; you read, 2 Cor. 2. 15, 16. We are unto God a ſweet ſavour of Chriſt, in them that are ſaved, and in them that periſh. To the one we are the ſavour of death unto death, and to the other the ſavour of life unto life. And again, Acts 28.24. it is obſerved, that when Paul in his lodgings had expounded and teſtified the Kingdom of God to the people, and perſwading them to believe, from morning till evening; it is obſerved, I ſay, that ſome believed the things that were ſpoken, and ſome believed not. Here you ſee the different, yea contrary events of the preaching of the Goſpel, according to the Scripture-account of it; it quickens ſome, and kills others; it brings ſome to Faith, and leaves others ſtill fixed in unbelief. Compare this account with what is daily before your Eyes; do you not ſee Souls differently influenced to contrary effects under the ſame word? one melting and tender, another hardned and wholly unconcerned? Tell me, you that are apt to aſcribe all to Nature, how comes it to paſs that men exerciſing Reaſon alike, men that have the ſame inbred fears and hopes of things eternal, who have the ſame paſſions and affections, and are in the ſelf-ſame condition and ſtate with others; yet one Mans Heart ſhall be wounded and go away trembling from under the ſelf-ſame word, which affects the other no more than if it had been preached among the Tombs to the dead that lie there? Say not, ſome have more courage than others, or clearer underſtandings; for it is moſt certain the Word hath convinced as rational and courageous perſons as thoſe upon whom it has had no ſuch effect. I doubt not but the Jaylor that was caſt into ſuch tremblings and aſtoniſhment, Acts 16. 30. was as ſtout and rugged a perſon as any to whom Paul uſually preached; his very office beſpake him ſuch a Man. Wonder not what it is that makes Men fright at ſuch a ſound, which you hear as well as they, but it affects you not: The Lord ſpeaks in that voice to their Hearts, but not to yours; and ſo it muſt be according to the account the Scripture gives us of the contrary events of the Goſpel upon them that hear it; which is, I ſay, a fair and firm Seal of the truth of the Scriptures, and highly worth the due obſervation of all Men.

II. Infer. What dignity hath God ſtampt on Goſpel Ordinances, in making them the organs and medium through and by which Chriſt ſpeaks life to dead Souls? This greatly exalts the dignity of the Goſpel, and deſervedly endears it to all our Souls. I deny not but God can convey Spiritual Life immediately without them; but tho he hath not tied up himſelf, yet he hath tied us up to a diligent and conſtant attendance upon them, and that with the deepeſt reſpect and reverence to them, Luke 10. 16. He that heareth you, heareth me; and he that deſpiſeth you, deſpiſeth me; and he that deſpiſeth me, deſpiſeth him that ſent me. Behold, how the ſin is graduated, and aggravated to the height of ſinfulneſs. The contempt of the Goſpel runs much higher than Men are aware of. We think it no great matter to neglect and contemn a Meſſenger of Jeſus Chriſt; but that contempt flies in the very face and authority of Chriſt, who gave them their Commiſſions; yea, in the very face of God the Father, who gave Chriſt his Commiſſion. Chriſt ſpeaks in and by his Miniſters, they are as his mouth, Jer. 15. 19. Moreover, the ſin ſtrikes at our own Souls, and we injure them as well as Chriſt: for the Word preached is his appointed Inſtrument to convey ſpiritual Life, the beſt of Bleſſings, to our Souls. Upon which account it is called the Word of life, Phil. 2. 16. and the power of God to ſalvation, Rom. 1. 16. We then militate againſt our Life and Salvation when we deſpiſe and neglect the Ordinances of God. 'Tis good for men to lie under them, and continually wait on them; who knows when the Spirit of God will breath life to your Souls through them? What if yet you have found no ſuch benefit from them? the very next opportunity may be the time of life, the appointed ſeaſon of your Salvation. Bring your carnal Relations to them, as they did their ſick and diſeaſed Friends in the days when Chriſt was on Earth, laying them in the way he was to paſs. Chriſt will honour his Ordinances; ſee that you don't deſpiſe them. I think no Age was ever deeper drencht in the guilt of this ſin than the preſent Age is.

III. Infer. What a fearful Judgment is the removing the Goſpel from a Nation, ſeeing it is in and by the Goſpel Chriſt ſpeaketh life to the Souls of men!

The Spirit of God and the Word of God uſually come and go together: when therefore theſe are gone, no more Converſions are to be expected; dreadful is the caſe of that people, Prov. 29. 18. Where no Viſion is, the people periſh. Thoſe are direful Menaces, Iſa. 8. 16. Bind up the Law, ſeal up the Teſtimony among my Diſciples. And Rev. 2. 5. I will remove thy Candleſtick out of its place. Better the Sun were taken out of the Heavens, than the Goſpel out of the Church. O England! provoke not thy God to execute upon thee the Judgment here threatned. Think not God hath made ſuch a Settlement of the Goſpel, that it ſhall never be removed however you uſe it. Your Advocate in Heaven hath obtained it for you for a time upon trial; if you bring forth fruit, well, you and the Generations to come ſhall be happy in it; if not, this bleſſed Tree which hath brought forth ſo many Mercies to you and yours, muſt and will be cut down, Luke 13. 8. yea, and even now is the ax laid at the root of the Tree, Mat. 3. 10. 'Tis an alluſion to a Carpenter that throws down the Ax, and ſaws at the root of the Tree he intends cut down. The only ground of hope which remains with us this day, is that there are ſome Buds appearing, ſome Fruits putting forth; and if there be a bleſſing in the Bud, the Lord will ſpare it, according to Iſa. 65. 8. But theſe hopes are balanced with many ſad ſymptoms, which may make us tremble to think what God is about to do with ſuch a ſinful Nation.

IV. Infer. Thoſe that have heard Chriſt's voice and call in the Goſpel, have no reaſon to be diſcouraged from going to Chriſt in the way of Faith. Chriſt's Call is a ſufficient warrant to believe. Many poor Souls are ſtagger'd in their work of Faith, by the fear of preſumption; an ugly Objection which they know not how to clear themſelves of: But certainly, this above all Conſiderations in the world enervates this Objection of Preſumption. Then men preſume when they act without a Call or Warrant; but if Chriſt have ſpoken to your hearts by the voice of his Spirit, you have the beſt warrant in the world to go to him. What tho you know not the Iſſue? yet your Obedience is due to his Call. By faith Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he ſhould after receive for an Inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went, Heb. 11. 8. So muſt you. It is not neceſſary to your going to Chriſt, that you muſt be aſcertained before hand what the Event and Iſſue thereof ſhall be: Your believing is an act of Obedience to the voice of Chriſt that calls you. When therefore Satan ſhall object, What, ſuch a wretched Soul as thou go to Chriſt! canſt thou imagine to find entertainment with him whom thou haſt ſo abuſed and deeply wronged? Thy anſwer ſhould be ready: 'Tis true, I have been a vile wretch, and deeply wronged the Lord Jeſus; but Chriſt hath ſpoken to my heart, he hath called me, and therefore it can be no preſumption in me to go at his Call; but contrariwiſe it would be flat Rebellion againſt his Sovereign Command to refuſe to believe, and come unto him; yea, it would be a greater ſin than any of my former ſins have been. Beſides, had the Lord Jeſus no intention of mercy (as thou maliciouſly inſinuateſt) towards my Soul, he would never have ſpoken to my heart by conviction and perſwaſion, as he hath done.

V. Infer. If no Soul can open to Chriſt until it hear his powerful ſpiritual Voice, then the change made upon men by Converſion is wholly ſupernatural.

The riſe of Faith is from this power of Chriſt, not from the nature of Man, John 1. 13. Proud Nature arrogates this power and honour to it ſelf, but without any ground; for tho ſome things may be done by men in their natural ſtate, which have a remote tendency to converſion and ſpiritual life, yet it can never open to Chriſt ſavingly without a power communicated from himſelf. There is a total impotence in Nature to produce ſuch an effect as this. The Scripture ſpeaks it roundly; telling us, The natural man cannot (of himſelf) know the things that are of God, 1 Cor. 2. 14. Cannot believe; for Faith is not of our ſelves, it is the gift of God, John 6.44. Cannot obey, Rom.8.7. The carnal Mind is not ſubject to the Law of God, neither indeed can be. Cannot ſpeak a good word, Mat. 12. 34. cannot think a good thought, 2 Cor. 3. 5. What a poor impotent thing then is the natural man, who can neither believe nor obey, ſpeak a good word, nor think a good thought by any natural power of his own?

Say not 'tis againſt Reaſon for God to require men to do what they cannot, and then damn them for not doing it. For (1.) tho Man hath loſt his ability to obey, yet God hath not loſt his right to command: for at that rate any Man might ſhake off the yoke of God's Sovereignty by diſabling himſelf through his own ſin, for the duties of Obedience. (2.) Though man hath not a ſufficient power, yet there is in him an intolerable pride, which puffs him up with a conceit that he hath what he hath not, and can do what he cannot. The Command is therefore of great uſe to check this pride, and convince man of his impotency, Rev. 3. 17. (3.) Every man can do more than he doth towards his own Converſion. And therefore it is good for Men to be urged by the Commands to all thoſe Duties, in the uſe and obſervance whereof Chriſt ordinarily comes into the Soul by a ſupernatural power.

II. Uſe for Exhortation.

This Point gives a loud Call to all that are within the ſound of the Goſpel, eſpecially to ſuch as begin to feel ſome power accompanying the Word to their hearts, diligently to hearken to the voice of Chriſt, and obey his firſt Call without further delay: Rev. 2. 7. He that hath an ear to hear, let him hear. 'Tis a dreadful and dangerous thing to turn away the Ear from him that ſpeaks from Heaven: *Heb.*12. 25. See that ye refuſe not him that ſpeaketh; for if they eſcaped not that refuſed him that ſpake on earth, much more ſhall not we eſcape, if we turn away from him that ſpeaks from Heaven. See that ye refuſe not; the Caution implies the Matter to be very weighty, and a neglect or refuſal in this matter to be highly dangerous. Turn not away your Ear, be not guilty of the leaſt averſation, ſlight, or neglect in ſo great and important a Concern. And truly this Caution is no more than needs; for Satan is never more buſie with the Souls of men, than when Chriſt gives them their firſt Call to himſelf.

O what a thick ſucceſſion of Diſcouragements do impetuouſly aſſault the Soul at this time! Art thou young? then he inſinuates that it is too ſoon for thee to mind the ſerious things of Religion. This will extinguiſh all thy pleaſure in a dull melancholy; thou mayſt have time enough hereafter to mind theſe matters. This Temptation Auguſtine confeſſeth kept him off many years from Chriſt. But certainly, if thou art old enough to be damned, thou art not too young to mind Chriſt and Salvation. There are Graves juſt of thy length, and abundance of young Sprigs, as well as old Logs, burning in Hell-flames. Beſides, all thoſe godly young ones which turned to the Lord betime, as Joſiah, Abijah, Timothy, and many more, will be your Judges, and condemn you in the great day. Never any repented that they opened to Chriſt too ſoon: Thouſands have repented that they kept him out ſo long. Art thou old? then he ſcares thee with the manifold ſins of thy youth, and rolls them as blocks in thy way to Chriſt. And whether young or old, he will be ſure to preſent the Sufferings, Reproaches, and Perſecutions of Godlineſs to diſcourage thee from hearkning to the voice of Chriſt. But what are the Sufferings of Chriſt here, to thoſe Sufferings from Chriſt hereafter? what are the pains of Mortification, to the pains of Damnation? Beſides, all the Promiſes of Chriſt, Promiſes of ſtrength, comfort, ſucceſs, &c. go along with the command of Chriſt to believe, and ſhall ſurely be performed to the obedient Soul. See therefore that thou refuſe not his voice.

III. Uſe for Trial.

But you will ſay, All that hear this ſpiritual voice of Chriſt are ſaid to live, John 5.25. Now I am much in the dark, whether ever this vital voice of Chriſt hath ſounded unto my Soul. Alas, I feel little, if any thing, of the ſpiritual life in my Soul. I am dead and dark.

Queſt. By what ſigns doth the Life of Chriſt diſcover it ſelf in the Souls of Men?

Anſw. I anſwer, There are divers Signs of ſpiritual life, and bleſſed is the Soul that finds them.

1. There is a ſpiritual ſenſe and feeling flowing from, and accompanying the ſpiritual Life. I ſpeak not only of the ſenſe and feeling of comfort, for many a Soul that is in Chriſt, feels little of that; but certainly there is a ſenſe and feeling of the burdenſomneſs of ſin, Rom. 7. 24. And 'tis well that we can feel that; for there are Multitudes in the world that are paſt feeling, Iſa. 6. 9, 10. 'Tis a ſign Chriſt hath ſpoken to thy heart, if ſorrows for ſin begin to load it.

2. Spiritual Motions towards Chriſt are a ſign of ſpiritual Life; at leaſt that God is about that quickening work of Faith upon thy Soul: John 6. 45. Every man that hath heard and learned of the Father, cometh unto me. The effectual voice of God ſets the Soul in motion towards Chriſt; the Will is moving after him; the Deſires are panting for him. The voice of God makes the Soul that hears it, reſtleſs. As for others, their Wills are fix'd, there is no moving of them, John 5.40. Now conſider how it is with thee, Reader: Art thou one that art weighing and pondering the terms of the Goſpel, ſtrugling through diſcouragements and temptations to come to Chriſt upon his own terms, lifting up thy heart to him for power to believe, crying with the Spouſe, Draw me, I will run after thee? This is a comfortable ſign Chriſt hath ſpoken to thy heart.

3. A Spirit of Prayer is an Evidence of ſpiritual Life, as the effect of Chriſt's voice to thy Soul. As ſoon as ever Chriſt had ſpoken effectually unto Paul's heart, the firſt effect that appeared in him as a ſign of ſpiritual life, was Prayer-breath, Acts 9. 11. Behold, he prayeth. God hath no ſtill-born Children. Meaſure thy ſelf by this Rule: Time was when thou couldſt ſay a Prayer, and waſt very well ſatisfied with it, whether thou hadſt any Communion with God in it, or no; but is it ſo ſtill? Is there not a holy reſtleſneſs of ſpirit after God ſince the time that his Word came home to thy heart? Surely thou canſt remember when it was not with thee as it is now.

4. There is a ſpiritual Reliſh, a divine Guſt reſulting from the ſpiritual life, which is alſo evidential of it; Omnis vita guſtu ducitur. If God have ſpoken life to thy Soul, there will be in it an agreeable pleaſure and delight in ſpiritual things, Pſal. 63. 5. My Soul ſhall be ſatisfied as with marrow and fatneſs, &c. Now thy thoughts can feed with pleaſure upon ſpiritual things, which they nauſeated before.

5. Spiritual Averſations, as well as ſpiritual Inclinations, ſpeak a ſpiritual life. Every Creature hath an averſation to that which is noxious and deſtructive to it. Now there is nothing ſo deſtructive and dangerous to the ſpiritual life as ſin; that's the deadly poiſon which the renewed Soul dreads, Pſal. 19. 13. Keep back thy ſervant alſo from preſumptuous ſins. It cries out as a man that finds himſelf upon the brink of a Pit, or edg of a Precipice; Keep back thy Servant. Such averſations to ſin, and tremblings under temptations tending thereunto, are a comfortable Sign Chriſt hath ſpoken life to thy Soul.

Laſtly, Heavenly Tendencies and Propenſions after God are an excellent ſign thy Soul hath heard his voice, and been quickned with ſpiritual life by it. Sanctification is a Well of water ſpringing up into everlaſting life, John 4. 24. If thou haſt ſeen the beauty, felt the power, and heard the voice of Chriſt, thy Soul, like an uncentred Body, will be ſtill propending, gravitating, and inclining Chriſt-ward. When thou haſt once heard his effectual Call, Matth. 11. 28. Come unto me, thy Soul will be continually echoing with the Spouſe, Rev. 22. 17. Come Lord Jeſus. The Spirit and the Bride ſay Come, and let him that heareth, ſay Come. A ſweeter Sign of thy hearing Chriſt's voice can hardly be found in the Soul of man, than reſtleſs longing to be with Chriſt in a ſtate of perfect freedom from ſin, and full fruition of the beloved and bleſſed Jeſus.

SERMON IX.

Revel. III. 20.

—— If any Man hear my voice [ and open the door ]

THE powerful Voice of Chriſt is the Key that opens the door of the Soul to receive him. The opening of the Heart to receive Chriſt is the main deſign aimed at in all the external and internal adminiſtrations of the Goſpel and Spirit.

The Goſpel hath two great Deſigns and Intentions. One is, To open the heart of God to men, and to ſhew them the everlaſting Counſels of Grace and Peace which were hid in God from Ages and Generations paſt; that all men may now ſee what God hath been deſigning and contriving for their happineſs in Chriſt before the world was; Epheſ. 3. 9. To make all men ſee what is the fellowſhip of the Myſtery which from the beginning of the World hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jeſus Chriſt, to the intent that now unto the Principalities and Powers in heavenly places might be known by the Church the manifold wiſdom of God. The next Intention and Aim of the Goſpel is to ſet open the heart of man to receive Jeſus Chriſt, without which all the glorious diſcoveries of the eternal Counſels and gracious Contrivances of God for and about us, would ſignifie nothing to our real advantage. Chriſt's ſtanding, knocking, and ſpeaking by his Spirit (of which we have before treated) receive their Succeſs, and attain their End, when the heart opens it ſelf by Faith to receive him, and not till then. Hence note, Doct. 9. That the opening of the heart to receive Chriſt by Faith, is the great deſign and aim of the Goſpel.

This is the Mark to which all the Arrows in the Goſpel-Quiver are levelled; the Center unto which thoſe bleſſed Lines are drawn. John 20. 31. Theſe things are written that you might believe, and believing might have life through his Name. All thoſe precious Truths that are written in the Scriptures are to bring you to Faith. The great aim of the Spirit in his Illuminations, Convictions, Humiliations, &c. are the very ſame thing, John 6. 29. This is the work of God, that you believe. 'Tis not only Opus Deo dignum, a work worthy of ſuch an Author, but it is that on which God's eye is fixed in his workings upon us; the end and aim of his work.

Great Perſons have great Deſigns. This is the glorious object of the great God, and every Perſon in the Godhead is engaged and concerned in it. (1.) The Father hath his hand in this work, and ſuch a hand as without it no heart could ever open or move in the leaſt towards Chriſt: Joh. 6. 44. No man can come unto me (ſaith Chriſt) except my Father, which hath ſent me, draw him. None but he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, can raiſe up a dead heart unto ſaving Faith in him. (2.) The Son's hand is in this work, he is not only the Object but the Author of our Faith, 1 John 5. 20.

20. We know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an underſtanding that we may know him that is true; and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jeſus Chriſt. This is the true God, and eternal life. (3.) And then for the Spirit, he comes from Heaven deſignedly and expreſly to convince Sinners of their need of Chriſt, and beget Faith in them, John 16. 9. So that this appears to be the great deſign of Heaven, the drift and level both of the Word and Works of God. Touching this deſign of the Goſpel I ſhall here ſpeak, indeavouring to open this great and glorious project of Heaven in the enſuing Properties of it; which are,

1. The Greatneſs of it.
2. The Difficulty of it.
3. The Inſtruments imployed in it.
4. The Scope and Aim of it. And,

Firſt, Of the Greatneſs of this deſign of God; we little underſtand what a marvellous thing is done in the Earth, when the heart of a Sinner is brought to cloſe with Chriſt by Faith. It would tranſport us with admiration, did we throughly conſider it. Well may the Apoſtle place it in the firſt rank of all the glorious and wonderful works of God, as he doth 1 Tim. 3. 16. Great is the myſtery of Godlineſs, God was manifeſt in the fleſh, juſtified in the Spirit, ſeen of Angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the World. Obſerve with what works of wonder Faith is here ranked and aſſociated. It is an aſtoniſhing work of God that ever God ſhould be manifeſted in fleſh, that he that thunders in the Clouds ſhould be heard crying in a Cradle; that he who is over all God bleſſed for ever, ſhould become a man. It is aſtoniſhing that when he was taken down dead from the Croſs, laid in the Sepulcher, and the Stone ſealed upon it; he ſhould riſe on the third day from the dead by his own power: That ever the Goſpel ſhould be preached to ſuch a miſerable and forlorn people as the Gentiles were, the ſcorn and contempt of the Jews. And no leſs marvelous is it to ſee the hearts of ſuch poor Creatures, glued ſo faſt to Idolatry, ſo perfectly dead in ſin, to open to Chriſt upon ſuch ſelf-denying terms, as to let go all they had in the world for a bleſſed Inheritance which they never ſaw. And were not this a marvelous work of God indeed, there would never be ſuch joy and triumph in Heaven among the holy Angels, as there is upon the opening of every Sinners heart to Chriſt, Luke 15. 7. the whole City of God is moved with it. Heaven rings again with the joyful tidings; as ſoon as ever the Will begins to bow and open to Chriſt, the news is quickly in Heaven, and all the Angels of God rejoice at the tidings. As when a young Prince is born, the Conduits run with Wine, there is Joy in every City throughout the Kingdom: So alſo there is in Heaven when Chriſt hath gotten a new habitation in the Soul of any Sinner upon Earth. Moreover, the greatneſs of this deſign appears from the great Rewards promiſed by the Lord to every Servant of his who hath but the leaſt hand to help it on. God would never reward the Inſtruments ſo richly, if the ſucceſs of the work were not of great value in his eyes. The Miniſters of Chriſt may be ill rewarded by men, perſecuted and reproached for their labour; but God will bountifully repay their pains and faithfulneſs: Dan. 12. 3. They that turn many unto righteouſneſs ſhall ſhine as the Stars, and as the brightneſs of the firmament for ever and ever. All thoſe things beſpeak it a very great and important deſign, upon which the heart of God is much ſet.

Secondly, And then in the next place, as it is an exceeding great and important deſign and work of God, ſo it is a very hard and difficult work in it ſelf; a work whoſe difficulties ſurmount the ability of Angels. It is certainly a work carried on by the mighty power of God, through the greateſt oppoſitions imaginable. And therefore it is noted, Rev. 3. 7. that it is the peculiar Prerogative of Jeſus Chriſt, who only hath the Key of the houſe of David, to open the heart of a Sinner by Faith. Men think it is an eaſie thing to believe; but if you conſult the Scriptures, you will quickly be informed how groſly you miſtake the nature of this work. In Col. 2. 12. the believing Soul is ſaid to riſe with Chriſt, through the faith of the operation of God, who raiſed him from the dead. In the Reſurrection of Chriſt, there was a glorious operation of the power of God indeed; you know it aſtoniſhed the World to hear of it. The very ſame Power that wrought that, muſt alſo be put forth to work this, or elſe it would never be wrought. So again, Eph. 2. 8. By Grace are ye ſaved through faith, and that not of your ſelves, it is the gift of God; not of your ſelves. You are no more able to believe in Chriſt, than you were to raiſe him from the dead: No more able to come one ſtep towards him by Faith in your own power, than Lazarus was able to unbind himſelf in the Grave, and come forth. Yea, in Eph. 1. 18, 19, 20. the work of believing is aſcribed unto the exceeding Greatneſs of the power of God. Nothing but Power can do it; no other power but the Almighty power of God can do it: It exceeds the power of Miniſters, yea of Angels. Three things will evince the difficulty of this work, viz.

1. The Nature of it.
2. The Subject of it.
3. The Enemies of it.

1. The Nature of the work of Faith, which is wholly ſupernatural; it is no leſs than gaining over the hearty and full conſent of the Will to take Jeſus Chriſt with his yoke of Obedience, Matth. 11. 29. and with his Croſs of Sufferings, Matth. 16. 24. And how far theſe will carry a man into outward dangers, loſſes, torments, and ſufferings, who can tell? and all this upon the account of an unſeen Happineſs and Glory; deareſt Luſts and Corruptions muſt be mortified, ſweeteſt Pleaſures and Profits in the World abandoned and forſaken, all Reproaches, Loſſes, Pains and Penalties the Devil and the World can lay upon us for Chriſt's ſake, muſt be embraced and welcomed. And can it be ſuppoſed that any power beneath the Almighty Power of the Lord, any voice except the efficacious voice of Chriſt, can prevail with the Will to give its firm explicite conſent to ſuch difficult and ſelf-denying terms as theſe?

2. Conſider the Subject wrought upon, viz. the dead, hard, obſtinate heart of a blind perverſe ſinner, a heart harder by Nature than the nether Milſtone. It is as eaſie to melt the moſt obdurate Rock into a ſweet Syrup, as it is to melt the heart of a Sinner into penitential ſorrows for ſin. What! to bring a dead heart to life! To make that man bitterly bewail the ſins that were his pleaſure and delight, more than ever he bewailed the death of the neareſt and deareſt Relation in the world! To make a proud heart renounce its own ſelf-righteouſneſs, which it ſo dotes upon, and take all ſhame and reproach to it ſelf upon the account of ſin! This is wonderful. You would think it a ſtrange thing to ſee the courſe of the Tide ſtopt with the breath of a man; but O what a marvellous thing is here, that at the preaching of the Goſpel by a poor worm, the Lord ſhould turn the Tide of the Will, and thus work about the Soul to a ready compliance with his moſt ſelf-denying terms and propoſals!

3. And that which farther encreaſeth the difficulty of believing is the fierce and obſtinate oppoſition made by the Enemies of Faith. All the powers of Hell and Earth, Devils and Men without us, are confederate and in league with the Corruptions within us, to reſiſt and hinder this work of believing. Never is the Devil more buſie than when Chriſt and the Soul are treating about Union. O the Diſcouragements, Objections and Difficulties that are rolled into the way of Faith! One while it is the higheſt Preſumption; another while it is impoſſible and utterly too late: Sometimes blaſphemous injections like fiery Darts are ſhot reeking hot out of Hell into the Soul; otherwhile the invincible difficulties of Religion are objected, all Loſſes, Torments, &c. oppoſed unto this work: The Tempter caſts himſelf into a thouſand ſhapes to hinder the Souls paſſage out of Nature unto Chriſt; ſometimes objecting the greatneſs of ſin, and ſometimes the lapſe and loſs of the proper ſeaſon and opportunity of mercy, together with the want of due qualifications to come to Chriſt. Thus, and many other ways, he endeavours to rap off the fingers of Faith from taking hold of Chriſt. And as every Devil in Hell oppoſes this work, ſo every Carnal intereſt we have in the world is an Enemy to Faith. We have Enemies enough within us, as well as without us, both conſpiring together to obſtruct this work: All things increaſe the difficulty of believing.

Thirdly, We are next to ſpeak of the Inſtruments imployed in this great deſign; and theſe are

1. Principal, or
2. Subordinate.

1. The Principal Inſtrument in whoſe efficacy the Heart is opened, is the Spirit of God, without whom it is impoſſible the deſign ſhould ever proſper; neither Ordinances, Providences, or Miniſters can ſucceſsfully manage it without him. If the Lord will make uſe of any Man for the Converſion and Salvation of anothers Soul, he may rejoice in it; but withal muſt ſay as Peter to the Jews, Acts 3. 12. Why look ye ſo earneſtly on us, as though by our own power or holineſs we had made this man to walk? So may the ableſt Miniſter in the World ſay, when God bleſſes his labours to the converſion of any Soul; Look not upon me, as though by the ſtrength of my reaſon, or power of my gifts, I had opened thy Soul to Chriſt; this is the work of God's Spirit, in whoſe hand I I am an inſtrument, 1 Cor. 3. 7. He that plants is nothing, and he that waters is nothing. Nothing in himſelf; the very firſt ſtroak of conviction, which is introductive to the whole work of converſion, is juſtly aſcribed to the Spirit; Joh. 16. 9. The Spirit when he cometh ſhall convince the world of ſin. He is the Lord of all ſanctifying and gracious influences; Ordinances are but as the ſails of a Ship, Miniſters as the Seamen that manage thoſe ſails; the Anchor may be weighed, the ſails ſpread, but when all is done, there is no ſailing till a gale come. We preach, and pray, and you hear; but there is no motion Chriſtward, until the Spirit of God (compared to the wind, John 3. 8.) blow upon them; till he illuminate the Underſtanding with divine light, and bow the Will by an Almighty power, there can be no ſpiritual motion Heaven-ward. Now the Spirit of the Lord is a free agent, not tied to means, time or inſtruments: but as at a certain time an Angel came down upon the waters of Betheſda, and put a healing virtue into them; ſo it is here: Therefore never come to any Goſpel-Ordinance, without an Eye to the Spirit, on whom all their bleſſing and efficacy depends. O lift up your Hearts for his bleſſing upon the means, as ever you expect ſaving benefits from them.

2. The Subordinate inſtrumental means by which this bleſſed deſign is effectually managed in the World, is the Goſpel-miniſtry. 1 Cor. 3. 5. Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but Miniſters by whom ye believed? This is the ordinary ſtated method of begetting Faith; and though God hath not tied himſelf to this or that Miniſter, time, or place, yet he hath tied us to a diligent and conſtant attendance upon them: Rom. 10. 14. How then ſhall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how ſhall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how ſhall they hear without a preacher? I confeſs it ſeems a very unlikely means, a weak and fooliſh method, according to the dictate of corrupt humane wiſdom; yet by the fooliſhneſs of preaching it pleaſes God to ſave them that believe, 1 Cor. 1. 21. That which the wiſdom of Man derides, God makes effectual unto Salvation. And O how many are there that will have cauſe to bleſs God to all eternity for gifting and ſending ſuch Miniſters among them, whoſe Doctrin the Lord bleſſed unto the converſion of their Souls!

Fourthly, In the next place, let us conſider the ſcope and intention of this great deſign, wherein theſe inſtruments are employed: There are no great deſigns in the World but aim at ſome end to be accompliſhed by them. Now there are two things in the eye and intention of this deſign, which are worthy of it.

1. The exaltation of his own Grace, and the riches of his Goodneſs before Angels and Men to all eternity. The Name of God is never made ſo glorious in this World, as it is by bringing over the Hearts of Men and Women to believe. God reaps more glory from the faith of a poor creature that comes to Chriſt empty and weary, than he doth from the other works of his Hands: He hath not the like glory from the Sun, Moon, and Stars, as from ſuch poor creatures, whoſe Hearts open to Jeſus Chriſt under the Goſpel-call. Thus they are fitted to manifeſt the glory of his Grace, Eph. 1. 5, 6. To the praiſe of the glory of his Grace, &c. God will have his rich and glorious Grace praiſed and admired by Angels and Men for evermore; and every converted Soul is as it were a monument erected unto the praiſe of his Grace. Heaven will ring with praiſes for ever, that the great God would humble himſelf to come into the Heart of a vile ſinner, and dwell and walk therein, as the expreſſion is, 2 Cor. 6. 16. O this is admirable, that the high and lofty One, who inhabits eternity, will take up his dwelling place in a poor contrite ſinner, that trembles at his Word, Iſa. 57. 15.

2. The eternal Salvation and Bleſſedneſs of the Soul ſo opened to Chriſt, is alſo the deſign and aim of this work of opening the Heart. Luke 19. 9. When the Soul of Zacheus was opened by faith, This day, ſaith Chriſt, is ſalvation come to thy houſe. You do not only believe to the glory of God, but to the Salvation of your own Souls, Heb. 10. 39. The opening of our Hearts to Chriſt now, is in order to the opening of Heaven to us hereafter. This is both the finis operis & operantis, the end of the work, and intention of the worker. 1 Cor. 1. 21. It pleaſed God by the fooliſhneſs of preaching, to ſave them that do believe. It preſently puts them into a ſtate of Salvation, though they be not yet actually and compleatly ſaved. There is a neceſſary connection betwixt Converſion and Salvation; though betwixt Converſion and compleat Salvation there may be many groaning hours, ſick and ſad days and nights; but full deliverance from ſin and miſery is ſecured to the Soul in the work of Faith, Col. 1. 27. Chriſt in you is the hope of glory.

Thus you ſee this great and glorious deſign projected and managed; and that this is the very ſcope, aim, and intention of the whole Goſpel, even the opening the Hearts of ſinners unto Chriſt by faith, will evidently appear by conſidering the ſeveral parts of the Goſpel which have a direct aſpect upon this deſign, and the declared end of the Spirit who is ſent forth to make it effectual to this very end and purpoſe.

1. To this the Commands of the Goſpel look; it lies full in the Eye of the preceptive part of the Goſpel, 1 Joh. 3. 23. And this is his commandment, that we ſhould believe on the Name of his Son Jeſus Chriſt. And it is a very great encouragement (if rightly conſidered) that Faith is conſtituted a duty by a plain Goſpel-precept; for this cuts off that vain pretence and plea of preſumption; What, ſuch a vile wretch as thou (ſaith Satan) preſume to believe in Chriſt! But this cuts off the plea, Here's a command from the higheſt Sovereignty, the contempt whereof Men ſhall anſwer at their utmoſt peril.

2. This alſo is the declared end and ſcope of the Goſpel-promiſes and threatnings, whereby the Souls of ſinners are aſſaulted on both ſides. As for Promiſes, how are all the ſacred pages of the Bible adorned with them, as the Firmament with radiant Stars! Amongſt which that in the Text ſeems to excel in glory, If any Man open to me, I will come in to him. Like unto which is that John 6. 35, 37. I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me ſhall never hunger, and he that believeth on me ſhall never thirſt; him that cometh to me, I will in no wiſe caſt out. Such rich and excellent encouragements to faith had never been put into the promiſes, but for faiths ſake. And then for Goſpel threatnings, though they have a dreadful ſound, yet they have a gracious deſign; what a terrible thunder-clap is that, John 3. 36. He that believeth not the Son, ſhall not ſee life; but the wrath of God abideth on him. To which another Threatning echoes with a like terrible voice, Mark 16. 16. He that believeth not ſhall be damned. There be dreadful things, you ſee, threatned in the Goſpel againſt unbelievers; but what is the intention of thoſe threatnings, but to ſcare Men out of their unbelief, and carnal ſecurity, unto Chriſt? And thus both the Promiſes and the Threatnings, though of far different natures, conſpire and meet in the ſelf-ſame deſign, even to open the Heart to Chriſt by faith.

3. For the ſake of this deſign all Goſpel-Ordinances and Officers are inſtituted and appointed, maintained and continued in the World unto this day: Why did Chriſt at his Triumphant Aſcenſion ſhed forth ſuch variety of gifts upon Men, but that God might dwell among them? Pſal. 68. 18. Thou haſt aſcended on high, thou haſt led captivity captive; thou haſt received gifts for Men; yea, for the rebellious alſo, that the Lord God might dwell among them. The whole frame of Goſpel-ordinances is declaredly ſet up for this purpoſe, to bring Men to Chriſt, and build them up in Chriſt, Eph. 4. 12.

4. All the Scripture-records of converted ſinners, whoſe Hearts God hath in any age opened, were made for this very purpoſe, to encourage other Souls by their examples to believe in, or open unto Chriſt as they did. For this purpoſe that famous and memorable converſion of Paul was graciouſly recorded, 1 Tim. 1. 16. Howbeit, for this cauſe I obtained mercy, that in me firſt Jeſus Chriſt might ſhew forth all long-ſuffering, for a pattern to them that ſhould hereafter believe on him to life everlaſting. Never was any Mans Heart bolted and made faſt with ſtronger prejudices againſt Chriſt, than this Mans was; yet the Spirit of the Lord opened it: O how flexible was his will! Lord what wilt thou have me to do? This gives great encouragement to other ſinners to come in to Chriſt as he did; and therefore when Men ſhall ſee other ſinners receiving Chriſt, and themſelves continue ſtill obſtinate, and unbelieving, thoſe very examples which God hath ſet before their Eyes put a dreadful aggravation upon their unbelief; as you may ſee, Matth. 21. 32. John came unto you in the way of righteouſneſs, and ye believed him not; but the Publicans and Harlots believed him; and ye when ye had ſeen it, repented not afterward, that you might believe him. q. d. Though you ſaw Publicans, reputed the worſt of Men, and Harlots, the worſt of Women, convinced, humbled and brought unto faith; yet theſe ſights no way affected your Souls; you never had one ſuch reflection as this, Lord have not I as much need to fly from the wrath to come, and mind the Salvation of my own Soul as theſe? Will it not be a dreadful aggravation of my miſery, that ſuch as theſe ſhould obtain Chriſt and Heaven, and I be ſhut out?

5. To conclude: The opening of the Heart to Chriſt is the very end and errand of the Spirit of God, upon whoſe concurrence and bleſſing the ſucceſs of all Ordinances depends; upon this deſign he is ſent expreſly from Heaven, to open the underſtanding and conſciences of ſinners by conviction, John 16. 9. For it is not in the power of the Word alone to produce this effect; thouſands of excellent Sermons may be preacht, and not one Heart opened by conviction. He is expreſly ſent to this end and purpoſe. What remains, is the Application of this Point.

I. Uſe of Information.

Infer. 1. If the opening of the Heart to Chriſt, be the great and direct intention and end of the Goſpel, How are they deceived that bleſs themſelves in the attainment of ſome leſſer end and inttentions of the Goſpel, whilſt the great end (the effectual perſwaſion of the Will to Chriſt) is not at all effected upon them! There are ſome collateral ſtroaks, ſome by-effects, as I may call them, which the Goſpel hath upon Men. It would pity a wiſe conſiderate Man to ſee how poor Souls hug themſelves with a conceited happineſs in theſe leſſer things, whilſt they ſtill ſtick faſt in the ſtate of unregeneracy. I would feign undeceive ſuch miſtaken wretches, who bow down under the power of ſelf-deceit, and that in ſo great and important a Point, in which their eternal Salvation is concerned. There be two things which are exceeding apt to deceive Men in this matter, viz.

1. Partial convictions on the Underſtanding.
2. Tranſient motions upon the Affections.

In theſe two things multitudes deceive themſelves, as if the whole deſign of the Goſpel were accompliſhed upon them therein. (1.) Partial Convictions upon the Underſtanding; light and knowledg breaking into the mind, producing orthodoxy of Judgment; this ſeems to be the effectual opening of the Underſtanding to Chriſt, though alas, to this day they never ſaw ſin in its vileneſs, much leſs their own ſpecial ſin; nor Chriſt in his ſutableneſs and neceſſity. People that live under the Goſpel, can hardly avoid the improvement of their Underſtandings by the light that ſhines upon them: Knowledg grows, Parts thrive; theſe inable them to diſcourſe and defend the Points of Religion excellently. Yea, it may be from the ſtrength of theſe Gifts, they can pray with commendable variety and largeneſs of expreſſion: theſe things beget applauſe from Men, and confidence in your ſelves, whilſt all the while no ſaving influences are ſhed down to quicken, change, and ſpiritualize the Heart. (2.) There are tranſient motions and touches of the Goſpel upon the affections, which give ſome Men their melting pangs and moods, now and then under the Word, though it never ſettles into a ſpiritual frame, an habitual heavenlineſs of temper; of ſuch the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Heb. 6. 5. And this is the more dangerous, becauſe they now ſeem to have attained all that is eſſential to Religion, or neceſſary to Salvation. For when unto the light of their underſtandings, there ſhall be added melting affections; a Man now ſeems to be compleat in all that the Goſpel requires to the being and conſtitution of a Chriſtian, as a great Divine ſpeaks: for thus poor Souls are apt to reaſon; If I had only light in my mind, and never found any meltings of my affections, I might ſuſpect my ſelf juſtly to be a hypocrite: but there are times when my affections, as well as my underſtanding ſeem to feel the power of the Goſpel. And yet theſe things may be where the Heart never effectually opens to Chriſt; all this may be but a morning dew, an early cloud that vaniſhes away, as is plain in John's hearers, John 5. 35. and in Paul's hearers, Gal. 1. 14, 15. For except the convictions upon the underſtanding be particular, and effectual, and the motions upon the affections ſetled to a heavenly habit and temper; the Man is but where he was before, as to the real ſtate and condition of his Soul. Were thy underſtanding ſo convinced of the evil nature and dreadful conſequences of ſin, and thy Affections and Will thereupon ſo effectually determined to chooſe and embrace the Lord Jeſus upon a conſiderate and through examination of his own Terms and Articles propounded in the Goſpel; then thou mighteſt conclude the great deſign of it were accompliſhed upon thy Soul: but to reſt in general convictions, and tranſient affections without this, is but to mock and deceive thy own Soul. Alas, this comes not home to the main end of the Goſpel.

Mr. A. Burgeſs in his Spiritual Refining.

Infer. 2. Learn from hence the prodigious ſtubbornneſs and hardneſs of the Heartss of Men living daily under the Goſpel, which ſtill reſiſt it, though it bear upon them in part of it.

You have heard how all its commands, promiſes, threatnings and examples, bear directly and jointly upon the Hearts of ſinners, to get open the Will to Chriſt. And yet how few are there comparatively that obey and anſwer this great deſign of it! All theſe are like Heavens great Artillery planted againſt the unbelief and ſtubbornneſs of the Hearts of Men, to batter down their carnal reaſonings, overthrow their vain hopes, and open a fair paſſage for Chriſt into their Soul. 2 Cor. 10. 4. 5. For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of ſtrong holds, caſting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalts it ſelf againſt the knowledg of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Chriſt. If a Mount be raiſed, and many Cannon planted thereon, and all play'd againſt the wall of a Fort, thouſands of ſhots made, and yet no breach, not one ſtone moved out of its place; you will ſay that's a ſtrong Wall indeed. Beloved, God hath, as I may ſay, raiſed a Mount in the Goſpel, planted the great Ordnance of Heaven upon it, diſcharged many dreadful vollies of threatnings; nay he hath, as it were, come under the walls of the unbelieving Soul, with terms of grace and mercy, and yet no opening; O prodigious obſtinacy! We have piped unto you, but ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you, but ye have not lamented, Mat. 11. 17. Neither the ſweet Airs of Goſpel-Grace, nor the dreadful thunders of the Law make any impreſſion upon you. O what an obdurate Rock is the Heart by nature! Certainly every Chriſtian may ſee enough in others, and find enough in himſelf, without the help of other Books, to confute the Arminian Doctrin, which ſo extols and flatters the Nature of man. It is as poſſible to make an impreſſion with your finger upon a wall of braſs, as for the beſt Sermon in the world in its own ſtrength, to make an effectual ſaving impreſſion upon a ſinners Will.

Infer. 3. Is it the great deſign of the Goſpel to open the hearts of men to Chriſt? then wonder not that it meets with ſuch ſtrong and fierce oppoſition from Satan wherever it is ſincerely and powerfully preached. As for general and formal preaching, which comes not to the quick, the Devil is not ſo much concerned about it; he knows it will do him no great damage; nay, it faſtens and ſecures his intereſt in the Souls of men. But wherever the Goſpel comes with ſpirit and power, laying the Ax to the Root, ſhewing men the vanity of their ungrounded hopes, preſſing the neceſſity of Regeneration and Faith, this preaching quickly gives an alarm to Hell, and raiſes all manner of oppoſition againſt it. What is it to preach the Goſpel, ſaid Luther, but to derive the rage and fury of the whole world upon us? Satan is the God of this world, all men by Nature are his born Subjects: No Prince on earth is more jealous of the revolt of his Subjects than he; and it's time for him to beſtir himſelf when the Goſpel comes to dethrone him, as it doth in the faithful preaching of it, John. 12. 31. Now is the Judgment of this world, now ſhall the Prince of this world be caſt out. Now he falls as Lightning from Heaven, Luke 10. 18. Now Sinners are made ſenſible of the cruel tyranny and bondage of Satan's Government, and of the glorious liberty offered to them by Jeſus Chriſt. Satan ſuſpecting the Iſſue of theſe things, beſtirs himſelf to purpoſe. O what ſhowers of Calumnies, and ſtorms of Perſecution doth he pour upon the Names and Perſons of Chriſt's faithful Ambaſſadors! Certainly he owes Chriſt's Miniſters a ſpite, and they ſhall know and feel it, if ever he get them within the compaſs of his Chain. But let this diſcourage none imployed in this glorious deſign; the Lord is with them to protect their perſons, and reward their diligence.

Infer. 4. If the opening of the heart be the main deſign of the Goſpel, then Chriſt and Faith ought to be the principal Subjects that Miniſters ſhould inſiſt on among their people.

There are many other uſeful Doctrins, which may and ought to be opened and preſt in their time and place. Moral duties, &c. have their excellencies; but Chriſt and Faith are the great things we are to preach. Let men be once brought to Chriſt, and the reſt will follow; but to begin and end with Morality will never make men Goſpel Chriſtians. Grace teaches Morality, Titus 2. 11. but Morality without Grace ſaves no man. I doubt not but it has been a grand Artifice of the Devil to confound Grace with Morality, and make men believe that nothing more is requir'd unto mens ſalvation but a civil ſober converſation in the world, and ſo lay by the principal part of the Goſpel, which opens and preſſes the neceſſity of Regeneration, Repentance, and Faith in the Blood of Chriſt. Such preaching as this anſwers not the end and deſign of Chriſt in the converſion of Souls; ſuch toothleſs preaching diſturbs not the Conſciences of men; the Lord help all his Ambaſſadors to mind the Example and Charge of their Redeemer, and laying aſide all carnal intereſt, to apply themſelves faithfully unto the Souls and Conſciences of their hearers, not as men-pleaſers, but as the ſervants of Chriſt.

II. Uſe of Conviction.

In the next place, This Doctrin is of excellent uſe to convince men of the dreadful damning nature of the ſin of Unbelief: A ſin which defeats and fruſtrates the main deſign of the bleſſed Goſpel of Chriſt on the Unbelievers Soul.

This is the ſin that keeps the heart faſt ſhut againſt him. As Faith is the radical Grace, ſo Unbelief is the radical Sin. What ſhall I ſay of it? it is the Traitors Gate through which thoſe Souls paſs that are to periſh for ever. The Goſpel can do you no good, the Blood of Chriſt can yield you no ſaving benefit, whilſt your Souls remain under the dominion and power of this ſin. When we conſider the mighty Arguments of the Goſpel, we may wonder that all that hear them are not immediately perſwaded to Chriſt by them. And on the other ſide, when we conſider the mighty power of Unbelief, how ſtrongly it holds the Soul in bondage to ſin; we may admire that any Soul is brought over to Chriſt by the Goſpel. It was not without cauſe that the Apoſtle puts Faith in Chriſt among the great Myſteries and Wonders of the Goſpel, 1 Tim. 3. 16. Now the intrinſick evil and fearful conſequences of this ſin of Unbelief will appear in theſe following particulars.

1. Unbelief fixes the guilt of all other ſins on the perſon of the Unbeliever; it binds them all faſt upon his Soul, John 8. 24. For if ye believe not that I am he, ye ſhall die in your ſins. Die in thy ſins man! it were better for thee to die in a Ditch. What more terrible can God threaten, or man feel? This is the ſin that makes the death of Chriſt of none effect to us, Gal. 5. 4. There is indeed a ſovereign virtue in the Blood of Chriſt to pardon ſin, but thy Soul cannot have the benefit of it while it remains under the dominion of this ſin. As it was ſaid of the miraculous works of Chriſt, He could do no mighty works there, becauſe of their unbelief, Matth. 13. 58. ſo none of his ſpiritual works, no ordinances can do thy Soul good till the Lord break the power of this ſin: Hebr. 4. 2. The word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it. If a man were dangerouſly ſick, or wounded, the richeſt Cordial or moſt ſovereign Plaiſters in the world can never recover him, unleſs received and applied. Unbelief ſpills the moſt ſovereign Cordials of the Goſpel, as Water upon the ground. The greateſt ſins that ever thou committedſt might be pardoned, did not this ſin lie in the way; were this gone, all the reſt were gone too; but whilſt Unbelief remains, they alſo remain upon thee.

2. Of all the ſins that are upon the Souls of men, this is the moſt difficult ſin to be removed and cured: Other ſins lie more open to conviction, but this hath the moſt ſpecious pretences to countenance and defend it. Men commit this ſin out of a fear of ſin. They will not believe, leſt they ſhould preſume: They dare not believe becauſe they are not qualified. The ſtrength of other ſins meets in this ſin of Unbelief: it is the ſtrongeſt Port wherein Satan truſteth. Take an Adulterer, or a profane Swearer, and you have a fair open way to convince him of his ſin: ſhew him the Command he hath violated, and he hath nothing to ſay in his own defence; but the Unbeliever hath a thouſand plauſible defences.

3. This is the great damning ſin of the world. I do not ſay but all other ſins deſerve damnation, (for the wages of ſin is death) but this is the ſin in the virtue whereof other ſins damn and ruin the Soul. This is the Condemnation, John 3. 19. And as it is a damning ſin, ſo it is a ſin which damns with aggravated damnation, 2 Theſſ. 1. 8. O then let us mourn over, and tremble at this dreadful ſin, which oppoſes and ſo often fruſtrates the great deſign and main end of the whole Goſpel.

III. Uſe for Exhortation.

Is it the main ſcope of the Goſpel to bring men to Chriſt by Faith? then be perſwaded heartily to comply with this great deſign of the Father, Son, and Spirit, Miniſters, Ordinances, and Providences, in opening your hearts to receive Chriſt this day by Faith unfeigned.

And O that I could ſutably preſs this great Point, which falls in ſo directly with the main ſtream and ſcope of the whole Goſpel: And O that whilſt I am preſſing it, you would lift up a hearty cry to Heaven, Lord give me faith whatever elſe thou deny me; open my heart to Chriſt under the Goſpel-Calls. I do not only preſs you to a general and common aſſent to the Truths of the Goſpel, that Chriſt is come in the fleſh, and laid down his life for ſinners; but unto a hearty Evangelical conſent to receive him upon Goſpel-terms; to cloſe with him in all his Offices, ſubjecting heart and

life unto his Authority, living entirely upon him for righteouſneſs, and to him by holineſs. The value of ſuch a Faith as this, is above all eſtimation. For (1.) this is the Grace which God hath dignified, and crowned with Glory and Honour above all its fellow-Graces. Its ſingular Praiſes and Encomiums are in all the Scriptures. This is called precious faith, 2 Pet. 1. 1. Soul-enriching faith, James 2. 5. That's a miſerable poor Soul indeed that is deſtitute of it, whatever the Largeſſes of Providence have been to him. And he is truly rich, to whom God hath given Faith, whatever he hath denied him of the comforts of this life. This Chriſt calls the work of God, John 6. 29. This is the work of God, that you believe. Why ſo are all other things that your eyes behold, they are the works of God; the Earth, the Sea, the Sun, Moon and Stars, they are his handy-work. True, they are ſo; but this is the work, the moſt eminent, glorious, and admirable work of God, ſine pari, excelling all his other works which your eyes behold. And (2.) that which exalts and dignifies it, not only above all the works of God's hands, but even above its fellow-Graces, the works of his Spirit, is that high Office unto which it is appointed in the juſtification of a Sinner. God hath ſingled out this Grace from among all the other Graces, to be the inſtrument of receiving and applying the righteouſneſs of Chriſt for the juſtification of a guilty Soul, Rom. 5. 1. You are never ſaid to be juſtified by Love, Hope or Deſire, but by Faith. 'Tis true, all other Graces are ſuppoſed in the perſon juſtified, but none apprehends and applies the righteouſneſs of Chriſt for juſtification, but this only. And the juſtifying act of faith being a receiving act, the Glory of God is therein ſecured; therefore it is of Faith, that it might be by Grace. (3.) The Grace of Faith, which I am recommending to you this day, is not only the inſtrument of your Juſtification, but it is alſo the bond of your union with Chriſt: Eph. 3. 17. That Chriſt may dwell in your hearts by Faith. 'Tis the uniting Grace, the Marriage-Knot, 'tis that which gives intereſt in, and title to the Perſon and benefits of Chriſt; the great thing upon which the eyes of all the awakened world are intently and ſolicitouſly fixed. Whatever apprehenſions you have of an intereſt in Chriſt, and whatever his benefits be worth in your eyes; neither himſelf, nor them can ever be obtained without Faith. O Brethren, there is a day coming, when they that now ſlight and neglect this intereſt and concern of their Souls, would gladly part with ten thouſand worlds for a good title to Chriſt, could it be purchaſed therewith: But it is Faith, and nothing without Faith, that intitles you to Chriſt, and to his benefits. (4.) That which ſhould yet more endear this Grace of Faith to you is this, that it is the hand which receives your pardon from the hand of Chriſt, the Meſſenger that brings a ſealed Pardon to a trembling Sinner. Acts 10. 43. And by him all that believe are juſtified from all things, from which they could not be juſtified by the Law of Moſes. Cleared of all thoſe ſins from which the Law could never clear them, nor any Repentance, Reſtitution, or Obedience of their own without Faith. O what a welcom Meſſenger is Faith, and what joyful tidings doth it bring! you would ſay ſo, if ever you had felt the efficacy of the Law upon your Conſciences; if ever you had lain, as ſome ſinners have, with a ~~cold ſweating~~ horror upon your panting boſoms, under the apprehenſions of the wrath of God. This fruit of Faith is rather to be admired than expreſt, Pſal. 32. 1. (5.) Faith is not only the Meſſenger that brings you a Pardon from Heaven, but it is, as I may ſay, that heavenly Herald that publiſhes Peace in the Soul of a Sinner. O Peace, how ſweet a word art thou! how welcom to a poor condemned Sinner! Beautiful upon the Mountains are the feet of them that publiſh peace. Now 'tis faith that brings this bleſſed News, and publiſhes it in the Soul, without which all the publiſhers of peace without us, can adminiſter but little ſupport, Rom. 5. 1. Faith brings the Soul out of the Storms and Tempeſts with which it was toſſed, into a ſweet Reſt and Calm, Hebr. 4. 3. We which have believed do enter into Reſt. Is the quiet Harbour welcom to poor weather-beaten Seamen after they have paſt furious ſtorms and many fears upon the raging Sea? O how welcom then muſt Peace be to that Soul that hath been toſſed upon the tempeſtuous Ocean of its own fears and terrours, blown up and incenſed by the terrible blaſts of the Law and Conſcience? It was a comfortable ſight to Noah and his Family to ſee an Olive-leaf in the mouth of the Dove, by which they knew the waters were abated. But O, what is it to hear ſuch a voice as this from the mouth of Faith! Fury is not in me, ſaith the Lord; his anger is turned away, and he comforteth thee. Fear not thou poor tempeſtuous Soul, the God of Peace is thy God. (6.) Faith doth not only bring the tempeſtuous Soul into a Calm, but it is the Grace alſo which opens to the Soul a door of acceſs into the gracious preſence of God; without it there is no coming to him acceptably, Hebr. 11. 6. He that cometh unto God muſt believe. This liberty and acceſs to God is indeed the purchaſe of the Blood of Chriſt; he procur'd it at a great Sum: But Faith is the Grace that brings the Soul actually into the preſence of God, and there helps it to open and eaſe its griefs, and with liberty of Speech to diſcover all its grievances, fears, and burdens to the Lord. And truly, this world were not worth the living in, without ſuch a bleſſed vent to our troubles as this is. The Believer only hath gotten the key that opens the door of acceſs unto God; if he have any ſins, wants, burdens, afflictions, temptations, &c. here he can eaſe them. Ah Chriſtian, the time may come when thy heart may be filled with ſorrows to the brim, and there may not be found a perſon of thy acquaintance in all the world, to whom thou canſt turn to eaſe thy ſorrows, or give vent to thy troubles. Now bleſſed be God for Faith. O the eaſe one act of Faith gives a troubled Soul, which is like Bottles full of new Wine, and muſt either vent or break! Well may it be ſaid, The Juſt ſhall live by Faith; how can we imagine we ſhould live without it? Certainly our Afflictions and Temptations would ſwallow us up, were it not for the ſweet aſſiduous reliefs that come in by Faith. (7.) And yet farther to enflame your deſires after Faith, this is the Grace that gives you the Soul-reviving ſights of the inviſible world, without which this world would be a dungeon to us, Heb. 11. 1. 'Tis not only the ſubſtance of things hoped for, but the evidence of things not ſeen. O 'tis a precious Eye; how tranſporting are thoſe viſions of Faith! 1 Pet. 1. 8. Whom having not ſeen we love, whom tho now we ſee him not, yet believing we rejoice with joy unſpeakable and full of glory. We that preach of Heaven to you, cannot ſhew you the glorious Perſon of Chriſt there, nor the Thrones, Crowns, and Palms that are above; but Faith can make theſe things viſible. That's an Eye that can penetrate the Clouds, and ſhew you him that is inviſible, Heb. 11. 27. (8.) The Grace of faith, which I am recommending to you this day, is inſtrumentally the livelihood of your Souls in this World, Hab. 2. 4. The juſt ſhall live by his faith. When God gives a Soul faith, he gives it him for a livelihood, and expects he ſhould keep houſe upon it, while he is in this World; and God reckons he hath made plentiful proviſion for your Souls, when he hath given them faith, and furniſhed out ſuch variety of precious promiſes for your faith to feed upon. Abraham, Moſes, David, and all the Saints kept houſe upon no other proviſion but what Faith brought in; and at what a high and excellent rate did they live? Here Man eateth Angels food. 'Tis a ſtore-houſe of Proviſion, [redacted] : I had fainted, unleſs I had believed, Pſal. 27. 13. A believer lives the higheſt life of all Men upon earth; and as the believers Soul is daily fed by faith, ſo all the other graces in his Soul are maintained and daily ſupported by the proviſions faith brings them in. The other graces (as one ſaith) like the young birds in the neſt, live upon that proviſion this Grace of faith gathers for them, and puts into their mouths. Take away faith, and you quickly ſtarve the Soul of a Chriſtian; will not all this engage your deſires after faith? Why then (9.) conſider this is the Grace whereby we die ſafely, as well as live comfortably; as you cannot live comfortably without it in this World, ſo neither can you die ſafely or comfortably without it when you go out of this World: Heb. 11. 13. Theſe all died in faith, not having received the promiſes; but having ſeen them afar off, and were perſwaded of them, and embraced them. Mark here, how theſe excellent perſons died; they all died embracing the promiſes in the arms of their faith. An alluſion to two dear friends, [redacted]r at their parting. O precious promiſes, ſaith the dying believer; of what unſpeakable uſe and benefit have you been to me all the days of my pilgrimage! You are they to whom I was wont to turn in all my troubles and diſtreſſes; but I am now going into the life of immediate Viſion: farewel bleſſed Promiſes, Scriptures, Ordinances and Communion of imperfect Saints; I ſhall walk no more by faith, but by ſight. (10.) In a word, and that a great word too; this is the Grace that ſaves you, Eph. 2. 8. By grace are you ſaved, through faith. Your ſalvation is the fruit of free grace; but Grace it ſelf will not ſave you in any other method, but that of believing. The grace of God runs down through the channel of faith; Faith is the grace that eſpouſes your Soul to Chriſt here, and accompanies it every ſtep of the way until it come to its full enjoyment in Heaven, and then is ſwallowed up in viſion. It embarques you with Chriſt, and pilots you through the dangerous Seas, till you drop Anchor in the Haven of everlaſting reſt and ſafety; where you receive the end of your faith, the ſalvation of your Souls. O then in conſideration of the incomparable worth, and abſolute neceſſity of this precious grace, make it your great ſtudy, make it your conſtant cry to Heaven night and day; Lord give me a believing Heart, an opening Heart to Jeſus Chriſt. If you fail of this, you come ſhort of the great end and deſign of the whole Goſpel, which is to bring you to Faith, and by faith to Heaven.

SERMON X.

Revel. III. 20.

—— If any Man hear my voice, and open the door, [I will come in to him, and ſup with him.]

IN the former Sermons we have conſidered Chriſt's ſuit for a ſinners Heart; we now come to the powerful Arguments and Motives uſed by him to obtain his ſuit, which are two:

1. Union, I will come in to him, and ſup with him.
2. Communion, and he with me.

Theſe are ſtrong and mighty arguments, and encouragements, able one would think to open any Heart in the World to Chriſt; and yet conſidering how faſt the Hearts of Men are glued to their luſts, fixed and riveted in their ſins until the Spirit come upon them with powerful convictions; and when under conviction, what mighty diſcouragements they labour under from their former ſinfulneſs and preſent unworthineſs: all this is little enough to bring them to faith; nay, in it ſelf utterly inſufficient without the Almighty Power ſecond and ſet them home with effect on the Heart; for it is not mere moral ſuaſion will do the work. 'Tis true, Chriſt will not make a forcible entrance into the Soul, he will come in by the conſent of the Will; but the Will conſents not, till it feel the power of God upon it, Pſal. 110. 3. Almighty Power opens the Heart, and determins the Will, but ſtill in a way congruous to the nature of the Will, Hoſ. 11. 4. I drew them with the cords of a man, with the bands of love. When under the influence of this power the Soul opens unto Chriſt, he will come in, take that Soul for his everlaſting habitation; refreſh and feaſt it with the ſweeteſt conſolations and privileges, purchaſed by his Blood: whence the Tenth Obſervation is,

Doct. 10. That Chriſt will certainly come into the Soul that opens to him; and will not come empty ty handed, but will bring rich entertainment with him. I will come in to him, and ſup with him.

When the Prodigal (the Emblem of a convert) returned to his Father, Luke 15. 22. his Father not only received, but adorned and feaſted him. In opening this Point, I ſhall ſhew, Firſt, What Chriſt's coming in to the Soul intends.

Secondly, How it appears Chriſt will come into the opening Soul.

Thirdly, What that rich entertainment is he brings with him.

Fourthly, Why he thus entertains the Soul that receives him and opens to him.

Firſt, What Chriſt's coming into the Soul intends; and in general I muſt ſay, this is a great myſtery, which will not be fully underſtood till we come to Heaven, John 14. 20. At that day you ſhall know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you. Then the eſſential union of Chriſt and his Father, and the myſtical union between believers and Chriſt will be more clearly underſtood, than we are capable to underſtand them in this imperfect ſtate: yet for preſent ſo much is diſcovered as may juſtly aſtoniſh poor ſinners at the marvellous condeſcenſion of the Lord Jeſus to them. More particularly, this expreſſion, I will come in to him, imports no leſs than his uniting ſuch a Soul to himſelf; for he comes in with a deſign to dwell in that Soul by faith, Eph. 3. 17. to make ſuch a man a myſtical member of his body, fleſh and bones, Eph. 5. 30. which is the higheſt honour the Soul of Man is capable of. Indeed this coming of Chriſt into the Soul of a ſinner doth not make him one perſon with Chriſt, that is the ſingular honour to which our Nature is advanced by the Hypoſtatical union; but this makes a perſon myſtically one with Chriſt, and tho it be beneath the Hypoſtical Union, yet it is more than a mere Federal Union. Chriſt's coming into the Soul ſignifies more than his coming into Covenant with it, for it is the taking of ſuch a perſon into a myſtical Union with himſelf by the imparting of his Spirit unto him. As the vital ſap of the ſtock coming into the graft, makes it one with the ſtock, John 15. 5. ſo the coming of Chriſt's Spirit into the Soul makes it a member of his myſtical body; and this is a glorious ſupernatural work of God, 1 Cor. 1. 30. moſt honorable, moſt comfortable, and for ever ſure and indiſſoluble; as I have elſewhere more fully ſhewed.

Method of Grace, P. 25.

Secondly, I ſhall evidence the truth and certainty of this moſt comfortable point, that Chriſt will come in, and that with ſingular refreſhments and comforts, to every Soul that hears his voice, and opens to him. No preſent unworthineſs, or former rebellions ſhall bar out Chriſt, or obſtruct his entrance into ſuch a Soul. Whatever thou haſt been, or done; all that notwithſtanding, Chriſt will come into thee, and dwell with thee, and make thy Soul an habitation for himſelf thro the Spirit, Eph. 2. 22. I ſay, let thy Heart but open to him, and he will both fill and feaſt thee, with a non obſtante, as to all thy former miſcarriages.

I know it is the common diſcouragement that multitudes of convinced humbled ſinners lie under, who ſeeing ſo much vileneſs in their natures, and practices, cannot be perſwaded that ever the Lord Jeſus will caſt an Eye of favour on them, much leſs take up his abode in them. What, dwell in ſuch a Heart as mine, which hath been an habitation of Devils, a ſink, a puddle of ſin from my beginning! This is hard to be believed; but ſinner, thou haſt the word of a King from Heaven for it, a word whoſe credit was never crackt or ſtained from the firſt moment it was ſpoken, that whatever thy former or preſent vileneſs or unworthineſs hath been, or is, he will not be ſhy of ſuch a Soul as thou art, if thou be but willing to open to him; thy great unworthineſs ſhall be no bar to his union with thee: If any man open, I will come in to him, &c. For,

1. If perſonal unworthineſs were ſufficient to bar Chriſt out of thy Soul, it would equally bar him out of all the Souls in the World; for all are unworthy as well as thy ſelf. Wherever Chriſt finds ſinfulneſs, he finds unworthineſs; and to be ſure he finds this wherever he comes. Chriſt never expected to find worthineſs in thee, but it highly pleaſes him to find thee under a becoming ſenſe of thy perſonal unworthineſs, Jer. 3. 13. Only acknowledg thine iniquity, that thou haſt transgreſt againſt the Lord thy God, &c. The returning Prodigal acknowledged to his Father, I am not worthy to be called thy Son, Luke 15. 18, 19. But this did not bar his acceſs to, or hinder his acceptance by his Father. All that come to God to be juſtified, muſt ſee and confeſs their own vileneſs, and come to him as one that juſtifieth the ungodly, Rom. 4. 5.

2. Thy former vileneſs and preſent unworthineſs can be no bar to Chriſt's entrance, becauſe it can be no ſurprize to him. He knew thou waſt an unworthy Soul when he made the firſt overture of grace and reconciliation to thee; and if thy unworthineſs hindred not the beginning of his treaty with thee, it ſhall not hinder the cloſing and finiſhing act thereof in his union with thee. I knew that thou waſt a tranſgreſſor from the womb, Iſa. 48. 8.

3. Chriſt never yet came into any Soul where Satan had not the poſſeſſion before him. Every Soul in which Chriſt now dwels, was once in Satans power and poſſeſſion. Acts 26. 18. To turn them from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan to God. So Luke 11. 21, 22. When a ſtrong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace: But when a ſtronger than he ſhall come upon him, and overcome him; he taketh from him all his armour wherein he truſted, and divideth his ſpoil.

4. Thy preſent vileneſs and unworthineſs can be no bar to Chriſt's entrance into thy Soul, becauſe Chriſt never yet objected to any man his unworthineſs, but his unwillingneſs to come unto him, John 5. 40. You will not come unto me, that you might have life. And again, Matth. 23. 37. How oft would I have gathered thy Children, and ye would not? Indeed, you find ſomething like a repulſe from Chriſt to that poor Cananiteſs, Mat. 15. 24, 26. Lord help me, ſaid that poor diſtreſſed Soul; but he anſwered and ſaid, It is not meet to take the childrens bread, and caſt it to dogs. However harſhly and diſcouragingly theſe words ſound, yet certainly it was none of Chriſt's intent to damp and diſcourage her faith, but to draw it forth to a more excellent and intenſe degree; which effect it obtained, verſ. 27.

5. Neither would Chriſt have made the tenders of mercy ſo large and indefinite, had he intended to have ſhut out any Soul upon the ſingle account of perſonal unworthineſs, provided it be but willing to come unto him. Caſt thine Eye, poor diſcouraged Soul, upon Chriſt's invitations and proclamations of Grace and Mercy in the Goſpel, and ſee if thou canſt find any thing beſide unwillingneſs, as a bar betwixt thee and mercy; hearken to that voice of mercy, Iſa. 55. 1. Ho, every one that thirſteth, come ye to the waters; and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat; come, buy wine and milk without money, and without price, (i. e.) without perſonal deſert, or worthineſs. So again, Rev. 22. 17. The Spirit and the Bride ſay come, and let him that is athirſt come; and whoſoever will, let him take the water of life freely. Here you ſee perſonal vileneſs and unworthineſs is no obſtacle in the way of Chriſt. Once more, ſee John 7. 37. In the laſt day, that great day of the feaſt, Jeſus ſtood and cried, ſaying, If any man thirſt, let him come to me and drink. Thus you ſee what Chriſt's coming into the Soul is, and what evidences there are, that when once the Soul is made truly willing, Chriſt will certainly come in to it; and no former vileneſs or preſent unworthineſs ſhall be a bar to obſtruct his entrance.

Thirdly, In the next place I ſhall ſhew you, That when Chriſt comes into the Soul he will not come empty handed. 'Tis Chriſt's marriage-day, and he will make it a good day, a feſtival day; bringing ſuch comforts along with him, as the Soul never taſted before; he ſpreads as it were a Table, furniſhes it with the delicates of Heaven: I will ſup with him, ſaith the Text. What thoſe Spiritual mercies are which Chriſt brings along with him to the opening willing Soul, come next in order to be ſpoken to. And,

1. When Chriſt comes into the Soul of a ſinner, he brings a Pardon with him, a full, a free, and a final pardon of all the ſins that ever that Soul committed. This is a feaſt of it ſelf, good cheer indeed: Chriſt thought it to be ſo when he told the poor Palſy man, Mat. 9. 2. Son be of good cheer, thy ſins are forgiven thee. He doth not ſay, Be of good cheer, thy Palſy is cured, thy body recovered from the grave; but be of good cheer, thy ſins are pardoned. O how ſweetly may the pardoned Soul feed upon this! And this is not any peculiar mercy, deſigned for ſome ſpecial favorites, but what is common to all believers, Acts 13. 43. By him all that believe, are juſtified from all things. Chriſt and Pardon come together; and without a pardon no other mercy would reliſh; no feaſt, no muſick, no money, or honour, have any ſavour or comfort with them to a condemned man; but the comfort of a pardon reaches to the very Heart, Iſa. 40. 1, 2. Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, ſaith the Lord; ſpeak comfortably to Jeruſalem, or as in the Hebrew, ſpeak to the heart of Jeruſalem. But what are the ingredients of that cordial that will comfort Jeruſalems Heart? Why, Say unto her that her iniquities are pardoned; that carries along with it the Spirit of all conſolation.

And there are three things in the pardon of ſin that make it the ſweeteſt mercy that ever the Soul taſted; comfort which is impoſſible to be communicated to another, with the ſame ſenſe that the pardoned Soul hath of it, Rev. 2. 17.

(1.) That which makes the pardon of ſin raviſhingly ſweet, is the trouble that went before it. The labourings and reſtleſs toſſings of the troubled Soul, which were antecedent to this pardon, make the eaſe and peace that follows by it incomparably ſweet. As the bitterneſs of Hell was taſted in the ſorrows of ſin, ſo the ſweetneſs of Heaven is taſted in the pardon of it.

(2.) The nature of the mercy it ſelf is incomparably ſweet; for it is a mercy of the firſt rank; Pardon is ſuch a mercy as admits no comfort to come before it, nor any juſt cauſe of diſcouragement can follow after it. If God hath not ſpoken pardon to the Soul, it can have no ſetled ground for joy, Ezek. 33. 10. And if he have, there can be no juſt ground for dejection, whatever the troubles be that lie upon it. Iſa. 33. 24. The inhabitants ſhall not ſay, I am ſick: the people that dwell therein ſhall be forgiven their iniquities.

(3.) The third thing that makes this mercy delicious, and raviſhingly ſweet to the Soul, are the properties of it, which are four. (1.) God writes upon thy pardon Frank; 'tis a free mercy, which coſt thee nothing, Rom. 3. 24. Being juſtified freely by his grace. Thou haſt bought me no ſweet Cane with money, yet I, even I am he that blotteth out thy tranſgreſſion for my own names ſake. (2.) God writes upon thy pardon full, as well as free; the pardon extends to all the ſins that ever thou committedſt, Acts 13. 43. By him all that believe, are juſtified from all things. The ſins of thy nature, and practice; the ſins of thy youth, and age; great ſins, and leſſer ſins, are all comprehended within thy pardon. Thou art acquitted not from one, but from all! Certainly, the joy of Heaven muſt come down in the mercy of remiſſion. O what a feaſt of fat things with marrow, is this ſingle mercy, a pardon free without price, full without exception! And then (3.) it's final, without revocation; the pardoned Soul never more comes into condemnation: Thine iniquities ar removed from thee as far as the Eaſt is from the Weſt. As thoſe two oppoſite points of Heaven can never meet, ſo the pardoned Soul and its pardoned Sins can never more meet unto condemnation, Pſal. 103. 12. (4.) God writes upon the pardon another word, as ſweet as any of the reſt, and that is ſure. 'Tis a ſtanding mercy never to be recall'd, vacated or annulled, Rom. 8. 33, 34, 35. The challenge is ſent to Hell and Earth, Men and Devils; Who ſhall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? 'Tis God that juſtifies, who is he that condemneth? It is Chriſt that died, &c. Who can arreſt when the Creditor diſchargeth? Who can ſue the bond, when the debt is paid? 'Tis Chriſt that died. The Table is ſpread, and the firſt mercy ſerved in, is the pardon of ſin. Eat, O friends; drink, yea drink abundantly, O beloved. Now the labouring Conſcience that rolled and toſſed upon the waves of a thouſand fears, may drop Anchor, and ride quiet in the pacific Sea of a pardoned State. What joy muſt ſtream through the Conſcience, when the ſweetneſs of that Scripture, Rom. 8. 1. ſhall be preſſed into thy cup of Conſolation! The pardoned Soul may ſpeak and think of Death and Judgment without conſternation; yea, may look upon it as a time of refreſhing from the preſence of the Lord, Acts 3. 19. This is heavenly Manna, the ſweetneſs of it ſwallows up all expreſſion, all conceptions; no words, no thoughts can comprehend the riches of this mercy.

2. And yet this is not all, behold another mercy in conſequence unto this, brought in to refreſh and cheer the conſenting Soul, and that is peace with God. Pardon and Peace go together, Rom. 5. 1. Being juſtified by faith, we have peace with God. Peace is a word of a vaſt comprehenſion; Peace in the language of the Old Teſtament, comprehends all Temporal good things, 1 Sam. 25. 6. And Peace in the New Teſtament, comprehends all Spiritual mercies, 2 Theſ. 3. 16. the bleſſings of Heaven and Earth are wrapt up in this word. The Soul that opens to Chriſt hath peace of reconciliation in Heaven, the enmity that was betwixt God and that Soul is taken away through the blood of Chriſt, Iſa. 12. 1, 2. O Lord, I will praiſe thee; tho thou waſt angry with me, thine anger is turned away, and thou comforteſt me. This muſt be an invaluable mercy, for the purchaſe of it coſt the blood of Chriſt, Iſa. 53. 5. The chaſtiſement of our peace was upon him. He made peace by the Blood of his Croſs, Col. 1. 20. and this peace of reconciliation is ſettled by Chriſt upon a firm foundation. His Blood gives it a more firm and ſteady baſis and foundation than that of the Hills and Mountains, Iſa. 54. 10. And that which makes it ſo firm and ſure, is the Advocateſhip of Jeſus Chriſt in Heaven, 1 John 2. 1, 2. If any man ſin, we have an Advocate with the Father. There is alſo peace in the believers Conſcience, peace as it were by Proclamation from Heaven; and this is built upon the peace of Reconciliation. We cannot have the ſenſe of peace, till we are brought into a ſtate of peace; the latter is the reſult of the former. And this is a ſpecial part of that ſupper Chriſt provides to entertain the Soul that receives it. How ſweet this is, is better felt than ſpoken. A dreadful ſound was lately in the Ears of the Law-condemned ſinner; but now his Heart is the ſeat of peace. And this Peace is, (1.) the Soul's guard againſt all inward and outward terrors, Phil. 4. 7. The peace of God ſhall keep φρȣρήσει, or as the word is, guard your hearts and minds. The Perſons of Princes are ſecured by guards of armed and valiant Men, who watch while they ſleep. Thus Solomon had his Royal guard, becauſe of fear in the night, Cant. 3. 7, 8. This peace of God, Chriſtian, is thy life-guard, and ſecures thee better than Solomons threeſcore valiant men that were about him. Time was when thou waſt afraid to ſleep, for fear thou ſhouldſt awake in Hell: Now thou mayſt ſay with David, I will both lay me down and ſleep, for thou Lord makeſt me to dwell in ſafety. Now, come life, come death; the Soul is ſafe, the Peace of God is its Royal guard. (2.) This Peace is eaſe as well ſafety to the Soul; 'tis hearts-eaſe: no ſooner doth God ſpeak peace to the Conſcience, but the Soul finds it ſelf at eaſe and reſt, Heb. 4. 3. We which have believed, do enter into reſt. It is with ſuch a Soul as it was with the Dove Noah ſent out of the Ark; that poor creature wandred in the Air, as long as her wings could carry her; had her ſtrength fail'd, there was nothing but the waters to receive her. O how ſweet was reſt in the Ark? (3.) This peace is news from Heaven, and the ſweeteſt tidings that ever bleſt the ſinners Ear, next unto Chriſt; Heb. 12. 24. The blood of Chriſt ſpeaketh better things than that of Abel. And you are come to this blood of ſprinkling, the ſame day and hour that Chriſt is come into your Souls. This is the voice of that blood, Thou haſt ſinned, I have ſatisfied; Thou haſt kindled the wrath of God, and I have quencht it. The Angels of Heaven cannot feed higher; their joys are not more delicious than thoſe prepared for believers are, whereof this is a foretaſt: whatever circumſtances of trouble a Man be in, this effectually relieves him. Paul and Silas were in ſad circumſtances, ſhut up in the inner priſon, their feet made faſt in the ſtocks, their cruel keeper at the door, their execution deſigned in a few days: God did but ſet this diſh upon the Table before the priſoners, and they could not forbear to ſing at the feaſt, Acts 16. 25. At midnight they ſang, &c.

3. After theſe two Royal diſhes, Pardon, and Peace, a third will come in, viz. Joy in the Holy Ghoſt; this is ſomewhat beyond peace, 'tis the very quinteſſence and ſpirit of all Conſolation. The Kingdom of God is ſaid to conſiſt in it, Rom. 14. 17. 'tis ſomewhat near to the joy of the glorified, 1 Pet. 1. 8. 'tis Heaven upon Earth. All believers do not immediately attain it, but one time or other God uſually gives them a taſte of it; and when he doth, it is as it were a ſhort Salvation. O who can tell what that is which the Apoſtle calls, The ſhedding abroad of the love of God into the Heart, by the Holy Ghoſt, which is given to us! Rom. 5. 5. It is a Joy which wants an Epithet to expreſs the ſweetneſs of it, 1 Pet. 1. 8. Joy unſpeakable and full of glory. It hath the very ſcent and taſte of Heaven in it, and there is but a gradual difference betwixt it and the joy of Heaven. This joy of the Holy Ghoſt is a ſpiritual cheerineſs, ſtreaming through the Soul of a believer upon the Spirit's teſtimony, which clears his intereſt in Chriſt, and Glory. No ſooner doth the Spirit ſhed forth the love of God into the believers Heart, but it ſtreams and overflows with joy. Joy is no more under that Souls command: and this will evidently appear, if you conſider the matter of it; it ariſes from the light of God's countenance, Pſal. 4. 6, 7. the heavenly glory, 1 Pet. 1. 8. Whom having not ſeen we love, &c. The Soul is tranſported with joy, raviſhed with the glory and excellency of Chriſt. Didſt thou ever ſee this Chriſt whom thy Soul is ſo raviſhed with? No, I have not ſeen him; yet my Soul is tranſported with ſo much love to him; Whom having not ſeen, we love. But if thou never ſaweſt him, how comes thy Soul to be ſo delighted and raviſhed with him? why, tho I never ſaw him by the Eye of ſenſe, yet I do ſee him by the Eye of faith; and by that ſight my Soul is flooded with ſpiritual joy. Believing we rejoice. But what manner of joy is that which you taſte? why, no Tongue can expreſs that, for it is joy unſpeakable. But how are Chriſt and Heaven turned into ſuch raviſhing joys to the Soul? why, the Spirit of the Lord gives the believing Soul not only a Light to diſcern the tranſcendent excellency of theſe ſpiritual objects; but a ſight of his intereſt in them alſo: This is my Chriſt, and this the glory prepared for me. Without intereſt, Heaven it ſelf cannot be turned into joy. My Soul rejoiceth in God my Saviour, Luke 1. 47. We read, Luke 13. 28. of ſome that ſhall have a ſight of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophets in the Kingdom of God; and yet a ſight without joy; a dreadful ſight to them, for want of a joint intereſt with them in that glory. They ſhall ſee, and yet wail and weep, and gnaſh their teeth: But an intereſt ſealed gives joy unſpeakable. Now as to the excellency of this joy, it will be found to be the pleaſant light of the Soul; Light and Joy are ſynonimous terms in Scripture, Pſal. 97. 11. 'Tis as the cheerful light of the Morning after a ſad and diſmal Night. You that have ſat in darkneſs and the ſhadow of death, you that have ſat mourning in the dark without one glimpſe of a promiſe, you that have convers'd with nothing but diſmal thoughts of Hell and Wrath; O I ſhall be caſt away for ever! What will you ſay when after all this darkneſs, the Day-ſtar ſhall ariſe in your hearts, the joy of Heaven ſhall beam upon your Souls? Will not this be a glorious reward for all your ſelf-denyal for Chriſt, and fully recompenſe for the frowns of carnal relations for giving entertainment to Chriſt? This joy of the Lord, if there were no other Heaven, is an abundant recompenſe. This joy of the Lord ſhall be your ſtrength, Neh. 8. 10. Let God but give a man or woman a little of this Joy into his heart, and he ſhall preſently feel himſelf ſtrengthened by it, either to do or to ſuffer the will of God. Now he can pray with enlargement, hear with comfort, meditate with delight; and if God call him to ſuffer, this Joy ſhall ſtrengthen him to bear it. This was it that made the Martyrs go ſinging to the ſtake. This therefore tranſcends all the joys of this lower world: There are ſinful pleaſures men find in the fulfilling their luſts: There are ſenſitive joys that men find in the good creatures of God, filling their hearts with food and gladneſs: There are alſo deluſive joys, falſe comforts that Hypocrites find in their ungrounded hopes of Heaven. The joys of the Senſualiſt are brutiſh, the joys of the Hypocrite are enſnaring and vaniſhing; but the joys of the Holy Ghoſt are ſolid, ſweet, and leading to the fulneſs of everlaſting joy. This is the third heavenly Dainty you may expect to feed on, if you open your hearts to receive Chriſt by Faith, elſe you have all the conſolation that ever you muſt expect.

4. We read in Scripture of the Sealings of the Spirit, a choice and bleſſed Privilege of Believers conſequent upon believing: Eph. 1. 13. In whom after that ye believed, ye were ſealed, &c. This then may be expected by every Soul that opens to Chriſt, how rich ſoever the comforts of it be. The Spirit indeed ſeals not before Faith, for then he ſhould ſet his Seal to a Blank; but he uſually ſeals after believing, and that as the Spirit of promiſe. Note here, the Agent or Perſon ſealing, the Spirit, he knows the counſels, thoughts, and purpoſes of God, 1 Cor. 2. 10, 11. He alſo is authorized to this work; and being the Spirit of truth, he cannot deceive us. There is a twofold Seal ſpoken of in Scripture; one referring to God's eternal foreknowledg and choice of men, 2 Tim. 2. 19. Nevertheleſs, the foundation of God ſtandeth ſure, having this ſeal, The Lord knoweth who are his; i. e. the Lord perfectly knows every Soul that belongs to him thro the world. But now what comfort is this to a poor Believer, that God knows who are his? Therefore there is another ſealing referring to the Spirit, as his act upon Believers, to make them know that they are his. The firſt is general, The Lord knoweth who are is: But this is particular, The Lord knoweth thee to be his. This is joyful news indeed: the former makes it ſure in it ſelf, the latter makes it ſure to us. Now this is a moſt glorious privilege, a work of the Spirit, which hath a moſt raviſhing delicious ſweetneſs in it; and that which makes it ſo, is,

(1.) The weightineſs of the matter ſealed to, which is no leſs than Chriſt, and the eternal Inheritance purchaſed by his Blood. This Seal ſecures our Title to Chriſt, and to the eternal Glory: We are ſealed to the day of redemption. The ſealed Believer can ſay, Chriſt, how great, how glorious ſoever he be, is my Chriſt; the Covenant of Grace, and all the invaluable promiſes contained in it are mine.

(2.) The reſt and quietneſs which follows it, makes it an invaluable mercy; this brings the anxious ſolicitous Mind and Conſcience to reſt and peace. O what a mercy is it to have all thoſe knots untied, thoſe objections anſwer'd, thoſe fears baniſhed, under which the doubting Soul ſo long laboured, and which kept it ſo many nights waking and reſtleſs! God only knows at what rate ſome poor Creatures live under the ſcarings of their own Conſciences, and frequent fears of Hell: And what an inconceivable mercy would it be to them to be delivered at once from their dangers and fears, which hold them under a Spirit of Bondage? Open to Chriſt, and thou art in the way to ſuch a deliverance: Come unto me and I will give you reſt, ſaith Chriſt, Matth. 11. 28, 29.

(3.) This ſealing of the Spirit, which follows upon believing, will eſtabliſh the Soul in Chriſt, confirm it and ſettle it in the ways of God, which is an unſpeakable privilege: 2 Cor. 1. 22. Now he which eſtabliſheth us with you in Chriſt is God, who alſo hath ſealed us. Mark how eſtabliſhment follows ſealing. New temptations may come, great perſecutions and ſore afflictions may come; but how well is that Soul provided for them all, that hath the ſealings of the Spirit unto the day of redemption? Yea, though the Soul that was ſealed ſhould for the preſent be under new darkneſs, new temptations and fears; yet former ſealing will give eſtabliſhment and relief, when the thoughts run back to the ſealing day, and a man remembers how clear God once made his title to Chriſt. Well then, open to Chriſt, if ever you expect to be ſealed to ſalvation. If you continue to deſpiſe and reject the tenders of Chriſt in the Goſpel, whilſt others that embrace him are ſealed to redemption; your unbelief and final rejection of Chriſt will ſeal you up to the day of damnation.

5. And laſtly, we read likewiſe in the Scriptures of the Earneſt of the Spirit. This is three times mentioned in the Scriptures. Eph. 1. 14. Which is the earneſt of our inheritance, until the redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion. 2 Cor. 1. 22. where it is joyned with the former privilege of ſealing, Who hath alſo ſealed us, and given the earneſt of the Spirit in our Hearts. And again, 2 Cor. 5. 5. He that hath wrought us for the ſelf-ſame thing is God, who alſo hath given unto us the earneſt of the Spirit. The word is ἀῤῥαβὼν, originally a Syriak word: The Greeks are ſuppoſed to get it from the Phœnician Merchants, with whom they traded; and it notes a part paid in hand to confirm a bargain for the whole. There are two things in an Earneſt. (1.) It is part of the ſum or inheritance: If it were a contract for a ſum of mony, then it was a ſmall part of a greater parcel; if for an Inheritante, then the earneſt is a taking a part of the Inheritance, as a twig or turf, part of the whole. Now the Spirit of God chooſes this word on purpoſe to ſignifie two great things to his People by it.

(1.) That thoſe comforts communicated by the Spirit to Believers are of the ſame kind with the Joys of Heaven, though in a far inferiour degree: 1 Pet. 1. 8. called there Joy unſpeakable and full of glory; and Rom. 8. 23. called there, The firſt-fruits of the Spirit. The Firſt-Fruits and the Crop or Harveſt are one in kind. Surely there is ſomething of Heaven as well as Hell taſted by men in this world; Hell is begun here in the terrors of ſome mens Conſciences, and Heaven alſo is begun here in the abſolution, peace and comfort of other mens Conſciences.

(2.) As an Earneſt is part of the ſum or inheritance, ſo the uſe and end of it is confirmation and ſecurity; as much as to ſay, Take this in part till the whole be paid; yea, take it for thy ſecurity that the whole ſhall be paid. Believers have a double pledg or earneſt for Heaven; one in the perſon of Chriſt, who is entred into that glory for them, John 14. 2, 3. the other in the joys and comforts of the Spirit, which they feel and taſte in themſelves. Theſe are two great ſecurities; and the deſign of God in giving us theſe earneſts and foretaſts of Heaven, are not only to ſettle our minds, but to whet our induſtry, that we may long the more earneſtly, and labour the more diligently for the full poſſeſſion. The Lord ſees how apt we are to flag in the purſuit of Heavenly Glory; and therefore gives his People a taſte, an earneſt of it, to excite their diligence in the purſuits of it. God deals with his People in this caſe, as with Iſrael; they had been forty years in the Wilderneſs, many ſore temptations they had there encountred; at laſt they were come upon the very borders of Canaan, but then their hearts began to faint; there were Anakims, Giants in the Land, poor Iſrael feared they ſhould not ſtand before them: but Joſhua ſends Spies into the Land, who returning, bring the firſt-fruits of Canaan to them, whereby they ſaw what a goodly Country it was; and then the fear of the Anakims began to vaniſh, and a ſpirit of Courage to revive in the People. Thus it is even with the Borderers on Heaven; tho we be near that bleſſed Land of promiſe, yet our hearts are apt to faint upon a proſpect of thoſe great ſufferings without us, and thoſe conflicts with corruptions we feel within us: But one taſte of the firſt-fruits of Heaven, like thoſe grapes of Eſhcol, revive our Spirits, rouze our Zeal, and quicken our purſuits of Bleſſedneſs. For theſe reaſons God will not have all of Heaven reſerved till we come thither. And now tell me, you that have taſted theſe firſt-fruits of the Spirit, (1.) Is there not ſomething in faith of that glorified Eye, by which the pure in heart do ſee God in Heaven? Matth. 5. 8. O that eye of Faith! that precious eye! which comes as near to the glorified eye, as any thing in this imperfect ſtate can come: 1 Pet. 1. 8. Whom having not ſeen ye love, in whom though now ye ſee him not, yet believing ye rejoice with joy unſpeakable and full of glory. (2.) Is there not ſomething of that glorified Love to be felt in an inferiour degree by the Saints in this world? What elſe can we make of that tranſport of the Spouſe, Cant. 2. 5. Stay me with flagons, comfort me with apples, for I am ſick of love? 'Tis true, our love to God in Heaven is much more fervent, pure, and conſtant; yet theſe high-raiſed acts of ſpiritual love have a taſt and reliſh of it. (3.) Is there not ſomething here of that heavenly delight wherewith the Glorified delight in God? As the viſions of God are begun on earth, ſo the heavenly delights are begun here alſo. Some drops of that delight are let fall here, Pſal. 94. 19. In the multitude of the thoughts I had within me, thy comforts delight my Soul. David's heart, 'tis like, had been full of ſorrow and trouble; a ſea of gall and wormwood had overflowed his Soul: God lets fall but a drop or two of heavenly delight, and all is turned into ſweetneſs and comfort. (4.) Is there not ſomething here of that transformation of the Soul into the image of God, which is compleat in Heaven, and a ſpecial part of the Glory thereof? 'Tis ſaid in 1 John 3. 2. We ſhall be like him, for we ſhall ſee him as he is. This is Heaven, this is Glory, to have the Soul moulded into full conformity with God; ſomething thereof is experienced in this world: O that we had more! 2 Cor. 3. 18. But we all with open face, beholding as in a glaſs the glory of the Lord, are changed into the ſame image, from glory to glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord. (5.) Is there not ſomething felt here of the raviſhing ſweetneſs of God's preſence in Ordinances and Duties, which is a faint ſhadow at leaſt of the joys of his glorious preſence in Heaven? There is certainly a felt preſence of God, a ſenſible nearneſs unto God at ſome times, and in ſome duties of Religion, wherein his Name is as an ointment poured forth, Cant. 1. 3. ſomething that is felt beyond and above all the comforts of this world. (6.) In a word, the joys of Heaven are unſpeakable Joys; no words can make known to others what they are. When Paul was caught up into Paradiſe, he heard unſpeakable words, 2 Cor. 12. 4. And are there not times even in this life, wherein the Saints do feel that which no words can expreſs? 1 Pet. 1. 8. Rev. 2. 17.

Now if ſuch earneſts of the Spirit do follow after believing; if opening the Soul to Chriſt do bring it into theſe Suburbs of Heaven; who then would not receive Chriſt into his Soul, and ſuch an Heaven upon Earth with him? And thus I have ſhewed you what ſome of thoſe heavenly rarities are with which Chriſt entertains Believers upon Earth, the fulneſs and perfection whereof is reſerved for Heaven, and hereby ſecured to the opening or believing Soul: which was the third thing to be diſcovered.

Fourthly, Next we ſhall enquire into the reaſons, why Chriſt thus entertains, feaſts and refreſhes the Soul that receives him. And,

Reaſ. 1. This he doth to expreſs the great joy and ſatisfaction his Soul hath in the Faith and Obedience of poor Sinners. We read, Iſa. 53. 11. of the hard travel of Chriſt's Soul, and the great ſatisfaction he hath in the fruit and iſſue thereof: He ſhall ſee of the travel of his Soul, and ſhall be ſatisfied. O what pleaſure and ſatisfaction doth it give him to behold the eternal counſels of God, and ſore travels of his Soul brought to ſuch a Birth! there is no pleaſure like it to the Soul of Chriſt in this World. As it is abundant ſatisfaction to a Man, to behold the accompliſhment of a deſign upon which he hath laid out many thoughts, and much coſt, at laſt happily finiſhed: Or as it is to a Woman that has had a hard labor, a ſore travel for a Child, to behold the fruit of her Womb, to embrace and ſmile upon that Child ſhe travel'd for: So and much more than ſo it is to Chriſt: and therefore as the Father of the Prodigal manifeſted the joy of his Heart for the return of his Son (who was to him as dead and loſt) by a feaſt and muſick, ſo doth Chriſt here anſwerably manifeſt the content and ſatisfaction of his Soul, by entertaining the Believer with theſe Royal dainties of Heaven: 'tis the Soul's welcom home to Chriſt.

Reaſ. 2. This Chriſt doth to relieve and refreſh poor diſtreſſed Souls, who have endured ſo many fears and ſorrows from the time of their firſt Conviction until this day of their union with Chriſt by Faith. The way of Faith is a very humbling way; there's much cutting work in antecedent Convictions and Humiliations, ſad nights and ſick days with many poor Souls; and theſe things bring them very low: They ſee the Law broken by ſin, wrath hanging over them in the threatnings, the bitter taſt thereof they have in their Conſciences; they have dwelt with fears and horrors a long time, and they need ſuccour and ſupport, which the Lord Jeſus is now reſolved to give them, leſt the Spirit fail before him, Iſa. 57. 16. He delights to comfort them that are caſt down, 2 Cor. 7. 6. Chriſt is of a compaſſionate nature, he is as ready as able to ſuccour them that are tempted, Heb. 2. 18. That Word which we render Succour, ſignifies to run in by way of help, at the cry of one that is in diſtreſs. Many emphatical cries have gone up to Heaven from the diſtreſſed ſin-ſick Soul; theſe the compaſſionate Jeſus hears, and now comes in ſeaſonably to ſuccour and refreſh it: He hath rich Cordials for fainting Hours; the Soul hath had a bitter Break-faſt, and therefore Chriſt will give it a comfortable Supper, I will come in to him, and ſup with him.

Reaſ. 3. Thoſe that open their Hearts to Chriſt muſt expect to meet great troubles, ſufferings and temptations in that new courſe whereinto they are entred: Their way to Heaven lies thro much tribulation; all our troubles are not over when we are got into Chriſt; nay, then commonly our greateſt outward troubles begin, Heb. 10. 32. After ye believed, ye endured a great fight of afflictions. Carnal relations now ſcoff, frown and caſt off; the World hates them, and marks them out for Perſecution. Now that poor Chriſtians may not utterly be diſcouraged, when they meet with thoſe troubles in the way of their duty; Chriſt will chear and hearten them by theſe ſpiritual refreſhments: This is a ſtock laid in for a rainy day: Chriſt himſelf had a voice from Heaven, Mat. 17. 5. This is my beloved Son, a little before his great combat; much more do his poor people need ſuch conſolations to ſupport and encourage them. The wiſe God foreſees, and by this proviſion forelays the troubles they are to meet with: An hour of Sealing fortifies the Soul for an hour of Suffering. It hath been the obſervation of ſome Chriſtians, when they have felt more than ordinary comforts of the Spirit, that ſome great trial hath been near them; and the event hath confirmed it. Whatever comforts Chriſt gives his People at their firſt entrance into his Service, they will have need enough of them all before they finiſh their courſe. To theſe firſt ſealings they will need often to run back, and have frequent recourſe to them, and all little enough to ſupport them in after-trials.

Reaſ. 4. Chriſt comes in to the opening Soul with ſuch divine Cordials and Refreſhmens, to defeat and countermine the Plot of Satan, who hath ſo often, and ſo lately been diſcouraging them, by repreſenting the ways of Chriſt as ſad melancholy ways; telling them they ſhall never laugh more, never be merry more, after they have embraced and eſpouſed the ways of holineſs: Spiritus Calvinianus eſt Spiritus melancholicus. Well, their own experiences ſhall now confute it, for they now taſte that pleaſure in Chriſt, in Faith, and Obedience, which they never taſted in the ways of ſin; thus that ſcandalous Libel of the Devil is experimentally confuted. They find they were never truly merry till now, Luke 15. 24. All true Mirth commences from our cloſing with Chriſt; and they began to be merry.

Now theſe ſpiritual refreſhments are by Chriſt here called a Supper, becauſe the Supper among the Jews was their beſt meal, Luke 14. 17. and becauſe it is the laſt meal. This is not only the beſt meal that ever a Believer made, but upon theſe ſpiritual Comforts (tho much more refined and perfect) they are to feed for ever in Heaven. O Chriſtian, well mayſt thou be contented with thine outward lot of Providence, however it ſhall fall in this World with reſpect to thy outward man; Will a King from Heaven come and ſup with thee? Doth he feed thy Soul with pardon, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghoſt, ſeal an earneſt of future glory? then thou liveſt at a higher and nobler rate than any of thy carnal neighbours do. Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly places in Chriſt, Eph. 1. 3. The ſame perſon that thus bleſſes God with a Heart over-flowing with joy and comfort, endured as many perſecutions, felt as many wants and ſtraits as any man. What if Providence do but meanly clothe your Bodies, ſo that you cannot ruffle it out in that ſplendor and gallantry others do? yet mayſt thou ſay with the Church, I will greatly rejoice in the Lord, my Soul ſhall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of Salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteouſneſs, as a bridegroom decketh himſelf with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth her ſelf with Jewels, Iſa. 61. 10. What if thou fare not ſo deliciouſly as the great ones of this World do? yet if Chriſt will give thee to eat of the hidden Manna which he promiſeth, Rev. 2. 17. art thou not better clothed and fed than any of the Grandees or Nobles of the World? This takes away all grounds of complaint. It may be you will ſay, O but we have Bodies, as well as Souls; if God had created us Angels, that we could live without material food, it were another caſe. I reply, Chriſt never thus intended to feaſt thy Soul, and ſtarve thy Body: he that feeds thy Soul with bread from Heaven, will take care for all neceſſary proviſions on Earth, Iſa. 41. 17. You have ſought and found the Kingdom of God, and his righteouſneſs; fear not but all other things ſhall be added to you.

I. Uſe for Information.

The Point before us is full of Uſes; I ſhall begin with Information, in the following Inferences.

Infer. 1. Hence learn, That it is a vile and groundleſs ſlander upon Religion, to ſay or inſinuate, that it deprives men of the comfort and joy of life.

The Devil, in deſign to diſcourage men from the ways of God, puts a frightful mask upon the beautiful face of Religion, pretending there is no pleaſure or joy to be expected therein; but this is abundantly confuted and refelled in the Text, I will come in to him, and ſup with him. Solomon tells us, Eccl. 10. 19. A feaſt is made for laughter. I am ſure that Soul that ſits with Chriſt at ſuch a feaſt as has bin deſcribed above, has the beſt reaſon of any man in the World to be merry. Religion indeed denies us all ſinful pleaſure, but it abounds with all ſpiritual pleaſure. No rational ſolid mirth can come before Chriſt; the unſanctified rejoice in things of nought, and their joy will be ſoon ended; they are haſtning to that place where they will find that to be verified of the wages of ſin, which they now falſly impute to the wages of holineſs; they ſhall never rejoice more, never be merry more: But believers ſhall find that Scripture atteſted by their daily experience, Prov. 3. 17. All ways are ways of pleaſantneſs, and all her paths are peace. And that there are ſuch pleaſures in the ways of God as they never experienced in the ways of ſin; for is it a ſolid ground of comfort to a man to be out of debt, and all fears of arreſts, and is it not much greater to have our debts paid to God by Chriſt our Surety? Mat. 9. 2. Be of good cheer, thy ſins are forgiven thee. Is it matter of joy to have a ſufficiency of all things for the ſupply of every want? he that is in Chriſt hath ſo, 1 Cor. 3. 22, 23. All are yours, and ye are Chriſt's. Is it a joyful Life to be a borderer upon Heaven, to confine upon Bleſſedneſs it ſelf? Then it is a joyful life to be in Chriſt, for they that are ſo, may rejoice in the hopes of Glory, Rom. 5. 2. Is it matter of all joy to have the Comforter himſelf, who is the Spirit of all Conſolation, taking up his reſidence in thy Heart, cheering, comforting, and refreſhing it with ſuch Cordials as are unknown things in all the unbelieving World? Then certainly the life of a Chriſtian, and the ways of holineſs, muſt be moſt pleaſant and comfortable; and therefore let none that are looking towards Chriſt be diſcouraged in their way, by the ſlanderous reproaches deſignedly caſt upon Religion for that end. Chriſt and Comfort dwell together.

Infer. 2. Hence in like manner it follows, That Chriſtians uſually meet the greateſt difficulties at their firſt entrance into Religion.

The firſt work of Religion is cutting work, wounding work, groaning and weeping work: thus Religion uſually begins, Acts 2. 37. Acts 16. 29. Now the Soul ſeems to be ſtruck dead in the giving up of all its former vain hopes, Rom. 7. 9. When the commandment came, ſin revived, and I died; but afterward comes pardon, peace, joy in the Holy Ghoſt. They that go forth weeping, bearing precious ſeed, now come back rejoicing, bringing their ſheaves with them, Pſal. 126. 6. Now that bleſſing takes place upon the Soul, Mat. 5. 4. Bleſſed are they that mourn, for they ſhall be comforted. Light is ſown for the righteous, and joy for the upright in Heart. 'Tis quite contrary in the ways of ſin; all the pleaſures of ſin come firſt, the terrors and gripes of Conſcience come after. Sin comes with ſmiles in its face, but a ſting in its tail. Pleaſures lead the van, Hell and Deſtruction bring up the rear: Job 20. 12, 13, 14. Tho wickedneſs be ſweet in his mouth, tho he hide it under his tongue; yet his meat in his bowels is turned into the gall of Aſps within him. But here conviction and humiliation come firſt, theſe prepare the way for Chriſt; and after him comes reſt and peace. Their ſorrow is turned into joy, John 16. 20.

Object. But is this always true? Do not the worſt things of Religion many times come laſt? How many Chriſtians go out of the World in a bloody winding ſheet?

Sol. Whatever the after-ſufferings of Chriſtians may be, the worſt is paſt when they are once in Chriſt. Great and ſharp ſufferings they may endure, but the Lord ſweetens them with anſwerable conſolations, 2 Cor. 7. 4. I am filled with comfort, I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation. The loweſt ebbs are followed with the higheſt tides; the greateſt troubles need not give an interruption to their peace.

Infer. 3. Hence it follows, that no man can be owner of any true comfort till he be in Chriſt.

Comfort and Refreſhment in the natural order follow Faith; 'tis the vaineſt imagination in the World to expect ſolid Spiritual comfort before union with Chriſt; you may as well expect an harveſt before a ſeed-time. I do confeſs there are two ſorts of comforts found in the World without Chriſt. (1.) Men may have ſenſitive and ſinful comforts and delights without Chriſt; theſe are common in the unregenerate World, where you may daily ſee rich men taking comfort in their riches, voluptuous men in their pleaſures, Jam. 5. 5. You have lived in pleaſures upon Earth. But theſe are the pleaſures common to brutes, and beneath the noble immortal ſpirit of a Man. (2.) Hypocrites have their delights and comforts, in a falſe imaginary happineſs which they fancy to themſelves; but this is a vaniſhing ſhadow: thay take comfort from their groundleſs hopes of Heaven, whither they ſhall never come; 'tis a feaſt in a dream, Iſa. 44. 20. Thus they make a bridg of their own ſhadow, and are drowned in the waters. Such ſenſitive and falſe comforts and pleaſures Men may have; but no true ſolid ſpiritual joy takes place in any mans Heart before Chriſt come into it.

Infer. 4. Gueſs from hence what Heaven is, if there be ſuch a feaſt to the Soul in the very foretaſts of it.

If a reliſh, a taſte of Heaven in the earneſt thereof be ſo tranſporting and raviſhing, what then is the full fruition of God! If theſe be unutterable, what muſt that be! Give me leave to ſay, Whatever the comforts and joys of any believer in this World may be, yet Heaven will be a ſurprize to him when he comes thither. The joys of God's preſence are other manner of things than our preſent comforts are; tho theſe be of the ſame kind with them, yet in a far inferiour degree. There is a ſix-fold difference betwixt the Spiritual Comforts of believers on Earth, and the Joys that are above. They differ,

1. In Quantity.
2. In Conſtancy.
3. In Purity.
4. In Efficacy.
5. In the Society.
6. In the Durability of them.

1. They differ in quantity. Here we know but in part; but when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part ſhall be done away, 1 Cor. 13. 9, 10. When the Scripture ſpeaks of the comforts communicated to Saints on Earth, it uſually expreſſes them in ſome diminutive terms or other, calling them firſt fruits, earneſts, and the like; and indeed it is neceſſary we ſhould receive them here with ſuch alloys, and in remiſs degrees, becauſe the imperfection and weakneſs of our preſent ſtate will not bear them in their plenitude and perfection. Here the joy of the Lord enters into us, but there we are ſaid to enter into that joy, Mat. 25. 21. 'Tis too great to enter into us, therefore we enter into, and are ſwallowed up in it.

2. They differ in Conſtancy; the beſt comforts upon Earth are found to be intermitting comforts; a Sun-blaſt and a Cloud; a good day and a bad. You know houſekeepers feed upon two ſorts of meat, daily-bread, and dainties; rarities come not every day to the Table. The daily-bread upon which believers live, is the recumbence, and affiance of faith; as for Aſſurance and Joy, thoſe come but now and then.

3. They differ in Purity, as well as Conſtancy; here we have the comforts of the Spirit, but we mingle ſin with them, and uſually the ſin of Spiritual pride, which ſpoils all. Yea, many times the Lord ſuffers Satan to mingle his temptations and injections with them, leſt we ſhould be exalted, 2 Cor. 12. 7. But above, the comforts of the Saints are as the pure water of Life, clear as Criſtal, Rev. 22. 1.

4. They differ in Efficacy as well as in Purity. The higheſt comforts of the Spirit here are not perfectly transformative of our Souls into the image of God, as they are in Heaven: 1 John 3. 3. We ſhall be like him, for we ſhall ſee him as he is. Here, after we are comforted by him, we grieve the Comforter himſelf by ſin: neither do the comforts of the Spirit, in this ſtate, produce the fruits of obedience in their perfect maturity, as they do above; there is the ſame difference in point of efficacy as there is betwixt the influence of the Sun-beams in the winter months, and thoſe in May, and June.

5. There is a great difference in reſpect of Society. Here the believer, for the moſt part, eats his pleaſant morſels alone; one Chriſtian eats, and another hungers; but in Heaven they all feaſt and feed together at one Table, Mat. 8. 11. They ſhall ſit down with Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of God. O what is it to rejoice in the fellowſhip of Patriarchs, Prophets, and Apoſtles, where the joy of one is the joy of all!

6. They differ alſo in Durability; Sin here puts a ſtop to our comforts, but in Heaven as there is no comma, ſo there ſhall never be a full point, or period: Everlaſting joy ſhall be upon their heads: There's an eternal feaſt, no taking away the cloth, no riſing from that feaſt, 2 Theſſ. 2. 16. 'Tis everlaſting conſolation: We ſhall be ever with the Lord.

II. Uſe.

This point puts ſerious matter of Exhortation into my mouth. The Lord direct it to the Hearts of all, whether they be in Chriſt, or out of Chriſt.

Firſt, To thoſe that are out of Chriſt, and will not yet be perſwaded to open their Hearts and conſent to his terms. O what a ſpiritual infatuation is here! What, ſhut the door of thy Heart againſt Chriſt, and all the delights and comforts of this and the coming World! What madneſs is this! Hear me thou poor deluded ſinner, that wilt not be perſwaded to part with thy ſinful ſenſual delights in exchange for Chriſt, and the peace, comfort, and joy that follow him: I have a few things to ſpeak on Chriſt's behalf at this time; O that they might prevail, O that by them the Spirit of the Lord might perſwade thy Spirit, thou poor unregenerate creature! Let me offer four or five Conſiderations or Pleas on Chriſt's behalf, if haply they may prevail and make way for his entertainment in thy Soul. And.

Plea 1. Let me plead thine own neceſſity with thee; a mighty argument, which in other caſes uſeth to make its way through all oppoſitions, and makes all difficulties fly before it; thou art a poor, neceſſitous, pining, famiſhing Soul; however thy body be accommodated, thou haſt not one bit of ſpiritual bread for thy famiſhing Soul to live upon. Chriſt is the bread that cometh down from Heaven. The ſtarving Prodigal, Luke 15. v. 16, 17. is the lively Emblem of thy Soul; he fed upon husks, and thou feedeſt upon that which is not bread, Iſa. 55. 2. Thou art wretched and miſerable, poor, blind, and naked, Rev. 3. 17. Thy body hath often been fill'd and refreſht with the good creatures of God, but thy Soul never taſted one bit of ſpiritual bread ſince it came into thy body; it never ~~ſmackt~~ +received the ſweetneſs of a pardon, the deliciousneſs of a promiſe, the joy and comfort of Chriſt; the choiceſt food that ever thou taſtedſt, was ſuch as thy Soul cannot live upon.

Plea 2. Chriſt is at the door of thy Soul with plenty and variety of heavenly comforts, coſtly dainties purchaſed by his blood; if thou wilt but open to him, Thou ſhalt be abundantly ſatisfied with the fatneſs of his houſe, and drink the rivers of pleaſure, Pſal. 36. 7, 8. He that believeth, as the Scripture hath ſaid, out of his belly ſhall flow rivers of living water, John 7. 38. meaning the graces and comforts of the Spirit.

Plea 3. If Chriſt be put off and refuſed now, you may never taſte of thoſe invaluable mercies for ever, Luke 14. 24. For I ſay unto you, That none of thoſe men which were bidden ſhall taſte of my ſupper. They were bidden, invited to this feaſt, and ſo are you; they refuſed to come, God grant you may not; for methinks this ſentence of Chriſt, Thoſe men which were bidden ſhall not taſte of my ſupper, is like the ſentence upon a malefactor that is to be hanged in chains, and whom the Law permits none to relieve. O 'twill be dreadful to ſee the Saints ſitting at the Royal feaſt in Heaven, and your ſelves ſhut out; as a company of ſtarving beggars ſtanding in the Streets, and about the doors where the Marriage-ſupper is kept; they ſee the lights, they behold the rich diſhes carried up, they hear the mirth and muſick of the gueſts, but not a bit comes to their ſhare.

Plea 4. The refuſal of Chriſt's invitation, as it is the greateſt of all ſins, ſo it will be avenged with the ſoreſt wrath and greateſt puniſhment; 'tis ſaid of thoſe gueſts that were bidden, Matth. 22. 5. that they made light of it, but it fell heavy upon them, verſ. 7. He was wroth, and ſent forth his armies, and deſtroyed thoſe murderers, and burnt up their City. Have a care of making light of Chriſt.

Plea 5. What light and vain things are all thoſe pleaſures of ſin, for the ſake whereof you deprive your Souls of the everlaſting comforts of Jeſus Chriſt? Deluded Soul, 'tis not the intent of Chriſt to rob thee of thy comfort, but to exchange thy ſinful for ſpiritual delights, to thy unſpeakable advantage. 'Tis true, you ſhall have no more pleaſure in ſin, but inſtead of that you ſhall have peace with God, joy in the Holy Ghoſt, and ſolid comfort for evermore. What are the ſenſitive or ſinful pleaſures of this World? You have the total ſum of them, in 1 John 2. 16, 17. All that is in the World, the luſt of the fleſh, the luſt of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the World. And the world paſſeth away, and the luſts thereof; but he that doth the will of God abideth for ever.

Queſt. But how may a poor unregenerate Soul be prevailed with to make ſuch a bleſſed exchange, to part with the pleaſures of ſin in exchange for the comforts of Jeſus Chriſt?

Anſw. Beſide all that hath been offered before, let me briefly add theſe three following Directions and Counſels to ſuch a Soul.

1. Labour to ſee and feel thy need of Chriſt, and then thou wilt quickly be willing to give up all the pleaſures of ſin for the enjoyment of him. What makes men ſo tenacious of their luſts, ſo hard to be perſwaded to give up their ſinful pleaſures, but this, that they never felt the need of a Saviour! O ſinner, didſt thou but feel thy need of Chriſt, wert thou but a hungry and thirſty for him; thou wouldſt never ſtand upon ſuch trifles for the enjoyment of him. We read, in the famine of Jeruſalem, how they parted with their pleaſant things for bread to relieve their Souls; Jewels, Rings, Bracelets, things which coſt dear, and were highly valued at another time, now were willingly parted with for bread. Chriſt is more neceſſary to thee than thy neceſſary bread.

2. Conſider the ſpiritual and immortal nature of thine own Soul, which cannot live upon material things, and muſt over-live all temporary things. Now if thy Soul cannot live upon them, and muſt certainly over-live them; what a miſerable condition will it unavoidably fall into, when all theſe ſenſual and ſinful enjoyments are vaniſhed and gone, as thou knoweſt they ſhortly will be? 1 Joh. 2. 17. Theſe things paſs away; and then hath thy Soul nothing to live upon to all eternity.

3. Hearken to the reports and experiences of the Saints, who have tried both ſorts of pleaſures, which you never did: They have tried the pleaſures of ſin, and they have taſted the pleaſures of Chriſt, and ſo are beſt able to make a true judgment upon both; and they have accordingly determined, That one glimpſe of the light of God's countenance, puts more gladneſs into their hearts, than in the time that their corn and their wine increaſed, Pſal. 4. 7. Nay, the wiſeſt Chriſtians upon trial of both have rightly determined, That the worſt things in Religion are infinitely to be preferr'd to the beſt things belonging to ſin; the very ſufferings and afflictions of the people of God, have been pronounced better than the pleaſures of ſin for a ſeaſon, Heb. 11. 25. Could you but ſee with their Eyes, and were you but capable of making a right judgment as they did, there needed not a word more to be ſaid to perſwade you to let go your moſt pleaſant and profitable luſts in exchange for Chriſt and his beneficial comfortable ſufferings.

Secondly, The point affords variety of Counſels and Exhortations to the Regenerate, who have opened their Wills to Chriſt, and are thereupon admitted into this comfortable ſtate.

It is found, in experience, a difficult thing for a Soul after converſion to bear and duly manage their own comforts, as it was to bear and rightly manage their troubles at converſion. My buſineſs here is to adviſe Souls, under their firſt comforts and ſealings of the Spirit, how to manage and improve their ſpiritual comforts that they may abide with them, and be growing things continually in their Souls.

Advice 1. And firſt, See that you humbly admire and adore the condeſcending goodneſs of God to you, in all the comforts of the Spirit which refreſh you,

O that ever God ſhould comfort ſuch a Soul as thine, that hath ſo often grieved him! That Chriſt ſhould be a joy to thee, who haſt been a ſorrow unto him! If you look into Eph. 1. 3. you will find the Spirit of the Apoſtle there fill'd with the ſenſe and admiration of this mercy, which breaks forth into this rapturous expreſſion, Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly places (or things) in Chriſt. Some there are that never enjoy an ordinary degree of earthly comforts, Job 30. 3, 4, 5. others enjoy abundance of earthly comforts, but no ſpiritual comforts, Pſal. 17. 14. Some there are for whom God intends everlaſting conſolations in the World to come, but are kept low as to ſpiritual comforts in this World, Pſal. 88. 15. O what cauſe have you to admire the bounty of God to you, for whom there is not only fulneſs of joys prepared in Heaven, but ſuch precious foretaſts and earneſts of it communicated in the way thither.

Advice 2. Cleave faſt to Chriſt, and thoſe ſweet and comfortable duties of Religion, wherein you have found and taſted the beſt comforts that ever your Souls were acquainted with.

This is one thing God aims at in the communication of theſe ſpiritual refreſhments, to glue your Souls faſt by them to the ways of holineſs. The Lord knows temptations will befal you, diſcouragements enough you ſhall be ſure to meet with; but theſe enjoyments of God, which you have met with in Prayer and Hearing, in Meditations, Sacraments, &c. ſhould engage your Hearts for ever to the ways of obedience. You never found that ſweetneſs in the ways of ſin, which you have found in repentance and faith. When a temptation comes baited with ſinful pleaſures, ſay as the Olive-tree and the Vine in Jothams parable, Judg. 9. 9, 10, 11. Shall I leave ſuch Soul-refreſhing comforts as theſe for the inſipid pleaſures of ſin? God forbid.

Advice 3. Be communicative of the ſpiritual comforts you enjoy, for the benefit and refreſhment of others.

The Lord never intended you ſhould engroſs the comforts of his Spirit to your ſelves, nor eat your pleaſant morſels alone. 2 Cor. 1. 4. He comforts us, that we may be able to comfort them that are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we our ſelves are comforted of God. 'Tis true, Religion lays not all open, nor yet doth it conceal and hide all. There needs a great deal of wiſdom, humility and caution, to ſecure us from pride and vanity in Spirit, whilſt we communicate our comforts to others: as Oſtentation, ſo alſo Impropriation of our comforts are againſt Scripture law; he may be juſtly ſuſpected that opens all, and ſo may he too that conceals all. Spiritual comforts are not diminiſht, but improved by a wiſe and humble communication.

Advice 4. Be much in renewing the acts and exerciſes of faith; be frequent in that work.

Your firſt faith hath brought in your firſt comfort, your renewing and repeating thoſe precious acts of faith will bring you in greater ſtores of comfort than you yet enjoy. We are not to look upon faith as a ſingle, but a continued act, 1 Pet. 2. 4. To whom coming as unto a living ſtone. Thy Soul, Chriſtian, is to be in a continual motion towards Chriſt; the more you believe, the more you will rejoice. You ſee the door through which comfort comes into your Souls. Joy is the daughter of faith, Rom. 15. 13. your preſent comfort is the firſt birth of faith; but there are many comforts more in the womb of faith, which will yet be born to your Souls if unbelief cauſe not a miſcarriage.

Advice 5. Take heed you be not a grief to Chriſt who hath already brought ſo much comfort to you.

'Twill be a ſad requital, if after he hath given you the joys of Heaven to drink, you ſhall give him that which is as Wormwood and Gall; the Lord write that caution upon thy Soul, Reader, Eph. 4. 30. And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby you are ſealed to the day of Redemption. The argument of the Apoſtle in this place, ſtrongly infers caution from comfort. Chriſt hath been all joy, all peace, reſt and comfort to you; take heed you be not a grief and ſhame to him. The intermiſſions of thy duties, the falling and flatting of thy affections in duties, thy raſh adventures upon ſin, will be a grief to the Heart of Chriſt, who hath filled thy Heart with ſo much comfort; and if you grieve him, you cannot expect he ſhould comfort you. A little ſin may rob you of a great deal of comfort.

Advice 6. Be not ſtagger'd or dejected, if the firſt comforts Chriſt gives you ſhould afterwards abate, or be taken away for a time.

This is a very common thing in the experience of moſt Chriſtians. You muſt not think your firſt comforts are ſuch fixed ſetled things, that there is no hazard of loſing them. Alas, nothing is more volatile than the joys of a Chriſtian; you will be apt to loſe your firſt love, Rev. 2. 4. and if you loſe your firſt love, no wonder that you loſe your firſt comforts: yet if it ſhould ſo fall out, be not caſt down, and diſcouraged; Chriſt is not gone, tho comfort be gone; and tho comfort be gone, 'tis not gone for ever: renew thy repentance, faith and obedience, and try if God will not renew thy comfort. There is a former, and there is a latter ſpring of joy; God will make thy comforts ſpring again. Beſide, thy Juſtification is ſtedfaſt, tho thy Conſolation be not ſo. There are two things belong to a Chriſtian, one to his being, viz. union with Chriſt; another to his well-being, viz. comfort from Chriſt: The latter is uncertain and contingent, the former fixed and ſtedfaſt.

Advice 7. Be filled with compaſſion to others who want thoſe comforts you enjoy, eſpecially ſuch as God hath knit to you in the bonds of natural relation.

Art thou a Father or a Mother to whom God hath given thoſe comforts, and Soul-refreſhments that have been opened in this diſcourſe? And haſt thou no compaſſion for thy poor Children, who never yet taſted one drop of theſe ſpiritual conſolations? Certainly, it will do a Man little good, to be feaſted abroad, whilſt his Wife and Children are ſtarving at home; ſay to them, as Paul in another caſe, Would to God you were all as I am, except theſe corruptions. Religion breeds bowels of compaſſion. O tell them what ſweetneſs there is in the ways of godlineſs: Counſel, plead and pray, that thoſe that are yours may alſo be Chriſt's.

Advice 8. As ever you expect the continuance or enlargement of your comforts, ſee that you walk circumſpectly.

'Tis as much as all your comfort is worth to give way to a little careleſneſs; that's a remarkable expreſſion of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 85. 8. I will hearken what God the Lord will ſpeak, for he will ſpeak peace to his People, and to his Saints; but let not them return again to folly. Sin, in this Text, is fitly called by the name of folly, for indeed it is the greateſt folly and madneſs in the World to forfeit and deveſt our ſelves of ſuch ſweet peace and comfort by returning unto ſin, which hath coſt us ſo much ſorrow and trouble before. Are you willing to be in your former darkneſs and fears, tears and troubles, to exchange the pleaſant light you now enjoy, for the horrors you have formerly felt? This you muſt do if you return again to folly.

Advice 9. Long for Heaven, where the fulneſs of thoſe joys is, whereof theſe you taſte are but the earneſts and firſt-fruits.

One deſign of God in giving them, is to ſet us a longing after Heaven; to help our conceptions, and raiſe our affections: if theſe be ſo ſweet, what muſt they be? Rom. 8. 23. We which have the firſt-fruits of the Spirit, even we our ſelves, groan within our ſelves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body. We are not to ſit down ſatisfied, and ſay we have enough in theſe firſt-fruits; but they are given to ſet us a groaning after the fulneſs of thoſe enjoyments. This anſwers God's end in giving them.

Advice 10. Laſtly, Improve every ſpiritual comfort you have from Chriſt, unto greater chearfulneſs in the paths of obedience to Chriſt.

This is another end for which God communicates them, that our Souls being refreſhed by them, we might pluck up our feet the more nimbly in the paths of duty: Pſal. 119. 32. Then will I run the ways of thy commandments, when thou ſhalt enlarge my heart. Now God expects that you pray more frequently, meditate more delightfully, and perform every duty more cheerfully: And this is the way to perpetuate your comforts. How many Chriſtians go on droopingly in the ways of duty for want of thoſe encouragements you enjoy?

SERMON XI.

Revel. III. 20.

—— I will ſup with him, and he with me.

WE have heard the firſt encouragement or argument of Chriſt, to perſwade the Hearts of ſinners to open to him, viz. That he will come in to them, and that not empty handed; He will alſo Sup with them: and to make the encouragement compleat and full, he here adds, And he with me. This laſt clauſe ſets forth that ſpiritual Soul-refreſhing communion which is betwixt Chriſt and believers; begun in this World, compleated and perfected in the World to come. Hence our eleventh Obſervation is,

Doct. 11. That there is a mutual, ſweet and intimate communion betwixt Jeſus Chriſt and Believers in this World.

Communion with Chriſt is frequent in the lips of many Men, but a hidden myſtery to the Souls of moſt Men. This Atheiſtical age ſcoffs, and ridicules it, as Enthuſiaſm, and Fanaticiſm; but the Saints find that reality, and incomparable ſweetneſs in it, that they would not part with it for Ten thouſand Worlds. When the Roman Soldiers entred the Temple at Jeruſalem, and found no Image there, as they uſed to have in their own Idolatrous Temples; they gave out in a Jeer, that the Jews worſhipped the Clouds. Thus prophane Atheiſts ſcoff at the moſt ſolemn, awful and ſweeteſt part of internal Religion, as a mere fancy; but the thing is real, ſure, and ſenſible: if there be truth in any thing in the World, there is truth in this, That there are real intercourſes betwixt the viſible and inviſible World; betwixt Chriſt, and the Souls of believers, which we here call communion: 1 John 1. 3. Truly our fellowſhip is with the Father, and with his Son Chriſt Jeſus. 'Tis really and truly ſo, we impoſe not upon the World, we tell you no more than we have felt. The life of Enoch is call'd his walking with God, Gen. 5. 24. O ſweet and pleaſant walk! All pleaſures, all joys are in that walk with God. Bleſſed are the people that hear the joyful ſound; they ſhall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance, Pſal. 89. 15. The joyful ſound there ſpoken of, was the ſound of the trumpet, which called the people to the ſolemn Aſſemblies, where they walked in the light of God's countenance, the ſweet manifeſtations of his favour; and becauſe the World is ſo apt to ſuſpect the reality and certainty of this Doctrin, the Apoſtle again aſſerts it, Phil. 3. 20. Truly our converſation is in Heaven. We breath below, but we live above; we walk on Earth, but our converſation is in Heaven. To open this Point three things muſt come under conſideration.

1. What Communion with Chriſt is.
2. That there is ſuch a Communion betwixt him and Believers.
3. The Excellency of this communion.

Firſt, What Communion with Chriſt is in the general nature of it. To open this it muſt be conſidered that there is a twofold Communion.

1. A ſtate of Communion.
2. Actual Communion.

The firſt is fundamental to the ſecond; we can have no actual Communion with the Father, Son or Spirit, till we be firſt brought into a ſtate of Communion. This ſtate of Communion is in Scripture called κοινωνία, our fellowſhip or partnerſhip with Chriſt: Such a Fellowſhip as Merchants have in one and the ſame Ship and Cargo; where one hath more and another leſs, but however a joint tho unequal intereſt; one lives in one Kingdom, another in another Kingdom, but they are jointly intereſted in the ſame Goods. This compariſon muſt not be ſtretcht beyond its intention, which is to ſhew nothing but this, that Chriſt and Believers are co-partners, or co-heirs in the ſame inheritance: hence they are called, Pſal. 45. 7. his fellows; God even thy God hath anointed thee with the oil of gladneſs above thy fellows: and again, Rom. 8. 17. If Children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Chriſt. Chriſt ſtates his people, gives them a right and title not only to himſelf, but to thoſe good things purchaſed by him, yea, and the very Glory he now enjoys in Heaven, John 17. 22. The glory which thou gaveſt me, I have given them.

'Tis true, there are ſome things in Chriſt which are peculiar to himſelf, and incommunicable to any creature, as his Eternity, Conſubſtantiality with his Father, &c. neither have we fellowſhip in his mediatorial Works; we have the fruits and benefits of them, but no partnerſhip with him in the glory and honour of them; that is peculiarly his own: and tho it be ſaid in the Scriptures, that believers are righteous as he is righteous, yet the meaning is not that they can juſtifie others, as Chriſt doth; no, they are juſtified by him, but cannot communicate righteouſneſs to others as Chriſt doth to them. But there are other things wherein there is a partnerſhip betwixt Chriſt and his people; among others, they partake with him in the Spirit of Sanctification on Earth, and Glory in Heaven: The ſame Spirit of holineſs which dwells in Chriſt without meaſure, is communicated by him to the Saints in meaſure, 1 John 4. 13. He hath given us of his Spirit. And as Chriſt communicates his Spirit to the Saints, ſo he communicates the glory of Heaven to them; not that they ſhall be as glorious in Heaven as Chriſt is; no, no, he will be known among the Saints in glory, as the Sun is known from the leſſer Stars. Thus briefly of the ſtate of Communion, which is called in Scripture our being made nigh, Eph. 2. 13. and indeed we muſt be made nigh, before we can actually draw nigh. We muſt be put into a ſtate of fellowſhip, before ever we can have actual communion with God.

2. Beſide this ſtate of Communion, there is alſo an actual Communion, which the Saints have in this World with the Father and Son in the duties of Religion. This is that I am here ingaged to open: This is our ſupping with Chriſt, and his with us; and for clearneſs ſake I ſhall open it both,

1. Negatively, What it is not.
2. Poſitively, What it is.

1. Negatively, What it is not; for I find perſons are hugely apt to miſtake in this matter, taking that for Communion with God which is not ſo: and here let it be noted,

(1.) That Communion with God doth not conſiſt in the bare performance of Religious duties. I do not ſay that Men may have Communion with God in this World without duties, 'tis a deluſion of Satan to think ſo; but this is what I ſay, that Communion with God conſiſteth not in the mere performance of Duties. Communion and Duties of Religion are two things ſeparable one from the other. Men may multiply Duties, and yet be ſtrangers to Communion with God in them; even humiliation and faſting days may be kept by Souls that are eſtranged from Communion with the Lord, Zach. 7. 5. Speak unto all the people of the Land, and unto the Prieſts, ſaying, When ye faſted and mourned in the fifth, and ſeventh month; even theſe ſeventy years, did ye at all faſt unto me, even unto me? q. d. Had your Souls pure intentions and reſpects in thoſe duties to my glory? Had you ſpecial Communion with me, or I with you in thoſe duties? Did you ever feel your Souls in theſe days wounded for ſin? Or did you not faſt out of cuſtom, and mourn for company? God may be near in Mens mouths, and at the ſame time far from their reins, Jer. 12. 2. Religious words may flow out of Mens lips, when not one drop of Religion touches their reins and hearts; that is, the ſecret inward powers of their Souls: you cannot therefore ſafely depend upon this, Chriſt rejects this plea, Matth. 7. 22. Get a better evidence of Communion with God than this, or you will certainly come ſhort of your expectation. I know you not, ſaith Chriſt; there was never any Spiritual acquaintance betwixt your Souls and me; I know you not in a way of approbation.

(2.) Neither do all ſtirrings and workings of the affections in duties, infallibly evidence and prove Communion betwixt Chriſt and that Soul; for it is poſſible, yea common, to have the affections raiſed in a natural way, and by external motives in the duties of Religion; this you ſee in that Example, Ezek. 33. 32. And lo thou art unto them as a very lovely ſong, of one that hath a pleaſant voice, and can play well on an inſtrument: for they hear thy words, but they do them not. The ſweet modulation of the Prophet's voice was like the skilful touch of a rare muſical Inſtrument, which in a natural way moved and excited their affections. Thus John's hearers rejoiced in his Miniſtry for a ſeaſon. I confeſs, this is very apt to caſt Souls into a miſtake of their condition. They diſtinguiſh not betwixt the influences that come upon their affections from without, from extrinſick things, and thoſe that are purely inward, divine, and ſpiritual. But then,

2. To ſhew you poſitively what Communion with God is. Here we muſt conſider two things,

1. What things it preſuppoſes in us.
2. Wherein the nature of it conſiſts.

1. There are divers things prerequired and preſuppoſed unto all actual Communion with God in Duties; and where theſe things are wanting, Men can have no Communion with God. You may have Communion with his People, and Communion with his Ordinances, but not Communion with God and Chriſt in them. And theſe prerequiſites are three.

(1.) Union with Chriſt is fundamentally neceſſary to all Communion with him. All Communion is founded in Union; and where there is no Union, there can be no Communion. You know (ſaith an excellent Perſon) the member receives nothing from the head, unleſs it be united to it; nor the branch from the root. All is yours, and ye are Chriſt's, 1 Cor. 3. 23. Here's a vaſt poſſeſſion, but all founded upon Union: as all Communion is founded upon Union, ſo all Union terminates in Communion; and the cloſer the Union, the fuller is the Communion.

Dr. Jacomb on Rom. 8. p. 69.

Before our Union with Chriſt, we are ſtrangers unto God, Eph. 2. 13. We live without God in the World; 'tis in Chriſt that we are made nigh; 'tis in the beloved we are made accepted. Whilſt we are in the ſtate of alienation from Chriſt, we have no more to do with the communications of joy and peace, with the ſeals and earneſts of the Spirit, than a Native Indian hath with the privileges of London. If any man open to me, ſaith Chriſt, I will come in to him, and ſup with him, and he with me.

(2.) Communion with God preſuppoſes the habits of Grace implanted in the Soul by ſanctification; a ſound and ſincere change of Heart. No ſanctification, no communion; 1 John 1. 6. If we ſay we have fellowſhip with him, and walk in darkneſs, we lie, and do not the truth. The Apoſtle gives the lie to ſuch bold pretenders. The Lord is nigh to all that call upon him, unto all that call upon him in truth: That latter clauſe reſtrains all ſpiritual communion unto upright Souls. For an Hypocrite ſhall not come before him, Job 13. 16.

(3.) Communion with God doth not only ſuppoſe Grace implanted, but alſo implanted grace excited, grace in act: For a Man may have the habits of faith, love and delight in him, and yet be without actual Communion with God; for by this Grace is awakened and put into act. A believer when he is aſleep, and acts no grace, is in a ſtate of Communion with God; but if he will have actual communion, his faith, love, and delight muſt be awakened; they muſt not lie aſleep in the habit. Thou ſaidſt, ſeek my face; my heart ſaid unto thee, thy face Lord will I ſeek, Pſal. 27. 8. It was in order to actual communion with Chriſt that the Church ſo earneſtly begs freſh influences of the Spirit to excite her graces into act, Cant. 4. 16. Awake O North-wind, and come thou South, blow upon my garden, that the ſpices thereof may flow out. Let my beloved come into his garden, and eat his pleaſant fruits. And tho believers are not ſo to wait for the influences of the Spirit, as in the mean time to neglect all proper outward means of exciting their own graces, engaging their Hearts to approach to God, Jer. 30. 21. yet certainly it is the work of God's Spirit, and without him we can do nothing to any purpoſe. The Seamen may trim the Sails, weigh the Anchor, put all into a ſailing poſture; but till a gale come from Heaven there is little or no motion. The ſame Spirit that plants the habits, is he alſo that excites the acts of grace. Theſe three things therefore are pre-requiſites unto all communion with God.

2. Next let us conſider wherein this Heavenly privilege of communion with God conſiſts; and more generally it will be found to lie in a ſpiritual correſpondency betwixt Chriſt and the Soul. God lets forth influences upon our Souls, and we by the aſſiſtance of his Spirit make returns again unto God. Communion is a mutual action; ſo in the Text, I will ſup with him, and he with me. We cry to God, and God anſwers that cry, by the incomes of Spiritual grace upon the Soul; Pſal. 138. 3. In the day that I cried thou anſweredſt me, and ſtrengthnedſt me with ſtrength in my Soul. More particularly, there are many ways or methods wherein Men have this Spiritual correſpondence or communion with God, viz.

1. In the contemplation of his Attributes.
2. In the exerciſes of Grace in Religious duties.
3. In his various Providences. In all theſe the Saints have communion with him.

1. There is a ſweet and ſenſible communion betwixt God and his people in the contemplation of the divine Attributes, and the impreſſions God makes by them upon our Souls whilſt we meditate on them. As for inſtance,

(1.) Sometimes the Lord diſcovers and manifeſts to the Souls of his people his immenſe Greatneſs; the manifeſtation of which Attribute makes an awful humbling impreſſion upon the Soul, makes them ſeem as nothing to themſelves. Thus when Abraham, that great believer, conſidered the greatneſs of that God with whom he had to do; that ſight of God ſeems to reduce him to his firſt principles, to crumble him as it were into duſt and aſhes again, Gen. 18. 27. I that am but duſt and aſhes have taken upon me to ſpeak unto God. He now looks upon himſelf as a heap of vileneſs and unworthineſs: ſo David, Pſal. 8. 12. When I conſider thy Heavens, the work of thy hands, the Moon and the Stars which thou haſt made, (from whence he inferr'd the greatneſs of the Creator) Lord what is Man, that thou art mindful of him? q.d. When I conſider what a great God the Creator of the World is, I am juſtly aſtoniſhed that ever he ſhould ſet his Heart upon ſo vile a thing as Man. When men compare themſelves among themſelves, and meaſure themſelves by themſelves, their Spirits are apt to ſwell with pride; but would they look up to God, as theſe holy men did, they would admire his condeſcenſion. And this is Communion with God in the meditation of his immenſe Greatneſs.

(2.) The repreſentations and meditations of the Purity and Holineſs of God, working ſhame and deep abaſement in the Soul, for the pollutions and ſinful filthineſs that is in it. This is communion with God, and an excellent way of fellowſhip with him. Thus when a repreſentation of God in his Holineſs was made unto the Prophet, Iſa. 6. 3, 4, 5. there were the Seraphims, covering their faces with their wings, and crying one to another, ſaying, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God Almighty; the Earth is full of his glory. The effect this produced, or the return made by the Prophet to this manifeſtation of God in his holineſs, was a deep abaſement of Soul for his unſutableneſs to ſo holy a God: verſ. 5. Then ſaid I, Wo is me, for I am undone, becauſe I am a man of unclean lips, &c. And this is real communion with God in his holineſs. Thus Job who had ſtifly defended his own integrity againſt men, yet when God enters the liſts with him, and he ſaw what a great and holy God he had to do with, cried out, Job 40. 4, 5. Behold, I am vile, what ſhall I anſwer thee? I will lay my hand upon my mouth. Once have I ſpoken, but I will not anſwer; yea twice, but I will proceed no further. q. d. I have done, Lord, I have done; I could anſwer men, but I cannot anſwer thee: thou art holy, but I am vile.

(3.) There are ſometimes repreſentations of the Goodneſs and Mercy of God made unto the Souls of his people. When theſe produce an ingenuous thaw and melting of the Heart into an humble, thankful admiration of it, and an anſwerable care of pleaſing him in the ways of obedience; then have men communion with God in his goodneſs. The goodneſs of God runs down to men in a double channel; his goodneſs to their Bodies, in external providences; his goodneſs to their Souls, in ſpiritual mercies. When the goodneſs of God either way draws forth the love, and gratitude of the Soul to the God of our mercies; then have we real communion with him: Thus Jacob, Gen. 32. 9, 10. And Jacob ſaid, O God of my Father Abraham, and God of my Father Iſaac; which ſaidſt unto me, Return unto thy Country, and to thy Kindred, and I will deal well with thee. I am not worthy of the leaſt of all the mercies, and of all the truth which thou haſt ſhewed unto thy ſervant; for with my ſtaff I paſſed over this Jordan, and now I am become two bands. Ah Lord, I ſee a multitude of mercies round about me, and the leaſt of them is greater than I. So David, 1 Chron. 17. 16, 17. And David the King came and ſat before the Lord, and ſaid, Who am I, O Lord God, and what is mine houſe, that thou haſt brought me hitherto? And yet this was a ſmall thing in thine eyes, O God, &c. what can David ſpeak more to thee? You ſee in theſe inſtances what effects the goodneſs of God, even in inferiour outward mercies, uſeth to produce in ſanctified hearts. But then, if you come to ſpiritual mercies, and ponder the goodneſs of God to your Souls, in pardoning, accepting, and ſaving ſuch vile ſinful creatures as you have been; this much more affects the heart, and overwhelms it with a holy aſtoniſhment; as you ſee in Paul, 1 Tim. 1. 16. The grace of our Lord was abundant: I was a perſecutor, a blaſphemer, yet I obtained mercy. So Mary, that notorious ſinner, when pardoning grace appeared to her, into what a flood of tears, into what tranſports of love did the ſight of mercy caſt her Soul! She wept, and waſht her Saviours feet with tears of joy and thankfulneſs, Luke 7. 44. No terrors of the Law, no frights of Hell, thaw the heart like the appreherſions of pardoning mercy.

(4.) Sometimes there are ſpecial repreſentations of the Veracity and Faithfulneſs of God, made unto his People, begetting truſt and holy confidence in their Souls; and when they do ſo, then have men communion with God in his Faithfulneſs. Thus Heb. 13. 5, 6. I will never leave thee nor forſake thee. There is a diſcovery of the faithfulneſs of God, and what follows upon this? See verſ. 6. So that we may boldly ſay, The Lord is our God; we will not fear what man can do unto us. Here's faithfulneſs in God producing truſt and confidence in the Believer. This is that reciprocation, that ſweet fellowſhip and communion betwixt twixt God and a Believer with reſpect to his fidelity. Behold, God is my ſalvation, I will truſt and not be afraid, Iſa. 12. 2. And truly, friend, this is what the Lord juſtly expects from thee, even thy truſt and confidence in him, thy ſteddy dependance on him, in return to all the diſcoveries of his Faithfulneſs to thee, both in his Word and Providences.

(5.) There are manifeſtations of the Anger and Diſpleaſure of God, by the hiding of his face from them, and the frowns of his Providence: when theſe produce repentance, and deep humiliation for ſin, an unquietneſs, a reſtleſneſs of Spirit till he reſtore his Favour, and manifeſt his Reconciliation to the Soul; even here alſo is real communion betwixt God and the Soul, Pſal. 30. 7. Thou hideſt thy face, and I was troubled. Nor will a gracious Soul reſt there, but will take pains to ſue out a freſh pardon, Pſal. 51. 8. Make me to hear joy and gladneſs, that the bones which thou haſt broken may rejoice; reſtore unto me the joys of thy ſalvation, verſ. 12.

I cannot omit to detect a great miſtake here, even amongſt God's own people: many of them underſtand not what communion there ſhould be with God, under the manifeſtations of his diſpleaſure for ſin: they know the affectionate meltings of their Souls into love, praiſe, &c. to be communion with God; but that the ſhame, grief and ſorrow, produced in them by the manifeſtations of God's diſpleaſure; I ſay, that even in theſe things there may be communion with God, they underſtand not. But let me tell thee, that even ſuch things as theſe are the choice fruits of the Spirit of Adoption, and that in them thy Soul hath as real and beneficial communion with God, as in the greateſt tranſports of ſpiritual joy and comfort. O 'tis a bleſſed frame to be before the Lord, as Ezra was, after conviction of thy looſneſs, careleſneſs, and ſpiritual defilements, the conſequents of thoſe ſins; ſaying with him, O my God, I am aſhamed, and even bluſh to lift up my face unto thee, Ezra 9. 6. Shame and bluſhing are as excellent ſigns of communion with God, as the ſweeteſt ſmiles.

Laſtly, There are repreſentations and ſpecial contemplations of the Omniſcience of God, producing ſincerity, comfort in appeals, and recourſe to it in doubts of our own uprightneſs. And this alſo is a choice and excellent method of communion with God. (1.) When the Omniſcience of God ſtrongly obliges the Soul to ſincerity and uprightneſs, as it did David, Pſal. 139. 11, 12. compared with Pſal. 18. 23. I was alſo upright before him. The conſideration that he was always before the Eye of God, was his preſervative from iniquity, yea, from his own iniquity. (2.) When it produceth comforts in appeals to it, as it did in Hezekiah, 2 Kings 20. 3. Remember now, O Lord, that I have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart. So Job 10. 7. he alſo appeals to this attribute, Thou knoweſt that I am not wicked. So did Jeremiah, Chap. 12. 3. But thou, O Lord, knoweſt me, thou haſt ſeen me, and tried my heart towards thee. (3.) When we have recourſe to it, under doubts and fears of our own uprightneſs. Thus did David, Pſal. 139. 23. Search me, O God, and try my heart; prove me, and ſee my reins; ſee if there be any way of wickedneſs in me. In all theſe attributes of God, Chriſtians have real and ſweet communion with him, which was the firſt thing to be opened, Communion with God in the meditation of his Attributes.

2. The next method of Communion with God, is in the exerciſe of our Graces in the various duties of Religion; in Prayer, Hearing, Sacraments, &c. in all which the Spirit of the Lord influences the Graces of his people, and they return the fruits thereof in ſome meaſure to him. As God hath planted various graces in regenerate Souls, ſo he hath appointed various duties to exerciſe and draw forth thoſe graces; and when they do ſo, then have his people ſweet actual communion with him. And,

(1.) To begin with the firſt grace that ſhews it ſelf in the Soul of a Chriſtian, to wit, Repentance and Sorrow for ſin. In the exerciſe of this grace of Repentance the Soul pours out it ſelf before the Lord, with much bitterneſs and brokenneſs of Heart caſts forth its ſorrows; which ſorrows are as ſo much ſeed ſown; and in return thereto the Lord uſually ſends an anſwer of peace: Pſal. 32. 4, 5. I ſaid, I will confeſs my tranſgreſſion, and thou forgaveſt the iniquity of my ſin. Here's a voice of ſorrow ſent up, and a voice of peace coming down; which is real communion betwixt God and Man in the exerciſes of Repentance.

(2.) As there are ſeaſons in duty, wherein the Sains exerciſe their repentance, and the Lord returns peace; ſo likewiſe the Lord helps them in their duties to act their faith, in return whereunto they find from the Lord inward ſupport, reſt and refreſhment, Pſal. 27. 13. I had fainted unleſs I had believed. And oft-times an aſſurance of the mercies they have acted their faith about, 1 John 5. 14.

(3.) The Lord many times draws forth eminent degrees of our Love to him, in the courſe of our duties; the heart is filled with love to Chriſt. The ſtrength of the Soul is drawn forth to Chriſt in love; and this the Lord repays in kind, love for love: John 14. 21. He that loveth me, my Father will love him; and we will come and make our abode with him. Here is ſweet communion with God in the exerciſes of Love. O what a rich trade do Chriſtians drive this way in their duties and exerciſes of grace!

(4.) To mention no more, in the duties of Paſſive Obedience Chriſtians are enabled to exerciſe their patience, meekneſs, and long-ſuffering for Chriſt; in return to which, the Lord gives them the ſingular conſolations of his Spirit, double returns of joy; The Spirit of Glory and of God reſteth upon them, 1 Pet. 4. 13, 14. The Lord ſtrengthens them with paſſive fortitude, with all might in the inner-man, unto all long-ſuffering; but the reward of that long-ſuffering is joyfulneſs, Col. 1. 11. This is the trade they drive with Heaven.

3. Beſide communion with God in the contemplation of his Attributes, and graces exerciſed in the courſe of duties, there is another method of communion with God in the way of his Providences, for therein alſo his people walk with him. To give a taſte of this, let us conſider Providence in a fourfold aſpect upon the people of God.

(1.) There are afflictive Providences, rods and rebukes, wherewith the Lord chaſtens his children; this is the diſcipline of his houſe, in anſwer whereunto gracious Souls return meek and childlike ſubmiſſion, a fruit of the Spirit of Adoption; they are brought to accept the puniſhment of their iniquities. And herein lies communion with God under the rod; this return to the rod may not be preſently made, for there is much ſtubborneſs unmortified in the beſt hearts, Heb. 12. 7. but this is the fruit it ſhall yield; and when it doth, there is real communion between God and the afflicted Soul. Let not Chriſtians miſtake themſelves, if when God is ſmiting they are humbling, ſearching, and bleſſing God for the diſcoveries of ſin made by their afflictions; admiring his Wiſdom, in timing, moderating, and chuſing the Rod; kiſſing it with a childlike ſubmiſſion; and ſaying, it is good for me that I have been afflicted: that Soul hath real communion with God, though it may be for a time without joy.

(2.) There are times wherein Providence ſtraitens the people of God; when the waters of comfort ebb, and run very low; wants pinch. If then the Soul returns filial dependance upon fatherly care, ſaying with David, Pſal. 23. 1. The Lord is my ſhepherd, I ſhall not want; It belongs to him to provide, and to me to depend; I will truſt my Father's care and love: Here now is ſweet communion with God under pinching wants. The wants of the Body enrich the Soul: Outward ſtraitnings are the occaſions of inward enlargements. O ſee from hence how good it is to have an intereſt in God as a Father, whatever changes of Providence may come upon you.

(3.) There are ſeaſons wherein the Lord expoſes his people to eminent and viſible dangers; when to the Eye of ſenſe there is no way of eſcape. Now when this produces truſt in God, and reſignation to the pleaſure of his Will; here is communion with God in times of diſtreſs and difficulty: thus David, Pſal. 56. 3. At what time I am afraid, I will truſt in thee, q. d. Father, I ſee a ſtorm riſing, thy poor child comes under his Fathers roof for ſhelter; for whither ſhould a diſtreſſed Child go but to his Father? And then as to the iſſues and events of doubtful Providences, when the Soul reſigns and leaves it ſelf to the wiſe diſpoſal of the Will of God, as David, in 2 Sam. 15. 25, 26. Here am I, let him do with me as ſeemeth good in his ſight: This is real and ſweet communion with God in his Providences. And ſo much for the nature of Communion with God.

Secondly, In the next place, I ſhall evidence the reality of communion with God, and prove it to be no fancy. I confeſs it grieves me to be put upon the proof of this, but the Atheiſm and Profaneneſs of the age we live in ſeems to make it neceſſary; for many men will allow nothing for certain but what falls under the cognizance of Senſe. And O that they had their ſpiritual Senſes exerciſed! then they would ſenſibly diſcern the reality of theſe things. But to put the matter out of queſtion, I ſhall evidence the truth and reality of the Saints communion with God divers ways.

Evid. 1. From the Saints union with Chriſt: if there be a union betwixt Chriſt and Believers, then of neceſſity there muſt be a communion between them alſo. Now the whole Word of God, which you profeſs to be the rule of your Faith, plainly aſſerts this union betwixt Chriſt and Believers; a union like that betwixt the branches and the root, John 15. 4, 5. or that betwixt the head and the members, Eph. 4. 16. Now if Chriſt be to believers as the root to the branches, and as the head to the members; then of neceſſity there muſt be a communion between them: For if there were not a communion, there could be no communications; and if no communications, no life. For it is by the communication of vital ſap and ſpirits, from the root and from the head, that the branches and members ſubſiſt and live.

Evid. 2. There is a cohabitation of Chriſt with believers; he dwells with them, yea, he dwells in them, 2 Cor. 6. 16. I will dwell in them, and walk in them. The Soul of a believer is the Temple of Chriſt, yea, his living Temple, 1 Pet. 2. 5. And if Chriſt dwell with them, yea, if he dwell in them and walk in them, then certainly there muſt be communion betwixt him and them; if they live together, they muſt converſe together. A man indeed may dwell in his houſe, and yet cannot be ſaid to have communion with it; but the Saints are a living houſe, they are the living Temples of Chriſt; and he cannot dwell in ſuch Temples capable of communion with him, and yet have no communion with them.

Evid. 3. The reality of communion betwixt God and the Saints is undeniably evinced from all the Spiritual relations into which God hath taken them. Every believer is the Child of God, and the Spouſe of Chriſt. God is the Believer's Father, and the Church is the Lamb's Wife. Chriſt calls the Believer not only his Servant, but Friend; Henceforth I call you not Servants, but Friends, &c. Now, if God be the Believer's Father, and the Believer be God's own Child, certainly there muſt be communion between them. If Chriſt be the Believer's Huſband, and the Believer be Chriſt's Spouſe, there muſt be communion between him and them. What, no communion between the Father and his Children, the Huſband and the Wife? We muſt either renounce and deny all ſuch relations to him, and therein renounce our Bibles; or elſe yield the concluſion, that there is a real communion betwixt Chriſt and Believers.

Evid. 4. The reality of communion with God evidently appears from the inſtitution, and appointment of ſo many Ordinances, and duties of Religion, on purpoſe to maintain daily communion betwixt Chriſt and his People. As to inſtance but in that one inſtitution of Prayer, a duty appointed on purpoſe for the Soul's meeting with God, and communion with him: James 4. 8. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Now to what purpoſe can it be conceived ſuch an Ordinance is appointed for the Soul's drawing nigh to God, and God to it; if there be no ſuch thing as communion to be enjoyed with him? If communion with God were a mere Phantom, as the carnal World thinks it to be, what encouragement have the Saints to bow their knees to the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt? But ſurely there is an acceſs to God in prayer, Eph. 3. 12. In whom we have boldneſs and acceſs with confidence. Acceſs to what? If God be not there, and that there can be no communion with him, what means that acceſs? I will meet you, ſaith the Lord, and I will commune with you in every place where I record my Name, Exod. 25. 22. Certainly dutys had never been appointed, but for the ſake of God's communing with us, and ours with him.

Evid. 5. This is yet further evidenced from the mutual deſires both of Chriſt and his People to be in ſweet and intimate communion one with the other. The Scripture ſpeaks much of the Saints vehement deſires of communion with Chriſt, and of Chriſt's deſires after communion with the Saints, and of both jointly. The Saints deſires after communion with him are frequent in all the Scriptures, ſee Pſal. 63. 1, 2, 3. Pſal. 42. 1. Pſal. 119. 20. and the like throughout the New Teſtament. And Chriſt is no leſs deſirous, yea, he is much more deſirous of communion with us than we are with him. Conſider that expreſſion of his to the Spouſe, in Cant. 8. 13. O thou that dwelleſt in the Gardens, the companions hearken to thy voice: cauſe me to hear it. As if he ſhould ſay, O my people, you frequently converſe one with another, you talk daily together; why ſhall not you and I converſe one with another? You ſpeak often to men, O that you would ſpeak more frequently to me! Let me ſee thy countenance, let me hear thy voice; for thy voice is ſweet, and thy countenance comely. And then theſe deſires are mutually expreſt one to another, Rev. 22. 20. Surely (ſaith Chriſt) I come quickly, Amen; even ſo come, Lord Jeſus, ſaith the Church. Now if there be ſuch vehement mutual deſires after communion betwixt Chriſt and his people in this World; then certainly there is ſuch a thing as real communion between them, or elſe both muſt live a very reſtleſs and diſſatisfied life.

Evid. 6. The mutual complaints that are found on both ſides of the interruption of communion, plainly prove there is ſuch a thing. If God complain of his people for their eſtrangements from him, and the Saints complain to God about his ſilence to them, and the hidings of his face from them: Surely then there muſt be a communion between them, or elſe there could be no ground of complaints for the interruptions of it. But it is manifeſt God doth complain of his people for their eſtrangements from him, Jer. 2. 5. Thus ſaith the Lord, I remember thee, the kindneſs of thy youth, and the love of thy eſpouſals. What iniquity have your Fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me? As if he ſhould ſay, You and I have been better acquainted in days paſt; what cauſe have I given for your eſtrangements from me? And thus Chriſt in like manner complains of the Church of Epheſus; after he had commended many things in her, yet one thing grieves and troubles him, Rev. 2. 4. Nevertheleſs I have ſomewhat againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt left thy firſt love. And then on the other ſide, when the Lord hides his face, and ſeems to eſtrange himſelf from his people; what ſad laments and moans do they make about it, as an affliction they know not how to bear? Thus Heman, Pſal. 88. 14. Lord, why caſteſt thou off my Soul? Why hideſt thou thy face from me? So Pſal. 27. 9. Hide not thy face from me, put not thy ſervant away in anger. This is what they cannot bear.

Evid. 7. The reality of communion with God is made viſible to others, in the ſenſible effects of it upon the Saints that enjoy it. There are viſible ſigns and tokens of it appearing to the conviction of others. Thus that marvelous change that appeared upon the very countenance of Hannah; after ſhe had poured out her heart in prayer, and the Lord had anſwered her, it is noted, 1 Sam. 1. 18. She went away, and her countenance was no more ſad. You might have read in her face that God had ſpoken peace and ſatisfaction to her heart. Thus when the Diſciples had been with Chriſt, the mark of communion with him was viſible to others, Acts 4. 13. Now when they ſaw the boldneſs of Peter and John, they marvelled, and took knowledg of them that they had been with Jeſus. 'Tis ſweet, Chriſtian, when the heavenly chearineſs, and ſpirituality of thy converſes with men, ſhall convince others that thou haſt been with Jeſus.

Evid. 8. We may prove the reality of communion with God, from the impoſſibility of ſuſtaining thoſe troubles the Saints do without it. If prayers did not go up, and anſwers come down, there were no living for a Chriſtian in this World. Prayer is the outlet of the Saints ſorrows, and the inlet of their ſupports and comforts, Rom. 8.26. Say not, other men have their troubles as well as the Saints, and yet they make a ſhift to bear them without the help of communion with God. 'Tis true, carnal men have their troubles, and thoſe troubles are often too heavy for them. The ſorrows of the world work death; but carnal men have no ſuch troubles as the Saints have, for they have their inward ſpiritual troubles, as well as their outward troubles. And inward troubles are the ſinking troubles; but this way the ſtrength of God comes in to ſuccour them: and except they had a God to go to, and fetch comfort from, they could never bear them. Pſal. 27. 13. I had fainted unleſs I had believed. Paul had ſunk under the buffetings of Satan, unleſs he had gone once and again to his God, and received this anſwer, My Grace is ſufficient for thee, 2 Cor. 12. 9.

Evid. 9. We conclude the reality of communion with God, from the end of the Saints Vocation. We read frequently in Scripture of effectual calling; now what is that to which God calls his people out of the ſtate of nature, but unto fellowſhip and communion with Jeſus Chriſt? 1 Cor. 1. 9. God is faithful, by whom ye are called unto the fellowſhip of his Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. They are called, you ſee, into a life of communion with Chriſt; therefore certainly there is ſuch a communion, elſe the Saints are called to the enjoyment of a fancy, inſtead of a privilege, which is the greateſt reproach that can be caſt upon the faithful God that called them.

Evid. 10. Laſtly, In a word, the characters and deſcriptions given to the Saints in Scripture evidently prove their life of communion with God. The Men of this World are manifeſtly diſtinguiſhed from the people of God in Scripture; they are called, The Children of this World; the Saints, The Children of light, Luke 16. 8. They are ſaid to be after the fleſh, Saints to be after the Spirit, Rom. 8. 5. They mind earthly things, but the Saints converſation is in Heaven, Phil. 3. 19, 20. By all which it undeniably appears that there is a reality in the Doctrin of communion betwixt Chriſt and his people. We are not impoſed upon, 'tis no cunningly deviſed fable; but a thing whoſe foundation is as ſure as its nature is ſweet.

Thirdly, In the laſt place, I ſhall ſhew you the tranſcendent excellency of this life of communion with God; it is the life of our Life, the joy of our Hearts, a Heaven upon Earth; as will appear by the Twenty Excellencies thereof following.

I. Excellency. It is the aſſimilating Inſtrument whereby the Soul is moulded and faſhioned after the Image of God. This is the Excellency of communion with God, to make the Soul like him.

There is a twofold aſſimilation, or conformity of the Soul to God, the one perfect and compleat, the other inchoate and in part. Perfect aſſimilation is the privilege of the perfect ſtate, reſulting from the immediate viſion and perfect communion the Soul hath with God in glory; 1 John 3. 2. When he ſhall appear, we ſhall be like him, for we ſhall ſee him as he is. Perfect viſion produceth perfect aſſimilation; but the Soul's aſſimilation or imperfect conformity to God in this World, is wrought and gradually carried on by daily communion with him. And as our communion with God here grows up more and more into ſpirituality and power, ſo in an anſwerable degree doth our conformity to him advance; 2 Cor. 3. 18. But we all with open face, beholding as in a glaſs the glory of the Lord, are changed into the ſame image, from glory to glory, as by the ſpirit of the Lord. All ſorts of communion among men have an aſſimilating efficacy; he that walks in vain company, is made vainer than he was before; and he that walks in ſpiritual heavenly company, will be ordinarily more ſerious than he was before: but nothing ſo transforms the Spirit of a man, as communion with God doth. Thoſe are moſt like unto God that converſe moſt frequently with him. The beauty of the Lord is upon thoſe Souls; it figures the Spirit of a Man after the Divine pattern. That's the firſt Excellency of communion with God, it aſſimilates them to God.

II. Excellency. It is the beauty of the Soul, in the Eyes of God, and all good men; it makes the face to ſhine. No outward ſplendor attracts like this; it makes a man the moſt deſirable companion in the whole World. 1 John 1. 3. Theſe things have I written unto you, that you might have fellowſhip with us; and truly our fellowſhip is with the Father, and with his Son Jeſus Chriſt. This was the great and only inducement the Apoſtle makes uſe of to draw the World into fellowſhip with the Saints, that their fellowſhip is with God. And if there were ten thouſand other inducements, yet none like this. You read of a bleſſed time, Zech. 8. when the Earth ſhall be full of Holineſs; when the Jews that are now as a loſt Generation to the eye of ſenſe, ſhall be called, and an eminent degree of Sanctification ſhall be viſible in them; and then ſee the effect of this, verſ. 23. In thoſe days ten men ſhall take hold out of all languages of the Nations, even ſhall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, ſaying, We will go with you, for we have heard that God is with you. This is the powerful attractive, the Lord is with you; 'tis the effect of communion with God which makes the righteous more excellent than his neighbour, Prov. 12. 26. What a vaſt and viſible difference doth this make between one man and another! How heavenly, ſweet and deſirable are the converſes and company of ſome men! How frothy, burdenſom, and unprofitable is the company of others! And what makes the difference but only this, the one walks in communion with God, the other is alienated from the life of God!

III. Excellency. It is the Center which reſts the motions of a weary Soul; 'tis the Reſt and Refreſhment of a Man's Spirit, Pſal. 116. 7. Return unto thy Reſt, O my Soul. When we attain perfect Communion with God in Heaven, we attain to perfect Reſt; and all the Reſt the Spirit of man finds on Earth, is found in Communion with God. Take a ſanctified perſon who hath intermitted for ſome time his communion with the Lord; and ask him, Is your Soul at reſt and eaſe? He will tell you no. The motions of his Soul are like thoſe of a member out of joint, neither comely, nor eaſie. Let that Man recover his ſpiritual frame again, and with it he recovers his Reſt and Comfort. Chriſtians, you meet with variety of troubles in this World; many a ſweet Comfort cut off, many a hopeful Project daſht by the hand of Providence; and what think you is the meaning of thoſe blaſting, diſappointing Providences? Surely this is their deſign and errand, to diſturb your falſe reſt in the boſom of the Creature; to pluck away thoſe pillows you were laying your head upon, that thereby you might be reduced unto God, and recover your loſt communion with him; and ſay with David, Return unto thy Reſt, O my Soul. Sometimes we are ſettling our ſelves to reſt in an Eſtate, in a Child, or the like: at this time it is uſual with God to ſay, Go Loſſes, ſmite and blaſt ſuch a Mans Eſtate; go Death, and take away the deſire of his Eyes with a ſtroke, that my Child may find reſt nowhere but in me. God is the Ark, the Soul like the Dove Noah ſent forth, let it fly where it will, it ſhall find no reſt till it comes back to God.

IV. Excellency. It is the Deſire of all gracious Souls throughout the World. Wherever there is a gracious Soul, the deſires of that Soul are working after communion with God. As Chriſt was called, The Deſire of all Nations; ſo communion with him, is The Deſire of all Saints: and this ſpeaks the excellency of it, Pſal. 27. 4. One thing have I deſired of the Lord, that will I ſeek after; that I might dwell in the houſe of the Lord all the days of my life, to ſee the beauty of the Lord, and to enquire in his Temple; i. e. to enjoy communion with him in the publick Duties of his Worſhip. One thing have I deſired, that is, one thing above all other things; ſuch a one, as if God ſhall give me, I can comfortably bear the want of all other things. Let him deny me what he will, if ſo be he will not deny me this one thing; this one thing ſhall richly recompenſe the want of all other things. Hence the deſires of the Saints are ſo intenſe and fervent after this one thing, Pſal. 42. 1. My Soul panteth after thee O God; and Pſal. 119. 81. My Soul fainteth for thy Salvation. Pſal. 101. 2. When wilt thou come unto me? No duties can ſatisfy without it; the Soul cannot bear the delays, much leſs the denials of it. They reckon their lives worth nothing without it. Miniſters may come, Ordinances and Sabbaths may come; but there's no ſatisfaction to the deſires of a gracious Heart till God come too. O when wilt thou come unto me?

V. Excellency. As it is the Deſire, ſo it is the Delight of all the Children of God both in Heaven and Earth. As communion with the Saints is the delight of Chriſt, Cant. 2. 14. Let me hear thy voice; and again Cant. 8. 13. The companions hearken to thy voice, cauſe me to hear it: So communion with Chriſt is the delight of his people, Cant. 2. 3. I ſat under his ſhadow with great delight, and his fruit was ſweet unto my taſte. 'Tis the pleaſure of Chriſt to ſee the yerning Countenances, the bluſhing Cheeks, the dropping Eyes of his people upon their Knees. And it is the delight of the Saints to ſee a ſmile upon his Face, to hear a voice of pardon and peace from his Lips. I muſt tell you Chriſtians, you muſt look for no ſuch delights as theſe in any earthly enjoyment; none better than theſe till you come home to glory. Communion with God then appears moſt excellent, in as much as it is found to be the deſire and delight of all gracious Souls.

VI. Excellency. 'Tis the Envy of Satan, that which cuts and grates that wicked Spirit. O how it grates and galls that proud and envious Spirit, to ſee Men and Women enjoying the felicity and pleaſure of that communion with God, from which he himſelf is fallen, and cut off for ever! To ſee the Saints emboſomed in delightful communion with Chriſt, whilſt himſelf feels the pangs of horror and deſpair! This is what he cannot endure to behold. And therefore you ſhall find in your experience, that times of communion with God are uſually buſie times of temptations from the Devil: Zech. 3. 1. And he ſhewed me Joſhua the high-Prieſt ſtanding before the Lord, and Satan ſtanding at his right-hand to reſiſt him. 'Tis well for thee Chriſtian, that thou haſt an Advocate ſtanding at God's right-hand to reſiſt and fruſtrate his attempts upon thee; otherwiſe Satan would this way deſtroy your communion with God, and make that which is now your delight, to be your terror. Many ways doth the Devil oppoſe the Saints communion with God, Sometimes he labours to divert them from it. This buſineſs ſhall fall in, or that occaſion fall out, on purpoſe to divert thy Soul's approach to God; but if he cannot prevail there, then he labours to diſtract your thoughts, and break them into a thouſand vanities. Or if he ſucceed not there, then he attacks you in your return from duty, with Spiritual Pride, Security, &c. Theſe fierce oppoſitions of Hell diſcover the worth and excellency of communion with God.

VII. Excellency. 'Tis the End of all Ordinances and Duties of Religion; God hath inſtituted every Ordinance and Duty, whether publick or private, to beget and maintain communion betwixt himſelf and our Souls. What are Ordinances, Duties, and Graces, but perſpective Glaſſes to give us a ſight of God, and help us to communion with him? God never intended his Ordinances to be our reſt, but mediums and inſtruments of communion with himſelf, who is our true reſt. When we go into a Boat, 'tis not with an intention to dwell and reſt there, but to ferry us over the Water, where our buſineſs lies. If a Man miſs of communion with God in the beſt Ordinances or Duty, it yields him little comfort. He comes back from it, like a Man that hath travelled a great many miles to meet a dear friend, upon ſpecial and important buſineſs; but met with diſappointment, and returns ſad, and diſſatisfied. God appoints Ordinances to be meeting places with our God in this World, Exod. 25. 21, 22. Thou ſhalt put the mercy-ſeat above upon the Ark, and in the Ark thou ſhalt put the Teſtimony that I ſhall give thee; and there I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee, from above the mercy-ſeat, from between the two Cherubims. It was not the ſight of the golden Cherubims, or of the Ark overlaid with pure gold, that could have ſatisfied Moſes, had not the ſpecial preſence of God been there, and he had had communion with him. O God ( ſaith David ) my Soul thirſteth for thee, that I might ſee thy beauty and thy glory, ſo as I have ſeen thee in the Sanctuary, Pſal. 63. 1, 2. Magnificent ſtructures, artificial ornaments of the places of Worſhip, are of little account with a gracious Soul. 'Tis the preſence of God, and communion with him, which is the beauty and glory the Saints deſire to behold.

VIII. Excellency. 'Tis the Evidence of our Union with Chriſt, and Intereſt in him. All Union with Chriſt muſt evidence it ſelf by a life of communion with him, or our pretenſions to it are vain and groundleſs. There be many of you ( I wiſh there were more ) enquiring after evidences and ſigns of your union with Chriſt; why, here is an Evidence that can never fail you: Do you live in communion with him? May your life be call'd a walking with God, as Enoch's was? Then you may be ſure you have union with him; and this is ſo ſure a ſign, as Death it ſelf ( which uſes to diſcover the vanity of falſe ſigns ) will never be able to deſtroy. 2 Kings 20. 2, 3. Remember now, O Lord, ( ſaith Hezekiah ) that I have walked before thee in truth, and in a perfect Heart. O Profeſſors, 'twill be a dreadful thing ( whatever ungrounded hopes, and falſe comforts you now have ) to find them ſhrinking away from you, as certainly they will do at death, and all upon this account; I have been a Man of knowledg, I have been frequent in the external duties of Religion, but my heart was not in them; I had no communion with the Lrod in them, and now God is a terror to my Soul. I am going to his awful bar, and have not one ſound evidence to carry along with me. That's a remarkable place, Gal. 5. 25. If we live in the Spirit, let us alſo walk in the Spirit; that is, let us evidence the life of grace in us by exerciſing that grace in a life of communion with God. When all is ſaid, this is the ſureſt evidence of our union with Chriſt, and no gifts or performances whatſoever can amount to an evidence of our union with Chriſt without it.

IX. Excellency. 'Tis Eaſe in all pains; ſweet and ſenſible eaſe to a troubled Soul. Look as the breathing of a vein cools, eaſes, and refreſhes a feveriſh body; ſo the opening of the Soul by acts of communion with God, gives ſenſible eaſe to a burdened Soul. Griefs are eaſed by groans heaven-ward. Many Souls are deep laden with their own fears, cares and diſtreſſes; no refreſhment for ſuch a Soul, no ſuch Anodine in the whole World as communion with God is. Pſal. 32. 1, 2, 3. How did troubles boil in David's Soul? Night and day God's hand was heavy on him; his Soul, as Elihu ſpeaks, was like bottles full of new Wine, he muſt ſpeak to God that he may be refreſhed; and ſo he did, and was refreſhed by it. I ſaid, I will confeſs my tranſgreſſions unto the Lord, and thou forgaveſt the iniquity of my ſin. It would grieve one to ſee how many poor diſtreſſed Souls carry their troubles up and down the World, making their complaints to one, and another; but no eaſe. Away to thy God poor Chriſtian, get thee into thy cloſet, pour out thy Soul before him; and that eaſe which thou ſeekeſt in vain elſewhere will there be found, or nowhere.

X. Excellency. 'Tis Food to the Soul; and the moſt delicious, pleaſant, proper and ſatisfying food that ever it taſted; 'tis hidden Manna, Rev. 2. 17. By theſe things, O Lord, do Men live, and in them is the life of their Soul, Iſa. 38. 16. A regenerate Soul cannot live without it; their Bodies can live as well without bread or breath, as their Souls without communion with God; 'tis more than their neceſſary food. Here they find what they truly call marrow and fatneſs, Pſal.

63. 5, 6. O the ſatisfaction and ſupport they ſuck out of ſpiritual things, by thoughts and meditations upon them! To be ſpiritually minded is life and peace, Rom. 8. 6. The delicates upon Princes Tables are husks and chaff to this. Crows and Vultures can live upon the Carrion of this World; but a renewed Soul cannot ſubſiſt long without God. Let ſuch a Soul be diverted for a time from its uſual refreſhments this way, and he ſhall find ſomething within paining himſelf, like the ſucking and drawing of an empty ſtomach. 'Tis Angels food, 'tis that your Souls muſt live upon throughout Eternity, and moſt happily too.

XI. Excellency. 'Tis the Guard of the Soul againſt the aſſaults of temptation. 'Tis like a Shield advanced againſt the fiery darts of that wicked one. Your ſafety and ſecurity lies in drawing nigh to God, Pſal. 73. 27, 28. They that are far from thee ſhall periſh: But it is good for me to draw near to God. 'Tis good indeed; not only the good of comfort, but the good of ſafety is in it: Deut. 33. 12. The beloved of the Lord ſhall dwell in ſafety by him. You know the gracious preſence of God is your ſhield and ſafety; and if you will have the Lord thus preſent with you in all your fears, ſtraits and dangers, ſee that you keep near to him in the Duties of communion: For the Lord is with you whilſt you are with him, 2 Chron. 15. 2.

XII. Excellency. 'Tis the Honour of the Soul, and the greateſt honour that ever God conferr'd on any creature; 'tis the glory of the holy Angels in Heaven to be always beholding the face of God, Matth. 18. 10. O! that God ſhould admit poor duſt and aſhes unto ſuch a nearneſs to himſelf! To walk with a King, and have frequent converſe with him, puts a great deal of honour upon a Subject; but the Saints walk with God, ſo did Enoch, ſo do all the Saints: 1 John 1. 3. Truly our fellowſhip is with the Father, and with his Son Chriſt Jeſus. They have liberty and acceſs with confidence; the Lord as it were delivers them the golden key of Prayers, by which they may come into his preſence on all occaſions, with the freedom of Children to a Father.

XIII. Excellency. 'Tis the Inſtrument of mortification; and the moſt excellent and ſucceſsful inſtrument for that purpoſe in all the World. Gal. 5. 16. This I ſay then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye ſhall not fulfil the works of the fleſh. Walking in the Spirit is the ſame thing with walking in communion with God. Now, ſaith that Apoſtle, if you thus walk in the Spirit, in the actings of Faith, Love and Obedience, throughout the courſe of holy duties, the effect of this will be, that ye ſhall not fulfil the luſts of the fleſh. He doth not ſay, You ſhall not feel the motions of ſin in you, or temptations to ſin aſſaulting you; but he ſaith, you ſhall not fulfil the luſts of the fleſh, ſin ſhall not have dominion over you; this will let out the life-blood of ſin. A temptation overcome this way, is more effectually ſubdued than by all the vows, reſolutions, and external means in the World: as a Candle that is blown out with a puff of breath, may be rekindled by another puff; but if it be quencht in water, 'tis not ſo eaſily lighted again. So it is here, you never find that power or ſucceſs in temptations, when your hearts are up with God in there exerciſes of faith and love, as you do when your hearts hang looſe from him, and dead towards him. The Schoolmen aſſign this as one reaſon why the Saints in Heaven are impeccable, no ſin can faſten upon them, becauſe, ſay they, they there enjoy the beatifical viſion of God. This is ſure, the more communion any Man hath with God on Earth, the freer he lives from the power of his corruptions.

XIV. Excellency. 'Tis the Kernel of all Duties and Ordinances: Words, geſtures, &c. are but the integuments, husks, and ſhells of Duties. Communion with God is the ſweet Kernel, the pleaſant and nouriſhing food which lies within them; you ſee the fruits of the Earth are covered and defended by husks, ſhells, and ſuch like integuments; within which lie the pleaſant kernels and grains, and that's the food. The Hypocrite who goes no further than the externals of Religion, is therefore ſaid to feed on Aſhes, Iſa. 44. 20. to ſpend his mony for that which is not bread, and his labour for that which ſatisfieth not, Iſa. 55. 2. He feeds but upon husks, in which there is little pleaſure or nouriſhment. What a poor houſe doth a Hypocrite keep? Words, Geſtures, Ceremonies of Religion will never fill the Soul; but communion with God is ſubſtantial nouriſhment. My Soul, ſaith David, ſhall be ſatisfied as with marrow and fatneſs, whilſt I think and meditate on thee, Pſal. 63. 5, 6. It would grieve ones heart to think what airy things many Souls ſatisfie themſelves with; feeding like Ephraim upon the wind, well contented if they can but ſhuffle over a few heartleſs empty duties; whilſt the Saints feed upon this hidden Manna, are feaſted as it were with Angels food.

XV. Excellency. 'Tis the Light of the Soul in darkneſs; and the pleaſanteſt light that ever ſhone upon the Soul of Man: There's many a Soul which walketh in darkneſs; ſome in the darkneſs of ignorance and unbelief, the moſt diſmal of all darkneſs except that in Hell. There are others who are Children of light, in a ſtate of reconciliation, yet walk in the darkneſs of outward afflictions, and inward deſertions and temptations; but as ſoon as ever the light of God's countenance ſhines upon the Soul in the duties of communion with him, that darkneſs is diſſipated and ſcattered; 'tis all light within him, and round about him. Pſal. 34. 5. They looked unto him, and were enlightned: they looked, there is faith acted in Duty; and were enlightned, there's the ſweet effect of Faith. The horrors and troubles of gracious Souls ſhrink away upon the riſing of this chearful light. As wild Beaſts come out of their Dens in the darkneſs of the night, and ſhrink back again into them when the Sun ariſeth, Pſal. 104. 20, 21, 22. So do the fears, and inward troubles of the people of God, when this light ſhines upon their Souls. Nay more, this is a light which ſcatters the very darkneſs of death it ſelf. It was the ſaying of a worthy Divine of Germany upon his death-bed, when his Eye-ſight was gone, being askt how it was within? Why, ſaid he, tho all be dark about me, yet pointing as well as he could to his breaſt, hic ſat lucis, here is light enough.

XVI. Excellency. 'Tis Liberty to the ſtraitned Soul, and the moſt comfortable and excellent liberty in the whole World. He only walks at liberty that walks with God, Pſal. 119. 45. I will walk at liberty, for I ſeek thy precepts. Wicked Men cry out of bands and cords in Religion, they look upon the duties of godlineſs as the greateſt bondage and thraldom in the whole World, Pſal. 2. 3. Let us break their bands aſunder, and caſt away their cords from us. q. d. Away with this ſtrictneſs and preciſeneſs, it extinguiſhes the joy and pleaſure of our lives; give us our Cups inſtead of Bibles, our profane Songs inſtead of Spiritual Pſalms, our Sports and Paſtimes inſtead of Prayers and Sermons. Alas, poor creatures, how do they dance in their ſhackles and chains! when in reality the ſweeteſt liberty is enjoyed in thoſe Duties at which they thus ſnuff. The Law of Chriſt is the Law of Liberty; the Soul of Man never enjoys more Liberty, than when it is bound with the ſtricteſt bands of Duty to God. Here's liberty from enthralling luſts, and from enſlaving fears. The Spirit of life which is in Chriſt Jeſus, hath made me free from the law of Sin and Death, Rom. 8. 2. And here is freedom indeed; If the Son make you free, then are you free indeed, John 8. 36. And here is freedom from fears, Luke 1. 74, 75. Thoſe that will not endure any reſtraint from their luſts, they will have their freedom to ſin; a freedom they ſhall have, ſuch as it is, Rom. 6. 20. When ye were the ſervants of ſin, ye were free from righteouſneſs. Let none therefore be prejudiced at the ways of Duty, and ſtrict Godlineſs. The law of Chriſt is the perfect law of liberty, James 1. 25. not liberty to ſin, but liberty from ſin.

XVII. Excellency. 'Tis a Mercy purchaſed by the blood of Chriſt for Believers, and one of the principal Mercies ſetled upon them by the new Covenant-grant: A peculiar mercy which none but the Redeemed of the Lord partake of; a mercy which coſt the blood of Chriſt to purchaſe it. I do not deny but there are thouſands of other mercies beſtowed upon the unregenerate; they have Health, Wealth, Children, Honours, Pleaſures, and all the delights of this Life: but for communion with God, and the pleaſures that reſult therefrom, they are uncapable of theſe. No ſupping with Chriſt upon ſuch excellent privileges and mercies as theſe, till the heart be opened to him by faith; you cannot come nigh to God, until you be firſt made nigh by reconciliation, Eph. 2. 13. Heb. 10. 19, 20, 21, 22. What would your lives, Chriſtians, be worth to you if this mercy were cut off from you? There would be little ſweetneſs, or ſavour in all your outward mercies, were it not for this mercy that ſweetens them all. And there is this difference, among many others, betwixt this mercy and all outward mercies: You may be cut off from the enjoyment of thoſe, you cannot from this; no priſon can keep out the Comforter. O bleſs God for this invaluable Mercy.

XVIII. Excellency. 'Tis Natural to the new Creature; the inclination and inſtinct of the new Creature leadeth to Communion with God. 'Tis as natural to the new Creature to deſire it, and work after it, as it is to the new-born babe to make to the breaſt: 1 Pet. 2. 2. As new-born babes deſire the ſincere milk of the Word, that ye may grow thereby. There is a law upon the regenerate part, which inwardly and powerfully obliges it to acts of Duty, and converſe with God in them. Communion with God is a thing that riſeth out of the principles of Grace. You know all Creatures in this lower World act according to the Laws of Nature; the Sun will riſe, and the Sea will flow at its appointed time; and the gracious Soul will make towards its God in the times and ſeaſons of Communion with him. They are not forced on to thoſe Duties by the frights of Conſcience, and the fears of Hell, ſo much as by the natural inclination of the new Creature. Two things demonſtrate Communion with God to be connatural to the regenerate part, called the inner-man, and the hidden-man of the heart, viz. (1.) The Reſtleſneſs of a gracious Soul without it, Cant. 3. 2. The Church in the firſt verſe had ſought her beloved, but found him not; doth ſhe ſit down ſatisfied in his abſence? No, no, I will riſe now and go about the City, in the ſtreets, and in the broad ways; I will ſeek him whom my Soul loveth. (2.) The Satisfaction and Pleaſure, the reſt and delight which the Soul finds and feels in the enjoyment of Communion with God, plainly ſhews it to be agreeable to the new Nature. Pſal. 63. 5. My Soul ſhall be ſatisfied whilſt I think on thee. And when it is thus, then Duties become eaſie and pleaſant to the Soul, 1 John 5. 3. His commandments are not grievous. Yea, and ſuch a Soul will be conſtant and aſſiduous in thoſe Duties. That which is natural, is conſtant, as well as pleaſant. What's the reaſon Hypocrites throw up the Duties of Religion in times of difficulty, but becauſe they have not an inward principle agreeable to them? The motives to Duty lie without them, not within them.

XIX. Excellency. 'Tis the Occupation and trade of all ſanctified perſons, and the richeſt Trade that was ever driven by Men. This way they grow rich in Spiritual Treaſures; the Revenues of it are better than Silver and Gold. There be many of you have traded long for this World, and it comes to little; and had you gained your deſigns, you had gained but trifles. This is the rich and profitable occupation. Phil. 3. 20. Our Converſation is in Heaven. Our Commerce and Trade lies that way, ſo that word ſignifies. There be few Chriſtians that have driven this Soul-enriching Trade any conſiderable time, but can ſhew ſome Spiritual Treaſures which they have gotten by it, Pſal. 119. 50. This I had becauſe I kept thy precepts. As Merchants can ſhew the Gold and Silver, the Lands and Houſes, the rich Goods and Furniture, which they have gotten by their ſucceſsful Adventures abroad; and tell their Friends, ſo much I got by ſuch a Voyage, and ſo much by another: So Chriſtians have invaluable treaſures, tho their humility conceals them, which they have gotten by this heavenly Trade of Communion with God. Their Souls were weak, and by Communion with God they have gotten ſtrength, Pſal. 138. 3. I cried, and thou ſtrengthnedſt me with ſtrength in my Soul. They have gotten peace by it, a treaſure ineſtimable; Pſal. 119. 165. Great peace have they that love thy Law, and nothing ſhall offend them. They have gotten purity by it, Pſal. 119. 3. They do no iniquity that walk in thy ways. O what rich returns are here! Nay, they get ſometimes full aſſurance by it. The riches of both the Indies will not purchaſe from a Chriſtian the leaſt of theſe mercies. Theſe are the rich rewards of our pains in the Duties of Religion; In keeping thy Commandments there is great reward.

XX. Excellency. 'Tis Oil to the Wheels of Obedience, which makes the Soul go on chearfully in the ways of the Lord: Pſal. 119. 32. Then will I run the ways of thy Commandments, when thou ſhalt enlarge my heart. Non tardat uncta rota. Oiled Wheels run trig and nimble. How prompt and ready for any Duty of Obedience, is a Soul under the influences of Communion with God! Then, as Iſaiah having gotten a ſight of God, Here am I Lord, ſend me, Iſa. 6. 8. Now the Soul can turn its hand to Duties of

1. Active; And
2. Paſſive Obedience.

1. Hereby the Soul is prepared and fitted for the Duties of Active Obedience, to which it applies it ſelf with pleaſure and delight: Pſal. 43. 3, 4. Then will I go unto the Altar of God, unto God my exceeding joy; or as it is in the Hebrew, the gladneſs of my joy. It goes to prayer as a hungry man to a feaſt, or as a covetous man to his treaſures: Pſal. 119. 14. I have rejoiced in the way of thy commandments as much as in all riches.

2. It prepares the Soul for Paſſive Obedience; makes a man to rejoice in his ſufferings, Col. 1. 24. 'Twill make a Chriſtian ſtand as Porters in London do, at the Merchants doors, to receive any burden or load they have to lay upon their ſhoulders, and thank them to be ſo employed: This joy of the Lord is their ſtrength, Neh. 8. 10. A Chriſtian under the chearful influences of near communion with God, can with more chearfulneſs lay down his neck for Chriſt, than other men can lay out a ſhilling for him. In all theſe Twenty particulars you have an account of the Excellency of this Privilege; but O how ſhort an account have I given of it! What remains, is the Application of this point, in a double Uſe:

1. Of Information.
2. Of Exhortation.

Firſt, For Information in the following Inferences.

Infer. 1. How ſure and certain a thing is it that there is a God, and a ſtate of Glory prepared in Heaven for ſanctified Souls?

Theſe things are undeniable, God hath ſet them before our ſpiritual Eyes and Senſes: Beſide the revelation of it in the Goſpel, which ſingly makes it infallible; the Lord, for our abundant ſatisfaction, hath brought theſe things down to the touch and teſt of our ſpiritual Senſes and Experiences. You that have had ſo many ſights of God by faith, ſo many ſweet taſtes of Heaven in the Duties of Religion, O what a confirmation and ſeal have you of the reality of inviſible things! You may ſay of Heaven, and the joys above, as the Apoſtle did of him that purchaſed it, 1 John 1. 1. That which our Eyes have ſeen, and our Ears have heard, and our Hands have handled, &c. For God hath ſet theſe things in ſome degree before your very Eyes, and put the firſt fruits of them into your own Hands. The ſweet reliſh of the joy of the Lord is upon the very palate of your Souls. To this ſpiritual Senſe of the believing Hebrews the Apoſtle appealed, Heb. 10. 34. when he ſaid, Ye took joyfully the ſpoiling of your goods, knowing in your ſelves that you have in Heaven a better and an induring ſubſtance. This knowing in our ſelves is more certain and ſweet than all the traditional knowledg we get from the reports of others, 1 Pet. 1. 8. Whom having not ſeen ye love; whom though now ye ſee him not, yet believing ye rejoice with joy unſpeakable and full of glory. There is more of Heaven felt and taſted in this World than men are aware of; 'tis one thing to hear of ſuch Countries as Spain, Italy, Smyrna, by the diſcourſes and reports we heard of them in our childhood, and another thing to underſtand thoſe Countries by the rich commodities imported from them in the way of our Trade and Commerce. O did we but know what other Chriſtians have felt and taſted, we would not have ſuch ſtaggering thoughts about inviſible things; but the ſecret comforts of Religion are, and ought to be for the moſt part incloſed things. Religion lays not all open; the Chriſtians life is a hidden life.

Infer. 2. If ſuch a height of Communion with God be attainable on Earth, then moſt Chriſtians live below the duties and comforts of Chriſtianity.

Alas, the beſt of us are but at the foot of this pleaſant Mount Piſga: as we are but in the infancy of our Graces, ſo we are but in the infancy of our Comforts; what a poor Houſe is kept by many of God's own Children? living between hopes and fears, ſeldom taſting the riches and pleaſures, the joys and comforts of Aſſurance. And will you know the reaſons of it? There are Five things which uſually keep them poor and low as to Spiritual Joys and Comforts. (1.) The incumbrances of the World, which divert them from, or diſtract them in their duties of Communion with God, and ſo keep them low in their Spiritual Comforts: They have ſo much to do on Earth, that they have little time for Heavenly employments. O, what a noiſe and din do the trifles of this World make in the Heads and Hearts of many Chriſtians! How dear do we pay for ſuch trifles as theſe? (2.) A Spirit of formality creeping into the duties of Religion, impoveriſhes the vital Spirit thereof; like the wanton embraces of the Ivy, which binds and ſtarves the Tree it claſps about. Religion cannot thrive under formality; and 'tis difficult to keep out formality in a ſetled courſe of Duty, and much more when Duties are intermitted. (3.) The buſineſs of temptations peſtering the minds of many Chriſtians, eſpecially ſuch as are of melancholy conſtitutions; how importunate and reſtleſs are theſe temptations with ſome Chriſtians? They can make little comfort or advantage out of Duty by reaſon of them. (4.) Heart-apoſtacy, inward decays of our firſt love, is another reaſon why our Duties proſper ſo little, Rev. 2. 4. Thou haſt left thy firſt love. You were not wont to ſerve God with ſuch coldneſs. (5.) In a word, Spiritual pride impoveriſhes our Comforts. The joys of the Spirit, like brisk Wines, are too ſtrong for our weak heads. For theſe cauſes many Chriſtians are kept low in Spiritual comforts.

Infer. 3. How ſweet and deſirable is the ſociety of the Saints! it muſt needs be deſirable to walk with them, who walk with God, 1 John. 1. 3. No ſuch companions as the Saints. What benefit or pleaſure can we find in converſes with ſenſual worldlings? All we can carry away out of ſuch company is guilt, or grief. All my delight, ſaith David, is in the Saints, and in the excellent of the Earth, which excel in vertue, Pſal. 16. 3. And their ſociety would certainly be much more ſweet and deſirable than it is, did they live more in Communion with God than they do. There was a time when the Communion of the Saints was exceeding lovely, Mal. 3. 16. Acts 2. 46, 47. The Lord reſtore it to its primitive glory and ſweetneſs.

Infer. 4. What an unſpeakable Mercy is Converſion, which lets the Soul into ſuch a ſtate of Spiritual pleaſure?

Here's the beginning of your acquaintance with God, the firſt taſte of Spiritual pleaſures, of which there ſhall never be an end. All the time men have ſpent in the World in an unconverted ſtate, hath been a time of eſtrangement and alienation from God; when the Lord brings a man to Chriſt in the way of Converſion, he then begins his firſt acquaintance with God, Job 22. 21.

Acquaint now thy ſelf with him, and be at peace, thereby good ſhall come unto thee. This is your firſt acquaintance with the Lord, which will be a growing thing; every viſit you give him in prayer increaſeth your acquaintance, and begets more intimacy, and humble holy familiarity betwixt him and you. And O, what a paradiſe of pleaſure doth this let the Soul into! The life of Religion abounds with pleaſures, Pſal. 16. 11. All his ways are ways of pleaſantneſs, and his paths are peace, Prov. 3. 17. Now you know where to go and unload any trouble that preſſeth your Hearts: whatever prejudices and ſcandals Satan and his Inſtruments caſt upon Religion; this I will affirm of it, that that man muſt neceſſarily be a ſtranger to true pleaſure, and empty of real comfort, who is a ſtranger to Chriſt and the duties of Communion with him. 'Tis true, here's no allowance for ſinful pleaſures, nor any want of Spiritual pleaſures. Bleſs God therefore for converting grace, you that have it; and lift up a cry to Heaven for it, you that want it.

Infer. 5. Laſtly, If there be ſo much delight and pleaſure in our imperfect and often interrupted Communion with God here; O then, what is Heaven! What are the immediate viſions of his Face in the perfect ſtate? 1 Cor. 2. 9. Eye hath not ſeen, nor Ear heard, neither have entred into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. You have heard glorious and raviſhing reports in the Goſpel of that bleſſed future ſtate, things which the Angels deſire to look into. You have felt and taſted joys unſpeakable, and full of glory, in the actings of your faith and love upon Chriſt; yet all that you have heard, and all that you have felt and taſted in the way to Glory, falls ſo ſhort of the perfection and bleſſedneſs of that ſtate, that Heaven will and muſt be a great ſurprize to them that have now the greateſt acquaintance with it. Though the preſent comforts of the Saints are ſometimes as much as they can bear, for they ſeem to reel and ſtagger under the weight of them, Cant. 2. 5. Stay me with flagons, comfort me with apples, I am ſick of love: Yet, I ſay, theſe high tides of preſent joy are but ſhallows to the joys of his immediate preſence, 1 Cor. 13. 12. And as they run not ſo deep, ſo are they not conſtant and continued as they ſhall be above, 2 Theſ. 4. ult. Ever with the Lord. And thus much for Information.

II. Vſe for Exhortation.

The laſt improvement of this Point will be by way of Exhortation,

1. To Believers.
2. To Vnbelievers.

Firſt, Is this the privileged ſtate, into which all believers are admitted by Converſion? Then ſtrive to come up to the higheſt attainment of Communion with God in this World, and be not contented with juſt ſo much grace as will ſecure you from Hell; but labour after ſuch a height of grace and communion with God, in the exerciſe thereof, as may bring you into the ſuburbs of Heaven on Earth.

Forget the things that are behind you, as to ſatisfaction in them, and preſs towards the mark, for the prize of your high calling. 'Tis greatly to your loſs that you live at ſuch a diſtance from God, and are ſo ſeldom with him. Think not the ableſt Miniſters, or choiceſt Books, will ever be able to ſatisfie your doubts, and comfort your hearts, whilſt you let down your Communion with God to ſo low a degree. O that you might be perſwaded now to hearken obediently to three or four neceſſary words of Counſel.

I. Counſel. Make Communion with God the very level and aim of your Souls in all your approaches to him in the Ordinances and Duties of Religion. Set it upon the point of your compaſs, let it be the very thing your Souls deſign; let the deſires and hopes of Communion with God be the thing that draws you to every Sermon and Prayer. Pſal. 27. 4. One thing have I deſired of the Lord, that will I ſeek after, that I may ſee the beauty of the Lord, and enquire after him in his Temple. That was the mark David aimed at. And Mens ſucceſs in Dutys is uſually according to the Spiritual aims and intentions of their Hearts in them; both ſincerity and comfort lie much in mens ends.

II. Counſel. In all your approaches to God, beg and plead hard with him for the manifeſtations of his love, and further communications of his grace. Hear, O Lord, when I cry with my voice; have mercy alſo upon me, and anſwer me. When thou ſaidſt, Seek ye my face, my heart ſaid unto thee, Thy face Lord will I ſeek. Hide not thy face far from me, put not thy ſervant away in anger, Pſal. 27. 7, 8, 9. How full and thick of pleas and arguments for Communion with God was this prayer of David? Lord, I am come in obedience to thy command; thou ſaidſt, Seek ye my face, thou bidſt me come to thee, and wilt thou put away thy ſervant in anger? Thou haſt been my help, I have had ſweet experience of thy goodneſs, thou doſt not uſe to put me off, and turn me away empty.

III. Counſel. Deſire not comfort for comforts ſake, but comforts and refreſhments for ſervice and obedience ſake; that by it you may be ſtrengthned to go on in the ways of your duty with more chearfulneſs, Pſal. 119. 32. Then will I run the ways of thy commandments, when thou ſhalt enlarge my heart. As if he ſhould ſay, O Lord, the comforts thou ſhalt give me, ſhall be returned again in chearful ſervices to thee. I deſire them, as Oil to the Wheels of Obedience, not food for my pride.

IV. Counſel. As ever you expect to be owners of much comfort in the ways of your Communion with God, ſee that you be ſtrict and circumſpect in the courſe of your Converſations. 'Tis the looſneſs and careleſneſs of our heart and lives, which impoveriſhes our Spiritual comforts. A little pride, a little careleſneſs daſhes and fruſtrates a great deal of comfort which was very near us, almoſt in our hands; to allude to that, Hoſea 7. 1. When I would have healed Iſrael, then the iniquity of Ephraim was diſcovered. So here, juſt when the deſire of thy heart was come to the door, ſome ſin ſtept in the way of it. Your iniquities, ſaith God, have ſeparated between you and your God, and your ſins have hid his face from you, Iſa. 59. 2. The Comforter, the holy Spirit, is ſenſible and tender, he hath quick reſentments of your unkindneſſes and offences. As ever therefore you expect comfort from him, beware of him, and grieve him not.

Secondly, In the laſt place, this Point ſpeaks neceſſary counſel and advice to Vnbelievers; to all that live eſtranged from the life of God, and have done ſo from the Womb, Pſal. 58. 3. To you the voice of the Redeemer ſounds a ſummons once more, Behold I ſtand at the door and knock. O that at laſt you might be prevailed with to comply with the merciful terms propounded by him. Will you ſhut out a Saviour bringing Salvation, Pardon and Peace with him? Chriſt is thy rightful owner, and demands poſſeſſion of thy Soul; if thou wilt now hear his voice, thy former refuſals ſhall never be objected. If thou ſtill reject his gracious offers, mercy may never more be tendered to thee; there is a call of Chriſt, which will be the laſt call, and after that no more. Take heed what you do; if you ſtill demur and delay, your damnation is juſt, inevitable and unexcuſable. Hear me therefore you unregenerated Souls, in what rank or condition ſoever Providence hath placed you in this World; whether you be rich or poor, young or old, Maſters or Servants, whether there be any ſtirrings of conviction in your Conſciences or not. For however your conditions in this World differ from each other at preſent, there is one common miſery hanging over you all, if you continue in that ſtate of unbelief you are now fixed in.

And 1. Hearken to the voice and call of Chriſt, you that are exalted by Providence above your poorer neighbours; you that have your Heads, Hands and Hearts full of the World; men of trade and buſineſs; I have a few ſolemn queſtions to ask you this day.

(1.) You have made many gainful bargains in your time, but what will all profit you if the agreement be not made betwixt Chriſt and your Souls? Chriſt is that treaſure which only can enrich you, Mat. 13. 44. Thou art a poor and miſerable wretch, whatever thou haſt gained of this World, if thou haſt not gained Chriſt; thou haſt heaped, up guilt with thy riches, which will more torment thy Conſcience hereafter than thy eſtate can yield thee comfort here.

(2.) You have made many aſſurances to ſecure your floating Eſtates, which you call Policies; but what aſſurance have you gotten for your Souls? Are not they expoſed to eternal hazards? O impolitick man! To be ſo provident to ſecure trifles, and ſo negligent in ſecuring the richeſt treaſure.

(3.) You have adjuſted many accounts with men, but who ſhall make up your accounts with God, if you be Chriſtleſs? What ſhall it profit a man to gain the whole World, and loſe his own Soul? Mat. 16. 26. Say not you have much buſineſs under your hands, and cannot allow time; you will have ſpace enough hereafter to reflect upon your folly.

2. You that are poor and mean in the World, what ſay you, Will you have two Hells, one here, and another hereafter? No comfort in this World, nor hope for the next? Your expectations here laid in the duſt, and your hopes for Heaven built upon the ſand? O, if you were once in Chriſt, how happy were you, tho you knew not where to fetch your next bread! Poor in the World, but rich in faith; and heirs of the Kingdom which God hath promiſed, James 2. 5. O bleſſed ſtate! If you had Chriſt, you had then a right to all things, 1 Cor. 3. 22, 23. you had then a Father to take care for you: but to be poor and Chriſtleſs; no comfort from this World, nor hopes from the next; this is to be truly miſerable indeed. Your very ſtraits and wants ſhould prompt you to the great duty I am now preſſing on you; and methinks it ſhould be matter of encouragement that the greateſt number of Chriſt's friends and followers came out of that rank and order of men to which you belong.

3. You that are Seamen, floating ſo often upon the great deeps, you are reckoned a third ſort of perſons between the living and the dead; you belong not to the dead, becauſe you yet breath; and ſcarcely to the living, becauſe you are continually ſo near death: What think you friends, have you no need of a Saviour? Do you live ſo ſecure from the reach and danger of death? Have your lives been ſo pure, righteous, and innocent, who have been in the thick of temptations in the World abroad? Ponder that Scripture, 1 Cor. 6. 9, 10. Be not deceived, neither Fornicators, nor Idolaters, nor Adulterers, nor Effeminate, nor Abuſers of themſelves with mankind, &c. Ponder it, I ſay, and think whether you have not as great and preſſing a neceſſity of Jeſus Chriſt, as any poor Souls under Heaven? You have had many temporal Salvations from God, great and eminent deliverances, and will theſe ſatisfy you? Is it enough that your bodies are delivered from the danger of the Sea, tho your Souls ſink and periſh in the Ocean of God's wrath for ever? If you will yet accept Chriſt upon his terms, all that you have done ſhall be forgiven, Iſa. 55. 2. The Lord now calls to you in a ſtill voice; if you hear his voice, well; if not, you may ſhortly hear his voice in the tempeſtuous ſtorms without you, and a roaring Conſcience within you. Poor man, think what an intereſt in Chriſt will be worth, wert thou now (as ſhortly thou mayſt) floating upon a piece of wreck, or ſhivering upon a cold and deſolate rock, crying Mercy, Lord, mercy: Well, mercy is now offered thee, but in vain wilt thou expect to find it, if thou continue thus to deſpiſe and reject it.

4. You that are aged and full of days, hearken to the voice of Chriſt, God hath called upon you a long time: When you were young, you ſaid, 'tis time enough yet, we will mind theſe things when we are old, and come nearer to the borders of Eternity. Well, now you are old, and juſt upon the borders of it; will you indeed mind it now? you have left the great concernments of your Souls to this time, this ſhort, very ſhort time: And do the temptations of your Youth take hold upon your Age? what, delay and put off Chriſt ſtill, as you were wont to do? Poor Creatures, you are almoſt gone out of time, you have but a ſhort time to deliberate; what you do muſt be done quickly, or it can never be done: Your night is even come upon you, when no man can work.

5. You that are young, in the Bud or Flower of your time, Chriſt is a Suiter for your firſt Love; he deſires the kindneſs of your youth; your Spirits are vigorous, your Hearts tender, your Affections flowing and impreſſive, you are not yet entred into the incumbrances and diſtracting cares of the World: hereafter a crowd and thick ſucceſſion of earthly employments and engagements will come on; ſin will harden you by cuſtom and continuance. Now is your time; you are in the convertible Age; few that paſs the ſeaſon of youth (comparatively ſpeaking) are brought over to Chriſt afterwards: 'Tis a rarity, the wonder of an Age, to hear of the converſion of aged Sinners. Beſides, you are the hopes of the next Generation: Should you be Chriſt-neglecting and deſpiſing Souls; how bad ſoever the preſent Age is, the next will be worſe. Say not, we have time enough before us, we will not quench the ſprightly vigour of our Youth in melancholy thoughts: Remember there are Sculls of all ſizes in Golgotha; Graves of all lengths in the Church-yard: You may anticipate thoſe that ſtand nearer the Grave than you ſeem to do. O you cannot be happy too ſoon: As young as you are, did you but taſt the Comforts that be in Chriſt, nothing would grieve you more, than that you knew him no ſooner. Behold he ſtandeth at thy Door, in the morning of thy Age, knocking this day for admiſſion into thy Heart.

6. You that have had ſome ſlight ineffectual vaniſhing Convictions upon you formerly; the Lord Jeſus once more renews his call: will you now at laſt hear his voice? 'Tis an infinite mercy to have a ſecond call. I doubt not, but there are many among you, whilſt you have ſat under the Word, have had ſuch thoughts as theſe in your Hearts: Sure, my condition is not right, nor ſafe; there muſt another manner of work paſs upon my Soul, or I am loſt for ever. External duties of Religion I do perform, but I am a ſtranger to Regeneration. Such inward convictions as theſe were the Knocks and Calls of Chriſt, but they paſſed away and were forgotten; your Convictions are dead, and your Hearts the more hardned; for it is in putting a Soul under Conviction, as it is in putting Iron into the Fire, and quenching it again, which hardens it the more. You have been near the Kingdom of God, but the more miſerable for that, if you be ſhut out at laſt. The quicknings of your Convictions is the right way to the ſaving of your Souls. The Lord make you this day to hear his Voice.

7. Such as have come hither upon vain or vile accounts, for mere novelty, or worſe ends; to catch advantages, or reproach the truths of God; ſcoffing at the moſt ſolemn and awful Voice of Chriſt. The Word that you have ſlighted and reproached, the ſame ſhall judg you in that great Day, except the Lord give you Repentance unto Life, and make the Heart tremble under it, that hath ſcoffed at it. Be not mockers, leſt your bands be made ſtrong, Iſa. 28. 22.

8. To conclude; Let all, whoſe Hearts the Lord hath opened this day, for the enjoyments of the Goſpel, the bleſſed inſtrument of their Salvation, bleſs the Lord, that hath made it a Key by Regeneration to open the door of Salvation to your Souls. And as you have received Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, ſo walk ye in him.

FROM ## ROMANS I. 18.

For the wrath of God is revealed from Heaven againſt all ungodlineſs, and unrighteouſneſs of men, who hold the truth in unrighteouſneſs.

IN all the foregoing Sermons I have been pleading and wooing for Chriſt. And as Abraham's Servant, to win the Damſel's Conſent, told her what Treaſures his Maſter's Son had, ſo have I laboured to ſhew you ſome part of the unſearchable Riches of Chriſt, if by any means I might allure your hearts, and be inſtrumental to cloſe the happy Match betwixt him and you; and (as the Apoſtle ſpeaks) eſpouſe you to one Husband, even to Chriſt.

But alas! How few ſtir towards him? The moſt ſeem to be immovably fixed in their natural State, and ſinful Courſes. All our Arguments and Intreaties return to us again, and effect nothing. 'Tis amazing to think what is the matter, that Souls which have in them the inbred Hopes and Fears of the World to come, and ſelf-reflecting Powers, cannot for all this be prevailed with to quit the way of ſin, and to embrace the way of Holineſs, tho their Conſciences mean while ſtand convinced that Eternal Damnation is the iſſue and reſult of the one; Life, Peace and Eternal Joys, of the other.

This hath put me upon a ſerious ſearch what may be the cauſe and reaſon of this fixed and unreaſonable obſtinacy; and in this it ſeems evidently to lie, with moſt that live in an unregenerate ſtate under the Goſpel, that they put a force upon their own Conſciences, and do impriſon and hold the Truth in unrighteouſneſs, tho the Wrath of God be revealed from Heaven againſt all that do ſo.

If by this Diſcourſe I can but ſet Truth at liberty, and looſe the Lord's Priſoners which lie bound in your Souls, I ſhall not doubt but the value of Chriſt will quickly riſe among you, and free Convictions will make the work of your Miniſters much more eaſie and ſucceſsful than they now find it. 'Tis hardly imaginable but the things you have heard muſt leave your Souls under Convictions; but if you ſuppreſs and ſtifle them, they produce nothing but aggravations of Sin and Miſery. Now in order to the free and effectual working of all your Convictions, and begetting that reverence which is due to them from every Soul, as to the Voice of God, I have choſen this Scripture, the ſcope and ſenſe whereof I ſhall next give you.

The true ſcope and aim of this Context is to prove the Juſtification of Sinners to be only by the imputed Righteouſneſs of Chriſt in the way of Faith. To make this evident, he diſtributes the whole World into Gentiles and Jews; the one ſeeking Righteouſneſs by the dim Light of Nature, or the Law written in their Hearts; the other, viz. the Jews, by the works of the Law, or external Conformity to the Law of Moſes: but that neither can find what they ſeek, he diſtinctly and fully proves. He proves it firſt upon the Gentiles, from this verſe to the 17*th verſe of the ſecond Chapter*; and then he proves it upon the Jews alſo, from thence to the end of the third Chapter. As for the Gentiles, he acknowledges that they had inbred Notions of God, imprinted in their Nature; they had alſo the Book of the Creatures before them, enough to leave them without Excuſe, ver. 20. they have no pretence of Ignorance: but theſe common Notices of God, and of Good and Evil, they did not obey and put in practice, but acted againſt the very Light and Dictates of their natural Conſciences. For which cauſe the Wrath of God was revealed from Heaven againſt them, as the Text ſpeaks. Wherein note,

1. A clear and dreadful Revelation of Divine Wrath.
2. The Object or impulſive Cauſe thereof, Ungodlineſs and Unrighteouſneſs.
3. The ſpecial aggravation of this their Ungodlineſs and Unrighteouſneſs, that they held the Truth in unrighteouſneſs.

1. Here is a clear and dreadful Revelation of Divine Wrath, the wrath of God (ſaith the Apoſtle) is revealed from Heaven; ὀργὴ Θεȣ̃, the indignation or vengeance of God. 'Tis a word of deep and dreadful ſignification; the Damned that feel the weight of it, have the fulleſt ſenſe of it. 'Tis ſaid, Pſal. 90. 11. Who knows the power of thine anger? according to thy fear, ſo is thy wrath: that is, the fears of an incenſed Deity are no vain Bugbears, nor the effects of Ignorance and Superſtition, as Atheiſts fancy; but let mens Fears of it be what they will, they ſhall find except they repent, the Wrath of God to be according to, yea and far above their Fears of it. If the Wrath of a King be as the Meſſengers of Death, what then is the Wrath of the great and terrible God? This Wrath is here ſaid to to be revealed, Ἀποκαλύπτεται, diſcovered, or made manifeſt; and ſo it is divers ways; it was revealed to them by the light of Nature, their own Conſciences gave them notice and warning of it. Thus it was revealed to them by an internal Teſtimony, a Witneſs within them; and it was alſo revealed to them by the Inſtances and Examples of ſtrokes and puniſhments of Sin in all Ages by the immediate hand of a juſtly incenſed God. They came not by chance, but Divine direction; therefore it's added, ἀπ' ὀυρανȣ̃, from Heaven, or from God in Heaven.

2. Here is the Object, or impulſive Cauſe of this revealed and inflicted Wrath, 'tis revealed from Heaven againſt all ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs of men. ἐπὶ πᾶσαν ἀσέβειαν ϗ ἀδικίαν. The former, ἀσέβεια, ungodlineſs, comprizeth all ſins againſt the firſt Table; the irreligious lives and practices of Men, living in the neglect of the Duties of Religion: The other word ἀδικία, unrighteouſneſs, comprizeth all ſins againſt the ſecond Table, acts of Fraud, Uncleanneſs, &c. againſt Men. And becauſe theſe two general comprehenſive words are branched out into many particulars, therefore he ſaith, the wrath of God is revealed againſt all ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs. There is not one of the many ſins into which ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs are branched out, but incenſeth the Lord's Wrath: and tho he only mentions the Sins in the Abſtract, we are to underſtand the Abſtract put here for the Concrete; the Sins for the Sinners that commit them, or God's puniſhing theſe ſins upon the perſons of the Sinners.

3. Laſtly, we have here before us the ſpecial aggravation of theſe Sins, or that which made them much more provoking to God than otherwiſe they had been. And it was this, that whilſt they committed theſe Sins, or omitted thoſe Duties, they held the Truth in unrighteouſneſs: κατεχόντων, the word ſignifies to detain, ſtop, hinder, or put a Remora in the way of that Truth of God, or thoſe common Notions they had of his Being, Power, Goodneſs, Truth, &c. as alſo of his Worſhip, and the difference between Good and Evil. Theſe Truths ſtruggled in their Conſciences, as the Child in the Womb, to come to the Birth; Conſcience inſtigated them to Duty, and laboured to reſtrain them from Sin, but all in vain, they overbare their own Conſciences, and kept thoſe Sentiments and Convictions Priſoners, tho they ſtruggled for Liberty to break forth into Practice and Obedience. Their Convictions were kept down under the Dominion and Power of Corruptions, as a Priſoner is ſhut up by his Keeper: Their luſts were too hard for their Light. Thus you have both the Scope and Senſe of the Text. The Point from it is this,

Doct. That the wrath of God is dreadfully incenſed againſt all thoſe that live in any courſe of Sin, againſt the light and dictates of their own Conſciences.

Sins of Ignorance provoke the Wrath of God, yet are they not of ſo heinous a nature as ſins againſt Light and Conviction are, nor ſhall they be puniſhed ſo ſeverely. Luke 12. 47. That ſervant which knew his Lord's will, and prepared not himſelf, neither did according to his will, ſhall be beaten with many ſtripes. It excuſes a tanto in ſome meaſure, when a man can ſay, Lord, had I known this to be a Sin, I would not have done it: but when the Conſcience is convinced, and ſtrives to keep us from ſuch an act or courſe of ſinful actions, and we ſtop our Ears againſt its Voice and Warnings; here is a high and horrid Contempt of God and his Law, and gives the Sin a ſcarlet Dye or Tincture. Sins of Ignorance cannot compare with ſuch ſins as theſe, Joh. 3. 19. Job. 15. 22. To open this Point let me,

1. Shew you what Conſcience is.
2. What the Light of Conſcience is, and what its kinds are.
3. How this Light binds the Conſcience, and makes it ſtrive in us.
4. Then inſtance in ſome Caſes wherein it doth ſo.
5. And Laſtly, how and why the impriſoning of

theſe Convictions ſo dreadfully incenſeth the Wrath of God

Firſt, 'Twill be needful to ſpeak a little to the nature of Conſcience in general. Conſcience (as our Divines well expreſs it) is the judgment of a man upon himſelf, as he is ſubject to the judgment of God. A Judgment it is, and a practical Judgment too; it belongs to the underſtanding faculty, 1 Cor. 11. 31. If we would judg our ſelves, &c. This ſelf-judgment is the proper office of the Conſcience; and to enable it for this its work and office, there are (as is generally obſerved) three things belonging to every man's Conſcience.

1. A Knowledg of the Rule or Law according to which it is to judg, called the Sintereſis, which is a treaſury of Rules and Principles without which Conſcience can no more do its work, than an Artificer that wants his Square or Level can do his.

2. Knowledg of the facts or matters to be judged, called the Syneideſis. The Conſcience of every man keeps a Regiſter of his Actions, Thoughts, and the very Secrets of the Heart.

3. An Ability and delegated Authority to paſs judgment on our ſelves and Actions according to the Rule and Law of God, called Criſis, Judgment. Here it ſits upon the Bench as God's Vicegerent, abſolving or condemning as it finds the Sincerity or Hypocriſie of the heart upon trial, 1 Joh. 3. 20, 21.

Conſcience therefore is a high and awful Power, it is ſolo Deo minor; next and immediately under God, our Judg; riding as Joſeph did in the ſecond Chariot. And concerning Conſcience he ſaith to every man, as he once did to Moſes with reſpect to Pharaoh, See, I have made thee a God to Pharaoh, Exod. 7. 1. The Voice of Conſcience is the Voice of God. What it bindeth or looſeth on Earth, Clave non errante, is accordingly bound or looſed in Heaven, 1 Joh. 3. 21. the greateſt Deference and preciſe Obedience is due to its Command. Its Conſolations are of all the moſt ſweet, and its Condemnations (only excepting thoſe by the mouth of Chriſt in the laſt Judgment) moſt terrible. Zuinglius ſpake not without ground when he ſaid, What Death would I not rather chuſe? what Puniſhment would I not rather bear? yea, into what a profound Abyſs of Hell would I not rather enter, than to witneſs againſt my Conſcience? 'Tis like he had felt the Terrors of it to be more bitter than Death. How many have choſen ſtrangling rather than life under the terrors of Conſcience? Wherever you go, Conſcience accompanies you. Whatever you ſay, do, or but think, it regiſters and records in order to the Day of Account. When all Friends forſake thee, yea when thy Soul forſakes thy Body, Conſcience will not, cannot forſake thee. When thy Body is weakeſt and dulleſt, thy Conſcience is moſt vigorous and active. Never more life in the Conſcience, than when Death makes its neareſt approach to the Body. When it ſmiles, chears, acquits, and comforts, O what a Heaven doth it create within a Man? And when it frowns, condemns, and terrifies, how doth it becloud, yea benight all the Pleaſures, Joys and Delights of this World? O Conſcience, how glad would the damned be to have taken their laſt farewel of thee, when they bid this World, and all its Inhabitants farewel at Death! And what had become of all the Sufferers and Martyrs, when ſhut up from Friends in Dungeons, had it not been for the chearing Cordials and Comforts thou there adminiſtredſt to ſupport them! 'Tis certainly the beſt of Friends, or the worſt of Enemies in the whole Creation. This is Conſcience, theſe are its Powers and Offices; which was the firſt thing.

Secondly, Our next enquiry muſt be into the Light of Conſcience, and the various kinds of that Light.

The Lord did not frame ſuch an excellent Structure as the Soul of Man, without Windows to let in light; nor doth he deny the benefit of light to any Soul: But there is a twofold Light which Men have to inform and guide their Conſciences.

1. The Light of Natural Reaſon, which is common.
2. The Light of Scripture-Revelation, which is ſpecial.

1. There is a common light of Natural Reaſon, which is connate, called by Solomon, Prov. 20. 27. The Candle of the Lord. The Spirit of Man is the Candle of the Lord. This is affirmed by him that had an extraordinary portion of intellectuals, a brighter lamp of Reaſon and Wiſdom than other Men: And this is not only true of the Soul in general, but of that ſpecial Power of it, which is called Conſcience, which is God's Spy, and Man's Overſeer. The Heathens had this Light ſhining in their Minds and Conſciences: Some of them by the alone help of this Natural Light made wonderful diſcoveries of the Myſteries of Nature; yea, they found its Efficacy and Power great in their Conſciences, to raiſe their hopes or fears according to the good or evil they had done.

Conſcia mens ut cuique ſua eſt, ita concipit intra
Pectora pro facto, ſpemq; metumq; ſuo. Ovid.

And to the ſhame of many that are called Chriſtians, ſome among them paid great Reverence to their own Conſciences.

——— Imprimis reverere teipſum,
Turpe quid auſurus, te ſine teſte time.

But however, the generality of them did not ſo, and are taxed for it in the Text: And beſides, this Light can make no diſcoveries of Chriſt, and of the way of Salvation by him. The moſt Eagle-ey'd Philoſophers among them were in the dark here. And therefore.

2. God hath afforded Men a more clear and excellent Light to ſhine in their Minds and Conſciences; even the Light of the Goſpel, which compared with the Light of Natural Reaſon, is as the Light of the Sun to the dim Moonlight. Pſal. 147. 20. He ſheweth his Word to Jacob, his Statutes and his Judgments to Iſrael; he hath not dealt ſo with any Nation, and for his Judgments they have not known them. Praiſe ye the Lord. Every Creature hath the Name of God engraven on it, but he hath magnified his Word above all his Name, Pſal. 138. 2. God who beſt knows the rate and value of his own Mercies, accounts this a ſingular favour and privilege to any Nation. Without Revelation we could never have known the cauſe of our Miſery, the fall of Adam, or the only way and means of our recovery by Chriſt: By this a People are lifted up to Heaven, Matth. 11. 21. in reſpect of means and advantages of Salvation; and conſequently the contempt or neglect of ſuch Light and Love, will certainly plunge the guilty into proportionable miſery. John 3. 19. This is the condemnation, that Light is come into the World, and Men love Darkneſs rather than Light.

Moreover, God doth not only afford the Light of Natural Reaſon, and External Goſpel-Revelation to ſome Men in an eminent degree; but to both theſe he ſuperadds the internal illumination of his Spirit, which is the cleareſt and moſt glorious Light in the whole World. He ſhineth into their hearts, to give the Light of the Knowledg of the Glory of God, in the face of Jeſus Chriſt, 2 Cor. 4. 6. Theſe are the three ſorts of Light that God makes to ſhine into the Souls and Conſciences of Men, to direct and guide them; the firſt a common and general Light, the two laſt the moſt clear and tranſcendent in Excellency, eſpecially that of the Spirit with the Goſpel: For tho the Sun be riſen, yet men may draw the Curtains about them, and lie in darkneſs; but the Spirit opens them, and makes it ſhine in.

Thirdly, How this Light ſhining into the Conſciences of Men, obligeth them to Obedience; and how Mens Luſts ſtruggle againſt the Obligations of an enlightned Conſcience, is the next thing to be ſpoken to.

'Tis manifeſt and beyond all Controverſie, that an enlightned Conſcience lays ſtrong and indiſpenſable Obligations and Engagements on the Soul to Obedience: For the Will of God is the Supream Law, 1 Tim. 6. 15. 'tis the Will of the only Potentate, the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords: And the promulgation and manifeſtation of it, ſo binds the Conſcience of the Creature to Obedience, as no Authority or Power on Earth can looſe thoſe bands; no Man can grant a ſuperſedeas in this caſe, or relieve the Soul ſo bound by a noli proſequi; for Conſcience as God's Vicegerent in his Name requireth Obedience, and the Man that heareth the Voice of God from the Mouth of his own Conſcience, preſently thereupon becomes a Debtor, Rom. 1. 14. put under a neceſſity, 1 Cor. 9. 16.

Now Conſcience by reaſon of the Light that ſhineth into it, feeling it ſelf under ſuch ſtrong bands and neceſſities, ſtimulates and urgeth the Soul to Obedience, warns, commands, and preſſes the Soul to its duty, againſt the contrary intereſt and inclinations of the Fleſh: And hence ariſe thoſe combats and conflicts in the boſoms of Men; as the ſtruggles of the Child in the Womb at the fulneſs of time cauſe the throws and pangs of Travail. Sometimes Conſcience prevails, and ſometimes Luſts and Corruptions prevail, and that with great difficulty; for 'tis not alike eaſie to all Men to ſhake off, or burſt the bands of their own Conſciences, tho others can do it eaſily. What a hard tug had Saul to conquer his own Conſcience? I forced my ſelf, ſaith he, 1 Sam. 13. 12. He knew it belonged not to him to offer Sacrifice, his Conſcience plainly told him it would be his Sin; but yet the fear of the Philiſtines being ſtronger than the fear of God, he adventured upon it, renitente conſcientiâ, againſt the plain dictates of his own Conſcience. Thus Herod gives Sentence to put John to Death, Matth. 14. 9. The King was ſorry; nevertheleſs for his Oaths ſake, and them which ſat with him at meat, he commanded it to be given her. His Honour weighed up all his fears of ſin, his own Word weighed more with him than God's Word: Nemo ita perplexus tenetur inter duo vitia, quin exitus pateat abſquet ertio: No Man is held ſo perplexed between two Vices, but he may find an iſſue, without falling into a third.

Pilate's Conſcience was convinced of Chriſt's Innocency, Matth. 27. 18, 19. yet the fear of Ceſar hurries him on to the greateſt of wickedneſſes, even to give Sentence againſt Innocent Blood, yea, the Blood of the Son of God. Darius in like manner, Dan. 6. 14. knew that Daniel was not only an excellent Perſon, but that he was entrapt by the Nobles merely for his Conſcience, and that to put him to Death was to ſacrifice him to their Malice: this he and his Conſcience debated all the day, many encounters he had with it, for the Text ſaith, He was ſore diſpleaſed with himſelf, and ſet his Heart on Daniel to deliver him, and laboured until the going down of the Sun to deliver him; but after a days ſharp fight betwixt him and his Conſcience, Luſt prevails at laſt againſt Light, and returns Victor out of the Field in the Evening. So it was with poor Spira, he ſeemed to hear as it were an inward Voice, Don't write, Spira, don't write; but the love of his Eſtate, Wife, and Children drew his Hand to the Paper, tho Conſcience ſtruggled hard to hold it back.

Thus as the reſtleſs Sea ſtrives to beat down, or break over its bounds, ſo do impetuous Luſts ſtrive to overbear Light and Conviction; video meliora proboque, deteriora ſequor: They know this or that to be a ſin, and that they hazard their Souls by it, but yet they will adventure on it, and ruſh into Sin as the Horſe into the Battel.

Fourthly, I promiſed to give you ſome inſtances of the Conflicts betwixt Mens Conſciences and their Corruptions, wherein Conſcience is vanquiſht and overborn, and by what Weapons the Victory over Conſcience is obtained. Now the Convictions of Men are twofold, viz.

1. General, reſpecting their State.
2. Particular, reſpecting this or that Action.

1. There are general Convictions, and Notices given to ſome Men and Women by their Conſciences, that their Condition or State of Soul is neither right, nor ſafe; that they want the main thing which conſtitutes a Chriſtian, viz. Regeneration, or a gracious change of Heart and Life: They hear and read the ſigns and effects of theſe things, but their Conſcience plainly tells them, it cannot find them in them; that they enjoy the external privileges of the Saints, but they belong not to them; that ſomething is ſtill wanting, and that the main thing too: O my Soul, thou art not right; thou haſt Gifts, thou haſt a Name to live, but for all that thou art dead. Some further work muſt be done upon thee, or thou art undone to Eternity: thou paſſeſt for a good Chriſtian among men, but wo to thee if thou die in the State thou art. Theſe, and ſuch as theſe are the whiſpers of ſome Mens Conſciences in their Ears, and yet they cannot yield themſelves up into the hands of their Convictions, ſo as to confeſs and bewail their Hypocriſie, and groſs miſtakes, and ſeek for a better foundation to build their hope on. Felix his Conſcience gave him ſuch a terrible rouze and monition as this, and made him to tremble whilſt Paul reaſon'd with him about Righteouſneſs, and Temperance, and Judgment to come, Acts 24. 25. it whiſpered in his Ear ſuch Language as this, O poor Soul, how ſhall ſuch an Oppreſſor, such an intemperate wretch as thou art ſtand before God in this day of Judgment, which Paul proves in thy face is certainly future? For as Tacitus ſaith of him, He was inexplebilis Gurges, an inſatiable gulph of Covetouſneſs; ſo it was with Agrippa, Acts 26. 28. he ſtood at half bent, dubious and unreſolved what to do: he ſaw the Heavenly Doctrine of Chriſtianity evidently confirmed by Doctrine and Miracles, his Conſcience pleaded hard with him to embrace it, and had almoſt prevailed. Almoſt, or within a little, as the word is, thou perſwadeſt me to be a Chriſtian: but Agrippa had too much Wealth and Honours to deny and forſake for Chriſt; the Love of the preſent World overbore both the hopes and fears of the World to come. And thus that Excellent Fiſher for Souls, who had throughly converted ſo many to Chriſt, caught but a piece of Agrippa; almoſt is a great deal for ſo great a perſon. The Goſpel is a Drag-net, and brings up all ſorts, whole Chriſtians, and half Chriſtians. The Conſcience is caught, and the Will begins to incline, but O the power and prevalence of Sin! which like the Rudder, commands all to a contrary courſe.

If we come a little nearer, and enquire what are thoſe remora's that ſtop Conſcience in its courſe, bind and impriſon, ſtifle and ſuppreſs its Convictions; that although a Man ſtrongly ſuſpect his foundation to be but Sand, his hopes for Heaven a ſtrong deluſion, yet he will throw up his vain hopes, confeſs his ſelf-deceits, and begin all anew. What is it which over-bears Conſcience in this caſe? Let Men impartially examine their hearts, and it will be found that theſe three things bind and impriſon theſe Convictions of Conſcience, and hold the truth in unrighteouſneſs, viz. ſhame, fear, and pride of Heart.

(1.) Shame. Men that have been Profeſſors, and of good eſteem in the World, are aſhamed the World ſhould know the Miſtakes and Errors of all their life paſt, and what deluded Fools and ſelf-deceivers they have been: This is a powerful reſtraint upon Conviction, how ſhall they look their Acquaintance in the face? What will Men think and ſay of them? How can ye believe which receive Honour one of another? ſaith Chriſt, John 5. 44. q. d. What! you be Chriſtians, and yet not able to endure a cenſure, or a ſcoff upon your Names; that ſtand more upon your Reputation, than your Salvation: How can you believe?

O what Madneſs and exalted Folly appears in this Caſe! Men will chuſe rather to go on, though Conſcience tells them the end of that way will be Death, than ſuffer the ſhame of a juſt and neceſſary retraction, which yet indeed is not their ſhame, but their Duty, and Glory. You that are ſo tender of the ſhame of men, how will you be able to endure the contempt and ſhame that ſhall be caſt on you from God, Angels and Men in the great Day? Luk. 9. 26. 'Tis no ſhame to acknowledg your miſtake, but to perſiſt in it after Conviction, is ſhameful Madneſs.

I knew an excellent Miniſter, who proved an eminent Inſtrument in the Church of God, who in the beginning of his Miniſterial Courſe was not upon the right Foundation of Regeneration. This Man had rare Abilities, excellent Natural and Acquired Gifts, and could preach of Regeneration, Faith, and Heavenly-mindedneſs, though he felt nothing of theſe things in his own Experience. His Life was very unblamable, and he had no mean Intereſt and Eſteem among good men. It pleaſed the Lord whilſt this Man was ſtudying an excellent Spiritual Point to preach to others, his Conſcience firſt preach'd it in his Study to himſelf and that with ſuch a cloſe and rouſing Application, as made him to tremble at it; telling him, that though he had Gifts above many, and ſobriety in his Converſation, yet one thing, and that the main thing, Sanctifying Grace, was wanting. Hereupon the pangs of the New Birth ſeized his Soul, and the Lord made him a moſt inward, ſearching, experimental Miniſter, and crown'd his Labours with unuſual Succeſs. This Miniſter to his dying day was not aſhamed in all companies to acknowledg his miſtake, and bleſs God for his recovery out of it; and in moſt of his Sermons, he would endeavour to convince Profeſſors of the neceſſity of a ſecond Converſion.

(2.) Fear is another pull-back, which withholds men from executing the Convictions of their own Conſciences, and obeying its calls in this grand caſe and concern of the Soul. They are pretty eaſie and ſafe under the External Profeſſion, and Duties of Religion. and are afraid of throwing up their vain hopes, and engaging themſelves heartily and thorowly in Religion; and there be two things ſcare them.

1ſt. The inward pains and troubles of Spirit attending the New-Birth; which they have read and heard of, and ſeen the effects of in others. O 'tis a dreadful thing to lie under the Terrors that many have felt! and ſo 'tis with them as with one that hath a bone ill ſet, who if he have any eaſe, will rather endure a little daily pain, and be content to halt all his Life, than undergo the pain of another fraction or diſlocation in order to a perfect cure.

2ly. They are afraid of External Sufferings. The form of Godlineſs leaves men a latitude to take or leave according as the times favour or frown upon the ways of Religion, but the power of Godlineſs that will engage and put them beyond retreat: They muſt then ſtand to it, come what will. But, Soul, let me tell thee if the juſt fears and apprehenſions of Hell, and the Eternal Wrath of God were upon thee, to which thy Hypocriſie and Formality will expoſe thee; all theſe fears of inward or outward troubles would vaniſh the ſame Hour.

(3.) Pride of Heart ſuffers not this Conviction of Conſcience to work out its effects, but holds this Truth in unrighteouſneſs, to the hazard and ruin of many Souls. Men that live upon their own Duties, and Self-Righteouſneſs, are not eaſily brought to renounce all this, and live upon the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt alone for Juſtification. Proud Nature will rather venture the hazard of Damnation than ſuch ſelf-denial, Rom. 10. 3. As you ſee it common among poor People, to live meanly on coarſe Fare of their own, than upon the Alms and Bounty of another.

O but if once the day of God's Power be come, and a man begins to feel the Commandment come home to his Conſcience, as Paul did, Rom. 7. 9. when he comes to realize the World to come, the value of his Soul, and the danger it is in; then all theſe Remora's are as eaſily ſwept away, as ſo many ſtraws by the rapid Courſe of a mighty torrent. Then let men ſay or think what they pleaſe, I muſt not throw away my own Soul, to maintain a vain Eſtimation among men. Let inward or outward ſufferings be never ſo great, 'tis better for me to feel them, than to ſuffer the everlaſting wrath of the great and terrible God. Let my own Righteouſneſs be what it will, all is but dung and droſs to the pure and perfect Righteouſneſs of Chriſt.

2. As this General Conviction with reſpect to Mens State and Condition is held in Unrighteouſneſs, and Men and Women go with grumbling Conſciences and frequent inward Fears by reaſon of it: ſo there are many particular Convictions bound and impriſoned in Mens Souls. Particular Convictions I ſay, both as to ſins committed, and known Duties omitted againſt both Tables of the Law of God; called in the Text, ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs. Conſcience labours and ſtrives to bring men to confeſs, bewail, and reform them, but cannot prevail; contrary Luſts and Intereſts overpower them, and detain them in unrighteouſneſs. What theſe are, and how they are withheld by thoſe Luſts, I ſhall give ſome Inſtances.

Inſtance 1. And Firſt, for Convictions of Ungodlineſs. There are many that call themſelves Chriſtians, whoſe Conſciences tell them God is to be daily and duly worſhipped by them, both in Family, and Cloſet Prayer. It ſets before them Joſhua's pious practice, Joſh. 24. 15. As for me and my houſe, we will ſerve the Lord. They know God is the Founder, the Owner, the Maſter of their Families; that all Family Bleſſings are from him, and therefore he is to be owned, acknowledged and ſought, in daily Family Prayers and Praiſes. It tells them the Curſe of God hangs over prayerleſs Families, Jer. 10. 25. and that they live in the inexcuſable neglect of theſe Duties, ſeldom worſhipping of God with their Families, or in their Cloſets; and that therefore they live without God in the World. And dreadful will the account and reckoning be at the Great Day, for their own Souls, which they have ſtarved for want of Cloſet Prayer, and for the Souls committed to their charge, which periſh for want of Family Duties. This is the caſe of many who yet will needs paſs for Profeſſors of Chriſtianity.

Lord, how ſad a caſe is here? How can men poſſibly live in the daily neglect of ſo great, ſo neceſſary a Duty? Certainly 'tis not for want of Light or Conviction; the very light of Nature, if we had no Bibles, diſcovers theſe Duties. But three things hold this Truth of God dictated by Mens Conſciences in Unrighteouſneſs, viz.

1. The Love of the World.
2. Conſciouſneſs of Inability.
3. A Diſinclined Heart.

1. The Love of the World choaks this Conviction in the Souls of ſome: and they think it enough to plead for their Excuſe, the want of opportunities, and many encumberances they have, which will not allow them time for theſe Duties. The World is a ſevere Taskmaſter, and fills their heads and hands all the day with Cares and Toils.

And muſt the mouth of Conſcience then be ſtopped with ſuch a plea as this? No, no, God and Conſcience will not be anſwered and put off ſo. The greateſt number of Perſons in the World, from whom God hath the moſt ſpiritual and excellent Worſhip, are of the lower and poorer rank, Pſal. 74. 20. Jam. 2. 5. And it's highly probable your Neceſſities had been leſs, if your Prayers had been more. And what ſweeter outlet and vent to all theſe troubles can you find, than Prayer? This would ſweeten all your Labours and Sorrows in the World.

2. Conſciouſneſs and ſenſe of Inability and want of Gifts, reſtrains this Conviction in others. Should they attempt ſuch duties before others, they ſhall but expoſe their own ignorance and ſhame.

But this is a vain pretence to ſhake off Duty. The neglect of Prayer is a principal Cauſe of that inability you complain of. Gifts as well as Grace grow by Exerciſe. To him that hath ſhall be given, and he ſhall have more abundantly. And beſides, 'tis the fruit of Pride, and argues your eye to be more upon your own Honour than God's. The Lord regards not Oratory in Prayer; your broken Expreſſions, yea, your Groans and Sighs pleaſe him more than all the Eloquence in the World.

3. But the principal thing that reſtrains Men from obeying their Convictions as to Family and Cloſet Prayer is, A diſinclined Heart. That's the root and true cauſe of theſe ſinful Neglects and Omiſſions. You ſavour not the ſweetneſs of theſe things; and what a man reliſhes no ſweetneſs in, or finds no neceſſity of, is eaſily omitted and let paſs.

But wo to you that go from day to day ſelf-condemned for the neglect of ſo known, ſo ſweet, and ſo neceſſary a Duty. If our Hearts condemn us, God is greater than our hearts, 1 Joh. 3. 20. He that lives without Prayer, is dead whilſt he lives; and let men talk what they pleaſe of ſecret Communion with God, I am ſure, if Religion did thrive in the Cloſet, it could never be baniſhed out of the Family. The time is coming alſo when Death will diſband and break up your Families, ſeparate the Wife from the Husband, the Child from the Parent, the Servant from the Maſter; and then where you ſhall find relief and comfort who have ſpent your time together ſo ſinfully and vainly, I cannot tell, nor what account you can give to God in the great day. Think ſadly on theſe things, they are worth thinking on.

Inſtance 2. A ſecond Inſtance of Ungodlineſs continued in under the Convictions of Conſcience, is Formality in all the external duties of Religion, and Ordinances of God. Have not ſome of your Conſciences often and plainly told you, that though you be often ingaged in the publick duties of Hearing, Prayer, &c. yet your hearts are not with God in thoſe duties? They do not work after communion and fellowſhip with him therein. 'Tis nothing but the force of Education, Cuſtom, and care of Reputation brings you there.

Such a conviction as this, could it work home, and do its work throughly, would be the ſalvation of thy Soul. Were power added to the form, as Conſcience would have it, thou wert then a real Chriſtian, and out of the danger of Hell. The want of this thy Conſcience ſees will be thy ruin, and accordingly gives thee plain warning of it. O what pity is it ſuch a conviction as this ſhould be held in Unrighteouſneſs! but ſo it is in very many ſouls, and that on ſeveral accounts.

1. Becauſe Hypocriſie is ſo odious and abominable a ſin, that men are loth to own and acknowledg it, how guilty ſoever they be of it. What, diſſemble with God, and play the Hypocrite with him; 'tis ſo black and foul a Crime, that men cannot eaſily be brought to charge themſelves with it. They may have the infirmities which are common to the beſt of men, but yet they are no hypocrites. Thus Pride of Heart caſts a chain upon this conviction, and binds it that it cannot do its work.

2. 'Tis a cheap and eaſie way to give God the external Service and Worſhip of the Body, but Heartwork is hard work. To ſit or kneel an hour or two is no great matter: but to ſearch, humble, and break the Heart for ſin; to work up the dead and earthly Affections into a ſpiritual heavenly frame, this will coſt many a hard tug. 'Tis no ſevere task to ſit before God as his people, whilſt the fancy and thoughts are left at liberty to wander which way they pleaſe, as the thoughts of formal Hypocrites uſe to do, Ezek. 33. 31. but to ſet a watch upon the heart, to ſummon in the Thoughts to God, to retract every wandering thought with a ſigh; this is difficult, and the difficulty overpowers conviction of duty.

3. The Atheiſm of the heart quenches this conviction in mens Souls. Formality is a ſecret inviſible ſin, not diſcernable by man; the outſide of Religion looks fair to mans eye, and ſo long it's well enough, as if there were not a God that trieth the hearts and the reins. This, when a beam of light and conviction ſhines into the Soul, a cloud of natural Atheiſm overſhadows and darkens it.

But, poor ſelf-cozening Hypocrite, theſe things muſt not paſs ſo; thy Conſcience as well as the Word tell thee that it is not the place of Worſhip, but the ſpirituality of it that God regards, Joh. 4. 23, 24. That they are Hypocrites in Scripture account, who have God in their mouths, but he is far from their reins, Jer. 12. 2. and that Hypocrites will have the hotteſt place in Hell, Matth. 24. 51.

Inſtance 3. A Third inſtance of Convictions of ungodlineſs held in unrighteouſneſs, is in declining or denying to confeſs the known truths of God, which we our ſelves have profeſſed, when the confeſſion of them infers danger.

In times of danger Conſcience ſtruggles hard with men to appear for the Truths of God, and upon no account whatſoever to diſſemble or deny them; and enforceth its Counſels and Warnings upon us with ſuch awful Scriptures as theſe, Luk. 9. 62. No man having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God. And Matth. 10. 33. But whoſoever ſhall deny me before men, him will I alſo deny before my Father which is in Heaven. In this caſe Conſcience uſeth to ſtruggle hard with men, yet is many times overborn by the prevalent Temptations of the Fleſh; as,

1. By Carnal Fears. The fear of Suffering gets the aſcendant of the fear of God. Men chuſe rather to adventure their Souls upon Wrath to come, than the preſent Wrath of incenſed Enemies. They vainly hope to find mercy with God, but expect none from men. Thus the fear of man brings a ſnare, Prov. 29. 25. and ſo the voice of Conſcience is drowned by the louder clamours and threats of Adverſaries.

2. As the fear of man's Threatnings, ſo the diſtruſt of God's Promiſes defeats the deſign of Conſcience. If men believed the promiſes, they would never be afraid of their duties. Faith in a promiſe would make men as bold as Lions. If ſuch a word as that was minded, Iſa. 57. 11. Of whom haſt thou been afraid or feared, that thou haſt lied, and haſt not remembred me? Men would ſay, as Zuinglius in the like caſe, what Death would I not rather chuſe to die? what puniſhment would I not rather undergo? yea, into what vault of Hell would I not rather chuſe to be caſt, than to witneſs againſt my own Conſcience?

3. The immoderate and inordinate Love of the World overpowers Conſcience, and drowns its voice in ſuch an hour of Temptation. So Demas found it, 2 Tim. 4. 10. O what a dangerous conflict is there in an hour of Temptation betwixt an enlightned head, and a worldly heart?

Laſtly, The Examples of others who comply, and embrace the ſinful terms of Liberty to eſcape the danger, embolden men to follow their Examples, and Satan will not be wanting to improve their Examples. Don't you ſee ſuch and ſuch men beating the road before you? Learned Men, and prudent men, who it may be have leſs Heat, but more Wiſdom than you. Why will you be ſingular? Why will you hazard all for that others will hazard nothing?

But certainly ſuch ſins as theſe will coſt you dear, 'tis a dreadful thing to betray the Truths and Honour of God for baſe ſecular ends; and you will find it ſo, when you and your Conſciences ſhall debate it together in a calm hour.

Secondly, There are alſo ſins of Unrighteouſneſs againſt the Second Table, in which many live againſt the plain dictates and warnings of their own Conſciences, tho they know the wrath of God is revealed from Heaven againſt all unrighteouſneſs of men, who hold the Truth in unrighteouſneſs. To give ſome Inſtances of this.

Inſtance 1. And firſt, let me inſtance in that ſin of Defrauding, and going beyond others in our civil Commerce and Dealings with them; over-reaching, cozening, and cheating the ignorant or unwary, who it may be would not be ſo unwary as they are, did they not repoſe truſt and confidence in your deceitful words and promiſes. Conſcience cannot but ſtartle at ſuch ſins, the very Light of Nature diſcovers the evil of it, and the ſober Heathens abhor it; but we that live under the Goſpel cannot but feel ſome terror and trembling in our Conſciences when we read ſuch a ſevere and awful prohibition, back'd with ſuch a dreadful threatning as that is in 1 Theſſ. 4. 6. That no man defraud or go beyond his brother in any matter, becauſe that the Lord is the Avenger of all ſuch. The word is, τὸ μὴ ὑπερβαίνειν, that no man overtop, viz. by power, or by craft and policy. To this ſin a dreadful threatning is annexed, the Lord is the Avenger of all ſuch. The word is ἔκδικος, but once more that I remember uſed in the New Teſtament, Rom. 13. 4. and is there applied to the Civil Magiſtrate, he muſt ſee Execution done upon Malefactors; but here, the Lord himſelf will do it, he will be this mans Avenger. This Rod, or rather this Ax, Conſcience ſhews Men, and gives warning of the danger, and yet its Convictions are overpowered and bound as Priſoners, by

1. The exceſſive Love of Gain; 1 Tim. 6. 9. But they that will be rich fall into Temptation, and a ſnare; and into many fooliſh and hurtful Luſts, which drown men in deſtruction and perdition. When a reſolution is made for the world, men will be rich by right or wrong, this powerfully arms the Temptation. Set Gain before ſuch a Man, and he will break through the Law of God, and Convictions of Conſcience, but he will have it. This drowns them in perdition and deſtruction, that is, it ſurely, throughly, and fully ruins them: as he is a dead man that is only drowned, but to be drowned in deſtruction, yea in deſtruction and perdition too; this muſt needs make his ruin ſure, as ſure as words can make it, and ſo all ſuch perſons ſhall ſurely find it, who perſiſt in ſuch a Courſe.

2. Pinching Neceſſities and Straits overbear Conſcience in others. Neceſſity hath no Ears to attend the voice of the Word and Conſcience. Here Conſcience and Poverty ſtruggle together, and if the Fear of God be not exalted in the Soul, it now falls a prey to Temptation. This danger wiſe Agur foreſaw, and earneſtly intreated the Lord for a competency, to avoid the ſnare of Poverty, Prov. 30. 8, 9. Poor Wretch! how much better were it for thee to endure the pains of a griping Stomach, than thoſe of a griping Conſcience? ſuch gains may be ſweet in thy mouth, but bitter in thy bowels.

3. The Examples of others who daily venture on ſuch ſins without ſcruple, and laugh at ſuch ſqueamiſh Conſciences as keck at ſuch things; this emboldens other to follow them, Pſal. 50. 18. and thus the voice of Conſcience is drowned, and Convictions buried for a time, but it will thunder at laſt, and thy buried Convictions will have a Reſurrection, and it ſhall be out of thy power to ſilence them again.

Inſtance 2. The Truth of God is held in unrighteouſneſs, when mens Luſts will not ſuffer them to reſtore what they have ſinfully and unjuſtly gotten into their hands. This Sin lies boking in the Conſciences of ſome men, makes them very uneaſie, and yet they make a hard ſhift to rub along under theſe regrets of Conſcience. Now thoſe things which make a forcible entry into the Conſcience, take the Truths of God Priſoners, and bind them, that they cannot break forth into the duty of Reſtitution, are,

1. The ſhame which attends and follows the duty to which God and Conſcience calls the Soul. O 'tis a ſhame and reproach, they think, to get the name of a cheat. Loth, loth they are, theſe works of darkneſs ſhould come into the open Light; men will point, and hiſs at them; and ſay, there goes a Thief, a Cheat, an Oppreſſor; this keeps many from Reſtitution.

But doſt thou not here commit a greater Cheat than the former? Which is the greater ſhame thinkſt thou; to commit ſin, or to confeſs and reform it? to tie the ſnare upon thy Soul by Commiſſion, or looſe it off from thy Conſcience by Repentance and Reſtitution? to be the deriſion of wicked men, (for none elſe will deride thee for thy duty) or to be the contempt and deriſion of God, Angels, and all good Men for ever? to attain inward peace at this hazard, or to lie under the continual laſhes and wounds of thy own Conſcience?

2. Poverty and Inability is ſometimes pleaded to quiet the troubled Conſcience; and indeed this is a juſt and very frequent blaſt of God upon ill-gotten goods. The curſe of God is upon them. They melt away. O what a miſerable ſnare have you now intangled your Souls in? Once you could, but would not reſtore, a worldly heart would not part with unjuſt gains; now you would, but cannot. Thus a worldly heart, and an empty purſe holds you firſt and laſt under the guilt of a known ſin. A lamentable caſe!

3. Vain purpoſes do often ſuppreſs and ſilence convictions: my condition may alter, I may be in a capacity hereafter when I can better ſpare it than at preſent. Or I'll do it in my laſt Will when I die, and charge my Executors with it. Thus do men bribe their Conſciences, to get a little quiet, whilſt they continue under known guilt, and cannot tell how ſoon death ſhall ſummon them to the awful Bar of a juſt and terrible God.

Sirs, As you value your peace, and which is more, your Souls; releaſe the Lord's Priſoner which lies bound within you with cords and chains of Satan's making; do it, I ſay, as you hope to ſee the face of God in peace. You know, without Repentance there can be no Salvation; and without Reſtitution, no Repentance: For how can you repent of a ſin you ſtill knowingly continue in? Repentance is the Soul's turning from ſin, as well as its ſorrow for ſin. You cannot therefore repent of ſin, and ſtill continue in it; How ſhall we that are dead to ſin, continue any longer therein? Rom. 6. 2. Truſt Providence for the ſupply of your wants, and the wants of yours, in the ways of Duty and Righteouſneſs. A little that a Righteous man hath is better than the Riches of many wicked. You'l have more comfort in Bread and Water with peace of Conſcience, than in full Tables with God's curſe. You'l lie more at eaſe on a burden of Straw, than on a Bed of Down with a grumbling Conſcience.

Inſtance 3. How many lie under the condemnations of their own Conſciences for the luſts of Uncleanneſs in which they live? And tho they read, and their Conſciences apply to them ſuch Scriptures as that, 1 Cor. 6. 9. Be not deceived, neither Fornicators, nor Idolaters, nor Adulterers, nor Effeminate, nor Abuſers of themſelves with mankind, &c. ſhall inherit the Kingdom of God; a dreadful Sentence! and that, Heb. 13. 4. Whoremongers and Adulterers God will judg: Yet convictions are overborn and ſtifled by,

1. The impetuous Violence of carnal Luſts, which permit not of calm debates, but hurry them on to the ſin, and leave them to conſider the evil and dangerous conſequences afterward. Thus they go, as an Ox to the ſlaughter, or as a Fool to the correction of the ſtocks, Prov. 7. 22. Luſt beſots them. To give counſel now, is but to give Phyſick in a Paroxiſm, or counſel to him that is running a Race. Luſt anſwers Conſcience as Antipater did one that preſented him a Book treating of Happineſs, ȣ̓ σχολάζω, I have no leiſure to read ſuch Diſcourſes.

2. Others would feign ſolve their ſcruples, with the ſinful failings of good men, as David, Solomon, &c. not conſidering what brokenneſs of Heart it coſt David, Pſal. 51. and the other, ſorrow more bitter than death, Eccl. 7. 26. Læta venire Venus, triſtis abire ſolet. This is a preſumptuous way of ſinning, and how dreadful that is, ſee Numb. 15. 30.

Inſtance 4. Truth is often held in unrighteouſneſs by ſinful Silence, in not reproving other mens ſins, and thereby making them our own. We are ſometimes caſt into the company of ungodly Men, where we hear the Name of our God blaſphemed, the Truth, Worſhip or Servants of God reproached; and have not ſo much courage to appear for God, as others have to appear againſt him. In ſuch caſes Conſcience uſeth to inſtigate men to their duty, and charge it home upon them in the authority of ſuch a Scripture, as that Lev. 19. 17. Thou ſhalt not hate thy brother in thy heart, thou ſhalt in any wiſe rebuke thy neighbour, and not ſuffer ſin upon him. O ſaith Conſcience, thy ſilence now will be thy ſin. This poor wretch may periſh for want of a ſeaſonable, plain, and faithful rebuke. Thy ſilence will harden him in his wickedneſs. No ſooner doth ſuch a conviction ſtir in the Conſcience, but many things are ready to lay hold on it; as,

1. A Spirit of Cowardice, which makes us afraid to diſpleaſe men; and chuſes rather the wrath of God ſhould fall on them, than that their wrath ſhould fall on us. We dare not take as much liberty to reprove ſin, as others do to commit it. They glory in their ſhame, and we are aſhamed of what is both our glory, and our duty.

2. Dependance on, or near relation to the Perſon ſinning. 'Tis a Father, an Husband, a Superior, on whoſe favour I depend; and ſhould I diſpleaſe him, I may ruin my ſelf: this is the voice of the Fleſh. Hence duty is neglected, and the Soul of a Friend baſely betrayed; our intereſt preferr'd to God's, and thereby frequently loſt: for there is no way to ſecure our own intereſt in any mans heart, as to ſettle it by our Faithfulneſs in his Conſcience, and by being willing to hazard it for God's intereſt and glory. The Lord bleſſeth Mens Faithfulneſs above all their ſinful Carnal Policies, Prov. 28. 23. He that rebuketh a man, afterwards ſhall find more favour than he that flattereth with his lips.

3. Mens own Guilt ſtops their Mouths, and ſilences them. They are aſhamed and afraid to reprove other mens ſins, leſt they ſhould hear of their own. Fear of Retortion keeps them from the duty of Reprehenſion. Thus we fall into a new ſin for fear of reviving an old one. He that reproveth a ſcorner, getteth to himſelf ſhame; and he that rebuketh a wicked man, getteth himſelf a blot, Prov. 9. 7.

But this is the fruit of our Pride and Ignorance. What we fear might turn to our benefit. The Reproof given is a Duty diſcharged; and the Retortion in return, a freſh call to Repentance for ſin paſt, and a caution againſt ſin to come.

Inſtance 5. Another Inſtance of Convictions of unrighteouſneſs impriſoned in mens Souls, is in not diſtributing to the neceſſities of others, eſpecially ſuch as fear God, when it is in the power of our hands to do it, and Conſcience as well as Scripture calls us to our Duty.

Men cannot be ignorant of that Text, Matth. 25. 40, 41. where by a Synecdoche, Charity to the Saints is by Chriſt put for the whole of Obedience; and mens Eternal States are caſt according to their obſervance of this command; tho I fear few, very few ſtudy and believe it as they ought. Thou canſt, ſaith Conſcience, if thou wilt relieve ſuch or ſuch a poor Chriſtian, and therein expreſs thy love to Chriſt, yea refreſh the bowels of Chriſt; do it, God will repay it: if thou refuſeſt, how dwelleth the love of God in thee? 1 Joh. 3. 17. This is the Voice of God and Conſcience, but divers Luſts are ready to lay hold on and bind this Conviction alſo, aſſoon as it ſtirs, viz.

1. The exceſſive love of Earthly things. The World is got ſo deep in mens Hearts, that they will rather part with their peace, yea and with their Souls too, than part with it. Hence come thoſe churliſh anſwers like that of Nabal, 1 Sam. 25. 11. Shall I take my bread, and my water, and my fleſh; and give it to men, whom I know not whence they be?

2. Unbelief, which denies to give Honour and due Credit to Chriſt's Bills of Exchange drawn upon them in Scripture, and preſented to them by the hands of his poor Saints. They refuſe, I ſay, to credit them, tho Conſcience proteſt againſt them for their Non-compliance. Chriſt ſaith, Mark 9. 41. Whoſoever ſhall give you a cup of cold water to drink in my name, becauſe ye belong to Chriſt, verily I ſay unto you, he ſhall not loſe his reward. He ſhall gain that which he cannot loſe, by parting with that which he cannot keep.

3. The want of love to Jeſus Chriſt. Did we love Chriſt in ſincerity, and were that love ſo fervent as it ought be, it would make thee more ready to lay down thy neck for Chriſt, than thou now art to lay out a ſhilling for him. 1 Joh. 3. 16. 'Tis our Duty in ſome caſes to ſpend our blood for the Saints. So it was in the primitive times; Behold (ſaid the Chriſtians Enemies) how they love one another, and are willing to die one for another. But that Spirit is almoſt extinguiſhed in theſe degenerate days.

Inſtance 6. How many ſtand convinced by their own Conſciences what a ſin it is to ſpend their precious time ſo idly and vainly as they do? When a day is loſt in vanity, duties neglected, no good done or received; at night Conſcience reckons with them for it, and asks them what account they can give of that day to God, how they are able to ſatisfie themſelves to lie down and ſleep under ſo much guilt? and yet when the morrow comes, the vanity of their hearts carries them on in the ſame Courſe again the next day; and whilſt they keep themſelves in vain Company, they are quiet, till Conſcience finds them at leiſure to debate it again with them. Now the things which maſter Convictions are,

1. In ſome men, their ignorance and inſenſibility of the Preciouſneſs of Time. They know 'tis their ſin, to ſpend their time ſo vainly, but little conſider that Eternity it ſelf hangs upon this little Moment of Time; and that the great work of their Salvation will require all the time they have; and if it be not finiſhed in this ſmall allotment of time, it can never be finiſhed, Joh. 9. 4.

2. The Examples of other vain perſons, that are as prodigal of their precious time as themſelves, and entice them to ſpend it as they do.

3. The charming power of ſenſual Luſts and Pleaſures. O how pleaſantly doth time ſlide away in Plays, Alehouſes, in relating or hearing, taking Stories, News, &c.

4. Inconſiderateneſs of the ſharp and terrible rebukes of Conſcience for this on a Death-bed, or the terrors of the Lord in the day of Judgment.

In all theſe Inſtances you ſee how common this dreadful evil of holding the Truth in unrighteouſneſs is; yet theſe are but a few ſelected from among many.

Fifthly, In the next place I am obliged to ſhew, how and why the impriſoning of Convictions, or holding the Truths of God in unrighteouſneſs, ſo dreadfully incenſeth his Wrath. And this it doth on ſeveral accounts:

1. Knowledg and Conviction of ſin is an excellent means, or choice help to preſerve Men from falling into ſin: There be Thouſands of ſins committed in the World, which had never been committed, if Men had known them to be ſins before they committed them. Every Sinner durſt not make ſo bold with his Conſcience as you have done. The Apoſtle tells us the reaſon why the Princes of this World crucified the Lord of Glory, was, becauſe they knew him not, 1 Cor. 2. 8.

had they known him they wolud not have dared to do as they did. And ſo it is in multitudes of lower and leſſer ſins than that, Satan mops their Eyes with Ignorance, then uſes their Hands and Tongues in Wickedneſs; he is the Ruler of the darkneſs of the World, Eph. 6. 12. But when Men do know this or that to be ſin, and yet venture on it, here an excellent Antidote againſt ſin is turned into a dreadful Aggravation of ſin, which highly incenſes the Wrath of God.

2. Knowledg and Conviction going before, adds preſumption to the Sin that follows after it; and preſumptuous Sin is the moſt provoking and daring Sin; from this way of ſinning David earneſtly beſeeches God to keep him, Keep back thy ſervant (ſaith he) from preſumptuous ſins. When a man ſees ſin, and yet adventures on it, in ſuch ſinning there is a deſpiſing of the Law of God: A Man may break the Law, whilſt he approves, reverences, and honours it in his heart, Rom. 7. 12 13. but here the Commandment is deſpiſed, as God told David, 2 Sam. 12. 9. 'Tis as if a Man ſhould ſay, I ſee the Command of God armed with threatnings in my way, but yet I will go on for all that.

3. Knowledg and Conviction leave the Conſcience of a Sinner naked, and wholly without excuſe or apology for his ſin: In this caſe there is no plea left to extenuate the offence: John 15. 22. Now they have no cloak for their ſin. If a man ſins ignorantly, his ignorance is ſome excuſe for his ſin, it excuſes it at leaſt à tanto, as Paul tells us, thus and thus I did, but I did it ignorantly: Here is a cloak or covering, an excuſe or extenuation of the ſin; but Knowledg takes away this cloak, and makes the ſin appear naked in all the odious deformity of it, nothing left to hide it.

4. Light or Knowledg of the Law and Will of God, is a very choice and excellent Mercy; 'tis a choice and ſingular favour, for God to make the light of Knowledg to ſhine into a Man's mind or underſtanding; 'tis a Mercy withheld from multitudes, Pſal. 147. 19. and thoſe that enjoy it, are under ſpecial engagements to bleſs God for it, and to improve it diligently and thankfully to his Service and Glory; but for a Man to arm ſuch a Mercy as this againſt God, to fight againſt him with one of his choiceſt Mercies, this muſt be highly provoking to the Lord: 'Tis therefore mention'd as a high aggravation of Solomon's ſin, in 1 Kings 11. 9. that he ſinned againſt the Lord, after the Lord had appeared unto him twice.

5. This way of ſinning argues an extraordinary degree of hardneſs of heart; 'tis a ſign of little tenderneſs, or ſenſe of the evil of ſin. Some Men, when God ſhews them the evil of ſin in the glaſs of the Law, they tremble at the ſight of it: So did Paul, Rom. 7. 13. When the Commandment came, ſin revived, and he died; he ſunk down at the ſight of it. But God ſhews thee the evil of ſin in the glaſs of his Law, and thou makeſt nothing of it: O obdurate heart! When the Rod was turned into a Serpent, Moſes fled from it, was afraid to touch it; but tho God turns the Rod into a Serpent, and diſcovers the venomous Nature of Sin in his Word, thou canſt handle and play with that Serpent, and put it into thy boſom: this ſhews thy heart to be of a ſtrange complexion.

6. To go againſt the convincing warning voice of Conſcience, violates and wounds a Man's Conſcience more than any other way of ſinning doth; and when Conſcience is ſo wounded, who, or what ſhall then comfort thee? 'Tis a true Rule, Maxima violatio Conſcientiæ, eſt maximum peccatum: The more any ſin violates a man's Conſcience, the greater that ſin is: The ſin of Devils is the moſt dreadful ſin, and what makes it ſo, but the horrid violation of their Conſciences, and malicious Rebellion againſt their own Light and clear Knowledg? James 2. 19. They know and ſin, they believe and tremble; φρίσσουσι, they roar under the Tortures of Conſcience like the Rote of the Sea, or noiſe of the Rocks before a Storm.

O then, if there be any degree of ſenſe and tenderneſs left in you, if any fear of God, or regard to Salvation; let go all God's Priſoners which lie bound and are impriſoned in any of your Souls this day. Bleſſed be God ſome have done ſo, and are at eaſe and reſt in their Spirits by ſo doing: They could have no eaſe till they unbound them, and yielded obedience to them. 'Tis ſaid, Acts 16. 38. that when the Magiſtrates of Philippi underſtood, that thoſe Men whom they had bound and impriſoned, were Romans, they feared, and well they might; for the puniſhment was great for any Man that injured a Citizen, or Freeman of Rome: but every Conviction you impriſon is a Meſſenger of Heaven, a Commiſſion Officer of God, and wo to him that binds or abuſeth it. Do you know what you do? Are you aware of the danger? Waſt thou not afraid (ſaid David to the Amalekite) to ſtretch forth thine hand to deſtroy the Lord's Anointed? So ſay I, Art thou not afraid to deſtroy the immediate Meſſenger of God ſent to thy Soul for good? Conviction is a kind of Embrio of Converſion; the Converſion and Salvation of thy Soul would be the Fruit of it, were it obeyed: Thy ſtriving with it cauſes it to miſcarry, renders it abortive, and thy Life muſt go for it, except God revive and recover it again; as you know the Law is for ſtriking a pregnant Woman, Exod. 21. 22, 23. Looſe then every Man the Lord's Priſoners, I mean your reſtrained ſtifled Convictions, ſtifle them no longer; you ſee what a dreadful aggravation of Sin it is, and that the Wrath of God is revealed from Heaven againſt all Ungodlineſs and Unrighteouſneſs of Men, that hold the Truth in unrighteouſneſs.

I. USE, for Information.

Infer. 1. This will prove a fruitful Doctrine to inform us, Firſt, That Knowledg in it ſelf is not enough to ſecure the Soul of any Man from Hell.

No Gifts, no Knowledg, but that only which is operative and influential upon the Heart and Life, and to which we pay obedience, can ſecure any Man from Wrath: John 13. 17. If ye know theſe things, happy are ye if ye do them. The greateſt ſins may be found in conjunction with the greateſt knowledg, as you ſee in the fallen Angels: Light is then only a Bleſſing, when it guides the Soul into the way of Duty and Obedience: there's many a knowing Head in Hell. Yet from hence let no Man indulge himſelf in Ignorance, or ſhun the means of knowledg, that he may ſin more freely, and leſs dangerouſly; for you muſt account with God for all that knowledg you might have had, as well as for that you had; for the means of knowledg he gave you, as well as for that knowledg you did actually attain by them.

Infer. 2. What ſingular and choice Mercy is a tender Conſcience! A Conſcience yielding Obedience to Conviction! A drop of ſuch tenderneſs in the Conſcience is better than a Sea of ſpeculative Knowledg in the head, 1 Cor. 12. 31. Many poor Chriſtians are aſhamed to ſee themſelves ſo out-ſtripped and excelled by others in Gifts, and apt to be diſcouraged; but if God has bleſſed thee with a tender obediential Heart to the Will of God, ſo far as he is pleaſed to manifeſt it to thee, thou haſt no reaſon to be diſcouraged for want of thoſe excellent Gifts and Parts others do enjoy. You cannot diſcourſe floridly, nor diſpute ſubtilly; but can you obey conſcientiouſly, and comply with the manifeſted Will of God tenderly? Then happy art thou. O! 'tis far better to feel a Truth, than merely to know it. It was the high Commendation of the Romans, that they obeyed from the Heart that form of Goſpel-doctrin which was delivered them, Rom. 6. 17. or into which rather, they were delivered, as melted Metals are into the Moulds. Two Learned Divines travelling to the Council of Conſtance, were affected even to Tears at the ſight of a Shepherd in the Fields, mourning and melting at the ſight of a Toad, and bleſſing God that he had not made him ſuch a loathſom Creature; whereupon they applyed Auſtin's words to themſelves, Surgunt indocti, &c. The Unlearned will riſe and take Heaven from the Learned. Thy little knowledg made effectual by Obedience, is more ſanctified, more ſweet, and more ſaving than other Mens; and therefore of much greater value: 'Tis more ſanctified, for the Bleſſing of God is upon it, Gal. 6. 16. 'Tis more ſweet, for you reliſh the Goodneſs, as well as diſcern the Truth of Goſpel-Doctrins, Pſal. 119. 103. 'Tis not an inſipid dry ſpeculation. And then 'tis more ſaving, being one of thoſe better things that accompanieth Salvation, as it is, Heb. 6. 9.

Infer. 3. Learn hence in the third place, What an uncomfortable Life knowing, but unregenerate Men and Women do live: They are frequently in Wars and Combats with their own Conſciences. Iſa. 46. 22. There is no peace to the wicked, ſaith my God. They and their Conſciences are ever and anon at Daggers drawing: They have little pleaſure in Sin, and none at all in Religion: They have none in Religion, becauſe they obey not its Rules; and little in Sin, becauſe their Conſciences are ſtill gauling and terrifying them for impriſoning their Convictions.

'Tis true, ſome Mens Conſciences are ſeared as with a hot Iron, 1 Tim. 4. 2. but moſt have grumbling, and ſome have raging and roaring Conſciences; they ſeldom come under the Word, or Rod, but their Conſciences laſh them: And when Death approaches, the Terrors of the Almighty do ſhake and terrifie them. Altogether to neglect Duty they dare not, and how to eſcape a laſh from their Conſciences they know not. Feign they would have the pleaſures of ſin, but then like Balaam they meet a Sword in the way; they plunge themſelves into Earthly diverſions like Cain, to be rid of a Fury within them, but all will not do. Is this a Life for thee, Reader, to live? No peace with God, nor any with thy ſelf? No, no, expect no peace whilſt thy Convictions lie bound and impriſon'd in thy Conſcience. Sin for a moment is ſweet in thy mouth, but it's preſently turned into the Gall of Aſps within thee, Job 20. 14. O that you did but know the pleaſures of a pure peaceable Conſcience, and how much it excels all the delights of ſenſe and ſin!

Infer. 4. Miniſters had need often to repeat and inculcate the ſame Truths to their hearers: For the work is not half done, when Truth is got into the Minds and Conſciences of Men.

Our work ſticks at the Heart, more than the Head: The Underſtanding is many times open'd, when the Heart and Will are lockt, and faſt bar'd againſt it. To open the paſſages betwixt the Head and Heart is the greateſt difficulty; this is the work of Almighty Power. There is knowledg enough in ſome Mens heads to ſave them, but it hath not its Liberty: Reſtrained Truth cannot do its Office. 'Tis much eaſier to convince the Mind, than to change the Heart, or bow the Will. The hardeſt part of the Miniſterial work is to preach Truths into the Hearts and Lives of Men. This makes the frequent inculcations of the ſame Truths neceſſary and ſafe to the peoples Souls; Phil. 3. 1. To write the ſame things unto you, to me indeed is not grievous, but for you it is ſafe.

Infer. 5. How aſtoniſhing and wonderful is the Power and Strength of Sin, which can hold Men faſt, after their Eyes are open'd to ſee the Miſery and Danger it hath involved them in.

One would think if a Man's eyes were but once opened to ſee the Moral Evil that is in Sin, and the Everlaſting train of Penal Evils that follow Sin, together with a way of eſcape from both; it ſhould be impoſſible to hold that ſinner a day longer in ſuch a ſtate of Bondage; the work were then as good as done: but alas, we are miſtaken; ſin can hold thoſe Men and Women faſt, that ſee all this. They know it is a horrid violation of God's juſt and holy Laws, they know it brings them under his Wrath and Curſe, and will damn them to all Eternity if they continue in it: They know Chriſt is able to ſave them to the uttermoſt that come unto God by him, and that he is as willing as he is able; and yet no Arguments can prevail with them to part with ſin. Shew but a beaſt a flame of fire, and you cannot drive him into it, if he ſee any way to eſcape it. Tell a man this is rank poiſon, and will kill him, and you cannot make him ſwallow it, tho wrapt up in Sugar, or put into the moſt pleaſant Vehicle. But let a ſinner ſee death and deſtruction before him, and ſin can make him ruſh on as a horſe into the battel, Jer. 8. 6. He goes as an Ox to the ſlaughter. His heart is fully ſet in him to do evil, Eccl. 8. 11. As one ſaid, when his Phyſician told him, If he followed ſuch a courſe of ſin, he would in a little time loſe his Eyes; Then, ſaid he, Vale lumen amicum, Farewel ſweet Light, I cannot part with this practice. So 'tis with others, rather than forgo their pleaſures, and break their Cuſtoms in ſin, farewel Heaven, Chriſt, and all. O the inchanting efficacy of Sin! Jer. 18. 11, 12. And they ſaid, There is no hope, but we will walk after our own devices. When a man conſiders what Viſions of Miſery and Wrath Conviction gives Men, he may wonder that all convinced men are not converted: and on the other ſide, when he conſiders the ſtrong hold ſin hath gotten upon the hearts of ſinners, it may juſtly ſeem as great a wonder that any are converted.

Infer. 6. How dreadful is the State and Caſe of Apoſtates, who have had their eyes opened, their Con- ſciences awakened, their Reſolutions for Chriſt ſeemingly fixed, and yet after all this, return again to their former courſe of Sin!

You ſee, Brethren, Sin hath not only power to hold men in bondage to its Luſts after their eyes have been open'd; but it hath power to recover and fetch back thoſe that ſeemed to have clean eſcaped out of its hands, 2 Pet. 2. 18, 19. The unclean Spirit may depart for a time, and make his re-entry into the ſame Soul with ſeven Spirits worſe than himſelf, Mat. 12. 43. Reſtraints by conviction and formality do not wholly diſpoſſeſs Satan, he ſtill keeps his propriety in the Soul, for he calls it my houſe; and that propriety he keeps under all thoſe Convictions and partial Reformations, opens to him and all his Helliſh retinue a door for his return. But how doleful will the end of ſuch Men be! and how juſt is that Martial Law of Heaven, that dooms the Apoſtate to Eternal Wrath! Heb. 10. 38. Such are 'twice dead, and will be pluckt up by the Root, Jude 12.

Infer. 7. To conclude this Uſe, How ſure and dreadful will be the Condemnation of all thoſe in the day of the Lord, who obſtinately perſiſt and continue in ſin, under the Convictions and Condemnations of their own Conſciences!

Poor wretches, you are condemned already, Joh. 3. 18. condemned by the Law of God, and by the ſentence of your own Conſciences. What thy own Conſcience ſaith according to God's Law, God will confirm, and make it good; 1 Joh. 3. 20. If our hearts condemn us, God is greater than our hearts, and knoweth all things. His ſentence will be as clear, as it will be terrible; for in the laſt Day the Books will be opened, the book of God's Omniſcience, and the book of thine own Conſcience. Now the book of Conſcience is as it were a Tranſcript or Counterpart of God's book, for thee to keep in thine own boſom. Now when God's book and thy own book ſhall be compared, and found exactly to agree, there can be no farther diſpute of the Equity of the account. O when God ſhall charge thee, ſaying, Thou kneweſt this and that to be ſin, and yet thy luſts hurried thee on to commit it; Is it not ſo? Look, ſinner, into thine own book, and ſee if thy Conſcience have not ſo charged it to thy Account. Thou kneweſt Prayer was thy duty, when thou neglectedſt it; and over-reaching the Ignorant, Credulous and Unwary, was thy ſin, when the love of gain tempted thee to it. You knew I had plainly told you, Theft, Uncleanneſs, Drunkenneſs, and Extortion, would bar you out of the Kingdom of Chriſt and of God, 1 Cor. 6. 9, 10. and yet putting that to the venture, you have lived in thoſe ſins; Is it not ſo? Examine the book in your own boſom, and ſee. The Lord make men ſenſible of Wrath, coming for thoſe ſins they live in under light, for the Wrath of God is revealed from Heaven againſt them.

II. USE.

Is the Wrath of God revealed from Heaven againſt all that hold the Truth in Unrighteouſneſs? Then let me exhort and perſwade you, by by all the regard and love you have for your Souls, by all the fears you have of the incenſed Wrath of the great and terrible God; that you forthwith ſet your Convictions at liberty, and looſe all the Lord's Priſoners that lie bound within you: becauſe there is Wrath, beware; Job 36. 18. O ſtifle the Voices of your own Conſciences no more, ſlight not the ſofteſt whiſper, or leaſt intimation of Conſcience; reverence and obey its Voice. Motives preſſing and perſwading this are many, yet eſtimate them by weight rather than by number.

Motive 1. The Wrath of God is revealed from Heaven againſt them that hold the Truth in unrighteouſneſs; and becauſe there is Wrath, beware. Are you truly informed what the Wrath of God is? Who knoweth the power of thine anger? according to thy fear, ſo is thy wrath, Pſal. 90. v. 11. O if the Wrath of a King (who in all his Glory is but a mortal Worm) be as the roaring of a Lion, and as the Meſſengers of Death; Prov. 20. 2. Prov. 16. 14. What then is the power of his Wrath, at whoſe frowns the Kings of the Earth tremble, the Captains and the Mighty Men ſhrink like Worms into their holes! If the leſſer Executions of it by Providence in this World be ſo dreadful, that men, yea good men, have deſired an hiding place in the Grave, till it be paſt, Job 14. 13. then what is the full execution thereof upon the ungodly in the place of Torments! If the threats and denunciations of it againſt others, have made an Habakkuk, tho aſſured of perſonal ſafety, to quiver with his Lips, and tremble in his Bowels; as you ſee it did, Hab. 3. 16. How much more ſhould thoſe tremble and quiver who are to be the Subjects of it, and not the mere Heralds of it as he was! And (which is more than all) if Jeſus Chriſt who was to feel it but a few Hours, and had the power of the Godhead to ſupport him under it, did notwithſtanding ſweat as it had been great drops of blood, and was ſore amazed; think with thy ſelf poor wretch, how ſhall thy heart endure, or thy hands be ſtrong when thou haſt to do with an incenſed Deity?

Motive 2. Till you let your Convictions go, Satan will not let you go. He binds you, whilſt you bind them. Here is the Command of God and the Command of Satan in competition. Let go my Truths, ſaith God, which thou holdeſt in unrighteouſneſs; bind and ſuppreſs them, ſaith Satan, or they'll deprive thee of the liberty and pleaſure of thy Life. Now, whilſt thou ſlighteſt the voice of God and Conſcience (for the voice of Conſcience is the voice of God) doſt thou not avowedly declare thy ſelf the bond-ſlave of Satan? His Servants ye are, to whom you obey, Rom. 6. 16. Dare not to make one ſtep further in the way of known ſin, ſaith Conſcience; continue not at thy Peril in ſuch a dangerous ſtate, after I have ſo clearly convinced and warned thee of it: fear not, ſaith Satan, if it be bad with thee, 'twill be as bad with Millions. God will wound the heads of ſuch as go on in their Treſpaſſes, ſaith the Scripture, Pſal. 68. 21. Tuſh, others do ſo, and eſcape as well as the moſt nice and tender, ſaith Satan. Now, I ſay, the Obedience to Satan's commands plainly declares thee all this while to be a poor enſlaved Captive to him, acted and carried according to the Prince of the power of the air, the Spirit that now worketh in the Children of diſobedience.

Motive 3. Nay further, until you obey your Convictions, you are Confederates with the Devil in a deſperate Plot againſt your own Souls. You join with Chriſt's great and avowed Enemy to diſhonour him, and damn your ſelves.

Two things make you Confederates with the Devil,

Devil againſt your own Souls. (1.) Your Conſent to this his Project, for your Damnation; for ſo your own Conſciences out of the Scriptures inform you it is. Conſent makes you a Party. (2.) Your Concealment of this Plot brings you in as a Party with him. Confeſs thy ſin and bewail it, ſaith Conſcience; not ſo, ſaith Pride and Shame, how ſhall I look men in the face if I do ſo? Don't you in all this believe Satan, and make God a liar? Don't you act as men that hate your own Souls, and love death? Prov. 8. 36. O 'tis a dreadful thing for men to be acceſſary to their own Eternal Ruin, and that after fair warning and notice given them by their own Conſciences. Satan (be his power what it will) cannot deſtroy you without your own Conſent.

Motive 4. Whilſt you go on ſtifling your own Convictions, and turning away your ears from its calls to Repentance and Reformation, you cannot be pardoned. You are in your ſins, and the guilt of them all lies at your door. You may ſee what the Terms of Remiſſion are, Iſa. 55. 7. Let the wicked forſake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him turn unto the Lord, and he will have mercy on him; and to our God, and he will abundantly pardon. So again, Prov. 28. 13. He that hardneth his neck ſhall not proſper, but he that confeſſeth and forſaketh ſhall find mercy. You ſee by theſe, and may ſee by many more plain Scripture-Teſtimonies, there can be no hope of Remiſſion whilſt you go on in this path of Rebellion; concealing, yea and perſiſting in your known wickedneſs. There is a neceſſary and inſeparable Connection betwixt Repentance and Remiſſion, Acts 5. 31. and Luke 24. 47. And can you endure guilt to be your Bedfellow during Life, and your Gravefellow after Death?

Motive 5. You can never have peace with your own Conſciences, whilſt you keep Convictions Priſoners. Now a man's Conſcience is his beſt Friend, or his worſt Enemy. Thence are the ſweeteſt Comforts, and thence are the bittereſt Sorrows. 'Tis a dreadful thing for a man to lie with a cold ſweating Horror upon his panting Boſom. Tum pallida mens eſt Criminibus, tacita ſudant præcordia culpâ. And this (or which is worſe) Obduration and Stupidity muſt be the caſe of them that hold the Truth in Unrighteouſneſs. There can be no ſounding a retreat to theſe Terrors, till Sheba's Head be thrown over the Walls; I mean, till that Sin your Conſcience convinceth you of, be delivered up. As Iſrael could have no peace, till Achan was deſtroy'd; ſo thou ſhalt have no peace, whilſt thy ſin is covered, and hid. Men may cry peace, peace, to themſelves, whilſt they continue in ſin, Deut. 29. 18, 19. but the ſharpeſt troubles of Conſcience are better than ſuch peace. Deliver up thy ſelf Man, if thou love peace, into the hands of thy own Convictions, and thou art in the true way to peace. Thy rejoicing muſt be in the Teſtimony of thine own Conſcience, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 2 Cor. 1. 12. or thou rejoiceſt in a dream, in a deluſion, in a thing of nought.

Motive 6. What dreadful Charges are you like to meet with upon your death-beds, on the account of thoſe ſins you have lived in, againſt Knowledg and Conviction! Conſcience is never more active and vigorous than in the laſt hours and moments of Life. Now, it will be ſtifled, and over-ruled no longer. It whiſpered before, but now it thunders. If a Man have a clear and quiet Conſcience, his Evening is clear, and his Sun ſets without Clouds. See Pſal. 37. 37. The end of that man is peace. In contemplation of this Felicity it was that Balaam uttered that wiſh, Let my laſt End be like his. This peace is the reſult of a Man's integrity and obedience to the voice of Conſcience, this being the Evidence we can moſt ſafely rely upon of our Uprightneſs, and Intereſt in Chriſt; but the reſult of ſuch violences and abuſes to thy Conſcience, cannot be peace to thy Soul. 'Tis true, ſome wicked Men die in ſeeming peace, and ſome good Men in trouble, but both the one and other are miſtaken; the firſt, as to the good Eſtate he fancies himſelf in, and the other as as to his bad Eſtate; and a few Moments will clear up the miſtakes of both.

Motive 7. Obedience to Convictions will not only produce peace at Death, but it will give you preſent eaſe, preſent relief and refreſhment in hand. No ſooner did David reſolve to obey the voice of his Conſcience, in confeſſing his ſin, but he had ſenſible eaſe in his own Spirit, Pſal. 32. 5. So Iſa. 32. 17. the fruit of Righteouſneſs is peace, quietneſs, and aſſurance for ever. On the contrary, you find in Job 20. 20. wicked Men have no quietneſs [redacted], that is, in their Conſciences; for Guilt lies boking there as a Thorn doth in the Fleſh. And what is Life worth without eaſe? To live ever in pain, to live upon the Rack, is not worth while to live. If then you love eaſe and quietneſs, obey your Conſciences: Pull out that Thorn, I mean that Sin that ſticks faſt in thy Soul, and akes in thy Conſcience. Who would endure ſo much anguiſh for all the flattering pleaſures of ſin?

Motive 8. Convictions followed home and obeyed, are the inlets to Chriſt and Eternal Salvation by him; they are the firſt leading work of the Spirit, in order to union with Chriſt, John 16. 8. Till you obey and yield up your ſelves to them, Chriſt is ſhut out of your Souls; he knocks, but finds no entrance. At your peril therefore be obedient to their calls: All the while you parly with your Convictions, and demur to their demands, Chriſt ſtands without, offering himſelf graciouſly to you, but not admitted; ſo that no leſs than your Eternal Happineſs or Miſery depend on your obedience, or diſobedience to the Voices and Calls of your Convictions.

Motive 9. Obey your Convictions, honor their Voices, and reſtrain them not; then ſhall your Conſciences give a fair teſtimony for you at the Judgment-ſeat of Chriſt. You read, 1 Pet. 3. 21. of the anſwer of a good Conſcience toward God; than which nothing can be more comfortable: This gives a Man boldneſs in the day of Judgment, 1 John 4. 17. Believe it, ſirs, 'tis not your Baptiſm, your Church-privileges, the Opinion Men have of you; but the teſtimony of your Conſciences that muſt be your comfort. I know Men are not juſtified at God's Bar by their own Obedience, nor any exactneſs of Life, 'tis only Chriſt's Righteouſneſs that is the Sinners plea; but yet your Obedience to the Calls and Voices of God and Conſcience, are your evidence that you are in Chriſt.

Motive 10. Laſtly, conſider what a choice Mercy it is to be under ſuch Calls and Convictions of Conſcience as are yet capable of being obeyed: 'Tis not ſo with Mens convictions after this Life. Conſcience convinceth in Hell as well as here, but all its Convictions there are for torment, not recovery. O 'tis a choice Mercy your Convictions are yet Medicinal, not purely Penal; that you are not malo obſirmati, ſo fixed in the ſtate of Sin and Miſery as the damned are, but may yet enjoy the ſaving benefit of your Convictions; but this you will not enjoy long, therefore I beſeech you by all that is dear and valuable in your Eyes, reverence your Conſciences, and let go the Lords Priſoners that lie bound within you.

III. USE.

I next come to expoſtulate the matter with your Conſciences, and propound a few Convictive Queries to your Souls this day.: I cannot but look upon this Aſſembly with Fear, Jealouſie and Compaſſion. I am afraid there be many of you in this wretched caſe, Men and Women that hold the Truths of God in Unrighteouſneſs, tho the Wrath of God be revealed from Heaven againſt all them that do ſo. Let me demand,

Demand 1. Do not ſome of you ſtand convinced by your own Conſciences this day, that your Hearts and Lives, your Principles and Practices, are vaſtly different from the People of God among whom you live, and whoſe Characters you read in Scripture? Do not your own Conſciences tell you, that you never took that pains for your Salvation you ſee them daily to take; that there be ſome it may be in your Families, nay poſſibly in your Boſoms, that are ſerious and heavenly, whilſt you are vain and earthly; that are in their Chambers upon their knees, wreſtling with God, whilſt you are in your Beds, or about the things of the World? And doth not Conſcience ſometimes whiſper thus into thine Ear, Soul thou art not right; ſomething is wanting to make thee a Chriſtian: thou wanteſt that which others have; and except ſomething further be done upon thee, thou wilt be undone for ever? If it be ſo, let me adviſe thee to hearken diligently to this voice of Conſcience: Don't dare to adventure to the Judgment-ſeat of God in ſuch a caſe: Ponder that Text, Matth. 21. 32. and let the diſparity your Conſcience ſhews you betwixt your own courſe and others, awaken you to more diligence and ſeriouſneſs about your own Salvation: How canſt thou come from the Alehouſe, or thy vain Recreations, and find a Wife, or Child in Prayer, and thy Conſcience not ſmite thee? It may be they have been mourning for thy Sins, whilſt thou haſt been committing them. It may be there lives not far from thee a Godly poor Man, who out of his hard and preſſing labours redeems more time for his Soul in a week, than ever thou didſt in thy life. O hearken to the voice of thy Conſcience! Elſe thou art he that holdeſt Truth in Unrighteouſneſs.

Demand 2. Did thy Conſcience never meet thee in the way of Sin, as the Angel of the Lord met Balaam, with a drawn Sword brandiſhing the threatnings of God againſt thee? Did it not ſay to thee as a Captain once ſaid to his Soldiers about to retreat, he caſt himſelf down in their way, ſaying, If you go this way, you ſhall go over your Captain, you ſhall trample him firſt under your feet. Stop Soul, ſtop, ſaid thy Conſcience; this and that Word of God is againſt thee: If thou proceed, thou muſt trample upon the Soveraign Authority of God in this or that Command; yet thy impetuous Luſts have hurried thee forward: Thou wouldſt not fairly debate the caſe with thy Conſcience; and then did not thy Conſcience ſay to thee, as Reuben ſpake to his Brethren, Gen. 42. 22. Spake I not unto you ſaying, do not ſin againſt the child, but you would not hear; therefore alſo his blood is required of you? If this have been your courſe of ſinning, verily you are the perſons that have held the Truths of God in Unrighteouſneſs, and againſt you the Wrath of God is revealed from Heaven.

Demand 3. Have you not ſeen the Wrath of God revealed from Heaven againſt other Sinners that have gone before you in the very ſame track and courſe of ſin in which you now go, and yet you perſiſt in it, notwithſtanding ſuch dreadful Warnings? Thus did Belteſhazzer, tho he ſaw all that the God of Heaven had done to his Father, Dan. 5. 20, 21, 22. You have ſeen great Eſtates ſcattered, and their Owners that got them by fraud and oppreſſion reduced to beggary; and yet when a temptation is before you, you cannot forbear to take the advantage (as you call it) to get the gain of oppreſſion. You have ſeen Drunkards clothed with rags, and brought to miſerable ends: Adulterers ſeverely puniſhed, their Names and Eſtates, Souls and Bodies blaſted and waſted by a ſecret, but juſt ſtroke of God. Have you taken warning by theſe ſtrokes of God, and hearkned to the monitions and cautions your Conſciences have thereupon given you? If not, thou art the Man that holdeſt the Truth of God in unrighteouſneſs.

Demand 4. Do not you inwardly hate, and do not your hearts riſe againſt neceſſary and due reproofs given you by thoſe that love your Souls better than your ſelves? If you hate a faithful Reprover, tho you know you juſtly deſerve the reproof, and are guilty of the ſin he reproves; if you recriminate, or deny in ſuch caſes, you are certainly ſo far Confederates with Satan againſt your own Souls, and impriſon your own Convictions.

Demand 5. Are not ſome of you apoſtatized from the firſt Profeſſion, and are not thoſe hopeful bloſſoms that once appeared upon your Souls blaſted and gone? You had quick Convictions, and melting Affections, tenderneſs in your Conſciences, and zeal for Duties: But all is now vaniſhed; your Affections are grown cold, your Duties omitted, tho Conſcience often bids you remember from whence you are fallen, and do your firſt Works. You are the perſons guilty of this ſin.

Demand 6. Do none of you preſume upon future Repentance, and ſo make bold with your Conſciences for preſent, thinking to compound that way with it? This argues thee to be a ſelf-condemned Man, and one that holdeſt Truth in unrighteouſneſs: Thy Sin is preſent and certain, thy Repentance but a peradventure, 2 Tim. 2. 25. This is a high and a daring way of preſumptuous ſinning.

Demand 7. Laſtly, Have none of you taken the Vows of God upon you, to reform your courſe, and break off your iniquities by Repentance, when you have been under dangerous ſickneſs on ſhore, or dreadful tempeſts at Sea? Have you not ſaid, Lord, if thou wilt but ſpare and ſave me this once, I will never live at the rate I have lived any more: Try me O Lord this once: And yet when that Affliction hath vaniſhed, your purpoſes and promiſes to God have vaniſhed with it: You are the Perſons that hold the known Truths of God priſoners in your Souls; and to all theſe ſeven ſorts of Sinners, this Text may juſtly be as the hand-writing upon the Wall once was, even a Mene tekel, that may make thy very loins to ſhake.

IV. USE.

This Doctrine winds up and finiſhes in Directions for the prevention of ſuch preſumptuous ſins in Men for time to come; that Truth may have its free courſe through your Souls.

Direct. 1. And to this end, my firſt Counſel and Direction is, that you fail not to put every Conviction in ſpeedy execution. Don't delay, 'tis a very critical hour, and delays are exceeding hazardous: Convictions are fixed and ſecured in Mens Souls four ways. 1. By deep and ſerious conſideration, Pſal. 119. 59. I thought upon my ways, and turned my feet to thy teſtimonies. 2. By earneſt Prayer; thus Saul under his firſt Convictions fell preſently on his knees, Acts 9. 11. Behold he prayeth: The warm breath of Prayer foments and nouriſhes the ſparks of Conviction, that it be not extinct. 3. By diligent attendance on the Word; the Word begets it, and the Word can through God's bleſſing preſerve it, Jam. 1. 23, 24. 4. Preſent Execution, falling without delay on the Duty thou art convinced of, Jam. 1. 24. Be not forgetful hearers, but doers of the word; otherwiſe a Man is as one that looks into a glaſs, and ſtraightway forgets what manner of man he was. Take the ſenſe thus, a man looks into the Glaſs in the Morning, and there perhaps he ſees a ſpot on his Face, a diſorder in his Hair, or Clothes; and thinks with himſelf, well I will rectifie it anon; but being gone from the place, one thing or other diverts his mind, he forgets what he ſaw, and goes all the day with the ſpot on his Face, never minding it any more. O Brethren, delays are dangerous, ſin is deceitful, Heb. 3. 13. Satan is ſubtil, 2 Cor. 11. 3. and this way gains his Point. This Motto may be written on the Tombſtones of moſt that periſh, Here lies one that was deſtroyed by delays. Your Life is immediately uncertain, ſo are the ſtrivings of the Spirit alſo. Beſides, there is a mighty advantage in the primus impetus, the firſt heat of the Soul: when thy heart is once up in warm Affections and Reſolutions, the work may be eaſily done; as a Bell if once up goes eaſily, but is hard to raiſe when down. See 2 Chron. 29. 36. What advantage there is in a preſent warm frame! Beſide, the nature of theſe things is too ſerious and weighty to be poſt-pon'd and delay'd. You cannot get out of the danger of Hell, or into Chriſt too ſoon. Moreover, every repetition of ſin after Conviction greatly aggravates it. For it is in ſinning, as it is in numbering, if the firſt be one, the ſecond is ten, the third a hundred, the fourth a thouſand. And to conclude, think what you will, you can never have a fitter ſeaſon than the preſent; the ſame difficulties you have to day you will have to morrow, and it may be greater. Fall preſently therefore to execute your Convictions.

Direct. 2. If you would be clear from this great Sin of holding the Truth in Unrighteouſneſs, then ſee that you reverence the Voice, and ſtand in awe of the Authority of your own Conſciences; and reſolve with Job, My heart ſhall not reproach me as long as I live, Job 27. 6. There be two conſiderations apt to beget reverence in men to the Voice of their own Conſciences.

1. 'Tis our beſt Friend when pure and inviolated.
2. 'Tis our worſt Enemy when wounded and affronted.

1. Conſcience obey'd and kept pure and inviolate is thy beſt Friend on Earth, 2 Cor. 1. 12. This is our rejoicing, the teſtimony of our Conſciences. The very Heathens could ſay,

> Nil conſcire tibi, nulla palleſcere culpa,
> His murus aheneus eſto.

What comforted Hezekiah on his ſuppoſed Death-bed, but the fair Teſtimonial his Conſcience gave in of his Integrity? 2 Kings 2. 3. A good man (ſaith Solomon) ſhall be ſatisfied from himſelf; but the backſlider in heart ſhall be filled with his own ways. Mark the oppoſition, Conſcience gives the Backſlider his Belly-full of ſorrow, and the upright man his Heart-full of peace. He is ſatisfied from himſelf, that is from his own Conſcience, which tho it be not the Original Spring, yet it is the Conduit at which he drinks peace, and joy, and encouragement.

2. Conſcience wounded and abuſed, will be our worſt Enemy. No Poniards ſo mortal as the wounds of Conſcience. A wounded Spirit who can bear? Prov. 18. 14. Could Judas bear it, or could Spira bear it? What's the Torment of Hell, but the Worm that dies not? and what is that Worm, but the remorſe of Conſcience? Mark 9. 44. O what is that fearful Expectation mentioned, Heb. 10. 27. See how you like that life deſcribed, Deut. 28. 65, 66. The primitive Chriſtians choſe rather to be caſt to the Lions, than into the Paws of an enraged Conſcience; ad Leones, potius quam ad Lenones. Every little trouble will be inſupportable to a ſick and wounded Conſcience, as a quart of water would be to your Shoulder in a great leaden Veſſel.

O if men did but fear their own Conſciences, if they did reverence themſelves, as the Moraliſt ſpeaks; if they did herein exerciſe themſelves to have always a Conſcience void of offence, as Paul did, Acts 24. 16. Then would you be clear of this great Sin of holding the Truth in Unrighteouſneſs.

Direct. 3. If you would eſcape the guilt and danger of holding God's Truths in Unrighteouſneſs, then keep your Hearts under the awful ſenſe of the Day of Judgment, when every ſecret thing muſt come into Judgment, and Conſcience like a Regiſter-book is to be opened and examined. The Conſideration of that day gives your Conſciences a ſevenfold defenſative againſt Sin. 1. It provokes every man to get real ſolid Grace, and not reſt in an empty Profeſſion, Mat. 25. and this ſecures us from formal Hypocriſy, that we be not found fooliſh Virgins. 2. It excites us to the diligent improvement of our Talents, that we be not found ſlothful Servants, neglecting any duty God and Conſcience calls us to. Mat. 25. 21. 3. It confirms and eſtabliſhes us in the ways of God, that we wound not Conſcience by Apoſtacy, 1 Joh. 2. 28. 4. It's a loud call to every man to Repentance, and not to lie ſtupid and ſenſeleſs under guilt, Acts 17. 30, 31. 5. 'Tis a powerful Antidote againſt formality in Religion, the general and dangerous diſeaſe of Profeſſors, Mat. 7. 22, 23. 6. It excites holy fear and watchfulneſs in the whole courſe of Life, 1 Pet. 1. 17. 7. It puts us not only to our watch, but to our knees in fervent Prayer, 1 Pet. 4. 7.

And he that feels ſuch effects as theſe from the conſideration of that Day, is fortified againſt that ſin my Text warns of, and dares never hold the Truth of God in Unrighteouſneſs. 'Tis our regardleſs of Judgment to come, and ignorance of the Nature of it, which ſo emboldens us to neglect known Duties, and commit known Sins, Amos 6. 3. 2 Pet. 3. 3, 4. If our Thoughts and Meditations were engaged more frequently and ſeriouſly on ſuch an awful Subject, you would rather chuſe to die than to do violence to your Conſciences.

Direct. 4. Get right apprehenſions of the Moral Evil that is in ſin, and of the Penal Evil that follows ſin: then no Temptation ſhall prevail with you to commit a ſin, to eſcape a preſent trouble, or neglect a known duty, to accommodate any earthly intereſt, and conſequently to hold no Truth of God in unrighteouſneſs. 'Tis fear of Loſs and Sufferings that ſo often overbears Conſcience; but if men were once made throughly ſenſible, that the leaſt ſin is worſe for them than the greateſt affliction or ſuffering, the peace of Conſcience would be well ſecured. And that this is really ſo, appears thus. 1. Afflictions do not make a man vile in the Eyes of God. A Man may be under manifold Afflictions, and yet very dear and precious in God's Account; Heb. 11. 36, 37, 38. but Sin makes a man vile in the Eyes of God, Dan. 11. 2. 2. Afflictions do not put men under the Curſe of God, Bleſſings and Afflictions may go together; Pſal. 94. 12. but Sin brings the Soul under the Curſe, Gal. 3. 10. 3. Afflictions make men more like unto God, Heb. 12. 10. but Sin makes us more like the Devil, 1 Joh. 3. 8. Joh. 8. 34. 4. Afflictions for Conſcience ſake are but the Creatures wrath inflam'd againſt us; but Sin is the inflamer of God's Wrath againſt us, as in the Text. 5. Afflictions are but outward Evils upon the Body, but Sin is an internal Evil upon the Soul, Prov. 8. 36. 6. Afflictions for Duties ſake have many ſweet Promiſes annexed to them, Mat. 5. 10. but Sin hath none. 7. The effects of Sufferings for Chriſt are ſweet to the Soul, 2 Cor. 7. 4 but the fruits of Sin are bitter, it yields nothing but ſhame and fear. 8. Afflictions for Chriſt are the way to Heaven, but Sin is the Road-way to Hell, Rom. 6. ult. 9. Sufferings for Duty are but for a Moment, 2 Cor. 4. 17. but Sufferings for ſin will be Eternal, Mark 9. 44.

If ſuch thoughts might be ſuffered to dwell with us, how would they guard the Conſcience againſt Temptations, and ſecure their Peace and Purity?

Direct. 5. Be throughly perſwaded of this great Truth, that God takes great pleaſure in uprightneſs, and will own and honour Integrity amidſt all the dangers that befal it, Pſal. 11. 7. Prov. 11. 20. When he would encourage Abraham to a Life of Integrity, he engages his Almighty power for the protection of him in that way, Gen. 17. 1. I am God Almighty, walk thou before me and be perfect. So Pſal. 84. 11. The Lord God is a Sun and a Shield; he will give grace and glory, and no good thing will he with-hold from them that walk uprightly.

An upright man is the boaſt of Heaven, Job 1. 8. He is God's darling; and the reaſon is becauſe he bears the Image of God, Pſal. 11. 7. The upright Lord loveth uprightneſs: Yea, and if Integrity brings them into trouble, they may be ſure the Lord will bring them out; Pſal. 34. 19. Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivereth them out of all. How ſafely then may they leave themſelves in the hands of his infinite Wiſdom, Power, and fatherly Care? Nay, God is not only the Protector, but he is alſo the Rewarder of conſcientious Integrity, Pſal. 18. 20. and that four ways. 1. In the inward peace it yields them, Iſa. 32. 17. The work of righteouſneſs ſhall be peace, and the effect of righteouſneſs, quietneſs and aſſurance for ever. But the effect of ſinful ſhifts and carnal Policies, are ſhame and ſorrow. 2. In the Succeſs and Iſſue of it; it not only turns to God's glory, but it anſwers and accommodates our own deſigns and ends far better than our ſinful projects can do, Prov. 28. 23. 3. Great is the Joy and Encouragement reſulting from it in the day of Death, 2 King. 23. 3. Pſal. 37. 37. 4. In the World to come, Pſal. 49. 14. Were this duly conſidered, and throughly believed, men would chuſe rather to part with life, than the purity and peace of their own Conſciences. They would ſuffer all wrongs and injuries, rather than do Conſcience the leaſt injury.

Direct. 6. Do not idolize the World, nor overvalue the Trifles of this life; 'tis the love of the World that makes men warp from the Rules of their own Conſciences, 2 Tim. 4. 10. 'tis this that makes men ſtrain hard to get looſe from the ties and bonds of their own Conſciences. The young man was convinced, but the World was too hard for his Convictions, Luk. 18. 23. the degree of his Sorrow was according to the degree of his Love to the Creature. 'Tis not the having, but the overloving of the world that ruins us. 'Tis a worldly Heart which makes men twiſt and turn, ſhuffle and diſſemble at that rate they do in time of Temptation. Could you once dethrone this Idol, how ſecure and ſafe would your Conſciences be! The Church is deſcribed, Rev. 12. 1. as clothed with the Sun, and the Moon under her Feet. The moſt zealous Age of the Church was the Age of Poverty. Try theſe few conſiderations on your hearts to looſe them from the inordinate love of the World. 1. What good will the World do when you have loſt your Integrity for its ſake, and peace is taken away from the inner man? What Joy of the world had Judas, and what comfort had Spira? If you part with your integrity for it, God will blaſt it, and it ſhall yield you no joy. 2. Except you renounce the World, you are renounced by Chriſt. Diſclaim it, or he will diſclaim you; Luke 14. 33. No man can be admitted into Chriſt's Service, but by ſealing thoſe Indentures with him. 3. Whatever loſs or damage you ſhall ſuſtain for Chriſt and Conſcience ſake, he ſtands obliged to repair it to you, and that with an infinite overplus, Mark 10. 29, 30. 4. In a word, all the Riches, Pleaſures, Honors, and Liberties in the world are not able to give you that Joy and heart-refreſhing Comfort, that the acquitting and chearing voice of your own Conſciences can do. Settle theſe things in your hearts, as defenſatives againſt this danger.

Direct. 7. Laſtly, Beg of God, and labour to get more Chriſtian Courage and Magnanimity; for want of this Conſcience is often overborn againſt its own Light and Conviction. Chriſtian Magnanimity is Conſcience's ſecurity. 'Tis excellent and becoming a Chriſtian, to be able to face any thing but the frowns of God and his own Conſcience. All the famous Companions of Truth, and Witneſſes for God that came victorious out of the Field of Temptation with ſafe and unwounded Conſciences, were men of Courage and Reſolution; ſee Dan. 3. 16. Heb. 11. 27. Acts 21. 13. And what is this Chriſtian Courage, but the fixed reſolution of the Soul to encounter all dangers, all ſufferings, all reproaches, pains and loſſes in the ſtrength of aſſiſting Grace, that ſhall aſſault us in the ways of our duty; and ſo it ſtands oppoſed in Scripture to the Spirit of Fear, Heb. 11. 27. to Shame, Mark 8. 38. to Apoſtacy, Heb. 10. 39. He muſt neither be afraid, nor aſhamed, nor loſe one inch of ground for the ſake of whatſoever dangers he meets with, and that becauſe he hath embraced Chriſtianity upon thoſe terms, and was told of all this before, Joh. 16. 1. becauſe there's no retreating but to our own ruin, Heb. 10. 38. becauſe he owes all this, and much more than this to Chriſt, Phil. 1. 29. becauſe he underſtands the value of his Soul above his Body, and of Eternals above and beyond all Temporals, Mat. 10. 28. and in a word, becauſe he believes the Promiſes of God's Aſſiſtance, and Rewards, Heb. 11. 25, 26, 27.

O my Friends, were our fears thus ſubdued, and our Faith thus exalted, how free and ſafe would Truth be in our Conſciences. He that owns any Truth to live upon it, or accommodate a carnal Intereſt by it, will diſown that Truth, when it comes to live upon him, let Conſcience plead and ſay what it will: but he that hath agreed with Chriſt upon theſe Terms, to be content to be miſerable for ever, if there be not enough in Chriſt to make him happy; this man will be a ſteddy Chriſtian, and will rather lie in the worſt Priſons than impriſon God's known Truths in Unrighteouſneſs.

The Concluſion.

I have now done my Meſſage, I have ſet before you the Lord Jeſus in the glory of his Free Grace, and condeſcending Love to Sinners; O that I had skill and ability to have done it better! I have wooed and expoſtulated with you on Chriſt's behalf. I have laboured, according to my little meaſure of ſtrength, to caſt up and prepare the way by removing the ſtumbling Blocks and Diſcouragements out of it. This hath been a time of Conviction to many of you; ſome have not been able to hold their Convictions any longer under reſtraints, but many I fear do ſo, and therefore I have in the cloſe of all handled this ſtartling and awakening Scripture among you, to ſhew you what an horrid evil it is to detain God's Truths in Unrighteouſneſs. I have alſo in the Name and Authority of God demanded all the Lord's Priſoners, his ſuppreſſed and reſtrained Truths, at your hands: If you will unbind your Convictions this day, cut aſunder the bonds of carnal fear, ſhame, &c. with which you reſtrain them; thoſe Truths, you ſhall ſo make free, will make you free: If not, but you will ſtill go on ſtifling and ſuppreſſing them in your own Boſoms; remember that there are ſo many Witneſſes prepared to give evidence againſt you in the Great Day. And O that whilſt you delay this Duty, the ſound of this Text may never out of your ears, nor ſuffer you to reſt. For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven againſt all ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs of men, who hold the truth in unrighteouſneſs.

For England's Deliverance from Popery, &c.
Upon Deut. 3. 24, 25.

---

To the Right Honourable GEORGE Earl of Southerland, Lord Strathnaver, Heritable Lord of Regalitie, and Sheriff in the Shire of Southerland.

My Lord,

IT was a ſweet refreſhment to me in the days of our late Exile to be providentially caſt into your Lordſhip's Company and Acquaintance. I ſavoured in your ſelf, and your moſt accompliſhed Lady, thoſe things which are rarely found in Perſons of your eminent ſtation and quality in the World.

I have neither forgotten your tender ſympathy with poor diſtreſſed Sion, nor my weak endeavours to prop up your Faith with reſpect to a more chearful aſpect of Providence upon the Churches.

And now my Lord, we that mourned for, and ſuffered with Sion, are this day called to rejoice with her. Yea, you are called to rejoice with a joy above the common joy, in as much as your Lordſhip is not only a partaker of the common mercy with others, but God hath honoured you in accompanying and aſſiſting the glorious Inſtrument of our Deliverance.

My Lord, It is a greater honour to be ſerviceable to the Intereſt of Chriſt, than to deſcend from the blood of Nobles. 'Tis the honour of Angels, that they are Miniſtring Spirit for the Churches good. What my apprehenſions of, and expectations from this Providence are, your Lordſhip will meaſure from the following Diſcourſe.

Let England rejoice to behold a Proteſtant King upon its Throne: A King that gives more Honour to the Throne, than it is capable to reflect on him that ſits thereon. His ſoundneſs in Proteſtant Principles, his Prudence and Equity in Government, his Zeal for the Intereſt of Chriſt at the loweſt ebb, ſpeak him ſuch a bleſſing to this Nation as for Ages paſt it hath not enjoyed: And now my Lord, we may expect, if ever, to find that glorious deſcription of a juſt and holy King anſwered in him, that he ſhall be to us as the light of the Morning, when the Sun riſeth, even a morning without Clouds, &c. 2 Sam. 23. 4.

My Lord, Having in my place performed the Duty of Thankſgiving to God, enjoyned by publick Authority, with the ſame alacrity that Moſes his Mother obeyed the Command of Pharaoh's Daughter, to nurſe her own Child; I am bold (notwithſtandiug the imperfections that attend it) to offer it in all humility to your Lordſhip's hands; being confident the deſign of it will be agreeable to your Spirit, tho there be nothing of External Ornament to commend it to your fancy. So heartily congratulating your Lordſhip's ſafe and happy return, with your pious and ingenious Lady, in the memorable year of England's Deliverance from the Romiſh Yoak, I beg your Honour's pardon for this preſumption, and remain

Your Honour's moſt Obliged Servant to Command,

J. FLAVELL.

DEUT. III. 24, 25.

O Lord God, thou haſt begun to ſhew thy Servant thy greatneſs, and thy mighty hand; for what God is there in Heaven, or in Earth, that can do according to thy works, and according to thy might? I pray thee let me go over and ſee the good land that is beyond Jordan, that goodly Mountain, and Lebanon.

Dr. Goodwin. in Apoc. p. 189.

'TIs the Obſervation of a Learned Man, that the Revolution of a Hundred Years hath produced (eſpecially in theſe latter times) new Motions and Alterations in the Church, like unto thoſe that fell out a Hundred Years before. So it was in Germany, and Bohemia; John Hus at the ſtake, about the year 1417, uttered this remarkable ſpeech, After a hundred years you Papiſts ſhall be called to an account. The Bohemians cauſed poſt centum annos to be ſtampt upon their Coin, for the preſervation of ſo memorable a Prediction; and accordingly in a Hundred Years, viz. 1517. Luther aroſe, and with him the Reformation. It hath been ſo in England. Our Fathers deſervedly ſet a ſignal remembrance upon the Year 1588. Annus octogeſimus octavus eſt Annus mirabilis; the Year Eighty Eight is a wonderful year, and it was ſo indeed, for then the Lord defeated the formidable Enemies of his Cauſe and People with a mighty hand, and an outſtretched arm upon the great Waters. Then did England ſing his Praiſes, ſaying, Who is like unto thee, O Lord, among the Gods? Who is like unto thee, glorious in holineſs, fearful in praiſes, doing wonders? Exod. 15. 11.

A full Century is now run out ſince that year of Wonders, wherein we have reaped the precious and ineſtimable fruits of that year's Mercy. And notwithſtanding the great ingratitude of this Nation for all the Civil and Spiritual Mercies it hath enjoyed in conſequence to that Mercy, whereby God hath been highly provoked to ſay to England as he did to Iſrael, Judg. 10. 13. I will deliver you no more; yet behold another Eighty Eight crowned and enriched with Mercies, no leſs admirable and glorious than the former; a Year for which the Children yet unborn ſhall praiſe the Lord.

You are called this day to rejoice; I am not only called to rejoice with you in the Publick Mercies of this day, but alſo to direct you to the beſt way of improving the Mercies you rejoice in, that they may prove introductive to greater mercies than themſelves. To that end I choſe this Scripture which contains both Parts of the Work and Duty of the Day. The Text contains the ſum of Moſes his Prayer at Edrei, after the ſignal Victory God there gave him over the laſt Enemy that forbad his paſſage to the Confines of Canaan. This Edrei was a Town on this ſide Jordan, ſituate in the fruitful Country of Baſhan, near unto that famous River by which it was divided from the Land of Promiſe, and afterwards fell to the lot of Manaſſeh. Hither Moſes had led the People, and now it was but one remove more, (their paſſage over Jordan) and they ſhould finiſh their weariſom peregrination, and arrive at the deſire of their hearts, even reſt and ſettlement in that good Land the Lord had promiſed them. And here you may ſee how ſwift and ſtrong the motion of Moſes his ſpirit in Prayer is, now it was come ſo nigh the Center, almoſt in ſight of that pleaſant Land, where God intended to ſettle his Worſhip and record his Name. O Lord, thou haſt begun to ſhew thy Servant thy greatneſs, &c. I pray thee let me go over, and ſee the good land that is beyond Jordan, that goodly Mountain, and Lebanon. Wherein note,

1. The Mercy pray'd for.
2. The Argument pleaded to obtain it.

1. The Mercy Moſes prays for, that he might go over, and ſee the good Land, &c. The good land was Canaan, called the glory of all Lands, Ezek. 20. 6. it was a glorious land in reſpect of its natural Fertility and Amenity; but much more glorious in reſpect of the Preſence of God in his Ordinances. And therefore above all the pleaſant ſights in Canaan, he deſires to ſee that goodly Mountain, that is Mount Moriah, on which Abraham offered up his only ſon Iſaac, and whereon by the Spirit of Prophecy Moſes foreſaw the glorious Temple was to be built, whither the Tribes ſhould go up to worſhip, even the Tribes of the Lord, unto the Teſtimony of Iſrael. There were to be the Symbols of his Preſence, and the Houſe of Prayer for all People. There the Ark was to reſt, and all the Promiſes made to Abraham and his ſeed to be fulfilled. This inflames the deſires of Moſes (now upon the very borders) to have a ſight of that goodly Mountain, and Lebanon, that famous Foreſt ſo renowned in Scripture, of whoſe ſtately Cedars the Glorious Temple was to be built, 1 King. 5. 6, 9. This deſire of Moſes was not from any ſuperſtitious opinion he had of the holineſs of the place, in reſpect of the Patriarchs whoſe bones were laid in that land, (as ſome Popiſh Gloſſes would have it) but he earneſtly deſired to ſee the accompliſhment of the Promiſes now ſo nigh the birth, by the actual poſſeſſion of that good land. This was the Mercy he pray'd for.

Object. But how could Moſes deſire to go over Jordan into this good Land, when God had before ſo expreſly told him he ſhould not? Numb. 20.12. And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes and Aaron, Becauſe ye believed me not, to ſanctifie me in the eyes of the Children of Iſrael, therefore ye ſhall not bring this Congregation into the land which I have given them. Did this Holy Man ſuffer his deſires to tranſport him beyond his Duty, to go further than God would have him?

Sol. No, he did not, but not being ſure the threatning was abſolute, but might be ſuch a one as was made of Hezekiah's Death, 2 Kings 20. 1. or of Niniveh's Deſtruction, Jonah 3. 4. there was room for Prayer. You ſee the Mercy Moſes pray'd for.

2. Let us next conſider the Argument by him pleaded for the obtaining of his ſuit, and that is taken from the whole ſeries of former Mercies which were all introductive to this remaining and compleating Mercy, the planting yf them in the Land of Promiſe. O Lord God, thou haſt begun to ſhew thy ſervant thy greatneſs, and thy mighty hand, &c. Where note,

1. His moſt thankful acknowledgment and magnifying of paſt and preſent mercies. His Eyes were not ſo dazled with the ſplendor of Mercy to come, and in a near expectation, as to overlook the former or preſent Mercies as ſmall and inconſiderable. No, he lifts up the name of God in his Praiſes for them, and tells him he had begun to ſhew him his Greatneſs in them. They are great in Moſes's Eye, and he expreſſes a ſutable ſenſe of them. He well knew the way to engage further Mercies, is thankfully to acknowledg and magnify paſt and preſent ones. But,

2. He reſts not there, but improves theſe beginnings of Mercies, and pleads them in his argumentative Prayer for the conſummating and perfecting Mercies yet to come: q. d. Lord, thy works are perfect, thou doſt not uſe to begin and not to finiſh, as Men do; to bring to the birth, and not cauſe to bring forth: The Gods of the Heathen are a lie, and vanity, but thou art the true God, and thy Promiſes are Truth it ſelf. Now Lord, in purſuance of thy promiſes to Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, thou haſt begun to fulfil the Mercy promiſed; Iſrael is brought with Signs and Wonders and a mighty hand out of Egypt, and upon the very borders of the Land; Lord compleat the work now, in giving them the poſſeſſion of it: and for me Lord, I pray thee (if it be thy Will) let me enter with them; and as I have had my part in the troubles of Egypt, ſtraits and trials theſe forty Years in the Deſert, let me take my part alſo in the Joy, Reſt and Comfort of that bleſſed Land to which I am now come ſo nigh. This ſeems to be the ſenſe and meaning of Moſes's Prayer. Divers Excellent points of Doctrine naturally offer themſelves from the Text, as

Doctrine I.

That the reſt and proſperity of the Church is a very deſirable Mercy in the eyes of the Saints.

If any thing will make a Chriſtian deſirous to abide on Earth, next to the finiſhing of the work of Grace on him, and the work of Obedience by him, this is the thing. Pſal. 106. 4, 5. Remember me, O Lord, with the favour that thou beareſt unto thy people; O viſit me with thy ſalvation: that I may ſee the good of thy choſen, that I may rejoyce with the gladneſs of thy nation; that I may glory with thine inheritance.

Doctrine II.

How deſirable ſoever it be to ſee the Churches Glory and Proſperity on Earth, yet the greateſt and beſt of Saints may be denied it.

Moſes the Saint of God, the Favorite of Heaven, earneſtly deſired the ſight of this Mercy, and was denied it. Get thee up to Mount Nebo, ſaith God, and die there, thou ſhalt not go over Jordan, and yet Moſes was no loſer by it. Though God ſhut him out of Canaan, he took him into Heaven. We read, Matth. 13. 17. of that bleſſed day when Chriſt was among men in the fleſh, preaching, praying, and working Miracles, that many Prophets and Righteous Men deſired to ſee thoſe things which they ſaw (among whom he walked) and ſaw them not, and to hear the things which they heard, but did not hear them. Demarathus of Corinth was wont to ſay, that thoſe Grecians loſt a great part of the Comfort of their Lives, that had not ſeen great Alexander ſitting upon Darius his Throne. St. Auguſtine wiſhed to have ſeen three things, Rome in its glory, Paul to the face, and Chriſt in the fleſh. But we muſt not be our own chooſers, it ſhall be given to them for whom it is appointed. But I ſtay not upon either of theſe, there are two other points in the Text which invite my Thoughts and Diſcourſe this day; viz.

Doctrine III.

That great Mercies received (though there be yet greater than they to be expected) call for an anſwerable ſenſe and acknowledgment in the Saints.

Doctrine IV.

That the beginnings of Mercy and Deliverance to the Church are convertible into ſo many Pleas and Arguments in prayer for the perfection and conſummation thereof. I begin with the former, viz.

Doctrine III.

That great mercies received (though there be greater than they to be expected) call for an anſwerable ſenſe and acknowledgment in the Saints.

Moſes magnifies the Mercies received in Egypt, and in the Wilderneſs at the Red Sea, and at Edrei, as things wherein God had begun to ſhow him his greatneſs, and his mighty hand, things on which God had viſibly ſtampt and impreſſed his Greatneſs; though he ſtill expected greater things to come. 'Twas Elihu's Counſel to Job with reſpect to God's providential proceedings with him, Job 36. 24. Remember that thou magnifie his work which men behold. Elihu thought it to be Job's Duty (and doubtleſs it was ſo) to magnifie or lift up the Name of God even under afflictive providences, to exalt God when God caſt him down; but you are called this day to magnifie the work of God in comfortable providences, and to lift up his Name, whilſt he is lifting you up in Deliverances, and chearful Providences. 'Tis true, we cannot magnifie any work of God by making any addition to it, or making it greater than it is; but we ſhould magnifie every work of God, by giving it its full dimenſions in our conſiderations of it, and ſutable affections to it. The works of the Lord are great, ſought out of all them that have pleaſure therein, Pſal. 111. 2. We then magnifie them, when we ſearch them out, ponder and weigh them in all their circumſtances; and this muſt needs affords ſingular pleaſure to a ſanctified ſoul. O 'tis ſweet to trace the footſteps of God along thoſe pleaſant paths of Mercy and Salvation, wherein he hath walked towards his Church, or our ſelves in particular. Two things invite our thoughts to dwell upon them at this time.

1. What makes a work of Mercy truly great.
2. What is that ſutable ſenſe we ſhould have of ſuch Works.

1. What are the things that make any Work of Mercy truly great.

Now there are ſeven conſiderations or properties of a work of Mercy, which make it great indeed. If but one or two of theſe be found upon ſuch a work, it deſerves the name of great; but if there be a concurrence of them all in any Work of God, as there is in that Work which we celebrate this day, O how great will it then appear!

(1.) Then doth a Work of Mercy or Deliverance deſerve the name of great and magnificent, when it involves our Spiritual as well as our Civil and Natural Comforts and Enjoyments in it, and reſcues our Souls as well as our Bodies from Ruin and Miſery.

Temporal Mercies have their value, 'tis no ſmall Mercy to have our Eſtates, Liberties, and Lives ſecured from Rapine and Violence. Deborah celebrated this Mercy in her Song of Praiſe, Judg. 5. 6, 7, 11. In the days of Shamgar the ſon of Anath, in the days of Jael, the high ways were unoccupied, and the Travellers walked through by-ways. The inhabitants of the Villages ceaſed in Iſrael, until that I Deborah aroſe, that I aroſe a mother in Iſrael. They that are delivered from the noiſe of Archers in the places of drawing water; there ſhall they rehearſe the righteous acts of the Lord, even the righteous acts towards the inhabitants of his villages in Iſrael: then ſhall the people of the Lord go down to the gates. 'Twas a ſad time in Iſrael, when they were barr'd from their Fountains, and forced to creep through By-ways and Woods by night for fear of the Enemy; when the courſe of Juſtice was ſtopt, and there were no Judges in the Gates: Therefore the People are here excited to praiſe the Lord for their Deliverance from theſe Calamities.

But 'tis a far greater Miſery to be cut off from the Wells of Salvation, barr'd from the Springs of Ordinances; forced to creep through by and obſcure ways to get bread to relieve their Souls; to have our Teachers driven into Corners; which hath been the Caſe of God's People for many years in England. Now, to be delivered from ſuch Miſeries, is a Mercy above all value.

Liberty to ſerve the Lord without fear, liberty without a ſnare or hook in it, and a well ſettled durable liberty, for ſuch is that we may now (if ever) promiſe our ſelves; what ſoul can dilate it ſelf wide enough, to take in the adequate ſenſe of ſuch a Mercy? We were glad of Liberty from our Enemies, when we ſought it not; we peaceably and thankfully improv'd it, though juſt Fears and Jealouſies much darkned the Luſtre of it: But the Lord in this diſpenſation of his Providence will I hope ſo eſtabliſh the juſt Liberties of his People, that it ſhall never be in the power of violent and wicked men any more to oppreſs them. There was a time when the Witneſſes of Chriſt lay dead, and their Enemies rejoiced over them; the Lord hath begun to revive them, and the time (I truſt) even the appointed time is at hand, when they ſhall hear a great voice from heaven (juſſu Supremi Magiſtratus, ſaith learned Mede) ſaying Come up hither; and both England and France ſhall rejoice together in their Spiritual as well as Civil Liberties and Mercies. What Soul that loves Jeſus Chriſt in ſincerity doth not feel it ſelf chear'd and raiſed in proportion to the Hopes and Evidences it hath of the approach of ſo great and deſirable a Mercy?

(2.) Then is any work of Mercy and Deliverance to the Church deſervedly ſtiled great, when it is wrought out in an extraordinary way, and the finger of God evidently ſeen therein. Thus it was with Iſrael in their introduction into the Land of Promiſe, Pſal. 44. 3. For they got not the land in poſſeſſion by their own ſword, neither did their own arm ſave them; but thy right hand, and thine arm, and the light of thy countenance; becauſe thou hadſt a favour unto them. It was not by the ſtrength of their own Arm, or the length of their own Sword, that they ſubdued and conquer'd; no, it was a ſmile of Providence that did the work. The finger of God in Providence appears in the ſecret influences of God upon the ſpirits of men, infuſing Courage into the hearts of ſome, and ſending faintneſs into the ſpirits of others; ſo that the feeble become as David, when mean while the men of might cannot find their hands. This lifts up the Wheels above the Earth, as Ezek. 1. 19.

(3.) The ſudden production of Mercy magnifies it. Mercies are highly to be prized, how long ſoever we wait for them; but when they come ſurprizingly, they come with great advantage upon us, and have for that the more raviſhing ſweetneſs in them, Pſal. 126. 1, 2, 3. When the Lord turned again the captivity of Sion, we were like them that dream. Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with ſinging; then ſaid they among the heathen, The Lord hath done great things for them, The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad. The change was ſo great, ſo ſudden, that it amazed them; they took it rather for a Phantom that deluded their Senſes, than for a reality. The deliverance was incredible, they could not believe themſelves to be delivered, when they really were delivered. They fancied when they came to Jeruſalem, that it was rather a pleaſant dream of Jeruſalem in Babylon, than ſo indeed. Are we indeed ſet at liberty to worſhip God at Jeruſalem? or are we mocked with a dream, and deluded with a pleaſant Fancy of ſuch a Mercy? So again we read, Iſa. 66. 8, 9. Who hath heard ſuch a thing? Who hath ſeen ſuch things? ſhall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? or ſhall a nation be born at once? For aſſoon as Sion travelled, ſhe brought forth her children. What, ſow and reap in the ſame day! The birth to anticipate the pangs of Travail! Who hath ſeen or heard ſuch things, ſaith the Prophet? Surely England hath ſeen it this day. Cardinal Pool once abuſed this Scripture in his Letter to Pope Julius the third, applying it to the ſudden change of England to Popery in the beginning of Queen Mary's Reign. But we are called this day to ſanctify the Name of God in a work of Providence, wherein the Lord hath indeed fulfilled it before our eyes. So great and ſudden! Great and marvellous are thy works, O Lord God Almighty; juſt and true are thy ways, O thou King of Saints. Generations to come will think we do but hyperbolize, when they ſhall read the one half of the Wonders of our days.

(4.) When one Mercy is an introductive leading

Mercy to many more, that are greater than it ſelf; that Mercy which is ſo, though in it ſelf it were never ſo ſmall, well deſerves the Title of a great Mercy; and may we not judg the preſent Mercy to be ſuch? In the rending off theſe Kingdoms from Antichriſt, the tenth part of the great City is viſibly fallen. Rome hath paid her Tenths to Chriſt already, and that as an earneſt of the whole, which is ſhortly to fall into his hands. Rome's Glaſs was turned up by Chriſt more than 1200 years paſt, and in the Judgment of very many Learned and Searching men, is now almoſt run down. Antichriſt hath lately had a Triumph, and ſaid, I ſit as a Queen, and ſhall not ſee widowhood, or loſs of children any more. The Kings of the Earth have given δύναμιν ϗ ἐξουσίαν, their force of Arms, and power of Laws unto the Beaſt. But the Lord hath begun to ſhake Heaven and Earth, that the things which are made may be ſhaken down, and ſo to ruin him by the ſame means he firſt aroſe. He is taking to himſelf his Power and Reign, that the Kingdom and Dominion under the whole Heavens may be the Lord's; and that work of Providence which we celebrate this day, appears to me a great ſtep towards it. Call it Gad, for a Troop follows it. The World hath found, and ſhall ſtill find much Truth in that Obſervation of the Learned Dr. More: I am not aſhamed (ſaith he) to profeſs, that I think it clear out of the Apocalypſe, that the Scene of things in Chriſtendom will in a ſhort time be very much changed for the better; the time of the Churches appearing, that is truly Apoſtolical both in Life and Doctrine, appears by the computation of Propheſies to be very near at hand, when the Witneſſes ſhall riſe, and the Woman come out of the Wilderneſs, and the Kingdoms of the World ſhall be the Kingdoms of the Lord and his Chriſt, and he ſhall reign for ever and ever. There is no ſtability to be expected in the Kingdoms of Men, (but Vengeance will ever and anon flow in upon them) till that City be raiſed whoſe not only Foundation is laid in twelve, but whoſe Gates, Tribes, Angles, the breadth and height of the Wall, and the ſolid continent of the whole City, are nothing elſe but a replication ſtill of twelve throughout: that is to ſay, till that Church appear which is purely Apoſtolical in Doctrine and Worſhip.

Myſtery of Godlineſs, l. 5. c 17. printed 1660.

England is ſaid to be the firſt Kingdom that received the Goſpel with the Countenance of Supream Authority. This was its Honour; and to be the firſt that breaks off from Antichriſt, will be as great an Honour as the former. The reſt are to follow in their order. O what a leading Mercy is the mercy of this Day!

(5.) Then may a Work of God be ſtiled great and magnificent, when the Lord carries it on through great Difficulties and ſeeming Impoſſibilities. The greater the difficulties in the way, the greater muſt the mercy be when it arrives to us through them all. Thus came the Iſraelites into the Land of Promiſe, Pſal. 66. 12. Thou cauſedſt men to ride over our heads; we went through fire and through water; but thou broughteſt us out into a wealthy place. To paſs through Fire and Water, is a proverbial Speech, noting the greateſt difficulties and deadly dangers. Such was that at the Red Sea: a deliverance out of ſuch dangers, may be called Life out of Death, and ſuch have our Deliverances been. Our Enemies had graſped all power into their hands, and were full of confidence. They were folded together as Thorns, and drunk as Drunkards; as the Prophet expreſſes it, Nah. 1. 10. Strong Combinations, and anſwerable Confidence and Security of the Event; but when the time of Mercy was come, Armies, Navies, Counſels, Foreign Confederates, and all give way to the deſign of Mercy. And what are all the Mountains before Zerubbabel?

(6.) That which exceedingly greatens a Mercy or Deliverance, is the ſeaſonableneſs thereof, when it nicks the proper Seaſon, comes in the moſt opportune time; Deut. 32. 36. The Lord ſhall judg his people, and repent himſelf for his ſervants; when he ſeeth that their power is gone, and that there is none ſhut up, or left. The Lord ſuffers the Danger to come to an extremity, and then in the Mount of Difficulties and ſtraits he appears. If deliverance ſhould come ſooner, it would be leſs valued; and if later, it would come too late for our comfort. He is a God of Judgment, and all his Works are made beautiful by their ſeaſonableneſs. How the Caſe ſtood with the Proteſtant Intereſt in Europe, when God began to ſtir up the Spirits of the Princes to commiſerate and relieve it, we all know; our Enemies looked upon us as their ſure prey, and we could not but look upon our ſelves in great hazard. The Lord ſuffered the miſchief conceived to go to the parturient fulneſs of its time, and then gave it a miſcarrying Womb. Who is like unto the Lord? and what works are like his Works!

(7.) In a word, then is a work of Mercy truly great, when it brings forth invaluable Bleſſings at a cheap rate; when Enjoyments and Comforts, more worth than our lives, come at eaſie rates to our hands.

You read, Iſa. 9. 5. Every battel of the Warrior is with confuſed noiſe and garments roll'd in blood. War is terrible and coſtly, eſpecially Civil Wars. When a Nation like a Candle lighted at both ends quickly conſumes and melts down in the middle. There are confuſed noiſes in Battels, terrible to hear. The thundering of Drums, and ſound of Trumpets; the neighing of Horſes, and ſhouts of Armies; the roaring of Cannons, the Shrieks and Groans of dying Men; theſe are confuſed noiſes indeed: and yet it's worth enduring all this to hear the joyful ſound of the Goſpel, and preſerve the pure Reformed Religion in the midſt of us: 'Twere better part with our Blood than the Goſpel; exhauſt our Treaſure, and leave our Children poor, than deveſt them of the beſt of bleſſings, and leave them to be train'd up in Idolatry, and ſtretch out their hands to a ſtrange God.

But lo, what hath God wrought for England! you have thoſe Mercies that have coſt others dear, and they have coſt you nothing. You have ſold your ſelves for nothing, and are redeemed without price. Your God hath been liberal in Mercy, but ſparing of Blood. Such mercies, ſo many mercies without a ſtroke! according to this time it ſhall be ſaid, What hath God wrought?

Thus you ſee what thoſe mercies are wherein God ſhews his Greatneſs.

Secondly, In the next place let us conſider what that ſutable ſenſe, or thoſe anſwerable impreſſions are, which ſuch great mercies call for. Moſes in the Text expreſſes a very becoming ſenſe of the great things God had begun to do for him and his people; O that there were ſuch a heart in us this day. Now there are five things wherein the comely behaviour of our Souls towards God under great Mercies doth conſiſt.

(1.) In our eying the Hand of God in the Mercy, and thankful Aſcriptions of all the Glory and Praiſe to his Name. So doth Moſes in the Text, Thou haſt begun to ſhew thy ſervant thy greatneſs and thy mighty hand. The Iſraelites were a great Hoſt, Six Hundred Thouſand Men that marched out of Egypt, an Army ſufficient to invade and ſubdue a far greater Country than Canaan was; but Moſes looks off from them, and aſcribes all their Succeſſes and Victories to the Hand of God: Not my mighty hoſt, but thy mighty hand. God affects not ſocial Glory; the dividing of the Praiſe forfeits the Mercy. He that doth all in us and for us, expects juſtly the Praiſe and Glory of all from us. Pſal. 115.1. Not unto us, not unto us, but to thy Name give glory. Here's a double Negative, and no more than need; for there is double danger of the Creatures invading the Rights of Heaven, and ſacrilegious Uſurpation of God's peculiar Praiſe. Let us therefore look off from Armies, and Navies, from the prudent Conduct and Courage of Men; and ſee the hand of God in all the great and marvellous things wrought in the midſt of us this day.

(2.) 'Tis decorous and ſutable to great Mercies, to have our hearts filled with a joy and chearfulneſs anſwerable to them. Praiſe is comely for the upright. As it would be our ſin not to mourn when God ſmites and rebukes us, ſo will it alſo not to rejoice when he chears and comforts us. 'Tis not our Liberty only, but our Duty to rejoice in ſuch works of Mercy as theſe are: Iſa. 65. 18. But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create; for behold I create Jeruſalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy. Methinks Joy ſhould not be under a Chriſtian's command, when he ſees what God is creating for Jeruſalem. As the Morning-Stars ſang together, and all the Sons of God ſhouted for joy at the Creation of the World; ſo ſhould all his Sons and Daughters ſing and ſhout at this new Creation of the new Heavens, and the new Earth.

Miſtake not here, I call you not to rejoice in the Miſeries or Calamities that are upon any this day, much leſs at the Calamities of our late Sovereign. He that ſearcheth my Heart, knows I commiſerate his Condition, and from my ſoul deſire the Lord to bleſs his afflictions to his Illumination, and Eternal Salvation. But that which you are to rejoice in this day, is the advancement of Chriſt's Intereſt in the World, and the Salvation of his Church from the imminent dangers it was ſo lately under; and the proſpect the Lord now gives you of far greater mercies to his People, than ever yet they enjoyed. Theſe are the proper Objects of our Rejoicing.

(3.) Then have we a becoming ſenſe of great mercies, when thoſe mercies kindly thaw and melt our hearts into Repentance for Sin, and a ſenſe of our great unworthineſs of them; when we abaſe our ſelves under exalting Providences. We greatly miſtake our ſelves if we think England hath obliged God to be thus peculiarly favourable to it. 'Tis aſtoniſhing to think, that a Nation ſo ſwarming with Drunkards, Perſecutors, Formaliſts in Religion, yea Atheiſts and Scoffers at all practical and ſerious Piety, ſhould nevertheleſs be thus favoured, delivered and exalted in mercy above all the Nations round about us. I know God hath a great number of precious and upright-hearted ones in England, that have ſighed and cried for the Abominations committed in the midſt thereof; but ſo far are they from arrogating, that they are every where admiring the Goodneſs of God in unexpected mercies. They think, if he had given them their lives for a prey in ſome obſcure corner of the World, he had done more for them than they could juſtly have expected: Or if he had furniſht them with a ſufficient ſtock of Faith and Patience to ſtand quietly at the ſtake, and have glorified him in the midſt of the Flames; he had done more than they had deſerved at his hands: but to be delivered from all thoſe Fears, to ſit down in Peace amidſt pure Goſpel-Ordinances, and to look on all theſe but as the beginnings of Mercy, the dawning of a more bright and glorious day than ever yet this ſinful Nation enjoyed; this I ſay is melting and humbling indeed to all gracious Spirits. 'Tis a lovely ſight to ſee the Tears of Repentance overtaking the Tears of Joy and Thankfulneſs; Sighs and Bluſhes for Sin, mixed with Smiles and Rejoicings in Mercies.

(4.) Then do we anſwer the voice of Mercy, and diſcover a ſutable ſenſe of it, when it ſtrongly obliges us to new Obedience, and more exactneſs in walking with God for time to come. We find an excellent Example of both theſe effects of Mercy, viz. Repentance for paſt Sins, and Reſolutions for new Obedience, in the 79th Pſal. 8, and 13. Remember not againſt us former iniquities, ſaith Aſaph, that was the frame of his heart as to paſt ſins; and then ver. 13. as to the future, if he would let the ſighing of the Priſoners to come before him, and deliver thoſe that were appointed to die, as he ſpeaks ver. the 11th. Then ſaith he, We thy people, and the ſheep of thy paſture will give thee thanks for ever, we will ſhew forth thy praiſe to all generations. O England, England! thy God this day calls thee to thy Knees, tho it be thy Day of Thankſgiving and rejoicing. He expects to ſee thy Tears upon thy Cheeks this day for thy former iniquities, and that thou bind thy ſelf to thy God with theſe bonds of Mercy, never to return any more to Folly. 'Tis not Bells and Bonfires, but Repentance for thy paſt Follies, and new Obedience, thy God looks for at thy hands.

(5.) Laſtly, Then do we act becomingly to the Mercies of God, when Mercies already brought forth do encourage and ſtrengthen our faith for thoſe that remain ſtill in the Womb of the Promiſes. So it was with Moſes in my Text, and O that it might be ſo with us all! Our greateſt and beſt mercies are yet to come, but thoſe we bleſs God for this Day are pledges and earneſts of them. You ſee them not, neither did you ſee theſe you are now praiſing him for ſix months ago; hath he cauſed theſe mercies to be brought forth, and will he ſhut up the Womb? hath he done things we looked not for, and ſhall he not be truſted farther than we can ſee? Look as the head of Leviathan was ſerved into the Iſraelites Table in the Wilderneſs, garniſhed about with rich Experiences of the Goodneſs and Faithfulneſs of God, that it might be food to their Faith in the Wilderneſs; ſo, much ſo are the Mercies and Deliverances of this day to be improved, for the encouragement of Faith for further and future Mercies.

USE.

The Point before us is full of uſeful Inſtructions, ons, Cautions and Counſels. Time will permit me to do little more than note them to you; becauſe I have noted to you another point of Doctrine, which ſhould I omit, I ſhould be wanting to the Duty of the Day, and your juſt Expectations. Well then, are the Mercies of God already perform'd, ſuch great things? and do they require ſuch ſenſe and improvement of them from us? Then

(1.) Take heed of ſlighting and deſpiſing the Mercies of God which are freſh and new before your eyes this day. There are two ſpecial duties incumbent on all the Saints under ſuch Mercies as theſe, viz. to obſerve the Lord's Providences, and to reſound his praiſes; and the latter depends upon the former. God can have no praiſe, we can have no comfort from unobſerved or ſlighted mercies. Whoſo is wiſe, and will obſerve theſe things, even they ſhall underſtand the loving kindneſs of the Lord, Pſal. 107. 43. A due obſervation of mercies will beget a due valuation of them; and a due valuation of mercies is fundamental to all your praiſes of God for them. Look upon the other ſide of theſe Providences, and think what your Condition had been, if the Lord had left your Eſtates, Liberties and Lives to the Wills and Mercies of your Enemies.

(2.) Check all Atheiſtical thoughts from this experiment of the hand of God ſo ſeaſonably interpoſing betwixt his People and their Deſtruction. Verily there is a God that judgeth in the Earth, Pſal. 58. 11. Great and notorious is the Atheiſm of theſe times, all ſerious Piety is hiſs'd and ridicul'd; the very exiſtence of a Deity, and Divine Providence is denied by ſome. But would men open their eyes, and obſerve what is before them this day, they would ſee enough to ſtop the mouth of Atheiſm for ever. Are theſe fortuitous Hits and Accidents, or the effects and productions of the wiſe and ſteddy Counſels of Heaven? The Lord is known by the Judgments that he executeth. But when his hand is lifted up, men will not ſee. 'Tis convincingly clear, the Hand of God, not the Power or Policy of Men hath done this. There was no power in the prevailing part, but what might with far greater probability be repelled by the other; no Policy in the one, but as great to countermine it in the other. But you ſee the Race is not to the ſwift, nor the Battel to the ſtrong; 'tis the hand of God that diſpoſeth theſe great Events.

(3.) Be not ſtagger'd if you ſhould ſee new difficulties ariſing in the way of Mercy, after God hath begun to do great things for his people. Moſes and his People encounter'd many ſuch difficulties, after God had lifted up his hand in great ſigns and wonders for them in Egypt: and ſo may we, even when we are come upon the borders of our expected Mercies. Let us not ſay, we ſhall never be moved more; there is a great deal of filthineſs in England yet unpurged, many Corruptions to be removed; and let us not expect much tranquillity till God hath refined and reformed us. When the morbifique matter is not well purged out of the Body Natural or Politick, there is danger of a Recidivation, or Relapſe into the old Diſeaſe, which God in mercy prevent. Former ſins and follies will caſt us back into former ſtraits and miſeries. O let us not return again to Folly. We are now upon Trial once more how we will carry it under Mercies and Liberties; God forbid ſo great an opportunity as this for ſettling the Church and State upon the true Foundations of Liberty and Proſperity ſhould be loſt. Take heed of a diſcontented Spirit under gracious Providences, leſt you provoke the Lord to turn his hand of Judgment again upon you. Who could have thought that Jonah who was ſo lately in the Whales Belly, called the Belly of Hell, and was ſo greatly humbled there, and ſo miraculouſly and graciouſly delivered thence, ſhould preſently fall into a pet of diſcontent with God, and that for a trifle, the withering of a Gourd? yea, and which was worſe, for his Mercy to others. O we know not what manner of Spirits we are of. The greateſt Mercies and Deliverances do not long pleaſe us, unleſs our little by-intereſt be gratified.

(4.) Let England now ſtudy to do great things for God, who hath impreſſed his greatneſs upon the Mercies it enjoys this day. O England, God hath done great things for thee, ſaved thee with a great Salvation; and he expects returns from thee ſutable to thy great mercies and obligations. Let me ſay to thee, as Elihu to Job, Chap. 36. 2. Suffer me a little, and I will ſhew thee that I have yet to ſpeak on God's behalf.

(1.) A National Reformation is now expected by the Lord; he hath ſtrongly obliged us to it this day by ſo glorious and unparallel'd a National Salvation. 'Tis our reproach that a Land of Miniſters, a Land of Bibles, a Land of peculiar Mercies, ſhould be a Land ſwarming in every part of it with profane Swearers, filthy Adulterers, beaſtly Drunkards, and Heaven-daring Atheiſts. Do we thus requite the Lord, O fooliſh People and unwiſe? Thy God, O England, is pleading with thee this day by the voice of mercy, drawing thee out of theſe puddles and pollutions by the Cords of Love, whilſt he is pleading againſt the ſame ſins in the Nations round about thee by Fire and Sword. He hath now ſet upon thy Throne a great Example of Virtue, to correct thy Lewdneſs, and effect thy Reformation. O England, wilt thou not be made clean? When ſhall it once be? When, if not now, under ſuch ſtrong inducements, and ſignal advantages?

(2.) The looſing of every yoke, and undoing of every heavy burden is now expected from thee. God hath looſed the Yoke of Popery from our Necks, which neither we nor our Fathers could bear; and God forbid we ſhould lay any other yoke upon our brethrens Necks, than what Jeſus Chriſt hath laid by his plain Commands upon all his Diſciples, or make any thing a term or condition of Communion, which himſelf hath not made ſo.

O let the Groans and Crys of oppreſſed Conſciences be heard no more from henceforth in England. Did not the Lord lately ſhake the Rod of our common Enemies over us all? Had we not an Eccleſiaſtical Court erected among us, which made thoſe to tremble, at whoſe Bars others had trembled? If our God hath been ſo good to us, beyond all Examples or Expectations, to deliver us from our Fears and Dangers; ſurely he expects that thoſe who have found mercy, ſhould be ready to ſhew mercy: elſe we muſt expect he will make good his threatning againſt us, James 2. 13. He ſhall have judgment without mercy that ſhewed no mercy; or unmerciful Judgment, as κρίσις ἀνίλεως may be rendered; and the Inſtruments and Executioners of his Judgments are not ſo far off, but he can quickly hiſs for them again, if we anſwer not to the voice and call of Mercy.

(3.) A hearty and laſting Union amonſt all that fear God, is now juſtly expected from us. I never expect Union and Coalition betwixt the Godly and Ungodly, 'twill be as much as I can expect to ſee the wickedneſs of men reſtrain'd and curb'd by good Laws that they perſecute not; but renewing Grace muſt change their hearts and deſtroy their inbred Enmity, before they cloſe with the people of God in Love. Nor do I think ſupercilious Phariſees or ſuperſtitious Bigots will inwardly and heartily affect the ſincere and ſpiritual Servants of Chriſt; 'twill be a mercy they cannot afflict, whom they do not affect: but I ſhould hope that in ſuch a time as this, all that love the Lord Jeſus in ſincerity, and are animated by the ſame Spirit of Grace and Adoption, ſhould now every where depoſe their Wrath, compoſe their little differences; and that their hearts be now melted, in the ſenſe of theſe great and common Salvations, into more love and union than ever. Such returns as theſe will be pleaſing to the Lord, and the only methods of lengthening out England's Tranquillity. And tho my Infirmities as well as Age cut off my expectations of being much longer ſerviceable, or of enjoying long the mercies God is preparing for his People; yet I ſhould account it an extraordinary mercy to ſee theſe beginnings of mercy well improved in order to thoſe greater and better ones. Which brings me to the laſt Obſervation, which next comes to be opened and applied, viz.

Obſerv. That the beginnings of Mercy and Deliverance to the Church, are convertible into ſo many Arguments, and Pleas in Prayer for the Perfection and Conſummation thereof.

The Point lies clear and obvious in the Text: to open it let us conſider,

1. What the Mercies were which are here called the beginnings of Mercy?
2. What the greater Mercies were, he expected beyond Jordan?
3. How the former ſtrengthen Faith in Prayer for the latter?
4. Why the compleating of Mercies begun is ſo deſirable to the Saints?

1. What thoſe mercies were which are here called the beginnings of Mercy? And they were great and manifold: in this Catalogue are to be placed all the mercies they had received for forty years, from the day they came out of Egypt, unto this great deliverance at Edrei incluſively.

(1.) God began to ſhew his great Power in their wonderful Deliverance out of Egypt, with mighty Signs, and an out-ſtretched Arm. This Deliverance from Egypt was a Pattern or Model of the future Deliverances of his Churches in New-Teſtament days. Micah 7. 15. According to the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt, will I ſhew unto him marvellous things. Which ſeemeth to have relation to the time of the Reſtitution, and ſaving of all Iſrael. After the manner of Egypt alſo hath God begun to ſave the Gentile Churches from Rome, which is ſpiritually called Egypt, Rev. 11. 8. And this begun Deliverance from the Myſtical is greater than that from Literal Egypt, and ſo much greater, by how much Spirtual Bondage and Slavery of mens Souls, is worſe than that on their bodies. The hand of God was evidently ſeen in that, and is no leſs admirable in this. The Wonders of the Reformation are like thoſe in Egypt, wrought out by the mighty Hand and Power of God.

(2.) The Hand and Power of God was ſeen in making proviſion for them in all their Wilderneſs Straits, after they came out of Egypt. There were no tilled Fields, or Barns, no Storehouſes in the Wilderneſs, nor Shops to furniſh them with Clothes for forty years in the Deſert; yet God took care to ſuſtain them. 'Tis ſaid, Nehem. 9. 21. Forty years didſt thou ſuſtain them in the wilderneſs, ſo that they lacked nothing, their clothes waxed not old, and their feet ſwelled not. And certainly it would furniſh an admirable Hiſtory of Providence, if the inſtances of God's Care over his poor ſcattered perſecuted Saints were collected, and how the Lord hath ſuſtain'd them from the beginning of the Reformation, tho none were ſuffered to buy or ſell that received not the Mark of the Beaſt in their Foreheads, or right hand, Rev. 13. 17. Their Enemies would have ſtarved them, but their God hath wonderfully provided for them.

(3.) The Lord fruſtrated all the Plots of their Enemies to deſtroy them, and there was no Enchantment againſt Jacob, nor Divination againſt Iſrael: Remember, O my people ( ſaith God ) what Balak King of Moab conſulted, and what Balaam the Son of Peor anſwered him from Shittim unto Gilgal; that ye may know the righteouſneſs of the Lord. They built many Altars, and offered many Sacrifices; what would they not have done, to have gotten but a word or two out of God's mouth againſt his People? But their God was true and faithful to them, and would not hearken to Balaam's inſinuations againſt them. There have been Plots upon Plots to deſtroy the begun Reformation. Rome and Hell have conſulted our Deſtruction, as they did theirs, but to no purpoſe.

(4.) The Lord diſcomfited and defeated the open Force as well as the ſecret Treachery of their Enemies, and no Weapon formed againſt them ever proſpered. The Kings, ſeveral Kings by whoſe lands they travelled towards Canaan, fell upon them in their way, but ſtill to their own coſt, they forfeited their Lives and Lands by their quarrel with Iſrael. And now the laſt of thoſe Kings and Kingdoms that oppoſed their paſſage, is fallen into the hands of Iſrael: Theſe were the Mercies wherein God had begun to ſhow his Greatneſs to Moſes and his People, and after the manner of Egypt, unto us alſo.

2. But what were the greater Mercies he expected beyond Jordan, which he ſo vehemently deſires to ſee, and in compariſon wherewith he ſtiles all theſe great things but the beginnings of Mercy? Certainly Moſes expected better things than theſe, as great and glorious as they were: and theſe were,

(1.) The full and free Enjoyment of all God's Ordinances, which the people had not enjoyed for Forty Years before. All that were born by the way were not circumciſed, Joſ. 5. 5. and for the Paſſover we find but three of them celebrated all that ſpace, the firſt in Egypt, Exod. 12. the ſecond at Mount Sinai, Numb. 9. the third at Gilgal in Joſhua's time, Joſ. 5. 10. and as for their other Sacrifices and Offerings appointed by the Lord, they were either omitted, or very diſorderly performed, which becauſe of their many troubles, and frequent removes, they could not enjoy; and when they did, they were not performed as he required, which the Lord ſmartly rebuked them for, Amos 5. 25. Have ye offered unto me ſacrifices and offerings in the wilderneſs forty years, O houſe of Iſrael? No they had not, at leaſt not in the due order as God required. But when they ſhould arrive to a ſettled condition in Canaan, then the Ordinances of God ſhould be more frequently enjoyed, and that after the due Order, for ſo Moſes had told them, Deut. 12. 8, 9. Ye ſhall not do after all the things that we do here this day, every man whatſoever is right in his own eyes; for ye are not as yet come to the reſt, and to the inheritance which the Lord your God giveth you. When they ſhould be ſettled in Canaan, and the Ark find reſt, Moſes knew that all things ſhould then be reduced to the Rule and Pattern God had given them. And truly nothing is more beautiful, more deſirable in the eyes of the Saints. For ſo much of God's Order as is found in his Worſhip, ſo much of his Preſence and Bleſſing may be expected, and no more. And as he expected more purity in Ordinances, ſo

(2.) Reſt and Peace was expected in Canaan, a Mercy the People had long wanted. The Ark had been ambulatory a long time, removing now here, now there: but in the Temple it was to find reſt. Therefore you read in Pſal. 132. 8. the Temple called the place of reſt; Ariſe O Lord into thy reſt, thou and the Ark of thy ſtrength, becauſe there it was to have a fixed abode. And as the Ark was there to find a place of reſt, ſo the people alſo, who inſtead of Tents ſhould now be placed in Towns and Cities.

(3.) But eſpecially that which Moſes deſired to ſee in Canaan, was the fulfilling and accompliſhment of the promiſes of God made to the Patriarchs, in the Faith and Comfort whereof they lived and died. This Privilege Joſhua enjoyed, Chap. 23. 14. Not one thing hath failed, all are come to paſs. O what a lovely and deſirable ſight was this?

But in theſe latter days, we, for whom better things are provided, look for greater Mercies than Moſes and the people could expect in Canaan. For we according to the Promiſes expect,

(1.) An abundant increaſe of the Church, both extenſively, in the number of Converts; and intenſively, in the power of Religion. The beſt Miniſters every where complain with the Prophet, that they labour in vain, and ſpend their ſtrength for nought. They now and then at beſt hear but of a ſingle Soul wrought upon; but the time will come, when they ſhall not fiſh with Angle-Rods, but ſpread out their Nets, and incloſe multitudes, according to that glorious promiſe, Ezek. 47. 10. And as to the intenſive increaſe of the Church in the Spirit and Power of Godlineſs, we expect to ſee a Generation of more Spiritual, Active, and Lively Chriſtians to ſpring up, ſuch as ſhall far excel thoſe of this drowſie, lukewarm Generation, according to that promiſe, Iſa. 60. 21. Thy people alſo ſhall be all righteous.

(2.) Greater peace and quietneſs from perſecuting Enemies, is yet to be expected. The poor Church hath been afflicted, and toſſed with Tempeſts. Perſecutors have broken in ever and anon upon it, and made havock of it; a tender Conſcience hath caſt men upon great difficulties to preſerve it; but the days are coming when God will give his Church reſt, either by the converſion, or reſtraint of all its Enemies: the Wolf ſhall lie down with the Lamb. Antipathies ſhall be depoſed, Iſa. 11. 6. not a pricking Briar or grieving Thorn, that ſhall not be rooted up, Ezek. 28. 24. Surely this is a ſweet and deſirable mercy to the weary Saints, and yet a far ſweeter mercy than that is to be expected, viz.

(3.) The pouring out of the Spirit of Unity on the people of God, to conſolidate and ſtrengthen the poor dilacerated Church. For the diviſions of Reuben, there have been great thoughts of heart. Our Diviſions have darkned the luſtre of Religion, imbittered and ſpoiled the Communion of Saints, prejudiced the World, and obſtructed Converſion. But God will melt the Hearts of the Saints into one, Jer. 32. 39. They ſhall have one Heart, and one Way, and ſerve the Lord with one conſent. Then ſhall Religion ſhine in its native Glory. One reaſon of our juſtlings one againſt another hath been the darkneſs that hath been upon us all. But this darkneſs ſhall break up: for

(4.) We expect a more Spiritual and Excellent Miniſtry than the Church for many years hath enjoyed; Jer. 3. 15. I will give you Paſtors according to mine heart, which ſhall feed you with knowledg, and underſtanding. 'Tis a ſore plague and judgment upon the World, when men ſhall be ſet over the people, that are ignorant of Regeneration, ſtrangers and enemies to practical Holineſs, Men that break their profane Jeſts upon the very Spirit of Prayer. But theſe unclean Spirits ſhall paſs out of the Land, Zech. 13. 2. O what a good riddance will this be! when God ſhall ſet up in their room laborious, faithful and godly Miniſters, full of experimental knowledg of Chriſt; Watchmen that ſhall ſee eye to eye, as he ſpeaks Iſa. 52. 8. Then ſhall we ſee another moſt deſirable and ineſtimable Mercy perform'd to the Church, beyond all it hath enjoyed ſince the primitive days, namely,

(5.) The purity of Ordinances and Officers in the Church, the whole Worſhip and Oeconomy of the Church meaſured by the Scripture-Reed, according to Rev. 11. 1, 2. and Ezek. 43. 11. all reduced to the pure primitive Rule and Standard, which will diſcover and correct the oblique and corruptive ſuperadditions of men; things under which men of tender Conſciences, and ſuch as tremble at the Word, in all Ages have groaned. And then will the Ordinances of God ſhine forth in their Beauty, and be mighty in power and efficacy; eſpecially when

(6.) There ſhall be a more eminent preſence of God among his People. For ſo it is promiſed, Ezek. 48. ult. And the name of the City (viz. the meaſured regulated Church) from that day ſhall be, The Lord is there. 'This is the true Glory of the Church; this makes the new Heavens and the new Earth, which according to his Promiſe we look for, and the great and marvellous things our Eyes behold this day are the beginnings and introductions to it: which brings us to the third General Head, namely,

3. What influence theſe begun works of God have to ſtrengthen and encourage our ſouls in Prayer for theſe greater and more perfect Mercies: and this they do upon a threefold account.

(1.) As theſe begun introductive works of Mercy are indications and ſigns that the time of Mercy, even the ſet time is come.

There is an appointed or ſet time for the Churches Deliverance now, as well as for theirs out of Egypt; that was called the time of the promiſe, Acts 7. 17. Deliverance can neither come before it, nor will it linger when that time is fully come. Promiſes like a pregnant woman, have their appointed Months, Hab. 2. 3. their ſet and appointed time, Pſal. 102. 13. Now, when we behold ſuch things done, and doing in the World, as are at this day before our eyes, we may rationally conclude the time of Mercy, even the ſet time is near; as our Saviour ſpeaks, Mat. 24. 32, 33. Learn a parable of the figtree; when his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that Summer is nigh: ſo likewiſe ye, when ye ſhall ſee all theſe things, know that it is near, even at the door.

Now, it is a ſingular encouragement in Prayer, when we know, or can but probably conjecture that the time is near for the accompliſhment and performance of thoſe very promiſed Mercies we pray for. As we ſee in Daniel, Chap. 9. 2, 3. when Daniel underſtood by ſearching and ſtudying the Sacred Records, ſuch Propheſies as that Jer. 25. 11, 12. that the time foreſet was near at an end, then he ſet himſelf with extraordinary fervency to Prayer. And do not the generality of learned and good men agree, that the ſet time for Rome's deſtruction is now near, even at the door? 'Tis near 1260 years ſince Chriſt turned up her Glaſs, and you ſee this day all things working towards the accompliſhment of the written Word. This cannot but be a ſtrong encouragement to ſeek God by Prayer for the full accompliſhment of what is ſo near us.

(2.) God hath ordered the Deliverances and Mercies of his Church to be birthed out by the Cries and Prayers of his People. When therefore Mercies are come to the Birth, 'tis a ſpecial ſeaſon, and ſingular encouragement to Prayer. Ezek. 36. 36, 37. I the Lord plant that that was deſtroyed, I have ſpoken it, and I will do it: thus ſaith the Lord God, Yet for this will I be enquired of by the houſe of Iſrael, to do it for them. So again in Jer. 29. 11, 12. I know the thoughts that I think towards you, ſaith the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of evil; to give you an expected end. Then ſhall ye call upon me, and ye ſhall go and pray unto me; and I will hearken unto you. In both theſe places, you ſee God will have Prayer to aſſiſt the Birth of Mercy; and never is any Mercy ſo ſweet, as when Prayer comes betwixt our Dangers and Deliverances, our wants and ſupplies. Hence it was that Hezekiah ſent that ſeaſonable Meſſage to the Prophet Iſaiah, 2 Kings 19. 3. Lift up a cry for the remnant that is left, for the Children are come to the birth, and there is no ſtrength to bring forth. If ever men will ſtrive with God to purpoſe in Prayer, 'tis when they perceive the greateſt Mercies are at the Birth, and Prayer is the Midwife to bring it forth.

(3.) When God hath begun a work of Mercy, it gives ſingular encouragement to Prayer, becauſe that time is the time of finding a proper and acceptable Seaſon; as it is Pſal. 32. 6. For this ſhall every one that is godly pray unto thee, in a time when thou mayeſt be found: Or in a time of finding. Courtiers who have great Requeſts to make to Kings, do carefully obſerve their molliſſima fandi tempora, as they call them; their convenient ſeaſons when they find the King moſt propenſe and inclinable to Acts of Grace. That which is in motion, is the more eaſily moved. God is now in the way of Mercy. His Goodneſs is moving ſpontaneouſly towards us; and if ever Prayer be like to ſpeed and prevail, now is the time. And in the laſt place,

(4.) Manifold and weighty are the Reaſons and Motives that ſhould fully engage the moſt fervent deſires and prayers of all the Saints to ſee the full Deliverance of Sion; and to paſs over Jordan, to behold that goodly Mountain and Lebanon, I mean thoſe ſix glorious Mercies and Privileges before mentioned.

Firſt, The Saints Love to Chriſt makes it above meaſure deſirable to them. Nothing is more dear and precious to a Chriſtian, than the Glory and Intereſt of Chriſt; and anſwerable to the ſtrength of their Love, is the fervor of their Deſires. 'Tis ſaid, Pſal. 102. 16. When the Lord ſhall build up Sion, he ſhall appear in his glory.

Whilſt the Church groans under Antichriſt, the Glory of Jeſus Chriſt is darkned and much eclipſed in the World. It hath been the chief part of the Saints Sufferings to ſee his Ordinances polluted, and the Rights of Heaven invaded by the Uſurpations of Men; this is it that hath coſt them more ſorrow of Heart than their perſonal Sufferings have done. But to ſee the accompliſhment of that Propheſie, Rev. 11. 19. what will it be but as life from the dead? And the Temple of God was opened in Heaven, and there was ſeen in his Temple the Ark of his Teſtament, &c. As it was an exceeding joy to the Godly in Iſrael, when good Joſiah came to the Crown, to ſee the Temple opened, which had been neglected in the days of his Predeceſſors Manaſſeh and Amon, in whoſe Reigns the Book of the Law had lain in the rubbiſh, but now the Worſhip of God was reſtored; ſo it cannot but raviſh a gracious heart with ſingular delight and joy, to ſee the pure primitive Worſhip of God reſtored to its firſt Purity and Glory: And the more any man is ſanctified, the more he is inflamed with deſires after it, becauſe the Glory of Chriſt is ſo much intereſted and concerned therein.

Secondly, Their love to the Church, of which they are Members, makes this greatly deſirable. Moſes was a Man who excelled in love to the Church. witneſs that tranſcendent rapture of his, Exod. 32. 32. but though he be ſcarcely imitable therein, yet every real Chriſtian doth in his right frame prefer Jeruſalem to his chief joy, Pſal. 137. 5, 6. and accordingly, their love to Zion is evidenced in their Prayers for and deſires of its proſperity. Iſa. 61. 2. For Zions ſake will I not hold my peace, and for Jeruſalems ſake I will not reſt, until the righteouſneſs thereof go forth as brightneſs, and the ſalvation of it as a lamp that burneth. So again, Pſal. 122. 8. For my brethren, my companions ſake, I will now ſay, Peace be within thee. For when the Church ſhall be delivered from the Antichriſtian yoke, and ſetled in peace and purity, great will its increaſe be. Her Children ſhall ſay again in her Ears, The place is too ſtrait, give room that we may dwell. She will look forth as the Morning, and her glory be freſh in her.

Thirdly, The pity and compaſſion the Saints have for the poor, miſerable, periſhing World, cannot but make this a deſirable thing in their Eyes. For whilſt the Goſpel is reſtrained in its full liberty, or the Ordinances corrupted by the mixture of Humane Inventions and Traditions; 'tis not to be expected that the Church ſhould be much enlarged by addition of Converts.

The Kingdom of our Lord Jeſus is for preſent confined within ſtrait and narrow limits; and it is juſt matter of ſorrow to conſider, how ſmall a part of the habitable World is in ſubjection to him: So many Millions bowing down to Idols; the dark places of the Earth, are full of the habitations of Cruelty, Pſal. 74. 20. The ſight of precious Souls periſhing for want of the Word, made the bowels of the compaſſionate Redeemer to yern within him, Matth. 9. 36. and the ſame conſideration and occaſion cannot but affect and melt every Soul in which is the Spirit of Chriſt: proportionably to the compaſſions Men have for the miſeries of the periſhing World, will their deſires be for the enlarging and perfecting of Goſpel Privileges and Mercies.

Fourthly, Love to our ſelves will make us long for ſuch a ſight as this: For what is there in this World more pleaſant to a Chriſtian, than to ſee Chriſt walking amidſt the Golden Candleſticks? the peaceful and ſweet enjoyment of God in his pure Ordinances? Pſal. 27. 4. One thing have I deſired of the Lord, that will I ſeek after, that I may dwell in the houſe of the Lord all the days of my Life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to inquire in his Temple. This was David's hoc unicum, one thing above all other things in this World in his Eye, and ſo it is to all that ſee things with ſuch an Eye as David had; and next to that is the ſweet and comfortable communion of Saints, with one heart and mouth glorifying God, and ſerving him with one conſent. Theſe are the things that make it worth while to live on Earth: The pleaſure of Life doth conſiſt in them. Now all theſe deſirable things cannot be enjoyed in any eminent degree on this ſide Jordan, I mean till the great promiſes now near their birth, be accompliſhed.

USE I.

The point before us frowns upon, and ſeverely reprehends two ſorts of perſons, viz.

1. The Wicked.
2. The Godly.

(1.) It adminiſters juſt reprehenſion to wicked men, who inſtead of thankful acknowledgments of the beginnings of mercies, and improving them in Prayer for the obtaining of greater, do inwardly repine and fret at the Work of Mercy begun, and are afraid of nothing more than a full and compleat Reformation. Are there not ſuch wretched Creatures to be found this day in England, that would be better pleaſed to be at their old perſecuting work again, and ſee good men deſtroyed, than to enjoy a due liberty to worſhip God according to the dictates their Conſciences, after they have ſeriouſly ſtudied and pray'd for information? Some there are who call themſelves Proteſtants, but (bluſh O Heavens at this, and be aſtoniſhed) they have not been aſhamed to ſay, rather Popery than Presbytery: And Haman like, take no comfort in their own liberty, becauſe thoſe they hate injoy theirs.

Thus it was with the ungodly Murmurers in Iſrael, when God had brought them out of Ægypt with Signs and Wonders, and a mighty hand, yet their luſts being croſſed, they would needs make them a Captain, and return back to Egypt, Numb. 14. 4. What madneſs was here? Could they think God would divide the Red Sea for them in their return to Egypt, as he did at their departure thence? Or that they ſhould find ſuch welcome in Egypt, which they had deſerted, diſobliged, and brought ſo much ruine upon? What ſtupendous madneſs was here!

(2.) It juſtly rebukes the dead-heartedneſs and ingratitude of good men, among many of whom is neither found that fervency in Prayer, nor ſenſe of preſent mercies which God expects, and the preſent diſpenſations of his Providences call for.

How inexcuſable at this time, is a flat, diſcouraged and dull Spirit in Prayer? To be found under ſuch a temper as this, when the morning of ſo glorious a day is ſprung up and opened upon us, ſuch encouragements to enliven Faith and Hope are before our eyes; this is ſad. The Saints that are gone to Heaven under the late and former troubles, were mighty wreſtlers with God in Prayer: They faſted and wept; they pleaded our cauſe heartily with God, wept and made ſupplication for the mercies we now enjoy, tho it was not their lot to ſee them: and ſhall we that are entred into the Fruits and Mercies they pray'd for, and are under ſuch ſignal encouragements, be now remiſs and cold?

Or ſhall we ingratefully overlook the beginnings of Mercy, as ſmall and inconſiderable things? Shall we ſay all this is nothing, becauſe we have not yet all that we would have? God forbid. When Iſrael was in Egypt, then a little Straw would have been eſteemed as a great Mercy; but afterwards Quails and Mannah were deſpiſed and ſlighted. Brethren, three or four years ago, you would have accounted it a ſpecial Mercy to have enjoyed an hour or two together in Prayer, or to have had a little Spiritual Bread handed to you behind your Enemies backs: And is it nothing in your eyes this day, to behold the Worſhip of God at liberty? yea, to ſee the ſucceſs of the Goſpel, in the bringing home of many Souls to Chriſt? the fears of Popery vaniſhed? the Witneſſes riſen, the tenth part of the City fallen, and ſuch a proſpect of far greater and more glorious things before your eyes? O let not the Conſolations of the Almighty ſeem ſmall.

If Wicked Men envy and grudg at our Mercies, and we our ſelves undervalue and ſlight them, then is there a grievous provocation given to the Lord, to turn his hand, and bring all our former Miſeries back again upon us.

USE II.

Hath God brought us by a mighty hand out of Spiritual Egypt, by the Reformation, and hath now led us ſo many years thro the Wilderneſs, till he hath brought us at laſt almoſt in ſight of the good things he hath promiſed? then let us be exhorted to the Duties, and warned of the Dangers of our preſent State.

(1.) Take heed of provoking God in the way. Moſes die ſo, and for that was ſhut out of the good Land, Numb. 20. 12. his heedleſneſs of the Command deprived him of the good of the Promiſe. Unbelief, Murmuring, and Idolatry ſhut out many thouſands of them that came out of Egypt, and for thoſe Sins their Carcaſes fell in the Wilderneſs, 1 Cor. 10. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. And theſe are our Examples, not for imitation, but caution. When Seamen ſail along the Coaſt, where abundance of Wreck is floating, they ſail the more warily. You are not yet ſo ſecure and ſafe, but that you may quickly fall into as great Dangers and Miſeries as ever, if you provoke the Lord in the way of Mercies. In the miſcarriage of others we get experience at a cheap rate. After great Deliverances, the greateſt Judgments are to be feared, if God be provoked by the abuſe of them. So Joſhua tells them, Joſ. 24. 20. He will turn again, and do you hurt, after he hath done you good; for one Mercy can never be pleaded as an Argument to obtain another, if it be abuſed and trampled under feet. So Joſ. 23. 15. and Jude 12.

(2.) Be not diſcouraged if you ſhould meet with ſome difficulties, even on the borders of the Land of Promiſe. After all their Wilderneſs-ſtraits, Deliverance at the Red Sea, encounters with the neighbouring Kings, there was a ſwelling Jordan at laſt betwixt them and the place of reſt and mercy; and ſo it may fall out with us; but let not our Faith be ſtagger'd, for look as the Ark of the Covenant ſtood in the midſt of Jordan to ſecure the Tribes in their paſſage thro it, Joſ. 3. 8. ſo doth the Promiſe ſtand this day in the midſt of Myſtical Jordan, I mean the Dangers and Troubles of the Church, to ſecure its paſſage through them all. Brethren, follow ye the Lord in the way of Duty, and you ſhall aſſuredly find that Jordan ſhall divide when you come to it; and that all Troubles, all Fears, all Difficulties do owe you a ſafe paſſage through them: the Covenant, yea, Chriſt the Mediator of the Covenant, ſtands in the midſt of them all to ſecure you.

(3.) Bleſs God for caſting the lot of your Nativity upon ſuch a happy and extraordinary period of time as this is. Many Saints have deſired to ſee the days you are likely to ſee in a little time, and have not ſeen them. The whole ſpace of time from the firſt to the ſecond coming of Chriſt, is by the Prophets called one day, Zech. 14. 7. and the greateſt part of this long day, very doubtful and changeable; neither light, nor dark, nor day, nor night; Peace and Trouble, Truth and Errors taking all along their alternate Courſes. But at Evening time it ſhall be light: And as the greateſt darkneſs is a little before the dawning of the Morning, ſo here, the blackeſt and gloomieſt part of the whole day is to be expected before this lightſom glorious Evening; ſuch tribulations immediately before the fall and ruin of Antichriſt, as Ages paſt never ſaw. Lactantius ſpeaking of this very time, ſays, That a little before it, the State of Humane Affairs muſt ueceſſarily be changed, and all things grow worſe and worſe; ſo that theſe times of ours (ſaith he) in which iniquity is grown as one would think to the height, yet in comparison with thoſe days may even be called golden times; the Godly ſhall be every where diſtreſſed by the wicked, they ſhall flouriſh, and the righteous be in contempt: all Right and Law ſhall periſh and be confounded; no man ſhall poſſeſs any thing but what is ill gotten, or valiantly defended; there ſhall be no faithfulneſs in men; no peace, humanity, ſhame, or truth left: Wars ſhall rage every where; all Nations ſhall be in Arms; neighbouring Cities ſhall war upon each other; then ſhall ſlaughters be in all the World, mowing down all like an harveſt; of which confuſions and deſtructions, this ſhall be the cauſe: I tremble to ſpeak it, (but it muſt be ſpoken, for it ſhall ſurely come to paſs) that the Roman Name by which the World is now ruled, ſhall be taken away from the Earth.

Theſe things in themſelves are exceeding dreadful, and yet I ſay, let the Saints rejoice in that God hath caſt their lot upon theſe times. For,

1. Theſe are the laſt Troubles the Church is like to feel from the hands of that Enemy, and there is much comfort in that. God never exerciſed ſo great Patience and Long-ſuffering towards any Enemy of his Church as he hath towards this. But the day is come to avenge the blood of the Saints upon Babylon, and deſtructions are come, even come to a perpetual End.

2. The Lord will take care of his People in all theſe Calamities, and National Confuſions. They ſhall be reſerved as a Seed to continue and inlarge the Church, which is to be the ſubject of all the promiſed Liberty and Glory.

(4.) Labour to get ſutable frames of ſpirit to thoſe good Times you expect. Carnal Hearts will not ſute them, or find any pleaſure in them. We look according to the promiſe for new Heavens, and a new Earth wherein dwelleth Righteouſneſs; and ſeeing we look for ſuch things, O what manner of perſons ought we to be! 2 Pet. 3. 11. You that are Parents, how are you concerned not only for your ſelves, but for the Religious Education of your Children: If you live not to ſee thoſe good days, in all probability they will; the hopes of the next Generation depend much upon your religious and zealous Care and Diligence. Never were Children born in a more happy and encouraging time than yours is.

And for you young ones, I would leave one word of Counſel this day. Get Principles of Grace implanted in your hearts betime. For the days are coming in which the World will be no place of pleaſure for profane and carnal perſons. As ſerious Piety hath been hiſſed at and ridicul'd in theſe late debauched times, ſo will profaneneſs in future times. Holineſs to the Lord ſhall be upon the bells of the Horſes, Zech. 14. 20. that is, Husbandmen ſhall have their Hearts in Heaven, whilſt their Hands are on the Plow. Merchants and Seamen ſhall drive a trade for Heaven, as well as Earth, Iſa. 23. 18. Iſa. 60. 5. If you be profane and ungodly, you ſhall at once be the contempt of Heaven and Earth.

(5.) Laſtly, Bleſs God for thoſe Inſtruments by which you are brought out of Spiritual Egypt to the borders of Canaan.

You muſt not aſcribe more to Inſtruments than is due to them, nor lean and depend too much on them. Many benumb their own Arms, by leaning on them. But on the other ſide, beware of Ingratitude to the Inſtruments by which God works out your deliverances, and conveys to you ſuch excellent Mercies. Some know no other way of expreſſing their Joy but by drunken Healths and Huzza's, a Sacrifice ſutable enough to Bacchus, but ſuch as God abhors, and his Vicegerent will not thank you for. There are other ways of expreſſing your joy in the Mercy, which will be highly acceptable both to God, and the King, viz.

(1.) Pray for your Rulers, that God would make Kings to be Nurſing Fathers, and Queens Nurſing Mothers to the Church, according to that promiſe, Iſa. 49. 23. That he would preſerve and ſecure the heart of the King by his Wiſdom and Fear from thoſe dangerous Temptations and Snares that ſurround the Throne: That he may be juſt, ruling in the fear of God, and ſo be as the light of the morning when the Sun riſeth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender graſs ſpringing out of the earth, by clear ſhining after rain, 2 Sam. 23, 3, 4. That the Zeal of God may inflame his Soul, and that he may be a ſecond Hezekiah in reſtoring and reforming the Worſhip of God: That God would lengthen the days of his life upon the Throne, for the peace and proſperity of his Church. In this you will anſwer the great things God hath done for you and his Church at this time.

(2.) Be Loyal, Peaceable and Obedient Subjects. Convince the World that Religion breeds the beſt Subjects. Render to Cæſar the things that are Cæſar's, and to God the things that are God's, Mark 12. 17. Where you enjoy Protection, you owe Allegiance. Be not Murmurers, as the ungrateful Iſraelites were, 1 Cor. 10. 10. Underſtand and value the Mercies you enjoy under the Government, and bleſs God for them; leſt he teach you by ſad Experience the difference betwixt his ſervice, and the ſervice of the Kingdoms of the Countries, as he did them, 2 Chron. 12. 8. Beware you exchange not the Golden Yoke of Chriſt for the Iron Yoke of Antichriſt.

(3.) Take heed to order your Converſations aright, let not your irreligious lives make the ſolemn Religious Duties of this day to bluſh. Whoſo offereth praiſe, glorifieth me; and to him that ordereth his converſation aright, will I ſhew the ſalvation of God, Pſal. 50. ult. And thus your preſent Mercies, how great and glorious ſoever they be in themſelves, ſhall be but as the dawning Light of a much more Glorious Day ſpringing up upon theſe Nations, and all the Churches of Chriſt after ſo long and gloomy a night of Afflictions and Sorrows; which the Father of Mercies grant for the ſake of Jeſus Chriſt. Amen.

DIVINE CONDUCT: ## OR, THE # Myſtery of Providence,
Opened in a TREATISE
Upon PSAL. LVII. ii.

---

To the Right Honourable William, Duke of Bedford, Lord Ruſſel of Thornehaugh, and Knight of the Moſt Noble Order of the Garter.

My LORD,

IT was a weighty and ſavoury Speech, which a Pious Pen once ſaved from your Lordſhip's Lips, viz. That You accounted the Prayers of God's Miniſters and People, the beſt Walls about your Houſe. He that ſo accounts, doubtleſs underſtands, that Prayer engageth Providence, Iſa. 45. 11. And Providence ſo engaged, is the ſureſt Munition, Job 1. 10.

Mr. Iſaac Ambroſe Epiſt. to his Ultima.

Many great Men encloſe their Dwellings with an high Wall, but the Foundation (as the Wiſeſt of Men obſerves) is laid in their own Conceits, Prov. 18. 11. Yea, in Sin, and crying Sin too, Hab. 2. 12. Of ſuch Walls we may ſay, as the Oracle to Phocas, ἐὰν ὑψοῖς τὰ τείχη ἕως οὐρανοῦ, ἔνδον τὸ κακόν. If the Building emulate the Skies, yet Sin being in the Bottom, all will totter.

'Tis a fond Vanity, to think of enſuring a Deſtiny that can controul the Stars, and endure the aſſaults of Fortune, (as they love to ſpeak) whilſt Providence is not engaged for them, no not ſo much as by a bare acknowledgment.

My Lord, It is not the vaſt Bulk of an Eſtate, nor the beſt humane Security in the World, but the vigilant Care of Divine Providence, that guards both It, and its Owners from the ſtroke of Ruine. 'Tis the fear of God within us, and the Providence of God round about us, which make the firm and ſolid Baſis of all ſanctified and durable Proſperity. It is beyond all Debate, that there is a Providence of God always enfolding thoſe in Everlaſting Arms, that bear his Image. The Impreſs of that Image upon you, and the Embraces of thoſe Arms about you, will advance you higher, and ſecure you better, than your Noble Birth or Eſtate could ever do.

My Lord, Providence hath molded you, è meliori luto, made you both the Off-ſpring and Head of an Illuſtrious Family, Planted you in a rich and pleaſant Soyl, cauſed many Noble Branches to Spring from you, drawn your Life even unto Old Age, through the Delights and Honours of this World. And now that you have tried all thoſe Things that make the faireſt Pretenſions to Happineſs: What have you found in all theſe painted Beauties, and falſe glozing Excellencies which have ſucceſſively courted you? Which of them all can you pronounce Self-deſirable? Which can you call objectum par amori? What is it to have the Fleſh indulged, Senſe gratified, Fancy tickled? What have you found in Meats and Drinks, in Stately Houſes and Pleaſant Gardens; in Gold and Silver, in Honour and Applauſe to match the Appetite of your Nobler Soul? Surely (My Lord) to turn from them all with a generous Diſdain, as one that knows where to find better Entertainment; is much more Noble, than wholly to immerſe, and loſe our Spirits in thoſe ſenſual Fruitions, as many do, alas, too many in our Days!

We are fallen into the dregs of Time; Senſuality runs every where into Atheiſm. Providentia peperit divitias, ſed filia devoravit matrem. The Largeſſes of Providence have ſo blinded, and perfectly ſtupified the Minds of ſome, that they neither own a Providence, nor a God who do σαρκοποιεῖν τὸν ἄνθρωπον ὅλον, καὶ τὴν ψυχὴν ταῖς τοῦ σώματος ἡδοναῖς κατασυβωτεῖν, as Plutarch both Wittily and Judiciouſly reply'd upon Colotes the Epicurean.

But bleſſed be God, there is a ſincere part, both of the Nobles and Commons of England, which this Gangrene hath not yet touched, and I hope, never ſhall.

My Lord, It is both your Honour and Intereſt to be ὅλως τοῦ κρείττονος, the entire and devoted Servant of Providence. It was once the wiſh of a good Man, optarem id me eſſe Deo, quod eſt mihi manus mea. This is the moſt Noble and Divine Life that can be, to live and Act in this World upon Eternal Deſigns. To look upon our ſelves and what we have, as things devoted to God; not to be content that Providence ſhould ſerve it ſelf of us, (for ſo it doth even of thoſe things which underſtand nothing of it) but to Study wherein we may ſerve Providence, and be inſtrumental in its Hand for the good of many; this is to be truly Honourable; Quo magis quis Deo vivit, eo evadit nobilior, clarior, divinior.

How much God hath honoured you in this Reſpect, the World will underſtand better, when your Lordſhip ſhall be gathered to your Fathers, and ſleep in the Duſt, then he that praiſeth, cannot be ſuſpected of Flattery; nor he that is praiſed, be moved with Vain-glory: But the Approbation of God, is infinitely better than the moſt glorious Name among Men, before, or after Death.

And as it is moſt honourable to ſerve, ſo you will find it moſt comfortable to obſerve the Ways of God in his Providence: To compoſe our ſelves to think of the Conduct of Providence through all the Stages of Life we have hitherto paſſed. To note the reſults of its profound Wiſdom, the Effects of its tender Care, the diſtinguiſhing Fruits of its ſpecial Bounty: To mark how Providences have gone along ſtep by ſtep with the Promiſes, and both with us till they have now brought us near to our Everlaſting Reſt, Oh! how delectable! how tranſporting are ſuch Meditations as theſe!

My Lord, It is the Deſign of this Manual, to aſſert the Being and Efficacy of Providence againſt the Atheiſm of the Times; and to diſplay the Wiſdom and Care of the Providence of God in all the Concerns of that People who are really his. 'Tis probable, if your Lordſhip will ſtoop to ſuch a Vulgar Compoſure, ſomewhat may occur of a grateful reliſh to your pious Mind. I confeſs, It is not accommodated, either in Exactneſs of Method, or Elegancy of Style, to gratifie the Curious; nor yet is it deſtitute of what may pleaſe and profit the truly gracious.

Should I here recite the Pleaſures and advantages reſulting from an humble and heedful eyeing of the Methods of Providence, it would look more like a Book in an Epiſtle, than an Epiſtle in a Book. One taſte of ſpiritual Senſe will ſatisfie you better, than all the accurate Deſcriptions and high Encomiums that the moſt Elegant Pen can beſtow upon it.

My Lord, It is not that Eminent Station that ſome Perſons retain (in Civil reſpects) above the Vulgar, that will Enable them to Penetrate the Myſteries, and Reliſh the Sweetneſs of Providence better than others; (for doubtleſs many that live immediately upon Providence for daily Bread, do thereby gain a nearer Acquaintance with it, than thoſe, whoſe outward enjoyments flow to them in a more Plentiful and Stated courſe) but thoſe that Excel in grace and experience, thoſe that walk and converſe with God in all his Diſpenſations towards them; theſe are the Perſons who are moſt fully and immediately capable of theſe high pleaſures of the Chriſtian Life. The daily flow and increaſe whereof in your Lordſhips Noble Perſon and Family, is the hearty Deſire of

To the Ingenuous READERS, thoſe eſpecially who are the Heedful Obſervers of the Ways of PROVIDENCE.

Reader,

THERE are two ways whereby the bleſſed God condeſcends to manifeſt himſelf to Men, His Word, and his Works. Of the written Word we muſt ſay, No words like theſe were ever written ſince the beginning of Time, which can (as one ſpeaks) take life and root in the Soul, yea, doth it as really as the ſeed doth in the ground: and are fitted to be engraffed and naturalized there, ſo as no coalition in nature can be more real than this, James 1.21. This is the moſt tranſcendant and glorious medium of manifeſtation; God hath magnified his word above all his name, Pſal. 138. 2.

However, the manifeſtations of God by his Works, whether of Creation or Providence have their value, and glory: but the prime glory and excellency of his Providential works conſiſts in this, that they are the very fulfillings and real accompliſhments of his written word. By a wiſe and heedful attendance hereunto, we might learn that excellent Art, which is (not unfitly called by ſome Scientia architectonica, an Art to clear the Myſterious occurrences of Providence, by reducing them to the written word, and there lodge them as Effects in their proper Cauſes. And doubtleſs, this is one of the rareſt eſſays Men could purſue againſt Atheiſm, to ſhew, not only how Providences concurr in a moſt obvious tendency to confirm this great Concluſion, Thy word is Truth; but how it ſometimes extorts alſo the confeſſion of a God, and the truth of his Word, from thoſe very tongues which have boldly denyed it. Æſchyles the Perſian relating their diſcomfiture by the Grecian Army, makes this notable obſervation, “When the Grecian Forces hotly purſued us, (ſaith he) and we muſt needs venture over the great Water Strymon, then frozen, but beginning to thaw, when a hundred to one we had all dyed for it, with mine eyes I then ſaw many of thoſe Gallants whom I had heard before ſo boldly maintain, there was no God, every one upon their knees, with eyes and hands lifted up, begging hard for help and mercy, and entreating that the Ice might hold till they got over. Many thouſand ſeals hath Providence forced the very Enemies of God to ſet to his Truth, which greatly tends to our confirmation therein; but eſpecially, to ſee how the Word and Providences of God do enlighten each other; and how the Scriptures contain all thoſe Events, both great and ſmall, which are diſpoſed by Providence in their ſeaſons: And how not only the Promiſes of the Word, are in the general faithfully fulfilled to the Church in all her Exigences and Diſtreſſes; but in particular to every member of it; they being all furniſhed by Providence with multitudes of Experiences to this uſe and end. O how uſeful are ſuch obſervations!

And as the profit and uſe, ſo the delight and pleaſure reſulting from the obſervations of providence, is exceeding great. It will doubtleſs be a part of our entertainment in Heaven, to view with tranſporting delight, how the deſigns and methods were laid to bring us thither: and what will be a part of our bleſſedneſs in Heaven, may well be allowed to have a prime ingrediency into our Heaven upon Earth. To ſearch for pleaſure among the due Obſervations of Providence, is to ſearch for Water in the Ocean: for Providence doth not only, ultimately deſign to bring you to Heaven, but (as intermediate thereunto) to bring (by this means) much of Heaven into your ſouls in the way thither.

How great a pleaſure is it to diſcern how the moſt wiſe God is providentially ſteering all to the Port of his own Praiſe, and his peoples Happineſs, whilſt the whole world is buſily employed in managing the Sails, and tugging at the Oars, with a quite oppoſite deſign and purpoſe? To ſee how they promote his deſign by oppoſing it, and fulfil his Will by reſiſting it, enlarge his Church by ſcattering it, and make their reſt to come the more ſweet to their ſouls, by making their condition ſo reſtleſs in the world. This is pleaſant to obſerve in general: But to record and note its particular deſigns upon our ſelves; with what profound wiſdom, infinite tenderneſs, and inceſſant vigilancy it hath managed all that concerns us from firſt to laſt, is raviſhing and tranſporting.

O what an Hiſtory might we compile of our own Experiences, whilſt with a melting heart we trace the footſteps of Providence all along the way it hath led us to this day; and ſet our Remarques upon its more eminent performances for us in the ſeveral Stages of our Life!

Here it prevented, and there it delivered: Here it directed, and there it corrected. In this it grieved, and in that it relieved. Here was the Poiſon, and there the Antidote. This Providence raiſed a diſmal Cloud, and that diſpelled it again. This ſtraitned, and that enlarged. Here a want, and there a ſupply. This Relation withered, and that ſpringing up in its room. Words cannot expreſs the high delights and gratifications, a gracious heart may find in ſuch employment as this.

O what a world of rarities are to be found in Providence! The blind heedleſs world makes nothing of them: they cannot find one ſweet bit, where a gracious ſoul would make a rich feaſt. Plutarch relates very exactly, how Timoleon was miraculouſly delivered from the conſpiracy of two Murderers, by their meeting in the very nick of time a certain perſon, who to revenge the death of his Father, killed one of them, juſt as they were ready to give Timoleon the fatal blow, though he knew nothing of the buſineſs, and ſo Timoleon eſcaped the danger. And what did this wonderful work of Providence think you, yield the Relater? Why, though he was one of the moſt learned and ingenious among the Heathen Sages; yet all he made of it, was only this, The Spectators (ſaith he) wondered greatly at the Artifice and contrivance which Fortune uſes. This is all he could ſee in it. Had a ſpiritual and wiſe Chriſtian had the diſſecting and Anatomizing of ſuch a work of Providence, what glory would it have yielded to God! What comfort and encouragement to the Soul! The Bee makes a ſweeter meal upon one ſingle flower, than the Ox doth upon the whole Meadow, where thouſands of them grow.

O Reader, if thy heart be ſpiritual and well ſtock'd with experience, if thou haſt recorded the ways of Providence towards thee, and wilt but allow thy ſelf time to reflect upon them; what a life of pleaſure maiſt thou live! What an Heaven upon Earth doth this way lead thee into! I will not here tell thee, what I have met in this Path, leſt it ſhould ſeem to ſavour of too much Vanity; non eſt religio ubi omnia patent. There are ſome Delights and Enjoyments in the Chriſtian Life, which are and muſt be encloſed. But Try it thy ſelf, Taſte and See, and thou wilt need no other inducement; thine own Experience will be the moſt powerful Oratory to perſwade thee to the ſtudy and ſearch of Providence.

Hiſtories are uſually read with Delight: when once the fancy is catcht, a man knows not how to diſengage himſelf from it. I am greatly miſtaken, if the Hiſtory of our own Lives, if it were well drawn up, and deſtinctly peruſed, would not be the pleaſanteſt Hiſtory that ever we read in our Lives.

The enſuing Treatiſe is an Eſſay to that purpoſe, in which thou wilt find ſome remarques ſet upon Providence, in its paſſage through the ſeveral Stages of our life. But Reader, thou only art able to compile the Hiſtory of Providence for thy ſelf, becauſe the memorials that furniſh it, are only in thine own hands. However, here thou maiſt find a pattern, and general Rules to direct thee in that great and difficult work, which is the very end, and deſign of this Manual.

I have not had much regard to the dreſs, and ornament in which this Diſcourſe is to go abroad, for I am debtor both to the ſtrong and weak, the wiſe and fooliſh: and in all my obſervation I have not found, that ever God hath made much uſe of laboured periods, Rhetorical flowers, and Elegancies to improve the power of Religion in the world: Yea, I have obſerved, how Providence hath ſometimes rebuked good men, when upon other Subjects they have too much affected thoſe pedantick fooleries in withdrawing from them its uſual aids, and expoſing them to ſhame; and much more may it do ſo, when it ſelf is the Subject.

Reader, if thy ſtomach be nice and ſqueaſie, and nothing will reliſh with thee, but what is ſpruce and elegant, there are ſtore of ſuch compoſures in the World, upon which thou maieſt even ſurfeit thy curious fancy: mean time there will be found ſome that will bleſs God for what thou deſpiſeſt, and make many a ſweet Meal upon what thou loatheſt.

I will add no more, but my hearty prayers that Providence will direct this Treatiſe to ſuch hands, in ſuch ſeaſons, and ſo bleſs and proſper its deſign, that God may have glory, thou maiſt have benefit, and my ſelf comfort in the ſucceſs thereof, who am

Thine and the Churches Servant, in

PSAL. LVII. ii.

I will cry unto God moſt high, unto God that performeth all things for me.

THE Greatneſs of God is a glorious, and unſearchable Myſtery. The Lord moſt high is terrible; he is a great King over all the Earth, Pſal 47. 2. The condeſcenſion of the moſt high God to Men is alſo a profound Myſtery. Though the Lord be high, yet hath he reſpect unto the lowly, Pſal. 138. 6. But when both theſe meet together (as they do in this Scripture) they make up a matchleſs Myſtery. Here we find the moſt High God performing all things for a poor diſtreſſed Creature.

It is the great ſupport and ſolace of the Saints in all the diſtreſſes that befall them here, that there is a Wiſe Spirit ſitting in all the wheels of motion, and governing the moſt excentrical Creatures and their moſt pernicious Deſigns to Bleſſed and Happy Iſſues. And indeed it were not worth while to live in a World κενῶ Θεȣ̃ ϗ̀ προνοίας, devoid of God and Providence.

How deeply we are concerned in this matter, will appear by that great Inſtance, which this Pſalm preſents us with.

It was compoſed (as the Title notes) by David Prayer-Wiſe, when he hid himſelf from Saul in the Cave: And is inſcribed with a double Title, Altaſchith Michtam of David. Altaſchith refers to the ſcope, and Michtam to the Dignity of the Subject matter.

The former ſignifies deſtroy not, or let there be no ſlaughter, and may either refer to Saul, concerning whom he gave charge to his Servants not to deſtroy him; or rather, it hath reference to God, to whom in this great exigence he poured out his Soul in this Pathetical Ejaculation, Altaſchith deſtroy not.

The latter Title Michtam ſignifies a Golden Ornament, and ſo is ſuited to the choice and excellent matter of the Pſalm, which much more deſerves ſuch a Title, than Pythagoras his Golden Verſes did.

Altaſchith ne perdas, ſcil. vel 1. Saulem; repreſſit enim ſuos David qui incitabant ipſum ut Saulem perderet. Vel. 2. me ô Deus. Geirus in loc. Michtam ornamentum aureum vel aureolum carmen à כתם (i. e.) aurum optimum; quia Pſalmus hic precioſus eſt inſtar auri. Burgenſis.

Three things are remarkable in the former part of the Pſalm, Viz. (1) His extream danger. (2) His earneſt addreſs to God in that extremity. (3) The Arguments he pleads with God in that Addreſs.

1. His extream danger, expreſſed both in the Title, and body of the Pſalm. The Title tells us, this Pſalm was compoſed by him when he hid himſelf from Saul in the Cave. This Cave was in the Wilderneſs of Engedi among the broken Rocks where the wild Goats inhabited, an obſcure and deſolate hole; yet even thither the Envy of Saul purſued him, 1 Sam. 24. 1, 2. And now he that had been ſo long hunted as a Partridge upon the Mountains, ſeems to be encloſed in the Net; for the place was begirt with his Enemies, and having in this place no out-let another way, and Saul himſelf entring into the mouth of this Cave, in the ſides and creeks whereof he and his Men lay hid, and ſaw him; judge to how great an extremity, and to what a deſperate ſtate things where now brought: Well might he ſay, as it is ver. 4. My ſoul is among Lyons, and I lie even among them that are ſet on fire. What hope now remained? What but immediate Deſtruction could be expected?

Cùm autem locum in quo latebat cinctum eſſe ab exercitu Saulis videret, nec jam ullum effugium pateret, quod antea ſemper in ſimilibus periculis fecerat: nunc quoque ad deum confugit. Molerus in loc.

2. Yet this frights him not out of his Faith and Duty, but betwixt the Jaws of Death he prays, and earneſtly addreſſes himſelf to God for Mercy, v. 1. Be merciful to me, O God, be merciful unto me. This excellent Pſalm was compoſed by him, when there was enough to diſcompoſe the beſt Man in the World. The Repetition notes both the extremity of the danger, and the ardency of the Supplicant. Mercy! Mercy! Nothing but Mercy, and that exerting it ſelf in an extraordinary way, can now ſave him from Ruine.

3. The Arguments he pleads for obtaining Mercy in this diſtreſs, are very conſiderable.

(1.) He pleads his reliance upon God as an Argument to move Mercy. Be merciful to me, O God, be merciful unto me, for my Soul truſteth in thee; yea in the ſhadow of thy Wings will I make my refuge, until theſe Calamities be overpaſt, ver. 1. This his Truſt and Dependance on God, though it be not Argumentative in Reſpect of the Dignity of the Act; yet it is ſo in Reſpect, both of the Nature of the Object, a compaſſionate God, who will not expoſe any that take ſhelter under his Wings; and in reſpect of the Promiſe, whereby Protection is aſſured to them that fly to him for Sanctuary, Iſa. 26. 3. Thou wilt keep him in perfect Peace, whoſe mind is ſtayed on thee, becauſe he truſteth in thee. Thus he encourages himſelf from the Conſideration of that God to whom he betakes himſelf.

(2.) He pleads former experiences of his help in paſt diſtreſſes, as an Argument encouraging hope under the preſent ſtrait, ver. 2. I will cry unto God moſt high, unto God that performeth all things for me.

In which Words I ſhall conſider Two Things.

1. The Duty reſolved upon.
2. The Encouragment to that Reſolution.

1. The Duty reſolved upon; I will cry unto God. Crying unto God, is an expreſſion that doth not only denote Prayer, but intenſe and fervent Prayer.

To cry, is to Pray in a Holy Paſſion; and ſuch are uſually ſpeeding Prayers, Pſalm. 18. 6. and Heb. 5. 7.

2. The Encouragements to this Reſolution, and theſe are Twofold.

1. Objective, taken from the Soveraignty of God.

2. Subjective, taken from the Experience he had of his Providence.

1. The Soveraignty of God, I will cry unto God moſt High. Upon this he Acts his Faith in Extremity of danger. Saul is high, but God the moſt high; and without his Permiſſion, he is aſſured Saul cannot touch him. He had none to help; and if he had, he knew God muſt firſt help the helpers, or they cannot help him. He had no means of Defence or eſcape before him, but the Moſt High is not limited by means. This is a ſingular Prop to Faith, Pſalm 59. 9.

2. The Experience of his Providence hitherto: Unto God that performeth all Things for me.

גמר rfecit, fecit, ſiit, gnin. Buxtorf.

The word which we Tranſlate [performeth] comes from a root, that ſignifies both to perfect, and to deſiſt or ceaſe. For when a buſineſs is performed and perfected, the Agent then ceaſes and deſiſts from working: He puts to the laſt hand, when he finiſhes the Work. To ſuch an happy Iſſue the Lord hath brought all his doubtful and difficult Matters before; and this gives him Encouragement, that he will ſtill be gracious, and perfect that which concerneth him now, as he ſpeaks, Pſal. 138. 8. The Lord will perfect that which concerneth me.

The Septuagint renders it by τὸν ἐυεργετήσοντά με who profiteth, or benefiteth me. And it is a certain Truth, that all the Reſults and Iſſues of Providence are profitable and beneficial to the Saints. But the Supplement in our Tranſlation well receives the importance of the place, Who performeth all things. And it involves the moſt ſtrict and proper notion of Providence, which is nothing elſe but the performance of God's gracious purpoſes, and promiſes to his People. And therefore Vatablus and Muis ſupply and fill up the room which the conciſeneſs of the Original leaves, with quæ promiſit, I will cry unto God moſt high, unto God that performeth the Things which he hath promiſed. Payment is the performance of Promiſes. Grace makes the Promiſe, and Providence the payment.

Piſcator fills it with benignitatem & miſericordiam ſuam, unto God that performeth his Kindneſs and Mercy. But ſtill it ſuppoſes the Mercy performed, to be contained in the Promiſe. Mercy is ſweet in the Promiſe, and much more ſo in the Providential Performance of it to us.

Caſtalio's Supplement comes nearer to ours, rerum mearum Tranſactorem, I will cry unto God moſt High, unto God the Tranſactor of my Affairs.

But our Engliſh, making out the ſenſe by an univerſal particle, is moſt fully agreeable to the ſcope of the Text. For it cannot but be a great Encouragement to his Faith, that God had tranſacted all things, or performed all things for him; this Providence that never failed him in any of the ſtraits that ever he met with (and his Life was a Life of many ſtraits) he might well hope it would not now fail him, tho' this were an extraordinary and matchleſs one.

Bring we then our thoughts a little cloſer to this Scripture, and it will give us a fair and lovely proſpect of Providence.

In its 1. Univerſal. 2. Effectual. 3. Beneficial. 4. Encouraging Influence upon the Affairs and Concerns of the Saints.

1. The expreſſion imports the Univerſal Intereſt and Influence of Providence in and upon all the Concerns and Intereſts of the Saints. It hath not only its hand in this or that, but in all that concerns them. It hath its Eye upon every thing that relates to them throughout their Lives, from firſt to laſt. Not only great, and more important, but the moſt Minute and ordinary affairs of our Lives are tranſacted and managed by it. It touches all things that touch us, whether more nearly or remotely.

2. It diſplaies the Efficacy of Providential Influences. Providence doth not only undertake, but [performeth] and perfects what concerns us. It goes through with its deſigns, and accompliſhes what it begins. No difficulty ſo clogs it, no croſs accident falls in its way, but it carries its deſign through it. Its motions are irreſiſtible and uncontrollable, he performs it for us.

3. And (which is ſweet to conſider) all its Products and Iſſues are exceeding beneficial to the Saints. It performs all things [for them.] 'Tis true we often prejudge its works, and unjuſtly cenſure its deſigns, and under many of our ſtraits and troubles we ſay, all theſe things are againſt us: But indeed Providence neither doth, nor can do any thing that is really againſt the true Intereſt and good of the Saints. For what are the Works of Providence, but the Execution of God's Decree, and the fulfilling of his Word? And there can be no more in Providenee, than is in them. Now there is nothing but good to the Saints in God's Purpoſes and Promiſes; and therefore, whatever Providence doth in their Concernments, it muſt be (as the Text ſpeaks) the Performance of all things for them.

4. And if ſo, how chearing, ſupporting, and encouraging muſt the Conſideration of theſe things be in a Day of diſtreſs and trouble? What Life and Hope will it inſpire our Hearts and Prayers withal, when great preſſures lie upon us? It had ſuch a chearing Influence upon the Pſalmiſt at this time, when the State of his Affairs was to the eye of Senſe and Reaſon forlorn, and deſperate: There was now but a hairs breadth (as we ſay) betwixt him and ruin.

A potent, enraged, and implacable Enemy had driven him into the hole of a Rock, and was come after him into that hole, yet now whilſt his Soul is among Lions, whilſt he lies in a cranny of the Rock, expecting every moment to be drawn out to Death, the Reflections he had upon the gracious Performances of the Moſt High for him, from the beginning to that moment, ſupport his Soul and inſpire hope and Life into his Prayers, I will cry unto God Moſt High, unto God that Performeth all things for me.

The amount of all you have in this Doctrinal Concluſion.

Doct. That it is the Duty of the Saints, eſpecially in Times of Straits, to Reflect upon the Performances of Providence for them in all the States, and through all the Stages of their Lives.

The Church in all the Works of Mercy, owns the hand of God, Iſa. 26. 12. Lord thou haſt wrought all our Works in (or for) us. And ſtill it hath been the Pious, and conſtant Practice of the Saints in all Generations, to preſerve the Memory of the more Famous, and remarkable Providences that have befallen them in their times, as a precious Treaſure. If thou be a Chriſtian indeed, I know thou haſt, if not in thy Book, yet certainly in thy Heart a great many precious Favours upon Record; the very remembrance and rehearſal of them is ſweet: How much more ſweet was the actual enjoyment? Baxters Saints Reſt, p. 768. Thus Moſes by Divine Direction wrote a Memorial of that Victory obtained over Amalek as the fruit and return of Prayer, and built there an Altar with this Inſcription Jehovah Niſſi, The Lord my Banner, Exod. 17. 14, 15.

Thus Mordecai and Heſter took all care to perpetuate the Memory of that ſignal Deliverance from the Plot of Haman, by ordaining the Feaſt of Purim, as an Anniverſary throughout every Generation, every Family, every Province, and every City, that theſe days of Purim ſhould not fail from among the Jews, nor the memorial of them periſh from their Seed, Eſth. 9. 28. For this end you find Pſalms indited, to bring to remembrance, Pſal. 70. the Title. Parents giving ſuitable Names to their Children, that every time they looked upon them, they might refreſh the memory of Gods Mercies, 1 Sam. 1. 20. The very places where eminent Providences have appeared, new named, upon no other deſign, but to perpetuate the Memorial of thoſe ſweet Providences which ſo refreſhed them there: Thence Bethel took its name, Gen. 28. 19. And that Well of Water where Hagar was ſeaſonably refreſhed by the Angel in her diſtreſs, Beer-la-hai-roi, the Well of him that liveth and looketh on me, Gen. 16. 14. Yea, the Saints have given, and God hath aſſumed to himſelf new Titles upon this very ſcore and account; Abraham's Jehovah jireh, and Gideon's Jehovah ſhallum were aſcribed to him upon this reaſon. And ſometimes you find the Lord ſtiles himſelf, The God that brought Abraham from Ur of the Chaldees: Then the Lord God that brought them out of Egypt: Then the Lord that gathered them out of the North Country: Still minding them of the gracious Providences which in all thoſe places he had wrought for them.

Now there is a twofold Reflection upon the Providential Works of God.

1. One entire and full, in the whole Complex and perfect frame thereof. This bleſſed ſight is reſerved for the perfect ſtate. It is in that Mount of God, where we ſhall ſee both the Wilderneſs and Canaan: The glorious Kingdom into which we are come, and the way through which we were led into it. There the Saints ſhall have a Raviſhing view of that Beautiful Frame, and every part ſhall be diſtinctly diſcerned, as it had its particular uſe, and as it was connected with the other parts, and how effectually and orderly they all wrought to bring about that bleſſed deſign of their Salvation, according to the Promiſe, Rom. 8. 28. And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, &c. For it is certain no Ship at Sea keeps more exactly by the Compaſs which directs its courſe, than Providence doth by that Promiſe, which is its Cynoſura and Pole-ſtar.

When the Records of Eternity ſhall be expoſed to view, all the counſels and reſults of that profound wiſdom looked into; how will it tranſport when it ſhall be diſcerned! Lo, thus were the deſigns laid: Here were the apt junctures and admirable dependencies of things, which when acted upon the ſtage of Time, ſeem'd ſo perplext and intricate, Howe's Bleſſedneſs*, p. 76.

2. The other partial and imperfect in the way to Glory, where we only view it in its ſingle Acts, or at moſt, in ſome Branches and more obſervable courſe of Actions.

Betwixt theſe two is the ſame difference, as betwixt the ſight of the disjointed Wheels and ſcattered Pins of a Watch, and the ſight of the whole united in one Frame, and working in one orderly Motion: Or betwixt an ignorant Spectators viewing ſome more obſervable veſſel or joint of a diſſected Body; and the accurate Anatomiſt's diſcerning the courſe of all the veins and arteries of the Body, as he follows the ſeveral Branches of them through the whole, and plainly ſees the proper Places, Figure, and uſe of each, with their mutual reſpect to one another.

O how Raviſhing and Delectable a ſight is that! to behold at one view the whole deſign of Providence, and the proper Place, and uſe of every ſingle Act, which we could not underſtand in this World: For what Chriſt ſaid to Peter, John 13. 7. is as applicable to ſome Providences in which we are now concerned, as it was to that particular Action; What I do thou knoweſt not now, but hereafter thou ſhalt know it. All the dark intricate puzzling Providences at which we were ſometimes ſo ſtumbled, and ſometimes amazed, which we could neither reconcile with the Promiſe, nor with each other; nay, which we ſo unjuſtly cenſured and bitterly bewailed, as if they had fallen out quite croſs to our happineſs: We ſhall then ſee to be unto us, as the difficult Paſſage through the Wilderneſs was unto Iſrael, The right way to a City of Habitation, Pſal. 107. 7.

And yet tho' our preſent Views and Reflections upon Providence be ſo ſhort and imperfect in compariſon of that in Heaven, yet ſuch as it is under all its preſent diſadvantages, it hath ſo much excellency and ſweetneſs in it, that I may call it a little Heaven, or as Jacob called his Bethel, the Gate of Heaven. 'Tis certainly an High-way of walking with God in this World, and as ſweet Communion may a Soul enjoy with him in his Providences, as in any of his Ordinances. How often have the Hearts of its obſervers been melted into Tears of Joy, at the beholding of its wiſe and unexpected Productions! How often hath it convinced them, upon, a ſober Recollection of the Events of their Lives, that if the Lord had left them to their own Counſels, they had as often been their own Tormentors, if not Executioners? Into what, and how many fatal miſchiefs had they precipitated themſelves, if Providence had been as ſhort ſighted as they? They have given it their hearty thanks, for conſidering their Intereſt more than their Importunity, and not ſuffering them to periſh by their own deſires.

_Luther_ bold to preſcri to God, but at ſaid, R haud d hanc ſap entiam D minus, dixit, D ſum, un ſequax.

The Benefits of adverting the Works of Providence are manifold and unſpeakable; as in its place we ſhall ſhew you. But not to entangle the thread of the Diſcourſe, I ſhall caſt it into this Method.

Firſt, I ſhall prove, that the Concernments of the Saints in this World, are certainly conducted by the Wiſdom and care of ſpecial Providence.

Secondly, I will ſhew you, in what particular Concernments of theirs this Providential Care is evidently diſcovered.

Thirdly, That it is the Duty of Saints to advert, and heedfully obſerve theſe Performances of Providence for them in all their Concernments.

Fourthly, In what manner this Duty is to be performed by them.

Fifthly, What ſingular Benefits reſult to them from ſuch Obſervations.

And then apply the whole in ſuch Uſes, as offer themſelves from the Point.

The Firſt General Head.

Firſt, I ſhall undertake the Proof and Defence of this great Truth, That the Affairs of the Saints in this World are certainly conducted by the Wiſdom and Care of ſpecial Providence.

And herein I addreſs my ſelf with chearfulneſs, to perform (as I am able) a ſervice for that Providence, which hath throughout my Life performed all things for me as the Text ſpeaks.

There is a twofold Conſideration of Providence according to its twofold Object, and Manner of Diſpenſation; the one is general, exercifed about all Creatures, rational and irrational, animate and inanimate; the other ſpecial and peculiar. Chriſt hath an univerſal Empire over all things, Epheſ. 1. 22. The Head of the whole World, by way of Dominion; but an Head to the Church, by way of union and ſpecial influence, Joh. 17. 2. The Saviour of all Men, but eſpecially of them that believe, 1 Tim. 4. 10. The Church is his ſpecial care and charge; he rules the World for its good, as an Head conſulting the welfare of the Body.

Heathens generally denied Providence, and no wonder, ſince they denied a God: For the ſame Arguments that prove one, will prove the other. Ariſtotle the Prince of Heathen Philoſophers, could not by the utmoſt ſearch of Reaſon, find out the Worlds Original, and therefore concludes, it was from Eternity. The Epicureans did in a ſort acknowledge a God but yet denied a Providence, and wholly excluded him from any Intereſt or Concern in the Affairs of the World, as being inconſiſtent with the Felicity and Tranquility of the Divine Being to be diverted and cumbered with the Care and Labour of Government. This aſſertion is ſo repugnant to Reaſon, that it is a wonder themſelves bluſht not at its abſurdity; but I gueſs at the deſign, and one of them ſpeaks it out in broad Language. Itaque impoſuiſtis cervicibus noſtris ſempiternum dominum, quem dies & noctes timeremus. Quis enim non timeat omnia providentem, & cogitantem, & animadvertentem, & omnia ad ſe pertinere putantem, curioſum & plenum negotii Deum? Vell. apud Cicer. de Natura Deorum. They foreſaw, that the Conceſſion of a Providence, would impoſe an Eternal Yoke upon their Necks, by making them accountable for all they did to an higher Tribunal: And that they muſt neceſſarily paſs the time of their ſojourning here in fear, whilſt all their Thoughts, Words, and Ways were ſtrictly Noted and Recorded, in order to an account by an All ſeeing and righteous God: And therefore laboured to perſwade themſelves that was not, which they had no mind ſhould be. But theſe Atheiſtical and fooliſh Conceits fall flat before the undeniable Evidence of this ſo great and clear a Truth. Now,

My Buſineſs here, is not ſo much to deal with profeſſed Atheiſts, who deny the Exiſtence of God; and conſequently deride all Evidences brought from Scripture, of the extraordinary Events, that fall out in favour of that People that are called His: But rather to convince thoſe, that profeſſedly own all this; yet never having taſted Religion by Experience, ſuſpect at leaſt, that all theſe things which we call ſpecial Providences to the Saints, are but natural Events, or meer contingencies: And thus whilſt they profeſs to own a God, and a Providence, (which Profeſſion is but the effect of their Education) they do in the mean Time live like Atheiſts; and both think and Act, as if there were no ſuch things: And really I doubt, this is the Caſe of the far greateſt part of the Men of this Generation.

But if it were indeed ſo, that the Affairs of the World in general, and more eſpecially thoſe of the Saints, were not conducted by Divine Providence, but (as they would perſwade us) by the ſteady courſe of natural Cauſes: Beſide which, if at any time we obſerve any event to fall out, it's meerly caſual and contingent, or that which proceeds from ſome hidden and ſecret cauſe in Nature: If this indeed were ſo, let them that are tempted to believe it, rationally ſatisfie the following demands.

Firſt Demand.

How comes it to paſs that ſo many ſignal Mercies and Deliverances have befallen the People of God, above the Power, and againſt the Courſe of natural Cauſes: To make way for which, there hath been a ſenſible ſuſpenſion and ſtop put to the courſe of Nature? It is moſt evident, that no natural Effect can exceed the Power of its natural Cauſe. Nothing can give to another, more than it hath in it ſelf: And it is as clear, that whatſoever Acts naturally, Acts neceſſarily: Fire burns ad ultimum ſui poſſe, to the uttermoſt of its Power: Waters overflow, and drown all that they can. Lions and other rapacious and cruel Beaſts, eſpecially when hungry, Tear and Devour their Prey: And for Arbitrary and rational Agents, they alſo Act according to the Principles and Laws of their Natures. A wicked Man when his Heart is fully ſet in him and his will ſtands in a full bent of Reſolution, will certainly (if he have Power in his Hand, and opportunity to execute his conceived Miſchief) give it vent, and perpetrate the wicked Devices of his Heart: For having once conceived Miſchief, and travailing in Pain with it (according to the Courſe of Nature) he muſt bring it forth, as it is Pſalm 7. 14. But if any of theſe Inanimate, Brutal, or Rational Agents, when there is no Natural obſtacle or remora, have their Power ſuſpended, and that when the effect is near the Birth, and the deſign at the very Article of Execution, ſo that though they would yet cannot hurt; to what think you is this to be aſſigned and referred? Yet ſo it hath often been ſeen, were God's intereſt hath been immediately concerned in the danger and evil of the Event. The Sea divided it ſelf in its own Channel, and made a Wall of Water, on each ſide, to give Gods diſtreſſed Iſrael a ſafe paſſage, and that not in a calm, but when the Waves thereof roared; * as it is Iſa. 51. 15. The Fire when blown up to the moſt intenſe and vehement Flame, had no Power to ſinge one hair of Gods faithful Witneſſes, when at the ſame inſtant it had Power to deſtroy their intended Executioners at a greater diſtance, Dan. 3. 22. Yea, we find it hath ſome time been ſufficient to conſume, but not to torment the Body; as in that known inſtance of bleſſed Bayneham, who told his Enemies, the Flames were to him as a Bed of Roſes. The hungry Lions put off their natural fierceneſs, and became gentle and harmleſs, when Daniel was caſt among them for a prey. The like Account the Church Story gives us of Polycarp, and Dionyſius Areopagita, whom the Fire would not touch, but ſtood after the manner of a Ship-man's Sail filled with the Wind about them.

Are theſe things according to the Courſe and Law of Nature? To what ſecret natural Cauſe can they be aſcribed? In like manner, we find the vileſt and fierceſt of wicked Men, have been with-held by an inviſible hand of reſtraint from injuring the Lord's People. By what ſecret cauſe in Nature was Jeroboam's hand dried up, and made inflexible at the ſame inſtant it was ſtretched out againſt the Man of God? 1 Kings 13. 4. No wild Beaſts rend and devour their Prey more greedily, than Wicked Men would deſtroy the People of God that dwell among them, were it not for this Providential reſtraint upon them. So the Pſalmiſt expreſſes his caſe in the words following my Text, My Soul is among Lyons, and I lye among them that are ſet on fire. The Diſciples were ſent forth as Sheep into the midſt of Wolves, Mat. 10. 16. It will not avail in this caſe to object, Thoſe miraculous Events depend only upon Scripture Teſtimony, which the Atheiſt is not concluded by: for beſide all that may be alledged for the Authority of that Teſtimony (which is needleſs to produce to Men that own it) what is it leſs that every eye ſees, or may ſee at this day? Do we not behold a weak defenceleſs handful of men, wonderfully, and (except this way) unaccountably preſerved from ruine in the midſt of potent, enraged and turbulent enemies, that fain would, but cannot deſtroy them; when as yet, no natural Impediment can be aſſigned why they cannot?

And if this poſe us, what ſhall we ſay, when we ſee events produced in the world for the good of God's choſen, by thoſe very hands and means which were intentionally imployed for their ruine? Theſe things are as much beſide the Intentions of their enemies, as they are above their own expectations; yet ſuch things are no rarities in the world. Was not the Envy of Joſeph's Brethren, the curſed Plot of Haman, the Decree procured by the envy of the Princes againſt Daniel, with many more of the like nature, all turned by a ſecret and ſtrange hand of Providence, to their greater advancement and benefit? their Enemies lifted them up to all that honour and preferment they had.

Second Demand.

How is it (if the Saints Concerns are not ordered by a ſpecial Divine Providence) that natural cauſes unite and aſſociate themſelves for their relief and benefit in ſo ſtrange a manner as they are found to do? It is undeniably evident that there are marvellous Coincidencies of Providence, confederating and agreeing as it were, to meet and unite themſelves to bring about the good of God's Choſen. There is a like face of things ſhewing it ſelf in divers places at that time, when any Work for the good of the Church is come upon the ſtage of the world. As when the Meſſiah the capital Mercy came to the Temple, then Simeon and Anna were brought thither by Providence, as Witneſſes to it. So in Reformation-work, when the Images were pulled down in Holland, one and the ſame Spirit of Zeal poſſeſſed them in every City and Town, that the work was done in a night. He that heedfully reads the Hiſtory of Joſeph's advancement to be the Lord of Egypt, may number in that ſtory twelve remarkable acts or ſteps of Providence, by which he aſcended to that honour and authority: if but one of them had failed, in all likelyhood the Event had done ſo too: but every one fell in its order, exactly keeping its own time and place. So in the Churches deliverance from the Plot of Haman, we find no leſs than ſeven acts of Providence concurring ſtrangely to produce it, as if they had all met by appointment and conſent, to break that ſnare for them: one thing ſo aptly ſuiting with, and making way for another, that every heedful Obſerver muſt needs conclude, this cannot be the effect of caſualty, but wiſe counſel. Even as in viewing the accurate ſtructure of the body of a man, the figure, poſition, and mutual reſpects of the ſeveral members and veſſels, hath convinced ſome, (and is ſufficient to convince all) that it was the effect of divine Wiſdom and Power: in like manner, if the admirable adaptation of the means and inſtruments employed for mercy to the People of God be heedfully conſidered, who can but confeſs, that as there are tools of all ſorts and ſizes in the ſhop of Providence: ſo there is a moſt skilful hand that uſes them, and that they could no more produce ſuch effects of themſelves, than the Ax, Saw, or Chiſel can cut or carve a rude Log into a beautiful Figure, without the hand of a skilful Artificer.

We find by manifold Inſtances, that there certainly are ſtrong combinations, and prediſpoſitions of perſons and things, to bring about ſome iſſue and deſign for the benefit of the Church, which themſelves never thought of: they hold no Intelligence, communicate not their counſels to each other, yet meet together, and work together as if they did: which is, as if ten men ſhould all meet together at one place, and in one hour, about one and the ſame buſineſs, and that without any fore-appointment betwixt themſelves; can any queſtion, but ſuch a meeting of means and inſtruments is certainly, though ſecretly over-ruled by ſome Wiſe inviſible Agent?

Third Demand.

If the Concerns of God's People be not governed by ſpecial Providence, Whence is it, that the moſt apt and powerful means imployed to deſtroy them are rendered ineffectual, and weak contemptible means imployed for their defence and comfort, crowned with ſucceſs? This could never be, if things were wholly ſwayed by the courſe of Nature. If we judge by that rule, we muſt conclude, the more apt and powerful the means are, the more ſucceſsful and proſperous they muſt needs be; and where they are inept, weak and contemptible, nothing can be expected from them: thus Reaſon lays it according to the rules of Nature; but Providence croſſes its hands, as Jacob did in bleſſing the Sons of Joſeph, and orders quite contrary iſſues and events. Such was the mighty power and deep policy uſed by Pharaoh to deſtroy God's Iſrael, that to the eye of Reaſon, it was as impoſſible to ſurvive it, as for crackling thorns to abide unconſumed amidſt devouring flames; by which Emblem, their miraculous preſervation is expreſt, Exod. 3. 2. the buſh was all in a flame, but no conſumption of it. The Heathen Roman Emperors, who made the World tremble, and ſubdu'd the Nations under them, have employ'd all their power and policy againſt the poor, naked, defenceleſs Church, to ruin it; yet could not accompliſh it, Rev. 12. 3, 4. O the Seas of blood that Heathen Rome ſhed in the ten perſecutions! yet the Church lives, and when the Dragon gave his power to the Beaſt, Rev. 13. 2. (i.e.) the State of Rome became Anti-Chriſtian, O what ſlaughters have been made by the Beaſt in all his dominions; ſo that the Holy Ghoſt repreſents him as drunken with the blood of the Saints, Rev. 17. 6. And yet all will not do: the gates, (i. e.) the powers and policies of Hell cannot prevail againſt it. How manifeſt is the care and power of Providence herein? Had half that power been employ'd againſt any other people, it had certainly ſwallow'd them up immediately, or in the hundredth part of the time worn them out. How ſoon was the Perſian Monarchy ſwallowed up by the Grecian, and that again by the Roman? Diocleſian and Maximin in the height of their perſecution found themſelves ſo baffl'd by Providence, that they both reſign'd the Government, and liv'd as private men. But in this wonderful preſervation God makes good that promiſe, Jer. 30. 11. Though I make a full end of all Nations, yet will I not make a full end of Thee: and that in Iſa. 54. 17. No weapon form'd againſt thee ſhall proſper.

Acts and Mon Vol. 3. p. 974.

On the contrary, how ſucceſsful have weak and contemptible means been made for the good of the Church? Thus in the firſt planting of Chriſtianity in the world, by what weak and improbable inſtruments was it done? Chriſt did not chuſe the eloquent Orators, or men of Authority in the Courts of Kings and Emperors, but twelve poor Mechanicks, and Fiſhermen; and theſe not ſent together in a troop, but ſome to take one Country to conquer it, and ſome another: the moſt ridiculous courſe (in appearance) for ſuch a deſign as could be imagin'd; and yet in how ſhort a time was the Goſpel ſpread, and the Churches planted by them in the ſeveral Kingdoms of the World? This the Pſalmiſt foreſaw by the Spirit of Prophecy, when he ſaid, Out of the mouth of Babes and Sucklings haſt thou ordained ſtrength, to ſtill the Enemy and the Avenger, Pſal. 8. 2. At the ſound of Rams horns Jericho is deliver'd into the hands of Iſrael: ſee Joſh. 6. 20. By three hundred men with their Pitchers and Lamps, the huge hoſt of Midian is diſcomfited, Judges 6. 19. The Proteſtants beſieg'd in Beziers in France are deliver'd by a drunken Drummer, who going to his Quarters at Midnight, rang the Alarm-Bell of the Town, not knowing what he did; and juſt then were their Enemies making their aſſault. And as weak and improbable means have been bleſſed with ſucceſs to the Church in general, ſo to the preſervation of its particular members alſo. A Spider by weaving her web over the mouth of an Oven ſhall hide a ſervant of Chriſt, Du Moulin, from his Enemies, who took refuge there in that bloody Pariſian Maſſacre. A Hen ſhall ſuſtain another many days at the ſame time, by lodging her egg every day, in the place where he had hid himſelf from the Cut-throats. Examples might be eaſily multiply'd in the caſe; but the truth is too plain and obvious to the obſervation of all ages to need them. And can we but acknowledge a divine and ſpecial Providence over-ruling theſe matters, when we ſee the moſt apt and potent means for the Churches ruin fruſtrated, and the moſt ſilly and contemptible means ſucceeded and proſper'd for its good?

Fourth Demand.

If all things be govern'd by the courſe of nature, and force of natural cauſes, How then comes it to paſs, that men are turned (like a bowl by a rub) out of the way of evil, unto which they were driving on with full ſpeed? Good men have been engag'd in the way to their own ruin, and knew it not; but Providence hath met them in the way, and preſerv'd them by ſtrange diverſions, the meaning of which they underſtood not, till the Event diſcover'd it. Paul lay bound at Cæſarea, the High Prieſt and chief of the Jews requeſt Feſtus, that he might be brought bound to Jeruſalem, having laid wait in the way to kill him: but Feſtus (tho' ignorant of the plot) utterly refuſes it, but chuſes rather to go with them to Cæſarea, and judge him there: by this rub, their bloody deſign is fruſtrated, Acts 25. 3, 4.

Poſſidonius in the life of Auguſtine, tells us, that the good Father going to teach the People of a certain Town, took a Guide with him, to ſhew him the way; the Guide miſtook the uſual road, and ignorantly fell into a by-path, by which means he eſcap'd ruin by the hands of the bloody Donatiſts, who knowing his intention, way-laid him to kill him in the road.

Poſſid. in vit. Aug. cap. 15.

And as memorable and wonderful are thoſe rubs and diverſions wicked men have met with in the way of perpetrating the evils conceiv'd and intended in their own hearts. Laban and Eſau came againſt Jacob with miſchievous purpoſes; but no ſooner are they come nigh him, but the ſhackles of reſtraint are immediately clapt upon them both, ſo that their hands cannot perform their enterprizes. Balaam runs greedily for reward to curſe Iſrael; but meets with an unexpected check at his very out-ſet, and though that ſtopt him not, but he eſſay'd every way to do them miſchief, yet he ſtill finds himſelf fetter'd by an effectual bond of reſtraint, that he can no way ſhake off, Numb. 22. 25, 38. Saul the High-Prieſt's Blood-hound, breaths out threatnings againſt the Church, and goes with a bloody commiſſion towards Damaſcus, to hale the poor flock of Chriſt to the ſlaughter; but when he comes nigh the place, he meets an unexpected ſtop in the way, by which the miſchief is not only diverted, but himſelf converted to Chriſt, Acts 9. 1, 2, 3, 4. Who can but ſee the finger of God in theſe things?

Gen. 31. 24.

Fifth Demand.

If there be not an over-ruling Providence ordering all things for the good of God's People; How comes it to paſs, that the good and evil which is done to them in this World, is accordingly repaid into the Boſoms of them that are inſtrumental therein?

1. How clear is it to every Man's Obſervation, that the Kindneſſes and Benefits any have done to the Lord's People, have been rewarded with full meaſure into their Boſoms? The Egyptian Midwives refuſ'd to obey Pharaoh's inhumane command, and ſav'd the Male Children of Iſrael: for this the Lord dealt well with them, and built them Houſes, Exod. 1. 21. The Shunamite was hoſpitable, and careful for Eliſha, and God recompenc'd it with the deſirable enjoyment of a Son, 2 Kings 4. 9, 17. Rahab hid the Spies, and was exempted from the common Deſtruction for it, Heb. 11. 31. Publius, the chief Man of the Iſland Melita, courteouſly receiv'd and lodg'd Paul after his Shipwrack: The Lord ſpeedily repaid him for that kindneſs, and heal'd his Father, who lay ſick at that time of a Bloody Flux and Fever, Acts 28. 7, 8.

Si ab exordio mundi, ad noſtram uſque memoriam percurramus hiſtorias, inſignia divinæ ultionis in peccatores occurrent indicia. Alſtedii Nat. Theol. p. 195.

In like manner, we find the Evils done to God's People have been repaid by a juſt Retribution to their Enemies.

Pharaoh and the Egyptians were cruel Enemies to God's Iſrael, and deſign'd the ruin of their poor Innocent Babes; and God repaid it, in ſmiting all the firſt-born of Egypt in one night, Exod. 12. 19.

Haman erected a Gallows fifty Cubits high for Good Mordecai, and God ſo order'd it, that himſelf and his ten Sons were hang'd on it. And indeed it was but meet, that he ſhould eat the fruit of that tree which himſelf had planted, Eſther 7: 10.

Achitophel plots againſt David, and gives counſel like an Oracle, how to procure his fall; and that very counſel, like a ſurcharg'd Gun, recoils upon himſelf, and procures his ruin: for ſeeing his good counſel rejected (good politically, not morally) it was now eaſie for him, to gueſs at the iſſue, and ſo at his own fate, 2 Sam. 17. 23.

Charles the Ninth, moſt inhumanely made the very Canals of Paris to ſtream with Proteſtant blood, and ſoon after he dy'd miſerably, his blood ſtreaming from all parts of his body.

Stephen Gardiner, that burnt ſo many of Gods dear ſervants to aſhes, was himſelf ſo ſcorch'd up by a terrible inflammation, that his very tongue was black and hung out of his mouth, and in dreadful torments ended his wretched days.

Maximinus that cruel Emperor, who ſet forth his Proclamation engraven in Braſs, for the utter aboliſhing of the Chriſtian Religion, was ſpeedily ſmitten like Herod, with a dreadful judgment, ſwarms of Lice preying upon his Entrails, and cauſing ſuch a ſtench, that his Phyſicians could not endure to come nigh him, and for refuſing it were ſlain. Hundreds of like Inſtances might eaſily be produc'd, to confirm this Obſervation. And who can but ſee by theſe things, that verily there is a God that judgeth in the Earth.

Yea, ſo exact have been the retributions of Providence to the Enemies of the Church, that not only the ſame perſons, but the ſame members that have been the inſtruments of miſchief, have been made the ſubjects of wrath.

Euſeb. l. 7. cap. 29.

The ſame Arm which Jeroboam ſtretch'd out to ſmite the Prophet, God ſmites. The Emperor Aurelian when he was ready to ſubſcribe the Edict for the perſecution of the Chriſtians, was ſuddenly crampt in his knuckles, that he could not write.

M. Greenhil in his Expoſition upon Ezek. 11. 13. tells his Auditory, that there was one then preſent in the Congregation, who was an eye-witneſs of a Woman ſcoffing at another for purity and holy walking, who had her tongue ſtricken immediately with the Palſie, and dy'd thereof within two days.

Henry the Second of France in a great rage againſt a Proteſtant Counſellor, committed him to the hands of one of his Nobles to be impriſon'd, and that with theſe words, that he would ſee him burnt with his own Eyes: but mark the righteous Providence of God, within a few days after, the ſame Nobleman, with a Lance put into his hands by the King, did at a Tilting Match, run the ſaid King into one of his Eyes, whereof he dy'd.

Yea, Providence hath made the very place of ſinning, the place of puniſhment, 1 Kings 21. 19. In the place where Dogs lick'd the blood of Naboth, ſhall Dogs lick thy blood: and it was exactly fulfill'd, 2 Kings 9. 26. Thus Tophet is made a burying for the Jews, till there was no room to bury; and that was the place where they had offer'd up their Sons to Moloch, Jer. 7. 31, 32. The Story of Nightingale is generally known which Mr. Fox relates, how he fell out of the Pulpit and brake his neck, whilſt he was abuſing that Scripture, 1 John 1. 10.

And thus the Scriptures are made good by Providence, whoſo diggeth a Pit ſhall fall therein, and he that rolleth a ſtone, it ſhall return upon him, Prov. 26. 27. and Matth. 7. 2. with what meaſure you mete, it ſhall be meaſur'd to you again.

If any ſhall yet ſay, Theſe things may fall out caſually; That many thouſands of the Church's Enemies have dy'd in peace, and their end been like other Men. Object.

We anſwer with Auguſtine, If no Sin were puniſh'd here, no Providence would be believ'd; and if every Sin ſhould be puniſhed here, no Judgment would be expected. But, that none may think theſe Events to be merely caſual and accidental, we yet further demand; Solut.

Sixth Demand.

If theſe things be meerly caſual, How is it that they ſquare and agree ſo exactly with the Scriptures in all particulars?

We read, Amos 3. 3. Can two walk together except they be agreed? If two Men travel in one road, it's like they are agreed to go to the ſame place. Providences and Scriptures go all one way: and if they ſeem at any time to go divers or contrary ways; be ſure, they will meet at the journeys end. There is an agreement betwixt them ſo to do.

Doth God miraculouſly ſuſpend the power of natural Cauſes, as in the firſt demand was open'd? Why, this is no accidental thing, but what harmonizeth with the word, Iſa. 43. 2. When thou paſſeſt through the waters, I will be with thee, and through the rivers, they ſhall not overflow thee. When thou walkeſt through the fire, thou ſhalt not be burnt, neither ſhall the flame kindle upon thee.

Do natural Cauſes unite and aſſociate themſelves for the good of God's people? Why, this is no more than what is contain'd in the Promiſes, miſes, and is but the fulfilling of that Scripture, 1 Cor. 3. 22. All is yours, for ye are Chriſts; (i. e.) the uſe, benefit and ſervice of all the Creatures is for you, as your need ſhall require.

Are the moſt apt and powerful means employ'd for their ruin fruſtrated? Who can but ſee the Scriptures fulfill'd in, and expounded by ſuch Providences? See Iſa. 45. 15, 16, 17. and 8. 8, 9, 10. expounded by 2 Kings 18. 17. & ſeq.

See you at any time a rub of Providence diverting the courſe of good men from falling into evil, or wicked men from committing evil; how loudly do ſuch Providences proclaim the truth and certainty of the Scriptures, which tell us, That the way of man is not in himſelf, neither is it in him that walks to direct his ſteps, Jer. 10. 23. and that in Prov. 16. 9. A mans heart deviſeth his way, but the Lord directeth his ſteps.

Do you ſee adequate retributions made to thoſe that injure or befriend the people of God? Why, when you ſee all the kindneſs and love they have ſhown the Saints return'd with an overplus into their boſoms? how is it poſſible, but you muſt ſee the accompliſhment of theſe Scriptures in ſuch Providences? Iſa. 32. 8. 2 Cor. 9. 6. The liberal ſoul deviſeth liberal things, and by liberal things he ſhall ſtand.

And when you ſee the evils men have done, or intended to do to the Lord's people, recoiling upon themſelves; he is perfectly blind, that ſees not the harmony ſuch Providences bear with theſe Scriptures, Pſal. 140. 11, 12. Pſal. 7. 14, 15, 16. Pſal. 9. 16.

O what exact proportions do Providences and Scriptures hold! little do Men take notice of it. Why did Cyrus, contrary to all rules of State Policy, freely diſmiſs the Captives, but to fulfil that Scripture, Iſa. 45. 13. So that it was well obſerv'd by one, That as God hath ſtretch'd out the Expanſum or Firmament over the natural; ſo he hath ſtretch'd out his Word over the rational World. And as the Creatures on Earth are influenc'd by thoſe Heavenly Bodies, ſo are all Creatures in the World influenc'd by the Word, and do infallibly fulfil it, when they deſign to croſs it.

Seventh Demand.

If theſe things be contingent, How is it that they fall out in ſuch remarkable nicks and junctures of time, which makes them ſo greatly obſervable to all that conſider them.

We find a multitude of Providences ſo tim'd to a minute, that had they faln out never ſo little ſooner or later, they had ſignify'd but little what now they do. Certainly, it cannot be caſually, but counſel, that ſo exactly nicks the opportunity. Contingencies keep to no rules.

Contingen- tia rerum ſtimanda è cauſis oximis, cundis & rticula- bus, non cauſa pri- a, & u- verſali, ſpectu cu- s nihil ntingens eſt, ſed omnia neceſſaria, neceſſitate immutabilitatis non cauſæ. Wendelin Theol. p. 13.

How remarkable to this purpoſe, was the tidings brought to Saul, that the Philiſtines had invaded the land? 1 Sam. 23. 27. juſt as he was ready to graſp the Prey. The Angel calls to Abraham, and ſhews him another Sacrifice, juſt when his hand was giving the fatal ſtroke to Iſaac, Gen. 22. 10, 11. A Well of Water is diſcover'd to Hagar, juſt when ſhe had left the Child, as not able to ſee its death, Gen. 21. 16, 19. Rabſhakeh meets with a blaſting Providence, hears a rumour that fruſtrated his Deſign, juſt when ready to give the ſhock againſt Jeruſalem, Iſa. 27. 7, 8. So when Haman's Plot againſt the Jews was ripe, and all things ready for Execution; On that night could not the King ſleep, Eſth. 6. 1. When the horns are ready to gore Judah, immediately Carpenters are prepar'd to fray them away, Zech. 1. 18, 19, 20, 21. How remarkable was the Relief of Rochel, by a Shoal of Fiſh that came into the Harbour, when they were ready to periſh with Famine, ſuch as they never obſerv'd before, nor after that time. Mr. Dod could not go to Bed one night, but had a ſtrong impulſe to viſit, (though unſeaſonably) a Neighbour Gentleman, and juſt as he came, he meets him at his door, with an Halter in his Pocket, juſt going to hang himſelf. Dr. Tate and his Wife in the Iriſh Rebellion, flying through the Woods with a Sucking-Child, which was juſt ready to expire; the Mother going to reſt it upon a Rock, puts her hand upon a Bottle of warm Milk, by which it was preſerv'd. A good Woman (from whoſe Mouth I receiv'd it) being driven to a great Extremity, all ſupplies failing, was exceedingly plung'd into unbelieving doubts and fears, not ſeeing whence ſupplies ſhould come; when lo! in the nick of time, turning ſome things in a Cheſt, unexpectedly lights upon a piece of Gold, which ſupply'd her preſent wants, till God open'd another Door of ſupply. If theſe things fall out caſually, how is it, they obſerve the very nick of time ſo exactly? As that it is become Proverbial in Scripture, Gen. 22. 14. In the Mount of the Lord it ſhall be ſeen.

Eighth Demand.

Laſtly, Were theſe things caſual and contingent, how can it be, that they ſhould fall out ſo immediately upon, and conſonantly to the Prayers of the Saints? So that in many Providences, they are able to diſcern a very clear anſwer to their Prayers, and are ſure they have the Petitions they asked of him, 1 John 5. 15.

Thus when the Sea divided it ſelf, juſt upon Iſraels cry to Heaven, Exod. 14. 10. When ſo ſignal a Victory is given to Aſa, immediately upon that Pathetical cry to Heaven, Help us O Lord our God, 2 Chron. 14. 11, 12. When Abitophel ſhall go and hang himſelf, juſt upon that Prayer of diſtreſſed David, 2 Sam. 15. 31. When Haman ſhall fall and his Plot be broken, juſt upon the Faſt kept by Mordecai and Heſter, Eſth. 4. 16. Our own Speed, in his Hiſtory of Britain, tells us, that Richard I. beſieged a Caſtle with his Army, they offer'd to ſurrender if he would ſave their Lives; he refuſes, and threatens to hang them all; upon this an Arbalaſter charg'd his Bow with a ſquare Arrow, making firſt his Prayer to God, that he would direct the ſhot, and deliver the Innocent from Oppreſſion; it ſtruck the King himſelf, whereof he dy'd, and they were deliver'd. Abraham's Servant pray'd for ſucceſs; and ſee how it was anſwer'd, Gen. 24. 45. Peter was caſt into Priſon, and Prayer was made for him by the Church, and ſee the Event, Acts 12. 5, 6, 7, 12. I could eaſily add to theſe, the wonderful Examples of the return of Prayers which was obſerv'd in Luther, and Dr. Winter in Ireland, and many more; but I judge it needleſs, becauſe moſt Chriſtians have a ſtock of Experience of their own, and are well aſſur'd, that many of the Providences that befal them are, and can be no other than the return of their Prayers.

And now who can be diſſatiſfy'd in this Point, that wiſely conſider theſe things? Muſt we not conclude as it is, Job 36. 7. He withdraweth not his eye from the righteous: And as 2 Chron. 16. 9. The eyes of the Lord run to and fro through the whole earth, to ſhew himſelf ſtrong in the behalf of them whoſe heart is perfect towards him. His Providences proclaim him to be a God hearing Prayers.

The Second General Head.

Having prov'd, That the Concernments of the Saints in this World, are certainly conducted by the Wiſdom and Care of ſpecial Providence; my next Work is to ſhew you, In what Affairs and Concerns of theirs, the Providence of God doth more eſpecially appear; or what are the moſt remarkable performances of Providence for them in this World.

And here I am not led directly by my Text, to ſpeak of the moſt internal and ſpiritual Performances of Providence, immediately relating to the Souls of his People; though they all relate to their Souls mediately and eventually; but of the more viſible and external Performances of Providence for them: And it is not to be ſuppos'd, I ſhould touch all theſe neither; they are more than the Sands; but that which I aim at, is to Diſcourſe to you ſome more ſpecial and more obſervable performances of Providence for you. And we ſhall begin at the beginning.

The firſt Performance of Providence.

Providential Performances in our formation and protection in the womb.

I. And Firſt, Let us conſider, how well Providence hath perform'd the firſt Work that ever it did for us, in our Formation and Protection in the Womb. Certainly this is a very glorious and admirable Performance; it's that the Pſalmiſt admires, Pſalm 139. 15. My Subſtance was not hid from thee, when I was made in ſecret, and curiouſly wrought in the lower parts of the Earth. 'The Womb is ſo call'd upon this account, becauſe as curious Artiſts, when they have ſome choice piece in hand, perfect it in private, and then bring it into the Light for all to gaze at; ſo it was here. And there are two things admirable in this performance of Providence for us.

Metaphora ab acupictoribus in opere Phrygionico. Omnia operatus eſt dominus in pondere, numero & menſura.

1. The rare Structure and excellent Compoſition of the Body; I am wonderfully made; that word Ruchampti—is very full. The Vulgar renders it, painted as with a Needle, (i.e.) richly embroider'd with Nerves and Veins. O the curious Workmanſhip that is in that one part the Eye! How hath it forc'd ſome to acknowledge a God upon the examination of it! Providence, when it went about this Work, had its model or pattern before it, according to which it molded every part, as it is, Ver. 16. In thy Book were all my members written. Haſt thou an integral perfection and fulneſs of Members? It is becauſe he wrote them all in his Book, or limned out thy Body, according to that exact model which he drew of thee in his own gracious purpoſe, before thou hadſt a Being: Had an Eye, an Ear, a Hand, a Foot been wanting in the Platform, thou hadſt now been ſadly ſenſible of the defect: This World had been but a Dungeon to thee, without thoſe Windows: Thou hadſt liv'd, as many do, an Object of Pity to others: If thou have low Thoughts of this Mercy, aſk the Blind, the Deaf, the Lame and the Dumb, the value and worth of thoſe Mercies, and they will tell thee. There is a world of coſt beſtow'd upon thy very Body. Thou mightſt have been caſt into another Mould, and created a Worm or a Toad. I remember Luther tells us of two Cardinals, riding in great pomp to the Council of Conſtance, and by the way they heard a Man in the Fields bitterly weeping and wailing: When they came to him, they found him intently viewing an ugly Toad; and aſking him, why he wept ſo bitterly, he told them, his Heart was melted with this Conſideration, that God had not made him ſuch a loathſom and deform'd Creature; hoc eſt quod amare fleo, ſaid he; Whereupon one of them crys out, well ſaid the Father, Surgunt indocti, & rapient Cœlum, the unlearned will riſe and take Heaven, and we with all our Learning ſhall be caſt into Hell. No part of the common Lump was ſo figur'd and poliſh'd as Man is. Galen gave Epicurus an hundred Years time to imagine a more commodious Situation, Configuration, or Compoſition of any one Member of a Human Body. And if all the Angels had ſtudy'd to this day, they could not have caſt the Body of Man into a more curious Mould.

Luther in tertium Præcept.

There are ſome members that are radical, as the Liver, Heart and Brain, in theſe are placed the natural, vital and animal Spirits; theſe Spirits are carried by the Veins, Arteries & Nerves. The Veins carry the natural Spirits from the Liver, the Arteries the vital Spirits from the Heart, the Nerves the animal Spirits from the Brain: Other members are official, as the hands and feet: The Superiour doth rule the Inferiour, and the Inferiour ſupport the Superiour. In wiſdom haſt thou made them all.

2. And yet all this is but the enamelling of the Caſe, or poliſhing the Caſket wherein the rare Jewel lies. Providence hath not only built the Houſe, but brought the Inhabitant (I mean the Soul) into the poſſeſſion of it. A glorious piece it is, that bears the very Image of God upon it, being all in all, and all in every part. How noble are its Faculties and Affections? How nimble, various and indefatigable are its Motions? How comprehenſive is its Capacity? Its a Companion for Angels, nay, capable of Eſpouſals to Chriſt, and eternal Communion with God. It's the Wonder of Earth, and the Envy of Hell.

Suppoſe now (and why ſhould you not ſuppoſe, what you ſo frequently behold in the world?) that Providenee had ſo permitted and order'd it, that thy Soul had entred into thy Body with one or two of its Faculties wounded and defective: Suppoſe its Underſtanding had been crack'd; what a miſerable life hadſt thou liv'd in this World? neither capable of ſervice nor comfort. And truly, when I have conſider'd thoſe works of Providence, in bringing into the world in all Countries and Ages ſome ſuch ſpectacles of pity; ſome depriv'd of the uſe of Reaſon, and differing from Beaſts in little more than ſhape and figure; and others, though ſound in their Underſtandings, yet deform'd or defective in their Bodies, monſtrous, miſhapen and loathſom creatures; I can reſolve the deſign of this Providence, into nothing beſide a demonſtration of his Sovereign power; except they be deſign'd as foils, to ſet off the beauty of other rare and exquiſite pieces, and intended to ſtand before your eyes, as Monitors of God's Mercy to you, that your hearts (as oft as you beheld them) might be melted into thankfulneſs for diſtinguiſhing favour to you.

Look then (but not proudly) upon thy outſide and inſide, ſee and admire what Providence hath done for thee, and how well it hath perform'd the firſt ſervice that ever it did for thee in this world. And yet, this was not all it did for thee, before thou ſaw'ſt this world. It preſerv'd thee, as well as form'd thee in the womb: elſe thou hadſt been as thoſe Embryos Job ſpeaks of, Job 3. 11, 12. that never ſaw the light. Abortives go for nothing in the world, and there are multitudes of them, ſome that never had a reaſonable ſoul breath'd into them; but only the rudiments and rough draught of body: theſe come not into the account of men, but periſh as the beaſt doth. Others that die in, or ſhortly after they come out of the womb: and though their life was but for a moment; yet that moment entails an Eternity upon them: and had this been your caſe, as it is the caſe of millions, then (ſuppoſing your ſalvation) yet had you been utterly unſerviceable to God in the world: None had been the better for you, nor you the better for any in the world. You had been utterly uncapable of all that good, which, throughout your life you have either done to others, or receiv'd from others.

And if we conſider the nature of that obſcure life we liv'd in the womb; how ſmall an accident (had it been permitted by Providence) had extinguiſh'd our life, like a Bird in the ſhell? We cannot therefore but admire the tender care of Providence over us, and ſay with the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 139. 13. Thou haſt covered me in my Mother's womb: and not only ſo, but as it is, Pſal. 22. 9. Thou art he that took me out of my Mother's womb. He preſerv'd thee there to the fulneſs of time, and when that time was come, brought thee ſafely through manifold hazards, into that place in the world which he from Eternity eſpy'd for thee. Which leads us to the ſecond Performance.

The Second Performance of Providence.

Providential performances with reſpect to time and place of our Nativity.

II. The Second great performance of Providence, for the People of God, reſpects the place, and time in which it order'd their Nativity to fall. And truly, this is no ſmall concernment to every one of us, but of vaſt conſequence, either to our good or evil, tho' it be little minded by moſt men. I am perſuaded, the thoughts of few Chriſtians penetrate deep enough into this Providence, but ſlide too ſlightly and ſuperficially over an Abyſs of much Mercy, rich and manifold mercy wrapt up in this gracious performance of Providence for them.

Ah Friends! can you think it an indifferent thing, into what part of the world the womb of Nature had caſt you out? Is there no odds, upon what ſpot of the Creation, or in what Age of the world your lot had fall'n? It may be you have not ſeriouſly bethought your ſelves about this matter. And becauſe this point is ſo ſeldom touch'd, I will therefore dive a little more particularly and diſtinctly into it, and endeavour to warm your affections with a repreſentation of the many and rich benefits you owe to this one performance of Providence for you.

And we will conſider it under a double reſpect or relation, as it reſpects your preſent comfort in this world, and as it relates to your eternal happineſs in the world to come.

1. This performance of Providence for you doth very much concern your preſent comfort in this world. All the rooms in this great houſe are not alike pleaſant and commodious for the Inhabitants of it. You read Pſal. 74. 20. of the dark places of the Earth, which are full of the habitations of cruelty: and many ſuch diſmal places are found in the habitable earth. What a vaſt tract of the world lies as a waſt wilderneſs?

Suppoſe your Mothers had brought you forth in America among the Salvage Indians, who herd together as brute beaſts; are ſcorch'd with heat, and ſtarv'd with cold; being naked, deſtitute and defenceleſs. How poor, miſerable, and unprovided of earthly comforts and accommodations, are many millions of the Inhabitants of this world? What mercies do you enjoy, in reſpect of the amenity, fertility, temperature and civility of the place of your habitation? What is it but a garden encloſ'd out of a wilderneſs? I may without partiality or vanity ſay, God hath (even upon temporal accounts) provided you with one of the healthfulleſt, pleaſanteſt, and in all reſpects, the beſt furniſh'd room in all the great houſe of this world. Hear what our own Chronicler ſaith of it; It is the fortunate Iſland, the Paradiſe of pleaſure, the Garden of God; whoſe Vallies are like Eden, whoſe Hills are as Lebanon, whoſe Springs are as Piſgah, whoſe Rivers are as Jordan, whoſe Wall is the Ocean, and whoſe Defence is the Lord Jehovah.

Speed's Chron.

You are here provided of neceſſary and comfortable accommodations for your bodies, that a great part of the world are unacquainted with. It is not with the pooreſt among us, as it is ſaid to be with the poor Ruſſians, whoſe poverty pinches and bites with ſuch ſharp teeth, that their poor cry at the doors, Give me and cut me, give me and kill me.

Say not, The barbarous Nations in this excel you: that they poſſeſs the Mines of Silver and Gold, which it may be you think enough to ſalve all other inconveniencies of life. Alas poor Creatures! better had it been for them, if their Country had brought forth Bryers and Thorns, inſtead of Gold, Silver, and precious Stones; for this hath been the occaſion of ruining all their other comforts in this world: this hath invited their cruel avaritious enemies among them, under whoſe ſervitude they groan, and die without mercy: and thouſands of them have choſen death rather than life, on the terms they enjoy'd it. And why might not your lot have fall'n there as well as where it is? Are not they made of the ſame clay, and endow'd with as good a nature as your ſelves? O what a diſtinction hath divine Mercy made, where Nature made none! Conſider ungrateful man, thou mighteſt have fall'n into ſome of thoſe Regions, where a tainted air frequently cloys the jaws of Death, where the Inhabitants differ very little from the Beaſts in the manner of their living: but God hath provided for thee, and given the pooreſt among us far better accommodations of life, than the greateſt among them are ordinarily provided with. O what hath Providence done for you?

But all that I have ſaid is very inconſiderable, in compariſon with the ſpiritual mercies, and advantages you here enjoy for your Souls.

Oh, this is ſuch an advantageous caſt of Providence for you, as obliges you to a thankful acknowledgment of it, to all Eternity. For let us here make but a few ſuppoſitions in the caſe before us, and the glory of Providence will ſhine like a Sun beam full in your faces.

(1.) Suppoſe it had been your Lot to have fall'n in any of thoſe vaſt Continents poſſeſs'd by Pagans and Heathens at this day, who bow down to the ſtock of a Tree, and worſhip the Hoſt of Heaven. This is the caſe of millions, and millions of millions: for Pagan Idolaters (as that ſearching Scholar Mr. Brierwood informs us) do not only fill the circumference of nine hundred miles in Europe, but almoſt the one half of Africa, more than the half of Aſia, and almoſt the whole of America.

Brierwoods Enquiries, chap 13. p.118,119

Oh how deplorable had thy caſe been, if a Pagan Idolatreſs had brought thee forth, and Idolatry had been ſuck'd in with thy Mother's milk! Then in all probability, thou hadſt been at this day worſhiping Devils, and poſting with full ſpeed in the direct road to Damnation: for theſe are the People of God's wrath, Jer. 10. 25. Pour out thy fury upon the Heathen that knew thee not, and upon the families that call not upon thy name. How dreadful is that imprecation againſt them? Pſal. 97. 7. which takes hold of them and all that's theirs, Confounded be all they that ſerve graven Images, that boaſt themſelves of Idols.

(2.) Or ſuppoſe your Lot had fall'n among Mahometans, who next to Pagans ſpread over the greateſt tract of the Earth, for though Arabia bred that unclean Bird, yet it was not that Cage, that could long contain him; for, not only the Arabians, but the Perſians, Turks and Tartars, do all bow down their backs under that grand Impoſtor. This poiſon hath diſpers'd itſelf through the veins of Aſia, over a great part of Africk, even the circumference of ſeven thouſand miles, and ſtops not there, but hath tainted a conſiderable part of Europe alſo.

Had your Lot fall'n here, O what unhappy men and women had you been, notwithſtanding the natural amenity and pleaſantneſs of your native ſoil? You had then ador'd a grand Impoſtor, and dy'd in a fools Paradiſe. Inſtead of God's lively Oracles, you had been (as they now are) deceiv'd to your eternal ruine with ſuch fond, mad and wild dreams, as whoſo conſiders, would think, the Authors had more need of manacles and fetters, than arguments or ſober anſwers.

(3.) Or if neither of theſe had been your Lot, but you had been empty'd by the womb of Nature into this little ſpot of the Earth which is Chriſtianiz'd by profeſſion, but nevertheleſs for the moſt part over-run by Popiſh Idolatry, and Antichriſtian deluſions; what unhappy men and women had you been, had you ſuck'd a Popiſh breaſt? For this people are to be the ſubjects of the Vials of Gods wrath to be poured out ſucceſſively upon them, as you may read Rev. 16. and the Scriptures in round and plain language tell us, what their fate muſt be, 2 Theſſ. 2. 11, 12. And for this cauſe God ſhall ſend them ſtrong deluſion, that they ſhould believe a lye, that they all might be damned who believed not the truth, but had pleaſure in unrighteouſneſs.

Nay, you might have fall'n into the ſame Land in which your habitation now is, and yet have had no advantage by it as to ſalvation, if he that choſe the bounds of your habitations, had not alſo graciouſly determin'd the times for you, Acts 17. 26. For,

(4.) Suppoſe your Lot had fall'n where it is during the Pagan State of England, who for many hundred years were groſs and vile Idolaters. Thick darkneſs overſpread the people of this Iſland, and as in other Countries, the Devil was worſhipped, and his lying Oracles zealouſly attended upon.

The ſhaking of the top of Jupiter's Oak in Dodona, the Caldron ſmitten with the rod in the hand of Jupiter's Image, the Laurel and Fountain in Daphne: theſe were the Ordinances on which the poor deluded wretches waited. So in this Nation they worſhipped Idols alſo: the Sun and Moon were ador'd for Gods, with many other abominable Idols which our Anceſtors worſhipped, and whoſe memorials are not to this day quite obliterated among us.

(5.) Or ſuppoſe our Lot had fall'n in thoſe later miſerable days, in which Q. Mary ſent ſo many hundreds to Heaven in a fiery Chariot, and the poor Proteſtants skulk'd up and down in holes and woods, to preſerve them from Popiſh Inquiſitors, who like Blood-hounds, hunted up and down through all the Cities, Towns and Villages of the Nation, to ſeek out the poor ſheep of Chriſt for a prey.

But ſuch hath the ſpecial care of Providence towards us been, that our turn to be brought upon the ſtage of this world was graciouſly reſerv'd for better days: ſo that if we had had our own option, we could not have choſen for our ſelves, as Providence hath. We are not only furniſh'd with the beſt room in this great houſe; but before we were put into it, it was ſwept with the beſom of National Reformation, from Idolatry, yea, and waſhed by the blood of Martyrs from Popiſh filthineſs; and adorn'd with Goſpel-lights, ſhining in as great luſtre in our days, as ever they did ſince the Apoſtles days. You might have been born in England for many Ages, and not have found a Chriſtian in it: yea, and ſince Chriſtianity was here own'd, and not have met a Proteſtant in it. O what an Obligation hath Providence laid you under, by ſuch a merciful performance as this for you?

Obj. If you ſay, All this indeed is true; but what is this to eternal ſalvation; Do not multitudes that enjoy theſe privileges, eternally periſh notwithſtanding them? yea, and periſh with an aggravation of ſin and miſery beyond other ſinners?

Sol. True, they do ſo; and it is of very ſad conſideration that it ſhould be ſo; but yet we cannot deny this to be a very choice and ſingular mercy, to be born in ſuch a Land, and at ſuch a time. For let us conſider what helps for ſalvation men here enjoy, beyond what they could enjoy, had their Lot fall'n according to the fore mention'd ſuppoſitions.

(1.) Here we enjoy the ordinary means of Salvation, which elſewhere Men are denyed and cut off from. So that if any among the Heathens be ſaved and brought to Chriſt, it muſt be in ſome miraculous or extraordinary way: for, How ſhall they believe in him of whom they have not heard, and how ſhall they hear with- out a Preacher? Rom. 10. 14. Alas! were there a deſire awakened in any of their hearts after a Goſpel diſcovery of Salvation, (which ordinarily is not, nor can be rationally ſuppoſed) yet, poor Creatures, they might travel from Sea to Sea, to hear the Word, and not find it: Whereas you can hardly miſs the opportunities of hearing the Goſpel: Sermons meet you frequently, ſo that you can ſcarcely ſhun or avoid the Ordinances and Inſtruments of your Salvation. And is this nothing? Chriſt even forces himſelf upon us,

(2.) Here in this Age of the World, the common prejudices againſt Chriſtianity are removed, by the advantage it hath of a publick profeſſion among the People and protection by the Laws of the Country. Whereas, were your habitation among Jews, Mahometans, or Heathen Idolaters, you would find Chriſt and Chriſtianity the common odium of the Country; every one deſying and deriding both name and thing; and ſuch your ſelves likely had been, if your birth and education had been among them. For you may obſerve, that whatever is πατροπαράδοτον traditionally delivered down from Father to Son, every one is fond of, and zealous in its defence. The Jews, Heathens and Mahometans are at this Day ſo Tenacious of their Errors, that with Spitting, Hiſſing, and Clapping of Hands and all other Signs of Indignation and Abhorrence they chaſe away all others from among them.

Mr. Pinke.

Is it not then a ſpecial mercy to you to be caſt into ſuch a Country and Age, where (as a learned Divine obſerves) the true Religion hath the ſame advantages over every falſe one, as in other Countreys they have over it? Here you have the preſence of precious Means, and the abſence of Soul-deſtroying prejudices, two ſignal Mercies.

(3.) Here, in this Age of the World, Chriſtianity beſpeaks you as ſoon as you are capable of any ſenſe, or impreſſions of Religion upon you? and ſo by an happy Anticipation, blocks up the paſſages, by which a falſe Religion would elſe certainly enter. Here you ſuck in the firſt notions and principles of Chriſtianity, even with the Mothers Milk: and certainly, ſuch a pre-poſſeſſion is a choice advantage. Quo ſemel eſt imbuta recens ſervabit odorem Teſta diu. Train up a Child in the way he ſhould go, and when he is old he will not depart from it, Prov. 22. 6.

(4.) Here you have, or may have the help and aſſiſtance of Chriſtians to direct your way, reſolve your doubts, ſupport your burthens, and help you through thoſe difficulties that attend the new birth. Alas! if a poor Soul had any beginnings or faint workings and ſtirrings after Chriſt and true Religion in many other Countries the hand of every man would preſently be againſt him, and none would be found to relieve, aſſiſt or encourage, as you may ſee in that Example of Galeacius; the neareſt relations would, in that caſe, prove the greateſt Enemies, the Countrey would quickly hoot at him as a Monſter, and cry Away with the Heretick to the Priſon or Stake.

Whether theſe eventually prove bleſſings to your Souls or no, certain I am, that in themſelves they are ſingular mercies, and helps to Salvation, that are deny'd to Millions beſides you. So that if Plato when he was near his Death, could bleſs God for three things, viz. That he was a Man and not a Beaſt: that he was born in Greece; and brought up in the time of Socrates: much more cauſe have you to admire Providence, that you are Men, and not Beaſts, that you were born in England, and brought up in Goſpel days here. This is a Land the Lord hath Eſpied for you, as the expreſſion is, Ezek. 20. 6. and concerning it, you have abundant cauſe to ſay, as in another caſe the Pſalmiſt doth, Pſal. 16. 6. The lines are fallen to me in pleaſant places, and I have a goodly heritage.

The Third Performance of Providence.

Providential performances with reſpect to the Stock and Family out of which we ſprang.

The next obſervable Performance of Providence, which muſt be heedfully adverted and weighed, is the deſignation of the ſtock and family out of which we ſhould ſpring and riſe. And truly, this is of ſpecial conſideration, both as to our temporal and eternal good: For whether the Families in which we grew up, were great or ſmall in Iſrael; whether our Parents were of a higher or lower Claſs, and rank among Men, yet if they were ſuch as feared God and wrought righteouſneſs, if they took any care to Educate you Religiouſly, and trained you up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, you are bound to reckon it among your chief Mercies, that you ſprung from the Loins of ſuch Parents: For from this Spring a double Stream of Mercy riſes to you.

(1.) Temporal and external Mercies to your outward Man. You cannot but know, that as Godlineſs entails a Bleſſing, ſo Wickedneſs and Unrighteouſneſs a Curſe upon Poſterity. An inſtance of the former you have in Gen. 17. 18, 20. On the contrary, you have the threatning, Zech. 5. 4 and both together, Prov. 3. 33. The Curſe of the Lord is in the houſe of the wicked, but he Bleſſeth the habitation of the juſt. True it is, That both theſe imply the Childrens treading in the ſteps of their Parents, according to Ezek. 18. but how frequently is it ſeen, that wicked Men breed their Children vainly and wickedly; ſo that as it's ſaid of Abijam, 1 Kings 15. 3. He walked in all the ſins of his father, which he had done before him; and ſo the Curſe is entail'd from generation to generation. To eſcape this Curſe, is a choice Providence.

(2.) But eſpecially take notice, what a Stream of Spiritual Bleſſings and Mercies, flows from this Providence to the Inner Man. O it's no common Mercy, to deſcend from Pious Parents: ſome of us do not only owe our natural life to them, as Inſtruments of our Beings, but our Spiritual and Eternal life alſo. It was no ſmall Mercy to Timothy, to be deſcended from ſuch Progenitors, 2 Tim. 1. 5. nor to Auguſtine, that he had ſuch a Mother as Monica who planted in his mind the precepts of life with her Words, watered them with her Tears, and nouriſhed them with her Example. We will a little more particularly inſpect this Mercy, and in ſo doing, we ſhall find Manifold Mercies contained in it.

(1.) What a Mercy was it to us, to have Parents that prayed for us before they had us, as well as in our Infancy, when we could not pray for our ſelves? Thus did Abra- ham, Gen. 15. 2. and Hannah, 1 Sam. 1. 10, 11. and ſome here likely are the fruits and returns of their Parents Prayers. This was that holy courſe they continued all their days for you, carrying all your concerns, eſpecially your Eternal ones before the Lord with their own; and pouring out their Souls to God ſo affectionately for you, when their Eye-ſtrings and Heart-ſtrings were breaking. Oh put a value upon ſuch Mercies; for they are precious. It's a greater Mercy, to deſcend from praying Parents, than from the loyns of Nobles. See Job's pious practice, Job 1. 5.

(2.) What a ſpecial Mercy was it to us, to have the excreſcencies of corruption nipt in the Bud by their pious and careful diſcipline? We now underſtand, what a Critical and Dangerous ſeaſon Youth is, the wonderful proclivity of that Age to every thing that is evil. Why elſe are they called Youthful luſts? 2 Tim. 2. 22. When David asketh, Wherewith ſhall a young man cleanſe his way? it's plainly enough implyed in the very Queſtion, that the way he takes lieth through the pollutions of the World in his Youth, Pſal. 119. 9 When you find a David praying, that God would not remember the ſins of his youth, Pſal. 25 7. and a Job bitterly complaining, that God made him to poſſeſs the ſins of his youth, Job 13. 26. Sure you cannot but reflect, with a very thankful heart, upon thoſe happy means, by which the corruption of your nature was happily prevented, or reſtrained in your Youth.

(3.) And how great a Mercy was it, that we had Parents, who carefully inſtilled the good Knowledge of God into our Souls in our tender Years? How careful was Abraham of this Duty? Gen. 18. 19. And David? 1 Chron. 28. 9. We have ſome of us had Parents, who might ſay to us, as the Apoſtle, Gal. 4. 19. My little Children, of whom I travail again in Birth till Chriſt be formed in you. As they longed for us before they had us, and rejoyced in us when they had us; ſo they could not endure to think, that when they could have us no more, the Devil ſhould. As they thought no Pains, Care or Coſt too much for our Bodies to Feed them, Cloath and Heal them; ſo did they think no Prayers, Counſels or Tears, too much for our Souls, that they might be ſaved. They knew a parting Time would come betwixt them and us, and did ſtrive to make it as eaſie and comfortable to them as they could, by leaving us in Chriſt, and within the bleſſed Bond of his Covenant.

They were not glad that we had Health, and indifferent whether we had Grace.

They as ſenſibly felt the Miſeries of our Souls as of our Bodies; and nothing was more deſirable to them, than that they might ſay in the great Day, Lord, here am I, and the Children which thou haſt given me.

(4.) And was it not a ſpecial Favour to us, to have Parents that went before us as Patterns of Holineſs, and beat the Path to Heaven for us by their Examples? Who could ſay to us, as Phil. 4. 9. What Things ye have heard and ſeen in me, that do; and as 1 Cor. 11. 1. Be ye followers of us, as we are of Chriſt. The Parents Life is the Child's Copy. O 'tis no common Mercy, to have a fair Copy ſet before us, eſpecially in the moulding age: We ſaw what they did, as well as heard what they ſaid. It was Abraham's Commendation, that he commanded his Children, and his houſehold after him, to keep the way of the Lord. And ſuch Mercies ſome of us have had alſo.

Ah my Friends, let me beg you, that you will ſet ſpecial Remarks upon this Providence, which ſo graciouſly wrought for you: And that your Hearts may be more throughly warmed in the Senſe of it, compare your Condition with others, and ſeriouſly bethink your ſelves.

(1.) How many Children there be among us, that are drawn headlong to Hell by their cruel and ungodly Parents, who teach them to curſe and ſwear aſſoon as they can ſpeak? Many Families there are, wherein little other Language is heard, but what is the Dialect of Hell. Theſe, like the old Logs and ſmall ſpray, are preparing for the Fire of Hell, where they muſt burn together. Of ſuch Children, that Scripture, Pſalm 49. 19. will one day be verified, except they repent, They ſhall go to the Generation of their Fathers, where they ſhall not ſee Light.

(2.) And how many Families are there, though not ſo prophane, who yet breed up their Children vainly and ſenſually, as Job 21. 11, &c. take no care what becomes of their Souls, ſo they can but provide for their Bodies? If they can but teach them to carry their Bodies, no matter if the Devil Act their Souls: If they can but leave them Lands or Moneys, they think they have very fully diſcharged their Duties. O what will the Language be, wherewith ſuch Parents and Children ſhall greet each other at the Judgment-Seat, and in Hell for ever?

(3.) And how many be there, who are more ſober, and yet hate the leaſt appearances of Godlineſs in their Children? Who inſtead of cheriſhing, do all they can to break bruiſed Reeds, and quench ſmoaking Flax, to ſtifle and ſtrangle the firſt appearances, and offers they make towards Chriſt? Who had rather accompany them to their Graves, than to Chriſt, doing all that in them lies, Herod like, to kill Chriſt in the Cradle? Ah Sirs, ye little know, what a Mercy ye do or have enjoyed in Godly Parents, and what a good Lot Providence caſt for you in this Concernment of your Bodies and Souls.

Obj. If any ſhall ſay, This was not their Caſe, they had little help Heaven-ward from their Parents: To ſuch I ſhall only Reply three Things.

Sol. (1.) If you had little furtherance, yet own it as a ſpecial Providence, that you had no hinderance; or, if you had Oppoſition, yet

(2.) Admire the Grace of God, in plucking you out by a wonderful diſtinguiſhing Hand of Mercy from among them, and keeping alive the languiſhing ſparks of Grace amidſt the floods of oppoſition.

(3.) And learn from hence, if God give you a Poſterity of your own, to be ſo much the more ſtrict and careful of Relational Duties, by how much you have ſenſibly felt the want of it in your ſelves.

But ſeeing ſuch a train of Bleſſings, both as to this life, and that to come, follow upon an holy Education of Children; I will not diſmiſs the Point till I have diſcharged my Duty, in exhorting Parents and Children to their Duties.

And firſt for you that are Parents, or to whom the Education of Children is committed, I beſeech you mind, how concerning a Duty lies on you: And that I may effectually preſs it, conſider,

(1.) How near the Relation is betwixt you and your Children, and therefore how much you are concerned in their Happineſs or Miſery. Conſider but the Scripture account of the dearneſs of ſuch Relations, expreſſed, 1. By longings for them, as Gen. 15. 2. Gen. 30. 1. And, 2. By our joy when we have them, as Chriſt expreſſes it, John 16. 21. 3. The high value ſet on them, Gen. 42. 38. 4. The ſympathy with them in all their troubles, Mark 9. 22. And, 5. By our ſorrow at parting, Gen. 37. 35. Now ſhall all this be to no purpoſe? For to what purpoſe do we deſire them before we have them, rejoyce in them when we have them, value them ſo highly, ſympathize with them ſo tenderly, grieve for their Death ſo exceſſively; if in the mean time no care be taken what ſhall become of them to Eternity?

(2.) How God hath charged you with their Souls as well as Bodies: And this appears by two ſorts of Precepts. 1. Precepts directly laid upon you, Deut. 6. 6, 7. and Eph. 6. 4. 2. By Precepts laid on them to obey you, Eph. 6. 1. which plainly implies your Duty, as well as expreſſes theirs.

(3.) What ſhall comfort you at the parting time, if they die through your neglect in a Chriſtleſs condition? Oh this is the cutting Conſideration, My Child is in Hell, and I did nothing to prevent it; I helped him thither. Duty diſcharged, is the only root of comfort in that day.

(4.) If you neglect to inſtruct them in the way of Holineſs, will the Devil neglect to inſtruct them in the way of Wickedneſs? No, no, if you will not teach them to Pray, he will to Curſe, Swear and Lye. If ground be uncultivated weeds will ſpring.

(5.) If the Seaſon of their Youth be neglected, how little probability is there of any good Fruit afterwards? That is the Moulding Age, Prov. 22. 6. How few are converted in Old Age? A twig is brought to any form, but grown limbs will not bow.

(6.) You are inſtrumental Cauſes of all their ſpiritual miſery; and that, 1. By Generation: 2. Imitation, they lie ſpiritually dead of the Plague which you brought home among them, Pſalm 51. 5. Behold, I was ſhapen in Iniquity, and in ſin did my mother conceive ( or warm ) me.

(7.) There's none in the World ſo likely as you, to be inſtruments of their Eternal good. You have peculiar advantages that none other hath; as, 1. The intereſt you have in their Affections. 2. Your opportunities to inſtil the knowledge of Chriſt into them, being daily with them, Deut. 6. 7. 3. Your knowledge of their Tempers: If therefore you neglect, who ſhall help them?

(8.) The conſideration of the great Day, ſhould move your bowels of pity for them. O remember that Text, Rev. 20. 12, &c. I ſaw the dead ſmall and great ſtand before God. What a ſad thing will it be, to ſee your dear Children at Chriſt's left Hand? O Friends, do your utmoſt to prevent this miſery. Knowing the terrors of the Lord, we perſwade men.

2. And you Children, eſpecially you that ſprang from religious Parents, I beſeech you, obey their Counſels; and tread in the ſteps of their pious Examples. To preſs this, I offer theſe Conſiderations.

(1.) Your diſobedience to them, is a reſiſting of God's Authority, Epheſ. 6. 1. Children, obey your Parents in the Lord: There's the Command: Your Rebellion therefore runs higher than you think. It is not Man, but God that you diſobey; and for your diſobedience God will puniſh you. It may be, their tenderneſs will not ſuffer them, or you are grown beyond their correction: All they can do, is to complain to God; and if ſo, he will handle you more ſeverely than they could do.

(2.) Your ſin is greater than the ſin of young Heathens and Infidels; and ſo will your account be alſo. O better (if a wicked Child) that thou hadſt been the Off ſpring of ſalvage Indians, nay, of Beaſts, than of ſuch Parents. So many Counſels diſobey'd, Hopes and Prayers fruſtrated, will turn to ſad Aggravations.

(3.) It's uſual with God, to retaliate Mens diſobedience to their Parents in kind: Commonly our own Children ſhall pay us home for it. I have read in a grave Author, of a wicked Wretch that dragg'd his Father along the Houſe: The Father begg'd him not to draw him beyond ſuch a Place; for, ſaid he, I dragg'd my Father no farther. O the ſad, but juſt Retributions of God!

And for you, in whoſe Hearts Grace hath been planted by the bleſſing of Education, I beſeech you to admire God's goodneſs to you in this Providence. O what an unhappy Lot hath God caſt for you! How few Children are Partakers of your Mercies?

See that you Honour ſuch Parents; the tie is double upon you ſo to do. Be you the Joy of their Hearts, and Comfort of their Lives, if living: If not, yet ſtill remember the Mercy while you live, and tread in their Pious Path; that you and they may both rejoyce together in the great Day, and bleſs God for each other to all Eternity.

The Fourth Performance of Providence.

Providential Performances about our Converſion to God.

IV. The next remarkable Performance of Providence for the People of God which I will inſtance, ſhall be with reſpect to its ordering the Occaſions, Inſtruments and Means of their Converſion.

In nothing doth Providence ſhine forth more gloriouſly in this World, than it doth in this performance for the People of God. How curiouſly ſoever its hand had moulded your Bodies, how tenderly ſoever it had preſerved them, and how bountifully ſoever it had provided for them; if it had not alſo order'd ſome means or other for your Converſion, all the former Favours and Benefits it had done for you, had ſignified little. This, O this is the moſt excellent Benefit you ever received from its hand. You are more beholden to it for this, than for all your other Mercies. And in opening this Performance of Providence, I cannot but think your Hearts muſt be deeply affected. This is a ſubject which every gracious Heart loves to ſteep its Thoughts in. It's certainly the ſweeteſt Hiſtory that ever they repeated: They love to think and talk of it. The Places where, and Inſtruments by whom this Work was wrought, are exceedingly endear'd to them for the Works ſake: Yea, endear'd to that degree, that for many Years after their Hearts have melted, when they have but paſſed occaſionally by thoſe Places, or but ſeen the Faces of thoſe Perſons, that were uſed as Inſtruments in the Hand of Providence for their good. As no doubt, but Jacob's Beth-el was ever after that Night ſweet to his Thoughts: So other Saints have had their Bethels as well as he. O bleſſed Places, Times and Inſtruments! O the deep, the ſweet Impreſſions, never to be razed out of the Memory or Heart, that this Providence hath made upon thoſe on whom it wrought this bleſſed Effect at Years of Diſcretion, and in a more ſenſible way!

Gen. 48. 3.

But leſt any poor Soul ſhould be diſcourag'd under the diſplay of this Providence, becauſe he cannot remember the Time, Place, Inſtruments and Manner wherein, and by which Converſion work was wrought; I will therefore premiſe this neceſſary Diſtinction, to prevent injury to ſome, whilſt I deſign benefit to others.

Converſion, as to the ſubjects of it, may be conſider'd two ways; either as it is more ſenſibly wrought in Perſons of riper Years, who in their youthful days were more prophane and vile; or upon Perſons in their tender Years, into whoſe Hearts Grace was more inſenſibly and undiſcernably inſtill'd by God's Bleſſings upon pious Education. In the former ſort, the diſtinct Acts of the Spirit, as illuminating, convincing, humbling, drawing them to Chriſt, and ſealing them are more evident and diſcernable: In the latter, more obſcure and confuſed; they can remember, that God gave them an eſteem and liking of godly Perſons, Care of Duty, and Conſcience of Sin; but as to the Time, Place, Inſtruments and Manner of the Work, they can give but a ſlender account of them: However, if the Work be ſavingly wrought in them, there is no reaſon they ſhould be troubled, becauſe the Circumſtances of it are not ſo evident to them as they are to others. Let the ſubſtance and reality of the Work appear, and there is no Reaſon to afflict your ſelves, becauſe of the inevidence of ſuch Circumſtances.

But yet where the Circumſtances as well as Subſtance are clear to a Man: When we can call to remembrance, the Time when, the Place where, the Inſtrument by whom that Work was wrought, it muſt needs be exceeding ſweet: And they cannot but yield a freſh Delight to the Soul every Time they are reflected upon.

There are many of the following Occaſions, which it may be, we took for ſtraglers when they firſt befel us: But they proved ſcouts ſent out from the main Body of Providence, which they make way for.

Now there be divers things in thoſe Providences, that are verſant about this Work, which are exceeding ſweet, and taking: as namely,

1. The wonderful ſtrangeneſs and unaccountableneſs of this Work of Providence, in caſting us into the way, and ordering the occaſions, yea, the minuteſt Circumſtances about this Work. Thus you find in Acts 8. 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, &c The Eunuch at that very inſtant when he was reading the Prophet Iſaiah, hath an Interpreter, one among a Thouſand, that joins his Chariot, juſt as his Mind was by a fit occaſion prepared to receive the firſt Light of the Knowledge of Chriſt.

And how ſtrange was that Change (how far ſoever it went) upon Naaman the Syrian? recorded 2 Kings 5. 1, 2, 3, 4. That the Syrians in their incurſion ſhould bring away this Girl (likely her Beauty was the inducement) and ſhe muſt be preſented to Naaman's Wife, and relate to her the Power of God that accompany'd the Prophet; though you find in that particular Caſe there had never been an inſtance given before, Luke 4. 27. Doubtleſs, the whole of this Affair was guided by the ſignal Direction of Providence.

So for the Converſion of the Samaritans, it's obſerv'd John 4. 4. Chriſt muſt need go that way, (i. e.) it lay juſt in the Road betwixt Judea and Galilee, and at the ſixth hour (i. e.) high Noon, he reſts himſelf upon Jacob's Well, ſtill ſeeming to have no other deſign, but his own refreſhment, by ſitting and drinking there: But O what a Train of Bleſſed Providences follow this, which ſeem'd but an accidental thing! Firſt the Woman of Samaria, and then many more in that City are brought to believe in Chriſt, as you find Verſe 29 and 41.

It is noted by Melchior Adams in the Life of Junius, how very an Atheiſt he was grown in his younger Years; but in order to his Converſion to God, firſt, a wonderful preſervation of his Life in a publick Tumult at Lyons in France muſt make way, which forces from him the acknowledgment of a Deity. Then his Father ſends for him home, and with much gentleneſs perſwades him to read the Scriptures; he lights upon the firſt of John, and with it he ſenſibly feels a Divine Supernatural Majeſty and Power ſeizing his Soul, which brought him over by a compleat Converſion to Jeſus Chriſt. Thus, as the Woman of Tekoa told David, doth God deviſe means to bring back his baniſhed.

Lavater tells us, that many Spaniſh Soldiers, going into the Wars of Germany, were there Converted to Chriſt, by falling into the Cities and Towns, where Godly Miniſters and Chriſtians were.

Mr. Robert Bolton, though an excellent Scholar, yet in his younger Years he was a very irreligious Perſon, and a Jeerer of Holy Men; but being caſt into the Company of Godly Mr. Peacock, was by him brought to Repentance, and proved a famous Inſtrument in the Church of Chriſt.

A ſcrap of Paper accidentally coming to view, hath been uſed as an occaſion of Converſion. This was the Caſe of a Miniſter in Wales, who had two Livings, but took little care of either. He being at a Fair, bought ſomething at a Pedler's Standing, and rent off a Leaf of Mr. Perkin's Catechiſm to wrap it in, and reading a Line or two in it, God ſet it home, ſo as it did the Work.

The Marriage of a Godly Man into a Carnal Family, hath been ordered by Providence, for the Converſion and Salvation of many therein. Thus we read, in the Life of that Renown'd Engliſh Worthy Mr. John Bruen, that in his ſecond Match it was agreed, that he ſhould have one Years Diet in his Mother-in Law's Houſe: During his abode there that Year (ſaith Mr. Clark) the Lord was pleas'd by his Means, graciouſly to work upon her Soul, as alſo upon his Wife's Siſter, and half Siſter, their Brothers, Mr. William and Mr. Thomas Fox, with one or two of the Servants in that Family.

Sleydan's Comment. p. 476.

The reading of a good Book, hath been the means of bringing others to Chriſt. And thus we find many of the German Divines Converted by reading Luther's Books: Yea, and what is more ſtrange, Mr. Sleydan in his Commentary tells us, that Vergerius, though he were preſent an Eye and Ear-witneſs to that doleful Caſe of Spira, which one would think ſhould move a Stone, yet ſtill continu'd ſo firm to the Pope's Intereſt, that when he fell into ſome ſuſpicion among the Cardinals, he reſolv'd to purge himſelf, by writing a Book againſt the German Apoſtates: But whilſt he read the Proteſtant Books, out of no other deſign but to Confute 'em; whilſt he is weighing the Arguments, is himſelf convinc'd and brought to Chriſt. He finding himſelf thus overcome by the Truth, imparts his Conviction to his Brother, a zealous Papiſt alſo: This Brother deplores the miſery of his caſe, and ſeeks to reclaim him; but Vergerius entreating him to weigh well the Proteſtant Arguments, he alſo yields; and ſo both immediately betook themſelves to preach Juſtification by the Free Grace of God through the Blood of Chriſt.

Poſſidonius in vita Auguſtini cap. 15.

Yea, not only the reading of a Book, or hearing a Miniſter, but (which is moſt remarkable) the very miſtake or forgetfulneſs of a Miniſter, hath been improv'd by Providence for this end and purpoſe. Auguſtine once Preaching to his Congregation, forgot the Argument which firſt he propos'd, and fell upon the Error of the Manichees, beſide his firſt Intention; by which Diſcourſe he Converted one Firmus his Auditor; who fell down at his Feet weeping, and Confeſſing he had liv'd a Manichee many Years. Another I knew, who going to Preach, took up another Bible than than that he deſign'd, in which, not only miſſing his Notes, but the Chapter alſo in which his Text lay, was put to ſome loſs thereby: But after a ſhort pauſe, he reſolv'd to ſpeak to any other Scripture that might be preſented to him, and accordingly read that Text, 2 Pet. 3. 9. The Lord is not ſlack concerning his Promiſe, &c. And tho' he had nothing prepar'd, yet the Lord help'd him to ſpeak both methodically and pertinently from it: By which Diſcourſe, a gracious change was wrought upon one in the Congregation, who hath ſince given good Evidence of a ſound Converſion, and acknowledg'd this Sermon to be the firſt and only means thereof.

The accompanying of others in a Neighbourly civil Viſit, hath been over-rul'd to the ſame end. Thus many of the Jews accompany'd Mary unto Bethany (deſigning only to maniſeſt their civil Reſpect) but there they met Chriſt, ſaw the things which he did, and believed on him, John 11. 45.

Mr. Firmin, in his Real Chriſtian, Pag. 97, 98. tells us of one, who had liv'd many Years in a Town where Chriſt had been as clearly, and as long Preached, as in any Town in England. This Man when he was about ſeventy ſix Years of Age, went to viſit a ſick Neighbour. 'A Chriſtian Friend of mine (ſaith mine Author) came to ſee him alſo, and finding this Old Man there; whom he judged to be one that liv'd upon his own Stock, Civility, Good Works, &c. he purpoſely fell into that Diſcourſe, to ſhew how many Perſons liv'd upon their Duties, but never came to Chriſt. The Old Man ſitting by the Bed ſide, heard him; and God was pleaſed to convince him, that he was ſuch a Perſon, who had liv'd upon himſelf without Chriſt to that day; and would ſay afterwards, had I dy'd before threeſcore and ſixteen, I had periſh'd, for I knew not Chriſt.

The committing of a Godly Man to Priſon, hath been the method of Providence, to ſave the Soul of a poor Keeper. So Paul, Acts 16. 27. was made a Priſoner, to make his Keeper a ſpiritual Freeman. The like ſucceſs had Dr. Barns in Q. Mary's days, who afterwards celebrated the Lords Supper in Priſon with his Converted Keeper.

The ſcattering of Miniſters and Chriſtians by Perſecution from Cities and Towns, into the ignorant and barbarous parts of the Countrey, hath been the way of Providence, to find out and bring home ſome loſt Sheep that were found there, to Jeſus Chriſt, Acts 8. 1, 4. The like ſignal Event hath ſince follow'd upon the like ſcattering of Godly Miniſters, whereof are many pregnant Inſtances at this day.

A Servant running away from his Maſter, (likely upon no other Deſign but to live an idle Life) yet falling into ſuch Places and Companies, as Providence order'd (in a Deſign to him unknown) hath thereby been brought to be the Servant of Chriſt. This was the very caſe of Oneſimus, who run away from his Maſter Philemon, to Rome; where by a ſtrange Providence (poſſibly a meer curioſity to ſee the Priſoners) he there falls into Paul's hands, who begat him to Chriſt in his Bonds, Philemon, ver. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16.

Going to hear a Sermon in Jeſt, hath proved ſome Mens Converſion in Earneſt. The above-named Mr. Firmin, in the fore-cited Book, tells us of a notorious Drunkard, whom the Drunkards call'd Father, that one day would needs go to hear what Wilſon ſaid, out of no other deſign it ſeems, but to ſcoff at that Holy Man: But in the Prayer before Sermon, his Heart began to thaw; and when he read his Text, which was John 5. 14. Sin no more, leſt a worſe thing come unto thee: He could not contain; and in that Sermon the Lord changed his Heart, though ſo bitter an Enemy, that the Miniſter on Lecture-days was afraid to go to Church before his Shop-door. Lo, theſe are parts of his ways, but how ſmall a Portion is known of him?

The dropping of ſome grave and weighty Word accidentally in the preſence of vain carnal Perſons, the Death of an Husband, Wife, or Child, a fit of Sickneſs, with a thouſand other ſuch like occaſions, have been thus improv'd by Providence to the Converſion of Souls.

And no leſs remarkable and wonderful are the deſigns of Providence in ordering the Removes, and governing the Motions of Miniſters, from Place to Place in order unto the Converſion of Souls. Thus oftentimes it carries them to Places where they intended not to go; God having (unknown to them) ſome Elect Veſſels there, who muſt be call'd by the Goſpel.

Thus Paul and Timothy (a ſweet and lovely Pair) when they were Travelling thro' Phrygia and Galatia, were forbid to Preach the Word in Aſia, to which probably their minds inclin'd, Acts 16. 6. And when they eſſay'd to go into Bithynia, the Spirit ſuffer'd them not, Verſe 7. But a Man of Macedonia (i. e. an Angel in the ſhape or habit of a Man of that Country) appear'd to Paul in a Viſion, and pray'd him, ſaying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us, ver. 9. and there did God open the Heart of Lydia.

I knew a pious Miniſter now with God, who falling in his Study upon a very rouſing Subject, intended for his own Congregation, was ſtrongly moved, when he had finiſhed it, to go to a rude, vile, prophane People, about five miles off, and firſt Preach it to them; after many wreſtlings with himſelf, not being willing to quench any motion that might be ſuppoſed to come from the Spirit of God, he obey'd, and went to this People, who had then no Miniſter of their own, and few durſt come among them. And there did the Lord, beyond all expectation, open a door, and ſeveral prophane ones received Chriſt in that Place, and engaged this Miniſter to a Weekly Lecture among them, in which many Souls were won to God.

The ſame Holy Man, at another time, being upon a Journey, paſt by a Company of vain Perſons, who were wreſtling upon a Green near the Road: And juſt as he came againſt the place, one of them had thrown his Antagoniſt, and ſtood Triumphing in his Strength and Activity. This good Man rode up to them, and turning his Speech to this Perſon; told him, Friend, I ſee you are a ſtrong Man; but yet let not the ſtrong Man glory in his Strength: You muſt know, that you are not to wreſtle with Fleſh and Blood, but with Principalities and Powers, and Spiritual Wickedneſſes: How ſad will it be, that Satan ſhould at laſt trip up the Heels of your Hope, and give you an Eternal overthrow? And after about a quarter of an Hours ſerious Diſcourſe upon this ſubject, he left them, and went on his Journey: But this Diſcourſe made ſuch an Impreſſion, that the Perſon had no reſt, till he opened his trouble to a Godly Miniſter, who wiſely following the work upon his Soul, ſaw at laſt the bleſſed Iſſue thereof in the gracious change of the Perſon, whereof he afterwards gave the Miniſter a joyful Account. O how unſearchable are the Methods of Providence in this Matter!

Nay, what is yet more wonderful, the Providence of God hath ſometimes ordered the very malice of Satan, and wickedneſs of Men, as an occaſion of Eternal good to their ſouls. A very memorable Example whereof, I ſhall here give the Reader, faithfully relating what not many Years paſt fell out in my own obſervation in this place, to the aſtoniſhment of many ſpectators.

In the Year 1673, there came in this Port a Ship of Pool, in her return from Virginia; in which Ship was one of that place, a luſty young man of twenty three years of age, who was Chirurgeon in the Ship. This perſon in the Voyage fell into a deep melancholy, which the Devil greatly improved to ſerve his own deſign for the ruin of this poor man; however, it pleaſed the Lord to reſtrain him from any attempts upon his own Life, until he arrived here. But ſhortly after his arrival, upon the Lords day early in the morning (being in bed with his Brother) he took a Knife prepared for that purpoſe, and cut his own throat, and withal leapt out of the bed, and though the wound was deep and large, yet thinking it might not ſoon enough diſpatch his wretched life, deſperately thruſt it into his ſtomach, and ſo lay wallowing in his own blood, till his Brother awaking, made a cry for help: hereupon a Phyſician and a Chirurgeon coming in found the wound in his throat mortal; and all they could do at preſent, was only to ſtitch it and apply a plaiſter, with deſign, rather to enable him to ſpeak for a little while, than with any expectation of cure; for before that, he breathed through the wound, and his voice was inarticulate.

In this condition I found him that morning, and apprehending him to be within a few minutes of Eternity, I laboured to work upon his heart the ſenſe of his condition, telling him, I had but little time to do any thing for him, and therefore deſired him to let me know, what his own apprehenſions of his preſent condition were: He told me, he hoped in God for Eternal Life; I replied, that I feared his hopes were ungrounded, for that the Scripture tells us, No Murderer hath eternal life abiding in him, but this was ſelf-murther, the groſſeſt of all murthers: and inſiſting upon the aggravation and heinouſneſs of the fact, I perceived his vain confidence began to fall, and ſome meltings of heart appeared in him. He then began to lament with many tears his ſin and miſery, and asked me, if there might yet be hope for one that had deſtroyed himſelf, and ſhed his own blood. I replied, the ſin indeed is great, but not unpardonable; and if the Lord gave him repentance unto life, and faith to apply Jeſus Chriſt, it ſhould be certainly pardoned to him: and finding him unacquainted with theſe things, I opened to him the nature and neceſſity of faith and repentance, which he greedily ſuckt in, and with great vehemency cried to God, that he would work them upon his ſoul, and intreated me alſo to pray with him and for him, that it might be ſo. I pray'd with him, and the Lord thawed his heart exceedingly in that duty: loth he was to part with me; but the duties of the day neceſſitating me to leave him, I briefly ſummed up what was moſt neceſſary in my parting counſel to him, and took my leave, never expecting to ſee him more in this world. But beyond my own and all mens expectation, he continued all that day, and panted moſt ardently after Jeſus Chriſt: no diſcourſes pleaſed him but Chriſt and Faith; and in this frame I found him in the evening. He rejoiced greatly to ſee me again, and intreated me to continue my diſcourſes upon theſe ſubjects; and after all told me, Sir, the Lord hath given me repentance for this ſin; yea, and for every other ſin. I ſee the evil of ſin now, ſo as I never ſaw it before. O! I loath my ſelf; I am a vile creature in my own eyes. I do alſo believe; Lord help my unbelief. I am heartily willing to take Chriſt upon his own terms. One thing only troubles me, I doubt this bloody ſin will not be pardoned. Will Jeſus Chriſt (ſaid he) apply his blood to me, that have ſhed my own blood? I told him, Chriſt ſhed his blood even for them that with wicked hand had ſhed the blood of Chriſt; and that was a ſin of deeper guilt than his. Well, (ſaith he) I will caſt my ſelf upon Chriſt; let him do by me what he will. And ſo I parted with him that night.

Next morning the wounds were to be opened; and then the opinion of the Chirurgeons was, he would immediately expire.

Accordingly, at his deſire, I came that morning and found him in a moſt ſerious frame. I prayed with him, and then the wound in his ſtomach was opened, but by this time the Ventricle it ſelf was ſwoln out of the orifice of the wound, and lay like a livid diſcoloured Tripe upon his body, and was alſo cut through, ſo that all concluded, it was impoſſible for him to live; however they ſtitcht the wound in the ſtomach, enlarged the orifice, and fomented it, and wrought it again into his body, and ſo ſtitching up the skin, left him to the diſpoſe of Providence.

But ſo it was, that both the deep wound in his throat, and this in his ſtomach healed: and the more dangerous wound ſin had made upon his ſoul, was, I truſt, effectually healed alſo. I ſpent many hours with him in that ſickneſs; and after his return home, received this account from Mr. Samuel Hardy, a Miniſter in that Town. Part whereof I ſhall tranſcribe.

Dear Sir,

I was much troubled at the ſad Providence in your Town; but did much rejoice, that he fell into ſuch hands for his body and ſoul. You have taken much pains with him, and I hope to good purpoſe. I think, if ever a great and thorough work were done ſuch a way, it is now; and if never the like, I am perſwaded now it is. Never grow weary of ſuch good works. One ſuch Inſtance is (methinks) enough to make you to abound in the work of the Lord all your days, &c.

O how unſearchable are the ways of Providence, in leading men to Chriſt! Let none be encouraged by this to ſin, that grace may abound. Theſe are rare and ſingular Inſtances of the mercy of God, and ſuch as no preſumptuous ſinner can expect to find. Its only recited here, to the honour of Providence, which works for the recovery of ſinners in ways that we underſtand not. O what a fetch hath Providence beyond our underſtandings!

2. And as it orders very ſtrange occaſions to awaken and rouſe ſouls at firſt, ſo it works no leſs wonderfully in carrying on the work to perfection; and this it doth two ways.

(1.) By quickning and reviving dying convictions and troubles for ſin. Souls after their firſt awakening, are apt to loſe the ſenſe and impreſſion of their firſt troubles for ſin; but Providence is vigilant to prevent it; and doth effectually prevent it ſometimes, by directing the Miniſter to ſome diſcourſe or paſſage, that ſhall fall as pat, as if the caſe of ſuch a perſon had been ſtudy'd by him, and deſignedly ſpoken to. How often have I found this in the caſes of many ſouls, who have profeſſed they have ſtood amazed, to hear the very thoughts of their hearts diſcovered by the Preacher, who knew nothing of them? Sometimes by directing them to ſome proper rouſing Scripture, that ſuits their preſent caſe. And ſometimes by ſuffering them to fall into ſome new ſin, which ſhall awaken all their former troubles again, and put a new efficacy and activity into the Conſcience. The World is full of Inſtances in all theſe caſes, and becauſe moſt Chriſtians have experience of theſe things in themſelves, it will be needleſs to recite them here. Search but a few Years back, and you may remember, that according to this Account (at leaſt in ſome particulars) Providence order'd the matter with you. Have you not found ſome rod or other prepar'd by Providence, to rouze you out of your ſecurity? Why, this is ſo common a thing with Chriſtians, that they many times preſage an affliction coming from the frames they find their own hearts in.

(2.) It gives alſo great aſſiſtance to the work of the Spirit upon the ſoul, by ordering, ſupporting, relieving and cheering means, to prop up and comfort the ſoul, when it is overburthen'd, and ready to ſink in the deeps of troubles. I remember Mr. Bolton gives us one Inſtance, which fits both theſe caſes, the reviving of convictions, and ſeaſonable ſupports in the deeps of troubles. And it is of a Perſon that by convictions had been fetcht off from his wicked companions, and entred into a reform'd courſe of life; but after this, through the enticement of his old companions, the ſubtilty of Satan, and corruption of his own heart, did again relapſe into the ways of ſin. Then was Providentially brought to his view that Scripture, Prov. 1. 24, 25, 26, &c. this renew'd his trouble; yea, aggravated it to a greater height than ever: inſomuch that he could ſcarcely think (as it ſeems by the relation) his ſin could be pardon'd. But in this plunge, that Text, Luke 17. 4. was preſented to him, which ſweetly ſettled him in a ſure and glorious peace.

Nor can we here forget that miraculous work of Providence, in a time of great extremity, which was wrought for that good Gentlewoman Mrs. Honeywood (and is ſomewhere mention'd by the ſame Author) who under a deep and ſad deſertion, refus'd and put off all comfort, ſeeming to deſpair utterly of the grace and mercy of God. A worthy Miniſter being one day with her, and reaſoning againſt her deſperate concluſions, ſhe took a Venice-glaſs from the Table, and ſaid, Sir, I am as ſure to be damn'd, as this Glaſs is to be broken; and therewith threw it forcibly to the ground: but to the aſtoniſhment of both, the Glaſs remain'd whole and ſound, which the Miniſter taking up with admiration, rebuk'd her preſumption, and ſhew'd her what a wonder Providence had wrought for her ſatisfaction, and it greatly alter'd the temper of her mind. O how unſearchable are his ways!

and his Paths paſt finding out! Lo, theſe are part of his Ways; but how ſmall a Portion do we know of him?

And now ſuffer me to expoſtulate a little with thy Soul. Reader, haſt thou been duly ſenſible of thy Obligation to Providence, for this ineſtimable Favour? O what hath it done for thee! there are divers kinds of mercies conveyed to men by the hand of Providence, but none like this: in all the Treaſury of its benefits, none is found like this. Did it caſt thee into the way of Converſion, and order the means and occaſions of it for thee, when thou little thoughteſt of any ſuch thing? How dear and ſweet ſhould the remembrance of it be to thy Soul! Methinks it ſhould aſtoniſh and melt you every time you reflect upon it. Such Mercies ſhould never grow ſtale, or look like common things to you: for do but ſeriouſly conſider the following particulars.

1. How ſurprizing the mercy was, which it performed for you in that day. Providence had a deſign upon you, for your eternal good, which you underſtood not. The time of mercy was now fully come; the Decree was now ready to bring forth that mercy, with which it had gone big from Eternity, and its gracious deſign muſt be executed by the hand of Providence, ſo far as concerned the external means and Inſtruments: and how aptly did it cauſe all things to fall in with that deſign, though you knew not the meaning of it (Look over all the before-mentioned Examples, and you ſhall ſee the bleſſed work of Converſion begun upon thoſe Souls, when they minded it no more, than Saul did a Kingdom, that morning he went out to ſeek his Father's Aſſes, 1 Sam. 9. 3. 20.) Providence might truly have ſaid to you in that Day, as Chriſt ſaid to Peter, John 13. 7. What I do thou knoweſt not now, but hereafter thou ſhalt know it. Gods thoughts are not as our thoughts; but as the Heavens are higher than the Earth, ſo are his thoughts higher than ours, and his ways than our ways. Little did Zacheus think, when he climbed up into the Sycamore-tree, to ſee Chriſt as he paſſed that way, what a deſign of mercy Chriſt had upon him, who took thence the occaſion of becoming both his Gueſt and Saviour, Luke 19. 5, 6, 7, 8. And as little did ſome of you think, what the aim of Providence was when you went (ſome out of cuſtom, others out of curioſity, if not worſe ends) to hear ſuch a Sermon. O how ſtupendious are the ways of God!

2. What a diſtinguiſhing and ſeaſonable mercy was uſher'd in by Providence in that day. It brought you to the means of Salvation in a good hour. At that very nick of time, when the Angel troubled the Waters, you were brought to the Pool, to allude to that, John 5. 4. Now the accepted day was come, the Spirit was in the Ordinance, or Providence that converted you, and you were ſet in the way of it. It my be you had heard many hundred Sermons before, but nothing would ſtick till now, becauſe the hour was not come. The Lord did, as it were, call in the Word for ſuch a Man, ſuch a Woman; and Providence ſaid, Lord, here he is, I have brought him before thee. There were many others under that Sermon, that received no ſuch mercy. You your ſelves had heard many before, but not to that advantage, as it is ſaid, Luke 4. 27. There were many Lepers in Iſrael in the days of Elizeus, but to none of them was the Prophet ſent, ſave unto Naaman the Syrian. So there were many poor unconverted Souls beſide you under the Word that day, and it may be, to none of them was Salvation ſent that day, but to you. O bleſſed Providence, that ſet you in the way of mercy at that time!

What a weighty and important mercy was Providentially directed to your Souls that day. Theſe are mercies of all ſizes and kinds in the hands of Providence to diſpenſe to the Sons of Men: It's left hand is full of bleſſings, as well as its right. It hath health and riches, honours and pleaſures, as well as Chriſt and Salvation to diſpenſe. The world is full of its left hand favours; but the bleſſings of its right hand are invaluably precious, and few there be that receive them. It doth thouſands of kind offices for Men; but among them all, this is the chiefeſt, to lead and direct them to Chriſt. For conſider.

(1.) Of all mercies, this comes through moſt and greateſt difficulties, Eph. 1. 19, 20.

(2.) This is a ſpiritual mercy, excelling in dignity of nature all others, more than gold excels the dirt under your feet, Rev. 3. 18. One ſuch gift, is worth thouſands of other mercies.

(3.) This is a mercy immediately flowing out of the fountain of Gods electing love, a mercy never dropt into any, but an elect Veſſel, 1 Theſ. 1. 4, 5.

(4.) This is a mercy, that infallibly ſecures Salvation; for as we may argue from Converſion to Election, looking back, ſo from Converſion to Salvation, looking forward, Heb. 6. 9.

(5.) Laſtly, This is an Eternal mercy, that which will ſtick by you, when Father, Mother, Wife, Children, Eſtate, Honours, Health and Life ſhall fail thee, John 4. 14.

O therefore ſet a ſpecial Mark upon that Providence, that ſet you in the way of this mercy. It hath performed that for thee, which all the Miniſters on Earth, and Angels in Heaven could never have performed. This is a Mercy, that puts weight and value into the ſmalleſt Circumſtance that relates to it.

The Fifth Performance of Providence.

V. Thus you hear, how inſtrumental Providence hath been, in ordering the Means and Occaſions of the greateſt Mercies for your Souls. Let us now take into conſideration, another excellent Performance of Providence reſpecting the good of your Bodies and Souls too, in reſpect of that Imployment and Calling it ordered for you in this world; for it hath not only an Eye upon your well being in the world to come, but upon your well being in this world alſo, and that very much depends upon the Station and Vocation to which it calls you.

Provid
tial Per-forman with re-ſpect to our Ci
Calling

Now the Providence of God with reſpect to our civil Callings, may be diſplayed very takingly in the following particulars.

1. In directing you to a Calling in your Youth, and not ſuffering you to live an idle, uſeleſs and ſinful life, as many do, who are but burthens to the Earth; fruges conſumere nati, the Wens of the body politick, ſerving only to diſfigure and dreſs it, to eat what others earn. Sin brought in ſweat, Gen. 3. 19. but now, not to ſweat increaſeth ſin, 2 Theſſ. 3. 12. He that lives idly, cannot live honeſtly; as is plainly enough intimated, 1 Theſſ. 4. 11, 12. But when God puts men into a lawful Calling, wherein the labours of their hands or heads is ſufficient for them, it is a very valuable mercy: for thereby they eat their own bread, 2 Theſſ. 3. 12. Many a ſad Temptation is happily prevented; and they are ordinarily furniſhed by it, for works of mercy to others, and ſurely it is more bleſſed to give, than to receive.

2. In ordering you to ſuch Callings and Imployments in the world, as are, not only lawful in themſelves, but moſt ſuitable to you. There be many perſons imployed in ſinful Trades and Arts, meerly to furniſh other mens luſts: they do not only ſin in their Imployments; but their very Imployments are ſinful: they trade for Hell, and are Factors for the Devil. Demetrius and the Craſts-men at Epheſus, got their Eſtates by making Shrines for Diana, Acts 19. 24, 25. (i. e.) little caſes, or boxes with folding leaves, within which the Image of that Idol ſate enſhrined. Theſe were carried about by the People in Proceſſion, in honour of their Idol. And at this day how many wicked Arts and Imployments are there invented, (and multitudes of perſons maintained by them) meerly to gratifie the pride and wantonneſs of a debauched age?

Now to have an honeſt lawful imployment, wherein you do not diſhonour God in benefiting your ſelves, is no ſmall mercy.

But if it be not only lawful in it ſelf, but ſuited to your genius and ſtrength, there is a double mercy in it. Some poor Creatures are engaged in Callings, that eat up their time and ſtrength, and make their lives very uncomfortable to them: they have not only ſpending and waſting Imployments in the world; but ſuch as allow them little or no time for their general Calling: and yet all this doth but keep them and theirs alive. Oh therefore, if God have fitted you with an honeſt Imployment, wherein you have leſs toil than others, and more time for Heavenly Exerciſes, aſcribe this benefit to the ſpecial care of Providence for you.

3. In ſetling you in ſuch an Imployment and Calling in the world, as poſſibly neither your ſelves nor Parents could ever expect you ſhould arrive to. There are among us ſuch perſons, as on this account are ſignally obliged to Divine Providence. God hath put them into ſuch a way, as neither they nor their Parents ever projected. For, look as the Flower-de-luce in the Compaſs, turns now this way, then that way, and never ceaſes moving, till it ſettle to the North-point; juſt ſo it is in our ſettlement in the World. A Child is now deſigned for this, then for that, but at laſt ſettles in that way of Imployment which Providence deſigned him to. How ſtrangely are things wheeled about by Providence! not what we, or our Parents, but what God deſigned ſhall take place. Amos was very meanly employed at firſt, but God deſigned him for a more honourable and comfortable Calling, Amos 7. 14, 15. David followed the Ewes, and likely never raiſed his thoughts to higher things in the days of his youth; but God made him the Royal Shepherd of a better flock, Pſalm 78. 70, 71. Peter and Andrew were imployed as Fiſher-men, but Chriſt calls them from that to an higher Calling, Matth 4. 18, 19. to be fiſhers of men. Pareus when he was fourteen years old, was by the inſtigation of his Step-mother, placed with an Apothecary; but Providence ſo wrought, that he was taken off from that, and fitted for the Miniſtery; wherein he became a fruitful and eminent Inſtrument to the Church. James Andreas was by reaſon of his Father's inability to keep him at School, deſigned for a Carpenter; but was afterwards by the perſwaſion of friends, and aſſiſtance of the Church-ſtock ſent to Stutgard, and thence to the Univerſity, and ſo arrived to a very Eminent Station of ſervice to the Church. A Maſter builder Oecolampadius, was by his Father deſigned for a Merchant; but his Mother by earneſt entreaties, prevailed to keep him at School: and this Man was a bleſſed Inſtrument in the reformation of Religion. I might eaſily cite multitudes of ſuch inſtances; but a taſte may ſuffice.

4. In ſecuring your Eſtates from ruine, Job 1. 10. Haſt thou not made an hedge about him, and all that he hath? This is the Encloſure of Providence, which ſecures to us, what by its favour we acquire in the way of honeſt induſtry.

5. In making your Calling ſufficient for you. It was the Prayer of Moſes for the Tribe of Judah, Exod. 33. 7. Let his hands be ſufficient for him; and it is no ſmall mercy, if yours be ſo to you. Some there be that have work, but not ſtrength to go through with it; others have ſtrength, but no imployment for it. Some have hands, and work for them; but it's not ſufficient for them and theirs. If God bleſs your labours, ſo as to give you and yours neceſſary ſupports and comfort in the World by it, it's a choice Providence, and with all thankfulneſs to be acknowledged.

Object. 1. If any that fear God ſhall complain, That although they have a Calling, yet it is an hard laborious one, which takes up too much of their time, which they would gladly imploy in other, and better work. I anſwer, Solut. (1.) It's like, the Wiſdom of Providence foreſaw this to be the moſt ſuitable and proper Imployment for you; and if you had more eaſe and reſt, you might have more temptations than now you have: the ſtrength and time which is now taken up in your daily labours, wherein you ſerve God, might otherways have been ſpent upon ſuch luſts wherein you might have ſerved the Devil.

(2.) Hereby it may be, your health is the better preſerved, and natural refreſhments made the ſweeter to you, Eccleſ. 5. 12. The ſleep of a labouring man is ſweet to him, whether he eat little or much: but the abundance of the rich, will not ſuffer him to ſleep.

(3.) And as to the ſervice of God, if your hearts be ſpiritual, you may enjoy much Communion with God in your very Imployments, and you have ſome intervals and reſpits for that purpoſe. Have you not more ſpare hours, than you imploy to that end?

Object. 2. But all my labours will ſcarcely ſuffice, to procure me and mine the Neceſſaries of life. I am kept ſhort and low to what others are; and this is a ſad affliction.

Though

Sol. Though the Wiſdom of Providence hath ordered you a lower, and poorer condition than others, yet (1.) Conſider how many there be that are lower than you in the world: you have but little of the world, yet others have leſs. Read the deſcription of thoſe perſons, Job 30. 4, &c. (2.) If God have given you but a ſmall portion of the world; yet if you be godly, he hath promis'd never to forſake you, Heb. 13. 5. (3.) Providence hath order'd that condition for you, which is really beſt for your eternal good. If you had more of the world than you have, your heads and hearts might not be able to manage it to your advantage. A ſmall Boat muſt have but a narrow Sail. You have not wanted hitherto the neceſſaries of life, and are commanded, having food and rayment (though none of the fineſt) to be therewith content. A little that a righteous man hath, is better than the riches of many wicked, Pſal. 37. 16. better in the Acquiſition, ſweeter in the Fruition, and more comfortable in the Account.

Well then, if Providence hath ſo diſpos'd of you all, that you can eat your own bread, and ſo advantageouſly directed ſome of you to imployments, that afford not only neceſſaries for your ſelves and Families, but an overplus for works of mercy to others, and all this brought about for you in a way you did not project; let God be own'd, and honour'd in this Providence. Will you not henceforth call him, My Father, the Guide of my youth? as it is Jer. 3. 4. Surely it was the Lord that guided you to ſettle as you did in thoſe days of your youth: You reap at this day, and may to your laſt day, the fruits of thoſe early Providences in your youth.

Now ſee that you walk anſwerable to the obligations of Providence in this particular; and ſee to it in the fear of God, that you abuſe not any of thoſe things to his diſhonour, which he hath wrought for your comfort. To prevent which, I will here drop a few needful Cautions, and ſhut up this particular.

1 Caution. Be not ſlothful and idle in your Vocations. It's ſaid, Auguſtus built an Apragapolis, a City void of Buſineſs; but I am ſure God never erected any City, Town or Family to that end. The Command to Adam, Gen. 3. 19. no doubt reaches all his Poſterity: and Goſpel-Commands back and ſecond it upon Chriſtians, Rom. 12. 11. and 1 Theſſ. 4. 11. If you be negligent, you cannot be innocent. And yet,

2 Caution. Be not ſo intent upon your particular Callings, as to make them interfere with your general Calling. Beware you loſe not your God in the crowd and hurry of Earthly buſineſs. Mind that ſolemn warning, 1 Tim. 6. 9. But they that will be rich fall into Temptation, and a ſnare, and into many fooliſh and hurtful luſts, which drown men in deſtruction and perdition. The Inhabitants of OEnoe, a dry Iſland near Athens, beſtow'd much labour to draw in a River to water it, and make it fruitful, but when the Sluces were open'd, the waters flow'd ſo abundantly, that it overflow'd the Iſland and drown'd the Inhabitants. The Application is obvious. It was an excellent ſaying of Seneca, rebus non me trado, ſed commodo, I don't give, but lend my ſelf to buſineſs.

3 Caution. Remember always the ſucceſs of your Callings and earthly Employments is by Divine Bleſſing, not humane Diligence alone, Deut. 8. 18. Thou ſhalt remember the Lord thy God; for it is he that gave thee Power to get Wealth. The Devil himſelf was ſo far Orthodox, as to acknowledge it, Job 1. 10. Haſt not thou made an hedge about him, and about his houſe, and about all that he hath on every ſide? Thou haſt bleſſed the work of his hands, &c. Recommend therefore your Affairs to God by Prayer, according to Pſalm 37. 4, 5. Delight thy ſelf alſo in the Lord, and he ſhall give thee the deſires of thine Heart. Commit thy way unto the Lord; truſt alſo in him, and he ſhall bring it to paſs. And touch not with that which you cannot recommend to God by Prayer for a Bleſſing.

4 Cauti Be well ſatisfied in that Station and Employment in which Providence hath plac'd you, and do not ſo much as wiſh your ſelves in another, 1 Cor. 7. 20. Let every Man abide in the ſame Calling, wherein he was called. Providence is wiſer than you, and you may be confident hath ſuited all things better to your Eternal Good, than you could do, had you been left to your own Option.

The Sixth Performance of Providence.

VI. Thus you ſee, the Care Providence hath had over you in your Youth, in reſpect of that Civil Employment to which it guided us in thoſe days.

Provide tial Pe formanc with re ſpect to our Civ Relation We will in the next Place conſider it as our Guide, and the Orderer of our Relations for us. That Providence hath a ſpecial Hand in this Matter, is evident both from Scripture Aſſertions, and the acknowledgments of Holy Men, who in that great Concernment of their Lives, have ſtill owned, and acknowledg'd the directing Hand of Providence. Take an Inſtance of both. The Scripture plainly aſſerts the Dominion of Providence over this Affair in Prov. 19. 14. A Prudent Wife is from the Lord: And Prov. 18. 22. Whoſo findeth a Wife, findeth a good thing, and obtaineth favour of the Lord. So for Children, ſee Pſalm 127. 3. Lo, Children are an Heritage of the Lord; and the Fruit of the Womb is his Reward.

And it hath ever been the Practiſe of Holy Men, to ſeek the Lord for Direction and Counſel, when they have been upon the change of their Condition. No doubt but Abraham's encouragement in that caſe was the Fruit of Prayer, Gen. 24. 7. His Pious Servant alſo, who was employ'd in that Affair, did both earneſtly ſeek Counſel of God, Gen. 24. 12. and thankfully acknowledge his gracious Providence in guiding it, Ver. 26, 27.

The ſame we may obſerve in Children, the Fruit of Marriage, 1 Sam. 1. 20. Luke 1. 13, 14. Now the Providence of God may be divers ways diſplay'd, for the engaging of our Hearts in Love to the God of our Mercies.

(1.) There is very much of Providence ſeen in appointing the Parties each for other. In this, the Lord goes oftentimes beyond our Thoughts and Projections; yea, and oftentimes croſſes Mens deſires and deſigns to their great Advantage. Not what they fancy; but what his Infinite Wiſdom judges beſt, and moſt beneficial for them takes place. Hence it is, that probabilities are ſo often daſh'd; and things remote and utterly improbable are brought about in very ſtrange and unaccountable methods of Providence.

(2.) There is much of Providence ſeen in the harmony and agreeableneſs of tempers and diſpoſitions; from whence a very great part of the tranquility and comforts of our Lives reſults: or at leaſt, though natural Tempers and Educations did not ſo much harmonize before, yet they do ſo after they come under the Ordinance of God, Gen. 2. 24. They two ſhall be one Fleſh, not one only in reſpect of God's Inſtitution, but one in reſpect of Love and Affection, that thoſe who ſo lately were meer ſtrangers to each other, are now endear'd to a degree beyond the neareſt Relations in Blood. Ubi ſupra, For this cauſe ſhall a Man leave Father and Mother, and ſhall cleave to his Wife, and they two ſhall be one Fleſh.

(3.) But eſpecially, Providence is remarkable, in making one inſtrumental to the Eternal Good of the other, 1 Cor. 7. 16. How knoweſt thou, O Wife, but thou mayſt ſave thy Huſband? Or how knoweſt thou, O Man, whether thou ſhalt ſave thy Wife? Hence is that grave Exhortation to the Wives of unbelieving Huſbands, 1 Pet. 3. 1. to win them by their Converſation, which ſhould be to them inſtead of an Ordinance.

Or if both be gracious, then what ſingular aſſiſtance and mutual help is hereby gained to the furtherance of their Eternal Good? Whilſt they live together as Heirs of the Grace of Life, 1 Pet. 3. 7. O bleſſed Providence! that directed ſuch into ſo intimate Relation on Earth, who ſhall inherit together the common Salvation in Heaven!

(4.) How much of Providence is ſeen in Children the Fruit of Marriage? To have any Poſterity in the Earth, and not be left altogether as a dry Tree: To have Comfort and Joy in them, is a ſpecial Providence, importing a ſpecial Mercy to us. To have the breaches made upon our Families repair'd, is a Providence to be own'd with a thankful Heart. When God ſhall ſay to a Man, as he ſpeaks in another Caſe to the Church, Iſa. 49. 20. The Children which thou ſhalt have after thou haſt loſt the other, ſhall ſay again in thine Ears, the Place is too ſtrait for me, &c.

And theſe Providences will appear more affectingly ſweet and lovely to you, if you but compare its allotments to you, with what it hath allotted to many others in the World. For do but look abroad, and you ſhall find,

(1.) Multitudes unequally yoked, to the imbittering of their Lives, whoſe Relations are clogs and hindrances both in Temporals and Spirituals. Yea, we find an account in Scripture of gracious Perſons, a great part of whoſe comfort in this World hath been ſplit upon this Rock. Abigal was a diſcreet and vertuous Woman, but very unſuitably match'd to a churliſh Nabal, ſee 1 Sam 25. 25. What a Temptation to the neglect of a known Duty, prevail'd upon the renown'd Moſes, by the means of Zipporah his Wife? Exod. 4. 24, 25. David had his ſcoffing Michal, 2 Sam. 6. 20. And patient Job no ſmall Addition to all his other Afflictions, from the Wife of his Boſom, who ſhould have been a ſupport to him in the Day of his Trouble, Job 19. 17.

No doubt, but God ſanctifies ſuch Rods to his Peoples Good. If Socrates knew how to improve his Affliction in his Zantippe, to the increaſe of his Patience; much more will they who converſe with God under all Providences, whether ſweet or bitter. Nevertheleſs this muſt be acknowledg'd to be a ſad ſtroke upon any Perſon, and ſuch as maims them upon the working Hand, by unfitting them for Duty, 1 Pet. 3. 7. and cuts off much of the Comfort of Life alſo.

(2.) How many are there, who never enjoy the comfortable Fruits of Marriage? But are deny'd the ſight, at leaſt, the enjoyment of Children, Jer. 22. 30. Thus ſaith the Lord, write this Man Childleſs, &c. or if they have Children, yet cannot enjoy them, Hoſea 9. 12. Though they bring up Children, yet will I bereave them, that there ſhall not be a Man left; who only bear for the Grave, and have their Expectations rais'd for a greater Affliction to themſelves.

(3.) And it is no rare or unuſual thing to ſee Children and near Relations the greateſt Inſtruments of Affliction to their Parents and Friends: So that after all their other Sorrows and Troubles in the World, neareſt Relations bring up the Rear of Sorrows (as one ſpeaks) and prove greater griefs than any other. O how many Parents have complain'd with the Tree in the Fable, that their very Hearts have been riv'd aſunder with thoſe Wedges that were cut out of their own Bodies? What a grief was Eſau to Iſaac and Rebeckah? Gen. 26. 34, 35. What a ſcourge were Abſalom and Amnon to David?

Mr. T. C. in his Iſagoge.

Well then, if God have ſet the ſolitary in Families, as it is Pſalm 68. 6. Built an Houſe for the deſolate, given you comfortable Relations, which are ſprings of daily Comfort and Refreſhment to you, you are upon many accounts engag'd to walk anſwerably to theſe gracious Providences. And that you may underſtand wherein that decorum and agreeable Comportment with theſe Providences conſiſts, take up the Senſe of your Duty in theſe brief hints.

(1.) Aſcribe to God the Glory of all thoſe Providential works which yield you comfort. You ſee a wiſe, directing, governing Providence, which hath diſpos'd and order'd all things beyond your own projections and deſigns. The way of Man is not in himſelf, nor is it in him that walketh to direct his own ſteps, Jer. 10. 23. Not what you projected, but what an higher counſel than yours determin'd, is come to paſs. Good Jacob when God had made him the Father of a Family, admir'd God in the Mercy, Gen. 32. 10. With my ſtaff (ſaid he) I paſſed over this Jordan, and now I am become two Bands. And how doth this Mercy humble and melt him? I am not worthy of the leaſt of all the Mercies, and of all the Truth, which thou haſt ſhew'd unto thy Servant.

Be exact in diſcharging the Duties of thoſe Relations which ſo gracious a Providence hath led you into. Abuſe not the effects of ſo much Mercy and Love to you. The Lord expects Praiſe wherever you have Comfort. This aggravated David's Sin, that he ſhould dare to abuſe ſo great Love and Mercy, as God had ſhewn him in his Family Relations, 2 Sam. 12. 7, 8, 9.

(3.) Improve Relations to the end Providence deſign'd them. Walk together as Co-heirs of the Grace of Life: Study to be mutual Bleſſings to each other: So walk in your Relations, that the parting Day may be ſweet. Death will ſhortly break up the Family; and then nothing but the Senſe of Duty Diſcharged, or the neglects Pardoned, will give Comfort.

The Seventh Performance of Providence.

Providential Proſion for us and ours.

VII. You have heard how well Providence hath performed its Part for you, in planting you into Families, who once were ſolitary. Now let us in the next Place view another gracious Performance of Providence for us, in making Proviſion from Time to Time for us and our Families. I the rather put theſe Providences together in this Place, becauſe I find the Scripture doth ſo, Pſalm 107. 41. He ſetteth the Poor on high from Affliction, and maketh him Families like a Flock.

You know the Promiſes God hath made to his People, Pſalm 34. 10. The young Lions ſhall lack, and ſuffer hunger; but they that ſeek the Lord, ſhall not want any good thing. And have you not alſo ſeen the conſtant performance of it? Cannot you give the ſame anſwer, if the ſame queſtion were propounded to you that the Diſciples did, Luke 22. 35. Since I ſent you forth, lacked ye any thing? and they ſaid, nothing. Can ye not with Jacob, call him, the God that fed you all your Life long? Gen. 48. 15. Surely he hath given Bread to them that fear him, and been ever mindful of his Covenant, Pſal. 111. 5.

To diſplay this Providence, we will conſider it in the following Particulars.

(1.) The aſſiduity and conſtancy of the Care of Providence for the Saints, Lam. 3. 23. His Mercies are new every Morning. It is not the ſupply of one or two preſſing needs, but all your wants, as they grow from day to day through all your Days, Gen. 48. 15. The God that fed me all my Life long. The care of Providence runs parallel with the line of Life. See Iſa. 46. 3, 4. Hearken unto me, O Houſe of Jacob, and all the remnant of the Houſe of Iſrael, which are born by me from the Belly, which are carried from the Womb: And even to your old Age I am he, and even to hoary hairs will I carry you: I have made, and I will bear, even I will carry, and will deliver you. So that as God bid Iſrael, Micah 6. 5. To remember from Shittim unto Gilgal, that they might know the faithfulneſs of the Lord; ſo would I perſwade thee, Reader, to record the ways of Providence, from firſt to laſt, throughout thy whole courſe to this Day, that thou maiſt ſee what a God he hath been to thee.

(2.) The ſeaſonableneſs, and opportuneneſs of its Proviſions for them: For ſo runs the Promiſe, Iſa. 41. 17. When the Poor and needy ſeek water, and there is none, and their Tongue faileth for thirſt, I the Lord will hear them, I the God of Iſrael will not forſake them; and ſo hath the Performance of it been. And this hath been made good to diſtreſſed Saints ſometimes in a more ordinary way, God ſecretly Bleſſing a little, and making it ſufficient for us and ours: Job tells us of the ſecret of God upon his Tabernacle, Job 29. 4. (i. e.) his ſecret Bleſſing is in their Tabernacles; by Reaſon whereof it is that they ſubſiſt; but it is in an unaccountable way that they do ſo. And ſometimes in an extraordinary way it breaks forth for their ſupply. So you find in 2 Kings 17. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14. The Cruſe and Barrel fail not.

Clark's Lives, Vo 1. p. 34

Mr. Samuel Clark, in the Life of that painful and humble Servant of Chriſt Mr. John Fox, records a memorable Inſtance of Providence, and it is this, That towards the end of King Henry the Eighth his Reign he went to London, where he quickly ſpent that little his Friends had given him, or he had acquired by his own Diligence, and began to be in great want. As one Day he ſate in Paul's Church, ſpent with long Faſting, his Countenance thin, and his Eyes hollow, after the ghaſtly manner of Dying Men, every one ſhuning a Spectacle of ſo much horror: There came one to him, whom he had never ſeen before, and thruſt an untold Summ of Money into his Hand, bidding him be of good Cheer, and accept that ſmall Gift in good part from his Country-man; and that he ſhould make much of himſelf, for that within a few days new hopes were at hand, and a more certain condition of livelihood. Three days after the Dutcheſs of Richmond ſent for him to live in her Houſe, and be Tutor to the Earl of Surry's Children, then under her care.

Mr. Iſaac Ambroſe a worthy Divine, whoſe labours have made him acceptable to his Generation, in his Epiſtle to the Earl of Bedford prefixed to his Laſt Things, gives a pregnant Inſtance in his own Caſe; his Words are theſe; For mine own Part (ſaith he) however the Lord hath ſeen Cauſe to give me but a Poor pittance of outward Things, for which I bleſs his name; yet in the income thereof, I have many times obſerved ſo much of his peculiar Providence, that thereby they have been very much ſweetned, and my Heart hath been raiſed to admire his Grace. When of late under an hard Diſpenſation (which I judge not meet to mention) wherein I ſuffered conſcientiouſly, all Streams of wonted Supplies being ſtopt, the Waters of Relief for my ſelf and Family did run low: I went to Bed with ſome ſtaggerings and doubtings of the Fountains letting out it ſelf for our refreſhing; but e're I did awake in the Morning, a Letter was brought to my Bed ſide, which was Signed by a a choice Friend Mr. Anthony Aſh, which reported ſome unexpected breakings out of God's Goodneſs for my Comfort. Theſe are ſome of his Lines—— Your God who hath given you an heart thankfully to Record your Experiences of his Goodneſs, doth renew Experiences for your Encouragement. Now I ſhall Report one, which will raiſe your Spirit toward the God of your Mercies. Whereupon he ſweetly concludes, One Morſel of God's Proviſion, eſpecially when it comes in unexpected, and upon Prayer, when wants are moſt, will be more ſweet to ſpiritual reliſh, than all former Enjoyments were.

(3.) The Wiſdom of Providence in our Proviſions. And this is diſcovered in two Things: (1.) In proportioning the quantity, not ſatisfying our extravagant wiſhes, but anſwering our real needs; conſulting our wants, not our wantonneſs, Phil. 4. 19. My God ſhall ſupply all your wants; and this hath exactly ſuited the wiſhes of the beſt and wiſeſt Men, who deſired no more at its hand. So Jacob, Gen. 28. 20. and Agur, Prov. 30. 8, 9. Wiſe Providence conſiders our Condition as Pilgrims and

Strangers, and ſo allots the Viaticum Proviſion, that is needful for our Paſſage home. It knows the miſchievous influence of fulneſs and redundancy upon moſt Men, though ſanctified; and how apt it is to make them remiſs, and forgetful of God, Deut. 6. 12. That their Hearts, like the Moon, ſuffers an Eclipſe when it is at the full; and ſo ſuits and orders all to their beſt advantage. (2.) Its Wiſdom is much diſcovered in the manner of diſpenſing our Portion to us. It many times ſuffers our wants to pinch hard, and many Fears to ariſe, out of deſign to magnifie the Care and Love of God in the ſupply, Deut. 8. 3. Providence ſo orders the Caſe, that Faith and Prayer coming betwixt our wants and ſupplies, the Goodneſs of God may be the more magnified in our Eyes thereby.

And now let me beg you to conſider the good Hand of Providence that hath provided for, and ſuitably ſupplyed you and yours all your Days, and never failed you hitherto: And labour to walk ſuitably to your Experiences of ſuch Mercies. In order whereunto, let me preſs a few ſuitable Cautions upon you.

1. Beware, that you forget not the Care and kindneſs of Providence which your Eyes have ſeen in ſo many Fruits and Experiences thereof. It was God's charge againſt Iſrael, Pſal. 106. 3. That they ſoon forgat his wondrous Works. A bad Heart and a ſlippery Memory, deprive Men of the Comfort of many Mercies, and defraud God of the Glory due for them.

2. Do not diſtruſt Providence in future exigencies. Thus they did, Pſalm 78. 20. Behold, he ſmote the Rock, that the Waters guſhed out, and the Streams overflowed: can he give Bread alſo? can he provide fleſh for his People? How unreaſonable and abſurd are theſe queries of unbelief, eſpecially after their Eyes had ſeen the Power of God in ſuch extraordinary Effects?

3. Do not murmur and regret under new ſtraits. This is a vile temper; and yet how incident to us, when wants preſs hard upon us! Ah! did we rightly underſtand what the demerit of Sin is, we would rather admire the bounty of God, than complain of the ſtrait-handedneſs of Providence. And if we did but conſider, that there lies upon God no obligation of Juſtice or Gratitude to reward any of our Duties, it would cure our murmurs, Gen. 32. 20.

4. Do not ſhew the leaſt Diſcontent at the Lot and Portion Providence carves out to you: O that you would be well pleaſed and ſatisfied with all its appointments. Say as Pſal. 16. 6. The lines are fallen unto me in pleaſant Places; yea, I have a goodly heritage. Surely that is beſt for you, which Providence hath appointed, and one Day you your ſelves will judge it ſo to be.

5. Do not neglect Prayer when ſtraits befal you. You ſee it's Providence diſpenſes all, you live upon it; therefore apply your ſelves to God in the Times of need. This is evidently included in the Promiſe, Iſa. 41. 17. as well as expreſſed in the Command, Phil. 4. 6. Remember God, and he will not forget you.

6. Do not diſtract your Hearts with ſinful Cares, Matth. 6. 25, 26. Conſider the fowls of the Air, (ſaith Chriſt) not the Fowls at the Door, that are daily fed by Hand; but thoſe of the Air, that know not where to have the next meal; and yet God provides for them. Remember your Relation to Chriſt, and his Engagements by Promiſe to you, and by theſe things work your Hearts to Satisfaction and Content with all the allotments of Providence.

The Eighth Performance of Providence.

Providential Performances in our Preſervation from the Power of Temptation.

VIII. The next great Advantage and Mercy the Saints receive from the Hand of Providence, is in their Preſervation from the Snares, and Temptations of Sin, by its preventing Care over them. That Providence wards off many a deadly ſtroke of Temptation, and puts by many a mortal thruſt which Satan makes at our Souls, is a Truth as manifeſt as the Light that ſhineth. This is included in that Promiſe, 1 Cor. 10. 13. God will with the Temptation make a way to eſcape, that ye may be able to bear it. Providence gives an out-let for the Souls eſcape, when it is ſhut up into the dangerous ſtraits of Temptation. There are two eminent ways whereby the force and efficacy of Temptation is broken in Believers. One is by the Operation of internal Grace, Gal. 5. 17. The Spirit luſteth againſt the Fleſh; ſo that ye cannot do the Things that ye would (i. e.) Sanctification gives Sin a miſcarrying Womb after it hath conceived in the Soul. The other way, is by the external working of Providence; and of this I am here engaged to ſpeak.

The Providence of God is the great Obex and hinderance to a World of Sin, which elſe would break forth like an overflowing Flood from our corrupt Natures. It prevents abundance of Sin, which elſe wicked Men would commit, Gen. 19. 11. The Sodomites were greedily purſuing their Luſts: God providentially hinders it by ſmiting them blind. Jeroboam intends to ſmite the Prophet; Providence interpos'd, and wither'd his arm, 1 Kings 13. 4. Thus you ſee, when wicked Men have contrived, and are ready to execute their wickedneſs, Providence claps on its Manacles, That their Hands cannot perform their enterprizes as it is Job 5. 12.

And ſo much Corruption there remains on good Men that they would certainly plunge themſelves under much more guilt than they do, if Providence did not take greater care of them than they do of themſelves: For though they make Conſcience of keeping themſelves, and daily watch their Hearts and ways, yet ſuch is the deceitfulneſs of ſin, that, if Providence did not lay blocks in their way, it would (more frequently than it doth) entangle and defile them. And this it doth divers Ways.

(1.) Sometimes by ſtirring up others to interpoſe with ſeaſonable Counſels, which effectually diſſwaded them from proſecuting an evil deſign. Thus Abigail meets David in the nick of Time, and diſſwades him from his evil Purpoſe, 1 Sam. 25. 34.

And I find it recorded (as on another account was noted before) of that Holy Man Mr. Dod, that being late at Night in his Study he was ſtrongly moved (though at an unſeaſonable Hour) to viſit a Gentleman of his Acquaintance; and not knowing what might be the deſign of Providence therein, he obeyed and went; when he came to the Houſe, after a few knocks at the Door, the Gentleman himſelf came to him and askt him, whether he had any Buſineſs to him: Mr. Dod anſwered, no; but that he could not be quiet till he had ſeen him, O Sir, reply'd the Gentleman,) you are ſent of God at this Hour, for juſt now (and with that, takes the Halter out of his Pocket) I was going to deſtroy my ſelf. And thus was the miſchief prevented.

(2.) Sometimes by hindering the Means and Inſtruments, whereby the Evil it ſelf is prevented. Thus, when good Jehoſaphat had joined himſelf with that wicked King Ahaziah, to build Ships at Ezion-Gaber to go to Tarſhiſh, God prevents the Deſign, by breaking the Ships with a Storm, as you read, 2 Chron. 20. 35, 36, 37.

We find alſo in the Life of Mr. Bolton, written by Mr. Bagſhaw, That whilſt he was in Oxford, he had familiar acquaintance with Mr. Anderton, a good Scholar, but a ſtrong Papiſt, who knowing Mr. Bolton's good Parts, and perceiving that he was in ſome outward wants, took this advantage, and uſed many Arguments to perſwade him to be reconciled to the Chuch of Rome, and to go over with him to the Engliſh Seminary, aſſuring him he ſhould be furniſhed with all neceſſaries, and have gold enough. M. Bolton being at that time, poor in Mind and Purſe, accepted the Motion, and a Day and Place was appointed in Lancaſhire, where they ſhould meet and take ſhipping and be gone: But Mr. Anderton came not, and ſo he eſcaped the ſnare.

Some afflictions are τιμωρίαι, puniſhments others are παιδεῖαι, chaſtiſements, and theſe are both δοκιμασίαι, tryals of grace, and προφυλάκτικα, preſervatives from Sin.

(3.) Sometimes by laying ſome ſtrong affliction upon the Body, to prevent a worſe Evil. And this is the Meaning of Hoſea 2. 6. I will hedge up her Way with Thorns. Thus Baſil was a long time exerciſed with a violent Headach, which (as he obſerved) was uſed by Providence to prevent Luſt. Paul had a Thorn in the Fleſh a Meſſenger of Satan ſent to Buffet him: And this Affliction, whatever it was, was ordained to prevent Pride in him, 2 Cor. 13. 7.

(4.) Sometimes Sin is prevented in the Saints, by the better Information of their Minds at the Sacred Oracles of God. Thus, when ſinful Motions began to riſe in David's mind, from the Proſperity of the Wicked, and his own Afflicted State, and grew to that height, that he began to think, all he had done in the way of Religion, was little better than loſt labour; he is ſet right again, and the Temptation diſſolved, by going into the Sanctuary, where God ſhewed him how to take new Meaſures of Perſons and Things; to judge them by their Ends and Iſſues, not their preſent appearances, Pſalm 73. 12, 13, 17.

(5.) And ſometimes the Providence of God prevents the Sins of his People, by removing them out of the Way of Temptations by Death. In which ſenſe we may underſtand that Text, Iſa. 57. 1. The Righteous is taken away from the Evil to come; the evil of Sin as well as Sufferings. When the Lord ſees his People low ſpirited, and not able to grapple with ſtrong Tryals and Temptations which are drawing on, it is with reſpect to them a merciful Providence, to be diſbanded by Death, and ſet out of harms way.

Now conſider, and admire the Providence of God, O ye Saints, who hath had more Care of your Souls, than ever ye had of them. Had not the Providence of God thus wrought for you in a way of Prevention, it may be you had this Day been ſo many Magor Miſſabibs. How was the Heart of David melted under that preventing Providence fore-mentioned in 1 Sam. 25. 34. He bleſſes the Lord, the Inſtrument, and that Counſel by which his Soul was preſerved from Sin. Do but ſeriouſly bethink your ſelves of a few Particulars about this Caſe. As,

(1.) How your corrupt Natures have often impetuouſly hurried you on towards Sin, ſo that all the inherent Grace you had, could not withſtand its force, if Providence had not prevented it in ſome ſuch Method as you have heard, Jam. 1. 14. Every man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own luſts, and enticed. You found your ſelves but Feathers in the Wind of Temptation.

(2.) How near you have been brought to the brink of ſin, and yet ſaved by a merciful hand of Providence. May you not ſay with him in Prov. 5. 14. I was almoſt in the midſt of all evil: or as Pſal. 73. 2. My feet were almoſt gone, my ſteps had well nigh ſlidden. O merciful Providence! that ſteps in ſo opportunely to your Relief.

(3). How many have been ſuffered to fall by the hand of Temptations to the reproach of Religion, and wounding of their own Conſciences to that degree, that they have never recovered former Peace again; but lived in the World devoid of Comfort to their dying Day?

(4.) How woeful your caſe had been, if the Lord had not mercifully ſaved you from many thouſand Temptations, that have aſſaulted you? I tell you, you cannot eſtimate the Mercies you poſſeſs by means of ſuch Providences. Are your Names ſweet, and your Conſciences peaceful, two Mercies as dear to you as your two Eyes? Why ſurely, you owe them, if not wholly, yet in great meaſure, to the Aids and Aſſiſtances Providence hath given you all along the way you have paſſed through the dangerous tempting World to this Day.

Walk therefore ſuitably to this Obligation of Providence alſo: And ſee,

(1.) That you thankfully own it. Don't impute your Eſcapes from Sin to Accidents, or to your own Watchfulneſs or Wiſdom.

(2.) See that you tempt not Providence on the other Hand, by an irregular Reliance upon its care over you, without taking all due care of your ſelves. Keep your ſelves in the Love of God, Jude 21. Keep your Hearts with all Diligence, Prov. 4. 23. Though Providence keep you, yet it is in the way of your Duty.

The Ninth Performance of Providence.

Providential Preventions of bodily dangers Pſal. 17.8.

Thus you ſee what care Providence hath had over your Souls, in preventing the ſpiritual dangers and miſeries that elſe would have befallen you in the way of Temptations: In the next

Thou keepeſt me as the apple of thine eye. The Eye hath five Tunick to guard it againſt Danger. (1.) Aranea tunica, like a Spider Web. (2.) Retiformis, like a Net. (3.) Uvea, like a Berry. (4.) Cornea, like an Horn. (5.) Adnata tunica, the cover or of the Eye: Here is Guard upon Guard, reſembling the vario ways Providence hath to ſecure us from Ruine.

Place I will ſhew you, that it hath been no leſs careful for your Bodies, and with how great tenderneſs it hath carry'd them in its Arms through innumerable hazards and dangers alſo. He is call'd the keeper of Iſrael that never ſlumbereth nor ſleepeth, Pſal. 121. 4. The Preſerver of Men, Job 7. 20. To diſplay the Glory of this Providence before you, let us take into Conſideration, the perils into which the beſt of Men ſometimes fall, and the way and means by which Providence preſerves them in thoſe Dangers.

There are manifold hazards into which we are often caſt in this World. The Apoſtle Paul gives us a general account of his Dangers in 2 Cor. 11. 26. And how great a wonder is it, that our Life hath not been extinguiſh'd in ſome of thoſe Dangers we have been in? For,

(1.) Have not ſome of us faln, and that often, into very dangerous Sickneſſes and Diſeaſes, in which we have approach'd to the very brink of the Grave? and have or might have ſaid with Hezekiah, Iſa. 38. 10. I ſaid in the cutting off of my Days, I ſhall go to the Gates of the Grave: I am depriv'd of the reſidue of my Years. Have we not often had the Sentence of Death in our ſelves? And our Bodies at that time been like a leaky Ship in a Storm (as one aptly reſembles it) that hath taken in water on every ſide, till it was ready to ſink? Yet hath God preſerv'd, careen'd and launch'd us out again as well as ever. Oh what a wonder is it, that ſuch a crazy Body ſhould be preſerv'd for ſo many Years, and ſurvive ſo many Dangers! Surely, it is not more admirable to ſee a Venice-glaſs paſs from hand to hand in continual uſe for forty or fifty Years, and ſtill to remain whole, notwithſtanding many knocks and falls it hath had. If you enjoy Health or recover out of Sickneſſes, it is becauſe he puts none of theſe Diſeaſes upon thee, or becauſe he is the Lord thy Phyſician, Exod. 15. 26.

See Job 33. 18, 19, 20, 21, & 28.

Mr. Tho. Goodwin in his Aggravation of ſin againſt mercy, p. 30.

The Eye is but a ſmall part of the Body, yet Phyſicians reckon no leſs than thirty diſeaſes incident to it. Naſcuntur in eo leucoma, glaucoma, lippitudo, xerophthalmia, ficus, lithiaſis, epiphora & triginta id genus vitia.

(2.) And how many deadly Dangers hath his Hand reſcu'd ſome of you from, in thoſe Years of Confuſion and publick Calamity, when the Sword was bath'd in blood, and made horrid ſlaughter, when it may be, your lives were often given you for a prey? This David put a ſpecial remark upon, Pſal. 140. 7. O God the Lord, the ſtrength of my ſalvation; thou haſt covered my Head in the day of Battle.

Beza being in France in the firſt Civil War, and there toſs'd up and down for twenty two months; recorded ſix hundred Deliverances from dangers in that ſpace, for which he ſolemnly gave God thanks in his laſt Teſtament. If the Sword deſtroy'd you not, it was becauſe God did not give it a Commiſſion ſo to do.

(3.) Many of you have ſeen wonders of ſalvation upon the deeps, where the hand of God hath been ſignally ſtretch'd forth for your reſcue and deliverance. This is elegantly expreſs'd in Pſal. 107. 23, 24, 25, 26, 27. (which I have elſewhere open'd at large) concerning which, you may ſay in a proper ſenſe what the Pſalmiſt doth metaphorically, Pſal. 124. 1. & 4. If it had not been the Lord who was on our ſide, then the waters had overwhelmed us, the ſtream had gone over our ſoul. To ſee men that have ſpent ſo many years upon the Seas (where your lives have continually hung in ſuſpenſe before you) attain to your years, when you could neither be reckon'd among the living nor the dead (as Seamen are not:) Oh, what cauſe have you to adore your great Preſerver! Many thouſands of your Companions are gone down, and you yet here to praiſe the Lord among the Living. You have border'd nearer to Eternity all your days than others, and often been in eminent perils upon the Seas, ſurely ſuch and ſo many Salvations call aloud upon you for moſt thankful acknowledgment.

See my Seaman's Companion p. 1.

(4.) To conclude, how innumerable hazards and accidents (the leaſt of which hath cut off others) hath God carry'd us all through! I think I may ſafely ſay, your privitive and poſitive mercies of this kind are more in number than the hairs of your heads. Many thouſands of theſe dangers we never ſaw, nor were made particularly ſenſible of; but though we ſaw them not, our God did, and brought us out of danger, before he brought us into fear. Some have been evident to us, and thoſe ſo remarkable, that we cannot think, or ſpeak of them to this day, but our Souls are freſhly affected with thoſe Mercies.

It is recorded of our famous Jewel, that about the beginning of Q. Mary's Reign, the Inquiſition taking hold of him in Oxford, he fled to London by night; but providentially loſing the Road, he eſcap'd the Inquiſitors, who purſu'd him: however, he fell that night into another imminent hazard of life; for, wandering up and down in the ſnow, he fainted, and lay ſtarving in the way, panting and labouring for Life, at which time Mr. Latimer's Servant found and ſaved him.

Clarke's Lives, p. 262.

It were eaſie to multiply Examples in this kind, Hiſtories abounding with them; but I think there are few of us, but are furniſh'd out of our own experience abundantly; ſo that I ſhall rather chuſe to preſs home the ſenſe of theſe Providences upon you, in order to a ſuitable return to the God of your Mercies for them, than add more Inſtances of this kind. To this purpoſe, I deſire you ſeriouſly to weigh the following particulars.

(1.) Conſider what you owe to Providence for your Protection, by which your Life hath been protracted unto this day, with the uſefulneſs and comfort thereof. Look abroad in the World, and you may daily ſee ſome in every place, who are Objects of Pity, bereav'd by ſad accidents of all the Comforts of Life, whilſt in the mean time Providence hath tenderly preſerv'd you, keeping all your Bones, ſo that not one of them is broken, Pſalm 34. 20. Is not the elegant and comely Structure of thy Body ſpoil'd, thy Members diſtorted, or made ſo many Seats of Torment, the uſefulneſs of any part deprived? Why, this is becauſe Providence never quitted its hand of thee ſince thou cameſt out of the Womb, but with a watchful Eye and tender Hand hath guarded thee in every place, and kept thee as its Charge.

(2.) Conſider, how every Member which hath been ſo tenderly kept, hath nevertheleſs been an inſtrument of Sin againſt the Lord: and that, not only in the days of your unregeneracy, when ye yielded your Members as Inſtru-

The learned Alſted ſets himſelf to enumerate the manifold hazards thro' which the life of man is carried in the hand of Providence, in Theol. Catechet. p. 191, 192, &c. and piouſly concludes in theſe Words, Denique, quod ab innumeris malis, quæ ab omnibus creaturis omni tempore tibi impendent, mirabiliter liberaris; in his omnibus, inquam, quo ſcimus crebro evenire ſolita, ac proinde itá ſe habent, ut nobis quoque poſſint evenire, ſolam Dei providentiam debes ſuſpicere & prædicare.

ments of Unrighteouſneſs unto Sin (as the Apoſtle ſpeaks in Rom. 6. 13) but even ſince you gave them up in Covenant unto the Lord, as dedicated Inſtruments to his Service: And yet how tender hath Providence been over them! You have often provok'd him to afflict you in every part, and lay Penal Evil upon every Member that hath been inſtrumental in moral Evil; but O how great have his Compaſſions been towards you, and his Patience admirable!

(3.) Conſider, what is the aim of Providence in all the tender care it hath manifeſted for you? Why doth it protect you ſo aſſiduouſly, and ſuffer no Evil to beſal you? Is it not that you ſhould employ your Bodies for God, and cheerfully apply your ſelves to that ſervice he hath call'd you to? Doubtleſs, this is the end and level of theſe Mercies; for elſe to what purpoſe are they afforded you? Your Bodies are a part of Chriſts purchaſe, as well as your Souls, 1 Cor. 6. 19. They are committed to the Charge and Tutelage of Angels, Heb. 1. 14. who have perform'd many Services for them. They are dedicated by your ſelves to the Lord, and that upon the higheſt account, Rom. 12. 1. They have already been the Subjects of manifold Mercies in this World, Pſal. 35. 10. and ſhall partake of ſingular Glory and Happineſs in the World to come, Phil. 3. 21. And ſhall they not then be employ'd, yea, cheerfully worn out in his Service? How reaſonable is it they ſhould be ſo? Why are they ſo tenderly preſerv'd by God, if they muſt not be us'd for God?

The Tenth Performance of Providence.

Providential Aſſiſtances in the Work of Mortification.

X. You have heard many and great things perform'd for you by Divine Providence, in the former particulars; but there is an eminent favour it beſtows on the Saints, which hath not yet been conſider'd, and indeed is too little minded by us, and that is, The aid and aſſiſtance it gives the People of God in the great work of Mortification.

Mortification of our ſinful Affections and Paſſions, is the one half of our Sanctification, Rom 6. 11. Dead indeed unto Sin, but alive unto God.

It's the great Evidence of our Intereſt in Chriſt. See Gal. 5. 24. Rom. 6. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9.

It's our ſafety in the hour of Temptation. The corruptions in the world are through luſt, 2 Pet. 1. 4.

Our inſtrumental fitneſs for ſervice, depends much upon it, 2 Tim. 2. 21. John 15. 2. How great a ſervice to our ſouls therefore muſt that be, by which this bleſſed work is carried on upon them?

Now there are two means or inſtruments employ'd in this work. The Spirit, who effects it internally, Rom. 8. 13. And Providence which aſſiſts it externally. The Spirit indeed is the principal Agent, upon whoſe operation the ſucceſs of this work depends; and all the Providences in the world can never effect it without him. But theſe are ſecondary and ſubordinate means, which by the bleſſing of the Spirit upon them, have a great ſtroke in the work. How they are ſo ſerviceable to this end and purpoſe, I ſhall open in the following account.

(1.) More generally. The moſt wiſe God orders the diſpenſations of Providence in a bleſſed ſubordination to the work of his Spirit. There is a ſweet harmony betwixt them in their diſtinct workings. They all meet in that one bleſſed iſſue which God hath by the counſel of his Will directed them to, Eph. 1. 11. Rom. 8. 28. Hence it is, that the Spirit is ſaid to be in, and order the motions of the wheels of Providence, Ezek. 1. 20. and ſo they move together by conſent. Now, one great part of the Spirit's internal work, being to deſtroy ſin in the People of God; ſee how conformable to his deſign, external Providences are ſteer'd and order'd in the following particulars.

(1.) There is in all the regenerate a ſtrong propenſion and inclination to ſin, and in that lies a principal part of the power of ſin. Of this Paul ſadly complains, Rom. 7. 23. But I ſee another law in my members, warring againſt the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of ſin, which is in my members: and every believer daily finds it to his grief. O it's hard, it's hard to forbear thoſe things that grieve God. God hath made an hedge about us, and fenc'd us againſt ſin by his Laws; but there is a proneneſs in nature to break over the hedge, and that againſt the very reluctations of the Spirit of God in us. Now, ſee in this caſe, the concurrence and aſſiſtance of Providence for the prevention of ſin; look, as the Spirit internally reſiſts thoſe ſinful inclinations, ſo Providence externally lays bars and blocks in our way to hinder and prevent ſin: and this is the meaning of thoſe places lately cited, Hoſea 2. 6. & 2 Cor. 12. 7. ſo Job 33. 17, 18, 19. There is many a bodily diſtemper inflicted on this very ſcore, to be a clog to prevent ſin: O bear them patiently upon this conſideration. Baſil was ſorely griev'd with an inveterate headach, he earneſtly prays it might be remov'd; God remov'd it: but no ſooner was he freed of this clog, but he felt the inordinate motions of luſt; which made him pray for his headach again. So it might be with many of us, if our clogs were off.

Qu

A Queſtion may be mov'd here, Whether it be the genius and property of a gracious Spirit, to forbear Sin, becauſe of the rod of Affliction? They have ſurely higher motives and nobler principles than theſe. This is the temper of a carnal and ſlaviſh ſpirit.

Sol.

Indeed it is ſo, when this is the ſole or principal reſtraint from ſin: when a man abhors not ſin, becauſe of the intrinſick filth, but only becauſe of the troubleſome conſequents and effects. But this is vaſtly different from the caſe of the Saints under ſanctify'd afflictions? for as they have higher motives and nobler principles, ſo they have lower and more ſenſible ones too; and theſe are, in their kind and place, very uſeful to them. (2.) Beſides, you muſt know, that afflictions work in another way upon gracious hearts to reſtrain them from ſin, or warn them againſt ſin, than they do upon others. It is not ſo much the ſmart of the rod which they feel, as the tokens of God's diſpleaſure, which affright and ſcare them, Job 10. 17. Thou reneweſt thy witneſſes againſt me, &c. and this is that which principally affects them. See Pſal. 6. 1. O Lord rebuke me not in thine anger, neither chaſten me in thy hot diſpleaſure: and

Jer. 10. 24. O Lord, correct me, but with Judgment, not in thy anger, leſt thou bring me to nothing: and ſurely this is no low and common argument.

(2.) Notwithſtanding this double fence of Gods command, and preventive afflictions, yet ſin is too hard for the beſt of Men: their corruptions carry them through all to ſin. And when it is ſo, not only doth the Spirit work internally, but Providence alſo works externally, in order to their reduction. The ways of ſin are not only made bitter unto them, by the remorſe of Conſcience, but by thoſe afflictive rods upon the outward man, with which God alſo follows it; and in both theſe reſpects, I find that place expounded Eccleſ. 10. 8. Whoſo breaketh an hedge, a Serpent ſhall bite him. If, as ſome expound it, the hedge be the Law of God, then the Serpent is the emorſe of Conſcience, and the ſharp teeth of affliction, which he ſhall quickly feel, if he be one that belongs to God.

The deſign and aim of theſe afflictive Providences, is to purge and cleanſe them from that pollution into which temptations have plunged them, Iſa. 27. 9. By this ſhall the iniquity of Jacob be Purged, and this is all the fruit, to take away his ſin. To the ſame purpoſe is that place, Pſal. 119. 67. Before I was afflicted I went aſtray, but now have I kept thy word. Theſe afflictions have the ſame uſe and end to our ſouls, that froſty weather hath upon thoſe clothes that are laid a bleaching; they alter the hue, and make it whiter, Dan. 11. 35. And ſome of them of underſtanding ſhall fall to try them, and to purge, and to make them white.

And here it may be queried, Upon what account afflictions are ſaid to purge away the iniquities of the Saints. Is it not unwarrantable, and very diſhonourable to Chriſt, to attribute that to affliction, which is the peculiar honour of his blood?

It is confeſſed, that the blood of Chriſt is the only Lavatory, or Fountain opened for ſin, and that no afflictions how many, or ſtrong, or continual ſoever they be, can in themſelves purge away the pollution of ſin, as we ſee in wicked men, who are afflicted and afflicted, and again afflicted; and yet, nevertheleſs ſinful: and the Torments of Hell, how extream, univerſal and continual ſoever they are, yet ſhall never fetch out the ſtain of one ſin.

But yet, this hinders not, but that a ſanctified affliction, may in the efficacy and vertue of Chriſt's blood, produce ſuch bleſſed effects upon the Soul. Though a Croſs without a Chriſt, never did any Man good, yet thouſands have been beholden to the Croſs, as it hath wrought in the vertue of his death for their good. And this is the caſe of thoſe Souls that this diſcourſe is concerned about.

(3.) We find the beſt hearts, if God beſtow any comfortable enjoyment upon them, too apt to be over-heated in their affections towards it, and to be too much taken up with theſe outward comforts. This alſo ſheweth the great power and ſtrength of corruption in the people of God, and muſt by ſome means or other be mortified in them.

This was the caſe of Hezekiah, his heart was too much affected with his treaſures; ſo that he could not hide a vain-glorious Temper, as you find Iſa. 39. 2. and ſo good David, Pſal. 30. 7. he thought his Mountain, (i. e. his Kingdom, and the ſplendor and glory of his preſent ſtate) had ſtood ſo faſt, that it ſhould never be moved.

The ſame good man, how did he let out his heart and affections upon his beautiful Son Abſalom; as appears by the doleful lamentation he made at his death, prizing him above his own life, which was a thouſand times more worth than he.

So Jonah, when God raiſed up a Gourd for him to ſhelter him from the Sun, how exceſſively was he taken with it, and was exceedingly glad of it?

But will God ſuffer things to lie thus? Shall the Creature purloin, and draw away our affections from him? No, this is our corruption, and God will purge it. And to this end he ſends forth Providence to ſmite thoſe Creatures, on which our affections are either inordinately or exceſſively let out, or elſe to turn them into rods, and ſmite us by them.

Is Hezekiah too much puffed up with his full Exchequer? Why, thoſe very Babylonians to whom he boaſted of it, ſhall empty it, and make a prey of it, Iſa. 39. 6.

Is David hugging himſelf in a fond conceit of the ſtability of his Earthly Splendor? Lo, how ſoon God beclouds all, Pſal. 30. 7. Is Abſalom doted on, and crept too far into his good Fathers heart? this ſhall be the Son of his ſorrow, that ſhall ſeek after his Fathers life.

Is Jonah ſo tranſported with his Gourd? God will prepare a Worm to ſmite it, Jonah 4. 6, 7.

How many Husbands, Wives and Children hath Providence ſmitten upon this very account? It might have ſpared them longer, if they had been loved more regularly, and moderately. This hath blaſted many an Eſtate, and hopeful project; and it is a merciful diſpenſation for our good.

(4.) The ſtrength of our unmortified Corruption ſhews it ſelf in our pride, and the ſwelling vanity of our hearts when we have a name and eſteem among men? when we are applauded and honoured, when we are admired for any gift or excellency that is in us, this draws forth the pride of the Heart, and ſhews the vanity that is in it. So you read, Prov. 27. 21. As the fining pot for ſilver, and the furnace for gold, ſo is a man to his praiſe: (i. e.) as the furnace will diſcover what droſs is in the metal when it is melted, ſo will praiſe and commendations diſcover what pride is in the heart of him that receives them. This made a good man ſay, He that praiſes me, wounds me. And which is more ſtrange, this corruption may be felt in the Heart, even when the laſt breath is ready to expire. It was the ſaying of one of the German Divines, when thoſe about him recounted for his encouragement the many ſervices he had done for God, auferte ignem (ſaith he) adhuc enim paleas habeo. Take away the fire, for there is ſtill the chaff of pride in me. To crucifie this corruption Providence takes off the bridle of reſtraint from ungodly men, and ſometimes permits them to traduce the names of Gods ſervants, as Shimei did David's. Yea, they ſhall fall into diſeſteem among their friends, as Paul did among the Corinthians; and all this to keep down the ſwelling of their ſpirits at the ſenſe of thoſe excellencies that are in them: The deſign of theſe Providences being nothing elſe, but to hide Pride from man. Yea, it deſerves a ſpecial remarque, that when ſome good men have been engaged in a publick and eminent work, and have therein, it may be, too much ſought their own applauſe, God hath withheld uſual aſſiſtance at ſuch times from them, and cauſed them to falter ſo in their work, that they have come off with ſhame and pity at ſuch times, how ready and preſential ſoever they have been at other times. It were eaſie to give divers remarkable examples to confirm this Obſervation. But I paſs on.

(5.) The corruption of the heart ſhews it ſelf, in raiſing up great expectations to our ſelves from the Creature, and projecting abundance of felicity and contentment from ſome promiſing and hopeful enjoyments we have in the world. This we find to have been the caſe of holy Job in the days of his proſperity, Job 28. 19. Then I ſaid, I ſhall dye in my neſt, I ſhall multiply my days as the ſand. But how ſoon were all theſe expectations daſht by a gloomy Providence that benighted him in the Noon-tide of his proſperity: and all this for his good, to take off his heart more fully from creature expectations. We often find the beſt men to over-reckon themſelves in worldly things, and over-act their confidences about them. They that have great and well-grounded expectations from Heaven, may have too great and ungrounded expectations from the Earth. But when it is ſo, it's very uſual for Providence to undermine their Earthly hopes, and convince them by experience how vain they are. Thus Haggai 2. 9. the peoples hearts were intently ſet upon proſperous Providences, full Harveſts, and great Increaſe; whilſt in the mean while no regard was had to the Worſhip of God, and the things of his Houſe; therefore Providence blaſts their hopes, and brings them to little.

(6.) Corruption diſcovers it ſelf in dependance upon Creature comforts and ſenſible props. Oh how apt are the beſt men, to lean upon thoſe things, and ſtay themſelves upon them! Thus did Iſrael ſtay themſelves upon Egypt, as a feeble man would lean upon his ſtaff; but God ſuffered it both to fail them, and wound them, Ezek. 29. 6, 7. 8. So for ſingle perſons, how apt are they to depend upon their ſenſible ſupports? Thus we lean on our Relations, and the inward thoughts of our hearts are, that they ſhall be to us ſo many ſprings of comfort to refreſh us throughout our lives; but God will ſhew us by his Providence our miſtake and error in theſe things. Thus an Husband is ſmitten, to draw the ſoul of a Wife nearer to God in dependence upon him, 1 Tim. 5. 5. So for Children, we are apt to ſay of this or that Child, as Lamech of Noah, Gen. 5. 29. This ſame ſhall comfort us; but the wind paſſes over theſe flowers and they are withered, to teach us, that our happineſs is not bound up in theſe enjoyments. So for our Eſtates, when the world ſmiles upon us, and we have got a warm neſt, how do we propheſie of reſt and peace in thoſe acquiſitions, minding with good Baruch, great things for our ſelves; but Providence by a particular or general calamity overturns our projects, as Jer. 45. 4, 5. and all this to reduce our hearts from the Creature, to God, our only reſt.

(7.) Corruption diſcovers its ſtrength in good men, by their adherence to things below, and lothneſs to go hence. This often proceeds from the engaging enjoyments, and pleaſant fruitions we have here below. Providence mortifies this Inclination in the Saints, (1.) By killing thoſe enſnaring comforts before-hand, making all or moſt of our pleaſant things to die before us. (2.) By imbittering this world to us, by the troubles of it. (3.) By making life undeſirable, through the pains and infirmities we feel in the body and ſo looſing our root, in order to our more eaſie fall by the fatal ſtroke.

And thus I have finiſhed the Second General Head; but before I paſs from this, I cannot but make a pauſe, and deſire you with me, to ſtand in an holy amazement, and wonder at the dealings of God with ſuch poor worms as we are! Surely God deals familiarly with men! his condeſcenſions to his own clay are aſtoniſhing! All that I ſhall note at preſent about it, ſhall be under theſe three heads, wherein I find the matter of my preſent meditations ſummed up by the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 144. 3. Lord what is man, that thou takeſt knowledge of him? or the ſon of man, that thou makeſt account of him? And in this Scripture you have repreſented,

1. The immenſe and tranſcendent greatneſs of God, who is infinitely above us and all our thoughts, Job 11. 7, 8, 9. Canſt thou by ſearching, find out God? canſt thou find out the Almighty unto perfection? It is as high as Heaven; what canſt thou do? deeper than Hell, what canſt thou know? The meaſure thereof is longer than the Earth, and broader than the Sea. 2 Chron. 2. 6. The Heaven and Heaven of Heavens cannot contain him. Exod. 15. 11. He is glorious in holineſs, fearful in praiſes, doing wonders. When the Scripture ſpeaks of him comparatively, ſee how it expreſſes his greatneſs, Iſa. 40. 15, 19, 17. Behold the Nations are as the drop of a bucket, and are counted as the ſmall duſt of the balance: behold he taketh up the Iſles as a very little thing. And Lebanon is not ſufficient to burn, nor the Beaſts thereof ſufficient for a burnt-offering. All Nations before him are as nothing, and they are accounted to him leſs than nothing and vanity. When the holieſt men have addreſt themſelves to him, ſee with what humility and deep adoration they have ſpoken of him and to him! Iſa. 6. 5. Wo is me for I am undone, becauſe I am a man of unclean lips, and I will dwell in the midſt of a people of unclean lips; for mine eyes have ſeen the King the Lord of Hoſts. Nay, what reſpects the very Angels of Heaven have of that glorious Majeſty, you may ſee, Ver. 2. 3. Each one had ſix wings, with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did flye And one cryed unto another, and ſaid, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of Hoſts; the whole Earth is full of his glory.

The baſeneſs, vileneſs and utter unworthineſs of Man, yea, the holieſt and beſt of men before God, Pſal. 39. 5. Verily every man, at his beſt eſtate, is altogether vanity. Every man, take where you will: and every man in his beſt eſtate, or ſtanding in his freſheſt glory, is, not only vanity, but altogether vanity. Col Adam col Hebel, every man is every vanity. For do but conſider the beſt of men in their Extraction, in their Conſtitution, and in their outward Condition.

(1.) In their Extraction, Eph. 2. 3. By nature

ture Children of wrath even as others. The blood that runs in our veins, is as much tainted as theirs in Hell.

(3.) Conſider them in their Conſtitution and natural temper, and it is no better, yea in many a worſe temper than in Reprobates: and though grace depoſe ſin in them from the Throne; yet Oh what offenſive and God provoking corruptions daily break out of the beſt hearts;

(3.) Conſider them in their outward Condition, and they are inferiour (for the moſt part) to others, 1 Cor. 1. 26, 27, 28, &c. and Matth. 11. 25. I thank thee, O Father (ſaith Chriſt) that thou haſt hid theſe things from the Wiſe and Prudent, and haſt revealed them unto Babes.

And now let us conſider and admire, that ever this great and bleſſed God ſhould be ſo much concerned as you have heard he is in all his Providences about ſuch vile deſpicable Worms as we are! He needs us not, but is perfectly bleſſed and happy in himſelf without us. We can add nothing to him, Job 22. 2. Can a man be profitable to God? No, the holieſt of men add nothing to him; yet, ſee how great account he makes of us. For,

1. Doth not his eternal electing love beſpeak the dear account he made of us, Eph. 1. 4, 5. How ancient, how free, and how aſtoniſhing is this act of grace! This is that deſign which all Providences are in purſuit of, and will not reſt till they have executed.

2. Doth not the gift of his only Son out of his boſom ſpeak this truth, That God makes great account of this vile thing Man? Never was man ſo magnified before. If David could ſay, Pſal. 8. 3. When I conſider the Heavens the work of thy hands, the Moon and Stars which thou haſt ordained, Lord, what is man? How much more may we ſay? when we conſider thy Son, that lay in thy boſom, his infinite excellency, and unſpeakable dearneſs to thee; Lord, what is man, that ſuch a Chriſt ſhould be delivered to death for him! for him, and not for fallen Angels! Heb. 2. 19. for him when in a ſtate of enmity with God! Rom. 5. 8.

3. Doth not the aſſiduity of his Providential care for us, ſpeak his eſteem of us? Iſa. 27. 3. Leſt any hurt it, I will keep it night and day. He withdraweth not his eye from the righteous, Job 36. 7. no, not a moment all their days; for did he ſo, a thouſand miſchiefs in that moment would ruſh in upon him, and ruine him.

4. Doth not the tenderneſs of his Providence ſpeak his eſteem of us? Iſa. 66. 13. as one whom his Mother comforteth, ſo will I comfort you. He comforts his (viz by refreſhing Providences) as an indulgent Mother her tender Child. So Iſa. 31. 5. As birds flying, viz. to their neſts, when their young are in danger, ſo he defends his. No στοργὴ tenderneſs in the Creature can ſhadow forth the tender bowels of the Creator.

5. Doth not the variety of the fruits of his Providence ſpeak it? Lam. 3. 23. Our mercies are new every morning. See Pſal. 40. 5. It is a fountain from which do ſtream forth ſpiritual & temporal, ordinary and extraordinary, publick and perſonal mercies, mercies without number.

6. Doth not the miniſtration of Angels in the Providential Kingdom ſpeak it? Heb. 1. ult. Are they not all miniſtring ſpirits ſent forth, &c.

7. Doth not the Providence, which this day calls us to celebrate the memory of, beſpeak the great account God hath for his people? O if not ſo, why had we not been given up as a prey to their teeth? See Pſal. 124. If the Lord had not been on our ſide then wicked men, there compar'd to fire, water, wild beaſts, had devoured us. O bleſſed be God for that teeming Providence that hath already brought forth more than ſeventy years liberty and peace to the Church of God. I ſhall move in behalf of this Providence, that you would do by it, as the Jews by their Purim, Eſth. 9. 27, 28. and the rather, becauſe we ſeem now to be as near danger by the ſame Enemy as ever ſince that time: and if ſuch a mercy as this be forgotten, God may ſay as Judges 10. 13. I will deliver you no more.

Preached Novemb. v.

The Third General Head.

Having proved the Concernments of the people of God to be conducted by the care of ſpecial Providence, and given Inſtances in the laſt ten named Heads, what influence Providence hath upon thoſe Intereſts and concerns of theirs among the reſt; we come in the next place, to prove it to be the duty of the people of God, to reflect upon theſe performances of Providence for them, at all times; but eſpecially in times of ſtraits and troubles.

This I will evidence to be your unqueſtionable duty, by the following particulars.

1. This is our duty, becauſe God hath expreſly commanded it, and called his people to make the moſt ſerious reflections, and animadverſions upon his works, whether of mercy or Judgement. So when that dreadfulleſt of all Judgments was executed upon his profeſſing people for their Apoſtaſie from God, and God had removed the Symbols of his preſence from among them, the reſt are bid to go, (i. e.) by their meditations, (to ſend at leaſt their thoughts) to Shiloh, and ſee what God did to it, Jer. 7. 12. So for mercies, God calls us to conſider and review them, Micah 6. 5. Remember O my people from Shittim unto Gilgal, that ye may know the faithfulneſs of the Lord: q. d. if you reflect not upon that ſignal Providence, my faithfulneſs will be covered, and your unfaithfulneſs diſcovered. So for Gods works of Providence about the Creatures, we are called to conſider them, that we may prop up our faith by thoſe conſiderations for our own ſupplies, Matth. 6. 28. conſider the Fowls and Lilies.

2. It's plain, that this is our duty, becauſe the neglect of it is every where in Scripture condemned as a ſin. To be of an heedleſs inobſervant temper is very diſpleaſing to God; and ſo much appears by that Scripture. Iſa. 26. 11. Lord when thy hand is lifted up they will not ſee. Nay, it is a ſin, which God threatens and denounces woe againſt in his Word, Pſal. 28. 4, 5. and Iſa. 5. 12, 13. Yea, God not only threatens, but ſmites men with viſible Judgments for this ſin, Job 34. 26, 27.

And for this end and purpoſe it is, that the Holy Ghoſt hath affixed thoſe notes of attention to the narratives of the works of Providence in Scripture, all which do invite and call men to a due and dear obſervation of them. So in that great and celebrated work of Providence, in delivering Iſrael out of Egyptian bondage, you find a note of attention twice affixed to it, Exod. 3. 2, 9. So when that daring Enemy Rabſheka (that put Hezekiah and all the people into ſuch a conſternation) was defeated by Providence, there is a note of attention prefixt to that Providence, 2 Kings 19. 7. Behold, I will ſend a blaſt upon him, &c. So when God glorifies his wiſdom and power, in delivering his people from their Enemies, and enſnaring them in the works of their own hands, a double note of attention is affixed to that double work of Providence, Pſal. 9. 16. Higgaion ſelah. So at the opening of every ſeal which contains a remarkable ſeries or branch of Providence, how particularly is attention commanded to every one of them, Rev. 6. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7. Come and ſee, come and ſee. All theſe are very uſeleſs and ſuperfluous additions in Scripture, if no ſuch duty lies upon us. See Pſal. 66. 5.

4. Without due obſervation of the work of Providence, no praiſe can be rendered to God for any of them. Praiſe and thankſgiving for mercies depend upon this act of obſervation of them, and cannot be performed without it. Pſalm 107. is ſpent in narratives of Gods Providential care of men. To his people in ſtraits, Ver. 4, 5, 6. To priſoners in their bonds, Ver. 10, 11, 12. To men that lie languiſhing upon beds of ſickneſs, Ver. 17, 18, 19. To Seamen upon the ſtormy Ocean, Ver. 23, &c. To men in times of famine, Ver. 33. to Ver. 40. Yea, his Providence is diſplayed in all thoſe changes that fall out in the world, debaſing the high, and exalting the low, Ver. 40, 41. and at every paragraph men are ſtill called upon to praiſe God for each of theſe Providences: but Ver. ult. ſhews you what a neceſſary ingredient to that duty, obſervation is, Whoſo is wiſe, and will obſerve theſe things; even they ſhall underſtand the loving kindneſs of the Lord. So that of neceſſity, God muſt be defrauded of his praiſe, if this duty be neglected.

5. Without this, we loſe the uſefulneſs and benefit of all the works of God for us or others, which would be an unſpeakable loſs indeed to us. This is the food our faith lives upon in days of diſtreſs, Pſal. 74. 14. Thou brakeſt the heads of Leviathan in pieces, and gaveſt him to be meat to the People inhabiting the Wilderneſs; (i. e.) food to their faith. From Providences paſt, Saints uſe to argue to freſh and new ones to come. So David, 1 Sam. 17. 37. The Lord that delivered me out of the paw of the Lyon, and out of the paw of the Bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philiſtin. So Paul, 2 Cor. 1. 10. Who hath delivered, and in whom alſo we truſt, that he will yet deliver. If theſe be forgotten or not conſidered, the hands of faith hang down. See Matth. 16. 9. How is it that ye do not remember, neither conſider? This is a Topick from which the Saints had uſed to draw their Arguments in prayer for new mercies. As Moſes, Numb. 14. 19. when he prays for continued or new pardons for the people, he argues from what was paſt, As thou haſt forgiven them from Egypt until now. So the Church, Iſa. 51. 9, 10. argues for new Providences; upon the ſame ground Moſes pleaded for new pardons.

It is a vile ſlighting of God, not to obſerve what of himſelf he manifeſts in his Providences. For in all Providences, eſpecially in ſome, he comes nigh to us. He doth ſo in his Judgments, Mal. 3. 5. I will come nigh to you in judgment. He comes nigh in mercies alſo, Pſal. 145. 18. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, &c. Yea, he is ſaid to viſit us by his Providence when he corrects, Hoſea 9. 7 and when he ſaves and delivers, Pſal. 106. 4. Theſe viſitations of God preſerve our ſpirits, Job 10. 12. And it is a wonderful condeſcenſion in the great God to viſit us ſo often. Job 7. 18. every morning and every moment. But not to take notice of it, is a vile and brutiſh contempt of God, Iſa. 1. 3. Zeph. 3. 2. You would not do ſo by a man for whom you have any reſpect. It's the Character of the wicked, not to regard Gods favours, Iſa. 26. 10. or frowns, Jer. 5. 3.

7. In a word, Men can never order their addreſſes to God in prayer, ſuitable to their conditions, without due obſervation of his Providences. Your prayers are to be ſuitable to your conditions: ſometimes we are called to praiſe, ſometimes to humiliation. In the way of his Judgments you are to wait for him, Iſa. 26. 8. to prepare to meet him, Zeph. 2. 1, 2. Amos 4. 12. Now your buſineſs is, to turn away his anger which you ſee approaching. And ſometimes you are called to praiſe him for mercies received, Iſa 12. 1, 2. but then you muſt firſt obſerve them.

Thus you find the matter of David's Pſalms ſtill varied, according to the Providences that befell him: but an inobſervant heedleſs ſpirit can never do it. And thus you have the grounds of the Duty briefly repreſented; we paſs on to

The Fourth General Head.

Let us next (according to our method propoſed) proceed to ſhew in what manner we are to reflect upon the Performances of Providence for us. And certainly it is not every ſlight and tranſient glance, nor every cold hiſtorical, unaffecting rehearſal, or recognition of his Providences towards you, that will paſs with God for a diſcharge of this great duty. No, no, it is another manner of Buſineſs than the moſt of Men underſtand it to be. O that we were but acquainted with this heavenly ſpiritual exerciſe! how ſweet would it make our lives! how light would it make our burdens! Ah Sirs! you live eſtranged from the pleaſure of the Chriſtian life, while you live in the ignorance or neglect of this Duty. Now to lead you up to this heavenly, ſweet and profitable exerciſe, I will beg your attention to the following Directions.

The Firſt Direction.

Labour to get as full and through recognitions of the Providences of God about you from firſt to laſt, as you are able. O fill your Hearts with the thoughts of him and his ways. If a ſingle act of Providence be ſo raviſhing and tranſporting, what would many ſuch be, if they were preſented together to the view of the Soul? If one Star be ſo beautiful to behold, what is a Conſtellation! Let your reflection therefore upon the acts and workings of Providence for you, be full extenſively and intenſively.

(1.) Let them be as extenſively full as may be, Search backward into all the performances of Providence throughout your Lives. So did Aſaph in Pſal. 77. 11, 12. I will remember the works of the Lord: ſurely I will remember thy wonders of old: I will meditate of all thy works, and talk of thy doings. He laboured to recover and revive the ancient Providences of Gods mercies many years paſt, and ſuck a freſh ſweetneſs out of them by new reviews of them. Ah Sirs, let me tell you, there is not ſuch a pleaſant Hiſtory for you to read in all the World, as the Hiſtory of your own Lives, if you would but ſit down, and record to your ſelves from the beginning hitherto, what God hath been to you, and done for you; what ſignal manifeſtations, and out-breakings of his mercy, faithfulneſs and love, there have been in all the conditions you have paſt through: if your Hearts do not melt before you have gone half through that Hiſtory, they are hard hearts indeed. My Father, the Guide of my Youth.

(2.) Let them be as intenſively full as may be. Let not your thoughts ſwim like feathers upon the ſurface of the waters, but ſink like lead to the bottom. The works of the Lord are great, ſought out of them that have pleaſure therein, Pſal. 111. 2. Not that I think it feaſible to ſound the depth of Providence by our ſhort line, Pſal. 77. 19. Thy way is in the ſea, and thy path in the great waters, and thy footſteps are not known; but it's our duty to dive as far as we can; and to admire the depth, when we cannot touch the bottom. It is in our viewing Providences, as it was with Elijah's ſervant, when he looked out for rain, 1 Kings 18. 44. he went out once and viewed the Heavens, and ſaw nothing; but the Prophet bids him go again and again, and look upon the face of Heaven ſeven times; and when he had done ſo, what now, ſaith the Prophet? O now, ſaith he, I ſee a cloud riſing like a Mans hand; and then, keeping his eye upon it intent, he ſees the whole face of Heaven covered with clouds. So you may look upon ſome Providences once and again, and ſee little or nothing in them; but look ſeven times, (i. e.) meditate often upon it, and you ſhall ſee its increaſing glory, like that increaſing cloud.

There are divers things to be diſtinctly pondered, and valued in one ſingle Providence, before you can judge the amount and worth of it; as (1.) The ſeaſonableneſs of mercy may give it a very great value. When it ſhall be timed ſo opportunely, and fall out in ſuch a nick, as may make it a thouſand fold more conſiderable to you than the ſame mercy would have been at another time. Thus when our wants are ſuffered to grow to an extremity, and all viſible hopes fail, then to have relief given in, wonderfully enhances the price of ſuch a mercy, Iſa. 41. 17, 18.

(2.) The peculiar care and kindneſs of Providence to us, is a conſideration which exceedingly heightens the mercy in it ſelf, and endears it to us. So, when in general calamities upon the World, we are exempted by the favour of Providence, covered under its wings, when God ſhall call to us in evil days, Come my People, enter thou into thy Chambers, as it is in Iſa. 26. 20, 19. When ſuch Promiſes ſhall be fulfilled to us in times of want and famine, as Pſal. 33. 18, 19. When others are abandoned and expoſed to miſery, who have every way as much, it may be much more viſible ſecurity againſt it; and yet they delivered up, and we ſaved: Oh, how endearing are ſuch Providences! Pſal. 91. 7, 8.

(3.) The Introductiveneſs of a Providence, is of ſpecial regard and conſideration, and by no means to be neglected by us. There are leading Providences, which how ſlight and trivial ſoever they may ſeem in themſelves, yet in this reſpect juſtly challenge the firſt rank among Providential favours to us; becauſe they uſher in a multitude of other mercies, and draw a bleſſed train of happy conſequences after them. Such a Providence was that of Jeſſe's ſending David with proviſions to his Brethren that lay encamped in the Army, 1 Sam. 17. 17. And thus every Chriſtian may furniſh himſelf out of his own ſtock of Experience, if he will but reflect, and conſider, the Place where he is, the Relations that he hath, and the Way by which he was led into them.

(4.) The Inſtruments imployed by Providence for you, are of ſpecial conſideration. And the finger of God is clearly ſeen by us when we purſue that meditation. For,

Sometimes great mercies ſhall be conveyed to us by very improbable means, and more probable ones laid aſide. A ſtranger ſhall be ſtirred up to do that for you, which your near relations in nature had no power or will to do for you. Jonathan, a meer ſtranger to David, clave cloſer to him, and was more friendly and uſeful to him, than his own Brethren who deſpiſed and ſlighted him. Miniſters have found more kindneſs and reſpect from ſtrangers than their own people that are more obliged to them, Mark 6. 4. A Prophet (ſaith Chriſt) is not without Honour, ſave in his own Country, and among his own Kin, and in his own Houſe.

how true

Sometimes by the hands of Enemies, as well as Strangers, Rev. 12. 16. The Earth helped the Woman. God hath bowed the hearts of many wicked men, to ſhew great kindneſs to his people, Acts 28. 2.

Sometimes God makes uſe of Inſtruments for good to his people, who deſigned nothing but evil and miſchief to them. Thus Joſeph's Brethren were inſtrumental to his advancement in that very thing, wherein they deſigned his ruin, Gen. 50. 20.

(5.) The deſign and ſcope of Providence muſt not eſcape our through conſideration, what the aim and level of Providence is. And truly this, of all others, is the moſt warming and melting conſideration. You have the general account of the aim of all Providences, in Rom 8. 28. And we know that all things work together for good, to them that love God. A thouſand friendly hands are at work for them, to promote and bring about their happineſs. O, this is enough to ſweeten the bitterneſs of Providence to us, that we know it ſhall turn to our ſalvation, Phil. 1. 19.

(9.) The reſpect and relation Providence bears to our prayers, is of ſingular conſideration, and a moſt takingand ſweet Meditation. Prayer honours Providence, and Providence honours Prayer. Great notice is taking of this in Scripture, Gen. 24. 45. Dan. 9. 20. Acts 12. 12. You have had the very Petitions you asked of him. Providences have born the very ſignatures of your Prayers upon them. O how affectingly ſweet are ſuch mercies?

The Second Direction.

In all your Obſervation of Providence, have ſpecial reſpect to that Word of God, which is fulfilled and made good to you thereby.

This is a clear truth that all Providences have relation to the written Word. Thus So- lomon in his prayer, acknowledges, that the Promiſes and Providences of God went along ſtep by ſtep with his Father David all his days; and that his hand (put there for his Providence) had fulfilled whatever his mouth had ſpoken, 1 Kings 8. 24. So Joſhua in like manner acknowledges, that not one good thing had failed of all the good things which the Lord had ſpoken, Joſ. 23. 14. He had carefully obſerved what relation the Works of God had to his Word. He compared them together, and found an exact harmony. And ſo may you too, if you will compare them as he did.

This I ſhall the more inſiſt upon, becauſe it is by ſome Interpreters ſuppoſed to be the very Scope of the Text. For (as was noted in the Explication) they ſupply and fill the ſenſe with quæ promiſit, the things which he hath promiſed; and ſo read the Text thus, I will cry unto God moſt high, to God who performeth the things he hath promiſed, for me.

Now though I ſee no reaſon to limit the ſenſe ſo narrowly, yet it cannot be denyed, but this is an eſpecial part of its intendment. Let us therefore in all our reviews of Providence, conſider, what word of God, whether it be of threatning, caution, counſel, or promiſe is at any time made good to us by his Providences. And hereby a twofold excellent advantage will reſult to us.

(1.) This will greatly confirm to us the truth of the Scripture, when we ſhall ſee its truth ſo manifeſt in the events. Certainly had Scripture no other ſeal or atteſtation, this alone would be an unanſwerable Argument of its divinity. When men ſhall find in all ages the works of God wrought ſo exactly according to this Model, that we may ſee. As we have read or heard, ſo have we ſeen. O how great a confirmation is here before our eyes.

(2.) This will abundantly direct and inſtruct us in our preſent duties under all Providences. We ſhall know hereby what we have to do and how to carry our ſelves under all changes of conditions. You can learn the voice and errand of the rod only from the Word, Pſal. 94. 12. The Word interprets the works of God. Providences in themſelves are not a perfect guide. They often puzzel and entangle our thoughts; but bring them to the word, and your duty will be quickly manifeſted, as Pſal. 73. 16, 17. Until I went into the Sanctuary, then I underſtood their end: and, not only their end: but his own duty, to be quiet in an afflicted condition, and not envy their proſperity.

Well then, bring thoſe Providences you have paſt through, or are now under, to the Word; and you will find your ſelves ſurrounded with a marvellous light; and ſee the verification of the Scriptures in them. I ſhall therefore here appeal to your conſciences, whether you have not found theſe Events of Providence falling out agreeable in all reſpects with the Word.

1. The Word tells you, that it is your Wiſdom and Intereſt, to keep cloſe to its rules, and the duties it preſcribes, that the way of holineſs and obedience, is the wiſeſt way, Deut. 4. 5, 6. This is your wiſdom.

Now let the events of Providence ſpeak, whether this be true or not. Certainly it will appear to be ſo, whether we reſpect our preſent comfort, or future happineſs, both which we may ſee daily expoſed by departure from Duty, and ſecured by keeping cloſe to it. Let the queſtion be asked of the Drunkard, Adulterer, or prophane Swearer, when by Sin they have ruined Body, Soul, Eſtate and Name, whether it be their Wiſdom to walk in thoſe forbidden Paths after their own Luſts? Whether they had not better conſulted their own Intereſt and Comfort, in keeping within the Bounds and Limits of Gods Commands? And they cannot but confeſs, that this their way is their Folly. What Fruit (ſaith the Apoſtle) had ye in thoſe Things, whereof you are now aſhamed? For the end of thoſe Things is Death, Rom. 6. 21. Doth not the Providence of God verifie upon them thoſe threatnings that are Written, in the Experience of all Ages? Prov. 23. 29. Prov. 23. 21. Prov. 5 9. Job 31. 12. Prov. 5. 10. All which Woes and Miſeries they eſcape, that walk in Gods Statutes. Look upon the ruined Eſtates and Bodies you may every where ſee, and behold the Truth of the Scriptures evidently made good in thoſe ſad Providences.

2. The Word tells you, that your departure from the way of Integrity and Simplicity to make uſe of ſinful Policies, ſhall never Profit you, 1 Sam. 12. 21. Prov. 3. 5.

Let the Events of Providence ſpeak to this alſo; ask your own Experience, and you ſhall have a full Confirmation of this Truth. Did you ever leave the way of Simplicity and Integrity, and uſe ſinful ſhifts, to bring about your own Deſigns, and proſper in that way? Certainly God hath curſed all the Ways of Sin; and whoever finds them to thrive with them, his People ſhall not. Iſrael would not rely upon the Lord, but truſt in the ſhadow of Egypt; and what Advantage had they by this ſinful Policy? See Iſa. 30. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. David uſed a great deal of ſinful Policy to cover his wicked Fact; but did it proſper? See 2 Sam. 12. 12. It is an excellent Note of Livy, Conſilia callida, primâ ſpecie læta, tractatu dura, eventu triſtia. Sinful policies in their firſt Appearances, are pleaſant and promiſing, in their management difficult, in their event ſad. Some by ſinful Ways have gotten Wealth; but that Scripture hath been verified in their Experience, Prov. 10. 2. Treaſures of Wickedneſs profit nothing. Either God hath blown upon it by a ſecret Curſe, that it hath done them no good, or given them ſuch diſquietneſs in their Conſciences, that they have been forced to vomit it up, e're they could find Peace, Job 11. 13, 14, 15.

That which David gave in charge to Solomon, hath been found experimentally true by thouſands, 1 Chron. 22. 12, 13. That the true way to Proſperity, is to keep cloſe to the Rule of the Word. And that the true Reaſon why Men cannot Proſper, is their forſaking that Rule, 2 Chron 24. 20.

It's true, if God have a purpoſe to deſtroy a Man, he may for a time ſuffer him to ſucceed and proſper in his Sin, for his greater hardening, Job 12 6. But it is not ſo with thoſe whom the Lord loves, their ſinful ſhifts ſhal never thrive with them.

3. The Word prohibits your truſt and confidence in the Creature, even the greateſt and moſt powerful among Creatures, Pſalm 146. 3. It tells us, that 'tis better to truſt in the Lord, than in them, Pſalm 118. 8. It forbids our Confidence fidence in thoſe Creatures that are moſt nearly ally'd, and related in the Bonds of Nature to us, Micah 7. 5. It Curſeth the Man that gives that relyance to the Creature, which is due to God, Jer. 17. 5.

Conſult the Events of Providence in this Caſe, and ſee whether the Word be not verified therein? Did you ever lean upon an Egyptian Reed, and it did not break under you, and pierce as well as deceive you? O how often hath this been evident in our Experience! Whatſoever we have over-loved, idolized, and leaned upon, God hath from Time to Time broken it, and made us to ſee the Vanity of it; ſo that we find, the readieſt courſe to be rid of our Comforts, is to ſet our Hearts inordinately or immoderately upon them: For our God is a jealous God, and will not part with his Glory to another. The World is full of Examples of Perſons deprived of their Comforts, Husbands, Wives, Children, Eſtates, &c. upon this account, and by this means. If Jonah be over-joyed in his Gourd, a Worm is preſently prepared to ſmite it. Hence it is, that ſo many Graves are opened for the Burying of our Idols out of our ſight. If David ſay, My mountain ſhall ſtand ſtrong, I ſhall not be moved; the next news he ſhall hear, is of Darkneſs and Trouble, Pſalm 30. 6, 7. O how true and faithful do we find theſe ſayings of God to be! Who cannot put to his Seal, and ſay, Thy Words are Truth?

4. The Word aſſures us, that Sin is the Cauſe and Inlet of Affliction and Sorrow, and that there is an inſeparable Connexion betwixt them, Numb 32. 23. Be ſure your Sin will find you out: (i. e.) the ſad Effects and Afflictions that follow it ſhall find you out. So Pſalm 89. 30, 31, 32. If his Sons forſake my Law, I will viſit their Iniquities with Rods.

Enquire now at the Mouth of Providence, whether this be indeed ſo, according to the Reports of the Word. Ask but your own Experiences, and you ſhall find, that juſt ſo Providence hath ordered it all along your way. When did you grow into a ſecure, vain, carnal Frame, but you found ſome rouzing, ſtartling Providence ſent to awaken you? When did you wound your Conſciences with guilt, and God did not wound you for it, in ſome or other of your beloved enjoyments? Nay, ſo ordinary is this with God, that from the Obſervations of their own Frames and Ways, many Chriſtians have fore-boded and preſaged Troubles at Hand.

I do not ſay, that God never afflicts his People, but for their Sin; for he may do it for their Tryal, 1 Pet. 4. 12. Nor do I ſay, that God follows every Sin with a Rod; for who then ſhould ſtand before him? Pſalm 130. 3. But this I ſay, that it's Gods uſual way, to viſit the Sins of his People with Rods of Affliction, and this in Mercy to their Souls. Upon this account it was, that the Rod of God was upon David in a long Succeſſion of Troubles upon his Kingdom and Family, after that great Prevarication of his, 2 Sam 12. 10. And if we would carefully ſearch out the Seeds and Principles of thoſe Miſeries under which we or ours do groan; we ſhould find them to be our own turnings aſide from the Lord, according to that Jer. 2. 19. and Jer. 4. 18. Have not all theſe Cautions, and threatnings of the Word been exactly fulfilled by Providence in your own Experience? Who can but ſee the infallible Truth of God in all that he hath threatned! And no leſs evident is the Truth of the Promiſes to all that will obſerve how Providence makes them good every Day to us; for conſider,

5. How great Security God hath given to his People in the Promiſes, that no Man ſhall loſe any thing by ſelf denial for his Sake. He hath told us, Mark 10. 29, 30. Verily, I ſay unto you, there is no Man that hath left Houſe, or Brethren, or Siſters, or Father, or Mother, or Wife, or Children, or Lands for my ſake, and the Goſpels; but he ſhall receive an hundred fold now in this Time, Houſes, and Brethren and Siſters, and Mothers, and Children, and Lands with Perſecutions, and in the World to come Eternal Life.

Though that vile Apoſtate Julian derided this Promiſe, yet thouſands and ten thouſands have experienced it, and do at this Day ſtand ready to ſet their Seal to it. God hath made it good to his People, not only in Spirituals; inward Joy, and Peace; but even in Temporals alſo: Inſtead of natural Relations who took care for them before, hundreds of Chriſtians ſhall ſtand ready to aſſiſt and help them: So that though they have left all for Chriſt, yet they may ſay with the Apoſtle, 2. Cor. 6. 10. As having nothing, and yet poſſeſſing all Things. O the admirable Care and Tenderneſs of Providence over thoſe that for Conſcience ſake have left all, and caſt themſelves upon its immediate Care! Are there not at this Day to be found many ſo provided for, even to the Envy of their Enemies, and their own Admiration? Who ſees not the faithfulneſs of God in the Promiſes, that hath but an Heart to truſt God in them!

6. The Word of Promiſe aſſures us, that whatever wants or ſtraits the Saints fall into, their God will never leave them, nor forſake them, Heb. 13. 5. That he will be with them in Trouble, Pſal. 91. 15.

Summa hæc eſt, cum omnia bona ſuppeditentur a deo in omnibus vitæ humanæ ordinibus noſtri officii erit, in calamitatibus nos erigere conſideratione Providentiæ divinæ. Alſted. Theol. Catechet. p. 192.

Conſult the various Providences of your Life in this Point, and I doubt not, but you will find the Truth of theſe Promiſes as often confirmed, as you have been in trouble. Ask your own Hearts, where, or when was it that your God forſook you, and left you to ſink and periſh under your Burdens? I doubt not, but moſt of you have been at one time or other plunged in difficulties, difficulties out of which you could ſee no way of eſcape by the Eye of Reaſon; yea, ſuch, as it may be, ſtaggered your Faith in the Promiſe, as David's was, 1 Sam. 27. 1. when he ſaid, I ſhall one Day periſh by the Hand of Saul. All Men are Lyars, (even Samuel himſelf) and yet notwithſtanding all, we ſee him emerge out of that Sea of Trouble, and the Promiſes made good in every Tittle to him. The like doubtleſs you may obſerve in your own Caſes. Ask your own Souls the queſtion, and they will ſatisfie it. Did God abandon and caſt you off in the Day of your ſtraits? Certainly you muſt belye your one Experience, if you ſhould ſay ſo. 'Tis true, there have been ſome plunges and difficulties you have met with, wherein (1.) You could ſee no way of eſcape, but concluded you muſt periſh in them. (2.) Difficulties that have ſtaggered your Faith in the Promiſes, and made you doubt, whether the Fountain of All-ſufficiency would let out it ſelf for your relief. (3.) Yea, ſuch difficulties as have provoked you to murmuring and impatience, and thereby provoked the Lord to forſake you in your ſtraits; but yet you ſee he did not. He hath either (1.) Strengthened your back to bear, or (2.) Lightened your burden, or (3.) Opened an unexpected door of eſcape, according to that Promiſe, 1 Cor. 10. 13. ſo that the evil which you feared, came not upon you.

7. You read, that the Word of God is the only ſupport and relief to a gracious Soul in the dark Day of Affliction, Pſalm 119. 50, 92.—2 Sam. 23. 5. That for this very Purpoſe it was Written, Rom. 15. 4. No rules of moral Prudence, no ſenſual remedies can perform that for us, which the Word can do.

And is not this a ſealed Truth, atteſted by a thouſand of undeniable experiences? Hence have the Saints fetcht their Cordials, when fainting under the Rod. One Word of God can do more than ten thouſand Words of Men to relieve a diſtreſſed Soul. If Providence have at any time directed you to ſuch Promiſes, as either aſſure you that the Lord will be with you in trouble, Pſalm 91. 15. Or that encourage you from inward Peace, to bear chearfully outward burdens, John 16. 33. or ſatisfie you of Gods tenderneſs and moderation in his dealings with you, Iſa. 27. 8. Or that you ſhall reap bleſſed Fruits from them, Rom. 8. 28. Or that clear up your intereſt in God, and his Love under your Afflictions, 2 Sam. 7. 14. O what ſenſible eaſe and relief enſues! How light is your burthen, compared with what it was before!

8. The Word tells us, that there is no ſuch way to improve our Eſtates, as to lay them out with a chearful liberality for God; and that our withholding our Hands, when God and Duty calls to diſtribute, will not be for our Advantage. See Prov. 11. 25. Iſa. 32. 8. Prov. 19. 17. Prov. 11. 24.

Conſult Providence now, and you ſhall find it in all reſpects according to the Report of the Word. O how true is the Scripture Teſtimony herein! There are many thouſand Witneſſes now living, that can ſet their Seals to both Parts of this Propoſition. What Men ſave (as they count ſaving) with one Hand, Providence ſcatters by another Hand: And what they ſcatter abroad with a liberal Hand and ſingle Eye for God, is ſurely repay'd to them or theirs. Never did any Man loſe by diſtributing for God. He that lends to the poor fœneratur Domino, as ſome expound that Text, puts his Money to Intereſt to the Lord. Some have obſerved how Providence hath doubled all they have laid out for God, in Ways unexpected to them.

9. The Word aſſures us, that the beſt Expedient for a Man to ſettle his own Intereſt in the Conſciences and Affections of Men, is to direct his Ways, ſo as to pleaſe the Lord, Prov. 16. 7. and doth not Providence confirm it? This the three Jews found by Experience, Dan. 3. 28, 29. and ſo did Daniel, chap. 6. v. 20, 21, 22. This kept up John's Reputation in the Conſcience of Herod, Mark 6. 20. So it fell out, when Conſtantius made that exploratory decree; thoſe that were Conſcientious were preferred, and thoſe that changed their Religion, expelled. Never did any Man loſe at laſt by his Fidelity.

10. The written Word tells us, that the beſt expedient to inward Peace and Tranquillity of mind under puzzling and diſtracting Troubles, is to commit our ſelves and our Caſe to the Lord; ſo you read, Pſalm 37. 5, 6, 7. & Prov. 16. 3.

And as you have read in the Word, ſo you have found it in your own Experience. Oh, what a burden is off your Shoulders, when you have reſigned the Caſe to God! Then doth Providence iſſue your Affairs comfortably for you. The difficulty is ſoon over, when the Heart is brought to this.

Thus you ſee, how Scriptures are fulfilled by Providence in theſe few Inſtances I have given of it. Compare them in all other Caſes, and you ſhall find the ſame: For all the Lines of Providence lead from the Scripture, and return thither again, and do moſt viſibly begin and end there.

The Fourth Direction.

In all your Reviews and Obſervations of Providence, be ſure that you Eye God as the Author or Orderer of them all, Prov. 3. 6.

1. In all the comfortable Providences of your lives, Eye God as the Author or Donor of them. Remember he is the Father of Mercies, that begets every Mercy for you, 2 Cor. 1. 3. The God of all Comfort, without whoſe Order no Mercy or Comfort can come to your Hands. And think it not enough thus to acknowledge him in a general Way; but when you receive Mercies, take ſpecial Notice of the following Particulars.

(1.) Eye the Care of God for you, 1 Pet. 5. 7. He careth for you. Your Father knows you have need of theſe things, Matth. 6. 32. It is but to acquaint him what you want, and your wants are ſupplied, Phil. 4. 6. μὴ μεριμνᾶτε, torture not your ſelves about it: You have a Father that cares for you.

(2.) Eye the Wiſdom of God, in the Way of diſpenſing his Mercies to you, how ſuitably they are ordered to your Condition, and how ſeaſonably. When one Comfort is cut off and removed, another is raiſed up in its room. Thus Iſaac was comforted in Rebecka after his Mother's Death, Gen. 24. 67.

(3.) Eye the Free Grace of God in them, yea ſee Riches of Grace in every bequeſt of Comfort to ſo vile and unworthy Creatures as you are. See your ſelves over-topt by the leaſt of all your Mercies, Gen. 32. 10. I am not worthy of the leaſt, ſaid Jacob.

(4.) Eye the Condeſcenſion of God, to your Requeſts for thoſe Mercies, Pſalm 34. 6. This is the ſweeteſt bit in any Enjoyment, in which a Man can ſenſibly reliſh the return and anſwer of his Prayers, and greatly inflames the Souls Love to God, Pſalm 116. 1.

(5.) Eye the Deſign and End of God in all your Comforts. Know that it is not ſent to ſatisfie the cravings of your ſenſual Appetite, but to quicken and enable you for a more chearful diſcharge of your Duty, Deut. 28. 47.

(6.) Eye the Way and Method in which your Mercies are conveyed to you. They all flow to you through the Blood of Chriſt and Covenant of Grace, 1 Cor. 3. 22, 23. Mercies derive their ſweetneſs from the Channel through which they run to us.

(7.) Eye the diſtinguiſhing Goodneſs of God, in all the comfortable Enjoyments of your Lives. How many thouſand better than you, are denied thoſe Comforts? See Heb 11. 37.

(8.) Eye them all as Comforts appointed to refreſh you in your way to far better and greater Mercies than themſelves. The beſt Mercies are ſtill reſerved till laſt, and all theſe are introductive to better.

2. In all the ſad and afflictive Providences that beſal you, Eye God as the Author and Orderer of them alſo. So he repreſents himſelf to us, Jer. 18. 11. Behold, I create evil, and deviſe a device againſt you. And Amos 3. 6. Is there evil in the City, and the Lord hath not done it? More particularly,

1. Set before you the Sovereignty of God. Eye him as a Being infinitely Superiour to you, at whoſe Pleaſure, you, and all you have is, Pſalm 115. 3. which is the moſt concluſive Reaſon and Argument of Submiſſion, Pſal. 46. 10. For if we, and all we have, proceeded from his Will, how equal is it, that we be reſigned up to it? It is not many Years agone ſince we were not, and when it pleaſed him to bring us upon the Stage of Action, we had no Liberty of indenting with him, on what Terms we would come into the World; or refuſe to be, except we might have our Being on ſuch Terms as we deſired. His Sovereignty is glorioully diſplayed in his Eternal Decrees and Temporal Providences. He might have put you into what Rank of Creatures he pleaſed. He might have made you the moſt deſpicable Creatures, Worms or Toads: Or, if Men, the moſt vile, abject and miſerable among Men: And when you had run through all the Miſeries of this Life, have damned you to Eternity, made you miſerable for ever, and all this without any wrong to you. And ſhall not this quiet us under the common Afflictions of this Life?

2. Set the Grace and Goodneſs of God before you in all afflictive Providences. O ſee him paſſing by you in the cloudy and dark Day, proclaiming his Name, the Lord, the Lord merciful and gracious. There are two ſorts of Mercies that are ſeldom eclipſed by the darkeſt Affliction that beſals the Saints in their temporal Concerns, ſc. ſparing Mercy in this World, and ſaving Mercy in that to come. It is not ſo bad now as it might, and we deſerved it ſhould be, and it will be better hereafter. This the Church obſerved, and reaſoned her ſelf quiet from it, Lam. 3. 22. Hath he taken ſome? he might have taken all. Are we afflicted? It's Mercy we are not deſtroyed. Oh if we conſider what Temporal Mercies are yet ſpared, and what Spiritual Mercies are beſtowed, and yet continued to us, we ſhall find cauſe to admire Mercy, rather than complain of Severity.

3. Eye the Wiſdom of God in all your Afflictions, behold it in the choice of the kind of your Affliction, this, and not another: The Time, now and not at another ſeaſon: The Degree, in this meaſure only, and not in a greater: The Supports afforded you under it, not left altogether helpleſs: The Iſſue to which it's over-ruled, it's to your good, not ruin. Look upon all theſe, and then ask thy Heart that Queſtion God ask'd Jonah, Doſt thou well to be angry? Surely, when you conſider all, what need you had of theſe Rods, that your Corruptions will require all this, it may be much more to mortifie them; that without the periſhing of theſe things, you might have periſhed for ever; you will ſee great Reaſon to be quiet and well ſatisfied under the Hand of God.

4. Set the faithfulneſs of the Lord before you under the ſaddeſt Providences. So did David, Pſalm 119. 75. This is according to his Covenant faithfulneſs, Pſalm 89. 32. Hence it is, that the Lord will not withhold a Rod when need requires it, 1 Pet. 1. 6. Nor will he forſake his People under the Rod, when he inflicts it, 2 Cor. 4. 9.

Oh what Quietneſs will this breed! I ſee my God will not loſe my Heart, if a Rod can prevent it; he had rather hear me groan here, than howl hereafter: His Love is judicious, not Fond: He Conſults my Good, rather than my Eaſe.

5. Eye the All-ſufficiency of God in the Day of Affliction. See enough in him ſtill, whatever be gone. Here is the Fountain ſtill as full as ever, though this or that Pipe be cut off, which was wont to convey ſomewhat of it to me. O Chriſtians, can't you make up any Loſs this way? Can't you ſee more in God, than in any or all the Creature Comforts you have loſt? With what Eyes then do you look upon God?

6. Laſtly, Eye the Immutability of God. Look on him as the Rock of Ages, James 1. 17. The Father of Lights, with whom is no variableneſs, nor ſhadow of turning. Eye Jeſus Chriſt, as the ſame Yeſterday, to Day and for ever. Oh how quietly will you then behave your ſelves under the Changes of Providence? It may be, two or three Days have made a ſad change in your Condition: The Death of a dear Relation hath turned all Things unſide down: That Place is empty were lately they were, as it is, Job 7. 10. His Place ſhall know him no more: Well, but God is what he was, and where he was: Time ſhall make no change upon him, as it is in Iſa. 40. 6, 7, 8. The Graſs withereth, the flower fadeth; but the Word of the Lord abideth for ever. O how compoſing are thoſe Views of God to our Spirits under dark Providences.

The Fifth Direction.

Laſtly, Work up your Hearts to thoſe Frames, and Exerciſe thoſe Affections which the ſeveral Providences of God that are verſant about you call for, Ecclef. 7. 14. Suit your ſelves to anſwer the Deſign and End of God in all Providences. As there are various Affections planted in your Souls, ſo are there ſeveral Graces planted in thoſe Affections, and ſeveral Providences appointed to draw forth, and exerciſe theſe Graces.

1. When the Providences of God are ſad, and afflictive either upon the Church in General, or your Families and Perſons in particular, then it is ſeaſonable for you to exerciſe Godly Sorrow and Humility of Spirit: For in that Day, and by thoſe Providences God doth call to it, Iſa. 22. 12. Mich. 6. 9. Now, ſenſitive Pleaſure and natural Joy, is out of ſeaſon, Ezek. 21. 10. Should we then make mirth? If there be either, (1.) A filial Spirit in us, we cannot be light and vain, when our Father is angry; or (2.) If any real ſenſe of the evil of Sin which provokes God's Anger, we muſt be heavy hearted when God is ſmiting for it; or (3.) If any Senſe and Compaſſion for the Miſeries that Sin brings upon the World, it will make us to lay with David, Pſalm 119. 158. I beheld the Tranſ- greſſors and was grieved. 'Tis ſaid to conſider the Miſeries that they pull down upon themſelves in this World and that to come. (4.) If there be any care in us to prevent utter Ruin, and ſtop God in the Way of his Anger, we know this is the means to do it, Amos 4. 12.

How ſad and diſmal ſoever the Face of Providence be, yet ſtill maintain Spiritual Joy and Comfort in God under all. Though there be no Herd in the Stall (ſaid Habakkuk, chap. 3. 17.) yet will I rejoice in the Lord, I will Joy in the God of my Salvation.

There are two ſorts of Comforts, Natural and Senſitive, Divine and Spiritual. There is a time when it becomes Chriſtians to exerciſe both; ſo Eſth. 9. 22. And there is a Time when the former is to be ſuſpended and laid by, Pſalm 137. 2. But there is no Seaſon, wherein ſpiritual Joy and Comfort in God is unſeaſonable, as appears by thoſe Scriptures, 1 Theſſ. 5. 16. Phil. 4. 4. This ſpiritual Joy or Comfort, is nothing elſe but the cheerineſs of our Heart in God, and the Senſe of our Intereſt in him, and in his Promiſes. And it's ſure, that no Providence can render this unſeaſonable to a Chriſtian. Let us ſuppoſe the moſt afflicted and calamitous State a Chriſtian can be incident to, yet,

(1.) Why ſhould ſad Providence make him lay by his Comforts in God? When as thoſe are but for a Moment, but theſe Eternal, 2 Cor. 4. 17.

(2.) Why ſhould we lay by our Joy in God, upon the account of ſad Providences without, when at the very worſt and loweſt Ebb, the Saints have infinitely more cauſe to rejoice, than to be caſt down? There's more in one of their Mercies to Comfort them, than in all their Troubles to deject them. All your Loſſes are but as the Loſs of a farthing to a Prince, Rom. 8. 18.

(3.) Why ſhould they be ſad, as long as their God is with them in all their Troubles? As Chriſt ſaid, Matth. 9. 15. Can the Children of the Bride-Chamber be ſad, whileſt the Bridegroom is with them? So ſay I, Can the Soul be ſad, whileſt God is with it? Oh methinks, that one Promiſe, Pſalm 91. 15. I will be with him in trouble, ſhould bear you up under all Burdens. Let them be caſt down, that have no God in Trouble to turn to.

(4.) Why ſhould they be ſad, as long as no outward Diſpenſation of Providence, (be it never ſo ſad) can be interpreted as a mark or ſign of God's Hatred or Enmity, Eccl. 9. 2. 3. There is one event to the Righteous and Wicked. Indeed, if it were a Signification of the Lord's Wrath againſt a Man, it would juſtifie our Dejection; but this cannot be ſo: His Heart is full of Love, whileſt the Face of Providence is full of Frowns.

(5.) Why ſhould we be caſt down under ſad Providences, whilſt we have ſo great Security, that even by the Hands of theſe Providences God will do us good. and all theſe things ſhall turn to our Salvation? Rom. 8. 28. By theſe God is but killing your Luſts, weaning your Hearts from a vain World, preventing Temptations, and exciting your Deſires after Heaven; this is all the hurt they ſhall do you, and ſhall that ſadden us?

(6.) Why ſhould we lay by our Joy in God, whenas the change of our Condition is ſo nigh? It's but a little while, and Sorrows ſhall flee away: You ſhall never ſuffer more; God will wipe away all Tears, Rev. 7. 17. Well then, you ſee there's no Reaſon upon the account of Providence, to give up your Joy and Comfort in God. But if you will maintain it under all Providences, then be careful,

(1.) To clear up your Intereſt in, and Title to God. Faith may be ſeparated from Comfort, but Aſſurance cannot.

(2.) Mortifie your inordinate Affections to earthly Things. This makes Providences that deprive and croſs us ſo heavy. Mortifie your Opinion and Affection, and you ſenſibly lighten your Affliction. It is ſtrong Affection that makes ſtrong Affliction.

(3.) Dwell much upon the Meditation of the Lord's near approach; and then all theſe Things will ſeem but trifles to you. Let your Moderation be known unto all Men, the Lord is at hand.

3. Exerciſe heavenly Mindedneſs, and keep your Hearts upon Things Eternal, under all the Providences with which the Lord exerciſes you in this World, Gen. 6. 9. Noah walked with God, yet met with as ſad Providences in his Day, as any Man that ever lived ſince his Time. But alas! we find moſt Providences, rather ſtops, than ſteps in our walk with God. If we be under comfortable Providences, how ſenſual, wanton and worldly do our Hearts grow! And if ſad Providences befal us, how dedolent or diſtracted are we! And this comes to paſs partly through the narrowneſs, but moſtly, through the deceitfulneſs of our Spirits. Our Hearts are narrow, and know not how to manage two Buſineſſes of ſuch different Natures, as Earthly and Heavenly Matters are without Detriment to one. Pectora noſtra duas curas non admittunt. But certainly ſuch a frame of Spirit is attainable that will enable us to keep on in an even and ſteddy courſe with God, whatever befal us. Others have attained it, and why not we? Proſperous Providences are for the moſt part a dangerous State to the Soul. The Moon never ſuffers an Eclipſe, but at full; yet Jehoſaphat's Grace ſuffered no Eclipſe from the Fulneſs of his outward Condition, who had Riches in abundance, and his Heart was lifted up in the way of God's Commandments, 2 Chron. 17. 5, 6. David's Life was as full of Cares, Turmoils, and Incumbrances, as moſt Men we read of; yet how ſpiritual the temper of his Heart was, that excellent Book of Pſalms, (which was moſtly compoſed amidſt thoſe Diſtractions) will acquaint us. The Apoſtles were caſt into as great Neceſſities, and ſuffered as hard Things, as ever Men did; yet how raiſed and heavenly their Spirits were amidſt all, who ſees not? And certainly, if it were not poſſible to maintain Heavenly-mindedneſs in ſuch a ſtate and poſture of Affairs, God would never exerciſe any of his People with ſuch Providences: He would never give you ſo much of the World to loſe your Hearts in the Love of it, or ſo little to diſtract you with the Cares of it. If therefore we were more deeply ſanctified, and the tendencies of our Hearts Heaven-ward more ardent and vigorous; If we were more mortified to Earthly Things, and could but keep our due Diſtance from them; our outward Conditions would not at this rate draw forth and exerciſe our inward Corruptions, nor would we hazard the loſs of ſo ſweet an Enjoyment as our Fellowſhip with God is, for the ſake of any Concernment our Bodies have on Earth.

4. Under all Providences maintain a contented Heart with what the Lord allots you, be it more or leſs of the Things of this World. This Grace muſt run parallel with all Providences. Learn how to be full, and how to ſuffer want, and in every ſtate to be content, Phil. 4 12.

In this Duty all Men are concerned at all Times, and in every State, not only the People of God, but even the unregenerate alſo. I will therefore addreſs ſome Conſiderations proper to both. And firſt to the unregenerate, to ſtop their Mouths from repining, and charging God fooliſhly, when Providence croſſes them. Let them ſeriouſly conſider theſe four Things.

(1.) That Hell and Eternal Damnation are the Portion of their Cup, according to the Tenor of Law and Goſpel threatnings. Whatſoever therefore is ſhort of this is to be admired as the Fruit of God's ſtupendious Patience, and forbearance towards them. Ah poor Souls! Know you not, that you are Men and Women condemned to Wrath by the plain Sentence of the Law? Mark 16. 16. John 3. 36. 2 Theſſ. 1. 6, 7. And if ſo, ſure there are other Matters to exerciſe your thoughts, deſires, fears and cares about than theſe. Alas! if you cannot bear a frown of Providence, a light croſs in theſe Things, how will you bear the Everlaſting Burnings! A Man that is to loſe his Head to Morrow, is not very ſolicitous what Bed he lies on, or how his Table is furniſht the Night before.

(2.) Conſider, though you be condemned Perſons, and have no Promiſe to entitle you to any Mercy; yet there are very many Mercies in your Poſſeſſion at this Day. Be your Condition as afflictive as it will, is Life nothing? Eſpecially conſidering whither you muſt ſink, when that Thread is cut. Are the neceſſary ſupports of Life nothing? Doth not Providence Miniſter to you theſe Things, tho' you daily diſoblige it, and provoke God to ſend you to your own Place? But, above all, is the Goſpel and precious Means of Salvation nothing, by which you yet are in a Capacity of eſcaping the Damnation of Hell? O what would the damned ſay, if they were but put into your Condition once more? What! and yet fret againſt God, becauſe every thing elſe ſuits not your Deſires?

(3.) Conſider, that if ever you be reſcued out of that miſerable Condition you are in, ſuch croſs Providences, as theſe you complain of, are the moſt probable Means to do it. Alas! Proſperity and Succeſs is not the way to ſave, but deſtroy you, Prov. 1. 32 You muſt be bound in Fetters, and holden in Cords of Affliction, if ever your Ear be opened to Inſtruction, Job 36. 8, 9, 10. Wo to you, if you go on ſmoothly in the way in which you are, and meet with no Croſſes,

(4.) Laſtly, Conſider, all your Troubles under which you complain, are pulled down upon your Heads by your own Sins. You turn God's Mercies into Sin, and then fret againſt God, becauſe he turns your Sins into Sorrow. Your Ways and Doings procure theſe Things to you. Lay your Hand therefore upon your Mouth and ſay, Why doth the living Man complain, a Man for the Puniſhment of his Sin, Lam. 3. 39. But I muſt turn to the Lord's People, who have leaſt pretences of all Men to be diſſatisfied with any of God's Providences, and yet are but too frequently found in that temper. And to them I ſhall offer the following Conſiderations.

(1.) Conſider your ſpiritual Mercies and Privileges with which the Lord Jeſus hath inveſted you, and repine at your Lot of Providence if you can. One of theſe Mercies alone, hath enough in it to ſweeten all your Troubles in this World. When the Apoſtle conſidered them, his Heart was overwhelmed with Aſtoniſhment; ſo that he could not forbear in the midſt of all his outward Troubles to cry out, Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath abounded to us in all ſpiritual Bleſſings, &c. Eph. 1. 3. Oh, who that ſees ſuch an Inheritance ſetled upon him in Chriſt, can ever open his Mouth more to repine at his Lot of Providence!

(2.) Conſider your Sins, and that will make you contented with your Lot. Yea, conſider two things in Sin. (1.) What it deſerves from God, and (2.) What it requires to mortifie and purge it in you. It deſerves from God Eternal Ruin: The Merit of Hell is in the leaſt vain Thought. Every Sin forfeits all the Mercies you have; and if ſo, rather wonder your Mercies are ſo many, than that you have no more. Beſides, you cannot doubt, but your Corruptions require all the Croſſes, Wants and Troubles that are upon you, and it may be, a great deal more, to mortifie and ſubdue them. Don't you find, after all the Rods that have been upon you, a proud Heart ſtill, a vain and earthly Heart ſtill? Oh how many bitter Potions are but neceſſary to purge out this tough malignant Humour!

(3.) Conſider how near you are to the Change of your Condition: Have but a little Patience, and all will be as well with you as your Hearts can deſire. It is no ſmall Comfort to the Saints, that this World is the worſt Place that ever they ſhall be in: Things will better every Day with them. If the Traveller have ſpent all his Money, yet it doth not much trouble him, if he know himſelf within a few Miles of his own home. If there be no Candles in the Houſe, we do not much matter it, if we are ſure it's almoſt break of Day; for then there will be no uſe for them. This is your Caſe; Your Salvation is nearer than when you believed, Rom. 13. 11.

I have done with the directive Part of this Diſcourſe; but before I paſs to this fifth Head, I judge it neceſſary to leave a few Cautions to prevent the abuſe of Providence, and your Miſcarriages in your Behaviour towards it. And,

Firſt Caution.

If Providence delay the Performance of any Mercy to you, that you have long waited and prayed for; yet ſee, that you deſpond not; nor grow weary of waiting upon God for that Reaſon. It pleaſes the Lord oftentimes to try, and exerciſe his People this way, and make them cry, How long Lord, how long? Pſalm 13. 1, 2.

Theſe delaies both upon Spiritual and Temporal accounts are frequent, and when they befal us, we are too apt to interpret them as denials, and fall into a ſinful Deſpondency of Mind, though there be no cauſe at all for it, Pſalm 31. 12. Lam. 3. 8, 44. It is not always that the Returns of Prayer are diſpatch'd to us in the ſame Hour they are asked of God; yet ſometimes it falls out ſo, Iſa. 65. 24. Dan. 9. 23. But though the Lord means to perform to us the Mercies we deſire; yet he will ordinarily Exerciſe our Patience to wait for them; and that for theſe Reaſons.

(1.) Becauſe our Time is not the proper Seaſon for us to receive our Mercies in. Now the ſeaſon of Mercy is a very great Circumſtance that adds much to the value of it. God judges not as we do; we are all in haſte, and will have it now, Numb. 22. 13. But he is a God of Judgment, and bleſſed are they that wait for him, Iſa. 30. 18.

(2.) Afflictive Providences have not accompliſhed that deſign upon our Hearts they were ſent for, when we are ſo earneſt and impatient for a change of them; and till then the Rod muſt not be taken off, Iſa: 10. 12.

(3.) The more Prayers and Searchings of Heart come between our Wants and Supplies, our Afflictions and Reliefs, the ſweeter are our Reliefs and Supplies thereby made to us, Iſa. 25. 9. This is our God, we have waited for him, and he will ſave us: This is the Lord we have waited for him, we will rejoyce and be glad in his Salvation. This recompences the delay, and pays us for all the expences of our Patience.

But though there be ſuch weighty Reaſons for the ſtop and delay of refreſhing comfortable Providences; yet we cannot bear it, our hands hang down and we faint, Pſal. 69. 3. I am weary of my crying, my Throat is dry, mine Eyes fail while I wait for my God. For alas! we judge by Senſe and Appearance, and conſider not, that God's Heart may be towards us, whilſt the Hand of his Providence ſeems to be againſt us. If Things continue at one rate with us, we think our Prayers are loſt, and our Hopes periſhed from the Lord: Much more when Things grow worſe and worſe, and our Darkneſs and Trouble encreaſes, as uſually it doth juſt before the break of Day and change of our Condition, then we conclude, God is angry with our Prayers. See Gideon's Reply, Judges 6. 13. This even ſtaggered a Moſes's Faith, Exod. 5. 22, 23. O what groundleſs Jealouſies and Suſpicions of God are found at ſuch Times in the Hearts of his own Children! Job 9. 16, 17. Pſal. 77. 7, 8, 9.

But this is our great evil, and to prevent it in future Tryals, I will offer a few proper Conſiderations in the Caſe.

1. The delay of your Mercies, is really for your Advantage. You read Iſa. 30. 18. The Lord waits that he may be Gracious. What is that? Why, it's nothing elſe but the Time of his Preparation of Mercies for you, and your Hearts for Mercy, that ſo you may have it with the greateſt Advantage of Comfort. The fooliſh Child would pluck the Apple while it's green; but when it's Ripe, it drops of its own accord, and is more pleaſant and wholſome.

2. It's a greater Mercy, to have an Heart willing to refer all to God, and be at his diſpoſe; than to enjoy preſently the Mercy we are moſt eager and impatient for. In that God pleaſes you, in this you pleaſe God. A Mercy may be given you as the Fruit of common Providence; but ſuch a Temper of Heart is the Fruit of ſpecial Grace. So much as the Glorifying of God is better than the Content and Pleaſure of the Creature, ſo much is ſuch a Frame better, than ſuch a Fruition.

3. Expected Mercies are never nearer, than when the Hearts and Hopes of God's People are loweſt. Thus in their Deliverance out of Egypt, and Babylon, Ezek. 37. 11. So we have found it in our own perſonal concerns: At Evening Time it ſhall be Light, Zach. 14. 7. When we look for encreaſing Darkneſs, Light ariſes.

4. Our unfitneſs for Mercy, is the reaſon why they are delayed ſo long. We put the blocks into the Way of Mercy, and then Repine, that they make no more haſt to us, Iſa. 59. 1, 2. The Lord's hand is not ſhortned, but our Iniquities have ſeparated betwixt him and us.

5. Conſider, the Mercies you wait for, are the Fruits of pure Grace, you deſerve them not, nor can claim them upon any Title of deſert; and therefore have Reaſon to wait for them in a patient and thankful Frame.

6. Conſider, how many Millions of Men as good as you by Nature, are cut off from all Hope and Expectation of Mercy for ever, and there remains to them nothing but a fearful Expectation of Wrath. This might have been your Caſe; and therefore be not of an impatient Spirit under the Expectations of Mercy.

Second Caution.

Pry not too curiouſly into the Secrets of Providence, nor ſuffer your ſhallow Reaſon arrogantly to judge and cenſure its Deſigns.

There be hard Texts in the Works, as well as in the Word of God. It becomes us modeſtly and humbly to Reverence, but not to Dogmatize too bold and poſitively upon them: A Man may eaſily get a Strain by over-reaching. When I thought to know this (ſaith Aſaph) it was too wonderful for me. I thought to know this, there was the arrogant attempt of Reaſon, there he pry'd into the Arcana of Providence; but it was too wonderful for me, it was labor inutilis, as Calvin expounds it. He pry'd ſo far into that puzzling Myſtery of the Afflictions of the Righteous, and Proſperity of the Wicked, till it begat Envy towards them, and deſpondency in himſelf, Pſalm 73. 3, 13. And this was all he got by ſummoning Providence to the Bar of Reaſon. Holy Job was guilty of this Evil, and ingenuouſly aſhamed of it, Job 42. 3.

I know, there is nothing in the Word or in the Works of God, that is repugnant to ſound Reaſon: But there are ſome things in both, which are oppoſite to carnal Reaſon; as well as above right Reaſon; and therefore our Reaſon never ſhews it ſelf more unreaſonable, than in ſummoning thoſe things to its Bar, which tranſcend its Sphere and Capacity. Manifold are the miſchiefs which enſue upon this Practice.

1. By this we are drawn into an unworthy ſuſpicion and diſtruſt of the Faithfulneſs of God in the Promiſes. Sarah laught at the Tydings of the Son of Promiſe, becauſe Reaſon contradicted, and told her, it was naturally impoſſible, Gen. 18. 13, 14.

2. Hence comes deſpondency of Mind, and faintneſs of Heart under afflictive Providences; Reaſon can diſcern no good Fruits in them, nor Deliverance from them, and ſo our Hands hang down in a ſinful Diſcouragement, ſaying, all theſe Things are againſt us 1 Sam. 27. 1.

3. Hence flow Temptations to deliver our ſelves by indirect and ſinful Mediums, Iſa. 30. 15, 16. When our own Reaſon fills us with a diſtruſt of Providence, it naturally prompts us to ſinful ſhifts, and there leave us entangled in the ſnares of our own making.

Beware therefore you lean not too much to your own reaſons and underſtandings. Nothing is more plauſible, nothing more dangerous. In other matters it is appointed the Arbiter and Judge, we make it ſo here, and therefore we are ſo diffident and diſtruſtful notwithſtanding the fulleſt Security of the promiſes, whilſt our Reaſon ſtands by unſatisfied.

The Fifth Head.

Having given Direction for the due Management of this great and important Duty, what remains, but that we now ſet our Hearts to it, and make it the conſtant Work of every Day throughout our Lives? O what Peace, what pleaſure, what ſtability, what holy Courage and Confidence would reſult from ſuch an Obſervation of Providence as hath been directed to! But alas! we may ſay with Reference to the Voices of Divine Providence, as it is Job 33. 14. God ſpeaketh once, yea twice, yet Man perceiveth it not. Many a time Providence hath ſpoken Inſtruction in Duty, Conviction for iniquity, Encouragement under Deſpondency; but we regard it not. How greatly are we all wanting to our Duty, and Comfort by this neglect! It will be but needful therefore to ſpread before you, the lovelineſs and excellency of walking with God in a due and daily Obſervation of his Providences, that our Souls may be fully engaged to it.

Firſt Motive.

And firſt, let me offer this, as a moving Argument to all Gracious Souls; That by this means you may maintain ſweet and ſenſible Communion with God from day to day. And what is there deſirable in this World, in compariſon therewith! Thou Lord haſt made me glad through thy Works: I will triumph in the Works of thy Hands, Pſal. 92. 4 Your Hearts may be as ſweetly and ſenſibly refreſht by the Works of Gods Hands, as by the Words of his Mouth. Pſal. 104. per totum, is ſpent in the Conſideration of the Works of Providence, which ſo filled the Pſalmiſt's Heart, that, by Way of Ejaculation, he expreſſes the Effect of it, Ver. 34. My Meditation of him ſhall be ſweet.

Communion with God properly and ſtrictly taken, conſiſts in two things; viz. Gods Manifeſtation of himſelf to the Soul, and the Souls anſwerable returns to God. This is that κοινωνία, Fellowſhip, we have here with God. Now God manifeſts himſelf to his People by Providences as well as Ordinances; neither is there any Grace in a ſanctified Soul hid from the gracious Influences of his Providential Manifeſtations. Sometimes the Lord manifeſts his Diſpleaſure and Anger againſt the Sins of his People in correcting and rebuking Providences. His Rods have a chiding Voice, Micah 6. 9. Hear the Rod and who hath appointed it. This diſcovery of Gods Anger kindly melts and thaws a gracious Soul, and produces a double ſweet Effect upon it, namely, Repentance for Sins paſt, and due Caution againſt future Sins. (1.) It thaws and melts the Hearts for Sins committed. Thus David's Heart was melted for his Sin, when the Hand of God was heavy upon him in Affliction, Pſal. 32. 4, 5. Thus the Captive Church, upon whom fell the ſaddeſt and moſt diſmal Providence that ever befel any of God's People in any Age of the World; ſee how their Hearts are broken for Sin under this ſevere Rebuke, Lam. 2. 17, 18, 19. And then, (2.) For Caution againſt Sin for the time to come; it's plain, that the Rebukes of Providence leave that Effect alſo upon gracious Hearts, Ezra 9. 13, 14. Pſalm 85. 8.

Sometimes he Cheers and Comforts the Hearts of his People with ſmiling and reviving Providences, both Publick and Perſonal. There are Times of lifting up as well as caſting down by the Hand of Providence. The Scene Changes, the Aſpects of Providence are very chearful and encouraging: Their Winter ſeems to be over: They put off their Garments of Mourning; and then, ah, what ſweet returns are made to Heaven by gracious Souls! Doth God lift them up by Proſperity? They alſo will lift up their God by Praiſes See Pſal. 18. Title, and v. 1, 2, 3. So Moſes, and the People with him, Exod. 15. when God had delivered them from Pharaoh, how do they exalt him in a Song of Thankſgiving, which for the elegancy and ſpirituality of it, is made an Emblem of the Doxologies given to God in Glory by the Saints! Rev. 15. 3.

Upon the whole, whatever Effects our Communion with God in any of his Ordinances doth uſe to produce upon our Hearts, the ſame we may obſerve to follow our converſing with him in his Providences. For,

1. It is uſually found in the Experience of all the Saints, that in what Ordinance or Duty ſoever they have any ſenſible Communion with God, it naturally produces in their Spirits a deep Abaſement and Humiliation from the Senſe of Divine Condeſcentions to ſuch vile poor Worms as we are. Thus Abraham, Gen. 18. 27. I am but Duſt and Aſhes. The ſame effect follows our converſe with God in his Providences. Thus when God had in the way of his Providence proſpered Jacob, how doth he lay himſelf at the Feet of God, as a Man overwhelmed with the Senſe of Mercy! See Gen. 32. 5. 10. And Jacob ſaid, I am not worthy of the leaſt of all thy Mercies, and of all the Truth which thou haſt ſhewed thy Servant; for with my Staff I paſſed over this Jordan, and now am become two Bands. Thus alſo it was with David, 2 Sam. 7. 18. Who am I, and what is my Father's Houſe, that thou haſt brought me hitherto! And I doubt not, but ſome of you have found the like Frame of Heart upon you that theſe Holy Men here expreſſed. Can you not remember when God lifted you up by Providence, how you caſt down your ſelves before him, and have been viler in your own Eyes than ever! Why, thus do all gracious Hearts; What am I, that the Lord ſhould do thus and thus for me! O that ever ſo great and Holy a God ſhould thus be concerned for ſo vile and ſinful a Worm!

(2.) Doth Communion with God in Ordinances, melt the Heart into Love to God? Cant. 2. 3, 4, 5. Why, ſo doth the Obſervation of his Providences alſo. Never did any Man Converſe with God's Works of Providence aright, but found his Heart at ſometimes melted into Love to the God of his Mercies, Pſalm 18. 1. compared with the Title. When God had delivered him from the Hand of Saul, and all his Enemies, he ſaid, I will love thee, O Lord, my Strength. Every Man Loves the Mercies of God, but a Saint Loves the God of his Mercies. The Mercies of God, as they are the fewel of a wicked Man's Luſts, ſo they are fewel to maintain a good Man's Love to God; not that their Love to God is grounded upon theſe external Benefits. Not thine, but thee, O Lord, is the Motto of a Gracious Soul; but yet theſe Things ſerve to blow up the flame of Love to God in their Hearts, and they find it ſo.

4. Doth Communion with God ſet the keeneſt Edge upon the Soul againſt Sin? You ſee it doth: And have a pregnant Inſtance of it in Moſes when he had been with God in the Mount for Forty Days, and had there enjoyed Communion with him; when he came down and ſaw the Calf the People had made; ſee what an Holy Paroxyſm of Zeal and Anger it caſt his Soul into, Exod. 32. 19, 20. Why, the ſame Effect you may diſcern to follow the Saints Converſe with God in his Providences. What was that which pierced the Heart of David with ſuch a deep Senſe of the Evil of his Sin, which is ſo abundantly manifeſted in Pſalm 51. throughout? Why, if you look into the Title you ſhall find, it was the Effect of what Nathan had laid before him: And if you Conſult 2 Sam. 12. 7, 8, 9, 10. you ſhall find, it was the Goodneſs of God manifeſted to him in the ſeveral endearing Providences of his Life, which in this he had ſo evilly requited the Lord for, that broke his Heart to pieces in the Senſe of it: And I doubt not, but ſome of us have ſometimes found the like Effects, by comparing God's Ways and our own together.

4. Doth Communion with the Lord enlarge the Heart for Obedience and Service? Surely it is as Oyl to the Wheels, that makes them run on freely and nimbly their Courſe. Thus when Iſaiah had obtained a ſpecial Manifeſtation of God, and the Lord askt, Whom ſhall I ſend? He preſents a ready Soul for the Employment. Iſa. 6. 8. Here am I, Lord, ſend me. Why, the very ſame Effect follows ſanctified Providences, as you may ſee in Jehoſaphat, 2 Chron. 17. 5, 6. And in David, Pſalm 116. 12. O when a Soul conſiders what God hath done for him, he cannot chuſe but ſay, What ſhall I return? How ſhall I Anſwer theſe Engagements?

And thus you ſee, what ſweet Communion a Soul may have with God in the way of his Providences. O that you would thus walk with him! How much of Heaven might be found on Earth this way! And certainly, it will never repent the Lord he hath done you good, when his Mercies produce ſuch Effects upon your Hearts: He will ſay of every favour thus improved, it was well beſtowed, and will rejoice over you to do you good for ever.

Second Motive.

A great Part of the Pleaſure and Delight of the Chriſtian Life is made out of the Obſervations of Providence. It is ſaid, Pſalm 111. 2. The Works of the Lord are great, ſought out of all them that have Pleaſure therein: (i.e.) the Study of Providence is ſo ſweet and pleaſant, that it invites and allures the Soul to ſearch and dive into it. How pleaſant is it to a well-tempered Soul to behold and obſerve,

(1.) The ſweet harmony and conſent of Divine Attributes in the iſſues of Providence! They may ſeem ſometimes to jarr and claſh, to part with each other, and go contrary Ways: But they only ſeem ſo to do; for in the winding up, they always meet and embrace each other, Pſal. 85. 10. Mercy and Truth have met together: Righteouſneſs and Peace have kiſſed each other. It is ſpoken with an immediate Reference to that ſignal Providence of Iſrael's Deliverance out of the Babyloniſh Captivity, and the ſweet Effects thereof: Wherein the Truth and Righteouſneſs of God in the Promiſes, did as it were kiſs and embrace the Mercy and Peace that was contained in the Performance of them, after they had ſeemed for ſeventy Years to be at a great diſtance from each other. For it is an alluſion to the uſual Demonſtrations of Joy and Gladneſs, that two dear Friends are wont to give and receive, after a long Abſence and Separation from each other: They no ſooner meet, but they ſmile, embrace and kiſs each other. Even thus it is here. The Word נפגשו may be, (and by ſome is) rendered, have met us, and that alſo is true; for whenever theſe bleſſed Promiſes and Performances meet and kiſs each other, they are alſo joyfully embraced and kiſſed by believing Souls. There is, I doubt not, a mediate Reference of this Scripture to the Meſſiah alſo, and our Redemption by him: In him it is that theſe Divine Attributes which before ſeemed to claſh and contradict one another in the buſineſs of our Salvation, have a ſweet Agreement and Accompliſhment. Truth and Righteouſneſs do in him meet with Mercy and Peace in a bleſſed agreement. What a lovely ſight is this! and how pleaſant to behold! O if with Habbakuk, chap. 2. v. 3. we would but ſtand upon our Watch-Tower to take due obſervations of Providence; what rare Proſpects might we have! Luther underſtands it of the Word of God, q.d. I will look into the Word, and obſerve there how God accompliſheth all things, and brings them to paſs, and how his works are the fulfilling of his Word. Others (as Calvin) underſtand it of Man's own retiring thoughts and Meditations, wherein a Man carefully obſerves what purpoſes and deſigns God hath upon the World in general, or upon himſelf in particular, and how the Truth and Righteouſneſs of God in the Word work themſelves through all difficulties and impediments, and meet in the mercy, peace and happineſs of the Saints at laſt. Every Believer (take it in which ſenſe you will,) hath his Watch Tower as well as Habakkuk: And give me leave to ſay, it's an Angelical employment to ſtand upon it, and behold the conſent of God's Attributes, the accompliſhment of his Ends, and our own happineſs in the work of Providence. For this is the very joy of the Angels and Saints in Heaven, to ſee God's Ends wrought out, and his Attributes glorified in the mercy and peace of the Church, Rev. 14. 1, 2, 3. & 8.

(2.) And as it's a pleaſant ſight to ſee the harmony of Gods Attributes, ſo it is exceeding pleaſant to behold the reſurrection of our own prayers and hopes as from the dead. Why, this you may often ſee, if you will duly obſerve the works of Providence towards you. We hope and pray for ſuch and ſuch mercies to the Church, or to our ſelves? but God delaies the accompliſhment of our hopes, ſuſpends the anſwer of our prayers, and ſeems to ſpeaks to us, as Hab. 2. 3. For the viſion is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it ſhall ſpeak and not lye: though it tarry, wait for it, becauſe it will ſurely come, it will not tarry: but we have no patience to wait the time of the Promiſe, our hopes languiſh and die in the interim; and we ſay with the deſpondent Church, Lam. 3. 18. Our hope is periſhed from the Lord; but Oh, how ſweet and comfortable is it to ſee theſe prayers fulfilled, after we have given up all expectation of them! May we not ſay of them, as the Scripture ſpeaks of the reſtoration of the Jews, it is even life from the dead. This was David's caſe, Pſal. 31. 22. he gave up his hopes and prayers for loſt, yet lived to ſee the comfortable and unexpected returns of them. And this was the caſe of Job, chap. 6. 11. he had given up all expectation of better days, and yet this Man lived to ſee a reſurrection of all his loſt comforts with an advantage. Think how that change and unexpected turn of Providence affected his Soul: it is with our hopes and prayers as with our Alms, Caſt thy bread on the waters, for thou ſhalt find it after many days, Eccleſ. 11. 1. or as it was with Jacob, who had given over all hopes of ever ſeeing his beloved Joſeph again, but when a ſtrange and unexpected Providence had reſtored that hopeleſs mercy to him again, Oh how raviſhing and tranſporting was it? Gen. 46. 29, 30.

(3.) What a tranſporting pleaſure is it, to behold great bleſſings and advantages to us wrought by Providence, out of thoſe very things that ſeemed to threaten our ruine or miſery? and yet by due obſerving the ways of Providence, you may to your ſingular comfort find it ſo. Little did Joſeph think his tranſportation into Egypt, had been in order to his advancement there; yet he lived with joy to ſee it, and with a thankful heart to acknowledge it, Gen. 45. 5. Wait and obſerve, and you ſhall aſſuredly find that Promiſe, Rom. 8. 28. working out its way through all Providences. How many times have you been made to ſay as David, Pſal. 119. 71. It is good for me that I have been afflicted. O what a difference have we ſeen betwixt our Afflictions at our firſt meeting with them, and our parting from them! We have entertained them with Sighs and Tears, but parted from them with Joy, bleſſing God for them, as the happy Inſtruments of our good. Thus our fears and ſorrows are turned into praiſes and ſongs of thankſgiving.

(4.) What unſpeakable comfort is it for a poor ſoul, that ſees nothing but ſin and vileneſs in it ſelf, at the ſame time to ſee what an high eſteem and value the great God hath for him! This may be diſcerned by a due attendance to Providence, for there a man ſees goodneſs and mercy following him through all his days, as it is Pſal. 23. 6. Other men proſecute good, and it flies from them, they can never overtake it; but goodneſs and mercy follow the people of God, and they cannot avoid or eſcape it: it gives them chaſe day by day, and finds them out; even when they ſometimes put themſelves by ſin out of the way of it. In all the Providences that befal them, goodneſs and mercy purſues them. O with what a melting heart do they ſometimes reflect upon theſe things! and will not the goodneſs of God be diſcouraged from following me, notwithſtanding all my vile affronts and abuſes of it in former mercies? Lord, what am I, that mercy ſhould thus purſue me, when vengeance and wrath purſue others as good by nature as I am? It certainly argues the great eſteem God hath of a man, when he thus follows him with ſanctified Providences (whether they be comforts or croſſes) for his good. And ſo much is plain, from Job 7. 18. Lord what is man, that thou ſhouldſt viſit him every morning, and try him every moment? Certainly, God's people are his treaſure, and by this it appears that they are ſo, that he withdraws not his eye from them, Job 36. 7. I ſay not, that God's Favour and reſpect to a man, may be concluded ſingly from his Providences; but ſanctified Providences may very much clear it to us: and when it doth ſo, it cannot but be matter of exceeding great joy.

(5.) To conclude, What is there in all this World, that can give a ſoul ſuch joy and comfort, as to find himſelf by every thing ſet on and farthered in his way to Heaven! And yet this may be diſcerned, by an heedful attendance to the effects and iſſues of Providences.

How croſs ſoever the Winds and Tides of Providence at any time ſeem to us, yet nothing is more certain, than that they all conſpire to haſten ſanctified ſouls to God, and fit them for glory.

S. Paul knew, that both his bonds, and the afflictions added to them ſhould turn to, or (as the word ἀποβήσεται imports) finally iſſue in his ſalvation, Phil. 1. 19. Not that in themſelves they ſerve to any ſuch purpoſe; but as they are over-ruled and determined to ſuch an end, through Prayer, and the ſupply of the Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt. When Prayer the external, and the Spirit the internal means are joined with them; then afflictions themſelves become excellent means to promote ſalvation. And have we not with joy obſerved, how thoſe very things, that ſenſe and reaſon tell us are oppoſite to our happineſs, have been the moſt bleſſed Inſtruments to promote it? How hath God bleſſed croſſes to mortifie corruption, wants to kill our wantonneſs, diſappointments to wean us from the world! O we little think how comfortable thoſe things will be in the review, which are ſo burdenſome to preſent ſenſe!

The Third Motive.

In the next place, I beſeech you conſider, What an effectual means the due obſervation of Providence will be to over-power and ſuppreſs the natural Atheiſm that is in your hearts.

There is a natural ſeed of Atheiſm in the beſt hearts, and this is very much nouriſhed, by paſſing a raſh and falſe judgement upon the works of Providence. When we ſee wicked ones to proſper in the world, and godly men cruſhed and deſtroyed in the way of righteouſneſs and integrity; it may tempt us to think, there is no Advantage by Religion, and all our Self-denial and Holineſs, to be little better than loſt Labour. Thus ſtood the Caſe with good Aſaph, Pſal. 73. 12, 13. Behold, theſe are the ungodly that proſper in the world, they increaſe in riches: And what doth the fleſh infer from thence? Why no leſs than the unprofitableneſs of the Ways of Holineſs, Verily I have cleanſed my heart in vain, and waſhed my hands in innocency. This irreligious Inference carnal Reaſon was ready to draw from the diſpenſations of outward Proſperity to wicked men; but now if we would heedfully obſerve, either the ſignal retributions of Providence to many of them in this world, or to all of them in the World to come; O what a full Confirmation is this to our Faith? Pſal. 9. 16. The Lord is known by the Judgments that he executeth. The fifty eighth Pſalm contains the Characters of the moſt prodigious Sinners, whoſe Wickedneſs is aggravated,

By the deliberation with which it's committed, V. 2.
By their habit and cuſtom in it, V. 3.
By their incorrigibleneſs and perſiſtance in it, V. 4, 5.
And the Providence of God is there invited
To deſtroy their power, V. 6. and that either.
By a gradual and inſenſible conſumption of them, V. 7. 8 or,
By a ſuddain and unexpected ſtroke, V. 9.
And what ſhall the effects of ſuch Providences be to the Righteous? Why, it ſhall be matter of joy, V. 10. And great confirmation to their Faith in God, V. 11. Verily there is a God that judgeth in the earth.

And on the contrary, how convincingly clear are thoſe Providences, that demonſtrate the Being, Wiſdom, Power, Love and Faithfulneſs of God, in the ſupporting, preſerving and delivering of the Righteous, in all their dangers fears and difficulties? In theſe things the Lord ſhews himſelf, to his people, Pſal. 94. 1. Yea, he ſhews himſelf to ſpiritual eyes in the Providences, as clearly, as the Sun manifeſts himſelf by his own beams of light, Hab. 3. 3, 4. His brightneſs was as the light, and he had horns coming out of his hands, and there was the hiding of his power. It's ſpoken of the Lords going forth for his people in their deliverance from their Enemies: And then he had horns or raies and beams of power and mercy coming out of his hands; by his hands, are meant his Providential Adminiſtrations and Diſpenſations, and the horns that came out of them, are nothing elſe but the glorious diſplay of his Attributes in thoſe Providences. How did God make himſelf known to his people in that ſignal deliverance of them out of Egypt? See Exod. 6. 3. then he was known to them by his Name Jehovah, in giving being by his Providences to the Mercies promiſed.

Thus when Chriſt ſhall give his people the laſt and greateſt deliverance from Antichriſt, he ſhall ſhew himſelf to his people in a veſture dipt in blood, and his Name ſhall be called, The Word of God, Rev. 19. 13. His Name was the Word of God before; but then he was the Word revealing and diſcovering the promiſes and truths of God; now accompliſhing and fulfilling them. That his Name is near, his wonderful works declare, Pſal. 75. 1.

But more particularly, let us bring it home to our own experience. It may be, we find our ſelves ſometimes aſſaulted with Atheiſtical Thoughts: We are tempted to think God hath left all Things below to the courſe and ſway of Nature, that our prayers reach him not, as it is Lam. 3. 44. that he regards not what Evils befall us. But, tell me, Saints, have you not enough at hand to ſtop the mouths of all ſuch temptations? O do but reflect upon your own Experiences, and ſolemnly ask your own hearts.

(1.) Have you never ſeen the All-ſufficient God in the proviſions he hath made for you and yours, throughout all the way that you have gone? Who was it that ſupplied to you whatever was needful in all your Straits? Was it not the Lord? 'Tis he that hath given bread to them that fear him, and hath been ever mindful of his Covenant, Pſal. 111. 5. O do but conſider the conſtancy, ſeaſonableneſs, and at ſometimes the extraordinarineſs of theſe proviſions, and how they have been given in upon prayer, and ſhut your eyes if you can, againſt the convincing Evidence of that great Truth, Job 36. 7. He withdraweth not his Eye from the Righteous.

(2.) Have you not plainly diſcerned the care of God in your Preſervations from ſo many and great dangers as you have eſcaped and been carried through hitherto? how is it, that you have over-lived ſo many mortal dangers, ſickneſſes, accidents, deſigns of Enemies to ruin you? It is I preſume, beyond queſtion with you, that the very finger of God hath been in theſe things, and that it is by his care alone, you have been preſerved. When God had ſo ſignally delivered David from a dangerous Diſeaſe and the plots of Enemies againſt him, by this (ſaith he) I know thou favoureſt me, becauſe mine enemy doth not triumph over me, Pſal. 41. 11. he gathered from thoſe gracious protections, the care God had over him.

(3.) Have you not plainly diſcerned the hand of God, in the returns and accompliſhments of your Prayers? Nothing can be more evident than this, to Men of Obſervation, Pſal. 34. 4, 5, 6. I ſought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears. They looked unto him and were lightned, and their faces were not aſhamed. This poor man cryed, and the Lord heard him, and ſaved him out of all his troubles. Parallel to this, runs the experience of thouſands and ten thouſands of Chriſtians this day; they know they have the Petitions they asked of him. The Mercy carries the very impreſs and ſtamp of the Duty upon it. So that we can ſay, This is the Mercy, the very Mercy I have ſo often ſought God about. O how ſatisfying, and convincing are theſe things!

(4.) Have you not evidently diſcerned the Lords hand, in the guiding and directing of your Paths, to your unforeſeen Advantage? Things that you never projected for your ſelves, have been brought about beyond all your Thoughts. Many ſuch Things are with God; and which of all the Saints hath not found that word, Jer. 10. 23. verified by clear and undeniable experience? The way of Man is not in himſelf. I preſume, if you will but look over the Mercies you poſſeſs this day, you will find three to one, it may be ten to one thus wrought by the Lord for you. And how ſatisfying beyond all Arguments in the World are theſe experiences, That there is a God to whom his people are exceeding dear, a God that performeth all things for them!

(5.) Is it not fully convictive, that there is a God who takes care of you, in as much as you have found in all the temptations and difficulties of your Lives his Promiſes ſtill fulfilled, and faithfully performed in all thoſe conditions? I appeal to your ſelves, if you have not ſeen that Promiſe made good, Pſal. 91. 15. I will be with him in trouble; and that 1 Cor. 10. 13. God is faithful, who will not ſuffer you to be tempted above that you are able; but will with the temptation alſo make a way to eſcape, that ye may be able to bear it. Have not theſe been as clearly made out by Providence before your eyes, as the Sun at Noon-day? What room then is left for Atheiſtical ſuggeſtions in your Breaſts?

The Fourth Motive.

Diligenter perpendamus res præteritas, tum præſentes; ut ad futura parati, & accincti ſimus: fides argumentare ſolet à præterito, ad præſens; & ab utroque ad futurum. Alſted.

The Recording and Recognizing of the Performances of Providence, will be a ſingular ſupport to Faith in future exigencies. This excellent Uſe of it lies full in the very eye of the Text. There never befell David in all his Troubles, a greater ſtrait and diſtreſs than this; and doubtleſs his Faith had ſtaggered, had not the conſiderations of former Providence come in to its relief. From this Topick Faith argues, and that very ſtrongly and concluſively. So did David's Faith in many exigencies: when he was to encounter the Champion of the Philiſtins, it was from former Providence that he encouraged himſelf, 1 Sam. 17. 37. And the Apoſtle Paul improves his experiences to the ſame purpoſe, 2 Cor. 1. 9, 10. Indeed the whole Scripture is full of it: What Chriſtian underſtands not the exceeding uſefulneſs of thoſe experiences he hath had to relieve and enliven? But I ſhall not ſatisfie my ſelf with the common Aſſertion, than which nothing is more trite in the lips of profeſſors; but will labour to ſhew you, wherein the great uſefulneſs of our recorded Experiences, for encouraging Faith labouring under difficulties, conſiſts. To this purpoſe, I ſhall deſire the Reader to ponder ſeriouſly theſe following Particulars,

1. How much advantage thoſe things have upon our Souls, which we have already felt and taſted, beyond thoſe which were never reliſhed by any former experience? What is Experience, but the bringing down of the Objects of Faith to the dijudication and teſt of ſpiritual Senſe? Now when any thing hath been once taſted, felt and judged by former experience, it is much more eaſily believed and received when it concurs again. It's much eaſier for Faith to travel in a path that is well known to it, having formerly trod it, than to beat out a new one which is never trod, nor can ſee one ſtep before it. Hence it is, though there be a difficulty in all the Acts of Faith, yet ſcarce in any like the firſt Adventure it makes upon Chriſt; and the Reaſon lies here, becauſe in the ſubſequent Acts it hath all its former experiences to aid and encourage it; but in the firſt adventure it hath none at all of its own, it takes a path which it never knew before.

To truſt God without any trial or experience, is a more noble act of Faith; but to truſt him after we have often try'd him, is known to be more eaſie. O 'tis no ſmall advantage to a Soul in a new plunge and diſtreſs, to be able to ſay, This is not the firſt time I have been in theſe deeps, and yet emerged out of them: Hence it was, that Chriſt rub'd up his Diſciples Memories with what Providence had formerly wrought for them in a day of ſtraits, Matth. 16. 8, 9, 10, 11. O ye of little Faith, why reaſon ye among your ſelves, becauſe ye have brought no bread? Do ye not yet underſtand, neither remember? q. d. Were ye never under any ſtrait for Bread before now? Is this the firſt difficulty that ever your Faith combated with? No, no, you have felt ſtraits, and experienced the power and care of God in ſupplying them, before now; and therefore I cannot but call you men of little faith; for a very ordinary and ſmall meaſure of Faith, aſſiſted with ſo much experience as you have had, would enable you to truſt God. There is as much difference betwixt believing before, and after experience, as there is betwixt ſwiming with Bladders, and our firſt venture into the deep Waters without them.

What a ſingular encouragement to Faith do former Experiences yield it, by anſwering all the Pleas and Objections of Unbelief drawn from the Object of Faith? Now there be two things that Unbelief ſtumbles at in God: One is his Power, the other his Willingneſs to help.

(1.) Unbelief objects the impoſſibility of relief in deep diſtreſſes, Pſal. 78. 19. Can God furniſh a Table in the Wilderneſs? Can he give bread alſo? Can he provide fleſh for his people? O vile and unworthy Thoughts of God! proceeding from our meaſuring the immenſe and boundleſs power of God, by our own line and meaſure: Becauſe we ſee not which way relief ſhould come, we conclude, none is to be expected. But all theſe reaſonings of Unbelief are vanquiſh'd by a ſerious reflection upon our own Experiences: God hath helped, therefore he can, Iſa. 59. 1. His hand is not ſhortned: i. e. he hath as much power and ability as formerly.

(2.) Unbelief objects againſt the Will of God, and queſtions, whether he will now be gracious, though he hath formerly been ſo. But after ſo many experiences of his readineſs to help, what room for doubting remains? Thus Paul reaſoned from the experience of what he had done, to what he could do, 2 Cor. 1. 10. and ſo did David, 1 Sam. 17. 36. Indeed if a man had never experienced the Goodneſs of God to him, it were not ſo heinous a ſin to queſtion his willingneſs to do him good? But what place is left after ſuch frequent trials?

2. It gives great encouragement to Faith, as it anſwers the Objections of Unbelief drawn from the ſubject. Now theſe Objections are of two ſorts alſo.

(1.) Such as are drawn from our great unworthineſs. How (ſaith Unbelief) can ſo ſinful and vile a Creature expect, that ever God ſhould do this or that for me? 'Tis true, we find he did great Things for Abraham, Iſaac, Jacob, Moſes, &c. but theſe were Men of eminent Holineſs, Men that obeyed God, and denied themſelves for him, and lived more in a Day to his Glory, than ever I did all my Days.

Well, but what ſignifies all this to a Soul, that under all its ſenſible Vileneſs and Unworthineſs hath taſted the Goodneſs of God as well as they? As unworthy as I am, God hath been good to me notwithſtanding: his mercy appeared firſt to me, when I was worſe than I am now, both in condition and diſpoſition; and therefore I will ſtill expect the continuance of his Goodneſs to me, though I deſerve it not. If when we were Enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, how much more being reconciled, we ſhall be ſaved by his Life? Rom. 5. 10.

(2.) Such as are drawn from the Extremity of our preſent Condition; if Troubles or Dangers grow to an height, and we ſee nothing but Ruin and Miſery in the Eye of Reaſon before us; now Unbelief becomes importune and troubleſome to the Soul: Now where are thy Prayers, thy Hopes, yea, where is now thy God?

But all this is eaſily put by and avoided, by conſulting our Experiences in former Caſes. This is not the firſt time I have been in theſe Straits, nor the firſt time I have had the ſame Doubts and Deſpondencies; and yet, God hath carried me through all, Pſal. 77. 7, 8, 9, &c. This is it that ſuffers not a Chriſtian to unravel all his Hopes in an Hour of Temptation. O how uſeful are theſe Things to the People of God!

The Fifth Motive.

The Recognition of former Providences will miniſter to your Souls continual matter of Praiſe and Thankſgiving, which is the very Employment of the Angels in Heaven, and the ſweeteſt part of our Lives on Earth.

See Pſal. 61. 7, 8. If God will prepare Mercy and Truth for David, he will prepare Praiſes for his God, and that daily. So Pſal. 71. 6. By thee have I been holden up from the womb, thou art he that took me out of my Mother's bowels; (there Mercies from the beginning are recognized.) My praiſe ſhall be continually of thee: there the natural Reſult of thoſe Recognitions is expreſſed.

There be five Things belonging to the Praiſe of God, and all of them have relation to his Providences exerciſed about us.

(1.) A careful Obſervation of the Mercies we receive from him, Iſa. 41. 17, 18, 19, 20. This is fundamental to all praiſe: God cannot be glorified for the Mercies we never noted.

(2.) A faithful Remembrance of the favours received, Pſal. 103. 2. Bleſs the Lord, O my ſoul, and forget not all his Benefits. Hence the Lord brands the Ingratitude of his people, Pſal. 106. 13. They ſoon forgat his Works.

(3.) A due Appreciation and Valuation of every Providence that doth us good, 1 Sam. 12. 24. That Providence that fed them in the Wilderneſs with Manna, was the moſt remarkable Providence to them; but they not valuing it at its Worth, God had not that praiſe for it which he expected, Numb. 11. 6.

(4.) The Excitation of all the faculties and powers of the Soul in the acknowledgement of theſe Mercies to us. Thus David, Pſal. 103. 1. Bleſs the Lord, O my ſoul, and all that is within me bleſs his holy name. Soul-praiſe is the very Soul of Praiſe: This is the fat and marrow of that Thank-offering.

(5.) A ſuitable Retribution for the Mercies received. This David was careful about, Pſal. 116. 1. And the Lord taxes good Hezekiah for the neglect of it, 2 Chron. 32. 24, 25. This conſiſts in a full and hearty Reſignation of all to him: That we have received by Providence from him: And in our willingneſs actually to part with all for him, when he ſhall remand it.

Thus you ſee, how all the ingredients to praiſe, have reſpect to Providences. But more particularly I will ſhew you, that as all the ingredients of Praiſe have reſpect to Providences, ſo all the Motives and Arguments obliging and engaging Souls to praiſe, are found therein alſo. To this end conſider, how the mercy and goodneſs of God is exhibited by Providence, to excite our Thankfulneſs.

(1.) That the goodneſs and mercy of God is let out upon his people in his Providences about them: And this is the very root of Praiſe. It is not ſo much the poſſeſſion that Providence gives us of ſuch or ſuch Comforts, as the goodneſs and kindneſs of God in the diſpenſing of them, that engages a gracious Soul to praiſe, Pſal. 63. 3. Becauſe thy loving kindneſs is better than life, my lips ſhall praiſe thee. To give, maintain, and preſerve our life, are choice acts of Providences: but to do all this in a way of Grace and Loving kindneſs, this is far better than the gifts themſelves; life is but the ſhadow of death without it: This is the mercy that crowns all other mercies, Pſal. 103. 4. It's this a ſanctified Soul deſires God would manifeſt in every Providence about him, Pſal. 17. 7. and what is our praiſing of God elſe, but our ſhewing forth that Loving-kindneſs, which he ſheweth us in his Providences? Pſal. 92. 1, 2.

(2.) As the Loving-kindneſs of God manifeſted in Providences, is a motive to praiſe; ſo the free and undeſerved favours of God, diſpenſed by the hand of Providence, oblige the Soul to praiſe. This was the conſideration that melted David's Heart into a thankful praiſing frame, even the conſideration of the free and undeſerved favours caſt in upon him by Providence, 2 Sam. 7. 18. What am I? O Lord God: And what is my Fathers houſe, that thou haſt brought me hitherto? (i. e.) raiſed me by Providence from a mean Condition to all this Dignity: From following the Ewes, to feed Jacob his People, Pſalm 78. 70, 71. O this it is that engages Thankfulneſs, Gen. 32. 10.

(3.) As the freeneſs of Mercies diſpenſed by Providence, engageth Praiſe; ſo the multitudes of Mercies heaped this way upon us, ſtrongly oblige the Soul to Thankfulneſs. Thus David comes before the Lord encompaſſed with a multitude of Mercies to praiſe him, Pſalm 5. 7. We have our loads of Mercies, and that every Day, Pſalm 68. 19. O what a rich heap will the Mercies of one Day make, being laid together!

(4) As the multitudes of Mercies diſpenſed by Providence, oblige to Praiſe; ſo the tenderneſs of Gods Mercy manifeſted in his Providence, leaves the Soul under a ſtrong Obligation to thankfulneſs. We ſee what tender Reſentments the Lord hath of all our wants, ſtraits, and burdens, Pſalm 103. 13. Like as a Father pitieth his Children, ſo the Lord pitieth them that fear him. He is full of Bowels, as that Word πολύσπλαγχνος in James 5. 11. ſignifies. Yea, there are not only Bowels of Compaſſion in our God, but the tenderneſs of Bowels, like thoſe of a Mother to her Sucking Child, Iſa. 49. 15. He feels all our Pains, as if the apple of his Eye were touched, Zech. 2. 8. and all this is diſcovered to his People in the way of his Providences with them, Pſalm 111. 1, 2, 3, 4. O who of all the Children of God hath not often found this in his Providences? And who can ſee it, and not be filled with thankfulneſs: All theſe are ſo many Bands clapt by Providence upon the Soul, to oblige it to a Life of Praiſe. Hence it is, that the Prayers of the Saints are ſo full of thankſgivings upon theſe accounts: 'Tis ſweet to recount them to the Lord in Prayer; To lie at his Feet in an holy Aſtoniſhment at his gracious Condeſcenſions to poor Worms.

The Sixth Motive.

The due Obſervation of Providence will endear Jeſus Chriſt every Day more and more to your Souls. Chriſt is the Channel of Grace and Mercy; through him are all the decurſus & recurſus gratiarum, all the Streams of Mercy that flow from God to us, and all the returns of Praiſe from us to God, 1 Cor. 3. 21, 22. All things are ours upon no other Title, but our being his.

Now there be ſix things in Providence that are exceedingly endearing of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt to his People: And theſe are the moſt ſweet and delicious Parts of all our Enjoyments.

1. The purchaſe of all thoſe Mercies which Providence conveys to us, is by his own Blood: For not only Spiritual and Eternal Mercies, but even all our Temporal ones, are the Acquiſition of his Blood. Look, as Sin forfeited all, ſo Chriſt reſtored all theſe Mercies again to us by his Death. Sin had ſo ſhut up the womb of Mercy, that had not Chriſt made an Atonement by his Death, it could never have brought forth one Mercy to all Eternity for us. It is with him that God freely gives us all things, Rom. 8. 32. Heaven it ſelf, and all things needful to bring us thither, among which, is principally included the Tutelage and Aid of Divine Providence: So that whatever good we receive from the Hand of Providence, we muſt put it upon the ſcore of Chriſt's Blood; and when we receive it, we may ſay, 'Tis the price of Blood: 'Tis a Mercy riſing up out of the Death of Chriſt: It coſt him dear, though it come to me freely: It's ſweet in the Poſſeſſion, but coſtly in the Acquiſition. Now this is a moſt endearing Conſideration? Did Chriſt die, that theſe Mercies might Live? Did he pay his invaluable Blood to purchaſe theſe Comforts, that I poſſeſs? O what tranſcendent, matchleſs Love, was the Love of Chriſt! You have known Parents that have laid out all their Stock of Money to purchaſe Eſtates for their Children; but when did you hear of any that ſpent the whole Stock and Treaſure of their Blood, to make a Purchaſe for them? If the Life of Chriſt had not been ſo afflictive and ſad to him, ours could not have been ſo ſweet and comfortable to us: 'Tis through his Poverty we are enriched, 2 Cor. 8. 9. Theſe ſweet Mercies that are born of Providence every day, are the Fruits of the Travail of his Soul.

Bona gratiæ & gloriæ, ac præ omnibus divinæ tutelæ opis, ac providentiæ ſuæ ſcutum. Poli Synopſis in loc.

2. The Sanctification of all, is by our Union with Chriſt: 'Tis by vertue of our Union with his Perſon, that we enjoy the ſanctified Gifts and Bleſſings of Providence. All theſe are Mercies, additional to that great Mercy CHRIST, Mat. 6. 33. They are given with him, as in Rom. 8. 32. This is the Tenure by which we hold them, 1 Cor. 3. 21, 22, 23. Look, what we loſt in Adam, is reſtored again with Advantage in Chriſt: Immediately upon the fall, that Curſe, Gen. 2. 17. ſeized upon all the miſerable Poſterity of Adam, and upon all their Comforts, outward as well as inward; and this ſtill lies heavy upon them: All that Providence doth for them that are Chriſtleſs, is but to feed ſo many poor condemned Wretches, till the ſentence they are under be executed upon them: It is indeed bountiful and open-handed to many of them; and fills them with earthly Comforts; but not one ſpecial ſanctified Mercy is to be found among all their Enjoyments: Theſe Gifts of Providence do but deceive, defile and deſtroy them through their own Corruptions, and for want of Union with Chriſt, Prov. 1. 32. The Proſperity of Fools ſhall deſtroy them.

But when a man is once in Chriſt, then all Providences are ſanctified and ſweet, Tit. 1. 15. Unto the pure, all things are pure. A little that a Righteous Man hath, is better than the Treaſures of many wicked, Pſalm 37. 16. Now Chriſt becomes an Head of Influence, as well as of Dominion; and in all things he conſults the good of his own Members, Eph. 1. 22.

3. The Diſpenſation of all our Comforts and Mercies, is by his Direction and Appointment. It's true, the Angels are employed in the Kingdom of Providence, they move the Wheels, (i. e.) are inſtrumental in all the Revolutions in this lower World; but ſtill they receive Directions and Orders from Chriſt, as you may ſee in that admirable Scheme of Providences, Ezek. 1. 25, 26. &c. Now what an endearing Meditation is this! Whatever Creature be inſtrumental for any good to you, it's your Lord Jeſus Chriſt that gave the orders and commands to that Creature to do it; and without it they could have done nothing for you: It's your Head in Heaven that conſults your Peace and Comfort on Earth. Theſe be the Fruits of his Care for you. So in the Prevention and Reſtraints of Evil; 'tis he that Bridles in the Wrath of Devils and Men, he holds the Reins in his own Hands, Rev. 2. 10. 'Twas the care of Chriſt over his poor Sheep at Damaſcus, that ſtopt the raging Adverſary who was upon the Way, deſigning to deſtroy them, Acts 9.

4. The Continuation of all your Mercies and Comforts, outward as well as inward, is the fruit of his Interceſſion in Heaven for you. For look, as the offering up of the Lamb of God a Sacrifice for Sin, opened the Door of Mercy at firſt; ſo his appearing before God as a Lamb that had been ſlain, ſtill keeps that door of Mercy open, Rev. 5. 6. Heb. 9. 24. By this his Interceſſion, our Peace and Comforts are prolonged to us, Zech. 1. 12, 13. Every Sin we commit, would put an end to the Mercies we poſſeſs, were it not for that Caution which is put in for us by it, 1 John 2. 1, 2. If any Man Sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the Righteous: And he is the Propitiation for our Sins, &c. This ſtops all Pleas, and procures new Pardons for new Sins. Hence it is he ſaves to the uttermoſt, to the laſt compleating Act, Heb. 7. 25. New Sins do not irritate our former Pardons, nor cut off our Privileges ſetled upon us in Chriſt.

5. The returns and anſwers of all your Prayers and Cries to Heaven for the removing of your Afflictions, or ſupply of your wants, are all procured and obtained for you by Jeſus Chriſt. He is the Maſter of your Requeſts; and were it not that God had reſpect to him, he would never regard your cries to him, nor return any anſwer of Peace to you, how great ſoever your Diſtreſſes ſhould be, Rev. 8. 3, 4. 'Tis his Name that gives our Prayers their acceptance, John 15. 16. Becauſe the Father can deny him nothing, therefore your Prayers are not denied. Doth God condeſcend to hear you in the day of trouble? Doth he convince you by your own Experience, that your Prayers have Power with God, and do prevail? O ſee how much you owe to your dear Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for this high and glorious Privilege!

6. The Covenant of Grace, in which all your comfortable Enjoyments are comprized, and by which they are ſecured, ſanctified, and ſweetned to you, is made in Chriſt, and ratified by him betwixt God and you. Your Mercies are all comprized in this Covenant, even your daily Bread, Pſalm 111. 5. as well as your Juſtification, and other ſpiritual Mercies.

'Tis your Covenant Intereſt, that ſecures to you whatever it comprizes, Iſa. 55. 3. Hence they are called the ſure Mercies of David.

Nay, this is it that ſanctifies them, and gives them the nature of ſpecial and peculiar Mercies. One ſuch Mercy is worth a thouſand common Mercies. And being ſanctified and ſpecial Mercies, they muſt needs be exceeding ſweet beyond all other Mercies. On theſe accounts it was, that David ſo rejoiced in his Covenant Intereſt, though laden with many Afflictions, 2 Sam. 23. 5.

But now all this hangs entirely upon Chriſt. The New Teſtament is in his Blood, 1 Cor. 11. 25. And whatever Mercies you reap from that Covenant, you muſt thank the Lord Jeſus Chriſt for them. Put all this together, and then think how ſuch Conſiderations will endear Chriſt to your Souls!

The Seventh Motive.

The due Obſervations of Providence have a marvellous Efficacy to melt the Heart, and make it thaw and relent ingenuouſly before the Lord.

How can a ſanctified Heart do leſs, than melt into Tears, whilſt it either conſiders the dealings of God from Time to Time with it: Or compares the Mercies received, with the Sins committed; or the different Adminiſtrations of Providence towards it ſelf and others.

Let a Man but ſet himſelf to think deliberately and cloſely of the ways of Providence towards him, let him but follow the Tract of Providence, as it hath led him all along the way that he hath gone, and if there be any Principle of gracious tenderneſs in him, he ſhall meet with variety of occaſions to excite and draw it forth. Reader, go back with thy ſerious Thoughts, (1.) To the beginning of the Ways of God with thee, the Mercies that brake out early in thy Youth, even the firſt-born Mercies from the Womb of Providence; and thou wilt ſay, What need I go farther? Here is enough, not only to move, but overwhelm my Heart. May I not from this time cry unto thee, my Father, thou art the guide of my Youth, Jer. 3 4. What a critical Time is the Time of Youth? It's the moulding Age; and (ordinarily) according to the courſe of thoſe leading Providences, after-Providences do ſteer their Courſe. What levity, raſhneſs, ignorance, and ſtrong propenſions to Sin and Ruin accompanied that Age? How many being then left to the ſway of their own Luſts, run themſelves into thoſe Sins and Miſeries, which they never recover themſelves from to their dying Day? Theſe, like the Errors of the firſt Concoction, are rarely rectified afterwards. Did the Lord guide thee by his Providence, when but a Child? Did he then preſerve thee from thoſe Follies and Miſcarriages, which blaſt the very Bloſſom, and nip the Bud, ſo that no good Fruit is to be expected afterwards? Did he then caſt thee into ſuch Families, or among ſuch Company and Acquaintance, as moulded and formed thy Spirit to a better Temper? Did he then direct thee into that way of Employment, wherein thou haſt ſeen ſo large a train of happy Conſequents ever ſince following thee? And wilt thou not from henceforth ſay, My Father, my Father, thou art the guide of my Youth?

Or (2.) Let us but bring our thoughts cloſe to the Providences of after-Times, and conſider how the ſeveral changes and removes of our Lives have been ordered for us: Things we never foreſaw nor deſigned (but much better for us, than what we did deſign) have been all along ordered for us. The way of Man is not in himſelf. God's Thoughts have not been our Thoughts, nor his Ways our Ways. Among the eminent Mercies of thy Life, Reader, how many of them have been meer ſurprizals to thee? Thy own Projects have been thruſt aſide, to make way for better Things deſigned by Providence for thee.

Nay, (3.) Do but obſerve the Springs and Autumns of Providence, in what order they have flouriſhed and faded with thee, and thou wilt find thy ſelf over-powered with the Senſe of Divine Wiſdom and Goodneſs: When neceſſity required, ſuch a Friend was ſtirred up to help thee, ſuch a Place opened to receive thee, ſuch a Relation raiſed up or continued to refreſh thee: And no ſooner doth Providence deprive thee of any of them, but either thy need of them ceaſes, or ſome other way is opened to thee. O the depth of Gods Wiſdom and Goodneſs! O the matchleſs tenderneſs of God to his People!

(4.) Compare the dealings of Providence with you and others, yea, with others that ſprang up with you in the ſame Generation, it may be, in the ſame Families, and from the ſame Parents, it may be in Families greater and more flouriſhing in the World than yours, and ſee the difference, upon many great accounts, it hath made betwixt you and them. I knew a Chriſtian, who after many Years Separation, was viſited by his own Brother, the very ſight of whom, wrought upon him, much as the ſight of Benjamin did upon Joſeph, ſo that he could not refrain to fall upon his Neck, and weep for joy; but after a few hours ſpent together, finding the Spirit of his Brother, not only eſtranged from all that's ſpiritual and ſerious, but alſo very vain and prophane, he haſtened to his Chamber, ſhut the door upon him, threw himſelf down at the Feet of God, and with flowing Eyes, and a melting Heart, admired the diſtinguiſhing Grace of God, ſaying, Was not Eſau Jacob's Brother? O Grace, Grace, aſtoniſhing Grace!

(5.) Compare the carriage of Providence towards you, with your own carriage towards the Lord; and it muſt needs melt your Hearts to find ſo much Mercy beſtowed, where ſo much Sin hath been committed. What Place did you ever live in, where you cannot remember great Provocations committed, and manifold Mercies notwithſtanding that, received? O with how many notwithſtandings and nevertheleſſes, hath the Lord done you good in every Place! What Relation hath not been abuſed by Sin; and yet both raiſed up and continued by Providence for your Comfort? In every Place God hath left the Marks of his Goodneſs, and you the remembrances of your ſinfulneſs. Give your ſelves but leave to think of theſe things, and it's ſtrange if your Hearts relent not at the remembrance of them.

(6.) Or Laſtly, Do but compare your Dangers with your Fears, and both with the ſtrange out-letts and doors of eſcape Providence hath opened, and it cannot do leſs than overpower you with a full Senſe of Divine Care and Goodneſs.

There have been dark Clouds ſeen to riſe over you, Judgment even at your door, ſometimes threatning your Life, ſometimes your Liberty, ſometimes your Eſtates, and ſometimes your deareſt Relations, in whom it may be, your Life was bound up; remember in that Day, what faintneſs of ſpirit ſeized you, what charges of guilt ſtirring up fears of the iſſue within you: You turned to the Lord in that Diſtreſs, and hath he not made a way to eſcape, and delivered you from all your Fears? Pſalm 34. 4.

Oh is your Life ſuch a continued Throng, ſuch a diſtracted Hurry, that there is no room to be found with Chriſtians to ſit alone, and think on theſe things, and preſs theſe marvellous diſcoveries of God in his Providences upon their own Hearts? Surely, might theſe Things but lie upon our Hearts, talk with our Thoughts by Day, and lodge with us at Night; they would even force their Paſſage down to our very Reins.

The Eighth Motive.

Due Obſervation of Providence will both beget and ſecure inward tranquility in your Minds amidſt the Viciſſitudes and Revolutions of Things in this unſtable vain World.

Pſalm 4. 8. I will both lay me down in Peace, and ſleep, for the Lord only makith me dwell in ſafety. He reſolves the ſinful Fears of Events ſhall not rob him of his inward quiet, nor torture his Thoughts with anxious preſages: He will commit all his concerns into that faithful fatherly Hand that had hitherto wrought all Things for him, and he means not to loſe the Comfort of one Night's reſt, nor bring the evil of to Morrow upon the Day, but knowing in whoſe Hand he was, wiſely enjoys the ſweet Felicity of a reſigned Will.

Now this Tranquility of our Minds is as much begotten and preſerved by a due Conſideration of Providence, as by any thing whatſoever. Hence it was, that our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, when he would cure the Diſciples anxious and diſtracting ſolicitudes about a livellihood, bids them conſider the Care Providence hath over the Birds of the Air, and the Lilies of the Field, how it feeds the one, and cloaths the other, without any anxious Care of theirs; and would have them well conſider thoſe Providences, and Reaſon themſelves into a calm and ſweet Compoſure of Spirit from thoſe Conſiderations, Mat. 6. 27, 28, 29, 30, 31.

Two Things deſtroy the Peace and Tranquility of our Lives, our bewailing paſt diſappointments, or fearing future ones. But would we once learn previſion and proviſion to be Divine Prerogatives, and take notice how often Providence baffles thoſe that pretend to it, cauſing the good they foreſaw (according to their Conjectures) coming to their Hand, yet to balk them and flee from them: And the evil they thought themſelves ſufficiently ſecured from, to invade them. I ſay, would we conſider how Providence daily baffles theſe Pretenſions of Men, and aſſerts its own Dominion, it would greatly conduce to the Tranquility of our Lives.

This is a great Truth, that there is no Face of Adverſity ſo formidable, but being viewed from this ſtation, would become amicable. Now there be ſeveral Things in the Conſideration of Providence, that naturally and kindly compoſe the mind of a Chriſtian to Peace, and bring it to a ſweet reſt, whilſt events hang in a doubtful ſuſpence.

1. As Firſt, The Supremacy of Providence, and its uncontroulable Power in working. This is often ſeen in the good that it brings us in a way that's above the Thoughts and Cares of our Minds, or Labour of our Hands. I had not thought (ſaid Jacob) to have ſeen thy Face; and lo, God hath ſhewed me thy Seed alſo, Gen. 48. 11. There is a frequent coincidency of Providences in a way of ſurprizal, which from no appearance, or the remoſt tendency of outward Cauſes could be foreſeen, but rather falls viſibly Croſs to the preſent Scheme, and poſture of our Affairs. Nothing tends to convince us of the Vanity and Folly of our own Sollicitudes and Projections, more than this doth.

2. The profound Wiſdom of Providence in all that it performeth for the People of God. The Wheels are full of Eyes, Ezek. 1. 18. (i. e.) there is an intelligent and wiſe Spirit that ſits upon, and governs the Affairs of this World.

This Wiſdom ſhines out to us in the unexpected, yea, contrary events of Things. How often have we been courting ſome beautiful appearance that invited our Senſes, and with trembling ſhun'd the formidable Face of other Things, when notwithſtanding the Iſſues of Providence have convinced us, that our Danger lay in what we courted, and our good in what we ſo ſtudiouſly declined? This alſo is a ſweet Principle of Peace, and quiet to the Chriſtians mind, that he knows not, but his good may be imported in what ſeemed to threaten his Ruin. Many were the Diſtreſſes and Straits of Iſrael in the Wilderneſs, but all was to humble them, that he might do them good in the latter End, Deut. 8. 16. Sad and diſmal was the Face of that Providence that ſent them out of their own Land, into the Land of the Chaldeans; yet even this was a project to do them good, Jer. 24. 5. How often have we retracted our raſh and headlong cenſures of Things upon Experience of this Truth! And been taught to bleſs our Afflictions and Diſappointments in the Name of the Lord. Many a time have we kiſſed thoſe Troubles at parting, which we met with trembling. And what can promote Peace under doubtful Providences more effectually than this?

3. The Experiences we have had throughout our Lives of the faithfulneſs and conſtancy of Providence, are of excellent uſe to allay and quiet our Hearts in any Trouble that befals us. Hitherto God hath helped, 1 Sam. 7. 12. We never found him wanting to us in any Caſe hitherto: This is not the firſt Strait we have been in: The firſt time that our Hearts and Hopes have been low. Surely, he is the ſame God now as heretofore, his hand is not ſhortned, neither doth his faithfulneſs fail. O recount in how great Extremities former Experience hath taught you not to deſpair!

4. The Conjectures Chriſtians may make of the Way of Providence towards them, from what its former Methods have been towards them, is exceeding quieting and comfortable. It's uſual with Chriſtians, to compare Times with Times, and to gueſs at the Iſſue of one Providence by another. The Saints do know what courſe Providence uſually holds, and accordingly with great probability Collect what they may expect from what in like Caſes they have formerly obſerved. Chriſtian, examine thine own Heart, and its former Obſervations, and thou wilt find, as Pſal. 89. 30, 31, 32. That it's uſually the Way of God to prepare ſome ſmart Rods to correct thee, when either thy Heart hath ſecretly revolted from God, and is grown vain, careleſs and ſenſual, or when thy ſteps have declined, and thou haſt turned aſide to the Commiſſion of Iniquity. And then when thoſe Rods have been ſanctified to humble, reduce, and purge thy Heart, it's uſually obſerved, that thoſe ſad Providences are then upon the change, and then the Lord changes the Voice of his Providence towards thee, Jer. 3. 12, 13. Go, and proclaim theſe Words towards the North, and ſay, Return thou backſliding Iſrael, ſaith the Lord, and I will not cauſe mine anger to fall upon you, for I am merciful, ſaith the Lord, and I will not keep Anger for ever. Only acknowledge thine Iniquity, &c.

If therefore I find the bleſſed Effects of the Rod upon me, that it hath done its Work, to break the hard heart, and pull down the proud heart, and awaken the drowſie heart, and quicken the ſloathful, negligent, lazy Heart; now with great probability I may Conjecture, a more comfortable aſpect of Providence will quickly appear, the refreſhing and reviving Time is nigh.

5. It is uſual with Chriſtians, to argue themſelves into freſh reviving Hopes, when the ſtate of things is moſt forlorn, by comparing the Providences of God one with another.

(1.) It is a mighty compoſing Meditation, when we compare the Providences of God towards the Inanimate and irrational Creatures, with his Providences towards us. Doth he take care for the very Fowls of the Air, for whom no Man provides, as well as thoſe at the door which we daily feed? Doth he ſo cloth the very Graſs of the Field? Hear the young Ravens, when they cry for Meat? And can it be ſuppoſed, he ſhould forget his own People, that are of much more Value than theſe?

(2.) Or if we compare the Bounty and Care that Providence hath expreſſed to the Enemies of God, how it feeds and cloths and protects them, even whilſt they are fighting againſt him with his own Mercies; it cannot but quiet and ſatisfie us, that ſurely he will not be wanting to that People upon whom he hath ſet his Love, to whom he hath given his Son, and for whom he hath deſigned Heaven it ſelf.

(3.) Or laſtly, It muſt needs quiet us, when we conſider, what the Lord did for us in the way of his Providence, when we our ſelves were in the ſtate of Nature, and Enmity againſt God. Did he not then look after us, when we knew him not? Provided for us, when we owned him not in any of his Mercies? Beſtowed thouſands of Mercies upon us, when we had no Title to Chriſt or any one Promiſe? And will he now do leſs for us, ſince we are reconciled and become his Children?

Surely, ſuch Conſiderations as theſe, cannot but fill the Soul with Peace, and preſerve the Tranquility of it under the moſt diſtracting Providences.

The Ninth Motive.

Due Obſervations of the Ways of God in his Providences towards us, have an excellent uſefulneſs and aptitude to advance and improve Holineſs in our Hearts and Lives. For,

1. The Holineſs of God is manifeſted to us in all his Works of Providence, Pſalm 145. 17. The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his Works. The Inſtruments uſed by Providence may be very ſinful and wicked, they may aim at baſe ends, and make uſe of wicked mediums to attain them; but it's certain God's deſigns are moſt pure, and all his workings are ſo too. Though he permits, limits, orders, and over rules many unholy Perſons and Actions; yet in all he Works like himſelf; and his Holineſs is no more defiled and ſtained by their Impurity, than the Sun beams are by the noiſome Exhalations of a Dunghil, Deut. 32. 4. He is the Rock, his Work is perfect; for all his Ways are Judgment, a God of Truth, and without Iniquity: Juſt and Right is he. So that in all his Providences he ſets before us a perfect Pattern of Holineſs, that we might be Holy in all our Ways, as our Father is in all his Ways. But this is not all.

2. His Providences if duely obſerved, promote Holineſs, by ſtopping up our Way to Sin. Oh if men would but note the Deſigns of God in his preventive Providences, how uſeful would it be to keep them upright and holy in their Ways? For why is it, that the Lord ſo often hedges up our way with Thorns, as it is Hoſea 2. 6. But that we ſhould not find our paths to Sin? Why doth he clogg us, but to prevent our ſtraying from him? 2 Cor. 12. 7. Leſt I ſhould be exalted above meaſure, there was given me a Thorn in the Fleſh, a Meſſenger of Satan to buffet me. O 'tis good to attend to theſe Works of God, and ſtudy the meaning of them. Sometimes Providence croſſeth a hopeful thriving project to advance our Eſtate, and fruſtrates all our Labours and cares; Why is this? but to hide Pride from man. Shouldſt thou proſper in the World, that Proſperity might be thy ſnare, and make thee a proud, ſenſual, vain Soul; the Lord Jeſus ſees this, and therefore withdraws the food and fuel from thy Corruptions.

It may be thou haſt a crazy, diſeaſed, weak Body; thou laboureſt under often Infirmities: in this, the Wiſdom and Care of God over thy Soul is manifeſted; For wert thou not ſo clogged, how probable is it, that much more guilt might be contracted? Your Poverty doth but clog your Pride; Reproaches clog your Ambition; Want prevents Wantonneſs; ſickneſs of Body conduces to the prevention of many inward gripes of Conſcience and groans under guilt.

God would not rub ſo hard, if it were not to fetch out the dirt that is ingrained in our natures: He loves Purity ſo well, he had rather ſee a hole, than a ſpot in his childs Garment. Gurnal's Chriſtian Armour, Par. 2. p. 221.

3. The Providences of God may be obſerved to conduce to our Holineſs, not only preventing ſin, that we may not fall into it; but alſo purging our ſins when we are fallen into them, Iſa. 27. 9. By this therefore ſhall the iniquity of Jacob be purged; and this is all the fruit to take away his ſin. So Dan. 11. 33, 34, 35. they are of the ſame uſe that Fire and Water are for purging and cleanſing; not that they can purge us from ſin in their own vertue and power, for if ſo, thoſe that have moſt afflictions would have moſt grace alſo? but it is in the vertue of Chriſt's blood, and God's bleſſing upon afflictive Providences, that they purge us from ſin. A Croſs without a Chriſt never did any man good. Now in God's afflictive Providences for ſin there are many things that tend to the purging of it. For,

(1.) Such rebukes of Providence diſcover the diſpleaſure of God againſt us: The Lord frowns upon us in thoſe Providences. Our Father is angry, and theſe are the Tokens of it; and nothing works more to the melting of a gracious heart than this. Muſt not the heart of a Child melt and break whil'ſt the Father is angry? O this is more bitter to our Spirits than all the ſmart and anguiſh of the Affliction can be to our Fleſh. See Pſal. 38. 1, 2, 3. O Lord rebuke me not in thy wrath; neither chaſten me in thy hot diſpleaſure: for thine arrows ſtick faſt in me; and thine hand preſſeth me ſore. There is no ſoundneſs in my fleſh becauſe of thine anger: neither is there any reſt in my bones becauſe of my ſin.

(2.) By theſe rebukes of ſin, the evil of ſin is diſcovered more ſenſibly to us, and we are made to ſee more clearly the evil of it in theſe glaſſes of Affliction which Providence at ſuch times ſets before us, than formerly we ever ſaw. Jer. 2. 19. Thine own wickedneſs ſhall correct thee; and thy backſliding ſhall reprove thee, know therefore and ſee that it is an evil thing and bitter, that thou haſt forſaken the Lord thy God, and that my fear is not in thee, ſaith the Lord of Hoſts. O the gall and wormwood that we taſte in it under God's Rebukes for it!

(3.) Providence blaſts and fruſtrates all ſinful Projects to the People of God: Whoever thrives in them, they ſhall not. Iſa. 30. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. And this alſo convinces them of the folly that is in ſin, and makes them cleave to the way of Simplicity and Integrity.

4. Holineſs is promoted in the ſoul by cautioning and warning the ſoul againſt ſin for time to come. Job 34. 31. I have born Chaſtiſement, I will not offend any more. O happy Providences, how ſmart ſoever, that make the ſoul for ever afraid of ſin! Surely ſuch rods are well beſtow'd. This gives God his end; and if ever we ſorrowed after a godly ſort, in the day of our Troubles it will work this carefulneſs. 2 Cor. 7. 11. Behold this ſelf ſame thing that ye ſorrowed after a godly ſort, what carefulneſs it wrought in you? &c. O if ever a man have been under a ſanctified rod which hath ſhewed him the evil of ſin, and kindly humbled him for it; and a temptation ſhould again ſollicite him to the ſame evil: Why thinks he, what a madneſs is it for me to buy repentance at ſo dear a rate? Have I not ſmarted enough already? You may as well aſk me, whether I will run again into the fire, after I have been already ſcorch'd in it?

(5.) To conclude, Providences do greatly improve and promote Holineſs by drawing the Soul into the Preſence of God, and giving it the opportunity and occaſion of much communion with him. Comfortable Providences will do this, they will melt a man's heart in love to the God of his Mercies, and ſo pain his bowels that he ſhall not be quiet till he have found a place to pour out his Soul in thankfulneſs to the Lord. 2 Sam. 7. 18.

Afflictive Providences will drive us to the feet of God, and there make us to judge and condemn our ſelves. And all this hath an excellent uſe to deſtroy ſin, and promote holineſs in the Soul.

The Tenth Motive.

Laſtly, The Conſideration and ſtudy of Providence will be of ſingular uſe to us in a dying hour. Hereby we treaſure up that which will ſingularly ſweeten our death to us, and greatly aſſiſt our faith in the laſt encounter. You find when Jacob died, what reflections he had upon the dealing of God with him in the various Providences of his Life. See Gen. 48. 3, 7, 15, 16. In like manner you find Joſhua recording the Providences of God when at the brink of the Grave: They were the ſubject of his dying Diſcourſe, Joſ. 24. And I cannot but think it a ſweet cloſe to the life of any Chriſtian: It muſt needs ſweeten a deathbed to recount there the ſeveral remarkable Paſſages of God's care and love to us from our beginning to that day: To reflect upon the Mercies that went along with us all the way, when we are come to the end of it. O Chriſtians, treaſure up theſe inſtances for ſuch a time as that is; that you may go out of the world bleſſing God for all the goodneſs of truth he hath performed to you all your life long. Now the meditations of theſe things muſt needs be of great uſe in that day, if you conſider the following particulars.

1. The time of Death is the time when Souls are uſually moſt violently aſſaulted by Satan with horrid Temptations and black Suggeſtions. We may ſay of that figurative, as it's ſaid of the natural Serpent, nunquam niſi moriens, producitur in longum. He never exerts his utmoſt rage till the laſt encounter; and then his great deſign is to perſwade the Saints, that God loves them not, hath no care nor regard for them, nor their cries; though they pray for eaſe, and cry for ſparing Mercy, they ſee none comes. He handles them with as much roughneſs and ſeverity as other men; yea, many of the vileſt and moſt diſſolute wretches endure leſs torments, and are more gently handled than they. Pſal. 73. 4. there are no bands in their death, when as thou muſt go through a long lane of ſickneſs to the grave, and endure many deaths in one.

But what credit can theſe plauſible tales of Satan obtain with a Chriſtian who hath been treaſuring up all his life long the memorials of God's tender regard both to his wants and prayers, and that hath carefully remarked the evident returns of his prayers, and gracious condeſcenſions of God to him from his beginning to that moment? In this caſe his faith is mightily aſſiſted by thouſands of experiences which back and encourage it, and will not ſuffer the ſoul to give up ſo eaſily a truth which he hath ſo often ſenſibly felt and taſted. I am ſure (ſaith he) God hath had a tender fatherly care of me ever ſince I became his; he never failed me yet in any former ſtrait; and I cannot believe he will do ſo now. I know his love is like himſelf, unchangeable. Joh. 13. 1. having loved his own which were in the world he loved them unto the end: for this God is our God for ever and ever he will be our guide even unto death. Pſal. 48. 14. Did he love me in my youth, and will he caſt me off in my decrepit age? O God, (ſaith the Pſalmiſt) thou haſt taught me from my youth, and hitherto have I declared thy wonderous works, now alſo when I am old and gray headed, O God, forſake me not, Pſal. 71. 17, 18.

At death the Saints are engaged in the laſt, and one of the moſt eminent works of faith, even the committing themſelves into the hands of God, when we are lanching forth into that vaſt Eternity, and entring into that new ſtate which will make ſo great a change upon us in a moment. In this Chriſt ſets us a pattern, Luke 23. 46. Father into thy hand I commend my ſpirit: and having ſaid thus he gave up the Ghoſt. So Stephen at his death, Lord Jeſus, receive my ſpirit, and immediately fell aſleep, Act. 7. 59.

There be two ſignal and remarkable acts of faith, both exceedingly difficult, viz. its firſt act, and its laſt. The firſt is a great venture that it makes of it ſelf upon Chriſt; and the laſt is a great venture too, to caſt it ſelf into the Ocean of Eternity upon the credit of a Promiſe. But yet I know the firſt adventure of the Soul upon Chriſt is much more difficult than the laſt adventure upon death; and that which makes it ſo is in great meaſure, the manifold recorded experiences that the Soul hath been gathering up from the day of its eſpouſals to Chriſt unto its dying which is (in a ſenſe) its marriage day. Oh with what encouragement may a Soul throw himſelf into the arms of that God with whom he hath ſo long converſed and walked in this World! Whoſe viſits have been ſweet and frequent, with whom the Soul hath contracted ſo intimate acquaintance in this World? whom he hath committed all its affairs to formerly, and ſtill found him a faithful God; and now hath no reaſon to doubt, but it ſhall find him ſo in this laſt diſtreſs and exigence alſo.

3. At death the People of God receive the laſt mercies that ever they ſhall receive in this World by the hand of Providence, and are immediately to make up their Accounts with God for all the mercies that ever they received from his hand. What can be more ſuitable therefore to a dying perſon, than to recount with himſelf the mercies of his whole life, the manifold receipts of favour for which he is to reckon with God ſpeedily, and how ſhall this be done without a due and ſerious obſervation and recording of them now? I know there are thouſands of mercies forgotten by the beſt of Chriſtians: a memory of braſs cannot contain them: And I know alſo that Jeſus Chriſt muſt make up the Account for us, or it will never paſs with God; yet it is our duty to keep the Accounts of our own mercies, and how they have been improv'd by us, for we are Stewards, and then are to give an Account of our Stewardſhip.

4. At death we owe an Account alſo to men, and ſtand obliged (if there be opportunity for it) to make known to them that ſurvive us what we have ſeen and found of God in this world, that we may leave a teſtimony for God with men, and bring up a good report upon his ways. Thus dying Jacob, when Joſeph was come to take his laſt farewell of him in this world, ſtrengthned himſelf, and ſate upon the Bed, and related to him the eminent appearances of God to him, and the places where, Gen. 48. 2, 3. as alſo an account of his afflictions, Verſe 7. So Joſhua in his laſt ſpeech to the people makes it his buſineſs to vindicate and clear the truth of the Promiſes, by recounting to them how the Providence of God had fulfill'd the ſame to a tittle in his day. Joſh. 23. 14. And behold (ſaith he) this day I am going the way of all the earth, and ye know in all your hearts, and in all your Souls, that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God ſpake concerning you; all are come to paſs unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof.

And certainly 'tis of great importance to the World, to underſtand the Judgments, and hear of the Experiences of dying Men. They of all Men are preſumed to be moſt wiſe and moſt ſerious: Beſides, this is the laſt opportunity that ever we ſhall have in this World to ſpeak for God. O then what a ſweet thing would it be to cloſe up our lives with an honourable Account of the ways of God! to go out of the World bleſſing him for all the Mercies and Truth which he hath here performed to us! how would this encourage weak Chriſtians, and convince the Atheiſtical World, that verily there is a reality, and an excellency in the ways and people of God!

5. At death we begin the Angelical Life of praiſe and thankſgiving. We then enter upon that everlaſting ſweet employment; and as I doubt not but the Providences in which we were concerned in this World will be a part of that Song which we ſhall ſing in Heaven, ſo certainly it will become us to tune our hearts and tongues for it whilſt we are here, and eſpecially when we are ready to enter upon that bleſſed ſtate. O therefore let it be your daily meditation and ſtudy what God hath been to you, and done for you, from the beginning of his way hitherto.

And thus I have ſpread before you ſome encouragements to this bleſſed work. Oh that you would be perſwaded to this lovely and every way beneficial practice. This I dare preſume to ſay, that whoever finds a careful and a thankful heart to record and treaſure up the daily experiences of God's mercy to him, ſhall never want new mercies to record to his dying day. It was ſaid of Claudian that he wanted matter ſuitable to the excellency of his parts; but where is the head or heart that is ſuitable to this matter? who can utter the mighty works of the Lord? who can ſhew forth all his praiſe? Pſal. 106. 2.

Thus I have through the aid of Providence diſpatched the main deſign I aimed at in the choice of this Subject. All that remains will now be ſpeedily finiſhed in ſome few Corollaries to be briefly noted upon the whole, and three or four practical Caſes to be ſtated. You have heard how Providence performeth all things for you. Learn thence,

Firſt Corollary.

That God is therefore to be owned by you in all that befalls you in this world, whether it be in a way of ſucceſs and comfort, or of trouble and affliction. O 'tis your duty to obſerve his hand and diſpoſal: When God gives you comforts, 'tis your great evil not to obſerve his hand in them. Hence was that charge againſt Iſrael, Hoſ. 2. 8. She did not know that I gave her Corn and Wine and Oil, and multiplied her Silver and Gold (i. e.) ſhe did not actually and affectionately conſider my care over her and goodneſs to her, in theſe mercies. And ſo for afflictions, 'tis a great wickedneſs, when God's hand is lifted up not to ſee it. Iſa. 26. 11. The Ox knows his owner; and the Aſs his maſters crib, Iſa. 1. 3. the moſt dull and ſtupid creatures know their benefactors. O look to the hand of God in all; and know, that neither your comforts nor afflictions do ariſe out of the duſt, or ſpring up out of the ground.

Second Corollary.

If God perform all things for you, how great is his condeſcenſion to and care over his people! What is man (ſaith Job, chap. 7. 17, 18.) that thou ſhouldſt magnifie him, and ſet thine heart upon him? and that thou ſhouldſt viſit him every morning, and try him every moment? Such is his tender care over you, that he withdraws not his eye from you. See Job 36. 7. leſt any hurt you, he himſelf will guard and keep you day and night, Iſa. 27. 3. Should he withdraw his eye or hand one moment from you, that moment would be your ruin. Ten thouſand evils watch but for ſuch an opportunity to ruſh in upon you, and deſtroy you and all your comforts. You are too dear to him to be truſted in any hand but his own. Deut. 33. 3. All his Saints are in thy hand.

Third Corollary.

Learn hence how you are obliged to perform all duties and ſervices for God, who performeth all things for you. It was the wiſh of a good man, optarem id me eſſe Deo, quod eſt mihi manus mea, O that I could be to God what my hand is to me, viz. a ſerviceable uſeful inſtrument. Shall God do all things for you, and will you do nothing for God? Is Providence every moment at work for you, and will you be idle? To what purpoſe then is all that God hath done for you? Is it not the aim and deſign of all, to make you a fruitful People? If God plant, and fence, and water you by Providence, ſure he looks you ſhould bring forth fruit. Iſa. 5. 1, 2, 3, 4. O that in return for all the benefits of Providence, you would ſay to God, as grateful Eliſha ſaid to the Shunamite, behold thou haſt been careful for us with all this care, what is to be done for thee? 1 Kings 4. 13. and with David, Pſal. 116. 12. what ſhall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits towards me! He is ever doing you good; be you always abounding in his work. His Providence ſtands by you in your greateſt diſtreſſes and dangers; don't you flinch from God when his ſervice and your duty is compaſſed about with difficulties. O be active for that God, who is acting every moment for you.

Fourth Corollary.

Doth God perform all things for his people? Do not diſtruſt him then as often as new or great difficulties ariſe. Why ſhould you think he that hath done ſo many things for you, will now do no more? Surely, the Lords hand is not ſhortned that it cannot ſave, nor his ear heavy that it cannot hear; if any thing put a ſtop to his mercy, 'tis your iniquities, your diſtruſt and infidelity. Iſa. 59. 1. How long will it be e'er you believe him? If a thouſand and ten thouſand of tryals and experiences of his tender care, faithfulneſs and love will cure this diſtemper in you, you have them at hand to do it. If the frequent confutations of this your diſtruſt by the unexpected breakings out of Mercy for you under like diſcouragements will cure it, look back, and you may ſee them. Certainly you have been often forced by Providence with ſhame and repentance to retract your raſh cenſures of his care; and yet will you fall into the ſame diſtemper again? Oh that you would once learn this great Truth, That no Man ever wanted that Mercy, which he wanted not an heart to truſt and wait quietly upon God for. You never yet ſought God in vain, except when you ſought him vainly.

The Fifth Corollary.

Doth God perform all things for you? then ſeek God for all by Prayer, and never undertake any deſign without him: Certainly, if he do not perform it for you, you can never have what you deſire and labour for: and tho' he have deſigned to perform this or that mercy for you, yet for theſe things he will be enquired of that he may do it for you: Ezek. 36. 37. I reckon that buſineſs as good as done, that mercy as good as if it were in hand, that trouble as good as over, for the doing, enjoying, or removing whereof we have engaged God by prayer. 'Tis our folly to engage this Inſtrument, and that for us, to attempt this way and that to compaſs our deſign, and all the while forget him, upon whoſe pleaſure all inſtruments and means entirely depend. That which begins not with prayer, ſeldom winds up with comfort. The way of man is not in himſelf; if it were, prayer might then be reckon'd loſt labour. O let him that performs all, be owned and acknowledged in all.

Conſilia & preces non eo fine adhiberi, ut dei, per hæc quaſi impedimenta, mutentur decreta & deſtinatus providentiæ curſus inhibeatur: ſed ut obſequium divinæ legi præſtando, & conſuetum providentiæ ordinem obſervando conſcientia tranquilletur, & ſpe bonâ impleatur. Wendelin. Theol. p. 186.

Laſtly, If God perform all things for us, then it is our great Intereſt and Concernment in all things to ſtudy to pleaſe him, upon whom we depend for all things.

It

Chryſoſt. Hom. in 2 Cor. 7.

It is a grave and weighty Obſervation of Chryſoſtome. Nothing (ſaith he) ſhould be grievous and bitter to a Chriſtian, but to provoke the Diſpleaſure of God. Avoid that, and no Affliction or Trouble whatever can caſt down ſuch a prudent Soul; but even as a ſpark is eaſily extinguiſh'd in the Sea, ſo will the favour of God extinguiſh thoſe Troubles. It is with ſuch a Soul (ſaith he) as it is with the Heavens; we think the Heavens ſuffer when they are over-ſpread with Clouds, and the Sun ſuffers when it is eclipſed; but there is no ſuch thing, they ſuffer not when they ſeem to ſuffer. Tranquillus Deus, tranquillat omnia. Every thing is well, and ſhall be well, when all is Well betwixt us and God. The great Conſolation of the Saints lies in this, that all that concerns them is in the hands of their Father. Pene deſperaſſem niſi Chriſtus eſſet caput Eccleſiæ. I had utterly deſpair'd (ſaith Luther) had not Chriſt been head of the Church. When he that performs all things is our God, even our God that delights in our Proſperity, that rejoyces over us to do us good, What ample Security is there in the greateſt confuſions and dangers? When one told Borromeus that there were ſome that laid wait for his life, his anſwer was, An Deus eſt in mundo pro nihilo? What, is God in the World for nothing? And as notable was the reply of Silentiarius in a like caſe, ſi Deus mei curam non habet, quid vivo? If God take no care of me, how do I live, how have I ſubſiſted hitherto? Though it ſeems a Romance to many (ſaith a late grave Author,) yet we muſt either quit the Scripture, or give credit to this, that the moſt infallible Rules for one to raiſe his Fortune and enſure a Deſtiny that can controul the Stars, are given forth there (viz. in the Scriptures) where that evidently is found, Sapiens dominabitur Aſtris, & quomodo unuſquiſq; faber poteſt eſſe fortunæ ſuæ. A good man may even be his own Carver. O that we would but ſteer our courſe according to thoſe rare politicks of the Bible, thoſe divine Maxims of Wiſdom. Fear nothing but Sin. Study nothing ſo much as how to pleaſe God. Warp not from your Integrity under any Temptation. Truſt God in the way of your Duty. Theſe are ſure Rules to ſecure your ſelves and your Intereſt in all the Viciſſitudes of this Life.

Author of the fulfilling of Scripture, 2 Part. p. 223.

My laſt Work will be to ſtate Three or Four practical Caſes about this Subject, and ſo I ſhall ſhut up this Diſcourſe of Providence.

Firſt Caſe.

How may a Chriſtian diſcover the will of God and his own duty under dark and doubtful Providences?

In order to the clearing of this Caſe, we are to conſider, what is meant by the will of God; what by thoſe doubtful Providences, that make the diſcovery of his Will difficult, and what Rules are to be obſerved for the clearing up of God's Will to our ſelves under ſuch difficult and puzzling Providences.

As to the Will of God, is falls under a twofold Conſideration of his ſecret and revealed Will; this Diſtinction is found in that Scripture, Deut. 29. 29. The ſecret things belong unto the Lord our God, but thoſe things which are revealed belong unto us, &c. The firſt is the rule of his own Actions; the later of ours. And this only is concerned in the Quere.

This revealed Will of God is either manifeſted to us in his Word, o in his Works. The former is his commanding Will, the latter his effecting or permitting Will; the one verſant about good, the other about evil.

In theſe ways God manifeſts his Will to men, but yet with great Variety and Difference, both as to the things revealed, the Perſons to whom he reveals them, and the degrees of clearneſs in which they are revealed.

(1.) As to the things revealed, there is great difference: For the great and neceſſary Duties of Religion are revealed to us in the Word, with greateſt perſpicuity and evidence. About theſe there can be no Heſitation; but things of a lower nature and leſſer concern are left more obſcure.

(2.) As to the Perſons to whom God reveals his Will, there is great difference; ſome are ſtrong men, others babes, 1 Cor. 3. 1. Some have ſenſes exerciſed, others are of weak and dull underſtanding; and we know every thing is received according to the ability and meaſure of the Perſon receiving it. Hence it is that one mans way is very plain before him, he knows what he ought to do: The other is ever and anon at a loſs, bivious, and uncertain what to do.

(3.) The manner of God's revealing his Will to men is alſo very different. Some have had ſpecial, perſonal, and peculiar Diſcoveries of it made to them. So had Samuel about the Choice of the Perſon whom he ſhould anoint King, 1 Sam. 9. 15. And ſo had David, 1 Sam. 23. 2, 4, 9, 10, 11, 12. where you find upon his enquiry of God (likely by the Urim and Thummim) God told him what was his Duty as to that Expedition, and what would be the event of it.

But now, all are tied up to the ordinary ſtanding Rule of the written Word, and muſt not expect any ſuch extraordinary Revelations from God. The way we now have to know the Will of God concerning us in difficult Caſes, is to ſearch and ſtudy the Scriptures, and where we find no particular Rule to guide us in this or that particular Caſe, there we are to apply general Rules, and govern our ſelves according to the Analogy and Proportion they bear towards each other.

But now it often falls out, That in ſuch doubtful Caſes we are entangled in our own Thoughts, and put to a loſs what courſe to take. We pray with David, that God would make his way plain before us, Pſal. 5. 8. Afraid we are of diſpleaſing God, and yet doubtful we may do ſo; whether we reſolve this way, or that. And this comes to paſs not only thro' the difficulty of the Caſe, but from our own ignorance and inadvertency? And very frequently from thoſe Providences that lie before us, wherein God ſeems to hint his mind to us, this way or that, and whether we may ſafely guide our ſelves by thoſe intimations of Providence, is doubtful to us.

That God doth give men ſecret hints and intimations of his Will by his Providence, cannot be doubted; but yet Providences in themſelves, are no ſtable rule of Duty, nor ſufficient diſcovery of the Will of God. We may ſay of them, as it is, Job 23. 8, 9. Behold, I go forward, but he is not there: and backward, but I cannot perceive him: On the left Hand where he doth work, but I cannot behold him: He hideth himſelf on the right Hand, that I cannot ſee him.

If Providence in it ſelf be allowed to be a ſufficient diſcovery of God's Will to us, then we ſhall be forced often times to juſtifie and condemn the ſame Cauſe or Perſon, foraſmuch as there is one Event happens to all, and as it falls out to the Good, ſo to the Wicked, Eccleſ. 9 2. Beſide, if Providence alone were the Rule to judge any Action or Deſign by; then a wicked Undertakement would ceaſe to be ſo, if it ſhould ſucceed well; but Sin is Sin ſtill, and Duty is Duty ſtill, what ever the Events and Iſſues of either be.

3. The ſafeſt way therefore to make uſe of Providence in ſuch Caſes is, to conſider them as they follow the Commands or Promiſes of the Word, and not ſingly and ſeparately in themſelves. If you ſearch the Scriptures with an indifferent and unbyaſſed Spirit, in a doubtful Caſe, pray for Counſel and Direction from the Lord, attend to the dictates of Conſcience. And when you have done all, ſhall find the Providences of God falling out agreeably to the dictates of your own Conſcience, and the beſt Light you can find in the Word, you may in ſuch Caſes make uſe of it as an Encouragement to you, in the way of your Duty: But the moſt ſignal Demonſtrations of Providence are not to be accepted againſt a Scripture Rule; no ſmiles or ſucceſſes of Providence may in this Caſe encourage us to proceed; and on the other ſide, no frowns or diſcouragements of Providence ſhould diſhearten us in the way of our Duty, how many ſoever we ſhould encounter therein. Holy Job could not find the meaning of God in his Works, yet would he not go back from the Commandments of his Lips, Job 23. 9. The like Reſolution you find in David, to proceed in his Duty, and cleave to the Word, how many ſtumbling Blocks ſoever Providence ſhould permit to be laid in his way. I am become (ſaith he) like a bottle in the Smoke (not only blackt, but withered up by troubles) yet do I not forget thy Statutes, Pſalm 119. 13. and again Ver. 87. They had almoſt conſumed me upon Earth: But I forſook not thy Precepts.

Paul by the Direction of the Spirit was engaged to go to Jeruſalem, Acts 20. 22. After a clear Revelation of the Mind of God to him in that Matter, how many difficult and diſcouraging Providences befel him in his way? The Diſciples of Tyre ſaid to him by the Spirit (tho' in that they followed their own Spirits) that he ſhould not go to Jeruſalem, Acts 21. 4.

Then at Cæſarea he met Agabus a Prophet, who told him what ſhould befal him when he came thither, Chap. 21. 10, 11. All this will not diſſwade him. And after all this, how paſſionately do the Brethren beſeech him to decline that Journey? Ver. 12, 13. Yet knowing his Rule, and reſolving to be faithful to it, he puts by all and proceeds in his Journey.

Well then, Providence in Concurrence with the Word may give ſome Encouragement to us in our Way; but no Teſtimony of Providence is to be accepted againſt the Word. If Scripture and Conſcience tell you, ſuch a way is ſinful, you may not venture upon it, how many opportunities and encouragements ſoever Providence may ſuffer to offer themſelves to you, for they are only permitted for your Trial, not your encouragement: Take this therefore for a ſure Rule, That no Providence can legitimate, or juſtifie any moral Evil. Nor will it be a Plea before God for any Man to ſay, The Providence of God gave me Encouragement to do it, though the Word gave me none. If therefore in doubtful Caſes, you would diſcover God's Will, govern your ſelves in your ſearch after it by theſe Rules.

1. Get the true fear of God upon your Hearts, be really afraid of offending him, God will not hide his mind from ſuch a Soul, Pſalm 25. 14. The Secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will ſhew them his Covenant.

Excelent

2. Study the Word more, and the Concerns and Intereſts of the World leſs. The Word is a light to your Feet, Pſal. 119. 10. 5. (i. e.) it hath a diſcovering and directive Uſefulneſs as to all Duties to be done, and Dangers to be avoided: It is the great Oracle at which you are to enquire: Treaſure up its rules in your Hearts, and you will walk ſafely, Pſalm 119. 11. Thy Word have I hid in my Heart that I might not Sin againſt thee.

3 Reduce what you know into practice, and you ſhall know what is your Duty to practiſe, John 7. 17. If any Man do his Will he ſhall know of the Doctrine. Pſalm 111. 10. A good Underſtanding have all they that do thereafter.

4. Pray for Illumination and Direction in the way that you ſhould go; beg the Lord to guide you in ſtraits, and that he would not ſuffer you to fall into Sin. This was the Holy Practice of Ezra, chap. 8. 21. Then I proclaimed a faſt there at the River Ahava, that we might afflict our ſelves before our God, to ſeek of him a right way for us, and for our little ones, and for all our ſubſtance.

5. And this being done, follow Providence ſo far as it agrees with the Word, and no farther. There is no uſe to be made of Providence againſt the Word, but in ſubſerviency to it. And there are two excellent Uſes of Providence in ſubſerviency to the Word. (1.) Providences as they follow Promiſes and Prayer are Evidences of God's Faithfulneſs in their Accompliſhment. When David languiſhed under a Diſeaſe, and his Enemies began to triumph in the Hopes of his downfal; he prays, Pſalm 41. 10. That God would be merciful to him, and raiſe him up; and by that, he ſaith, He knew the Lord favoured him, becauſe his Enemy did not triumph over him, ver. 11. This Providence he looked upon as a Token for Good, as elſewhere he calls it, Pſal. 86. 17. And (2.) Providences give us loud calls to thoſe Duties which the Command lays upon us, and tells us when we are actually and preſently under the Obligation of the Commands as to the Performance of them. Thus when ſad Providences befal the Church or our ſelves, they call us to Humiliation; and let us know that then the Command upon us to humble our ſelves at the Feet of God is in force upon us, Micah 6. 9. The Lords Voice cryeth to the City, and the Man of Wiſdom ſhall ſee thy Name, hear the Rod, and who hath appointed it. The Rod hath a Voice; and what doth it ſpeak? Why now is the Time to humble your ſelves under the mighty Hand of God This is the Day of trouble in which God hath bid you to call upon him. And è contra, when comfortable Providences refreſh us, it now informs us, this is the time to rejoice in God according to the Rule, Eccleſ. 7. 14. In the Day of Proſperity be joyful. Theſe Precepts bind always, but not to always. It's our Duty therefore and our Wiſdom to diſtinguiſh Seaſons, and know the proper Duties of every Seaſon: And Providence is an Index that Points them out to us. Thus of the firſt Caſe.

Præcepta affirmativa obligant ſemper, non ad ſemper.

The Second Caſe.

How may a Chriſtian be ſupported in waiting upon God whil'ſt Providence delays the Performance of the Mercies to him for which he hath long pray'd and waited?

Two Things are ſuppoſed in this Caſe.

(1.) That Providence may linger and delay the Performance of thoſe Mercies to us that we have long waited and prayed for.

(2.) That during that Delay and Suſpenſion, our Hearts and Hopes may be very low, and ready to fail.

1. Providence may long delay the Performance of thoſe Mercies we have prayed and waited upon God for.

For the right Underſtanding of this, know that there is a twofold Term or Seaſon fixed for the Performance of Mercy to us. One by the Lord our God, in whoſe hand Times and Seaſons are, Acts 1. 7. Another by our ſelves, who raiſe up our own Expectations of Mercies ſometimes meerly through the eagerneſs of our Deſires after them, and ſometimes upon uncertain conjectural Grounds and appearances of Encouragement that lie before us.

Now nothing can be more preciſe, certain, and punctual, than is the Performance of Mercy at the Time and Seaſon which God hath appointed, how long ſoever it be, or how many Obſtacles ſoever lie in the way of it. There was a Time prefixed by God himſelf for the Performance of that Promiſe of Iſrael's deliverance out of Egypt; and it's ſaid, Exod. 12. 41. At the end of the four hundred and thirty Years, even the ſelf ſame day it came to paſs, that all the hoſt of the Lord went out of the Land of Egypt. Compare this with Acts 7. 17, and there you have the Ground and Reaſon why their deliverance was not, nor could be delayed one Day longer, becauſe the Time of the Promiſe was now come. Promiſes like a pregnant Woman muſt accompliſh their appointed Months, and when they have ſo done, Providence will Midwife the Mercies they go big withal into the World, and not one of them ſhall miſcarry.

But for the Seaſons which are of our own fixing and appointment, as God is not tied to them, ſo his Providence; are not governed by them: And hence are our Diſappointments. We looked for Peace, but no good came; for a Time of Health, and behold Trouble, Jer. 8. 15. And hereupon is it that we fret at the delays of Providence, and ſuſpect the Faithfulneſs of God in their Performance. But his Thoughts are not our Thoughts, Iſa. 55. 8. The Lord is not ſlack concerning his Promiſe as Men count ſlackneſs, 2 Pet. 3. 9. It is ſlackneſs if you reckon by our own rule and meaſure, but it is not ſo, if you reckon and count it by God's. The Lord doth not compute and reckon his Seaſons of working by our Arithmetick You have both theſe Rules compared, and the Ground of our miſtake detected in that Scripture, Hab. 2. 3. The Viſion is yet for an appointed Time, but at the end it ſhall ſpeak, and not lye: Though it tarry, wait for it, becauſe it will ſurely come, it will not tarry.

God appoints the Time: When that appointed time is come, the expected Mercies will not fail: But in the mean Time, though it tarry (ſaith the Prophet) wait for it, for it will not tarry. Tarry, and not tarry, how ſhall this be reconciled? The meaning is, it may tarry much beyond your Expectation, but not a moment beyond God's Appointment.

2. During this delay of Providence, the Hearts and Hopes of the People of God may be very low, and much diſcouraged. This is too plain from what the Scriptures have recorded of others, and every one of us may find in our own Experiences. We have an Inſtance of this in Iſa. 49. 13, 14. in the 13. ver. you have God's faithful Promiſe, that he will Comfort his People, and have Mercy upon his Afflicted. Enough one would think to Raiſe and Comfort their Hearts. But the Mercy promiſed was long in coming, they waited from Year to Year, and ſtill the burthen preſſed them, and was not removed. And therefore ver. 14. Zion ſaid, the Lord hath forſaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me, q. d. It's in vain to look for ſuch a Mercy, God hath no regard to us, we are out of his Heart and Mind, he neither Cares for us nor Minds what becomes of us.

So it was with David, after God had made him ſuch a Promiſe, and in the Time thereof ſo faithfully performed it, that never was Mercy better ſecured to any Man; for they are call'd, the ſure mercies of David, Iſa. 55. 3. Yet Providence delayed the Accompliſhment of them ſo long, and ſuffered ſuch Difficulties to intervene, that he even deſpairs to ſee the Accompliſhment of them, but even concludes God had forgotten him too, Pſalm 13. 1. How long wilt thou forget me, O Lord, for ever? And what he ſpeaks here by way of Queſtion, he elſewhere turns into a poſitive Concluſion, Pſal. 116. 11. All Men are Lyars, I ſhall one day periſh by the hand of Saul. And the Cauſes of theſe Deſpondencies, and ſinkings of Heart are partly from our ſelves, and partly from Satan. If we duly examine our own Hearts about it, we ſhall find that theſe ſinkings of Heart are,

1. The immediate Effects of Unbelief. We do not depend and rely upon the Word with that full Truſt and Confidence that is due to the infallible Word of a faithful and unchangeable God. You may ſee the Ground of this faintneſs in that Scripture, Pſalm 27. 13: I had fainted unleſs I had believed. Faith is the only Cordial that relieves the Heart againſt theſe Faintings and Deſpondencies. Where this is wanting, or is weak, no wonder our Hearts ſink at this rate, when Diſcouragements are before us.

2. Our judging and meaſuring things by the rules of Senſe, this is a great Cauſe of our Diſcouragements. We conclude, According to the Appearances of things will be their Iſſues. If Abraham had done ſo, in that great Tryal of his Faith, he had certainly loſt his footing; but againſt Hope, (i. e.) againſt natural probability, he believed in Hope, giving Glory to God, Rom. 4. 18. If Paul had done ſo, he had fainted under his Tryals, 2 Cor. 4. 16, 18. We faint not (ſaith he) whilſt we look not at the things that are ſeen, q. d. That which keeps up our Spirits, is our looking off from things preſent and viſible, and meaſuring all by another rule, viz. The Power and Fidelity of God firmly engaged in the Promiſes.

3. In all theſe things Satan manages a deſign upon us. Hence he takes occaſions to ſuggeſt hard Thoughts of God and to beat off our Souls from all Confidence in him, and Expectations from him. He is the great make-bate betwixt God and the Saints. He reports the Difficulties and Fears that are in our way with advantage, and labours to weaken our Hands, and diſcourage our Hearts in waiting upon God. And theſe Suggeſtions gain the more Credit with us, becauſe they are confirm'd and atteſted by ſenſe and feeling.

But here is a deſperate Deſign carrying on under very plauſible Pretences againſt our Souls. It concerns us to be watchful now, and maintain our Faith and Hope in God Now bleſſed is he that can reſign all to God, and quietly wait for his Salvation. To aſſiſt the Soul in this difficulty, I ſhall offer ſome farther Help beſide what hath been formerly given under the firſt Caution, in the following Conſiderations.

Firſt Conſideration.

Though Providence do not yet perform the Mercies you wait for, yet you have no ground to entertain hard thoughts of God; for it's poſſible God never gave you any ground for your Expectation of theſe things from him. It may be you have no Promiſe to bottom your Hope upon; and if ſo, why ſhall God be ſuſpected and diſhonoured by you in a Caſe wherein his Truth and Faithfulneſs was never engaged to you? If we are croſſed in our outward Concernments, and ſee our Expectations of Proſperity daſhed; if we ſee ſuch or ſuch an outward Comfort removed, from which we promiſed our ſelves much; why muſt God be accuſed for this? Theſe things you promiſed your ſelves: But where did God Promiſe you Proſperity, and the Continuance of thoſe comfortable things to you? Produce his Promiſe, and ſhew wherein he hath broken it. It is not enough for you to ſay, There are general Promiſes in the Scripture, that God will withhold no good thing, and theſe are good things which Providence withholds from you; for that Promiſe, Pſal. 84. 11. Hath its Limitations, it is expreſly limited to ſuch as walk uprightly; and it concerns you to examine whether you have done ſo, before you quarrel with Providence for non performance of it. Ah Friend, ſearch thine own Heart, reflect upon thine own Ways; ſeeſt thou not ſo many flaws in thine Integrity, ſo many turnings aſide from God, both in Heart and Life, that may juſtifie God, not only in withholding what thou lookeſt for, but in removing all that thou enjoyeſt? And beſides this Limitation as to the Object, it's limited (as all other Promiſes relating to externals are) in the matter or things premiſed by the Wiſdom and Will of God, which is the only Rule by which they are meaſured out to Men in this World, (i e.) ſuch Mercies in ſuch Proportions as he ſees needful and moſt conducible to your good; and theſe given out in ſuch Times and Seaſons as are of his own Appointment, not yours.

God never came under an abſolute unlimited tie for outward Comforts to any of us; and if we be diſappointed, we can blame none but our ſelves. Who bid us expect reſt, eaſe, delight, and things of this kind in this World? He hath never told us, we ſhall be rich, healthy and at eaſe in our Habitations; but on the contrary, he hath often told us, we muſt expect troubles in the World, John 16. 33. And that through many Tribulations we muſt enter into his Kingdom, Acts 14. 22. All that he ſtands bound to us by Promiſe for, is to be with us in trouble, Pſal. 91. 15. to ſupply our real and abſolute needs, Iſa. 41. 17. When the Poor and Needy ſeek Water, and there is none, and their Tongue faileth for thirſt, I the Lord will hear them, I the God of Iſrael will not forſake them; and to ſanctifie all theſe Providences to our Good at laſt, Rom. 8. 28. All Things ſhall Work together for good to them that Love God. And as to all theſe things not one Tittle ever did, or ſhall fail.

Second Conſideration.

But if you ſay you have long waited upon God for ſpiritual Mercies to your Souls according to the Promiſe, and ſtill thoſe Mercies are deferred, and your Eyes fail whilſt you look for them; I would deſire you ſeriouſly to conſider of what kind thoſe ſpiritual Mercies are, for which you have ſo long waited upon God. Spiritual Mercies are of two ſorts; ſuch as belong to the Eſſence, the very being of the new Creature, without which it muſt fail: Or to its well-being, and the Comfort of the inner Man; without which you cannot live ſo chearfully as you would. The Mercies of the former kind are abſolutely neceſſary, and therefore put into abſolute Promiſes, as you ſee, Jer. 32. 40. And I will make an Everlaſting Covenant with them, that I will not turn away from them to do them good, but I will put my fear in their Hearts, that they ſhall not depart from me. But for the reſt they are diſpenſed to us in ſuch Meaſures, and at ſuch Seaſons as the Lord ſees fit, and many of his own People live for a long Time without them. The Donation and Continuation of the Spirit, to quicken, ſanctifie and unite us with Chriſt is neceſſary, but his Joys and Comforts are not ſo. A Child of Light may walk in darkneſs, Iſa. 50. 10. He lives by Faith, and not by Feeling.

Third Conſideration.

You complain, Providence delays to perform to you the Mercies you have prayed and waited for; but have you right Ends in your Deſires after theſe Mercies? It may be that's the Cauſe, you ask and receive not, James 4. 3. The want of a good Aim, is the Reaſon why we want good Succeſs in our Prayers. It may be we Pray for Proſperity, and our End is to pleaſe the Fleſh; we look no higher than the Pleaſure and Accommodation of the Fleſh; we beg and wait for deliverance from ſuch a Trouble and Affliction, not that we might be the more expedite and prepared for Obedience, but freed of what is grievous to us, and deſtroys our Pleaſure in the World.

Certainly, if it be ſo, you have more need to judge and condemn your ſelves, than to cenſure and ſuſpect the Care of God.

Fourth Conſideration.

You wait for good, and it comes not; but is your Will brought to a due Submiſſion to the Will of God about it? Certainly God will have you come to this before you enjoy your Deſires. Enjoyment of your Deſires is the thing that will pleaſe you, but Reſignation of your Wills, is that which is pleaſing to God: If your Hearts cannot come to this, Mercies cannot come to you. David was made to wait long for the Mercy promiſed him, yea, and to be content without it before he enjoied it, Pſalm 131. 2. He was brought to be as a weaned Child, and ſo muſt you.

Fifth Conſideration.

Your betters have waited long upon God for Mercy, and why ſhould not you? David waited till his Eyes failed, Pſal. 69. 3. The Church waited for him in the way of his Judgments, Iſa. 26. 8. Are you better than all the Saints that are gone before you? Is God more obliged to you, than to all his People? They have quietly waited, and why ſhould not you?

Sixth Conſideration.

Will you loſe any thing by patient waiting upon God for Mercies? Certainly, not at all: Yea, it will turn to a double advantage to you, to continue in a quiet ſubmiſſive waiting poſture upon God. For, (1.) Though you do not yet enjoy the good you wait for, yet all this while you are exerciſing your Grace; and its more excellent to act Grace, than to enjoy Comfort. All this while the Lord is training you up in the exerciſe of Faith and Patience, and bending your Wills in Submiſſion to himſelf; and what do you loſe by that? Yea, and (2.) When ever the deſired Mercy comes, it will be ſo much the ſweeter to you: For, look how much Faith and Prayer hath been employed to produce it, how many wreſtlings you have had with God for it, ſo many more Degrees of ſweetneſs you will find in it, when it comes. O therefore faint not, how long ſoever God delay you.

Seventh Conſideration.

Are not thoſe Mercies you expect from God worth the waiting for? If not, it is your folly to be troubled for the want of them: If they be, why don't you continue waiting? Is it not all that God expects from you for the Mercies he beſtows upon you, that you wait upon him for them? You know you have not deſerved the leaſt of them at his Hands. You expect them not as a recompence, but a free favour, and if ſo, then certainly the leaſt you can do, is to wait upon his Pleaſure for them.

Eighth Conſideration.

Conſider how many Promiſes are made in the Word to waiting Souls. One Scripture calls them bleſſed that wait for him, Iſa. 30. 18. Another tells us, none that wait for him ſhall be aſhamed, Pſalm 25. 3. (i. e.) they ſhall not be finally diſappointed, but at laſt be Partakers of their Hopes. A third Scripture tells us, they that wait upon the Lord, ſhall renew their ſtrength, Iſa. 40. 31. a Promiſe you had need make much uſe of in ſuch a fainting Time, with many more of like Nature; and ſhall we faint at this rate in the midſt of ſo many cordials as are prepared to revive us in theſe Promiſes?

Ninth Conſideration.

How long hath God waited upon you when you will comply with his Commands, come up to your Engagements and Promiſes? You have made God wait long for your Reformation and Obedience; and therefore have no Reaſon to think it much, if God make you wait long for your Conſolation. We have our How longs, and hath not God his? We cry, Pſalm 6. 3. But thou O Lord, how long? Pſalm 13. 1, 2. How long wilt thou forget me, O Lord, for ever? How long wilt thou hide thy Face from me? How long ſhall I take Counſel in my Soul, having ſorrow in my Heart daily? How long ſhall mine enemy be exalted over me? But ſurely we ſhould not think theſe things long, when we conſider, how long the Lord hath exerciſed his Patience about us. We have made him ſay, How long, how long? Our unbelief hath made him cry, How long will it be e'er they believe me? Numb. 14. 11. Our corrupt Hearts have made him cry, How long ſhall vain thoughts lodge within thee? Jer. 4. 14. Our impure Natures and Ways have made him cry, How long will it be e'er they attain to innocency? Hoſea 8. 5. If God wait upon you with ſo much Patience for your Duties, well may you wait upon him for his Mercies.

Tenth Conſideration.

This impatience and infidelity of yours, expreſt in your wearineſs to wait any longer, as it is a great Evil in it ſelf, ſo very probably it is that Evil which obſtructs the way of your expected Mercies: You might have your Mercies ſooner, if your Spirits were quieter and more ſubmiſſive.

And thus of the Second Caſe.

The Third Caſe.

How may a Chriſtian diſcern when a Providence is ſanctified, and comes from the Love of God to him?

There are two ſorts or kinds of Providences verſant about Men in this World, the Iſſues and Events of which are vaſtly different, yea, contrary to each other.

1. To ſome all Providences are over-ruled and ordered for good, according to that bleſſed Promiſe, Rom. 8. 28. Not only things that are good in themſelves, as Ordinances, Graces, Duties and Mercies; but things that are Evil in themſelves, as Temptations, Afflictions, and even their Sins and Corruptions ſhall turn in the Iſſue to their Advantage and Benefit. For though Sin be ſo intrinſecally and formally Evil in its own Nature, that in it ſelf it be not capable of Sanctification; yet out of this worſt of Evils God can work good to his People; and though he never make Sin the Inſtrument of good, yet his Providence may make it the occaſion of good to his People; ſo that ſpiritual Benefits may by the wiſe over-ruling of Providence be occaſioned to the People of God by it.

And ſo for Afflictions of all kinds, the greateſt and ſoreſt of them; they do work in the influence of Providence a great deal of good to the Saints, and that not only as the occaſions, but as the Inſtruments and Means of it, Iſa. 27. 9. By this ſhall the Iniquity of Jacob be purged, (i. e.) by the inſtrumentality of this ſanctified Affliction.

2. To others nothing is ſanctified either as an Inſtrument or occaſion of any ſpiritual good; but as the worſt things are ordered to the Benefit of the Saints, ſo the beſt things wicked Men enjoy do them no good. Their Prayers are turned into Sin. Pſalm 109. 7. The Ordinances are the ſavour of Death, 2 Cor. 2. 16 The Grace of God turned into wantonneſs, Jude v. 4. Chriſt himſelf a rock of Offence, 1 Pet. 2. 8. Their Table a ſnare, Pſal. 69. 22. Their Proſperity their ruine, Prov 1. 32. As Perſons are, ſo things work for good or evil, Tit. 1. 15. To the pure all things are pure, but to them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure.

Seeing therefore the Events of Providence fall out ſo oppoſite to each other upon the Godly, and Ungodly; every thing farthering the Eternal Good of the one, and the Ruine of the other; it cannot but be acknowledged a moſt important Caſe in which every Soul is deeply concern'd, whether the Providences under which he is, be ſanctified to him or no?

For the Clearing of which I ſhall Premiſe two neceſſary Conſiderations, and then ſubjoin the Rules which will be uſeful for the Determination of the Queſtion.

And firſt, Let it be conſidered, that we cannot know from the Matter of the things before us, whether they be ſanctified or unſanctified to us; for ſo conſider'd, All things come alike to all; and no Man knoweth either love or hatred by all the things that are before him, Eccleſ. 9. 1, 2. We cannot underſtand the mind and Heart of God, by the things he diſpenſeth with his Hand. If proſperous Providences befal us, we cannot ſay, Herein is a ſure ſign that God loves me; for who have more of thoſe Providences than the People of his Wrath? Pſalm 73. 7. They have more than their Hearts can wiſh. Sure that muſt be a weak Evidence for Heaven, which accompanies ſo great a part of the World to Hell. By theſe things we may teſtifie our love to God; but from ten thouſand ſuch enjoyments we cannot get any ſolid aſſurance of his Love to us.

And from adverſe afflictive Providences we cannot know his hatred. If Afflictions, great Afflictions, many Afflictions, long continued Afflictions ſhould ſet a brand, or fix a Character of God's hatred upon the Perſons on whom they fall; where then ſhall we find Gods People in the World? We muſt then ſeek out the proud vain ſenſual Wantons of the World, who ſpend their days in pleaſure, and ſay theſe are the Men whom God loves.

Outward things are promiſcuouſly diſpenſed, and no man's ſpiritual eſtate is diſcernable by the view of his temporal. When God draws the Sword, it may cut off the righteous as well as the wicked, Ezek. 21. 3.

2. Tho' the Providences of God materially conſidered afford no Evidence of God's love to us, yet the manner in which they befal us, and the effects and fruits they produce in us, do diſtinguiſh them very manifeſtly; and by them we may diſcern whether they be ſanctified Providences, and fruits of the Love of God, or no. But yet theſe effects and fruits of Providences by which we diſcern their nature, do not always preſently appear; but time muſt be allowed for the Souls exerciſe under them: As it is Heb. 12. 11. Now no affliction for the preſent ſeemeth joyous, but grievous: nevertheleſs afterwards it yieldeth the peaceable fruits of Righteouſneſs unto them which are exerciſed thereby.

The benefit of a Providence is diſcern'd as that of a Medicine is, for the preſent it gripes, and makes the ſtomach ſick and loathing; but afterwards we find the benefit of it in our recovery of health and chearfulneſs. Now the Providences of God being ſome of them comfortable, and others ſad and grievous to Nature, and the way to diſcern the ſanctification and bleſſing of them, being by the manner in which they come, and their operations upon our Spirits; I ſhall conſider the Caſe as it reſpects both ſorts of Providences, and ſhew you what effects of our troubles or comforts will ſpeak them to be ſanctified and bleſſed to us.

And firſt for ſad and afflictive Providences in what kind or degree ſoever they befal us, we may warrantably conclude, they are bleſſings to us, and come from the love of God, when

1. They come in a proper ſeaſon, when we have need of them, either to prevent ſome ſin we are falling into, or recover us out of a remiſs, ſupine, and careleſs frame of ſpirit into which we are already fallen, 1 Pet. 1. 6. if need be, ye are in heavineſs. Certainly, it is a good ſign that God deſigns your good by thoſe troubles which are ſo fitted and wiſely order'd to nick the opportunity. If you ſee the Husbandman lopping a tree in the proper Seaſon, it argues he aims at the fruitfulneſs and flouriſhing of it; but to do the ſame thing at Midſummer ſpeaks no regard to it, yea, his deſign to deſtroy it.

2. When they are fitted both for quality and degree to work properly upon our moſt predominant corruptions, then they look like ſanctified ſtrokes. The Wiſdom of God is much ſeen in the choice of his rods. It is not any kind of trouble that will work upon and purge every ſin; but when God chuſes for ſuch afflictions as like Phyſick are appropriated to the diſeaſe the Soul labours under; this ſpeaks divine care and love. Thus we may obſerve, its uſual with God to ſmite us in thoſe very comforts which ſtole away too much of the love and delight of our Souls from God: To croſs us in thoſe things from which we raiſed up too great expectations of comfort. Theſe Providences ſpeak the jealouſie of God over us, and his care to prevent far worſe evils by theſe ſad but needful ſtrokes. And ſo for the degrees of our troubles, ſanctified ſtrokes are ordinarily fitted by the wiſdom of God to the ſtrength and ability of our inherent grace, Iſa. 17. 8. in meaſure when it ſhooteth forth thou wilt debate with it: he ſtayeth his rough wind in the day of the eaſt wind. It is an Alluſion to a Phyſician who exactly weighs and meaſures all the ingredients which he mingles in a potion for his ſick patient; that it may be proportionate to his ſtrength and no more; and ſo much the next words intimate, by this therefore ſhall the iniquity of Jacob be purged.

3. It is a good ſign our troubles are ſanctified to us, when they turn our hearts againſt ſin, and not againſt God. There be few great afflictions which befall men, but they make them quarrelſome and diſcontented. Wicked men quarrel with God, and are filled with diſcontent againſt him. So the Scripture deſcribes them, Rev. 17. 9 They were ſcorched with great heat, and blaſphemed the name of God, which hath power over theſe plagues. But Godly men to whom afflictions are ſanctified, they Juſtified God, and fall out with ſin, they condemn themſelves, and give glory to God, Dan. 9. 7. O Lord, righteouſneſs belongeth unto thee, but unto us confuſion of faces, &c. And Lam. 3. 39. Wherefore doth a living man complain, a man for the puniſhment of his ſins! Happy afflictions, which make the Soul fall out and quarrel only with ſin.

4. It is a ſure ſign afflicting Providences are ſanctified when they purge the heart from ſin, and leave both heart and life more pure, heavenly, mortified, and humble than they found them Sanctified afflictions are cleanſers, they pull down the pride, refine the earthlineſs, and purge out the vanity of the Spirit. So you read, Dan. 11. 35. it purifies and makes their Soul white: Hence it's compar'd to a furnace which ſeparates the droſs from the pure metal, Iſa. 48. 10. Behold I have refined thee, but not with Silver: I have choſen thee in the furnace of affliction. But for wicked men, let them be never ſo long in the Furnace, they loſe no droſs, Ezek. 24 6. How many Chriſtians can bear witneſs to this truth! After ſome ſharp affliction hath been upon them, how is the earthlineſs of their hearts purged! they ſee no beauty, taſte no more reliſh in the world than in the white of an Egg. Oh how ſerious, humble, and heavenly are they, till the impreſſions made upon them by afflictions be worn off, and their deceitful luſts have again entangled them! And this is the reaſon why we are ſo often under the diſcipline of the rod. Let a Chriſtian (ſaith a late writer) be but two or three years without an affliction, and he is almoſt good for nothing: he cannot pray, nor meditate, nor diſcourſe at that rate he was wont do: but when a new affliction comes, now he can find his tongue, and come to his knees again, and live at another rate.

5. It is a good ſign afflicted Providences are ſanctified to us, when we draw near to God under them and turn to him that ſmites us. A wicked man under affliction revolts more and more, Iſa. 1. 5. turns not to him that ſmites him, Iſa. 9. 13. but grows worſe than before; formality is turned into ſtupidity and dedolency.

But if God afflict his own people with a ſanctified rod, it awakens them to a more earneſt ſeeking of God: it makes them pray more frequently, ſpiritually and fervently than ever. When Paul was buffeted by Satan, he beſought the Lord thrice, 2 Cor. 12 8.

6. We may conclude our afflictions to be ſanctified, and to come from the love of God to us when they do not alienate our hearts from God, but enflame our love to him. This is a ſure rule, whatever ends in the increaſe of our love to God, proceeds from the love of God to us A wicked man finds his heart riſing againſt God, when he ſmites him; but a gracious heart cleaves the cloſer to him: he can love, as well as juſtifie an afflicting God. All this is come upon us; yet have we not forgotten thee, neither have we dealt falſly in thy Covenant: our heart is not turned back, neither have our ſteps declined from thy way: though thou haſt ſore broken us in the place of Dragons, and covered us with the ſhadow of Death, Pſal. 44. 17, 18, 19 Here you have a true account of the temper and frame of a gracious ſoul under greateſt afflictions. To be broken in the place of Dragons and covered with the ſhadow of Death imports the moſt diſmal ſtate of affliction: yet even then a gracious heart turns not back (i. e.) doth not for all this abate one drachm of love to God: God is as good and dear to him in afflictions as ever.

7. Laſtly, We may call our afflictions ſanctified when divine teachings accompany them to our Souls, Pſal. 94. 12. Bleſſed is the man whom thou chaſteneſt, O Lord, and teacheſt him out of thy law. Sanctified afflictions are eye-ſalves, they teach us ſenſibly and effectually when the Spirit accompanies them; the evil of ſin, the vanity of the creature, the neceſſity of ſecuring things that cannot be ſhaken. Never doth a Chriſtian take a truer meaſure both of his corruptions and graces, than under the rod. Now a man ſees that filthineſs that hath been long contracting in proſperity, what intereſt the Creature hath in the heart, how little faith, patience, reſignation, and ſelf-denyal we can find, when God calls us to the exerciſe of them. O 'tis a bleſſed ſign, that trouble is ſanctified, that makes a Man thus turn it upon his own heart, ſearch it and humble himſelf before the Lord for the evils of it!

2. In the next place let us take into conſideration the other branch of Providences which are comfortable and pleaſant. Sometimes it ſmiles upon us in ſucceſſes, proſperity, and the gratification of the deſires of our hearts. Here the Queſtion will be how the ſanctification of theſe Providences may be diſcovered to us? For reſolution in this matter, I ſhall for clearneſs ſake lay down two ſorts of Rules; one Negative, the other Poſitive.

First Negative.

1. It is a ſign, that comfort is not ſanctified to us, which comes not ordinarily in the way of Prayer. The wicked boaſteth of his hearts deſire, and bleſſeth the covetous whom the Lord abhorreth. The wicked through the pride of his countenance will not ſeek after God; God is not in all his thoughts, Pſal. 10. 3, 4. Here you ſee Providence may give men their Hearts deſire, and yet they never once open their Deſires to God in Prayer about it. But then thoſe gifts of Providence are only ſuch as are beſtowed on the worſt of Men, and are not the Fruits of Love.

2. Whatever Succeſs, Proſperity or Comfort Men acquire by ſinful mediums, and indirect Courſes, are not ſanctified Mercies to them. This is not the Method in which thoſe mercies are beſtowed. Better is a little with Righteouſneſs, than great Revenues without Right, Prov. 16. 8. Better upon this account, that it comes in God's way, and with his bleſſing, which never follows the way of Sin. God hath curſed the ways of Sin, and no bleſſing can follow them.

3. Whatever Proſperity and Succeſs makes men forget God, and caſt off the care of Duty, is not ſanctified to them. It is unſanctified Proſperity which lulls men aſleep into a deep Oblivion of God, Deut. 32. 13, 14, 15, 18. He made him ride on the high Places of the Earth that he might eat the increaſe of the Fields; and he made him to ſuck Honey out of the Rock, and Oyl out of the flinty Rock, Butter of Kine, and Milk of Sheep, with Fat of Lambs, and Rams of the breed of Baſhan, and Goats, with the Fat of Kidneys of Wheat, and thou didſt drink the pure Blood of the Grape; but Jeſurun waxed Fat and Kicked; thou art waxed Fat, thou art grown Thick, thou art covered with Fatneſs: Then he forſook God which made him, and lightly eſteemed the Rock of his Salvation. Of the Rock that begat thee thou are unmindful, and haſt forgotten God that formed thee. Rare fumant fœlicibus aræ.

4. When Proſperity is abuſed to Senſuality and meerly ſerves as fuel to maintain Fleſhly Luſts, it is not ſanctified. See Job 21. 11, 12, 13. They ſend forth their little ones like a Flock, and their Children Dance. They take the Timbrel and Harp, and rejoyce at the ſound of the Organ. They ſpend their Days in Wealth, and in a moment go down to the Grave.

5. It's a ſign that Proſperity is not ſanctified to Men, when it ſwells the Heart with Pride and Self conceitedneſs, Dan. 4. 29, 30. At the end of twelve Months he walked in the Palace of the Kingdom of Babylon. The King ſpake and ſaid, Is not this great Babylon that I have built for the Houſe of the Kingdom, by the might of my power, and for the Honour of my Majeſty?

6. That Succeſs is not ſanctified to Men, which takes them off from their Duty, and makes them wholly negligent, or very much indiſpoſed to it, Jer. 2. 31. O generation, ſee the Word of the Lord; have I been a Wilderneſs unto Iſrael? A land of darkneſs? Wherefore ſay my People, We are Lords, we will come no more unto thee?

7. Nor can we think that Proſperity ſanctified, which wholly ſwallows up the Souls of Men in their own Enjoyments, and makes them regardleſs of publick Miſeries or Sins, Amos 6. 4, 5, 6. They lie upon Beds of Ivory, and ſtretch themſelves upon their Couches, and eat the Lambs out of the Flock, and the Calves out of the midſt of the Stall. They chant to the ſound of the Viol, and invent to themſelves Inſtruments of Muſick like David. They drink wine in bowls, and anoint themſelves with the chief Ointments; but they are not grieved for the Afflictions of Joſeph.

But then Poſitively.

1. Thoſe mercies and comforts are undoubtedly ſanctified to men, which humble their Souls kindly before God in the ſenſe of their own vileneſs and unworthineſs of them, Gen. 32. 10. And Jacob ſaid, I am not worthy of the leaſt of all thy mercies, &c.

2. Sanctified mercies are commonly turned into Cautions againſt ſin, Ezra 9. 13. they are ſo many bands of reſtraint upon the ſoul that hath them, to make them ſhun ſin.

3. They will engage a mans heart in love to the God of his mercies, Pſal. 18. 1. compared with the Title.

4. They never ſatisfie a Man as his Portion, nor will the ſoul accept all the proſperity in the world upon that ſcore, Heb. 11. 26. Eſteeming the reproach of Chriſt greater riches than the treaſures in Egypt: for he had reſpect unto the recompence of the reward.

5. Nor do they make Men regardleſs of Publick ſins or miſeries, Nehem. 2. 1, 2, 3. compared with Acts 7. 23.

6. It's a ſure ſign that mercies are ſanctified, when they make the ſoul more expedite and enlarged for God in duty, 2 Chron 17. 5, 6. Therefore the Lord ſtabliſhed the Kingdom in his hand, and all Judah brought to Jehoſhaphat preſents, and he had riches and honour in abundance. And his heart was lift up in the ways of the Lord, &c.

7. To conclude, That which is obtained by prayer, and returned to God again in due praiſe carries his own Teſtimonials with it, that it came from the love of God, and is a ſanctified mercy to the ſoul.

And ſo much of this Third Caſe.

The Fourth Caſe.

How may we attain unto an evenneſs and ſteddineſs of ſpirit under the Changes and contrary Aſpects of Providence upon us?

Three things are ſuppoſed in this Caſe.

1. That Providence hath various and contrary Aſpects upon the People of God.
2. That it is a common thing with them, to experience great diſorders of ſpirit under thoſe Changes of Providence.
3. That theſe Diſorders may be (at leaſt in a great meaſure) prevented, by the due uſe and application of thoſe rules and helps that God hath given us in ſuch Caſes.

1. That Providence hath various, yea, contrary Aſpects upon the people of God, is a caſe ſo plain, that it needs no more than the mentioning, to let it in to all our Underſtandings. Which of all the people of God have not felt this truth? Providence rings the changes all the world over, He encreaſeth the Nations, and deſtroyeth them; he enlargeth the Nations, and ſtraitneth them again, Job 12. 23. The ſame it doth with perſons, Pſal. 102. 10. Thou haſt lifted me up, and caſt me down. See what a ſad Alteration Providence made upon the Church, Lam. 1. 1, 12. How doth the City ſit ſolitary that was full of people! How is ſhe become as a Widow! She that was great among the Nations, and Princeſs among the Provinces, how is ſhe become tributary! Is it nothing to you, all ye that paſs by? Behold and ſee, if there be any ſorrow like unto my ſorrow, which is done unto me, wherewith the Lord hath afflicted me in the day of his fierce anger. And how great an Inſtance was Job of this Truth, Job 29. per tot. and 30. compared? How many thouſands have complained with Naomi, whoſe condition hath been ſo ſtrangely altered, that others have ſaid as the People of Bethlehem did of her, Is this Naomi? Ruth 1. 19, 20, 21.

2. Theſe Viciſſitudes of Providence commonly cauſe great Diſorders of Spirit in the beſt Men. Look as intenſe heat and cold try the ſtrength and ſoundneſs of the Conſtitution of our Bodies, ſo the Alterations made by Providence upon our Conditions, try the ſtrength of our Graces; and too often diſcover the weakneſs and corruption of holy Men. Hezekiah was a good Man: but yet his weakneſs and corruption was bewrayed by the Alterations Providence made upon his Conditions. When ſickneſs and pains ſummoned him to the grave, what bitter complaints and deſpondencies are recorded? in Iſa. 38. per tot. and when Providence lifted him up again into a proſperous Condition, what Oſtentation and vain-glory did he diſcover? Iſa. 39. 2. David had more than a common ſtock of inherent Grace, yet not enough to keep him in an equal temper of Spirit under great Alterations, Pſalm 30. 6, 7. In my Proſperity I ſaid I ſhall never be moved; thou bideſt thy Face and I was troubled. It is not every Man can ſay with Paul, I know both how to be abaſed, and I know how to abound, every where, and in all things I am inſtructed both to be full, and to be hungry, both to abound and to ſuffer need, Phil. 4 12. He is truly rich in Grace, whoſe Riches or Poverty neither hinders the acting, nor impoveriſheth the ſtock of his Graces.

3. Though the beſt Men be ſubject to ſuch diſorders of Heart under the changes of Providence; yet theſe diſorders may in a great meaſure be prevented by the due Application of ſuch Rules and Helps, as God hath given us in ſuch Caſes.

Now, theſe helps are ſuited to a threefold Aſpect of Providence upon us: viz.

1. Comfortable,
2. Calamitous,
3. Doubtful.

To all which I ſhall ſpeak particularly and briefly.

Queſt 1.

How may we attain to an Evenneſs and Steddineſs of Heart under the Comfortable Aſpects of Providence upon us?

Under Providences of this kind, the great danger is, leſt the Heart be lifted up with Pride and Vanity, and fall into a drowſie and remiſs temper. To prevent this, we had need urge humbling and awakening Conſiderations upon our own Hearts; ſuch are theſe that follow.

Firſt Conſideration.

Theſe Gifts of Providence are common to the worſt of Men, and are no ſpecial diſtinguiſhing Fruits of God's Love. The vileſt of Men have been filled even to ſatiety with theſe things, Pſal. 73. 7. Their Eyes ſtand out with Fatneſs: They have more than Heart could wiſh.

Second Conſideration.

Think how unſtable and changeable all theſe things are. What you glory in to day, may be none of yours to morrow, Prov. 23. 5. Riches make themſelves wings, and flee away as an Eagle towards Heaven. As the Wings of a Fowl grow out of the ſubſtance of the body, ſo the cauſe of the Creatures tranſitorineſs is in it ſelf: It's ſubjected to vanity, and that vanity, like Wings, carries it away: they are but fading flowers, James 1. 10.

Third Conſideration.

The Change of Providences is never nearer to the people of God, than when their hearts are lifted up, or grown ſecure by proſperity. Doth Hezekiah glory in his Treaſures? The next news he hears, is of an impoveriſhing Providence at hand Iſa. 39. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7. Others may be left to periſh in unſanctified Proſperity but you ſhall not.

Fourth Conſideration.

This is a great diſcovery of the Carnality and Corruption that is in thy heart: it argues an heart little ſet upon God, little mortified to the world, little acquainted with the vanity and enſnaring nature of theſe things. O you know not what hearts you have, till ſuch Providences try them. And is not ſuch a diſcovery matter of deep humiliation?

Fifth Conſideration.

Was it not better with you in a low condition, than it is now; Reflect, and compare ſtate with ſtate, and time with time. How is the frame of your hearts altered with the alteration of your condition? So God complains of Iſrael, Hoſea 13. 5, 6, I did know thee in the Wilderneſs, the land of drought; according to their paſture, ſo were they filled: they were filled, and their heart was exalted, therefore have they forgotten me ſaith the Lord: q. d. You and I were better acquainted formerly when you were in a low condition; Proſperity hath eſtranged you, and altered the caſe. How ſad is it, that Gods mercies ſhould be the occaſion of our eſtrangement from him?

Queſt. 2.

Upon the other ſide, it's worth conſidering how our hearts may be eſtabliſht and kept ſteddy under Calamitous and adverſe Providences.

Here we are in equal danger of the other Extream, viz. deſpondency and ſinking under the frowns and ſtrokes of croſs Providences. Now to ſupport and eſtabliſh the heart in this caſe, take three helps.

Firſt Conſideration.

Firſt, Conſider, That afflictive Providences are of great uſe to the people of God, they cannot live without them. The Earth doth not more need chaſtening froſts, and mellowing ſnows than our hearts do nipping Providences. Let the beſt Chriſtian be but a few years without them, and he will be ſenſible of the want of them; he will find a ſad remiſſion and declining upon all his graces.

Second Conſideration.

No ſtroke of Calamity upon the People of God, can ſeparate them from Chriſt, Rom. 8. 35. Who ſhall ſeparate us from the Love of Chriſt? Shall Tribulation? There was a time when Job could call nothing in this World but trouble his own: He could not ſay, my Eſtate, my Honour, my Health, my Children; for all theſe were gone; yet then he could ſay, my Redeemer, Job 19. 25. Well then, there is no cauſe to ſink whilſt Intereſt in Chriſt remains ſure to us.

Third Conſideration.

All your Calamities will have an end ſhortly. The longeſt Day of the Saints troubles hath an End; and then, no more troubles for ever. The troubles of the wicked will be to Eternity; but you ſhall ſuffer but a while, 1 Pet. 5. 10. If a thouſand troubles be appointed for you, they will come to one at laſt, and after that no more: Yea, and though our troubles be but for a moment, yet they work for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of Glory. Let that ſupport your Hearts under all your ſufferings.

Queſt. 3.

Laſtly, Let us conſider, what may be uſeful to ſupport and quiet our Hearts under doubtful Providences, when our dear Concernments hang in a doubtful ſuſpence before us, and we know not which way the Providence of God will caſt and determine them.

Now the beſt Hearts are apt to grow ſolicitous and penſive, diſtracted with thoughtfulneſs about the Event and Iſſue. To relieve and ſettle us in this Caſe, the following Conſiderations are very uſeful.

Firſt Conſideration.

Firſt, Let us conſider the Vanity and Inutility of ſuch a ſolicitude, Matth. 6. 27. Which of you (ſaith our Lord) by taking Thought can add one Cubit? We may break our Peace, and waſte our Spirits, but not alter the Caſe. We cannot turn God out of his way, Job 23. 13. He is in one Mind. We may by ſtrugling againſt God increaſe, but not avoid or lighten our Troubles.

Second Conſideration.

How often do we Afflict and Torment our ſelves by our own unquiet Thoughts, when there is no real cauſe or ground for ſo doing? Iſa. 51. 13.——And haſt feared continually every Day, becauſe of the Fury of the Oppreſſor, as if he were ready to deſtroy, and where is the Fury of the Oppreſſor! O what abundance of Diſquiet and Trouble might we prevent, by waiting quietly till we ſee the Iſſues of Providence, and not bringing as we do the Evils of the Morrow upon the Day?

Third Conſideration.

How great ground of quietneſs is it that the whole Diſpoſe and Management of all our Affairs and Concerns is in the Hand of our own God and Father! No Creature can touch us without his Commiſſion or Permiſſion. I know (ſaith Chriſt) thou couldſt have no Power againſt me, except it were given thee from above, John 19. 11. Neither Men nor Devils can act any thing without God's leave; and be ſure he will ſign no Order to your Prejudice.

Fourth Conſideration.

How great Satisfaction muſt it be to all that believe the Divine Authority of the Scripture, that the faithfulneſs of God ſtands engaged for every Line and Syllable found therein? And how many bleſſed Lines in the Bible may we mark, that reſpect even our outward Concerns, and the happy iſſue of them all? Upon theſe two grounds, viz. That our outward Concerns with their ſteddy Direction to a bleſſed End is found in the Word; and this Word being of Divine Authority, the faithfulneſs and honour of God ſtands good for every Tittle that is found there. I ſay theſe are grounds of ſuch ſtability, that our Minds may repoſe with greateſt Security and Confidence upon them even in the cloudieſt Day of trouble. Not only your Eternal Salvation, but your Temporal Intereſts are there ſecured. Be quieted therefore in the Confidence of a bleſſed Iſſue.

Fifth Conſideration.

How great and ſure an expedient have the Saints ever found it to their own Peace, to commit all doubtful Iſſues of Providence to the Lord, and devolve all their Cares upon him, Prov. 16. 3. Commit thy Works unto the Lord, and thy Thoughts ſhall be eſtabliſhed. By Works he means any doubtful, intricate, perplexing buſineſs, about which our Thoughts are rackt and tortur'd; Roll all theſe upon the Lord by Faith, leave them with him, and the preſent immediate Benefit you ſhall have by it (beſides the Comfort in the laſt iſſue) ſhall be Tranquility and Peace in your Thoughts. And who is there of any ſtanding or Experience in Religion that hath not found it ſo?

The Fifth Caſe.

How may a Chriſtian work his Heart into a reſigning frame unto the Will of God, when ſad Providences approach him, and preſage great Troubles and Afflictions coming on towards him?

For the right ſtating and reſolving of this important Caſe, it will be needful to ſhew (1.) What is not included and intended in the Queſtion. (2.) What it doth ſuppoſe and include in it, and laſtly, what helps and directions are neceſſary for the due Performance of this great and difficult Duty.

Firſt, Negatively.

As to the firſt, It muſt be premiſed that the Queſtion doth not ſuppoſe the Heart or Will of a Chriſtian to be at his own command and diſpoſe in this Matter: We cannot reſign it, and ſubject it to the Will of God whenever we deſire ſo to do: The Duty indeed is ours, but the Power by which alone we perform it is God's: We act as we are acted by the Spirit. It is with our Hearts, as with Meteors hanging in the Air, by the influence of the Sun; while that continues they abide above, but when it fails they fall to the Earth: We can do this, and all things elſe be they never ſo difficult, through Chriſt that ſtrengthens us, Phil. 4. 13. But without him we can do nothing, John 15. 5. He doth not ſay, without me ye can do but little, or without me ye can do nothing but with great difficulty, or without me ye can do nothing perfectly; but without me ye can do nothing at all. And every Chriſtian hath a Witneſs in his own Breaſt to atteſt this Truth: For there are Caſes frequently occurring in the Methods of Providence, in which, notwithſtanding all their Prayers and Deſires, all their Reaſonings and Strivings, they cannot quiet their Hearts fully in the Diſpoſe, and Will of God; but on the contrary do find all their endeavours in this matter, to be but as the rolling of a returning Stone againſt the Hill: Till God ſay to the Heart be ſtill, and to the Will give up, nothing can be done.

Secondly, Affirmatively.

Next, Let us conſider what this Caſe doth ſuppoſe, and include in it, and we ſhall find.

1. That it ſuppoſeth the People of God to have a foreſight of Troubles and Diſtreſſes approaching and drawing near to them: I confeſs 'tis not always ſo, for many of our Afflictions, as well as Comforts, come by way of ſurprizals upon us: But oft times we have forewarnings of Troubles both Publick and Perſonal, before we feel them: As the weather may be diſcerned by the Face of the Sky, when we ſee a Morning Sky red and lowring, this is a natural ſign of a foul and rainy Day, Matth. 16 3. And there are as certain ſigns of the Times, whereby we may diſcern when Trouble is near, even at the Door: And theſe forewarnings are given by the Lord to awaken us to our Duties, by which they may either be prevented, Zeph. 2, v. 2. or ſanctified and ſweetned to us when they come. Theſe ſigns and notices of approaching troubles are gathered partly from the Obſervation and Collation of parallel Scripture Caſes and Examples, God generally holding one tenour and ſteddy courſe in the Adminiſtrations of his Providences in all Ages, 1 Cor. 10. 6. partly from the Reflections Chriſtians make upon the Frames and Tempers of their own Hearts, which greatly need awakening, humbling and purging Providences. For let a Chriſtian be but a few Years or Months without a Rod, and how formal, earthly, dead and vain, will his Heart grow? And ſuch a temper preſages Affliction to them that are beloved of the Lord, as really as the giving or ſweating of the ſtones doth rain. Laſtly, The ordering and diſpoſing of the next Cauſes into a Poſture and Preparation for our Trouble, plainly premoniſheth us that Trouble is at the Door. Thus when the Symptoms of ſickneſs begin to appear upon our own Bodies, the Wiſe of our Boſom, or our Children that are as our own Souls, Providence herein awakens our Expectations of Death and doleful Separations: So when Enemies combine together and plot the Ruine of our Liberties, Eſtates, or Lives, and God ſeemeth to looſe the bridle of Reſtraint upon their Necks, now we cannot but be alarmed with the near approach of Troubles, eſpecially when at the ſame time our Conſcience ſhall reflect upon the abuſe and non improvement of theſe our threatned Comforts.

2. The Caſe before us ſuppoſeth, that theſe Premonitions and fore-runners of Affliction, do uſually very much diſturb the Order and break the Peace of our Souls, they put the mind under great Diſcompoſure, the Thoughts under much Diſtraction, and the Affections into Tumutls and Rebellion.

Ah! how unwilling are we to ſurrender to the Lord the Loan which he lent us! To be diſquieted by troubles when at eaſe in our Enjoyments! How unwelcome are the Meſſengers of Affliction to the beſt Men! We are ready to ſay to them as the Widow to Elijah, What have I to do with thee, O Man (O Meſſenger) of God, art thou come unto me to call my Sin to remembrance, and to ſlay my Son? 1 Kings 17. 18. And this ariſeth partly from the remains of Corruption in the beſt Souls, for though every ſanctified Perſon is come by his own Conſent into the Kingdom, and under the Government and Scepter of Chriſt, and every thought of his Heart de jure, and of right, muſt be ſubjected to him, 2 Cor. 10. 5. Yet de facto the Conqueſt and Power of Grace is but incompleat and in part, and natural Corruption like Jeroboam with his vain Men, riſeth up againſt it, and cauſeth many Mutinies in the Soul, whilſt Grace like young Abijah is weak handed, and cannot reſiſt them. And partly from the advantage Satan makes upon the ſeaſon to irritate and aſſiſt our Corruptions: He knows that which is already in motion, is the more eaſily moved. In this Confuſion and hurry of Thoughts he undiſcernedly ſhuffles in his Temptations. Sometimes aggravating the Evils which we fear, with all the ſinking and overwhelming Circumſtances imaginable. Sometimes divining and fore-caſting ſuch Events and Evils, as (haply) never fall out. Sometimes repining at the diſpoſes of God as more ſevere to us than others. And ſometimes reflecting with very unbelieving and unworthy Thoughts upon the Promiſes of God, and his faithfulneſs in them, by all which the Affliction is made to ſink deep into the Soul before it actually comes. The Thoughts are ſo diſordered, that Duty cannot be duly performed. And the Soul is really weakned, and diſabled to bear its tryal when it comes indeed: Juſt as if a Man ſhould be kept waking and reſtleſs all the Night with the Thoughts of his hard Journey which he muſt Travel to Morrow, and ſo when to Morrow is come, he faints for want of Reſt, Midway his Journey.

3. It is here ſuppoſed to be the Chriſtians great Duty, under the Apprehenſions of approaching Troubles to reſign his Will to God's, and quietly commit the Events and Iſſues of all to him, whatever they may prove. Thus did David in the like Caſe and Circumſtances, 2 Sam. 15. 25, 26. And the King ſaid unto Zadock, carry back the Ark of God into the City. If I ſhall find favour in the Eyes of the Lord he will bring me back again, and ſhew me both it and his habitation: But if he ſhall thus ſay, I have no delight in thee, behold here am I, let him do to me as ſeemeth good to him.

O lovely and truely Chriſtian Temper! q. d. go Zadock, return with the Ark to its place, though I have not the ſymbol, yet I hope I ſhall have the real preſence of God with me in this ſad Journey: How he will diſpoſe the Events of this ſad and doubtful Providence I know not: Either I ſhall return again to Jeruſalem, or I ſhall not: if I do, then I ſhall ſee it again, and enjoy the Lord in his Ordinances there. If I do not, then I ſhall go to that Place where there is no need or uſe of thoſe things. And either way it will be well for me, I am content to refer all to the Divine Pleaſure, and commit the Iſſue, be it whatever it will be, to the Lord.

And till our Hearts come to the like reſolve, we can have no Peace within. Commit thy Works unto the Lord, and thy Thoughts ſhall be eſtabliſhed, Prov. 16. 3. By Works he means not only every enterprize and buſineſs we undertake, but every puzzling, intricate, and doubtful Event we fear. Theſe being once committed by an Act of Faith, and our Wills reſigned unto his, beſides the Comfort we ſhall have in the Iſſue, we ſhall have the preſent advantage of a well compoſed, and peaceful Spirit.

But this Reſignation is the difficulty; no doubt of Peace, could we once bring our Hearts to that. And therefore

4. I ſhall here ſubjoyn ſuch Helps and Directions, as may through God's Bleſſing, in the faithful uſe of them, aſſiſt and facilitate this great and difficult Work.

Firſt Help.

And firſt, Labour to work into your Hearts a deep and fixed ſenſe of the infinite Wiſdom of God, and your own folly and ignorance. This will make Reſignation eaſie to you: Whatſoever the Lord doth is by Counſel, Eph. 1. 11. his Underſtanding is infinite, Pſal. 147. 5. his Thoughts are very deep, Pſal. 92. 5. but as for Man, yea the wiſeſt among Men, how little doth his Underſtanding penetrate the Works and Deſigns of Providence? And how oft are we forced to retract our raſh Opinions, and confeſs our Miſtakes? Acknowledging that if Providence had not ſeen with better Eyes than ours, and looked farther than we did, we had precipitated our ſelves into a thouſand miſchiefs, which by its Wiſdom and Care we have eſcaped. It's well for us that the ſeven Eyes of Providence are ever awake, and looking out for our good. Now if one Creature can and ought to be guided and governed by another that is more wiſe and skilful than himſelf, as the Client by his learned Counſel, the Patient by his skilful Phyſician, much more ſhould every Creature give up his weak Reaſon, and ſhallow Underſtanding to the infinite Wiſdom of the Omniſcient God.

It's nothing but our Pride and Arrogance over-valuing our Underſtandings that makes Reſignation ſo hard. * Carnal Reaſon ſeems to it ſelf a wiſe Diſputant about the Concerns of the Fleſh, but how often hath Providence baffled it? The more Humility, the more Reſignation.

* O quam ſapiens argumentatrix ſibi videtur arrogantia humana; præſertim cum aliquid de gaudiis metuit amittere. Tert.

How few of our Mercies and Comforts have been foreſeen by us? Our own Projects have come to nothing, and that which we never thought on, or contrived hath taken Place; not our choice of the ground, or skill in weighing and delivering the Bowl, but ſome unforeſeen Providence, like a rub in the Green was that which made the caſt.

Second Help.

Deeply conſider the ſinfulneſs and vanity of torturing your own Thoughts about the Iſſues of doubtful Providences.

(1.) There is much Sin in ſo doing: For, all our anxious and ſolicitous Emotions, what are they other than the immediate Iſſues and Fruits of Pride and Unbelief? There is not a greater diſcovery of Pride in the World, than in the conteſts of our Wills with the Will of God. It's a preſumptuous invading of God's Prerogative, to dictate to his Providence, and preſcribe to his Wiſdom.

(2.) There is a great deal of Vanity in it: All the thoughtfulneſs in the World will not make one hair white or black: All our diſcontents will not prevail with God to call back (or as the Word may be rendered) make void his Word, Iſa. 31. 2. He is in one mind, Job 23. 13. The Thoughts of his Mind are from Everlaſting, Pſalm 33. 11.

Third Help.

Set before you thoſe choice Scripture Patterns of Submiſſion to the Lords Will in as deep, yea, much deeper Points of ſelf-denial than this before you, and ſhame your ſelves out of this quarrelling Temper with Providence.

You know what a cloſe Tryal that Providence was to Abraham, that called him from his Native Country and Fathers Houſe, to go he knew not whither; and yet it's ſaid in Iſa. 41. 2. He came to God's foot, as readily obeying his call, as a Servant when his Maſter knocks for him with his Foot.

Paul's Voyage to Jeruſalem, had a diſmal aſpect upon himſelf, he could expect nothing but Bonds and Priſons, as he tells us, Acts 20. 23. And a great Tryal it was to the Saints, who could not tell how to give up ſuch a Miniſter, yet he reſigns up his Will to God's, Acts 20. 22. And ſo do they, Acts 21. 14. The Will of the Lord be done.

But far beyond theſe, and all other Patterns, what an Example hath our dear Lord Jeſus ſet before us in the deepeſt Point of Self-denial that ever was in the World. When the Father gave the Cup of Sufferings into his Hands in the Garden, Mark 14. 36. A Cup of Wrath, the Wrath of the great and terrible God, and that without mixture: The very taſte whereof, put Nature into an Agony and Aſtoniſhment, a ſore Amazement, a bloody Sweat, and forced from him that vehement and ſad cry, Father, if it be poſſible, let this Cup paſs; yet ſtill with Submiſſion, nevertheleſs not my Will, but thine be done. O bleſſed pattern of Obedience, and Reſignation to the Pleaſure of God! What is your Caſe to this?

Fourth Help.

Study the ſingular Benefits and Advantages of a Will reſigned up, and melted into the Will of God.

(1.) Such a Spirit hath a continual Sabbath within it ſelf: The Thoughts are eſtabliſhed, Prov. 16. 3. And truly, till a Man come to this, he doth but too much reſemble the Devil, who is a reſtleſs Spirit, ſeeking reſt, but finding none.

It was an excellent Expreſſion of Luther, to one that was much perplexed in his Spirit about the doubtful Events of ſome Affairs of his that were then depending: Dominus tua omnia faciat, & tu nihil facias, ſed ſis Sabbatum Chriſti: (i. e.) The Lord ſhall do all for thee, and thou ſhalt do nothing, but be the Sabbath of Chriſt. It is by this means that the Lord gives his Beloved ſleep, Pſalm 127. 2. He means not the ſleep of the Body, but of the Spirit. Fideles (ſaith One upon that Place) etſi Vitam agant laborioſam, compoſitis tamen & tranquillis animis in fidei ſilentio ſe continent, ac ſi dormirent: (i. e.) Though Believers live in the midſt of many Troubles here, yet with quiet and compoſed Minds they keep themſelves in the ſilence of Faith, as though they were aſleep.

(2.) Beſides, it fits a Mans Spirit for Communion with God in all his Afflictions, and this alleviates and ſweetens them beyond any thing in the World.

(3.) And ſurely a Man is never nearer the Mercy he deſires, or the Deliverance he expects, (as One truly obſerves) than when his Soul is brought into a ſubmiſſive Temper. David was never nearer the Kingdom, than when he became as a weaned Child.

Fifth Help.

Laſtly, Think how repugnant an unſubmiſſive temper is both to your Prayers and Profeſſions.

You pray that the Will of God may be done on Earth, as it is in Heaven, and yet when it ſeems to Croſs your Wills or Intereſts, you ſtruggle and fret againſt it. You profeſs to have committed your Souls to his keeping, and to leave your Eternal Concerns in his Hands; and yet cannot commit things infinitely leſs valuable unto him. How contradictory are theſe Things!

Your Profeſſion, as Chriſtians, ſpeaks you to be led by the Spirit, but this Practice ſpeaks you to follow the perverſe Counſels of your own Spirits. O then regret no more, diſpute no more, but lye down meekly at your Fathers Feet, and ſay in all Caſes and at all Times, the Will of the Lord be done.

And thus I have, through the Aid of Providence, performed what I deſigned to ſpeak from this Scripture. I acknowledge, my Performances have been accompanied with much weakneſs, yet have endeavoured to ſpeak of Providence the Things that are right. Bleſſed be the Lord, who hath thus far aſſiſted and protected me in this Work.

How Providence will diſpoſe of my Life, Liberty, and Labours for Time to come, I know not, but I chearfully commit all to him, who hath hitherto performed all things for me.

Poſtſcript.

IN Conſideration of the great and manifold Advantages reſulting from an humble and heedful Obſervation of Providence, I cannot but judge it the Concernment of Chriſtians that have Time and Ability for ſuch a Work, to keep written Memorials, or Journals of Providences by them; for their own and others uſe and benefit. For want of Collecting and Communicating ſuch Obſervations, not only our ſelves, but the Church of God is damnified and impoveriſhed.

Some ſay, the Art of Medicine was thus acquired and perfected: When any one had met with ſome rare Phyſical Herb, and accidentally diſcovered the Vertues of it, he would poſt it up in ſome publick Place; and ſo the Phyſician attained his skill, by a Collection of thoſe poſted Experiments and Receipts.

I am not for poſting up all that a Chriſtian knows or meets with in his Experience, for (as I have ſaid before) Non eſt religio, ubi omnia patent. Religion doth not lay all open; but yet there is a prudent, humble and ſeaſonable Communication of our Experiences and Obſervations of Providence, which is exceeding beneficial both to our Selves and our Brethren.

If Chriſtians in reading the Scriptures, would judiciouſly Collect and Record the Providences they ſhall meet with there, and (if deſtitute of other helps) but add thoſe that have fallen out in their own Time and Experience; O what a precious Treaſure would theſe make? How would it antidote their Souls againſt the ſpreading Atheiſm of theſe Days, and ſatisfie them, beyond what many other Arguments can do, that The Lord he is God, the Lord he is God.

Whilſt this Work was under my hand, I was both delighted and aſſiſted by a Pious and Uſeful Eſſay of an unknown Author, who hath to very good Purpoſe improved many Scriptural Paſſages of Providence, which ſeem to lye out of the Road of common Obſervation: Some Paſſages I have noted out of it, which have been ſweet to me. And O that Chriſtians would every where ſet themſelves to ſuch Work! Providence carries our Lives, Liberties and Concernments in its hand every Moment. Your Bread is in its Cupboard, your Money in its Purſe, your Safety in its enfolding Arms; and ſure it is the leaſt Part of what you owe, to record the Favours you receive at his Hands. More particularly,

Mr. T. C. in his *Iſagoge.

(1.) Truſt not your ſlippery Memories with ſuch a multitude of remarkable Paſſages of Providence as you have, and ſhall meet with in your way to Heaven. It's true, things that greatly affect us, are not eaſily forgotten by us; and yet, how ordinary is it for new Impreſſions to raze out former ones? It was a Saying of that Worthy Man Dr. Harris, My Memory (ſaid he) never failed me in all my Life; for indeed, I durſt never truſt it. Written Memorials ſecure us againſt that hazard; and beſides, makes them uſeful to others when we are gone. So that you carry not away all your Treaſure to Heaven with you, but leave theſe choice Legacies to your ſurviving Friends. Certainly it were not ſo great a Loſs, to loſe your Silver, your Goods and Chattels, as it is to loſe your Experiences which God hath this way given you in this World.

(2.) Take heed of claſping up thoſe rich Treaſures in a Book, and thinking it enough to have noted them there: But have frequent recourſe to them, as oft as new Wants, Fears, or Difficulties ariſe, and aſſault you. Now, it's ſeaſonable to conſider and reflect, Was I never ſo diſtreſſed before? Is this the firſt Plunge that ever befel me? Let me conſider the Days of Old, the Years of Ancient Times, as Aſaph did, Pſalm 77. 5.

(3.) Laſtly, Beware of ſlighting former ſtraits and dangers in Compariſon with preſent ones. That which is next us, always appears greateſt to us: And as Time removes us farther and farther from our former Mercies or Dangers, ſo they leſſen in our Eyes, juſt as the Land from which they Sail, doth to Sea-men. Know that your dangers have been as great, and your fears no leſs formerly than now. Make it as much your buſineſs, to preſerve the ſenſe and value, as the Memory of former Providences, and the fruit will be ſweet to you.

A Faithful and Succinct Narrative of ſome Late and Wonderful SEA-DELIVERANCES.

The PREFACE.

'TIS a certain Truth, that Religion doth not expoſe all to publick View; and as true, that it doth not impropriate and conceal all within the Limits of a Man's private Breaſt. To expoſe all would be too Phariſaical, and to conceal all would be highly Injurious and Uncharitable; by the former a Man wrongs himſelf, and by the latter many others.

Some Works of Providence have a Deſignation for general Uſe and publick Good in the very Nature of them, ſuch I apprehend theſe to be contained in the following Narratives.

'Tis ſaid the Art of Phyſick was advanced and perfected in this manner; In the ruder and more ignorant Age of the World, when a Perſon, either by deſign or accident, had diſcovered the Virtue of any Herb or Mineral, the Experiment was poſted up in ſome publick Place for all to read, and take notice of it, till at laſt, out of the multitude of theſe poſted Experiments, an orderly Syſtem was framed, wherein every Thing was reduced to its proper Place and Uſe.

I am convinced, that if an orderly Collection were made of the more remarkable and eminent Acts of Divine Providence, it would be an excellent Compendium or Syſtem of Spiritual Phyſick to purge and cure this Atheiſtical Generation, wherein the very Being of a God and Providence are denied by ſome, and left diſputable and uncertain by others.

The ſame Senſe and Affection is not to be expected in thoſe that read, as in thoſe that have been the Subject of theſe aſtoniſhing Works of God; nor is it to be ſuppoſed the ſame deep and lively Senſe of the Goodneſs of God will be found in their own Hearts, in reading their own Story, as they found in the Day of their Deliverance: Even Mercies of the higheſt Rank ſuffer Abatements by time, through the Corruption of Nature; but the Reader would put himſelf into the Caſe of the concerned, and they who are perſonally concerned in it, would review it with ſuch an Affection and Senſe as becomes ſuch awful and glorious Works of God. What good Effects and Impreſſions might then be expected from this little Manual?

All I ſhall further add is, That as there is not one Circumſtance added or ſtretcht beyond its due Proportion to engage any Man's Affection, ſo I perſwade my ſelf, the true Aim and Deſign of the Concerned is to rear it up as a Stone of Remembrance in Gratitude to their great Deliverer, and to aſſiſt ſo pious a Deſign, is the only Aim of

Thy Friend and Servant,
JOHN FLAVEL.

The Firſt NARRATIVE.

ON the 6th. of May, 1679. a Ship of Dartmouth, called the Thomas and Anne, Joſeph Curtis, of the ſame Town being Maſter, loaden with Salt, Wine, and Brandy, from Bourneuſe in France, for Newfoundland, and being about 24 Leagues off that Coaſt, in Latitude 47 Degres, 40 Minutes, having for many Days ſeen abundance of floating Iſlands of Ice at ſome diſtance: This Morning, ſays the Relater, we diſcern'd a great many lumps of Ice, of various ſizes, ſcattered up and down upon the Sea; the Wind being at N.W. the Weather clear, and hoping to ſee Land before Night, we ſtood in to the Weſtward, now and then bearing up to avoid thoſe little floating Iſlands which came in our way. But about Noon we found our ſelves beſet on every ſide with thouſands of theſe dangerous Enemies, threatning Deſtruction to us from every quarter; and at the ſame time, the Wind fell calm, (except now and then a little Breeze) and ſo continued till almoſt Night.

We now began to apprehend more than ordinary Danger, well knowing how fatal one Blow might prove, and how improbable it was to eſcape many, the Danger being equal on every ſide, whether we ſtood Seaward or Shoreward; had we been thus inviron'd with fixed Rocks, our Hazard had been great, but theſe did float as well as we, and the Calm ſo clipt and pinion'd our Wings, that we could not fly any way from them; ſo that now Ruin ſeem'd inevitable: The Wind ſeem'd to be commiſſionated, to bring us into the midſt of Danger, and there to leave us.

Indeed towards Evening it began to ſpring up at North, but, alas! too late to do us any Service; move we could, but no way from Danger of imminent Deſtruction.

In this Strait we conſulted what Courſe to ſteer. Debates muſt have quick diſpatch, when Danger is at hand. Our Caſe and Reſolve was much like that of the Lepers at the Siege of Samaria, if we linger here we periſh, if we make ſail and try to extricate our ſelves out of theſe innumerable Difficulties, we can but periſh: And therefore upon Advice, and with general Conſent, we ſtood Shoreward under a ſmall Sail, viz. our two Coaſts. About ten at Night, a great Fog began to encompaſs us, which increaſed in a little time to that degree, that we could not ſee the length of our Ship before us, and the Wind freſhed up, and began to blow a briſk gale: Thus all Things ſeem'd to conſpire our Deſtruction; the Fog hood-winked our Eyes that we could not diſcern the Approach of our Enemies, and the Wind put them into a more quick and violent Motion, ſo that now we were in continual Expectation of a Blow, which we could neither diſcern nor prevent.

All that could be done was done, for immediately we halled up our Foreſail, and drove under our Mainſail and Mizen, our Foreſail being in the Broyleſs, lying a back, hoping that by retarding our Motion, and looking out with all poſſible Vigilance and Care, we might ſhun the Danger. And indeed our Men needed no Cautions or Quicknings to their Watch; the great and imminent danger of Life, was Motive enough to every Man to do his utmoſt that way.

Thus we continued every Man in his proper Poſt about an hour's time, when we eſpied one of theſe Iſlands juſt a head, and ſo near, that we knew not how to eſcape it, unleſs by backing our Mainſail, which was done immediately; but notwithſtanding we received a terrible blow upon the weather Bow, juſt upon the deſcent of the Sea, and ſo it drove away a long the ſide of the Ship.

Hereupon the Carpenter, and ſome others, going down to ſee whether we had received any Damage by this Blow, (whilſt others plied the Pump which would not ſuck) preſently they came up with diſtracted terrible Cries, and the Sentence of Death in their Looks as well as Lips, ſaying, They found the Cask ſwiming about the Hole, upon the Salt; whereupon we all perceived the Wound to be mortal and incurable, and our Caſe upon the matter deſperate; for we were encompaſſed with thouſands of the like, and what Expectation could remain of Safety in our Boat, when one touch of one only Lump had deſtroyed ſo ſtrong and ſtout a Ship under us? It was very improbable ſo ſmall a Sconce ſhould hold out, when our main Fort was ſurrendred upon the firſt Attack. The Night was dark, the Sea boiſterous, our Ship ſinking under us, and our Hopes of Safety with it; yet as Men in Extremity of Danger, we greedily catch'd at the next means of Safety, or rather of prolonging Life a few hours, and therefore all hands to work for Life, we firſt hoiſted out our ſmall Boat, which was a Norway Yawle, with a half Strake built upon her, of which indeed we made little Account, but our Eyes were, under God, upon our great Boat, yet not knowing of what uſe the ſmall Boat might be to us in ſo great an Extremity, two Men ſtept into her, to veer her under the Quarter, whilſt the reſt were all buſied in hoiſting out the long Boat; which was done with all Expedition imaginable.

But in this confuſed haſte, it ſo fell out, that either the Boat received ſome Injury, or the Men forgot to put in the Scuttle; for no ſooner was ſhe clear of the Tackles, and the Men got into her (which it was eaſie to do, the Ship ſinking ſo faſt, that her ſide was almoſt even with the Boat) but preſently ſhe began to fill with Water, and we found our ſelves going down as faſt as the Ship, by whoſe ſide we lay

The Mate, in the mean-time, fearing the Ship would be gone, before the long Boat was clear, ſtept into the Yawle, which as yet lay under the Ship's Quarter, with the two Men before-mentioned in her, and providentially took with him a ſmall Remnant of Brandy, being about five Pints, and ſo put off in haſte from the Ship, wherein were five Men, who utterly deſpairing of Safety among us, choſe rather to go down with the Ship.

When we were thus ſinking in the Long-boat, the Yawle was fallen from us at leaſt half a Cables length; we were thirteen of us gotten into the Long boat, and finding ourſelves almoſt gone, we paſſionately cry'd, to the three Men in the Yawle, For the Lord's ſake to haſten to us, and ſave us.

They had only two Oars with them, and poor Hearts, they made all haſte to us, tho' they could not but know how much they encreaſed their own Dangers by mingling them with our Extremities; if indeed, either theirs or ours may be ſaid to be capable of an increaſe.

It pleaſed God, our Long-boat continued above Water, till the Bow of the Yawle, touch'd her Stern; upon which all that ſat afore in the Head of the Long-boat, running with all haſte to get hold of the Yawle, the Long-boat immediately ſunk away after an end, under the Yawle, and carried down three of our Company with her; the other ten, ſome of them leapt into the Boat, others hung by the ſide, of which number I was one, with about ſix more in the ſame Condition with me, which by the friendly hands of our compaſſionate Companions were pluckt into the Boat; tho', alas! neither they nor we could reckon our ſelves to have gained any more Advantage hereby, than a few hours to prepare our ſelves for Eternity, which yet was a Mercy above what was granted to our poor Companions that went down by our ſide in a moment.

Mr. C Proſ
of P

In this firſt Scene of Providence, many wonders of Mercy appear'd to us and for us; ſuch was,

1. The enclining of the Hearts of our three Men in the Yawle to adventure to us in ſuch a deſperate State as we were. Had they had time to exerciſe their Reaſon, they would never have come near us, though their deareſt Relations had been among us; for the Principle of Self-preſervation, will make every Man carve firſt for himſelf. No Man ordinarily loving another to that degree, as to die with him for Company, if he have any Means, tho' never ſo ſmall, to eſcape preſent Ruin. But certainly Providence conſulted our Good, by denying them time to conſult there own Reaſon in this Caſe.

2. It was alſo Mercy to us, that our three Companions periſhed when they did, for had they lived but a minute longer, in all probability we had periſhed all together in that minute; for ſhe could receive no more, than ſhe did receive, and had the reſt leapt in or hung by the ſide, as we did, we muſt have been forced to an Act of Cruelty in turning ſome over, or inevitably have ſunk together, for the Boat was as deep with the thirteen that were in her as ever ſhe could ſwim; but the hand of God put them off, who were Supernumeraries, and our hand was not upon them

3. Thoſe three that periſht in the Long-boat were the moſt nimble and active in the whole Company, and in ſuch an Extremity the moſt likely of all to have ſaved themſelves, yet theſe periſhed, when the feebleſt and moſt unactive were preſerved. Let not the ſtrong Man therefore glory in his Strength, nor the moſt weak and feeble deſpair of Help from God in Extremity. He taketh not pleaſure in the Legs of a Man, Pſal. 147. 10. The Race is not to the ſwift, Eccleſ. 9. 11.

4. 'Tis little leſs than a Miracle of Providence, that ſo ſmall a Boat had not overſet, when about ſeven of us hang'd by her ſide, with our Bodies in the Water, in a tumbling Sea, and in the Night too, when we could not ſee what was fit to be done for our Preſervation; ſurely it was the hand of God that ſteddied, and preſerved the Boat and us in that Danger.

5. Upon the whole, we cannot but judge God had a deſign upon us, to glorifie his Mercy, and make his Power and Providence known, in caſting away both our Ship and Long-boat together, (the moſt apt and probable means of our Preſervation, and ſaving us by ſo contemptible and improbable a means as our little Yawle was. Little Things in the Hand, and under the Bleſſing of a great God, produce Effects proportionable to the greateſt and moſt potent Inſtruments, the ſame God who prepar'd a great Fiſh to ſave Jonah, can make a little Fiſh as effectual to that end as a Whale, if he pleaſe ſo to order it. As I remember I have read of a Ship that had ſprung a Leak; ſome pious Paſſengers pray, whilſt others ply the Pump, and all to little purpoſe, till at laſt, on a ſudden, they eſpy the Waters within to be at a ſtand, and then take Heart a freſh, and ply the Pump with good Succeſs. They get into their Harbour, the Ship put into the Dock, and upon ſearch, there is found a certain Hole, with a Fiſh ſticking faſt in it, exactly commenſurate to the Hole. God ſhews himſelf great in the ſmalleſt Inſtruments of Preſervation! Our Caſe ſeem'd ſo deſperate, even when we were in Poſſeſſion of our Long-boat, that five of our Company, then deſpairing of Safety, choſe rather to periſh in and with the Ship; three more (as before was noted) of our ableſt Seamen went down with the Long-boat, and thirteen poor forlorn Perſons now left almoſt even with the Sea in a poor ſmall Boat, deſtitute of Compaſs to guide us, or Proviſions to ſuſtain us, in a dark Night, in Extremity of Cold, and among innumerable Mountains of Ice ſurrounding us, which occaſion'd it.

Mr Cran's Proſpect of Providence, p. 216.

In this miſerable Caſe we put our Boat's head to Windward, as much as we could, with our two ſmall Oars, being all we had, not expecting to live one hour, by Reaſon of the raging of the Sea, incenſed by a ſtrong Wind, every Surge threatning to ſwallow us up; this was all the Comfort which remained to us, that we had a little time given us to beg mercy, before we went after our eight Companions, to whom that favour was denied.

This Opportunity we endeavoured to improve to that end; but, alas! how confuſedly, by reaſon of the frequent freſh Alarms that every Sea gave us, and the neceſſity of often Conſultations about what was neceſſary to be done; ſome muſt be at work to caſt out Water which brake in continually upon us, and yet we had little opportunity or room for that Work of neceſſity, being wedg'd in ſo faſt, that none could move out of the place in which he was fixed, being like ſo many Statues almoſt immoveable. Yet this was a ſignal Mercy, that though we took in a great deal of Water all this Night, yet no Sea brake full home upon us to fill us at once.

Thus we continued all the firſt Night driving, and keeping our Boat's head to the Windward, which was then at North, as well as we could gueſs by the run of the Sea, for the Night was very dark, not a Star to be ſeen, nor a Compaſs to guide us; the want of which we much lamented. Every Mans Heart was filled with Fear and Sorrow, and thus we paſſed the Tueſday Night, admiring the Power and Goodneſs of God when we ſaw the Dawning of the next Morning.

Wedneſday the 7th. of May.

In the Morning as ſoon as it was light, the Wind blowing ſtill very hard, and a great Sea, we began to look yar about us, and ſaw abundance of floating Iſlands of Ice round about us, and finding the Sea ſo tempeſtuous and lofty, we would fain have ſhelter'd our ſelves if poſſible under ſome of thoſe Mountains, but they afforded us no ſuccour, though we try'd many; for that to Leewards of them, there was a cockling Sea as in a Race, ſo that we there ſhipt more Water than before, and the Cold was unſufferable; ſo that we were forced to lie againſt the Sea, tugging at the Oar, and caſting up our Cries to Heaven for help. Thus we ſat all wet and frozen, ſhivering and gnaſhing our Teeth one upon another; ſeldom or never could the Ocean ſhew a Company of more miſerable and forlorn Wretches, than it had at that time upon its back.

Now it was that we began this Morning to examine our Store, and the total Amount was but the fore-mention'd five Pints of Brandy, and ſix Bisket Cakes among us all, and the Cakes all ſopt like Toaſt in ſalt Water. This we looked upon as the poor Widow upon her handful of Meal, and Cruiſe of Oil, which ſhe was making her laſt Meal upon before ſhe died, 1 King 17. 12.

However, we were reſolved to be good Husbands upon a ſmall Stock, Frugality being moſt effectually learnt in the School of Neceſſity. This Morning every one had a Morſel of wet Bread, which had it not been ſoaked before in ſalt Water, there was enough in every one's Eyes to have done it; and after this Meal, which was ended in a Minute, we began to think how to proportion our Brandy, for we durſt truſt the Firkin to no Man's Mouth or Modeſty. It was in a proper Senſe our Aqua Vitæ, we had no Dram-Cup to divide it, but ſearching our Pockets, one of the Company found the Bole of a Tobaco-pipe, which though it were neither a very large, comely, or cleanly Cup, yet we were glad of it, it ſerved us as a Meaſure to divide it equally amongſt us; and after this Cordial, when Thirſt encreaſed, every one took a Lump of Ice, (of which we had enough every where at hand) and diſſolv'd it in our Mouths, or rather our Mouths in it, for we were even Jaw fallen and ſtarv'd with the extream Cold, againſt which we had no other but this cold Comfort.

About Noon the Wind began to lin, and towards Night it fell Calm, the Sea pretty quiet and ſmooth, but no ſight of the Sun, the Sky all cloſe, and ſo continued all the Night, by reaſon of which we could not have the leaſt Benefit or Direction from the Moon or Stars; and therefore only rowed to and agen, ſometimes one away, and ſometimes another, rather to keep ourſelves in exerciſe, than in hope to gain any Port.

Now we began exceedingly to bewail the Want of a Compaſs, without which (the Weather ſo continuing) our Labour was in vain; and now to ſhew to what degree, Hunger, Fear, and Cold, had ſtupified and benumb'd, not the Limbs only, but Brains; a poor Seaman hearing the Lamentations that were made for want of a Compaſs, very ſeriouſly directing his Speech to the Maſter, ſaid, Why, Sir, cannot you make a Compaſs? The Maſter reply'd, Wherewith ſhall I make one? Why, quoth he, with a piece of Chalk upon a Board. Yes, reply'd the Maſter, ſuch a one may be made, but how ſhall we make it work? Nay, quoth he, that I cannot tell.

Had ſuch an occaſion of Mirth offer'd in a Seaſon when our Fancies had been in a Condition to ſport themſelves with it, it might have been an innocent and pleaſant Entertainment to them, but now it had little more power to refreſh them, than the Lumps of Ice had to warm and refreſh our Stomachs: Our Fancies were out of Tune to be pleaſant with any thing, nothing but the ſight of Shore could make us ſmile, but that was out of ſight, and almoſt out of hope, and in this deplorable State we ſpent the following Night, which indeed prov'd Calm, but exceeding Dark, ſo that we could make little or no Progreſs.

Thurſday the 8th. of May.

Having ſuſtained the Burthens of Cold, Hunger, and Fear, one Night more, by the ſupporting and preſerving Power of God, we had this Morning a little Refreſhment by the moſt welcome ſight of the Sun, a little after his riſing, which though our Religion forbad us to adore, as the Heathens do, yet it taught us to bleſs God for the guiding Uſefulneſs of it to us in ſuch a bewildred State as it looked that morning upon us in: And as an additional Providence to the former, the Wind ſprang up at N. E. and we rowed away due Weſt as we judged, in ſome hopes that we might that day ſee, if not get the Land, but the ſight of the Sun was ſoon cut off from us by a cloſe and lowering Skie which threatned more Danger and Diſtreſs; however, we had the Benefit of Information from the ſight we had of it, to guide our Courſe, which was a great Mercy. Upon this little Encouragement, we put to it with all our might, and made what way poſſible we could, keeping the Wind on our Starboard-Quarter, hoping that it ſtill ſtood upon the ſame Point it did when we ſaw the Sun.

But all this while we had no ſight either of Ship or Land, and towards Night we had much Wind and Rain, and the Sea began to make great, ſo that our flattering Hopes began to vaniſh, our Strength almoſt quite ſpent, a diſmal Night at hand, which then we feared would be our laſt Night in this World. We had rowed by Eſtimation about Eight or Nine Leagues, and paſt by ſeveral Iſlands of Ice, and at laſt met with a great Iſland, whoſe Magnitude, above Water, was far greater than any Cathedral we had ever ſeen; and Night being at hand, we reſolv'd to ſhelter our ſelves under it that Night from the rage and fury of the Seas, which was very great; and indeed it pleaſed God to make it ſomewhat Uſeful to us upon that Account.

O the Wiſdom and Goodneſs of God! to make a greater Iſland our ſhelter in a Boat, when one far leſs, had been the occaſion of our Danger and Miſery in the Ship. In this cold Harbour we floated that Night, a Night for ever to be remembered by us. I think never poor Creatures encounter'd more Miſeries together in one Night, the Seas raged, the Rain powered down inceſſantly, the Cold was ſo extream, that we ſat all the Night gnaſhing our Teeth, our Strength ſpent with Famine and continual Labour, a bit of Ice diſſolv'd in our Mouths was all we had to allay our Thirſt; ever and anon, a great piece of the Iſland would fall off into the Sea, with a moſt dreadful Noiſe, which frequently caus'd us to put farther off, and then we were ready to be devoured by the Sea, ſo that we durſt neither come near, nor ſtand far off. In a word, Death and Ruin were before us which way ſoever we looked; if we came too near, the falls of thoſe Rocks of Ice threatned our Death, and beſide the Cold was inſufferable; if we ſtood far off, the Sea threatned to ſwallow us up every Minute; and that middle Diſtance we kept from both, ſeemed only to lengthen our miſerable Lives a few Hours, to die as it were by Inch-meal.

O how little do others, nay how little have we our ſelves been ſenſible of thoſe comfortable Providences which provide Fire, Food, warm Houſes and Beds to reſt in? Never do the Value of thoſe common Mercies appear as they do in ſuch Extremities. The Accommodation of a Beggar in a Barn, was a princely Entertainment to what we found, and yet there was much Mercy mingled with all theſe Judgments, our Breath was yet in our Noſtrils, and there was yet farther ſpace to repent and prepare. God alſo wonderfully ſupported Nature, that it utterly failed not under theſe overwhelming Calamities, tho' we were all ready to periſh, none yet actually periſhed, we yet continued our full Number, tho' ſoon after it was leſſened, as will appear hereafter; this doleful comfortleſs Night we alſo paſs'd by the Care of God over us, a Night of ſhort Fare, but long Hours.

Friday the 9th. Day.

And now the Friday morning was come, which was ſo long and earneſtly deſired, and to make it the more welcome, it proved pretty fair, the Weather ſomewhat clear, and the Wind freſh in the Eaſter-Board; yea, we alſo had a ſight of the Sun again, which tho' it were far leſs than that of a Shore, yet it deſervedly had its Value with us; then we rowed away Weſt as due as we could judge, and fed our ſelves ſtill with a little hope, though we had nothing elſe left to feed upon.

But after Noon, a very cloſe Sky and thick Weather again, and about that time we met with abundance of Rock-weed, or Oar-weed, which we took up and fed upon. This was but an unſavoury pickled Sallad, but Hunger made it ſweet; it verified that Obſervation experimentally.

> In time of Famine ccurſeſt Fare contents,
> The barking Stomach ſtrains no Complements.

But towards Night, we were much more refreſhed and chear'd with a ſight of Land as we all ſuppoſed. So it repreſented it ſelf to our view for about half an Hour, at which we were all tranſported with Joy; it put freſh Spirits into our tired Bodies, and every Man's Countenance ſeemed to be enlightned by it. When the Italians, after a long and tireſome Voyage, got the firſt ſight of their own Country, the Poet deſcribes the Tranſports and Extaſies of Joy into which that ſight caſt them; for with loud and united Voices they cried out, Italy! Italy! like Men in a Rapture, > Italiam, Italiam læto clamore vocabant.

But certainly we had much more Reaſon to rejoice than they, had the ground of our Joy been as certain, as the matter of it was ſweet, for they were ſafe in their Ships, but we Shipwreckt, and deſtitute of all Comfort; they were returned from a good Voyage, we had loſt our Goods and Voyage too, and our Lives were often loſt in our own Apprehenſions; they were come nigh their Homes, and Friends, we had no hope ever to ſee them again. And indeed, the greater our Extremities were, the more we ſurfeited our ſelves upon the Comfort of ſuch a ſight, it being as natural to the Soul ſo to do, when it hath been long exerciſed with Fears and Sorrows, as it is to the Body when it hath been long faſting and ſtarved, to ſurfeit upon Food when it comes firſt to it.

But this our exceſſive Joy was ſoon rebated and allayed, for making with all the ſpeed we could towards it, like Men putting forth the laſt Effort and ſtruggle of Nature for Life; after a while we began to doubt whether it were Land or no; and ſurely that fatal Lump of Ice that ſank our Ship, did not give a more dreadful Knock to our Veſſel, than this Doubt did to our Minds, it even ſhatter'd our Hearts with our vain Hopes to pieces; and then the Ebb of our Fears and Sorrows was as low, as the Tyde of our groundleſs Joy was high; for we plainly diſcerned, after half an Hour, that thoſe pleaſant Hills, and indented Shoar which we beheld with ſuch Joy, were nothing elſe but Iſlands of Ice, which gave a colder Damp of Deſpair and Sorrow to our Hearts, than it had done or could do to our benummed Limbs, which by this time were much mortified, and almoſt wholly uſeleſs; and yet as a farther Addition to our Fear and Sorrow (if yet they might be reckon'd capable of any Addition) the Sky again began to lowre, and look full of foul and ſtormy Weather.

And now every Man's Heart deſponded, and all hope ſeemed utterly to periſh from us. We were reduced to that extremity by Cold, Famine, and conſtant Toil and Fear ſo many Days and Nights without Reſt or Refreſhment, no Man being able to move from the Place in which he firſt ſate down, that we concluded a little more time would have made us as ſo many dead Statues fixed in our Places, or as ſo many Carcaſſes dried up in the Sands of which the Ægyptians make their Mummy; only with this difference, they are ſo dried and parch'd with Heat, but we with Cold.

We were now come nigh to our miſtaken Land, and ſeeing bad Weather appearing again, and Night drawing on, we thought to ſhelter our ſelves again under this Iſland, as we had formerly under others; but found it impoſſible ſo to do, becauſe of the Shoals of Ice that lay off at a diſtance from it, which forbad our approach any nearer. And truly it was a good Providence which ſo ordered it for us, for could we have found Shelter near it, in all likelihood there we had abode all that night, and even yielded our ſelves, as by conſent, into the Hands of Deſpair and Death; whereas, finding no Place there, it put us upon this final Reſolution, That we would once more put to it with that poor Stock of Strength which was left, and tug hard for it that Night, not knowing what God might do for us the next Day; it was yet poſſible we might ſee the Shoar, but if we utterly deſponded, and ceaſed from ſtriving, there was no hope.

And now with renewed Cries to God, our Eyes to Heaven, and Hands to the Oar, we once more made an Eſſay for our Deliverance. It ſeemed to give ſome Footing to our feeble Hopes, that God had already wrought ſo many Wonders of Mercy in our Preſervation, ſo long, and made us yet to overlive ſo many Sentences of Death as we had paſſed (and not without Reaſon) upon our ſelves. Beſide, we knew that Mans Extremity is God's Opportunity, and we knew not but the next day might give us a real and true proſpect of a Shoar, as this had given us a falſe and imaginary one.

In this hope we ſet to it, truſting God for Strength and Safety; and in a World of Danger, Fear, and Weakneſs, we endured one ſad and ſorrowful Night more, concluding that the next Day muſt either give us freſh Hopes of Life, or end our miſerable Days by a double Death, Famine, and Drowning.

It pleaſed God in his merciful Providence, to order the Weather this Night better for us than our Fears; it proved indifferent calm, and now and then we had a view of the Moon, which was of ſome Uſe and Comfort to us; and thus we weather'd out the Friday Night alſo, and though all were as dying, yet not one dead Man yet among us.

Saturday the 10th. of May.

The Morning opening upon us, was entertained with ſome Hope; we looked out far, but what we expected was ſtill out of Sight; but about nine or ten of the Clock we ſaw the Land to our great Joy and Comfort, and grew ſtill more and more confident, that we were not again deceived, and that now our over-eager Deſires did not again impoſe upon our Underſtandings and Judgments. This Sight was to us Life from the Dead. No Circumſtances could make any temporal Mercy ſweeter, than our long and ſad Condition made this to us, and therefore with Hearts overwhelmed with Joy, and Mouths filled with Praiſe, we bleſſed and magnified our great Deliverer; and that which further ſtrengthened our Hope was, that the Weather proved indifferent fair, and the Wind Northerly. And as we rowed in with the Land, to our farther Joy we eſpied two Ships, coming away before the Wind from the Northwards. Hereupon we went away directly for their Forefoot, and about Noon ſpake with the headmoſt, which was a French Ship, belonging to Croſique, one Peter Leborrow Maſter.

This Peter proved a benign and courteous Man to us I am ſure he let us out of a kind of Hell, into an Heaven upon Earth, when he received us into his Ship, and did more for us than ever S Peter will or can do for them that deveſt not Paul, but Chriſt himſelf of his Mediatorial Honour and Authority, to cloath Peter with it. This good Samaritan finding us neither among the Living, nor the Dead, but betwixt both, had Compaſſion on us, and with the help of his Men, rather dragg'd than handed us into the Ship. I knew the Genius of that Nation, and had the Language, but had no Power to complement him, or make any long Narrative of our Troubles to him. He gave us Bread and Wine, and ſuch other things as he had, treating us with much Humanity, and compaſſionating our ſad Condition. And now we taſted the ſweetneſs of theſe good Creatures in a degree peculiar to Men in our Circumſtances, a Sweetneſs which is unknown to them that like Dives fare deliciouſly every Day.

We tarried on Board about an Hour, and found our ſelves within two Leagues of the Shoar, and conferring together what part of the Land it was, both he and we concluded it to be Renouſe, and finding the Frenchman bound for Plaſentia, and the Weather calm, we being a little refreſhed, bleſſed God, and thanked the Maſter for his great Civility, we went again into our Boat, hoping in two Hours to be at Renouſe among the Engliſh Planters; and ſo took our leave of Mr. Peter, with more Joy for the deliverance from Dangers paſt, than conſideration of what might be yet to come, for reckoning our ſelves near Renouſe, an Engliſh Plantation, we concluded our Streights and Wants were as good as over, and that two or three Hours time would bring us to reſt, and a full ſupply of all our Wants; but the kind and conſidering Maſter (no doubt directed and guided by an higher Counſel) gave us at parting a ſcore of large Cakes, a dry Fiſh a Fathom of lighted Match, Pipes, Tobaco, and about a Gallon of Wine and Brandy together in our ſmall Cask, before exhauſted, and when we were in our little Boat, taking notice that we had but two Oars, he threw us out one Oar more, to help us the ſooner aſhoar.

This Proviſion, the effect of the Maſter's Care and Kindneſs, or rather of God's gracious Providence inclining his Thoughts to it, was our Preſervation at laſt; and without it, we muſt have all periſhed, for our Hope and Comfort was again built upon a falſe Hypotheſis, we put away from the Ship, and ſtood in for Renouſe as faſt as we could Row, and about three of the Clock we got aſhoar, but to our Amazement we found, it was a deſolate Place, about a League to the Weſtward of Cape Razo, with a Cove, called Cripple Cove; as if it had been ſo denominated à poſteriori, for I think it never received ſuch a Company of Cripples ſince it firſt received that Name.

We now were aſhoar, which was the Mercy we ſo much and ſo long deſired, but found our ſelves in as bad caſe upon the Matter, as when we were at Sea. Here was a barren Cove, deſtitute of all Relief and Comfort, far from any Inhabitants or Fiſhery; not a Tree or Buſh to ſhelter us, only we pick'd up ſome few looſe ſticks to make us one Fire, and had a freſh Water River near us, and being unable to fetch any other Place, we were neceſſitated to lodge there that Night; and now we ſaw what a good Providence it was that the kind Maſter had furniſhed us with a little Bread and Wine, but eſpecially with a lighted Match to kindle a Fire, for we were all well nigh ſtarved and crippled; we therefore preſently ſcraped together ſome withered Graſs, and with ſwinging the Match in it, made it flame, and ſearch'd about the Cove, and got ſo much Wood as made us an indifferent good Fire; which being done, our firſt Work was to get off our Shooes and Stockings, to waſh them, and ſee in what caſe our Feet and Legs were: And this proved a more difficult Task than we imagined for they were all prodigiouſly ſwoln, and ſome of them burnt ſadly with the Cold, ſo that we ſtood and went rather like Men upon Stilts, than their own Feet; but there was a Neceſſity to put our benummed Stumps to it, to get in a Fire, which done, we lay round about it in the Ice and Snow, of which the Cove was full, and warmed and dried our ſelves (as well as the Place and Weather would admit) by the Fire, and there we broiled our Fiſh, and ſhar'd that Roaſtmeat, (a dainty we had been long Strangers to) among us, and it was a great Refreſhment to our tired, waſted Bodies. It was well for us we had ſo much time to do theſe things before Night, for towards Night it came in full of Rain and Storm again, and much Wind at Eaſt, and a great Sea fell into the Cove, as it it had reſolv'd to recover and waſh back thoſe Priſoners that were newly eſcaped from it.

Here was a new Diſtreſs befallen us, and not leſs hazardous as to Life than any of the former, we were ſhut up in a Cove from whence there was no Eſcape by Land, the Cliffs being inacceſſible, and our Strength quite ſpent; no putting out for any Plantation by Sea, for a ſtormy Night was in hand, and to lie there we thought would be very dangerous. It being extream cold, full of Ice and Snow, the Rain pouring down furiouſly, quickly put out our Fire, no ſhelter at all from the Fury of the Weather; and to lie but a few Hours expoſed to it, would quickly quite ſtarve ſuch as were three parts ſtarved before.

Here was our Streight, and this Extremity put us upon this Shift, (which was the beſt our Circumſtances admitted) we put our united Strength together, (which God knows was but little) and hall'd up our Boat above high Water Mark, and overturned her, and ſo crept, as many of us as could, under her for Shelter, and there lodg'd that Night: A ſad Lodging, and a dreadful Night it proved, but ſtill we comforted our ſelves with this, that the next Morning we ſhould be among our Friends, where we ſhould be better accommodated, and find Food, Phyſick, and Chirurgeons to preſerve our Lives and Limbs. In this hope we weathered out the Saturday Night with a world of Difficulty.

Lord's Day the 11th. of May.

The Morning ſo eagerly deſired came, but, alas, what we hoped for was as far off as ever, for it began with a ſtrong Eaſterly Wind, which rolled in a great Sea into the Cove. Our Fire was out, and we were upon the matter block'd up in this diſmal Hole by abundance of Ice driven in upon us. So that Death ſeem'd cloſely to beleaguer us in this Hold to which we had betaken our ſelves; and indeed there needs no great Aſſault to conquer thoſe who were almoſt dead before.

This was our ſad Condition that Day. A Sabbath it was, but without Reſt to us; yet we wanted not the Teaching and Convincing Voice of God in his dreadful Providences, had our Hearts been in a fit Capacity to improve it. We now ſaw how near we were brought to Safety, and even there like to periſh. When we thought all Danger over, then, even then our greateſt Danger befel us. To abide in that ſtarved Condition much longer we could not, and to get out was impoſſible till God ſhould allay the Storm, and change the Wind. Patience and Hope muſt be our Supports, and we thought our Hopes were encouraged by the many Wonders which God had wrought in our Preſervation hitherto. We therefore waited that Day for an Opportunity of Eſcape, but there was none. Cripple Cove muſt be our diſmal Lodging one Night more at leaſt, if not our Grave alſo. Towards Night indeed the Wind began to veer to the N. W. but there was no putting out, the Sea was ſo lofty, and the Place block'd up with ſo much Ice. This almoſt put us into utter Deſpair, concluding, that ſo long Continuance in Extremity of cold, which had ſo ſwoln our Legs and Feet, and burnt ſome of them already, would have perfectly mortified them all in one Night more, and that if at laſt God brought us out of this dreadful Place, yet none but Cripples ſhould come out of Cripple Cove at laſt; but God had ſhut us up under this Neceſſity, and there was no Eſcape till his Providential Hand ſhould open the Door of a moſt deſired Opportunity. It pleaſed God to ſupport us under the Severities and Miſeries of that Night alſo, and lengthen our Lives unto

Monday the 12th. of May.

As ſoon as the Morning came we look'd out with eager Deſires, to find, or force our Way thence if it were poſſible. The Wind was this Morning freſh off the Shoar, but ſtill a great Sea came into the Cove, and abundance of Ice had block'd it up. But our Neceſſities were ſo preſſing and urgent upon us, that we muſt (like Soldiers in a beſieged Garriſon, whoſe Proviſion is ſpent) ſally out and force our Paſſage through all Dangers, or periſh there with Hunger and Cold. But ſo great was the Sea, that it was concluded our Boat could not poſſibly live in it, if we all ventured again in her, and therefore by Conſent eight of us reſolved to venture out, and the other five were content to tarry, ſeeing it could not be otherwiſe, until we ſent help from the firſt Place we could get to fetch them off.

Now we found the Benefit of our third Oar, for no ſooner were we put out, but we found the Sea ſo great, and ſuch a multitude of Ice, that we even wiſh'd our ſelves back with our miſerable Companions again in the Cove. However we put hard to it, and by the good Providence of God, at laſt diſintangled our ſelves out of the Ice, but with a world of Difficulty and Danger.

No ſooner was that done, but we laboured hard to get a good Diſtance off from the Shoar, and ſo rowed away to the North. About nine of the Clock little Wind, but within one Hour a Gale ſprang up at North Eaſt, juſt in our Teeth, at which time being got a little to the Northwards of Glamp Cove, and ſo faint that we could not poſſibly make any more way forwards, we were forc'd (though with moſt unwilling and heavy Hearts) to bear up and put in there.

We were troubled for our ſelves, and the Diſappointment of our poor Companions, at leaſt the long Delay of their Expectations of Relief, increaſed our Trouble. Poor Hearts! they looked for a Dove with an Olive Branch; but now what would they conclude, but that like the Raven ſent out by Noah, they ſhould ſee no more of us.

However, it pleaſed God about two in the Afternoon, the Wind ceaſed, immediately we put out of Glamp Cove, and rowed along, tho' faint and feeble as we could live, and about an Hour in the Night we all came alive to Renouſe, bleſſed be the Lord, where ſome crawl'd, and others were helped up to Mr. Kirk's Houſe, Eſquire, who with much Compaſſion and Humanity refreſhed us with ſuch things as the Place afforded.

Immediately we acquainted him with the periſhing State of our 5 Companions left in Cripple Cove, begging him paſſionately to get a Boat, Men, and neceſſary Proviſions forthwith, and diſpatch to them; which he promiſed to endeavour, and accordingly next Morning they were to go to them, to fetch them off; but there being a Boat bound that Night for Trepaſſe, we ſent them twenty Biſquets, a Flacket of Beer, and a Bottle of Rum, which was delivered them timely the next Day. But to our great Trouble it ſo fell out, that partly for want of Men acquainted with the Cove, and partly by the Omiſſion of the Maſters of Ships that fiſhed there, the Boat deſigned to fetch them off proceded not the next Day, and foul Weather hindered them the following Day. So that it was Thurſday the 15th. of May before the Boat departed. Upon the Arrival of the Boat, they found one dead, whom they there buried, and carri d away the remaining four for Trepaſſe, the Wind not ſerving to bring them to Renouſe.

Being come thither, the Admiral, Captain Berry, of Barnſtaple, called the Harbour together, not ſo much to behold a Prodigy (though ſcarce a greater had ever been ſeen there) but to contribute to their Relief, and cure, if it were poſſible, by encouraging the Chirurgions that were to be preſently emploied about them. There were two or three upon the Place, who did their uttermoſt to preſerve their Lives and Limbs, but found three of them ſo mortified, that they were forced preſently to diſmember two of them, cutting off both Legs from one, and one Leg from another, the third refuſing to be diſmember'd, died, and likewiſe thoſe that ſuffer'd it, in four or five Days; one only of thoſe four recovered.

Thoſe that went in the Boat to Renouſe were all in a miſerable Caſe alſo. One of them died in three Weeks time, his Feed and Hands being burnt with the Cold, and the reſt of us in a ſad Condition; one loſt four Toes, the reſt had their Legs as black as a Coal, but by the Goodneſs of God, and ſpeedy uſe of what Means could be had, their Lives were preſerved to declare the Wonders of God among Men. So that of twenty one Perſons that were firſt in the Ship, five went down with the Ship, three periſh'd in the Long Boat, one in the Cove, and three more at Tregaſſe, and one at Renouſe. So that eight only of the twenty one ſurvived, of which Number the unworthy Relater is one; and O that our Lives may be dedicated entirely to his Praiſe, who hath ſo graciouſly, yea, ſo miraculouſly, delivered them out of the Jaws of Death.

The Second NARRATIVE.

MAſter Thomas Read, yet living to atteſt the Truth of this Narrative, (an Abſtract whereof I procured from his neareſt Relations from Ratcliff, himſelf at that time being at Sea) was ſome years ſince in Carolina Bay in Newfoundland, to load Fiſh, with which he deſign'd to go for the Streights. The Ship accordingly being loaded, he took up his Powder, and made what room he could in his Bread Room to ſtow away what Fiſh he could, and this being done, the Powder was put down again, and all things being put in order, they went to Supper, and ſo to their Cabbins.

At Supper-time, the Maſter had no diſpoſition at all to eat, he therefore retires himſelf into his Cabbin, to take his reſt, but could not ſleep. Whereupon he called in the Boy, to bring a Light, which no ſooner came, but he perceived Smoak to come out of the Ceiling, which gave him an Apprehenſion of Danger, and taking more notice of it, he haſted out of his Cabbin, and cryed Fire, Fire.

The Mate being by, fear'd it might be in the Gun-Room, and would have gone down immediately to examine it; but before he could ſtir a foot farther, the Ship blew up.

The terrible Blow was given juſt behind the Maſter's back, which rent and carried away all the Cloaths from his back parts, and blew him up upon the Main-yard, where it laid him in a Trance, but ſo equally and exactly poized, that he fell not; the Mate fell alſo upon his back, and lay upon him: but the Maſter recovering at laſt ſome Senſe, and feeling an heavy Weight upon his back, he began to ſtruggle to take hold of the Shrowds, which turn'd over the Mate, who fell into the Sea, and was ſeen no more.

The Ship ſank immediately, and that with ſuch a Noiſe in the Water, that he was forced to climb as faſt, and as high as he could, and ſo to hang till a Boat from another Ship came and ſaved him. Thus one among many was miraculouſly pluckt out of the Jaws of Death, and he ſo bruiſed and weak with the Blow, that it was long before he recovered; yet at laſt his Lameneſs was cured, and he return'd to the Wonder of all Men.

Advertiſements.

1. IN this Relation there is a concurrence of rare and wonderful Circumſtances: As firſt, the indiſpoſedneſs of the Maſter that Evening both to Meat and Sleep, though he knew no Reaſon to hinder him from the one or other. Here ſeems to be a plain preſage of approaching Danger, whilſt as yet there was not the leaſt ſuſpicious Circumſtance in ſight. This ſome aſcribe to a certain unuſual Craſis of the Body, others to an overpoiſe of Complection, which is much the ſame: for my own part, I am ſatisfied that ſuch Preſages as this, (the like whereunto hath been obſerved in divers others before their Death, or ſome imminent Danger) is from the Inſpiration of ſome Spirit, in a ſupernatural Way.

Bodinus tells us of a good Man of his Time and Acquaintance, who had many remarkable and ſtrange Premonitions given him of approaching Danger; and that one time being in very great Danger, and newly gone to Bed, he was unquiet, and could by no means reſt, but was forced to riſe again, and ſpend the night in Watching and Prayer. The day following he eſcaped the hands of his Perſecutors in a wonderful manner; which being done, in his next ſleep, he ſeem'd to hear a Voice ſaying, Now ſing, Qui ſedet in latibulo Altiſſimi: He that dwelleth in the ſecret place of the moſt High, ſhall abide under the ſhadow of the Almighty.

(2.) The Providence of God was alſo wonderful in nicking the very minute, wherein he was to be preſerved, which had it been ſlipt, there had been no eſcape from Deſtruction: for had he ſtaid a minute longer in the Cabin, he had been ſhattered to pieces, and had he come out ſooner, he and the Mate had certainly gone down into the Gun Room, and both had periſhed there. O how many ſubſtantial Documents and Inſtructions may that one Circumſtance of Time afford to the wiſe and ſerious Obſervers of Providence!

3. It was little leſs than a Miracle of Providence that the ſame Blow which ſhatter'd a ſtout Ship in pieces, blew others away to Deſtruction in a moment; had its Commiſſion from Heaven only to blow off the Cloaths from his back, and place him in a perfect equipoize upon the Yard of the Ship, where he was ſettled as the Earth it ſelf is, Ponderibus librata ſuis; Evenly balanced or poized with its own Weight; the leaſt ſtruggle of a Man deprived of Senſe as he was, had been his Ruine.

I do heartily wiſh a Life made ſo Remarkable by the Wonders of Providence, may be no leſs Remarkable for eminent and ſerious Godlineſs, and that his Life may be devoted to God, which hath been ſo miraculouſly preſerved by him.

The PREFACE.

Reader,

AS God hath ſtretched out the Expanſum or Firmament of Heaven, over the natural World, ſo hath he ſtretcht out his Word over the rational World; and as in that he hath placed the Stars and Luminaries, to enlighten the Earth, and to be for Signs, and for Seaſons, Gen. 1. 14. So hath he placed a Conſtellation of Scriptures in this alſo, by which they that are skilful in the Word of Righteouſneſs, may diſcern very much of the Deſigns and Iſſues of thoſe rouling and amazing Providences that are over our heads.

And doubtleſs, nothing more ſettles and ſupports the Hearts of Saints, under terrible and tempeſtuous Providences, than to view them in their reference and relation to the World; For of theſe we may ſay as David doth, Pſal. 148. 8. of the ſtormy Winds, that they fulfill his Word, and are the undoubted accompliſhments of its Predictions and Prophecies.

Now to thoſe that heedfully obſerve the Scripture Prophecies, relating to the ruine and deſtruction of Antichriſt, it cannot but appear that their accompliſhment is nigh, and that glorious deſign come even to the birth. * But then, as the darkeſt part of the night is that which immediately precedes the dawning of the day, ſo before the Vial of the Lord's Indignation be poured out upon the Throne of the Beaſt, it will be a time of trouble to the Saints, ſuch as never was ſince man was upon the Earth, Dan 12. 1. †Rev. 11. 7, 8. The Witneſſes of Jeſus muſt firſt be ſlain, and their dead bodies for a time, lye in the ſtreets of the great City: And as Naturaliſts obſerve, that a Beaſt never bites more furiouſly, and deadly, than when dying; even ſo it is with this Beaſt alſo which hath Iron teeth, and is terrible above all that were before it, Dan. 7. 7. and when the ſtrong God ariſeth to judge Babylon, She ſhall be found quite drunk with the Blood of the Saints, and Martyrs of Jeſus, Rev. 17. 6. So that we, whoſe lots are fallen into ſuch a day as this, wherein the fierceſt rage of the laſt & moſt furious of all the Beaſts, is falling in a dreadful ſtorm upon all the reformed Churches of Chriſt, had need of a more than ordinary degree of Faith and Patience, to eſtabliſh us in the Truth, and inable us to bear a glorious Teſtimony for the Lord Jeſus.

If any Man's heart now ſhall fail him, and to avoid the fury of Antichriſt, ſhall baſely betray the Truth, and forſake the Camp of Chriſt, and receive the mark of the Beaſt, though not in his forehead, yet in his hand by a politick and ſecret Compliance with his Worſhip, that Man is adjudged by the dreadful Sentence of the great God, to drink the Cup of his pure and unmixed Wrath and Indignation, Rev. 14. 10. even ſuch as the Devils and damned drink: For we may ſay of that wrath, which is ordinarily poured out upon ſinners in this life, as they ſay of darkneſs Non dantur puræ tenebræ; there is no pure or perfect darkneſs here; ſo neither is there any pure unmixed wrath here, it hath in this life an allay of ſpairing mercy in it; but this is pure.

To prevent this ſad iſſue, and preſerve thee from this terrible Wrath of the Lamb, are the following Counſels and Cautions deſigned and intended: And Oh, that they might be bleſſed to eſtabliſh the ſliding feet of tempted Saints; For I cannot without trembling obſerve, how many forward Profeſſors begin to give ground already, and fall into a Compliance with Antichriſtian Abominations; ſurely this is the worſt time that ever they could have choſen for it, now that the Day of Vengeance is in the heart of Chriſt againſt Her, and the year of his Redeemed even come; his Righteouſneſs ſo nigh at hand, and his Salvation ready to be revealed.

I ſhall detain thee no longer, but intreat thee to weigh theſe things, brought to thy hand by providence, and with the ſpirit of love, to cover the weakneſſes of the Author, who is ſenſible of his own infirmities, and continual need of divine Aſſiſtance, to enable him to ſtand; And to that end earneſtly begs a remembrance in thy Prayers, when thy heart is moſt * warmed, enlarged, and raiſed in Communion with thy God.

Farewel.

† It is obſervable, that Rome in this Prophecy, bears the name of Egypt and Babylon, in reſpect of the miſery and bondage exerciſed upon Gods People by it; by which alſo, is not obſcurely hinted, the time and manner of their deliverance from it; for both from the one, and the other, were the Jews delivered, when reduced to the greateſt extremity. After the pattern of thoſe tender Bowels of Chriſt, the chief Shepherd, do the Bowels of Compaſſion infuſed by him into his Miniſters, the under Shepherds, work and move towards the Flock, in like Caſes and Exigencies. God is my record (ſaith that great Apoſtle) how greatly I long after you all * [In] or after the manner of the Bowels of Jeſus Chriſt, Phil. 1. 8.

And truly, conſidering the deep Diſtreſſes, and languiſhing Conditions to which many thouſands of the Lord's Flock are at this Day expoſed, how many among you are wandering from Mountain to Hill, ſeeking Paſture, but finding none; and like thoſe Troops of Tema, Job 6. 19. return aſhamed, and diſappointed, from thoſe places where you were wont to be refreſhed, enlarged, quickned: And how your pretended Shepherds have taken to themſelves the † Inſtruments of a fooliſh Shepherd, ruling you with force and rigor, Ezek. 34. 4. not ſparing the Flock, it makes my Heart melt within me, and my Compaſſions for you flow together.

And further, apprehending what a deep and deſperate deſign your Adverſary the Devil hath upon you in this Hour of Temptation, to overthrow your Faith, quench your Love, and undermine the very Foundation of your Profeſſion; and what ſingular and extraordinary Advantages he hath now upon you, engaging you ſingly and apart; your faithful Teachers being removed into Corners, your Societies broken, Dangers threatning on every ſide, carnal Neighbours and Relations, by Perſwaſions, Examples, and dangerous Inſinuations digging about and looſening your Roots, and ſo preparing for your utter ſubverſion, by the next guſt of Temptation: I thought it high time to come in to your Aſſiſtance and Relief, with a Word of Counſel and Support, though I venture for you, as David's Worthies did, to bring him the Waters of the Well of Bethlehem through the Hoſt of the Philiſtines.

And may I but preſerve the Peace of mine own Conſcience, by diſcharging faithfully a Duty to which it impels me, and have the bleſſing of ſome poor Soul ready to periſh, come upon me, I ſhall little regard the pains or hazzard of this Enterprize for you.

The plain Deſign of theſe few Sheets, is to countermine the Enemy of your Souls in his preſent grand Deſigns againſt you; either in point of ſtability, by unſetling you; or of duty, by affrighting you; or of comfort, by diſcouraging you.

To prevent the ſucceſs of the Tempter, in all or either of theſe, I ſhall offer you my beſt aſſiſtance, under theſe eight enſuing Heads of Advice and Counſel; beſeeching you, by all the dear regard you have to the dreadful and glorious Name of God, which is called upon you, Epheſ. 4. 1. Col. 1. 10, 11. 2 Tim. 2. 19. or to your own precious and immortal Souls, whoſe eternal happineſs is not a little engaged in theſe things, Matt. 10. 33. Gal. 6. 9. or to the comfort and encouragement of your ſuffering and afflicted Miniſters, and Brethren abroad, a great part of whoſe joy (yea life) lies at your mercy, 1 Theſ. 3. 8. Col. 2. 5. and is as it were, bound up in your ſtability; that you will heedfully obſerve and embrace theſe Admonitions, according to the weight and evidence that is in them, and let not any fleſhly intereſt in the world, carry you againſt the convictions that may hereby be left upon your Conſciences.

And the firſt Advice or Counſel is this.

COUNSEL. I.

Cleave faſt to Chriſt, and the Profeſſion you have formerly made of him, what aſpect ſoever the times have upon you.

Pſal. 44. 18, 19, 20, 21. Our heart is not turned back, neither have our ſteps declined from thy Way, though thou haſt ſore broken us in the place of Dragons, and covered us with the ſhadow of death. If we have forgotten the Name of the Lord, or ſtretch'd out our hands to a ſtrange god, ſhall not God ſearch out this? for he knoweth the ſecrets of the heart. Hence thoſe new Converts, who were turned to the Lord in a time of great temptation and perſecution, were ſo earneſtly perſwaded, Acts 11. 23. That with purpoſe of heart they would cleave unto the Lord; (i. e.) as they had made a good choice, ſo now, to ſtick to their choice, and not repent of it, whatever afterward they ſhould meet with. Oh take heed, leſt after you have lifted up your hand to God, you ſhould lift up your heel againſt him. Though the * Hypocrite will not pray always, yet the † upright Soul abhors to flinch from his duty, let come on him what will. It is now Autumn with many flouriſhing Profeſſors, but if thou be a tree planted by the River ſide, thy leaf ſhall not wither, Pſal. 1. You look for Happineſs as long as God is in Heaven, and be ſure God looks for holineſs, as long as you be on Earth. What Duty is more importunately urged upon you by every part of the Goſpel, than Stability? The Preceptive part peremptorily requires it. See Rev. 2. 10. Heb. 4. 14. Rev. 3. 11. theſe be commands flowing from Soveraignty, cloathed with the higheſt Authority. The Minatory part urges us: See Heb. 10. 38 Mat. 10. 33. Rev. 21. 8 and theſe dreadful threats are diſcharged againſt the Soul, and levelled at the very breaſt of the Apoſtate. The Promiſſory part marvellouſly encourages to it, a ſweet voice ſeems to come down from Heaven in theſe Promiſes, ſaying, Good Souls hold faſt, if ever you hope to poſſeſs the Glory that is here, hold faſt, Gal. 6. 9. Mat. 10. 22. Rev. 3. 12, 21. Rev. 21. 7.

* Job 27. 10.

Now, leſt all this ſhould leave but a floating and ineffectual conviction upon you, give me leave to follow it a little farther, and endeavour to work it in by a few warming Conſiderations upon your hearts.

1. Conſider, God hath hanged the whole weight of Eternal Happineſs upon this Wyer; ſo that the deepeſt, deareſt. and everlaſting intereſt of thy Soul, is bound up in thy Perſeverance, Rom. 2. 7. Gal. 6. 9. Heb. 3. 14. and if ſo, methinks this ſhould make thee cling faſt, deſpiſe dangers, face the ſtorm and make a ſtand for Chriſt, let come on thee what will: For conſider Soul, what compariſon betwixt a moment ſuffering, and this Eternal Glory? Rom. 8. 18. 2 Cor. 4. 16, 17, 18. Oh that vaſt Eternity! that amazing Word! which none but He that was from Eternity, and is to Eternity, comprehenſively underſtands: When a Soul is ſwallowed up in it, yea, or when it ſits in a dying hour trembling, upon the brink of it, how are its apprehenſions of preſent things altered!

2. Conſider how conſtant and faithful Jeſus Chriſt was to thee, when he conflicted in the days of his fleſh, with ſufferings, dangers, and difficulties infinitely beyond thine; and what a motive that ſhould be, to perſwade thee to a bold and conſtant owning of him in this day of thy tryal? 1 Tim. 6. 12, 13, 14. Fight the good Fight of Faith, lay hold on eternal Life, whereunto thou art alſo called, and haſt profeſſed a good Profeſſion before many witneſſes. I give thee charge in the ſight of God, who quickneth all things, and before Jeſus Chriſt, who before Pontius Pilate witneſſeth a good Confeſſion, that thou keep this Commandment without ſpot. He flincht not when the Terrors of Death and Hell beſet him round: He was faithful to the truſt committed to him, till death beat the laſt breath out of his breaſt. If thou now ſtart from him, may not he ſay to thee, as that Roman Souldier ſaid to his General, who refuſed his Petition after the War was ended, Well (ſaith he) I did not ſerve you ſo at the Battel of Actium.

3. Never imagine to be owned and acknowledged by him, in that great Day, if thou diſſert his Cauſe and Intereſt now, Mat. 10. 33. He that is aſhamed of Me before men, of him will I be aſhamed, when I come in my Father's Glory, and mine own Glory, and the Glory of the Holy Angels. Oh Sirs, one of theſe days the Lord will break out of Heaven with a * ſhout, accompanied with † myriads of Angels, and ten thouſands of his Saints, thoſe gliſtering Courtiers of Heaven, * the Heavens and Earth in a dreadful Conflagration round about him; † the Graves ſhall open, the Sea and the Earth give up their dead: * Thou ſhalt ſee him aſcend the awful ſeat of Judgment, † his faithful Ones ſitting on the Bench as Aſſeſſors with him: * All fleſh gathered before him, † even multitudes, multitudes in that Valley of Deciſion; and then to be publickly diſowned by him in the Face of that great Aſſembly, and proclaimed a Traytor and Delinquent to him, that fearedſt not to deny Him, and betray his Truths into his Enemies hands, becauſe of the Frowns of a poor Worm that ſhall die, and be made as Graſs: Oh what Confuſion and everlaſting Shame ſhall cover thee! This, this is the Portion of all ſuch from the hand of the Lord; 2 Tim. 2. 12. If we deny him, he alſo will deny us.

Theſ. 4. 16.

Pet. 3. 10.
.5.28.
at. 25. 31.
Cor. 6. 2.
t. 25, 32.
oel 3. 14.

4. Conſider e'er thou let go thy Profeſſion, how remarkably the righteous Hand of Heaven hath met with and paid home the Apoſtate, even in this Life; which nevertheleſs, is but as a few drops upon them before the cloud diſſolve, and the whole ſtorm falls, but as the perboiling of them, before they be roaſted in the eternal Flames. See what is become of Judas, Mat. 27. 3, 4, 5. compared with Acts 1. 18. Poor Spira, though I determine not of his final State, yet what a living Monument of Wrath was he, whiles he lived; I feel (ſaid he) the very Torments of Hell in my Soul. Lucian and Julian, two ſcoffing Apoſtates, the one torn to pieces by Dogs; the other, when mortally wounded by a Dart, flings up his Blood towards Heaven in a way of Revenge, and crys, Thou haſt overcome, O Galilean.

5 Suppoſe thou eſcape ſuch a Stroak, yet never expect a comfortable Hour in this World any more, unleſs the Lord give thee unfeigned Repentance to Life, which in ſuch Caſes is but ſeldom: Thou mayeſt have as much Comfort in thy Enjoyments here, for which thou haſt ſold Chriſt, as Judas had in his Thirty Pieces, or Spira in his Wife and Children; Mark 8. 35. Whoſoever will ſave his Live, ſhall loſe it (i. e.) at leaſt, its Comfort.

COUNSEL II.

Touch not with Idolatry and Superſtition; under what Name or Notion ſoever it be preſented to you.

1 Joh. 5. 21. Little Children, keep your ſelves from Idols. Here you had need be exceeding cautelous, and * circumſpect, (1.) becauſe it is a creeping thing, which works in it ſelf by plauſible Pretences and Inſinuations, 2 Pet. 2. 1. Epheſ. 4. 14. Col. 2 23. In which reſpect [Myſtery] is written in the Whores forehead, Rev. 17. 5. For as Dr. Uſher well obſerves, The Roman Apoſtacy ſtole into the Church diſguiſed, and by degrees. It is a Myſtery of Iniquity (ſaith the Apoſtle) and a working Myſtery, 2 Theſ. 2. 7. Iniquitas ſed Myſtica, pietatis, & fidelitatis nomine palliata; (i. e.) Iniquity, but a myſtical Iniquity, becauſe palliated, and cloaked under the Name and Pretence of Piety and Fidelity. Idolatrous Practices have a ſhew of Wiſdom, Col. 2. 23. (i. e. ſaith Davenant on the Place) They are more modeſt than to pretend an immediate Revelation of the Spirit: Yet leſt their Placets and Inventions, ſhould want a pretext of divine Wiſdom, they are wont to ſay, that their Doctrines and Traditions are not indeed conſigned to writing by the Apoſtles, but delivered by lively Voice, according to that, We ſpeak Wiſdom among them that are perfect: And by the Name of this Wiſdom, every one calls his own Fictions. Saith Irenæus, lib. 3. cap. 3. Thus ſometimes under the pretext of Wiſdom, Order, Decency, Apoſtolical Traditions, Antiquity, the Power of the Church, &c. *it ſteals upon men * inſenſibly, eſpecially being ſo advantaged by the pronity of corrupt Nature to it.* To this purpoſe it is obſervable, that Babylon, the Mother of Harlots, is ſaid, Rev. 17. 4. to give the Wine of her Fornication in a golden Cup. Wine in it ſelf is temptingly pleaſant, but more, when * qui cavet ne decipiatur, vir cavet, cum etiam cavet, & cum caviſſe ratus eſt ſæpe is cautor captus eſt.

Davenant in loc.

* Peditentim, uſu ipſo, & tacita doctorum approbatione cæpit eſſe in pratio, hoc [illegible] ate, ſenſim ſine ſenſu creſcente.

preſented in a golden Cup; the * Brims whereof are ſugared and ſweetned, to make it the more grateful. Therefore little Children, I mean you ſimple, plain, credulous Souls, apt to be taken with fine gliſtering Things, look to your ſelves; (2.) becauſe nothing more provokes and inflames the fierce Wrath of the Lord, who is a jealous God, than this doth; it makes his anger to come up in his Face, as that Expreſſion is, Ezek. 38. 18. and kindles conſuming wrath, Ezek. 43. 7, 8, 9. Upon this account the bleſſed God complains, after the manner of Men, as if his Heart were broken, Ezek. 6. 9. I am [broken] with their whoriſh Heart, and with their [eyes] which go a whoring after their Idols. If it be but an unchaſte glance upon an Idol, it goes to the very heart of God: when he ſeeth his People yielding to the temptations of it, he ſhreeks as it were, and crys out, Oh do not this abominable thing that I hate; Oh if there be in you the Hearts of Children, do not do that, which doth as it were break the heart of your Father.

* Velati pueris abſynthia tetra medentes, Cum dare conantur prius oras pocula circum: Contingunt dulci mellis, flavoq; liquore.

Queſt. But what mean you by Idolatry and Superſtition? we hope there are no ſuch things practiſed among us; Pagans and Papiſts may be guilty of it?

Sol. Give me leave here to open theſe things unto you, and then perhaps you may ſee them nearer to you, than you are aware of; and that this Caution is a word in Seaſon.

What Idolatry is.

Idolatry then, according to the true and generally received Definition of it, is, * A religious Worſhip, given either to that which is not the true God, or to the true God himſelf, but otherwiſe than he hath preſcribed in his Word. From hence we plainly ſee that worſhip may be idolatrous two ways; (1.) In reſpect of the Object, if it have any thing beſides the true God for its Object, it's groſs Idolatry; ſuch as the firſt Commandment condemns. Pagan Idolatry, which the Light of the Goſpel hath long ſince profligated, and expelled out of theſe parts of the World. Or, (2.) in reſpect of the Manner, when we worſhip the true God, but in a way and manner which he hath not preſcribed in his Word, but is invented and deviſed by our ſelves; and this is condemned as Idolatry in the † ſecond Commandment; Thou ſhalt not [make to thy ſelf;] (i. e.) out of thine own Brain, or of thine own head, any [graven Image] under which Title all humane Inventions, corrupting the pure and ſimple Worſhip of God, are prohibited, as idolatrous; for * Images are here by a Synecdoche put for all falſe ways of worſhipping God, as the beſt Expoſitors tell us. See Ames. Medulla, lib. 2. p. 334. Holland on the ſecond Com. Willet, Hexapla in loc. This inventing or making to our ſelves, is that which makes it Idolatry, Amos 5. 26. Numb. 15. 39. Hence the Molten Calf became an Idol to the Iſraelites, not becauſe it was the Object of their Worſhip; for it's evident, it was Jehovah, the true God, they intended to worſhip by it; as appears from Exod. 32. 4, 5. To morrow is a feaſt to the Lord. And as Dr. Willet obſerves, it had been impoſſible, that ſo good a Man as Aaron, would have yielded to them, if they had intended to worſhip it as a God: But yet it being a way or manner of worſhipping the true God, which was of their own deviſing, it became Idolatry. And this Worſhip of God in ways of our own invention, becomes idolatrous upon a double Ground: (1.) As it is Will-worſhip; (i. e.) ſuch Worſhip as hath no other Ground, or Warrant, but the Will of Man, † Col. 2. 23. and ſo dethrones God, by ſetting up the Will of the Creature above his, and beſtowing the peculiar Honour, and incommunicable Sovereignty, and Glory of the Bleſſed God, upon the Creature: For the abſolute Sovereignty of God, which is his Glory, 1 Tim. 6. 15. is manifeſted in two things eſpecially; In his Decrees, Rom. 9. 20. and in his Laws, Iſa. 33. 22. James 4. 12. The Lord is our King, and Lawgiver; and there is one Lawgiver. Now by preſcribing any thing by our own Authority, in the Worſhip of God, the Commands of God are made void, Mat. 15. 6 his Royal Law is ſlighted, the Throne of God invaded by the Creature; who will be a Lawgiver too, which can no more be born, than the Heavens can bear two Suns; and God is hereby forgotten; as Hoſ. 8. 14. Iſrael hath forgotten his Maker, and buildeth Temples; (i. e.) by building [Temples] when God had appointed but one Temple. This is as Melancton obſerves, Cum Deo certare, aliud inſtituendo; To ſtrive with God, by inſtituting ſomething of our own. And Chryſoſtom notes, Hom. 2. in Rom. That it is a greater Sin, in God's Worſhip, to do what we ſhould not, than to omit what we ſhould: For, ſaith he, by the one we ſhew the difficulty of the Law; but by the other, we charge the Law and Law-giver with folly; make our ſelves wiſer than God: In the one we ſhew our weakneſs, in not doing the Will of God; but in the other, our impudence to controul the Wiſdom of God. And it is, as Lactantius phraſes it, lib. 3. cap. 13. Summan arrogantiam, ſibi vendicare quod humana conditio non recipit: The higheſt Arrogance, to challenge that to our ſelves, which the Condition of a Creature is not capable of. And upon this Account it is, that the Indignation and Wrath of God ſmoaks ſo dreadfully againſt ſuch Uſurpers, as in the ſad Story of Nadab and Abihu, you ſee, becauſe God is a jealous God: And Jealouſie is the Rage of a Man. Zelotes eſt, nolens habere conſortium in amando, can endure no corrival. This God looks upon as the greateſt, and moſt daring Wickedneſs, that a Creature can lightly commit. Hoſ. 9. 15. All their Wickedneſs is in Gilgal. [כל pro ſummo] (i. e.) the hight of their Wickedneſs is there, becauſe there they worſhip'd him according to their own Devices; which was ſuch an Affront to the Wiſdom and Sovereignty of God, that he could by no means bear it. This is called, a ſetting our Threſhold beſides the Lord's Threſhold, Ezek. 43. 8. and the nearer this comes to him, the more it provokes him: Therefore it is ſaid in the ſame Text, There was a Wall betwixt me and them; (i. e.) either, it cauſed a Wall of ſeparation betwixt me and them; as it's generally expounded; or elſe it notes, how God is provoked, by bringing their own Inventions ſo near him: For in the Hebrew it is, There was but a Wall betwixt me and them. And hence it is evident

* Cultus Religioſus qui exhibetur rei, quæ non eſt verus deus: vel etiam ipſi vero Deo, ſed aliter quam ipſe præſcripſit in Verbo ſuo. Ravanelus.

† Eſt autem idololatria, cum vel fingitur eſſe Deus, & colitur pro Deo quod non eſt, vel cum verus Deus colitur aliter quam vult coli. Pareus. Com in Rom. 1 23.

* In this command the Queſtion is anſwered, which hath ſo diſquieted the Church in all ages. ſc. Who ſhal preſcribe the Form of God's Worſhip, ſhall Angels? ſhall Men? ſhall the Church? ſhall Councils? The Anſwer is, that when we have choſen Jehovah for our God, and rejected all falſe Gods, according to his firſt Law, leſt our minds ſhould invent him any ſervice, he hath here preſcribed Laws himſelf, for his own moſt divine and ſpiritual Service. Holland's Fourfold State of Man, pag. (mihi) 31.

† Deum amare quidem cultorem voluntarium, hic eſt cum qui lætus & lubens ea facit quæ ipſe fieri juſſit, ſed odiſſe cultum voluntarium, hoc eſt, illa opera quæ pro immediato Dei cultu illi offeruntur cum ab ipſo non fuerint præſcripta & mandata ad hunc finem, hoc enim eſt fornicari in inventionibus ſuis. Pſal. 106. 39. Daven. in loc.

evident, that doctrinal, ſymbolical Ceremonies, I mean ſuch Rites and Ceremonies, as are brought into the Worſhip of God, with a ſpiritual Signification, meerly upon the Authority of Man, are idolatrous Mixtures and Additions, and ſuch, by which the Lord is dreadfully provoked. It's true, Men pretend Order and Decency, and the Power of the Church in ſuch Caſes: But as Learned Ameſius well notes; * Thoſe things which pertain to order and decency, are not ſo left to the Will of man, that they may under that Name, obtrude what they pleaſe upon the Churches. All the Liberty that Scripture, 1 Cor. 15. 40. gives us, is but this, To obſerve and perform thoſe things which God hath inſtituted, in an orderly and comely manner; and not to innovate new Things, what, and as many as we pleaſe. And then (2.) it becomes Idolatrous upon this Ground alſo, becauſe this daring Impudence of Men, in worſhipping God in their own way, argues groſs and carnal Notions and Conceptions of God. When we deviſe a carnal pompous way of Worſhip for him, it's an argument we have ſet up an Idol-god firſt in our Imaginations, one like our ſelves, and utterly unlike the true God; who is a moſt ſimple, pure, ſpiritual Being; and as ſuch, will be worſhipped, Joh. 4. 24. But by deviſing ſuch a fleſhly way of Worſhip, I ſay, it is manifeſt, we have fanſied to our ſelves another God, altogether different from that God, revealed to us in the Word. Hence it was that Joſhuah told the People, Joſh. 24. 19 Ye cannot ſerve the Lord, for he is a jealous God, and will not forgive your ſins; q. d. you cannot ſerve the true God, till you have gotten right Apprehenſions of him: You fanſie to your ſelves a God made up all of Mercy, as if he had no Juſtice nor Righteouſneſs, to call you to an Account for your ſins; and ſo do but worſhip an Idol, formed in your own Imagination, inſtead of the true God. And if the Thing be duely weighed, it will appear as well Idolatry to ſubmit to, and acknowledge the * Sovereign Authority of a Creature, in appointing Laws for worſhip; or falling down before an imaginary God, or Idol, formed in our own Phantaſie; as to bow to, and worſhip a graven Image, or the ſtock of a Tree.

* Illa igitur quæ pertinent ad ordinem & decorem, non ita relinquuntur hominum arbitrio, ut poſſint quod ipſis libet, ſub illo nomine Eccleſiis obtrudere. Medulla, p. 345.

* Hinc implicite & per interpretationem Dei ipſius, illum nobis deum conſtituimus & honorem Deo debitum deferimus illi, cujus authoritati vel inſtitutis noſmetipſos ſubjicimus in religioſo cultu. Ameſ. Medulla, lib. 2. p. 335.

Now hence you may come to ſee at once, both the Nature of this ſecond ſort of Idolatry, and alſo the riſe and original of it; which is nothing elſe but the proud and carnal Heart of Man, which not willing to contain it ſelf within the Limits of the Word wherein a plain, ſimple, and ſpiritual way of Worſhip is ruled out; invents to it ſelf, new Rites, Ceremonies, and Ways of worſhipping God, more ſutable and pleaſing to the Fleſh. And hence it is, that Idolatry is in Scripture, reckoned a Work of the Fleſh, Gal. 5. 20. becauſe man naturally having a proud Heart, and a working Imagination, which depending upon Senſe, and not elevated and rectified by Faith, firſt forms to its ſelf carnal Conceptions and Notions of God; and then deviſeth a way of Worſhip ſuitable to thoſe Notions of him. So that as one well obſerves; † This is the Fountain and Principle of all Error, that men think that thoſe which pleaſe them, muſt needs pleaſe God; and what diſpleaſeth them, muſt alſo diſpleaſe him. So that this Brat, Idolatry, is begotten betwixt a proud carnal Heart, and the Devil; who ſince he cannot draw Men to the former ſort of Idolatry, endeavours all he can to entangle and defile them with this, and that partly out of malice to God, knowing what a dear thing his Worſhip is to him, and partly out of a Deſign of ruining ſuch as he can intice to it: For he knows their Sorrows ſhall be multiplied, Pſal. 16. 4. and God ſeldom lets it eſcape without ſome remarkable Stroak.

Upon the whole then, you plainly ſee, Worſhip may be right as to its Object, and yet Idolatrous in reſpect of the Manner; becauſe the aſſuming of a deſpotical Power in this Caſe, is not only a ſlighting of that νόμον Βασίλικον, that royal Law, but as high a piece of Treaſon againſt Jeſus Chriſt, as can lightly be committed by a Creature. I will ſhut up this with two worthy and full Teſtimonies to the Truth of the Point in hand. The firſt is Melancton in loc. Com. de Ceremon. Humanis. His Words are theſe, and they are grave and weighty.

Accedit & hoc, quod Epiſcopi arrogant ſibi poteſtatem condendi traditiones, quam tamen non concedit eis, Evangelium, &c. non eſt leve crimen tentare Deum, eſt enim non infirmitate labi, ſed contemptu Dei, propoſito ipſius verbo, quaſi cum eo certare, aliud inſtituendo, ϗ φιλονικεῖν, & illius ſapientiæ noſtram anteferre. The Biſhops arrogate to themſelves a Power of making Traditions, which the Goſpel hath not given them. It is no ſmall Crime to tempt God, for this is not to ſlide by infirmity, but by contempt of God, his Word being ſet before them as it were to contend with it, by inſtituting another thing, and overcome it. This is to prefer our Wiſdom to his.

Phil. Melan. in loc. com. p. 631, 632.

And a little after (having given ſome Inſtances of it) he proceeds thus;

Tales fuerunt & ſunt fontes cultus idolorum. Hæc ſunt arcana mala, quæ politica ſapientia non poteſt judicare, ſed nos in Eccleſia, ea conſiderare debemus; ut moniti, ſubjiciamus nos verbo Dei, nec noſtris opinionibus regi velimus. Such have been, and are the Fountain of the Worſhip of Idols. Theſe are ſecret Evils, which political Wiſdom cannot judge: but we in the Church, ought to conſider theſe Things, that being warned, we may ſubmit our ſelves to the Word of God, and not be willing to be ruled by our own Opinions, &c.

To this I ſhall add the moſt worthy Teſtimony of that Right Honourable Lord Brook.

‘ A Biſhop's wearing a Surplice, Cope,
‘ Mitre, uſing the Croſs, bowing to the Al-
‘ tar, &c. (though they may be Errors) yet
‘ all, or one of theſe make him not a Pope,
‘ or Popling, or properly Antichriſtian; but ‘ receiving theſe from the Pope's Dictates,
‘ doing them becauſe he commands, acknow-
‘ ledging his Power in commanding them,
‘ preſſing them on others in ſuch a deſpotical
‘ Power, makes a true Pope, a real Anti‘ chriſt: Nor may our Biſhops evade by this,
‘ which I eaſily ſee will be anſwered, That ‘ though indeed they do, and command theſe
‘ Things; yet they neither do them from the Lord Brook's Treatiſe of Epiſcopacy, p. 60, 61.

‘ Though I ſhould grant this, which yet many wiſe Men will not grant (for our Biſhops firſt Power come from the Pope; and of late alſo, we have found Letters, Advice, Commands, Dictates from the Pope, to ſome of our Biſhops, and that in matters of greateſt Conſequence, both for Church and State:) But grant all this they ſay, yet they may be Antichriſtian, and ſo ſuch (in re) as the Pope is; though not literally Romaviſts, except they do or command in the Power of Rome. This I ſhall be bold to affirm, and maintain, till I ſee better Reaſon, that he, (who ever he be) that Commands the leaſt Title of Doctrine, or Diſcipline, meerly ex imperio voluntatis, in his own Power and Authority, without Licence or Warrant from Scripture, or right Reaſon (where the Scripture hath been ſilent) though the thing he ſo commandeth, ſhould happen to be good in it ſelf, yet he in his ſo Commanding, is not only Tyrannical, but Antichriſtian, properly Antichriſtian, encroaching on the Royal Office of Chriſt; which is truly High-Treaſon againſt God, and moſt properly Antichriſtianiſm.

By all which, you ſee where the Idolatry of Worſhip lies: The inſtituting of any, though the ſmalleſt part of Worſhip, in and by our own Authority, without Scripture Warrant, makes it Idolatrous, as well as if we worſhipped an Idol. And hence it is, that God gives his People the ſame Call from this latter ſort of Romiſh Idolatry; See Rev. 18. 4. as he doth from the more groſs Pagan Idolatry, 2 Cor. 6. 17. So that if that Worſhip you perform to God, be corrupted by a mixture of meer humane, doctrinal, ſymbolical Rites, and Ceremonies which God hath not appointed in his Worſhip, by the Word; though your Worſhip be right for the Object, yet it is idolatrous in the Manner. Here you had need to be adviſed, and careful, for you are upon a ticklish Point.

What Superſtition is,

And for Superſtition, that is nothing elſe, but an exceſs in Religion. For the better underſtanding whereof, conſider three Things.

1. That all and every part of God's inſtituted Worſhip, depends intirely upon his own Sovereign Will and Pleaſure: So that no Man can appoint any part of it, but God alone, foraſmuch as no Man knows either what will be acceptable to God, but God himſelf; that which is highly eſteemed among Men, is an Abomination to God: Beſides, none can give Efficacy to a Creature, as Bread, Wine, Water, or raiſe them up to ſuch high ſupernatural Ends and uſes, but God.

2. The Will of God, which is the Foundation and Rule of his Worſhip, is only revealed to us in the Scriptures, whence it is manifeſt, that in Worſhip, all men are bound to keep cloſe to the Word, and beſides the Reaſon that is in the Thing it ſelf, the Command is expreſs, Exod. 23. 13. Deut: 4. 2. Gal. 6. 10. [τῷ κάνονι τούτῳ] according to this Canon, or Rule: This is true Canonical Obedience. So Rom. 12. 7. [λογικὴ λατρεία] is properly Word-Service; (i. e.) ſuch as the Word preſcribes.

3. Hence then you may ſee the Door at which Superſtition enters, even Addition of new and uncommanded Things. When we invent new Rites and Ceremonies, and bring them into the Worſhip of God, with a ſpiritual Signification and Uſe, this is Superſtition: being [Supra Statutum] ſomething above and beyond what God appoints and requires. And as all the Water in Tyber, cannot waſh the Papiſts from the Filth of their Idolatry and Superſtition, in their Maſs, Altars, Surplice, Croſs, &c. So neither can any thing beſides the Blood of Jeſus, cleanſe us from the ſame, if we do like them.

Having thus opened the nature of Idolatry and Superſtition to you, I ſhall reinforce that Apoſtolical Caution upon you; Little Children, keep your ſelves from Idols; I beſeech you get Senſes exerciſed, Heb. 5. 14. and ſuffer not your ſelves to be abuſed by an eaſie Credulity: The ſimple believeth every word, Prov. 14. 15. There is no Idolatry or Superſtition in Rome ſo groſs, but is gloſs'd over with plauſible Pretences, and many ſubtile * Diſtinctions invented to defend it. But take not you any thing upon truſt in God's Worſhip; be like thoſe well-bred Beræans, Acts 17. 11. examine the Grounds of your practice. It was a good Saying of Sir Thomas Moor, I will pin my Faith (ſaid he) upon no Man's ſleeve, becauſe I know not whither he will carry it. See that you be provoked with an Anſwer, if God ſhould ſpeak to you, when you are at your Divine Service, as he did to Elijah, 1 Kings 19. 9. when he was hid in the Cave at Horeb, What doſt thou here, Elijah? Or as to the Jews, Iſa. 1. 12. Who hath required this at your hands? See that you be able by the Word, to juſtifie your practice: And as you love your Souls, defile them not with Idolatry or Superſtition. And the rather;

* Additio corrumpens, & conſervans. Additio accidentalium, & eſſentialium.

Arg. 1.

Becauſe, ſhould you be found in a falſe way of Worſhip, you betray a ſpecial Truſt committed to you by the Lord.

Chriſtians, unto you hath the Lord committed his precious Goſpel-Truths and Appointments, as precious Treaſure, to defend and keep for him, Rev. 3. 10. Jude 3. 1 Phil. 7. 17. and one ſpecial Means of its Preſervation, is by witneſſing againſt all thoſe Errors and Innovations, that corrupt and endanger it: O ſee that none of Chriſt's Jewels be embezled, if you can help it. You your ſelves have committed a Truſt to Jeſus Chriſt, 2 Tim. 1. 12. and expect he ſhould be faithful in what you have committed to him; and he expects the ſame from you. Oh! conſider what precious Things the pure Inſtitutions of Chriſt are: All the Good in this World, cannot compenſate the loſs of one of them. Let Heaven ruſh (ſaid Luther) rather than one crumb of Truth ſhould periſh. Oh what hard Things have the Saints in all Generations ſuffered, to preſerve and tranſmit it to us: And ſhall we now betray it? Would not the Generations to come curſe us, and abhor our Remembrance? And then to ſpeak nothing of any ſolemn Bond or Engagement under which you have put your Souls to the contrary.

Arg

Shall we not hereby oppoſe and croſs the great Deſign which God is carrying on in the World, by his preſent Providences? Oh 'twill be ſad to be found oppoſing God's Deſign?

Now

Tali con- ſſione ad rimam hriſti ad- ventum vi- m para- it, tali e- iam ad ſe- undam. Magna ſan- hac fecit rerum mu- tationes, ſed reſtat, longe major Grotius.

Now what is that but, by *ſhaking Heaven and Earth, to remove the Things that are [made; ] viz. by Man invented in his Worſhip, Heb. 12. 27. To pluck up by the Roots, every [Plant; ] (i. e.) Ceremony and Tradition not of his planting, Mat. 15. 13 Are not all theſe Things appointed to Perdition? Col. 2. 22. and dareſt thou then by thy Preſence, or pleading for them, go about to ſupport and eſtabliſh them, and ſo ſtrive againſt God? Oh conſider it ſadly.

Arg. 3. Is it not dangerous to be found amongſt Idolaters? Doth not Judgment ſometimes ſweep away the whole Community and Neighbourhood of ſuch Sinners? Read 1 Sam. 6. 19, 20. 1 Chron. 15. 13. And hath not God given thee timely warning of the Danger before it come? Rev. 18. 4. And is it not more than ordinary dangerous, to be found among them now, when God is preparing his Troops to invade Babylon; I mean ready to pour forth the Vials of his Wrath upon Her?

Arg. 4. And may not your Example have a miſchievous Influence upon others? May it not harden ſinners in their ways? and even compel and draw away the weak Chriſtian? Gal. 2. 13, 14. and ſo draw the Guilt of their ſins upon thine own ſoul? and what a dreadful thing is that! † Actors and Conſenters are alike guilty and puniſhable: Oh you have too much perſonal guilt of your own, add not the guilt of others ſins to it: nay, by this means thou mayeſt be ſinning in another, when thou lyeſt in the Duſt.

Laſtly, conſider how careful God hath always been to keep his People off, at the greateſt diſtance from Idolatry. Compare theſe Scriptures, 2 King 17. 15. Ezek. 44. 20. Numb. 32. 38. 1 Theſ. 5. 22 Heb 4. 1. O let theſe Arguments be impartially weighed, and let not any low fleſhly Intereſt, be ſet up to oppoſe them.

COUNSEL III.

Beware of ſuch Perſons as are Factors and Agents for Antichriſt, and keep off from ſuch a Miniſtry, the tendency and ſcope of which, is to entice and draw you to Idolatry, Mat. 7. 15. and 10. 17. Phil. 3. 2. Col. 2. 8.

*It is not ny deſign o aſperſe ny godly perſon, hat by the revalency of temptation ay join ith hem; the ord I ope will cover ich out f the nare: but ſpeak of e body, nd generality of hem.

There is a *generation of men now abroad, skilful to deſtroy Souls, who would make Merchandiſe of you, and by good words and fair ſpeeches, deceive the hearts of the ſimple [ἀκακῶν,] ſuch as mean well, but want prudence to diſcern ſuch as mean ill. Theſe are of two ſorts; the generality of them are by a righteous hand of God, given over to ſuch diſſoluteneſs and debauchery, that their folly and madneſs, is made manifeſt to all men, 2 Tim. 3. 9. And others that have gifts and parts, how few are there of them, but imploy them in defending abominable Superſtitions, and perſwading their Congregations to ſubmit to them: So that you have your choice, whether you will drink poyſon mixt with water, or infuſed into brisk and generous wine, which will give it a ſpeedier acceſs to the ſpirits. Theſe are † Wells without water, deceiving the hope of weary and thirſty Souls: Clouds they are without rain, that ſend not forth one gracious ſhower to refreſh the Inheritance of the Lord: The beſt of them is a bryar, and the moſt upright of them ſharper than a thorn hedge, Mic. 7. 4.

I believe there be many among you that are ſharp ſet, and by this time have felt the miſery of a ſpiritual famine. 'Tis bread you come for, but your Father hath ſhut up houſe, and is gone for a time, the Glory is departed; they are become Wells without water, breaſts without milk: is there not a vanity in theſe, as well as in the creatures, when God is withdrawn from them? We may ſay concerning them, as Iſaac did to his father, Gen. 22. 7. Behold the fire and the wood, but where is the Sacrifice? Here you may ſee the skin, and ſhadow of an Ordinance, but where is the power? where is the life, quickening, and ſoul refreſhment, that was wont to accompany them? Ah poor England! what haſt thou loſt! what a Miniſtry haſt thou ſinned away! waſt thou not renowned among the Nations for the power, and purity of Ordinances? were not thy Miniſters as ſheep coming up from the waſhing, whereof every one bare twins, and none was barren among them? How was the Lord Jeſus lifted up in thy Miniſtry, that all might ſee the Neceſſity, Beauty and Excellency of him! and did not the pangs of the New-Birth, frequently come upon Souls in thine Aſſemblies? But alas, thoſe days are over, they are gone, they are gone; ah wo is us, that we muſt ſay, So it was! Well then, what will you do in this caſe? will you ſeek the living among the dead? will you ſuck empty breaſts, whence you can draw nothing but wind or blood? O no, but rather ſay, as Cant. 1. 7. Tell me, O thou whom my ſoul loveth, where thou feedeſt, were thou makeſt thy Flocks to reſt at noon; for why ſhould I be as one that turns aſide by the flocks of thy companions? Theſe Companions of Chriſt, muſt be none of yours.

Arg. 1. Becauſe it is the manifeſt drift, and deſign of their Miniſtry, to unteach, and beguile you of thoſe precious Goſpel-Truths which you have formerly received, and learnt. This ſome of them have not ſhun'd to declare in the face of their Congregations; and nothing is more apparent, than that it is the deſign they all manage. I appeal to your own obſervations, what is more common with them, than to tell you, you have been miſguided by your Teachers theſe twenty years, and now muſt return to the good Old Way, which themſelves are utterly unacquainted with?

Pet. Martyr

Now what do you by attendance on ſuch a Miniſtry, but run your Souls upon a temptation to unſettlement, and Apoſtacy? and dig a grave (as I may ſay) to bury all the precious Truths you have learn'd under your former faithful Miniſters? Who may ſigh over you, and ſay as Peter Martyr did, when he was in Oxford, at the coming in of Queen Mary; he heard a College-Bell ring to Maſs, and looking out at his Study window, ſaw the Scholars flocking apace to it, being ſtruck to the heart with this ſight, he brake out into this expreſſion, Hæc una notula (ſaid he) omnem meam doctrinam evertit; (i. e.) This Bell rings a paſſing-peal to all my Doctrine: and upon ſerious conſideration, this will appear to be no ſmall evil. For you cannot but be convinced, that it is your duty to be immoveably fixed in the Truths of the Goſpel which you have received, and to ſuffer no man to ſpoil you of them: if you doubt that, read 2 Pet. 3. 17, 18. Col. 1. 23. Epheſ. 3. 17. Col. 2. 6, 7. 1 Cor. 15. 58.

---

† Jactant epantq; ripturam, ſed eam non intelligunt, imo pervertunt aperiunt quaſi ntes ſcientiæ, qui aquam non habent doctrinarum, præmittunt imbrem, lut nubes prophetiæ. Hieron. contra Jov.

And if this be your ſin, to be moved away from it, then it muſt needs be your duty, to avoid the temptations, means and occaſions of ſuch unſettlement. And this is that which is intended in all thoſe cautions given in the Word, and but lately recited.

I am againſt the Prophets that [ſteal] the Word, every man from his neighbour, Jer. 23. 30. He means the falſe true Prophets that enticed the People from thoſe Truths, which the Prophets had taught them. There be ſpiritual Cut-purſes abroad, pray look to your ſelves: The old Chemarims are revived again in this Generation: The word, Zeph. 1. 4. is conceived to come from כמר incaluit; (i.e.) men more zealous and hot than ordinary, for their ſuperſtitious Traditions; inflam'd with deſires to draw you to it: Ut multitudine ſequacium, ſeſe efferunt: Which the Apoſtle engliſhes, Gal. 6. 13. that they may glory in your fleſh: And therefore beware of men.

Arg. 2. Doth not your attendance upon, and following of ſuch a Miniſtry, help to midwife and bring forth all thoſe evils with which their Miniſtry travails and is in pain to be delivered of? could they do any hurt, if they were generally declined and avoided? their ſtrength lyeth in you: As a great Commander once ſaid to his Souldiers, That he flew upon their Wings. Hence it was the Phariſees were ſo often diſappointed in their attempts to lay hands upon Chriſt; they had a ſtrong deſign to do it, but the Text ſaith, They could not becauſe of the People, Mark 14. 2. Acts 4. 21. So the falſe Teachers in Jeroboam's time, Hoſ. 7. 6, 7. were as hot as an Oven, with deſires and deſigns to draw the People to falſe Worſhip, but the People were a great Lump, and could not preſently be leavened; and therefore in the mean time, till that were done, the Baker ſlept, and ceaſed from raiſing. This for a time, obſtructed the deſign. But here is the miſery, the people are materia diſpoſita, matter fit for them to work into any form, if they give them but an heat or two in a plauſible Sermon, they are malleable, and fit to be hammered into any ſhape, Jer. 5. ult. The People love to have it ſo: And Amos 4. 5. This liketh you, O houſe of Iſrael. Fear of Perſecution makes them comply with any thing, Gal. 6. 12.

Acts 4. 21.

Arg. 3. Can you attend lawfully and comfortably upon ſuch a miniſtry, upon which you cannot pray for, or expect a bleſſing? doubtleſs, you will readily confeſs you may not. And can you pray for, or expect a bleſſing, where you have no promiſe in all the Book of God, to warrant or encourage you ſo to do? 'tis as clear you cannot. Now produce but one promiſe made to the labours of ſuch as God hath not ſent. A curſe upon their labours you may find, Jer. 23. 32. and upon their gifts and parts. And a prohibition of hearing them, you may find, Jer. 23. 16. But no promiſe of a bleſſing; that only attends a Miniſtry of Chriſts own ſending, Mat. 28. 19, 20.

Object. But hath not Chriſt ſent them? how ſhall we be ſatisfied in that?

Sol. Conſider what is requiſite and neceſſary in the ſending, or due Call of a Miniſter. (1.) Whether it be perſonal Qualifications, deſcribed, 1 Tim. 3. 7. 2 Tim. 3. 16, 17. 1 Tim. 3. 2. 2 Tim. 2. 2. John 21. 15, 16, 17. (2.) Or free Election by the Church, to which the Miniſtry is given. See Acts 1. 23, 24. Acts 6. 5. (3.) Or (according to true Presbyterian Principles) Ordination, by Faſting, Prayer, and Impoſition of Hands, Acts 6. 6. and 13. 3. and 14. 23. 1 Tim. 5. 22. and 4. 14. 2 Tim. 1. 6.

If the Sending or Call of a Miniſter, conſiſt in all or either of theſe, then judge your ſelves whether theſe men are ſent. For their Gifts and qualifications neceſſary to fit them for ſuch a work, let their Congregations witneſs, who are fed upon husks, and ſtarved under them.

For their Election by the Church, let the Godly in their reſpective Pariſhes witneſs, whether they were elected by them, or obtruded upon them, and ſo ſtand upon the ruines of their own lawful and godly Paſtours.

And for their Ordination, their own Canons may inform you: Wherein it is ordered; (1.) That they be made Deacons; (2.) Then after a years ſpace, they muſt be preſented to the Biſhop, or his Suffragan, by an Arch Deacon or his Deputy, ſaying Reverend Father in God, I preſent theſe perſons to be admitted to the Order of Prieſthood. (3.) Then after the Letany and ſome Collects, the Prelate asketh them, Do you think in your hearts, that you be truly called according to the Will of Chriſt, and the Order of this Church of England, to the Miniſtry of Prieſthood? and every one of them anſwers, I think it. (4.) Then they promiſe reverently, to obey their Ordinary and other chief Miniſters of the Church. (5.) And then kneeling down at the Prelates feet, he, with the Prieſts preſent, lay their hands on their heads, ſaying, Receive the holy Ghoſt. Whoſe ſins thou doſt forgive, they are forgiven; and whoſe ſins thou doſt retain, they are retained: and be thou a faithful Diſpenſer of the Word of God, and of his holy Sacraments, In the Name of the Father, Son and holy Ghoſt. Amen. (6.) Then delivering to each of them a Bible, he ſaith, Take thou Authority to preach the Word of God, and to adminiſter the holy Sacraments, in the Congregation where thou ſhalt be ſo appointed. (7.) And after all this, by the Canons of 1603. none of them are to be admitted to any Eccleſiaſtical Living, or ſuffered to preach, except he be licenſed ſo to do, by the Arch-Biſhop, or Biſhop of the Dioceſs, and ſhall ſubſcribe, That the Book of Common-Prayer, and of ordering Biſhops, Prieſts and Deacons, contains in it nothing contrary to the Word of God, and that it may be lawfully uſed, and that he himſelf will uſe the ſame; And that he alloweth the Book of Articles of Religion. (8.) And then laſtly, having abjured the Covenant, &c. he is a compleat Prieſt to all Intents and Purpoſes.

Judge now what a fair and regular Call here is to the Miniſtry. I remember Aquinas tells us, that, If the Artificers Hand were his Rule, he could never work amiſs. And ſo, if the Prelates Hand be the Rule of Ordination, they cannot but be well ordained; but if the Scriptures be indeed the Rule, I am at a loſs where to find a Text parallel to this Practice, unleſs it be that in 2 Chron. 13. 9. which, I confeſs, ſuits it to an hairs breadth.

Object. But this will invalidate and nullifie the Call of our former ancient and godly Miniſters, for they came in the ſame way: Yet God hath owned them, and they have made full proof of their Miniſtry.

Sol. Not at all. For (1.) though it muſt be confeſt (and themſelves will not deny, but there were many grand Irregularities in their Ordination; yet it was (comparatively) a time of ignorance and darkneſs; and in ſuch caſes, God is more indulgent, and the ſin receives not ſuch aggravations, Acts 17. 30. Heb. 5. 2. Heb. 6. 5, 6, 7. Jam. 4. 17. (2.) As hard as the terms then were, they are harder now by far; ſeveral things ſince that, have intervened, which are conſiderable. (3.) They were holy men, qualified with Graces, and Gifts, able and apt to teach, which is mainly conſiderable in a Miniſter's Call. (4.) Laſtly, they generally came into their places at the deſire, and upon the call, of the moſt godly Perſons in the places where they lived. And this, if they had no more, makes them true Miniſters (in the judgment of many judicious Divines) altho' their Epiſcopal Ordination ſhould be a nullity. Let us hear what is ſaid in this caſe by others. Ameſius, his words are theſe, ſpeaking to this queſtion; In whom is this right, and power of calling the Miniſters? he anſwers; (1.) Summum jus vocationis, eſt penes Chriſtum ſolum, qui eſt Eccleſiæ caput, & Miniſterij auctor, ac Dominus Miniſtrorum. (2.) Jus delegatum non poteſt proprie eſſe vel Epiſcoporum Diœceſanorum vel Patronorum, vel Magiſtratuum, qua ſunt tales; quia Chriſtus qui Miniſterium inſtituit, de iſtis ordinibus nihil ſingulare præſcripſit, nihil novi juris ipſis communicavit, & Eccleſiam ſine illis optime ordinatam reliquit. (3.) Jus delegatum eſt penes Eccleſiam illam totam, cui Miniſter vocandus debet inſervire, &c. (1.) The chief right of calling, is the Power of Chriſt alone, who is Head of the Church, Author of the Miniſtry, and Lord of Miniſters. (2.) The delegated right cannot properly be, either of dioceſan Biſhops, or Patrons, or Magiſtrates (as ſuch) becauſe Chriſt, who inſtituted the Miniſtry, preſcribed nothing ſingular, concerning thoſe Orders, communicated nothing of any new right to them, and left his Church well ordered without them. (3.) The delegated Right is in the power of that whole Church, to which the Miniſter that is to be called, ought to ſerve, &c. which he proves by many weighty Arguments. To this I ſhall join the Teſtimony of that bleſſed man, now with God, Mr. Jer. Burroughs, his words are theſe; “For “their calling, I make no queſtion, but there “are many Miniſters in England, as they were, “and as they are, that are the true Miniſters “of Jeſus Chriſt, and have a true Call from “Chriſt.

Ameſ. Caſ. conſci. lib. 4. p. 233.

rroughs the th. of t. 28. Book, 110.

“Object. But how can that be? they hold “their ſtanding from the Biſhops, and ſo from “Antichriſt.

Anſw. “Take it for granted, that their Au- “thority from the Biſhops was wholly naught, “and ſinful, yet that doth not follow, but that “many Miniſters, that had their Ordination “from them, are true Miniſters of Chriſt: “Why? not becauſe of that they had from “them, but they had their calling likewiſe “from the People of God, as well as in a “ſeeming way from them: for we will take “that for granted, that that they had from “them, there was ſuch corruption in it, that “they ſinned againſt God; but yet mark, “that doth not nullifie their Call, becauſe they “had ſomewhat ſuper-added, wherein they “ſinned againſt God. This he farther illuſtrates in the ſame place by this ſimilitude, If a man have two Deeds or Evidences for a piece of Land, and one be naught, yet if the other be good and ſound, he hath a true Title. Mr. Collings alſo, anſwering this Objection, Miniſters had their Ordination from Biſhops, and they from Rome. Rome is no true Church, and hath no true Miniſtry; and thoſe that were not Miniſters themſelves, could not make others: Having inferr'd ſeveral abſurdities from the Objection, gives this Anſwer; “Suppoſe the Reformers had no Or- “dination, but the Call of the People, it “was a plain caſe of neceſſity; and they “had power doubtleſs, to reſtore that Ordi- “nance to the Church again.

Mr. Colling's vindiciæ Miniſt. p. 73.

So that as long as they were holy men, ſo eminently qualified, and fairly called by good People, far be it from me, to queſtion the validity of their Call. But the Caſe before us, differs Heaven-wide from this.

Object. But they are not worſe than the Scribes and Phariſees were? yet Chriſt commands his Diſciples to hear them, Mat 23. 2, 3.

Sol. Becauſe this is the Achilean Argument, I ſhall endeavour to ſatisfie you in this Scripture, and deſtroy the Argument commonly drawn from this place, by theſe plain and (as I judge) ſatisfactory replies to it.

1. Thoſe that infer from this Text a duty or a liberty of attending on, or joyning with a prophane and corrupt Miniſtry, do thereby (though perhaps unawares) gratifie the Popiſh Cauſe and Intereſt; for from this very Text, they draw many of their Arguments to condemn our ſeparation from them, and alſo to convince us of the neceſſity of obeying the Mandates of their Prelates, and hearing their Jeſuits and Monks, notwithſtanding their corruptions in worſhip, and filthy ſodomitical lives. Huc enim torquent verba Chriſti, ſaith Calvin, To this ſence they wreſt the words of Chriſt. And to the ſame ſence Pareus ſpeaks, Ut hodie Papa, & Epiſcopi clamant, omnia, omnia ſervate; As the Pope and the Biſhops cry out at this day, all things, all things they bid you do, obſerve and do. So that by taking the words in ſuch a large unlimitted ſenſe, we do the Cauſe of Chriſt more diſſervice, than we are aware of.

2. It is further conſiderable, that the Arguments drawn from this Text, are commonly fallacious, taking it for granted, that religious hearing, as an act of worſhip, is here injoyned; whereas there is not a ſyllable of any ſuch thing in the Text: Indeed Chriſt bids them obſerve and do whatſoever they bid them; but it doth not thence follow, they ſhould Religiouſly attend on their Miniſtry: (1.) Becauſe it's evident, theſe Scribes and Phariſees ſuſtained a double capacity; they were Expoſitors of the Law, that we allow; and they were alſo of the Sanedrim, in a civil capacity, as Rulers; that appears from, John 3. 1. 10. Acts 5. 34. In this civil capacity, they are moſt properly ſaid, to ſit in Moſes's Seat; for the 70 Elders which made up this Sanedrim came in upon a civil ſcore at firſt, as appears from, Numb. 11. 16, 17. and ſo were joyned with Moſes in the Government. Now then, this command ſeems moſt properly to reſpect them as Rulers; who in that capacity both opened the judicial Laws of Moſes, and enjoyned the people to obey them. (2.) Becauſe Chriſt had before warned them, to take heed of their leaven (i. e.) their Doctrine, Mat. 16. 6, 12. and told them they were blind Guides, and what the fatal iſſue of them and their Diſciples that followed them, would be, Mat. 15. 14. both ſhould fall into the ditch; and that their worſhip was vain, Mat. 15. 9. and it is not like he would afterwards encourage them to attend on it.

3. But admit it were ſo, that Chriſt gives them liberty to hear them as Miniſters, though they were corrupt, yet it is no good conſequence, that therefore we may hear any Miniſters, though never ſo corrupt in principles and practice now. And the reaſon which deſtroys this conſequence, is this, becauſe there is a vaſt difference betwixt the infant State of the Goſpel-Church in the days of Chriſt on earth, and its more perfect State after his death; we know the firſt Tabernacle was then ſtanding, the Veil of the Temple not then rent in twain, the Goſpel Miniſtry not then inſtituted: and therefore during that State, as Chriſt himſelf ſubmitted to the Ordinances of the Law (for it became him to fulfill all Righteouſneſs: (ſo did his Diſciples ſubmit to them alſo: yea, and he exhorts others alſo to obſerve the rites appointed by it; as Mat. 8. 4. bids him that was cleanſed, to go and ſhew himſelf to the Prieſt, and offer his gift which the law of Moſes required. But ſince the death of Chriſt, and the taking down of that firſt Tabernacle, and the inſtitution of the Goſpel-Miniſtry, none of theſe Precepts bind: for, as Judicious Pareus on the place notes, this was but [Mandatum temporale] a temporal Command; which ceaſed to oblige upon the commiſſionating and full inſtruction of the New Goſpel-Miniſtry: And then its manifeſt (ſaith he) they made a Separation from the Phariſees, and the Jewiſh Synagogue.

Now we are to attend upon no Miniſtry, but of Chriſt's inſtitution; for to them only hath he promiſed his Preſence, Mat. 28. ult. and none can preach (i. e.) lawfully except he be ſent, Rom. 10. And I have proved before, theſe are not his Miniſtry, nor ſent by him.

COUNSEL IV.

Give your uttermoſt diligence to promote Religion, and the Power of Godlineſs, in your reſpective Families, and Neighbourhoods; and the rather do this with all your might, becauſe the ordinary and more publick means of their Converſion and Edification, is cut off.

This Counſel conſiſts of two Branches; the firſt concerns your Families, the ſecond your Neighbours; a word diſtinctly to each.

1. As to your Families, O ſhine as Lights there; lay out your Talents as many ways as they may poſſibly be improveable for the good of all about you, eſpecially thoſe under your guardianſhip and charge, Exod. 20. 10. By this the Power of Godlineſs muſt be diſcovered in you, and begotten and kept alive in them. The Jews have a Tradition, that the Fire of the Altar was miraculouſly preſerved under ground, during the Babyloniſh Captivity. I am ſure this is the way to preſerve Religion alive, now the publick ordinary means are ceaſed. Precepts are not wanting to inforce this duty upon you; Deut. 4. 9, 10. & 6. 6, 7. Exod. 12. 24, 26, 27. Joſh. 4. 6, 7, 21, 22. Pſal. 78. 5, 6. Prov. 22. 6. Epheſ. 6. 4. nor yet worthy Examples to encourage to it; Gen. 18. 19. 1 Chron. 28. 9. Prov. 31. 26. 2 Tim. 3. 15. 2 Joh. 1. 4. Aquila and Priſcilla had a Church in their Houſe, 1 Cor. 16. 19. Nymphas and Philemon in theirs, Col. 4. 15. Philem. 2. Hence it is, ſaith * Davenant on the place, that the Apoſtle ſends a ſpecial Salutation to them, by name; becauſe of their ſingular Piety, which manifeſted it ſelf in their Family Government. And indeed, how freſh and glorious a remembrance in the Scriptures have thoſe worthy Saints unto this day, and ſo ſhall have where-ever the Goſpel is preached, unto the end of the World, who have burned with an holy Zeal, not only to offer up themſelves, but their Families alſo unto God! David well underſtood how near this Duty lay to the heart of Religion, when he puts his ſoul under the bond of ſuch a ſolemn engagement to the Lord, Pſal. 101. 2. It doth not a little affect me to read what a † learned man obſerves of the Jews; Although Religion be miſerably deformed among them, yet it ſeems there are ſome prints of their ancient Family Diſcipline to this day remaining among them; for (ſaith he) they are ſo careful to teach their Children in their tender years, the Law, and Books of Moſes, and after that their Talmudical Traditions, as that their skill in Judaiſm at 17. exceeds the knowledge of many among us in Chriſtianity, at 70. Nay, the very Jeſuits boaſt themſelves, the grand Conſervators of the Romiſh Religion, in that they are Catechizers. Oh let this Provoke Chriſtians! we ſee how light breaks out more and more in every age; as Luther ſaid, I ſee more than bleſſed Auſtin ſaw; and they that come after me, will ſee more than I ſee. And we have great hopes and expectations of the young Generation, that they may enter into the good Land, though we ſhould die in this Wilderneſs. O then let us labour to prepare and make them ready for the Lord; and that not only by inſtructing them in the Principles of Religion in a Catechiſtical way (though that be an Ordinance of God, and of ſingular uſe in its kind) but by endeavouring to the utmoſt, by Counſels, Perſuaſions, Prayers for, and with them, to have the Power of Godlineſs wrought in their hearts, to travail with them again in pain, till Chriſt be formed in them. And to this Duty, theſe Arguments among many others, may perſuade.

Arg. 1. From the relation it ſelf, which is betwixt you and them, look but into your own Bowels, and you ſhall find arguments enough to provoke your utmoſt care and induſtry for their good: What is a Child but a piece of your e Ex-rtation Catech. the Mi-ers of the Iſle of ight. p. 17.

* Adjungit ſpecialem Salutationem, ob ſpecialem & eximiam hujus viri pietatem, equum enim eſt extraordinarium illis deferre honorem, quorum egregia virtus præ cæteris eminet & effulget in Eccleſia. Dav. in Loc.

† Buxtorf. in Synag. Judaic. Cap. 3.

your ſelf (as one ſaith) wrapt up in another skin? what an ineſtimable value doth nature it ſelf teach you to ſet upon them? The life of Jacob is ſaid to be bound up in Benjamin's, Gen. 44. 30. This dear and ardent affection to them, we uſe to expreſs by our earneſt deſires of them, till we have them, Gen. 15. 2. What wilt thou give me, ſeeing I go childleſs, ſaid Abraham, Gen. 30. 1. Give me Children, or elſe I die, ſaid Rachel, 1 Sam. 1. 10, 11. How earneſtly did Hannah pray in the bitterneſs of her Soul, for a Child. Alſo by the ſingular contentment we take in them, when we have them, John 16. 21. and the wonderful tenderneſs of our affections to them, and earneſt deſires to keep them, no value can be ſet upon a Child, Gen. 42. 36, 38. Luke 8. 41, 42. John 7. 47, 49. Alſo by our ſympathizing with them in all conditions; their comfort is ours, Gen. 45. 27, 28. and their miſery is ours, Mark 9. 22. And laſtly, by our extream grief when we loſe them, Gen. 37. 33, 34, 35. Mat. 2. 18.

Now are they ſuch near and dear things to you, Oh then how many motives doth this dear and tender relation wrap up in it, to endeavour the eternal Salvation of their poor Souls! 'tis the Soul of the Child, that is the Child; and if that periſh for want of Knowledge, where is the mercy of having Children? Surely an untimely birth is better than they: Ah when you ſhall ſeem them enemies to God, thoſe that came out of your bowels to be in rebellion againſt him; will it not make you take up Job's wiſh, and apply it to them, Job 3. 1, 5. let the day periſh wherein they were born, and the night in which it was ſaid they are conceived, let the darkneſs and the ſhadow of death ſtain it; let a cloud dwell upon it, let the blackneſs of the day terrifie it, why died they not from the womb? why did they not give up the Ghoſt when they came out of the belly? why did the knees prevent them? or why the breaſts that they ſhould ſuck? Ah if you have the hearts of Parents in you, think how ſad a conſideration this will be to you, that thoſe who are ſo dear to you, ſhould be the objects of God's Wrath; thoſe you have been ſo tender over, and have ſo often put into your boſoms, muſt underlie eternal torments, and their bed be made in Hell? if you have any good thing your ſelves, you cannot with-hold it from them; if you be feaſted abroad, and they pining at home, the greateſt Dainties do you no good. Why now, unleſs they be taught the knowledge of Chriſt, and a ſaving change paſs upon them, when you ſhall ſit down with Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob in the Kingdom of God, abundantly ſatisfied with the Fatneſs of his Houſe, and drinking of the Rivers of his Pleaſure, they ſhall be ſhut out: Nature teacheth you to feel the pains of their bodies, and cannot Grace teach you to ſympathize with the miſery of their poor wretched Souls? Well, the day is coming, if they die Chriſtleſs, that they will wiſh they had been the generation of Tygers, or off-ſpring of Dragons, rather than your Children: and when you can have them no more, you know who muſt, and will.

g. 2. From that exceeding Joy, it muſt needs be to a godly Parent, to ſee his Children, and Relations gracious. May not every godly Parent ſay as John did of the Children of the Elect Lady, I have no greater joy, than to ſee them walk in the Truth, 2 John 1. 4. Is it pleaſing to you to ſee your own image in them? and will it not much more delight you, to ſee the Image of Chriſt in them? Grace doubles the relation, and ſo muſt needs exceedingly increaſe your joy in them. This is the true way to build up the Felicity of your iſſue. How many anxious thoughts and ſollicitous cares will this diſcharge thy heart of! O if thou leave them in the Covenant of Grace, thy heart may be at reſt concerning them; if thou leave them not a groat, they ſhall not want a father to care for them when thou art in the duſt. Beſides, Grace will effectually teach them the duties of their Relation to you, while you live; hereby you will provide, not only for their eternal good, but your own joy alſo.

The work lies now upon your hand more than ever, as I hinted before; and truely you have many ſingular advantages above all others, to do the work. (1.) You are continually with them, and ſo may take the fitteſt ſeaſons to drop your admonitions upon them, Deut. 6. 6 7. (2) You beſt know their tempers and diſpoſitions, and ſo can apply your ſelves with more advantage to them. (3.) You have the deepeſt intereſt in their hearts and affections, which is a great matter, this will make your words, (eſpecially if dropt upon them with much affection) ſink deep. Oh what Child can chuſe but relent, while a Parent is ſpeaking with a melting heart to him, about his Eternal concernments. I remember Auſtine writes of his Mother Monica, that ſhe planted the Precepts of Life in his mind by her words, watred them with her Tears, and nouriſhed them with her Example. A precious pattern for all Mothers. Arg. 3.

Methinks theſe Arguments ſhould excite you to your duty; O if you have in you the bowels of Parents, let them impel you to it; you cannot plead danger here, as in other duties; againſt ſuch there is [yet] no Law.

2. As to your Neighbourhood. You ſhould ſtudy to be uſeful in your generation; are there any poor carnal Neighbours about you? O viſit them, and be ever dropping ſome ſerious words of Counſel upon them: how do you know but there may be ſome ſleeping conviction left upon them by the Miniſtry they once ſate under, which you may be inſtrumental to awaken? And are their any that fear the Lord near you, O be often together, ſtrengthen the hands that hang down. The Jews have a Proverb, that One dry ſtick will ſet two green ones on fire. A lively Chriſtian may be of ſingular uſe in ſuch a day as this. In Mal. 3. 16. we find what the practice of Chriſtians was in an evil day, as it appears that was, by the 15*th verſe*, They that work wickedneſs, are ſet up, yea they that tempt God, are even delivered. And yet, Then they that feared the Lord, ſpake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him, for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his Name. — And they ſhall be mine, &c. Oh how well doth God take it, when his People will not be terrified from their Duty by the fear of men! The Lord hearkned and heard it; They they did not whiſper ſo in one anothers ear (ſaith a modern Divine) but God over-heard them, the Lord liſtned, as it were, at the key-hole, he was under the window, and kept it upon record; a book of remembrance was written. Oh how pleaſant is it to God, to ſee his ſecret ones making hard ſhifts to get together to worſhip him! Cant. 2. 14. Oh my Dove that art in the Clefts of the Rocks, in the ſecret places of the Stairs; let me ſee thy Countenance, let me hear thy Voice; for ſweet is thy Voice, and thy Countenance is comely. What are theſe *Clefts of Rocks, and ſecret places of the Stairs, but thoſe ſecret retiring places, where the People of God get together in difficult times to ſeek their God? there they †poured out their Souls together in broken-hearted confeſſions of ſin. The Primitive Chriſtians, ſaith Hilary, were not to be ſought, in Tectis & exteriori Pompa, (i. e) in Palaces and outward Pomp, but rather in Deſerts and Mountains, in Dens and Caves of the Earth; as Heb. 11. 38. In Queen Mary's time, (ſaith Mr. Fox) there were ſometimes 40, ſometimes an 100, ſometime 200, came together as they could, in private places in London, for mutual edification.

* Non in domicilio ſed in latibulo verſatur. Brightman in loc.

† Hoc eſt illud os totum oppletum lachrymis cujusin aſpectu tam mirifice delectatur Deus; ibid. Acts & Mon. fol. 1881.

And though men call this by hard names, and load it with reproach, as if it were Faction and Sedition, yet it undergoes another cenſure in Heaven. I remember Tertullian*, about 1400 years ago, in his Apology vindicates this Practice of theirs, againſt the Calumnies of the Heathen; When good Men meet together (ſaith he) it is not to be called a faction, but a Court. And on the contrary, the name of Faction is to be applied to them, who conſpire in hatred againſt good and honeſt men. And what place is accounted ſo honourable, and abounds with delights, as the Courts of Princes? Yea, let us hear what a †Biſhop of our own ſpeaks of ſuch Meetings; Sometimes (ſaith he) the rage of Perſecution ſuffers not the Church to meet in the publick ſight of all, but forces them as it were to creep into private Holes; as Rev. 12. 6. as Athanaſius and other Orthodox Chriſtians, were fain to ſeek hiding places from the Arrians.

* Cum boni, cum probi coeunt, non eſt factio dicenda, ſed Curia, & e contrario, illis nomen factionis accommodandum eſt, qui in odium bonorum & proborum conſpirant. Ter. Apol. cap. 39.

† Quævis collectio fidelium, etiam ſi ob paucitatem ſuam intra, privatæ domus parietes includi poſſit, etiamſi ob furorem hoſtium nocturnos conventus agant, eſt vera eccleſia. Dav. in Loc. p. 410.

Every Meeting of the Faithful, although for their fewneſs, they may be included within the walls of a Private Houſe, although by the fury of the Enemies, they keep their meeting by night, yet it is a true Church. Thus Biſhop Davenant. And truly if the Saints had nothing elſe but the gracious Preſence of Chriſt, (which is by promiſe engaged to be among them) it were enough to oppoſe to all the difficulties and dangers attending on ſuch a Duty. What a ſweet Promiſe is that, Mat. 18. 20. Where two two or three are gathered together in my Name, there am I in the midſt of them: That is? ſaith Cameron, not only with them, but as a Preſident among them: Chriſt will be there to defend, teach and bleſs them. How often hath this Promiſe been made good to the experiences of the Saints? John 20. 19. Then the ſame day at evening, being the firſt day of the week, when the doors were ſhut, where the Diſciples were aſſembled, for fear of the Jews, came Jeſus and ſtood in the midſt of them and ſaith unto them, Peace be unto you. Oh if Jeſus be in the midſt of you, no matter how many Enemies combine againſt you: If he ſpeak peace to you, no matter who prepares war againſt you: 'tis worth the venturing far, to meet with Jeſus Chriſt, and enjoy fellowſhip with him in ſuch Duties.

And beſides, this is the way to prevent the decay and cooling of thy affections: In times of abounding iniquity, the love of many will wax cold, but he that endureth to the end, the ſame ſhall be ſaved. Lo it is but an [He] (ſaith one upon the Text) a ſingle man, a very few, that hold out in compariſon of the Apoſtates. The whole world went wandring after the Beaſt, Rev. 13. 3, 4. Such was the paucity and obſcurity of Chriſtians in the Arrian Times, that Baſil crys out, An Eccleſias ſuas prorſus dereliquit Dominus? Hath the Lord utterly forſaken his Churches? the ſhip of the Church was then almoſt overwhelmed, ſaith Hierom; when the ſtorm is at its height, thou ſhalt ſee Profeſſors fall like the leaves in Autumn, or as rotten fruit in a windy day. The Dragon's Tail ſhall ſweep down the third part of the Stars. Now to fix thee in ſuch a day, the Communion of Saints is of ſingular uſe, they do wedge in and faſten one another; all the enemies rage could not ſever them; in the Primitive times, Acts 4. 23. being let go, they went to their Company: * Two (ſaith Solomon) are better than one, becauſe they have a good reward for their labour, for if they fall, the one will help up his fellow: But woe to him that is alone, Eccleſ. 4. 9, 10. If two lie together, then they have heat; but how can one be warm alone? Communion with ſpiritual Chriſtians, affords this double benefit; if one ſtumble, yea fall, another will recover him; if ones affections grow chill, another's zeal will warm them again: the benefit of ſuch Society, is unſpeakable, and truly the nearer you keep to God, the cloſer you will cleave to one another, as lines are nearer at the center.

* In Spirituali ſocietate, hoc etiam locum præcipue habet, ut maturis cohortationibus animorum in pietate frigus & Congelationem inductū Dei zelo repellamus. Cartwright in loc.

COUNSEL V.

Study to keep your ſelves pure from the Corruptions of the preſent World.

It is not only a great ſin, but an ill ſign, to be carried away with the ſtreams of the times. A Sin, becauſe directly oppoſite to the Command, Rom. 12. 2. Be not conformed to this World, [τῷ αἰῶνι τούτῳ,] to this age; the meaning is, do not get into the garb of the Times. And an ill Sign, becauſe the Scripture makes it the character of a wicked man, Epheſ. 2. 2. They walk according to the courſe of this World. In the original [κατ᾽ αἰῶνα] accord to the age, as the manner of the Times went: it is as dangerous living in ill company, as breathing in an infectious air; for as * one obſerves well, No Peſt doth ſooner infect the air, than Sin infects and defiles the mind: it is as hard a matter to preſerve your ſelves from guilt among wicked men, as it is to keep your ſelves clean, where many dirty dogs are leaping and fawning upon you: the diſeaſes of the ſoul are very catching. How great a commendation was it to Noah, that he was upright, and walked with God, when all fleſh had corrupted their ways! And how beautiful a ſight is it to ſee Chriſtians ſhine as Lights in the midſt of a crooked and and perverſe Generation! Phil. 2. 15. to continue a Lily among Thorns. The World is a Sea, and every particular Perſon in it a drop; now to ſee a drop of Water in the Sea carried in a counter Motion to the Tyde, is marvellous. Chriſtians are a diſtinct Company of themſelves, Acts 4. 23. You are of another world, Joh. 17. 14. and your converſes ſhould be in Heaven, Col 3. 1, 2. and with heavenly Spirits, Pſal. 16. 3. Oh how hard is it to eſcape Partnerſhip with them in Sin, if we converſe unneceſſarily among them! If fine Bread be in the ſame Oven with courſe. the finer Partakes of that which is courſe, but the courſe ſeldom partakes of the fine: If you lay bright and clean Armour among that which is ruſty, the ruſty Armour communicates its ruſt to the clean, but the bright communicates not its Brightneſs to the ruſty. There are more ways than one, by which thou mayeſt be involved into Guilt by them. Suppoſe thou conſenteſt not with them, much leſs inſtigateſt them to ſin, yet mayeſt thou be defiled by their Sin, if it be but by thy ſilence when thou oughteſt to reprove them, Lev. 5. 1. or by not being ſo grieved, and tenderly affected with their Sins, as thou oughteſt, 1 Cor. 5. 1, 2. Thus did David, Pſal. 119. 136. And Lot, 2 Pet. 2.7, 8. that they might free their own Souls. From this I might diſwade you by many Arguments: As,

Arg. 1.

The expreſs Command of God laid upon you; he hath forbidden you to follow a * multitude to do evil, Exod. 23. 2. it may be underſtood either of Multitude or Magnitude. Many Men, or great Men (for the Will of God is not revealed to men with reſpect either to their Numbers, or Greatneſs; but his ſecret is with them that fear him;) to go in the way of evil Men, Prov. 4. 14. to have no Fellowſhip with the unfruitful Works of Darkneſs, Eph. 5. 11. to ſave your ſelves from this untoward Generation, Acts 2. 40. with many of like Importance. And this is Reaſon enough to make you cautelous, ſeeing God hath given ſuch expreſs Prohibitions in this Caſe.

רבים * It may ſignifie either quantitatem continuam, or diſcretam; either magnitudinem, or multitudinem.

Arg. 2.

The ſpecial Eye of Favour which God hath always caſt upon ſuch as have been upright in their Generation, and kept themſelves pure from the Corruptions of the Times they lived in. Noah walked with God, when the Earth was overſpred with an Inundation of Wickedneſs, Gen. 6. 9. and Noah is ſaved by the Lord when the Earth is overwhelmed with an Inundation of Water, Gen. 6. 8. Lot his righteous Soul is vexed with the filthy Converſation of the Sodomites, and he is graciouſly exempted from the Deſolation that came upon them, Gen. 19. 16. he would not join hands with ſinners, and God will take him by the hand, as a Friend to reſcue him out of the Danger. Elijah will walk with and appear for God, when he could ſee none to ſtand by him, when Idolatry had over-ſpread the Face of the whole Country; and what miraculous and wonderful Providences did he experience in his Protections and Suſtentations! Either the Lord will hide him in the Grave, from the Troubles that ſhall be among the Living, Iſa. 57. 1. (ſo Auguſtin was taken away a little before the Sacking of Hippo; Pareus a little before the Taking of Heidelburg; Luther before the Wars brake forth in Germany; Methuſelah juſt before the Flood) or elſe he ſets ſome ſpecial Mark upon them, that they may be diſtinguiſh'd in the general Calamity, Ezek. 9. 4, 5. Go through the midſt of Jeruſalem, and ſet a mark upon the Foreheads of them that ſigh, and that cry for all the Abominations that be done in the midſt thereof. And to the other he ſaid, Go after him, and ſmite, let not your eye ſpare, neither have ye pity. So Rev. 7. before the Vials come to be poured out upon the Earth, the Servants of God are ſealed; even ſuch as had kept themſelves pure from Antichriſtian Polutions.

Arg. 3.

The Danger we run our ſelves into thereby, Dangers I ſay, not only of Deſtruction (for a Companion of Fools ſhall be deſtroyed, Prov. 13. 20.) but of Defilement alſo; the Devil hath his Agents and Factors in every Corner, to entice you to ſin, and you have corrupt Hearts, as apt to receive Impreſſions from the Examples and Perſwaſions of Sinners, as Tinder is to receive Fire; and it is no Wiſdom you know, for him that carries Gunpowder about him, to come too near the Fire, where the Sparks fly.

Now to prevent this Danger of being infected with the Sins and Evils of the Time, I ſhall lay down a few Directions.

1. If you would prevent Infection in theſe evil days, begin every day with God; ſeaſon your Hearts every Morning by Communion with the Lord. This was David's practice, Pſal. 139. 18. When I awake, I am ſtill with thee. It was bleſſed Counſel which a worthy Perſon gives in this caſe; Before earthly things (ſaith he) break in upon us, and we receive impreſſions from abroad, 'tis good to Seaſon the Heart with Thoughts of God, and to conſecrate the early and virgin Operations of the Mind, before they are proſtituted to baſer Objects. When the World gets the ſtart of Religion in the Morning, it can hardly overtake it all the day; and ſo the Heart is habituated to Vanity all the day long: But when we begin with God, we take him along with us to all the Buſineſſes and Comforts of the day; which being ſeaſoned with his Love and Fear, are the more ſweet and ſavoury to us.

Mr. T. Caſe in Epiſtle to the Morning Exerciſe.

2. Be choice in your Company. Chriſt indeed converſed frequently with Publicans and Sinners, but it was ſtill in order to their Good, and there was no danger of receiving any Evil from them, there was nothing in him to faſten a Temptation upon; but we can ſeldom get off without a Taint.

3. Quicken up your Zeal for God; this will be a ſpur to the diſcharge of your Duty in all Places, Times, and Companies. Love (ſaith Mr. Gurnal) ever goes armed with Zeal, this is her Dagger ſhe draws againſt all Oppoſers of Truth. Qui non zelat non amat. Many times we hear the Name of God prophan'd, and dare not take as much liberty and boldneſs to reprove ſin, as they do to commit it; whence is this but from the want of Zeal? O it would make thee, as it did Jonathan, to caſt a Kingdom at thy Heels, to appear againſt Sin: And me thinks thy Intereſt in God, ſhould provoke thy Zeal. We muſt not neglect the Duty of a Friend, for fear of incurring the ſuſpicion of an Enemy: 'Tis better loſe the Smiles than the Souls of Men: If thou diſcharge thy Duty, the ſin is his; if not, 'tis thine too.

4. Furniſh your Hearts with ſuch Principles, as are Antidotes and Preſervatives againſt Infections. As Phyſicians adviſe in Times of Infection, to carry ſome Preſervatives ſtill about you. Of this ſort I ſhall commend four or five, and ſhut up this Head.

1. Nothing muſt lie nearer thy Heart, if thou be a Chriſtian, than the Glory of thy God; all ends, Intereſts and Deſigns, muſt be ſubjected to that; and whatſoever cannot be ſubordinated, muſt be rejected. If this Principle were but well ſetled upon the Heart, what brave Spirits would it breed and raiſe in thy Breaſt! It would untie thy Tongue, like Cræſus his dumb Son, to plead for thy Father. It was a brave Speech of Hierom, in an evil day, when the rage of the Enemy was great againſt the Name and People of God; O that they would turn their Weapons upon me, and be ſatisfied with my Blood. And a ſweet one is that of Bernard to the ſame purpoſe, Malo in nos murmur hominum, quam in Deum; Rather let their reproach fall on Us, than on God. Bonum eſt mihi ſi dignetur Deus, me uti pro Clypeo; I ſhould account it a Mercy, if God would vouchſafe to uſe me as a Shield. Much like that of David, The Reproaches of them that reproached thee, are fallen on me. If God's Glory be thy principal End, thus it will ſubject all other Ends and Intereſts to it, and then it will open thy Mouth to plead for him, and appear in all the Concernments of his Name.

2. The Peace of thine own Conſcience, is to be preferred to the favour of any Man, and will abundantly recompence the frowns of Men. This is our rejoycing, even the Teſtimony of our Conſcience. This is the ſweeteſt Friend, Sacrifice it not to any Man's Luſt or Will.

3. The greateſt Expreſſion of Love to another, is to hate his ſin. Prov. 27. 6. Faithful are the Wounds of a Friend; and the greateſt Injury to another, is to connive at his Wickedneſs, Lev. 19 17.

4. No Man ſhall be a Loſer at laſt, by being faithful to God, and to his Duty; if you have no reward from men, yet to be ſure you ſhall from God; and yet God ſo orders it oftentimes, that men ſhall love you the better for your Faithfulneſs; Prov. 28. 23. He that rebukes a man, afterwards ſhall find more favour than he that flatters with his Lips.

5. A Chriſtian ſhould do that, and nothing but that now, which he judges will be comfortable to him in a Calm Review at Death and Judgment: This would make you accurate Chriſtians indeed. O treaſure up theſe Principles, and live in the daily Exerciſe of them.

COUNSEL VI.

Prepare for fiery Tryals, whilſt the Lord gives you ſuch a gracious Seaſon of Peace and Liberty.

Eccleſ. 8. 5. A wiſe man's heart diſcerneth both Time and Judgment. And indeed it is a ſpecial Point of Wiſdom, to apprehend and improve Seaſons aright. Chriſtian, thou muſt uſe thy foreſeeing Faculties, to diſcover Dangers at a * diſtance, and ſo prevent Surprizals; A prudent man foreſeeth the Evil, Prov. 22. 3. yea, ſenſe it ſelf teacheth the brute Beaſts to get to the Hedge, when a Storm is coming; and canſt not thou foreſee a Storm in the Clouds, do they not gather blacker and blacker over thy Head? O prepare for it; get thy ſuffering Graces, thy winter Garments on. Put them in mind (ſaith the Apoſtle) to be ready to every good Work, Tit. 3. 1. be it active or paſſive Obedience, you muſt be ready for it. Bleſſed Paul had fitted and provided himſelf, Acts 21. 13. I am [ready] not only to be bound, but to die at Jeruſalem for the Name of the Lord Jeſus; he had, as I may ſay, laid his Neck on the Block beforehand, 2 Tim. 4. 6. I am ready, ſaith he, to be offered up. Thus Chriſt was ready for his Sufferings, Loe I come, ſaith he, upon the Fathers Call, Pſal. 40. 7. And as this is an Argument of an Heart truly gracious, ſo is it a ſingular Advantage to the Chriſtian when Troubles come; it is as the Shooe, Epheſ. 6. 15. and your feet ſhod with the Preparation of the Goſpel of Peace. Ah when you come off theſe Plains of Peace and Liberty, into the hard rugged Paths of Suffering, you will find what a Benefit it will be to you, to be well ſhod with this Preparation of the Goſpel of Peace. Habakkuk had it, chap. 3. 16. I trembled in my ſelf, that I might reſt in the day of Trouble: And then when Difficulties and Straits came, he could go away ſinging under them, ver 17. Though the Fig-tree, &c. yea, he could walk ſecurely through the Thickets of Trouble, and over the craggy Rocks and Precipices of Danger, as is intimated, ver. 19. The Lord God is my ſtrength, and he will make my Feet like Hinds Feet, (i. e.) to paſs with eaſe, per montes, per rupta, in ſuch ways of difficulty as would diſtract others: and he will ſet me upon my high places; (i. e.) † he will enable me to go without fear over mountains of Trouble. O Chriſtian, how ſoon a Storm may riſe thou knoweſt not, Gen. 22. 2. Acts 12. 1. to be ſure it will not be long, the Heavens are black, and ſome drops already fallen: Prepare therefore for it, and have your ſuffering Graces ready.

Queſt. But what are they? and how muſt they be prepared?

Sol. Though every Grace is neceſſary in its Place, and in the courſe of a Chriſtians Converſation, comes to take his turn; as every Spoak in a Wheel bears a ſtreſs, and is of uſe in the whole turn and round thereof; yet as thoſe Spoaks which are undermoſt at preſent, do preſent Service, ſo thoſe Graces which are now exerciſed, and are to bear the preſent Burden of this Day, are ſuch as theſe.

1. Faith. This hath a precedency given it to all other Graces; as in point of juſtification, ſo of ſuſtentation in a ſuffering hour; Epheſ. 6. 16. Above all, taking the ſhield of Faith: This is like the liver-vein, this goes to Chriſt, and conveys Blood and Life to the Soul from him; now the Juſt ſhall live by Faith, Heb. 10. 38. It was by Faith thoſe renowned Worthies, Heb. 11. performed ſuch glorious Actions. By Faith it is that a poor Chriſtian gets gets a glimpſe of the inviſible God, and Glory, which marvellouſly ſupports him under diſtreſſes, Heb. 11. 27. 2 Cor. 4. 18. By this the Soul is filled with peace and inward tranquility, Rom. 5 1, 2. And that is a ſingular preparation for ſuffering, Eph 6. 15. Smite Lord, ſmite (ſaid Luther) for my ſins are forgiven me. By Faith a poor Soul rouls its ſelf and it's burden upon God, 2 Tim. 1. 12. and ſo quits and diſcharges it ſelf of all that anxiety and perplexity of ſpirit, which puts the ſinking weight into affliction. Oh then look to thy Faith, ſee it be not only alive, but lively; keep that Grace in thy heart, and thou ſhalt do well.

* Non faci inveniuntur præ dia in ad verſitate quæ non fuerint in pace quæſita. Aug.

Feri Domine feri, nam à peccatis meis abſolutus ſum. Luth.

2. Patience; a Grace fitted for the purpoſe: It is not only a grace it ſelf, but the Conſervatory of other graces. As God hath placed Temperance on the right hand of Godlineſs, to defend it from injury by the flatteries and allurements of the world, ſo hath he placed Patience on the left, to defend it from the wrong it might receive by adverſity, 2 Pet. 1. 5, 6. a grace ſo neceſſary in an evil day, that the Spirit hath ſet it in equipage with Faith it ſelf Heb. 6. 12. and the Crown promiſed to it, Rom 2. 7. 'Tis an hardy Grace, bred by tribulation, Rom. 5. 3. will make a Chriſtian long-winded in his race to Glory. Oh then beg that you may be ſtrengthened with all might in the Inner-man, unto all Patience; if not, though you may be ſet out with much ſeeming gallantry of reſolution, yet you muſt needs faint in the way, and fall ſhort at laſt.

3. Holy Courage and Magnanimity. This Grace muſt now ſay in thy heart, as Elijah once did; As the Lord lives I will ſhew my ſelf. How conſpicuous hath this Grace been in thoſe worthy Hero's that are paſt on before us. See Dan. 3. 16, 17. Heb. 11. per. tot. Acts. 20. 24. and 21. 13. When Valens the Emperor endeavoured to draw Baſil from the faith, he firſt offers him great preferments, but his ſpirit was raiſed above that; Offer theſe things (ſaid he) to Children: then he tries him by threatnings of grievous torments, but his ſpirit was above that alſo; Threaten theſe things (ſaid he) to your purple Gallants, that give themſelves to pleaſure. The ſame Baſil relates the anſwer of the forty Martyrs (whoſe ſtory he writes:) When the Perſecutors, ſaith he, offered them great Preferments to draw them from Chriſt, this was their anſwer; Why offer you to us theſe ſmall things of the World, when you know the whole World is contemned by us? One of the Nobles of Julian preſent at the tormenting of Marcus Biſhop of Arethuſa was forced to ſay, We are aſhamed, O Emperor, the Chriſtians laugh at your Cruelty and grow the more reſolute. Our very Women and Children, not to ſpeak of Men (ſaith Lactantius) do overcome their Tormentors and the fire cannot fetch ſo much as a ſigh from them. The ſame glorious Spirit of courage for the Lord Jeſus, reſted alſo upon Luther, † Zuinglius, and thoſe bleſſed Souls that freely offered themſelves to the Lord in Queen Mary's time. And truely, Chriſtian, not only neceſſity which lies upon thee, ſhould provoke courage, for there is no retreating, unleſs thou reſolve to Periſh, Heb. 10. 38. but methinks the infinite Excellency of Chriſt, in whoſe Cauſe and Quarrel thou art engaged, exacts it of thee, and ſhould make thee lay down all at his feet, not by conſtraint, but willingly looking upon it as thy privilege, Phil. 1. 29.

† Quas non portet mortes præligere, quod non ſupplicium potius ferre, imo in quam profundam inferni abyſſum non intrare, quam contra conſcientiam atteſtari. Zuing. 3 Epiſt.

4. Laſtly to name no more, Self-denial muſt now be promoted; If any Man will come after me, he muſt deny himſelf, Mark 8. 34 both ſinful ſelf, which muſt abſolutely and univerſally be denyed; and natural, yea religious Self, which muſt reſpectively and in ſome caſes be denyed alſo. The want of this, hath been the down fall and ruine of many an eminent Profeſſor. The moſt dangerous nick and opportunity of temptation, is when a Man is tryed in his darling luſt; now he falls by the root, if that be not mortified. This was the ruine of Judas; Covetouſneſs was his predominant luſt; and when he was tryed there, he falls immediately, Mat. 26. 16. What will you give me, and I will betray him? This overturned Demas alſo. Oh conſider theſe things.

COVNSEL VII.

Get your hearts deeply affected with Sions Miſery, and ſtrive earneſtly with the Lord on its behalf.

Pſal. 137. 5. If I forget thee, O Jeruſalem, let my Tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth. The pouring out of this Spirit of compaſſion, will be a token for good to us: Pſal. 102. 13. Thou wilt ariſe and have mercy upon Sion, for the time to favour her yea the ſet time is come: But how knew he that? for thy Servants take pleaſure in her Stones, and favour the duſt thereof. Upon which words one gloſſeth thus; 'It is as if he 'ſhould ſay, would you have me give an ac'count of my hope and confidence, that God 'will ariſe and have mercy upon Sion; why '(ſaith he) do you not ſee the Servants of God 'every where troubled for Sion, and be'moan Sion, and weep over her, crying out 'over her ruines, O is this Sion? What, 'the City of our Solemnities? what, ſhe 'that was the praiſe and beauty of the 'whole Earth? Ah Lord who can hold his 'peace at ſuch a ſight as this? Oh who can 'look upon Sion with dry eyes? are theſe her 'ſtones that lie thus ſcattered in the duſt? Oh 'it is a thouſand pities to ſee Sion in ſuch a ſad 'and mournful condition? Oh that our head 'were waters, and our eyes Rivers of tears! 'Come, Sirs, what ſhall we do for Sion? is 'there nothing we can do by our Counſels, 'our Prayers for the repairing of theſe 'breaches? Oh thus it ſhould be with us at this day: Non ſunt iſta litigandi ſed orandi tempora, as Mr. Perkins ſaid of his day, Theſe are not times of ſtriving, but praying, its no time now to ſtrive with one another, but to unite our ſtrength, and like the true generation of Jacob, to be ſtriving with our God. To be minding the World, and ſeeking of great things for our ſelves now, is no ſmall evil: God expects his Saints ſhould now be cloathed in Black, and walk as true Mourners under the great and ſore rebukes of their Father: Should we now make Mirth? Ezek. 21. 10. It contemneth the rod of my Son, as every Tree. God brings it in as an heavy charge upon the People, Amos 6. 6. that they are not grieved for the

Mr. Caſe in England's Encouragements; p. 74.

Afflictions of Joſeph; or as the Hebrew, over the rentings and tearings in pieces of Joſeph, that is the Church. It is a lively Alluſion to the ſad Lamentation that old Jacob made over the ſuppoſed renting of his dear Joſeph, Gen. 42. 21. Joſeph is not, I will go down to the grave to my Son Mourning: But his Brethren ſaw the anguiſh of his Soul, and pitied him not. And may not many of the Lords own People, charge the ſame thing upon their hearts at this day, that they did upon themſelves, We are verily guilty (ſay they) concerning our Brother Joſeph. Ah! have we not heard of the anguiſh of Sion and the ſore diſtreſs upon many of her Children at this day, and yet have not been ſo tenderly touch'd with the due ſenſe of it? Oh write that Man bowelleſs, that hath no compaſſion in his ſpirit now for Sion: you may promiſe to your ſelf immunity from the common calamity, but God hath ſaid, Amos 6. 7. You ſhall go captive with the firſt that go captive. Ah! is this a time, as God ſaid to Baruk, Jer 45. to ſeek great things for your ſelves, it is enough if you have your life for a prey: are you now building and feathering your neſts, when the Ax of Judgment lies at the root of that Tree you build in, to cut it down? Surely we may ſay of ſuch deſigns now, as Huſhai did of the counſel of Achitophel, It is not good at this time. In that day did the Lord call to mourning; and is there not as loud a Call at this day? The Voice of the Rod cryeth to the City, Micah 6. 9. Oh be not deaf to that cry: now go to the Lord with an holy importunity, under a quick ſenſe of Sions miſery, and give him no reſt till he ariſe and have mercy on her. And among many other, theſe Arguments may perſwade to it.

Arg. 1. The gracious Nature of that God to whom you go for help and mercy; Oh remember you lie down at the feet of a tender-hearted Father, willing be overcome by you: Amos 4. 12. Therefore thus will I do unto thee, and becauſe I will do thus, prepare to meet thy God, O Iſrael, (i. e.) in a way of humiliation to prevent him. So Luke 18. 7. And ſhall not God avenge his [own elect] that cry unto him day and night, though he bear long with them? mark the motive [his own] q. d. Can a Father ſhut up the bowels of mercy from his own fleſh? how much leſs God to whoſe compaſſions, the moſt dear and tender affections of all the Parents in the world, is but as a drop to the Ocean. This Jonah well underſtood, Jonah 4. 2. Was not this my ſaying when I was yet in my Country, therefore I fled before unto Tarſhiſh, for I knew that thou art a gracious God, ſlow to anger, and of great kindneſs, and repenteſt thee of the evil; q. d. yea Lord, I knew beforehand what it would come to; I muſt go to Niniveh, and denounce thy Judgments againſt it, and then if they do but humble themſelves a little, thy Mercies and Compaſſions are ſo tender and abundant, that thou canſt not ſmite them, if they do but come upon the knee, the rod falls out of thy hand; I knew it would be ſo, I was perſwaded before hand, that Free-Grace would make me appear as a lyar to them, therefore I fled to Tarſhiſh. Oh what a Motive is this to bring you upon the knee before God at this day!

Arg. 2. Conſider how dear an Intereſt it is that you eſpouſe and plead for, dear to God, and therefore the greater probability of ſucceſs; you may ſay to God, as Mary and Martha did to Chriſt concerning their brother Lazarus, Lord he whom thou loveſt is ſick. Ah the Intereſt of his Son, which I perſwade you to plead with him, lies near his heart, and dear to you, if you be real Saints: for alas, what joy can you have to ſurvive Sions proſperity? would you not in ſuch a caſe ſay as the Prophet, 1 Kings 19. 4. Ah Lord God, it is enough, take away my life alſo. O therefore ſtrive with God for it.

Arg. 3. Conſider how much you have contributed to the provoking and procuring cauſe of its preſent miſery; 'tis Sions own Sons and Daughters that have procured this unto her; and ſhall there be none among all the Sons ſhe hath brought up to take her by the hand, and comfort her? 'tis our conteſts and wrangling one with another, our barrenneſs under the Goſpel, our abuſe of deliverances, and moſt precious Goſpel-Enjoyments, that have procured all this: Ah Sirs! will you not ſtrive to pray back the Mercies, you have helped to ſin away?

Arg. 4. Thoſe that are moſt deeply humbled, and do moſt fervently interceed for Sion now, ſhall have a peculiar ſhare in her Joy when the Lord reſtores it: When the Lord turned again the Captivity of Sion, we were like them that dream'd, then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with ſinging, Pſal. 126. 1, 2. But who were theſe that laugh and rejoyce at Sions mercy? were they not ſuch as had mourned for her; yes, yes, they that thus reap in joy, are ſuch as had before ſown in tears, ver. 5. 6. to ſuch indeed the Promiſe is made, Iſa. 57. 18. and 66. 10. Rejoyce for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her. Let theſe things affect your Souls.

COUNSEL VIII.

That ſeeing a Day of great trouble is approaching, and all outward comforts, ready to take their farewel of you, you would now give all diligence to clear up your title to Christ, and intereſt in that Kingdom that cannot be ſhaken.

If ever we had need to make all honeſt haſt to Heaven, and to clear up our intereſt in it, this is the time, what have we beſides this to oppoſe to all our troubles here? what will you do when all earthly comforts are fled? and are they not upon the wing? when it comes to reſiſting to blood, and giving up all, can you fadge with ſuch work as this, while your ſpirits are dubious and cloudy in this point? O my friends believe it, its nothing but this that can make a Saint triumph and glory in Abuſes and Tribulations, 2 Cor. 4. 16, 17, 18. Heb. 10. 34. Rom. 5. 1, 2, 3. And little do you imagin how inſupportable troubles are, when the ſpirit is low and dubious in point of Intereſt. The Devil, like a true coward, falls upon a poor Saint, when he is proſtrate in his ſpirit, and under trouble, then he pours in diſcouragements from all hands; he loves to fall upon them, as Simeon and Levi did upon the Shechemites when they were ſore, Gen. 34. 25. Satan knows men will hardly part with their preſent ſenſible comforts, till they be aſſured of better: It's eaſier without doubt, for an aſſured Chiſtian to lay down his neck for Chriſt, than for another to part with a piece of his Eſtate, or bear a reproach for him: and truly whether we conſult ſafety or comfort, whether we conſider the ineffable ſweetneſs of that Peace and Joy begotten by aſſurance; or the Miſery of being ſubjected in a day of trouble to the miſgivings, doubts and fears of a perplexed ſpirit, you will find that all theſe conſiderations do put a neceſſity, a ſolemnity, a glory upon this work: But oh the difficulties and dangers attending it! what judgment, faithfulneſs, reſolution, watchfulneſs doth it require! ſuch is the darkneſs, deceitfulneſs, inconſtancy of the heart; and ſuch the malice, policy, and diligence of Satan to improve it, that he who attempts this work, had need both to watch his ſeaſons for it, frequently to look up to God for guidance and illumination; and to ſpend many ſad and ſerious thoughts before he determine this buſineſs.

To the end therefore, that this moſt weighty and important Work may not miſcarry in thy hands, I intreat thee carefully to obſerve theſe ſix Directions following.

Direction 1.

Be ſure thou try thy ſelf by ſound and approved Marks of Sincerity, and not by ſuch as are only probable and common to hypocrites, for theſe will fail when any ſtreſs is laid upon them, and like the Reeds of Egypt, pierce into thine hand.

To help thee herein, I have collected the beſt Scripture-Marks illuſtrated and prepar'd for thy uſe, by the labours of ſome of our moſt skilful Heart-Anatomiſts. The ſubſtance of which I ſhall here tranſcribe, leſt you ſhould not have the books at hand.

Four Signs of a ſincere Heart, by Mr. Gurnal, in the ſecond part of his Treatiſe on Epheſ. 6. p. 127, &c.

1ſt. Mark. A ſincere heart, is a new heart, Ezek. 11. 19. whereas it was formerly divided among the creatures, now it is gathered into God: It hath but one deſign, which above all it purſues; and that is to approve it ſelf to God; as one that having many pieces of old ſilver lying by him, which he intends to put into one bowl; he firſt reſolves to caſt it anew, and to that end throws it into the fire to melt, and ſo at laſt ſhuts up all in one piece.

2d. Mark. A ſincere heart, is a ſimple plain heart; 2 Cor. 1. 12. and this Simplicity appears in three things. (1.) In ranſacking it ſelf, in which it is exceeding diligent, and fearful of a miſtake, willing to know the worſt of himſelf; in judging it ſelf, when the ſin is found, he proceeds to ſentence a luſt, as well as to ſearch diligently for it. (2.) In plain dealing with God as well as with it ſelf; An hypocrite asks what he would not thank God to give him, but a ſincere Soul is deeply affected, when his Prayers are not anſwered, and uſes the means to obtain his deſires. (3.) In plain dealing with men, he will not ſubject his conſcience to fleſhly intereſts, nor ſhape his courſe to the times.

3d. Mark. The ſincere Chriſtian is uniform; and that (1.) As to the object; (2.) The ſubject; (3.) The circumſtances of his obedience. For the firſt, his heart lies cloſe to the whole Law of God, Pſal. 26. 11. Hath reſpect to all the Commands: As for the ſubject, the whole man (ſo far as renewed) moves one way; Judgment, Will, Affections, move uniformly: As to circumſtances, he is holy in all times, places, &c.

4th. Mark. The ſincere Chriſtian, is progreſſive, is not content with any meaſure of Grace, Phil. 3. 13, 15, never at his journeys end, till he get to Heaven, Pſal. 17. 15.

Five Marks of Uprightneſs, by Mr. Obadiah Sedgwick, in his Anatomy of Uprightneſs, p. 202, &c.

1ſt. Mark. If a man be upright, he will moſtly ſtrive for an inward reformation of his heart, Pſal. 119. 10. Jam. 4. 8. Rom. 1. 9. it is not ſufficient his outward actions look well, unleſs his heart were better: Oh, ſaith he, that this heart were better, more holy, more humble, more believing: The principal regard of the hypocrite is to externals.

2d. Mark. If a man be upright, a little holineſs will not ſerve his turn, Phil. 3. 12, 13, 14, 15.

3d. Mark. A perſon may know his uprightneſs by the conſcionable diſpoſition of his heart about all ſins, Pſal. 18. 23. Job 1. 1. Hypocrites have ſtill ſome way of wickedneſs. Such a Soul as is upright, will make conſcience of ſecret as well as open ſins, Job 31. 26, 27, &c. Prov. 12. 5. yea, of the leaſt ſins. David's heart ſmote him for cutting off the skirt of Saul's garment; yea, of ſins, which are in a ſort more connatural to him, Pſal. 18. 23. In a word, Uprightneſs appears in nine things about ſins. (1.) It will endure Tryal, Pſal. 139. 23. (2.) It will often try it ſelf. (3.) It ſcares it ſelf, and is ſuſpicious. (4.) It will bleſs God for being kept from ſin: As David did for Abigail's Counſel. (5.) It is more ſevere againſt its own ſins, than anothers. (6.) It condemns ſin in all; in Parents, as Jonathan in Saul: in Children as Jacob in Simeon and Levi: In great ones, as John Baptiſt in Herod. (7.) It grieves for its own ſins, and the ſins of others alſo. Rivers of Water ran down David's Eyes upon that account. (8.) It's more moved for ſins againſt God, than injuries done to it ſelf: As David cannot bear Goliah's Blaſphemies, yet can bear Shimei's railings. (9.) Abſtinence ſufficeth not without hatred; and hatred ſufficeth not without mortification.

4. Mark. Uprightneſs is known by a Man's diſpoſition about holy Duties, and in holy Duties, five things manifeſt the uprightneſs of the heart.

1. Univerſality. Pſal. 119. 6. Acts. 24 16. Heb. 13. 18. An Hypocrite's obedience cannot be univerſal, becauſe his grounds and motives are but particular.

(2.) By its conſtancy, Job 2. 3. ſtill he holdeth faſt his integrity. There are three times in which an hypocrite may expreſs great forwardneſs; (1.) When ſtraits of Conſcience are on him, Iſa. 26. 16. (2.) When duties are not dangerous, Mat. 13. 5, 6, 20. (3.) In the preſence of others; as Joaſh, while Jehojadah lived.

3. By ſimplicity of obedience, when a Man looks not at himſelf, but at God's Command, 2 Cor. 1. 12. and 5. 14.

4. By the ſpirituality of obedience, when the very heart and Soul, the ſpirit and affections act themſelves, and cooperate with our ſervices, 1 Cor. 14, 15. Rom. 1. 9. Eph. 6. 5, 6.

5. By the Humility of obedience. Hypocrites are proud of their work. When God enlarges the heart, a Saint may rejoyce; but the Hypocrite will boaſt. A Saint gives all to God, 1 Chron. 29. 13, 14.

5. Mark. A fifth tryal of Uprightneſs is, if the bent and purpoſe of the heart be unto God, Pſal. 119. 5. Pſal. 40. 8. 1 Chron. 19. 31. Acts 11. 23. and this bent or purpoſe of the heart implies three things. (1.) An inward deſire, joyned with love, Pſal. 119. 5. (2.) An habitual inclination, not a ſuddain pang, Pſal. 119. 20. (3.) An active purpoſe, Acts. 24. 16.

Six Tryals of Sincerity; ſuch as no Hypocrite in the World can have; By Mr. Sydenham, in his Treatiſe of Hypocriſie.

Trial 1. To hate Sin as Sin, to hate it in its whole Nature, in its firſt Motions, not becauſe it troubles the Conſcience, or brings me to Hell, or renders me unſutable to my Deſigns and Relations in the World, but as it is ſin.

Trial 2. No Hypocrite can delight to be made aſhamed by God in its Duties, to be made purely Nothing in its own Eyes, and the Eyes of others. This a ſincere Soul can do, he can take pleaſure in the Lord's humbling of him. An Hypocrite cannot endure to be outſhined; the Principle that acts him, is Self-love: But a Saint loves to be laid low before God.

Trial 3. No Hypocrite can bleſs God, and love him from his Heart: When God ſmites him in his deareſt Enjoyments, or neareſt Luſts; ſtrike him in any thing that the Eye or Heart of him is upon, and he ſecretly hates Chriſt. Now a Saint in ſuch a Caſe, will cling to Chriſt, he cannot but love him for all that.

Trial 4. No Hypocrite can love the Perſon of Chriſt, nor a Saint, as a Saint; he only loves to be pardoned by him, and have ſome comfort from him; but never finds his Heart to work in Love to Chriſt, and have Union with him, as the ground of all his Comforts. And ſo, for a Saint, loves him not as ſuch, but as ſo and ſo tempered and qualified.

Trial 5. No Hypocrite can go on in any ſpiritual Work or Service for Chriſt with any Contentment, without ſenſible Comforts, or outward Reſpects, the wind of Men fill his Sails: But a Saint can take pleaſure in the pooreſt Work of Chriſt, wherein he is leaſt ſeen.

Trial 6. No Hypocrite in the World can long to be like Chriſt, as to be reſpected by Chriſt; he cannot love the Holineſs of Chriſt, as the good things he gets by Chriſt: But a ſincere Heart, if he have never ſo much Comfort, yet if he be not like Chriſt, is not pleaſed. And this is the firſt Direction, try by ſound Evidences of Sincerity.

Direction 2.

Make choice of the fitteſt Seaſons for this great Work, and ſet about this, when you find your Hearts in the moſt quiet and ſeriouſeſt Frame; for as he that will ſee his Face in a Glaſs, muſt be fixed, and not in motion; or in the Water, muſt not diſturb or make any commotion in it; ſo is it in this caſe; Pſal. 4. 4. Commune with your own Heart upon your Bed, and be ſtill.

Direction 3.

Endeavour to caſt out and watch againſt Self-love, leſt thy Heart being prepoſſeſt thereby, thy Judgment be blinded, and become partial in paſſing Sentence upon thy Eſtate: Labour to bring thy Heart to be willing to know the worſt of it ſelf; yea, and if thou haſt all this while been deceived, to bleſs the Lord, that now at laſt thy Miſtake is diſcovered, and to be willing to lay the Foundation new again. This you muſt do, for he that will put on the Perſon of a Judge, muſt put off the Perſon of a Friend.

Direction 4.

Labour to keep upon thy Heart a deep and lively Sence of the approaching Judgment, throughout this Work, knowing what a potent Influence this hath upon the Conſcience to make it deliberate, ſerious, and faithful in its Work; and therefore demand of thine own Conſcience, upon the Reſolution of each Queſtion, Whether it will own and ſtand to that it now ſpeaks in the great day, when the Counſels of all Hearts ſhall be made manifeſt.

Direction 5.

Go to the Lord by Prayer when thou art going about this Work, and earneſtly beg Guidance and Aſſiſtance from him therein: It is the Work of the Spirit to ſeal and aſſure thee; and he hath promiſed him to that purpoſe to ſuch as ſeek him, Luke 11. 13. John 14. 26.

Direction 6.

Condemn not thy ſelf preſently for an Hypocrite, upon the Diſcoveries of thy many Weakneſſes and Imperfections in Obedience; theſe ſhould humble, but not diſcourage thee; it is not thine inevitable Weakneſſes, thy ſenſible Dulneſs, thy lamented Roavings, thine oppoſed Diſtractions, thy miſtaken Unbelief (as one well notes) that argues thee Chriſtleſs, or excludes thee from the Promiſes, Numb. 15. 27, 28, 29, 30. Heb. 5. 2. theſe break not the Bond of the Covenant: the Lord expects no Angelical Perfection from you in this Eſtate, but looks at your Sincerity, and knows, as a Father, how to pity your lamented Infirmities, Pſal. 103. 11, 12, 13, 14.

AND now I have given you my beſt Advice and Counſel to preſerve you from the Snares and Evils that are, and are coming upon the World; what uſe you will make of it, I know not. # TYDINGS FROM ROME: OR England's Alarm.

Ezek. 3. 17. Acts 28. 28.

EVERY faithful Miniſter of Chriſt ſuſtains the relation of a Watchman unto the Nation wherein he lives, as well as of a Paſtor to the particular flock over which the Holy Ghoſt hath ſet him; and therefore not only ought to be of a publick ſpirit, to obſerve the firſt approaches of National Calamities; but alſo of a couragious and faithful ſpirit, to give warning of them. Being thus a debtor to my dear native Country, and hearing round about me the noiſe of bloody Papiſts rallying together, and preparing themſelves to make a ſlaughter; and finding the fears and jealouſies of the Nation (lately awakened by the flames of London, and the inſtruments of cruelty there diſcovered) beginning to abate, though their dangers are ſtill encreaſing upon them; I could not but preſent to the publick view, theſe awakening Conſiderations and Counſels following; If haply thereby true zeal for the Proteſtant Intereſt might be provoked, and the growing deſign of the common enemy detected and retarded.

Eſth. 8. 6,

For alas! How can I endure to ſee the evil that ſhall come upon my people, and upon my kindred? As Eſther ſaid in a like caſe of common danger: yea, were I ſure of perſonal ſafety in ſuch a day of ſlaughter and deſolation, yet how terrible a thing would it be to ſtand upon the ſhore, and ſee ſo glorious a Veſſel as England is, to be caſt away! The Golden Candleſtick removed, and the doctrines of Devils preached and profeſſed in thoſe places where Jeſus Chriſt hath been ſo purely and ſweetly Worſhipped.

Iſa. 62. 6.

O England! God hath ſet Watchmen upon thy walls, who will not hold their peace day nor night: And though men have endeavoured to muzzel and gagg them, yet like Craſſus his dumb Son, they will cry out when they ſee thee in danger.

If thou enquire of thy Watchmen in this night of thy trouble, as it is Iſa. 21. 11, 12. * Watchmen, what of the night? They all with one voice return thee the ſame anſwer, The morning cometh, and alſo the night. There is indeed a glorious morning of ſalvation and mercy which will ſhortly dawn upon thee England; But before that, there will be a night of diſmal darkneſs and diſtreſs upon thy children: For we have heard a voice of trembling, of fear, and not of peace; We ſee every man with his hands upon his loins, as a woman in travail, and all faces are turned into paleneſs: Alas! For that day is great, ſo that none is like it, it is even the day of Jacob's trouble; but he ſhall be delivered out of it. They ſpeak unto thee as Elijah ſpake to Ahab, Ariſe, get thee up, for there is a ſound of abundance of rain; and there came a ſhower indeed: And that there is a ſound of judgment and wrath coming upon us, will appear, if you have any regard either, firſt, to the predictions of friends; or Secondly, to the preparations of enemys; or Thirdly, to the preſent ſtate and poſture of things among our ſelves at this day.

* Fingit reſpondere Cuſtodem deſperatis civibus, & augere dolorem. Luth.

1 King. 18. 41.

1. As for the Predictions of Friends, you have had many, both ordinary and extraordinay.

Firſt Ordinary, Upon the obſervations which the Meſſengers of God have made of your Barrenneſs, Wantonneſs, and unchriſtian diviſions, under the fulleſt Goſpel-light and liberty, that ever was enjoyed by an unthankful Nation; amongſt which I cannot omit what a grave and worthy Divine upon the grounds fore-mentioned for divers years paſt, gave us warning of: And O that we had been ſo wiſe and happy to have improved ſuch a ſeaſonable admonition! His words were theſe:

Gurnels Chriſtian Armour, 2d. part, page 429.

“Conſider where you are, and among whom; “are you not in your enemies quarters? If you “fall out, what do you but kindle a fire for “them to warm their hands by? Aha! ſo would “we have it, ſay they; The ſea of their rage will “weaken this bank faſt enough, you need not “cut it for them. The unſeaſonableneſs of the “ſtrife betwixt Abrahams herdsmen and Lots, is “aggravated by the neer neighbourhood of the “Heathens to them, Gen. 13. 7. And there was “ſtrife betwixt them, and the Cananites and Peri“zites dwelt in the land. To fall out when theſe I“dolaters look on, this would be Town-talk “preſently, and put themſelves and their Reli“gion both to ſhame. And I pray who have “been in our land all the while the people of “God have been ſcuffling? Thoſe that have cu“riouſly obſerved every uncomely behaviour ſa-

‘ among them, and told all the world of it; ſuch as have wit and malice enough to make uſe of it for their wicked purpoſes; they ſtand on tip-toe to be at work, only we are not yet quite laid up and diſabled (by the ſoreneſs of thoſe our wounds which we have given our ſelves) from withſtanding their fury; they hope it will come to that, and then they will cure us of our own Wounds, by giving one if they can, that ſhall go deep enough, to the Heart of our Life, Goſpel, and all. O Chriſtians! ſhall Herod and Pilate put you to ſhame? They clapt up a peace to ſtrengthen their hands againſt Chriſt; and will not you unite againſt your common Enemy? 'Tis an ill time for Mariners to be fighting, when an enemy is boring a hole at the bottom of the Ship.

How often have you been told both from the Pulpit and Preſs, what the ſad fruit and iſſue of theſe things would be? and as God hath given you timely warnings of this enemy by your faithful Watchmen in an ordinary way, ſo hath he vouchſafed us ſome extrordinary ones too, amongſt which I cannot here omit a ſtrange and remarkable paſſage, which for divers years ſince fell from the pen of an Engliſh Prophet; and becauſe I live to ſee one part thereof ſadly verified, and the other diſpoſing it ſelf towards its accompliſhment (if Providence ſtep not out of its ordinary path to prevent it) I ſhall tranſcribe ſome of the moſt remarkable and bearing paſſages of it for you; my Author having reproved the wantonneſs and vanity of profeſſors, particularly thoſe of London, breaks forth into this threatning and terrible prediction.

Mr. Reeves Gods Plea for Niniveh; printed about eight years ſince.

‘ London was Troy novant, it is Troy le grand; it will be Troy l'extinct. p. 217. I ſee you bringing Pickaxes to digg down your own walls, and Springing mines to blow up your own houſes, and kindling ſparks that will ſet all in a flame, p. 215. they which were rich owners, muſt then wander abroad for relief, and be glad to beg gratuities, or be glad to kiſs the feet of the Adverſarie for an Alms, out of his own fulneſs; and happy were I, if I could here make an end, and the laſt poſt were arrived. But after all other extremities, Conſcience at laſt comes to her puniſhment, this muſt be made a captive. Men are not only lockt out of their houſes, but out of their Temples; their goods are not only enforced from them, but they are deprived of the Pearl; their Liberties are not only loſt, but the freedom of the ordinances, pure doctrine, worſhip and Faith are in bondage, and the ſoul enthralled. Men that will not permute a God, and ſuffer their faith to be new ſtamped, muſt either run, or dye for it: Your looking-glaſs will be ſnatcht away, your bright diamond ſhiver'd in pieces; this goodly City of yours all in ſheards; ye may ſeek for a threſhold of your ancient dwellings, for a pillar of your pleaſant habitations and not find them; nothing left but naked ſtreets, or naked fields of ſhelter, &c. But this is but the miſery of Stonework, of Arches, Dormans and Roofs; but what will you ſay, when it comes to skin-work, Arms, Necks and Bowels? Ye which have walked the ſtreets in ſtate, may then run the ſtreets in diſtractions, with one Leg, or half an Arm, they may beg the preſervation of the reſt of your members: What inventions will ye then be put to, to ſave your lives? Your tears will not reſcue, nor your gold redeem you; but your veins muſt weep, as well as your eyes; and your ſides be watered, as well as your cheeks; when they allow you no ſhowers of rain, but ſhowers of blood to waſh your ſtreets; when you ſhall ſee no men in your Corporation, but the mangled Citizen; and hear no noiſe in the ſtreet, but the cryes, and ſhreeks, yells, and pants of gaſping, dying men: When ye ſhall ſee your kindred ſlain in one place, your wives in another, your children in a third, and your ſelves at laſt (it may be) cut in two, to encreaſe the number of the dead carcaſſes.

‘ As populous as ye are, ye ſhall then be numbred to the Sword; as puiſſant as ye are, the valiant ſhall be ſwept away; as fine fed as ye are, ye ſhall be fed with your own fleſh, and made drunk with your own blood; your Polititians can no longer help you, but have their ſubtil brains daſht in pieces with yours; nor your Lecturers can no longer ſave you; but you muſt meet together at the Congregation near the Shambles, when this great City ſhall be but a great Chopping-Bord to quarter out the limbs of ſinners, or the great Altar whereon a whole City is to be ſacrificed. Oh doleful day! when your breaſts ſhall try the points of Spears, your ſides the keenneſs of Swords, your heads the weight of Poll-axes, your Bodies made footſtools, and your dead Carcaſſes ſtepping-ſtones for truculent foes, to tread and trample on; when there will no be pity upon the Aged, nor compaſſion upon the young, but heaps upon heaps; tumbling of Garments in blood, and Swords made fat with ſlaughter. Oh! ſee what a Crimſon City, Crimſon Sins will make!

‘ Or if you do eſcape the dint of the Sword, and your lives be given you for a prey; Shall not your goods be made a prey? Yes, ſome may be reſerved out of the greateſt Maſſacre; when men are weary with killing, a retreat may be ſounded, and men called off from the ſlaughter; yet can ye then challenge your own Houſes, or bring your Keys to your old Cheſts? No, your Title's gone, your Intereſt loſt, ye have traded your ſelves out of your Eſtates, or ſinned your ſelves out of your Proprieties: The Enemy is now houſekeeper, Landholder; ye have forfeited all to the Sword; farwel Inheritances, Purchaſes, Leaſes, Wares, Wardrobe, Furniture, Jewels. As you have gotten theſe goods unjuſtly, ſo they ſhall be taken away unjuſtly; and if they be not ſlain in the heap, yet they do but live to ſee their own miſery; their ſins have made them Bankrupts, they are undone, ruin'd.

‘ And Oh! if the loſs of money were the greateſt miſchief; But there is a treaſure of greater value in danger; there is not an abſolute conqueſt made, till the inner man be in fetters; thou muſt be a ſlave in principles. Oh! It is an hard thing at that time to be a Jew inwardly, to keep the girdle of truth about thy loins; thou muſt then bare the fruit of the degenerate plant, or ſtrange vine; pour out the drink-offerings of other Sacrifices, follow the ſorcery of the Miſtreſs of witchcrafts, or learn Magick with them that are brought up in the doctrine of Devils; thou muſt limp with the halting age; fit thy mouth to anſwer the general ſhout, That great is Diana of the Epheſians; thou muſt taunt thy own Father, ſpit in the face of thine own Mother, and hiſs away all thy true Brethren; thou muſt be devorced from thy own faith, though never ſo chaſte; and deny Sarah to be thy Wife,

‘ though thy Eſpouſals with her were never ſo
‘ ſolemn. There will be no ſafety for incontami-
‘ nate faith; thou wilt be either a Nicodemus
‘ to come to Chriſt by night; or if with Daniel
‘ thou open the windows towards Jeruſalem, thou ‘ wilt be caſt into the Den of Lyons. Thus far he.

r. Uſher. An inundation of Popery was alſo predicted by the learned * Biſhop of Armagh, immediately before his death, as is well known to many. And where is the heart that hath any ſpiritual ſenſe or tenderneſs in it, that trembles not in a fearful expectation of theſe things? Surely, the Lord will mos 3.7. do nothing, but he revealeth his Secrets to his Servants the Prophets. This is one ground of fear.

2. And your fears cannot chuſe but encreaſe, when you conſider the preparation and progreſs theſe Enemies have already made; Have they been ſleeping, think you, all this while? No, no, they have digged as deep as Hell in their Counſels, their Numbers among us are already formidable, their combinations ſtrong, their Confidences high, and their Foreign Aſſiſtants ready. As the keepers of a field, ſo are our enemies round a- er. 4. 17. a. 9 11. bout us; the Syrans before, and the Philiſtines behind to devour England with open mouth. Two conſiderable Advantages they have already obtained: ( Firſt ) The removal of ſo many able and Godly Miniſters out of the way. This is done to their hands by a ſad Providence: It is an old and true obſervation, that whoſoever will attempt the overthrow of Religion, muſt begin with the Miniſtry Firſt. Theſe are ſet for the defence of the Goſpel. It was the Counſel that Adam Contzen ( a Deep-pated Ahithophel of theirs) long ſince gave in this caſe; Suppreſs ( ſaith he ) the Miniſters; ( Et error cui patrocinium deerit, ſine pugna concedet; ) and then the error that hath none to patronize it, will fall of it ſelf: So he calls the precious truth of Jeſus Chriſt; I dare not affirm that this was intentionally done to open a door of opportunity to them; but that eventually 'tis like to prove ſo; who that exerciſes reaſon ſees not? When ſo many pious Miniſters went off the Stage, it was apparent enough what an opportunity theſe men had to aſcend it, and act their part.

2. Secondly, The deſtruction of our famous City, the ſtrength and glory of the Nation, which they have laid in the duſt; A deſign no doubt, contrived in the Popiſh Conclave: They well enough knew how able London was to give check to their deſigns.

My heart bleedeth for thee London, to ſee thee made of a City an Heap, of a defenced City a Ruine; a Palace of Strangers to be no City. And if they can have their Will, that which follows in the Text ſhould be Added; It ſhall never be Built. If Parliaments will hearken to them, they will perſwade like Rehum and Shimſhai, Ezra. 4. 14. That it may ſtill lye in its Aſhes, and upon the ſame pretenſions, let ſearch be made ( ſay they ) in the Book of records of thy Fathers, ſo ſhalt thou find in the Book of records, and know, that this City is a rebellious City, and hurtful unto Kings and Provinces, and that they have moved ſedition within the ſame of old time; for which cauſe it was Deſtroyed. But I truſt the Lord will make our Rulers wiſe, to diſcover their Bloody intentions, how ſpeciouſly ſo ever Palliated with pretences of Loyalty and Fidelity.

Lamen- ion for don. But mean while London is ruin'd! That Goodly Mountain laid waſte! The moſt Glorious City in all reſpects, that ever the Sun look'd upon, now a diſolate Wilderneſs! O London! Who can ſufficiently bewail thy Miſery! For mine own part, as the Orator Solemnizing a ſad Funeral, deſired to have learned Mortality from another Subject, rather than that of Scaliger: So ( might it have pleaſed the Lord ) I ſhould have been glad to have learned the vanity of all Worldly Glory from another Example, than that of London.

How doth the City ſit Solitary, that was full of Lam. 1. 1. People? She that was great among the Nations, and Princeſs among the Provinces! O London! Thou Lam. 2. 15. ſealedſt up the ſumme, and waſt perfect in Beauty: Thou waſt perfect in thy way from the day thou Ezek. 28. 15. waſt created, until Iniquity was found in thee. Thy Ezek. 16. 14. renown went forth among the Heathen for thy beauty, for it was perfect through the comelineſs thy God had put upon thee. But thy Heart was lifted up becauſe of Ezek. 28. 17. thy Beauty, thou didſt corrupt thy Wiſdom by reaſon of thy brightneſs. Therefore the Lord hath caſt thee Ezek. 28. 18. to the ground, and brought forth a fire from the midſt of thee, which hath brought thee to aſhes. London hath grievouſly ſinned, therefore is ſhe removed; All Lam. 1. 8. that knew thee among the People, are aſtoniſhed at thee, thou art a terror to them. London may now ſit down by her Siſter Jeruſalem in the duſt, Lam. 1. 12. and ſay, Is it nothing to you, all ye that paſs by, ſee and behold, was there ever any ſorrow like unto my ſorrow, which is done unto me, wherewith the Lord hath afflicted me in the day of his fierce anger! They Lam. 1. 21. have heard that I ſigh, there is none to comfort me: All mine enemies have heard of my trouble, they are glad that thou haſt done it; thou wilt bring the day that thou haſt called, and they ſhall be like unto me. Let all their Wickedneſs come before thee, and doe ver. 22. unto them as thou haſt done unto me. Mine enemies Jer. 51. 34. have devoured me, they have cruſhed me, and made me an empty veſſel; they have ſwallowed me up like a Dragon. The violence done unto me and to my fleſh be ver. 35. upon Babylon, ſhall the inhabitents of London ſay. Pſal. 137. 7. Remember O Lord, the Inhabitants of Babylon, in the day of London, who ſaid, Raſe it, raſe it even ver. 8. to the Foundations. O daughter of Babylon, that art to be deſtroyed, happy ſhall he be, that rewardeth thee, as thou haſt ſerved us.

Let no man think that I endeavor to obſcure the righteous Hand of God, which is to be own'd and trembled at in ſuch a judgment. Though London muſt accknowledge his Juſtice in all that is come upon her; yet the Wickedneſs of Inſtruments, is not in the leaſt to be excuſed thereby. God and man may concurre in the ſame action, and yet neither his Holineſs have any fellowſhip with their Wickedneſs; nor their Injuſtice be excuſed by his Righteouſneſs; Idem quod duo faciunt non eſt idem; His work is perfect, for all his ways are judgement; a God of truth, and without iniquity; juſt and right is he, they have corrupted themſelves, Deut. 32. 4, 5. Wilt thou not confeſs, London, that thy ſins were the ſparks that kindled thy flames? Doubtleſs thou wilt, ſuch was thy Pride, Epicuriſme, Formality, and Barrenneſs, under ſuch precious waterings as thou once enjoyedſt, above all the Cities in the World, that thou mayeſt ſay, it is of the Lords Merey thine Inhabitants had not all periſhed with their Habitations; and that God had not made thee like Sodom; for what couldſt thou expect when thy Lots were going, but that devouring flames were coming?

But to return from this ſad ( though neceſſary) digreſſion; hereby it is manifeſt the common Enemy hath obtained a ſingular and long expected advantage to their deſign ; often have they in vain attempted it ; but now God hath delivered it into their hands : Well might they rejoyce ( as they did ) to ſee its flames aſcend, and drink healths to its Aſhes. For upon divers politick conſiderations it might eaſily be demonſtrated, that their Cauſe and Intereſt is revived and warm'd by that fire.

3. Laſtly, It cannot but much more heighten our fears, if we conſider the ſad poſture we are in at this day of our Eminent Danger. Three or four ſad particulars I ſhall here ſuggeſt, and let none think it to be a laying open of our nakedneſs and weakneſs to the Enemies ; for I ſhall tell them no News, in telling you that.

1. They are much encouraged, in that the Ceremonies of their Religion find ſuch acceptation among us : It was long ſince obſerved, That as the morning uſhers in the day, ſo the Ceremonies of any Religion, ſerve to bring in the Religion it ſelf ; if we are heartily reſolved againſt Popery, What do we with their Garments, Geſtures, Altars, Croſſes, Liturgies, and Officers among us ? Upon this Reaſon the Divines of Hamburg withſtood the Ceremonies of the INTERIM ; of which they give this accompt to Melancthon. 'Theſe Indifferent things ( ſay they ) 'are nothing elſe but the ſeeds of corruption, the 'nerves of Papiſtical Superſtition, and the little 'paſſages, by which the Adverſaries endeavour 'to creep into our Churches, that they may turn 'them off the foundation. To the ſame purpoſe the Divines of Saxony ſpeak ; 'Satan ( ſay they ) 'from thoſe ſmall beginnings of the Ceremonies, 'makes progreſs to the corruption of Doctrine it 'ſelf. If any ſay, theſe are but groundleſs ſurmiſes, a fighting with our own ſhadows ; the Papiſts themſelves are more charitable than ſuch Objectors ; and cannot but know, that although we uſe theſe Ceremonies, yet not in the ſame ſenſe that they do. Pray hear what a Jeſuit hath obſerved concerning it. 'Proteſtantiſme ( ſaith Mr. 'Chillingworth in his Preface, Sect. 20. ) waxeth 'weary of it ſelf, the profeſſors of it, they eſpecially of greateſt Worth, Learning and Authority, Love, Temper and Moderation ; and are 'at this time more unreſolved where to faſten, 'than at the Infancy of their Church. Their 'Churches begin to look with a new Face, their 'Walls to ſpeak a new Language, their Doctrines 'to be altered in many things. If it be again objected, this is but the groundleſs conſtruction of a peeviſh Adverſary. To conclude the controverſie ; hear what a Prelate of our own, ſaith in the Caſe, they are the words of the learned Primate of Ireland. 'The Kings and Queen of England ( ſaith he ) impoſed theſe Ceremonies, that 'thereby they might decline the charge of Schiſmatiks, wherewith the Church of Rome laboured 'to brand them, ſeeing it did appear hereby, 'they only left them in ſuch Doctrinal points, 'wherein they left the truth. Again, hereby 'they would teſtifie, how far they would ſtoop 'to win and gain them, by yielding as far as they 'might in their own way : But ( ſaith he ) the 'experience of many years hath ſhew'd, that this 'condeſcention hath rather harden'd them in their 'errors, than brought them to a liking of our 'Religion ; this being their uſual ſaying, if our 'Fleſh be not good, Why do you drink of our 'Broth ?

Contet. Saxon. edit 1560.

Doct. Uſher, of the Cerem. pag. 209.

And have we not grounds for our fears, think you now ? if we are blamed for our jealouſies, we muſt blame them that give cauſe for them. Would Biſhops caſt out thoſe Popiſh Ceremonies, our fears of Popery would by ſo much be abated ; but thoſe that nurſe up theſe Romiſh Brats, we cannot but ſuſpect to have too much love for that Harlot that begot them.

2. We are at this day perſecuting and ſuppreſſing the faithful in the Land even thoſe that ſtand in the Gap to intercede for it ; and are the moſt conſiderable perſons, both for Parts and Piety, to oppoſe the deſigns of this Enemy. How are we hacking at the Bough we ſtand upon ; and pulling down our Walls, whiles the Enemy lies round about them ? Is this a time to ſtop the mouths of ſo many able and faithful Miniſters ? to drive them into corners, and not only ſo, but to pull them out of thoſe corners too ; and thruſt them out of the breach, where they ſtand with prayers and tears, which are their only Weapons, and the Nations beſt Defence againſt the common Enemy ? Would any Phyſician that regards the life of his Patient, having to do with a weak conſumptive perſon, that hath but little blood, and few ſpirits left, open a vein, and let out a drop thereof ? It may be you look not upon them ſo, but rather as the diſeaſe of England, than the good blood thereof : But God judges otherwiſe concerning them : The innocent preſerve the Iſland, and it is delivered by the pureneſs of his hands, Job 22. ult. You think if you were once rid of theſe, you ſhould quickly be a proſperous Nation : But verily, except the Lord of Hoſts had left unto us a very ſmall remnant, we ſhould have been as Sodom, we ſhould have been like unto Gomorrah, Iſa. 1. 9.

Ah ! how little do our bold Informers think whoſe work they are doing ! Little do Conſtables think they are breaking down of the Walls and Gates of the Nation ; when breaking up the peaceable Meetings of God's People. Poor men ! did you but ſee how the Papiſts laugh among themſelves, to ſee their work ſo induſtriouſly performed by your hands, it would ſurely cool your courage, and check your irregular zeal : Alas ! they are not ſo much afraid of your Swords, as of theſe mens prayers. That Popiſh Queen of Scotland ſpake out, and profeſſed, ſhe dreaded more the Prayers of Mr. Knox ( a godly Nonconformiſt ) than an Army of Ten Thouſand men. And will you ſo officiouſly ſerve them, by diſarming ſo many Ten Thouſands of your friends of their beſt weapons ? Oh ungrateful England ! doſt thou thus requite the Saints for all the good they have been inſtruments to procure unto thee ? Wilt thou make them enter an appeal in Heaven againſt thee, in the words of the Prophet ? Jer. 18. 20. Shall evil be recompenſed for good ? for they have digged a pit for our ſouls ; Remember O Lord, how we ſtood before thee to ſpeak good for them, and to turn away thy wrath from them.

3. Are not the profeſſing part of the Nation at this day divided, both in their Judgments and affections ? and what a ſingular advantage the Enemy hath thereby, is obvious to every conſidering perſon ; we have been often told, That except the ſpirit of love did ſpeedily cloſe up thoſe unchriſtian breaches, the common adverſary would enter in at them. It was a worthy ſpeech of Brentius, when the Divines of Germany were ſcuffling one with another, in the midſt of the Popiſh party, ‘Tollendo merito, &c. Let all quarreling ‘and bitterneſs be laid aſide, and let us ſubject ‘our judgments to our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: Our ‘Adverſaries yet live, and are daily more bold; ‘night and day they labour to extinguiſh the ‘Light of the Goſpel which is riſen among us, ‘and to bring back the ancient darkneſs; mean ‘while, we, who in the beginning, by the grace ‘of God, profeſſed the Goſpel unanimouſly, turn ‘our weapons one againſt another, and exhibit a ‘grateful ſpectacle to our Enemies; who place ‘more truſt and confidence in our contentions, ‘than in the vain foundation of their own Cauſe; ‘and all their own art and power.

Procruſtes.

I have a long time looked upon our contentions as upon a Blazing Comet, portending utter deſolation, if the Lord heal it not ſpeedily. Think upon this, you that fear the Lord, and tremble at his judgments: How have we beaten our fellow-ſervants? unſainted thoſe that jump'd not with us in our opinions? this Saint was too high, and that too low; but here is an Enemy that like Procruſtes the Tyrant, will cut you all of a length: If you were Ten Thouſand more than you are, you were no match for them, as long as you lye in this poſture. How eaſily did Gideon with his little handful, vanquiſh the huge Hoſte of the Medianites; when every man ſet his Sword to the breaſt of his fellow, and inſtead of oppoſing him, ſlew every man his brother? Judg. 7. 22. I make no queſtion but the Papiſts have blown up theſe ſparks of diſſention among us, to warm their own fingers by our flames; they have animated and fomented that ſpirit of bitterneſs and wrath among us; as one that ſets two Cocks a fighting, that having kill'd each other, he may ſup upon them both at night. This was the ſad poſture of Jeruſalem when the Enemy entred in her Gates. O England! England! thy deſtruction is of thy ſelf. If the hearts of the Fathers be not turned to the Children, and the hearts of the Children to the Fathers, what can we expect, but that God ſhould come and ſmite the earth with a curſe? Mal. 4. ult. Lord heal the breaches of England, for it ſhaketh, Pſal. 60. 2.

4. Fourthly and laſtly, That which much appalls and daunts my ſpirit, is, They find us as deeply guilty of the abuſe of the beſt mercies, as ever any Nation was. So that I am afraid this Enemy will prove the Flagellum Dei, the Scourge of God, (as Totilas of old, from his cruel perſecution of the Chriſtians was called) to avenge our unthankfulneſs for thoſe choice favours, which Heaven hath ſhower'd down upon this ungrateful Nation. Saint Jerome ſpeaking of the Churches Enemies, By our ſins (ſaith he) our Enemies are made ſtrong; and Hiſtory tells us, that when Veſpaſian had conquered Jeruſalem, he refuſed to have the Crown ſet upon his head, ſaying, I indeed am the Rod in the hand of God, but it is their ſins only that have ſubdued them. Upon what Nation under Heaven hath God more richly heap'd his bleſſings, than upon England? and what people have more wantonly abuſed them? or more contemptuouſly ſpurned at the tender mercies of him that conferr'd them? What bleſſing is it, which deſerves to be ſtyled matchleſs, tranſcendent, glorious, that England hath not enjoyed? If Peace be it, we have had it; if Plenty, we have had it; if the Light of the bleſſed Goſpel ſhining in its Meridian Splendor be it, we have had it: But Jeſurun waxed fat, and kicked; O dreadful fore-runner of National ruin! What was it that gave the Saracens footing in the Eaſtern Empire, but the wantonneſs of thoſe Churches, abuſing the Light which they enjoyed? How impatiently did the people of God in former times, thirſt for liberty to worſhip God purely! and when they had obtained it, what was the uſe they made of it? Horreſco referens, I tremble in ſpeaking it; Did we not play with our Light, fight with our brethren by it, till God blowed out the Candle? and ſo (I wiſh I could ſay) ended the quarrel.

We may ſay of our liberty, as the Philoſopher ſpeaks of waters, Suis terminis difficile continentur; They are difficultly kept within their bounds; Why, Brethren, did you think that God could ſuffer ſuch precious Mercies to run at the waſte-ſpout much longer? Did you think he was weary of his mercies, to continue them to ſuch as little regarded them? or that it was not as grievous to the Bleſſed God, that his children ſhould ſmite one another, as to ſee the Enemy ſmiting them? No darkneſs is more formidable than that of an Eclipſe, which aſſaults the very veſſels of light; no taſte more unſavoury, than that of ſweet things when corrupted; and no ſin more hideous, than that which darkens the brightneſs of God's love, and corrupts the ſweetneſs of his mercy. O England! thou haſt abuſed a darling attribute of God, thou haſt ſinned againſt the moſt deeply ingraven Principle, and Law of Nature: The very irrational Creatures, yea, the heavieſt and dulleſt among them, the Ox and Aſs are not ſo deficient in gratitude to their Owners, as thou haſt been to thy God, Iſa. 1. 3. juſtly therefore may he upbraid thee, and ſay, Be aſtoniſhed O ye Heavens at this, and be ye horribly afraid, &c. Sicne rependis? Is this thy kindneſs to the God of thy mercies? marvel not then if God pluck up the hedge of his protection from about thee, and let in cruel foes upon thee, to chaſtiſe thee for thine ingratitude; and though he will not make a full end of thee, yet may he ſay concerning thee, as of Iſrael, 2 Chro. 12. 7, 8. I will not utterly deſtroy them, but will grant them ſome deliverance, and my wrath ſhall not be poured out upon Jeruſalem by the hand of Shiſhack; nevertheleſs they ſhall be his ſervants, that they may know my ſervice, and the ſervice of the Kingdoms of the Countries. The Lord I truſt will not utterly forſake his dwelling place in England; but verily I fear he may permit Antichriſt for a time to afflict us, that we may know the difference between the ſweet and eaſie yoke of Chriſt, which we would not endure, and the yoke of Antichriſt that ſhall gall our necks and conſciences with cruel ſervitude. And becauſe we ſerved not the Lord our God with joyfulneſs and gladneſs of heart, for the abundance of all things, that therefore we ſhall ſerve our enemies, which the Lord ſhall ſend againſt us, in hunger, and thirſt, and nakedneſs, and the want of all things; Deut. 28. 47. That ſo we may return to God with the Church, and ſay, as it is Iſa. 26. 19. O Lord our God, other Lords beſides thee have had dominion over us, but by thee only, will we make mention of thy Name; and as Hoſ. 2. 7. I will return to my firſt Husband, for it was better with me then, than now.

Theſe are ſome of the principal grounds of Englands fear at this day, in reference to the Popiſh Party. Let the ſerious and conſidering Reader lay them together, allow them but a juſt and even ballance, and doubtleſs it will hereby appear, That how great ſoever our fears are, yet our dangers much exceed them.

Having thus hinted the grounds of our fears, what remains but that next I addreſs my ſelf to the principal work deſign'd in theſe Papers; which is to call upon England to awake out of her deſtructive ſecurity, and not to ſuffer her enemies to ſurpriſe her ſleeping? And I would do it in the words of the Prophet, Zeph. 2. 1, 2. Gather your ſelves together, yea, gather together, O Nation not deſired, before the decree bring forth, before the day paſs as the chaffe, before the fierce anger of the Lord come upon thee. O that I could ſound this Admonition ſo loud, that all in the Nation might hear it! Had I any hopes that theſe poor Papers might be Honoured with a glance of his Majeſties Eye, I would, as it were, proſtrate my ſelf at his feet, and cry as that woman did, 2 King. 6. Help my Lord, O King.

An Humble Addreſs to the King.

Great Sir, The Lord hath done great things for You, and you are ſcarcely capable of doing a greater ſervice for him, and his people, than vigorouſly to withſtand the Attempts and Encroachments of this ſubtil and formidable Enemy; in that it hath pleaſed the Lord to move your heart to ſend forth your Royal Proclamation againſt them, we accept it always, and in all places, with all thankfulneſs; and pray, That he would not only ſecure your Royal Perſon from their attempts, but alſo make you a Shield to his people in theſe Nations.

Mariana.

It is not hid from your Majeſty what a perfidious and Bloody Enemy this is, whoſe principles as well as practice, tend to the ſubverſion both of Kings and Kingdoms. One of them affirms it lawful to Murder any one (though his own Prince) if the Pope hold him excommunicate; and another ſets down rules how it may be done; and thinks poyſoning to be the beſt way. What but Treaſon and Rebellion can flow from thoſe Bloody Doctrines of the Popes temporal juriſdiction over Princes, and his power to diſſolve all Oaths and Tyes of Allegiance? So that neither your Perſon nor Honour can be ſafe in their hands; Or ſhould your Royal Perſon be exempt from danger, yet if this enemy prevail, how many Thouſands of your poor Innocent Subjects may fall by their mercileſs hands; What a field of bood will they make your Kingdom? and ſurely the Enemy can never countervail the Kings damage herein, Esth. 6. 16. Moſt gladly at your Command, would we offer our lives on the high places of the field againſt them; but to fall by treachery, and be butchered in our beds, is horrible to think.

An Humble Supplication to the Parliament.

And O that God would make our Honourable Repreſentatives in Parliament ſtill vigilant to obſerve, and zealous to oppoſe the motions of this Enemy! We bleſs the Lord for what you have already done, in detecting them ſo far; but yet we cannot think our danger over, whilſt they ſwarm in ſuch numbers among us. Hanibal was wont to ſay, Magis ſe a non pugnante Fabio, quam a pugnante Marcello timere; he more feared Fabius not fighting, than fighting Marcellus. O be as zealous for the Proteſtant Intereſt, as they are againſt it, if they dare to ſmite with the fiſt of Wickedneſs, we hope you will not be afraid to ſmite them with the Sword of Juſtice. Remember what a matchleſs ſalvation was once given to our Engliſh Parliament, I mean from the Powder-plot, that Catholick Villany, as one aptly calls it: Such a deliverance as Ages paſt cannot parallel in any hiſtory, and of which we may ſay, as the Hiſtorian in another caſe, Si in annalibus non foret fabula videretur. Had it not been recorded in our own Annals, poſterity would never believe it; they have indeed ſtudiouſly endeavoured in their late bold Remonſtrance to hide from your eyes the goodneſs of God in that deliverence, that ſo by forgetting his goodneſs, they might bury in ſilence their own Wickedneſs; we hope none of your actings againſt this Enemy, will be ſtained with luke-warmneſs; if juſtice be ſpirinkled with a favourable hand, like a few drops of Water upon fire, we doubt inſtead of quenching, it will rather encreaſe the flame. Rome is a nettle, the more gently it's handled, the more it ſtings. My Lords and Gentlemen, here is an enemy that deſerves your hotteſt zeal and greateſt vigilance, much better than honeſt loyal Nonconformiſts, who plead with God night and day on your behalf.

'Tis acknowledged they differ in leſſer matters, from the eſtabliſhed Worſhip of the Nation; but from the Toleration of ſuch Differences, no Publick Danger can ariſe. Some differences in Opinion (ſaith an Honourable Author) are as the ſtriving of one Iſraelite with another; and theſe Moſes quiets and parts them fairly; and ſome are like the Egyptian ſtriving with the Iſraelite, whom Moſes ſmites down. It was a noble Speech of Anthony of Burbon King of Navarre, to the Daniſh Ambaſſador; this King being a Peer of France, and firſt prince of the Blood, challenged the Regency of that Kingdom during the French Kings minority: He told the Ambaſſador, That he hoped in a ſhort time to procure a free paſſage for the Goſpel throughout France; the Ambaſſador was pleaſed with it; but deſired that Luthers Doctrine, not Calvins, might paſs for current: The King replyed, Luther and Calvin agree in forty points, and differ but in one. Let thoſe therefore that follow the tenets of theſe two, unite their ſtrength againſt the common Enemy, and at better leiſure, in a more convenient ſeaſon, compound their own differences: Grant that Nonconformiſts be in an error, yet the difference is not fundamental; and the Famous Emperor Theodoſius, did not only bear with the Novatians, but familiarly conſult with their Learned Paſtors about Church-matters, though differing in ſeveral Points of Diſcipline; and Conſtantine, although he made a Law in terrorem, yet in point of execution he ſpared them. O that with one ſhoulder you might ſupport the tottering Intereſt of Chriſt in theſe Nations! and be ſtyled the Saviours of England in this time of danger; which will be a more Honourable Title, than any other you are, or can be dignified with.

I would alſo propound it as a matter of ſerious conſideration to the Prelates; Whether this be a time to vex and perſecute the Conſcientious and Faithful in the Land, for Ceremonies and Trifles, when the ſubſtance of Religion lyes expoſed? Will not the late dreadful Alarms by the Popiſh Party ſound a retreat, and put an end to this work? ſuffer me to propound two or three Queries to your Conſciences.

1 Queſt.

Are not Papiſts hereby hardened in their errors and confirm'd in their Cruel and Tyrannical impoſitions upon Conſcience, whilſt they ſee you to uſe the ſame Medium? What plea is left you againſt their Tyranny, if ever God permit them to re-kindle the Flames of Martyrdom in England? If your way be good, why is not theirs? Magis & minus non variant ſpeciem; Is there not as much ſtrength in their Arguments of Fire and Faggot to convince you, as in your Excommunications, nications, Impriſonments, Mulcts and Penalties, to convince us of the lawfulneſs of your Ceremonies? It's ſaid of Molineus Bonifacius, that his ſilly reaſons for the Popes Supremacy did well enough, being propounded with a Sword in his hand; a keen Sword will make a dull Argument cut to the quick; and if you cannot anſwer ſuch Arguments your ſelves, methinks you ſhould be tender of urging them againſt others. Sure I am, Confiſcations, Impriſonments, and Death are the moſt irrefragable Arguments for Popery, and it is a thouſand pities we ſhould tell the world, that the reformed Religion muſt be ſupported by the like Artifices: It would better ſerve their Deſign in Spain, than Chriſts Intereſt in England. I am ſure 'tis the proper Cognizance of Antichriſt; and O that it might remain with them only. Hear what a man of your own Character ſaith, 'It is obſervable (ſaith Doct. Taylor) that 'the reſtraint of Propheſying, and impoſing upon 'other mens underſtandings, being Maſters of 'their Conſciences, and Lording it over their 'Faith, came in with the retinue and train of Anti'chriſt; that is, they came as other abuſes and 'corruptions of the Church did, when the Chur'ches Fortunes grew better, and her Sons worſe, 'and ſome of their Fathers worſt of all; for in 'the firſt three hundred years, there was no ſign 'of perſecuting any man for his Opinion, though 'at that time there were many horrid Opinions. '—— A Wolf may as well give Laws to the 'underſtanding, as he whoſe dictates are only 'propounded in violence, and written in blood: 'And a Dog is as capable of a Law, as a Man, if 'there be no choice in his obedience, no diſcourſe 'in his choice, nor reaſon to ſatisfie his diſ'courſe.

Liberty of Propheſy. p. 109.

2 Quer. Are you not like to have the ſame meaſure, you mete to us, meted back to you again with an overplus, if this Enemy prevail? and then you'l find how good it is to afflict for Conſcience ſake. Certainly, if you reſolve to be faithful to Proteſtant Principles, you will eſcape upon no eaſier terms, than us.

3 Quer. Are not theſe very perſons againſt whom you diſcharge your Cannons, and worry up and down by your Apparritors, like to prove as ſtiff Aſſertors of the Proteſtant Cauſe, (if God call for more blood to witneſs to it) as your ſelves? you find them (I believe) inflexible enough to your Ceremonies; all your menaces and puniſhments cannot cudgel them into Conformity with them, becauſe they find aliquid commune cum Antichriſto, a ſpice and tang of Popiſh Superſtition in them; and doubtleſs, they will as freely lay down their lives in defence of the fundamental and weightier points of Religion, as their Places, Liberties, and Earthly Comforts, for the leſſer circumſtantial truths thereof. And is it not pity, that you ſhould (eſpecially at ſuch time as this) ſuppreſs, afflict, and ſilence ſuch men, whoſe Abilities might now be improved to ſuch ſingular advantage?

Application to the Nation in general.

But, Aquila non capit muſcas; Lordly Spirits ſcorn to ſtoop to ſuch mean compoſures, or take notice of a creeping Pamphlet; Let me therefore ſpeak to the Body of the People, and eſpecially to thoſe among the People, who profeſs to fear the Lord, and tremble at his Judgments. Will you ſhut your ears to ſeaſonable Counſel alſo? Will you deſpiſe your dangers, till you are ſurprized by them? O England! Wilt thou not begin to fear, till thou art paſt hope? Shall thine Enemies find thee ſleeping, and leave thee dead? Wretched England! here is thy miſery, that thou knoweſt not thy time; but as the fiſhes are taken in an evil net, and as the birds are caught in the ſnare; ſo wilt thou be ſnared in an evil time, when it falleth on thee ſuddenly, Eccleſ. 8. 12. May I freely expreſs my apprehenſions in the Caſe; I much doubt thine Enemies have ſo contrived and laid their deſign againſt thee, that (in their apprehenſions at leaſt) all thy ſtruglings now, are but as the fluttering of a bird in the net, which inſtead of freeing, doth but the faſter intangle her. However, if God at laſt, will but open thine ears to ſeaſonable Counſel, and perſwade thine heart to thy preſent duties, who can tell, but the Lord may yet be gracious to his Land, and ſpare his People?

It is not ſo much their confidence, as our impenitence that is to be feared. Haman was as confident as they can be, and had caſt Pur for the Jews, as well as they for us, Eſth. 3. 7. So was Pharaoh too, when he ſaid, I will purſue, I will purſue; God can quickly give their pregnant deſigns, a miſcarrying womb, ſo that they which have conceived miſchief, ſhall bring forth but a lye; and thou that feareſt continually, becauſe of the Enemy, ſhalt yet praiſe him, and ſay, The heathen are ſunk down in the Pit that they made, in the net which they hid, is their own foot taken: The Lord is known by the Judgments which he executeth; the wicked is ſnared in the work of his own hands; Higgaion Selah, Pſal. 9. 15, 16. and when the Enemy cometh in like a flood; the Spirit of thy God can ſet up a Standard againſt him: If men cannot, winds and waves ſhall fight for thee, as they have done in former exigencies.

O nimium dilecte Deo cui militat æther
Et conjurati veniunt ad claſſica venti.

Only obey the Counſels of God, and let thine ear be circumciſed; and as ever you expect that a door of hope ſhould be open'd to you in this valley of Achor, let theſe following Counſels be ſpeedily and heartily practiſed.

1. COUNSEL.

Abhor Popery, and be eminent in your zeal againſt it. Rome is that Amalek, with whom God will never make peace, neither ſhould we: It was Queen Elizabeths Motto, No peace with Spain; and it ſhould be ours, No peace with Rome. My dear Countrymen, I beſeech you, be not deceived with vain words; ſuffer not your ſelves to be circumvented by a Stratagem of the Enemy; let not prejudices, and diſcontents which they endeavour to beget and foment in you, againſt your real friends, cauſe any of you to fall in with the Deſign and Intereſt of your Enemies: It is a dangerous thing to comply with that Intereſt which God hath engaged himſelf againſt, and as ſure as Chriſt ſits at his Fathers right hand, ſhall be deſtroyed: And what cauſe you have to abhor Popery, you will ſee by that time I have ſhewed you, that it is a FALSE, BLOODY, BLASPHEMOUS, UNCOMFORTABLE, AND DAMNABLE RELIGION.

Firſt, It is a Falſe Religion, and that's reaſon enough to abhor it. You would be loth to be cheated with Counterfeit Coin, ( eſpecially if you were to receive your whole Portion in it ) how much more with a Falſe Faith, when it amounts to as much as all your ſouls are worth in another World! the falſity of the Popiſh Religion ( if it yet remain a queſtion with any among us ) may be thus evinced.

1 Argum. That Religion which is not built upon the Prophets and Apoſtles, but ſtands in the wiſdom of man, is a Falſe Religion.

But the Popiſh Religion is not built upon the Foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, but ſtands in the wiſdom of man; therefore the Popiſh Religion is a Falſe Religion.

The major propoſition is undeniable, and ſtands upon the Authority of theſe Scriptures, Eph. 2. 20. And are built upon the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, Jeſus Chriſt himſelf being the chief Corner Stone. 1 Cor. 2. 5. That your faith ſhould not ſtand in the wiſdom of men, but in the power of God. Iſa. 8. 20. To the Law and to the Teſtimony, if they ſpeak not according to this word, it is becauſe there is no light in them.

The minor propoſition is as evident, for ( 1. ) The Papiſts themſelves acknowledge, that their worſhipping of Creatures, Maſs, Purgatory, the Popes Supremacy, and moſt other Doctrines, wherein they differ from us, cannot be confirm'd by Scripture, Azorius, Inſtit. mor. par. 2d. lib. 4. C. 18. ( 2. ) They ſet up the Pope, as a Judge above the Scriptures, ſubjecting them to the Popes Authority: This many of their Learned Doctors are not aſhamed expreſly to affirm and defend; Pighius Hierarch, Lib. 1. Chap. 2, 3, 4. Card. Cuſan, Epiſt. 7th and Bohem. Cocleus Hollius, &c. ( 3. ) They reproach and deprave the Scripture, calling it an uncertain thing, dead Letter, an inſufficient guide of it ſelf, without their Tradition; or unwritten Word, Bellar. de ſuf. Scrip. ( 4. ) They add to, and detract from the Scriptures at pleaſure. Bellarmin ſaith, Pontificem poſſe mutare prout Ecleſiæ expedit poſitiva precepta Apoſtolorum, ( i. e. ) The Pope can change the poſitive precepts of the Apoſtles, for the behoof of the Church. ( 5. ) They will not ſtand to Scripture Tryal and Judgment for the Deciſion of Controverſies, but cry out to the Fathers, to Councels, to Shool-men, as appears in our own Acts and Mon. in multitudes of Examples. ( 6. ) They reſtrain the People by penalties, from reading the Scriptures, perſwading them to reſolve their Faith into the Authority of the Pope, and believe Implicitly, as the Church believes, Ergo,

2 Argum. That Religion which aſcribes the Glory of mans ſalvation to himſelf, and not to Chriſt alone, is a Falſe Religion. But the Popiſh Religion aſcribes the Glory of mans ſalvation to himſelf, and not to Chriſt alone; therefore 'tis a Falſe Religion.

The Major is undeniable; the end of Religion is the Glory of God; the Chriſtian Religion utterly excludes the glorying of man in himſelf, Rom. 3. 27. Where is boaſting then? It is excluded; by what Law? of works? Nay, bi) by the Law of Faith. Tit. 3. 5. Not by works of righteouſneſs which we have done, but according to his mercy he ſaved us, &c.

The Minor is evident, for themſelves teach, that the proper certainty of Hope is in Merits, that certainty which is not preſumption, is of merits, and to be meaſured by merits, Alexand. Ales. Queſt. 3d. 65. Merits ( ſaith another ) are the foundation of our hope, Filiucius. Tract. 22. n. 244. Therefore,

3 Argum. That which is the Religion of Antichriſt, is a Falſe Religion; but the Popiſh Religion, is the Religion of Antichriſt; Ergo.

The Major is evident, for the Doctrine of Antichriſt is a lye, 2 Theſ. 2. 11. A myſtery of iniquity, ver. 7.

The Minor appears as evidently, in that the Notes and Characters by which Antichriſt is deſcribed and indigitated in Scripture, agree to Popery, and to it only. The Pope is that ὁ ἄνομος, that lawleſs one, 2 Theſ. 2. 8. He ſits in the Temple of God, challenging Supremacy over all Churches. He ſits there as God, exalting himſelf above all that is called God, ver. 4. They attribute to him the Name of the Lord our God.

Oraclo vocis mundi moderaris habenas,
Et merito in terris crederis eſſe Deus. Sixtus 4th.

His coming is after the working of Satan, with all power and ſigns, and lying wonders, of which there are numberleſs multitudes in Popery, their Legends ſwarm with them. He hath horns as a Lamb, ( viz. ) pretences of meekneſs and innocency, but ſpeaks like a Dragon, Rev. 13. 11. He aroſe out of the earth, Stirpium more, after the manner of Plants, growing by inſenſible degrees to this monſtrous greatneſs; to him only agree all the other Characters in Rev. 17. & alibi. Therefore.

4 Argum. That Religion which tolerates and countenances all manner of Pride, Covetouſneſs, Luſt, Murders, &c. is a Falſe Religion; but the Popiſh Religion tolerates and countenances theſe, and many other fleſhly luſts; therefore it is a Falſe Religion.

The Major ( if doubted ) may eaſily be proved by all thoſe Scriptures which ſhew the purity of true Religion, as Jam. 1. 27. Pure Religion and undefiled before God, &c. Tit. 2. 12. Teaching us, that denying ungodlineſs, and worldly luſts, &c. Pſal. 19. 9. The fear of the Lord ( which is there put for his Worſhip ) is clean, &c.

The Minor may be as eaſily proved from their own Hiſtories and Writings, and many other credible Authors. As for their Pride, let an Inſtance or two ſuffice: Sir, Richard Baker in his Chron. p. 30. tells us, That Aldred Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, upon the repulſe of his Suit by King William the firſt, grew diſcontent, and offered to depart, when the King in awe of his diſpleaſure ſtaid him, fell down at his feet, deſired pardon, and promiſed to grant him his Suit; the King being all this while down at the Arch-Biſhops feet, the Nobles that were preſent put him in mind, that he ſhould cauſe the King to riſe; Nay, ſaith the Arch-Biſhop, let him alone, let him find what it is to anger St. Peter: Richonius that proud Papiſt, was not aſhamed to tell the World in Print, That a Prieſt is as much above a King, as a King is above a Beaſt; yea, as God is above a Prieſt. Their Covetouſneſs is alſo inſatiable, all things are vendible at Rome, even the Blood of Chriſt is ſet to ſale for mony; they have vaſt Revenues from the very Stews and Brothels. The blindeſt times took ſo much notice of their Covetouſneſs, that though they durſt not ſpeak out, yet expreſt their apprehenſions, and juſt indignation againſt them in Pictures. There was found in the Abby of Fulun ( beſides other Emblems taxing Popiſh Prelates ) the Picture of a Wolf in a Monks Cowl, and ſhaven Crown, preaching to a Flock of Sheep, with theſe words coming in a pendant out of his mouth, God is my witneſs, how I long for you all in my bowels ; and underneath was written, This hooded Wolf is the Hypocrite, of whom in the Goſpel, beware of Falſe Prophets : This Picture was made two Hundered years before the Reformation by Luther. Another like this was found at Ptortzhem, only with this difference, that the Wolf was preaching to a Flock of Geeſe, every one holding in his bill, a pair of praying beads. Prodigious Luſts are found among them : They forbid Marriage, and ſcatter their Luſts like brute beaſts promiſcuouſly. St. Gregory commanded that their Prieſts ſhould not marry ; but underſtanding what filthineſs they committed, and finding in one Fiſh pond, ſix Thouſand Heads of young Infants that had been murder'd ; he repeal'd his decree : Yea, their own Writers tell us ſuch ſtories of their Wickedneſs in this kind, that I am aſham'd my pen ſhould Engliſh ; the Learned Reader may find more than enough in Bernard, in Cant. Serm. 66. Alvarez. Pelag. de planct. Eccleſ. Lib. 2*d*. Artic. 24. Peter Aleacu, Palingenius, Cornelius Mus. &c. Moſt horrid murders are frequently practiſed by them, yea, and encouraged with promiſed rewards in Heaven.

John Wolfe lect. memor. Tom. 1. advan. 1300.

Valeret lives of the Popes. p. 33.

Hoſpinian ſhews us how the Jeſuits animate him whom they imploy for the murdering of Kings ; they bring him into a Chappel, where the Knife lyes wrapt up in a Cloath with agnus Dei engraven on it ; then they open the Knife and ſprinkle it with Holy Water, faſtning to the Haft ſome Conſecrated Beads, with this Indulgence ; that ſo many Stabs as he gives the King, ſo many ſouls he ſaves out of Purgatory : Then they commend to him the Knife in theſe words, O thou choſen Son of God, take to thee the ſword of Jephte, Sampſon, David, Gideon, Judith of Maccabeus, of Julius the Second, who defended himſelf from the Princes by his ſword ; go, and be wiſely couragious, and God ſtrengthen thy hand ; then they all fall upon their knees with this prayer, Be preſent, O ye Cherubims and Seraphims, be preſent ye Thrones, Powers, Holy Angels, fill this Holy Veſſel with Glory, give him the Crown of all the Holy Martyrs ; he is no longer ours, but your companion ; and thou, O God, ſtrengthen his arm, that he may do thy will ; give him thy Helmet and Wings, to flye from his Enemies ; ——then they ſhew him a Crown of Glory, and ſay, Lord reſpect this thy Arm, and Executioner of thy Juſtice :——then they tell him they ſee a Divine Luſtre in his Face, which moves them to fall down and kiſs his feet, and now he is no more a mortal man, &c.

Hoſpin. Hiſt. Jeſuit. p. 225.

Theſe, and all other Luſts are indulged, even by the Doctrines and Priciples of Papiſts ; for, if venial ſins do not render a man unworthy of the love of God, are but trifles, toyes, gnats, as Bellarmin calls them, Lib. 2*d. de pecatorem* : If the Pope can grant Indulgences for certain days, or years, ſome partial, ſome plenary ; for all ſins, yea, interdum plena plenior, far more than all ; ſome for this life, ſome for ever : What ſhould hinder, but that they ſhould take the bit in the mouth, and ruſh into all Wickedneſs, as the Horſe into the battel ? eſpecially adding, what Navarrus Cordubenſis, and others by Bellarimin's own confeſſion, teach, that if men ruſh into ſin, upon the hope of ſuch Indulgences, they may be nevertheleſs abſolved. But I have ſtood too long upon this head ; our Proteſtant Writers have clearly and learnedly envinced the falſity of this Religion ; only becauſe many of their Arguments are in Latine, I thought it not amiſs to add ſomewhat for the Satisfaction of vulgar Readers.

2. Abhor Popery, for it is a Bloody Religion ; Rev. 17.6. and I ſaw the woman drunk with the blood of the ſaints, and with the blood of the Martyrs of Jeſus. The Pope writes his Laws in blood, wherever he erects his Throne ; he is the Son of perdition in an active, as well as in a paſſive ſenſe. Poor England hath had experience of Popiſh cruelty, and ſo hath Ireland too ; in one of whoſe Provinces 140000 Proteſtants were Maſſacred by them in the late rebellion. Popiſh cruelty ſpares none, pities none ; how have Proteſtants been compelled by tortures to diſcover their deareſt relations ! Wives ( being firſt defiled ) have been forced to give the deaths wound to their dear husbands, bloody villains, putting the Sword into their hands, and guiding them in the Execution : Godly Chriſtians compelled to carry Faggots, to burn their own Faithful Paſtors : Children of eight years old, whipt to death for Religion : Yea, ſuch hath been their rage againſt the ſincere profeſſors of the truth, that beyond all examples of malice, (for paſcitur in vivos livor poſt fata quieſcit) they have not only hunted after the Living, but violated the Graves, and burnt the bones of dead Saints : Thus they dealt with Bucer, Fagius, Wickliffe, &c. O England ! What cauſe haſt thou to bleſs the Lord, for ſo long a reſpit from Popiſh cruelty ! Thine own Hiſtories may ſufficiently inform thee, what Rivers of precious Blood have ſtreamed through thee, what flames of Martyrdom have raged within thy Cities and Villages, when theſe ravenous Wolves and Bloody Tygers were let looſe to ravage in all thy Borders ? And what cauſe haſt thou to tremble at the firſt approaches of theſe truculent foes, whoſe rage is boiled up to a greater height than ever ? And ſhould they return upon thee again, ( which Heaven prevent ) they would exceed all former examples of cruelty. Poor England ! Thoſe Knives which lately Providence put in thine hands were intended to be ſheath'd in thy Bowels : Art thou able to endure ſuch another bout, as the laſt Age did ? Hear how one of the Faithful Watchmen ( now out of their reach ) expoſtulated upon the ſame account with thee.

Mr. Strong.

‘ Can you ( ſaith he ) endure to ſee a ſtranger to Lord it in your Habitations and your ‘ Dwellings ? To caſt you out ? For your ‘ pleaſant and well-tilled Fields to be made a ‘ prey ? For you to ſow, and another to reap ?
‘ Impius has ſegetes, &c. For the delicate Wo-
‘ man, upon whom the wind muſt not blow,
‘ that ſcarce dare venture to ſet the ſole of her
‘ foot upon the ground for tenderneſs, to be ex-
‘ poſed to the luſts and cruelty of an enemy ; to ‘ be glad to flye away naked, to prolong a Miſer-
‘ able life, which would gladly be parted with
‘ for death, were it not for fear of the exchange ?
‘ For the tender Mother to look upon the Child
‘ of her Womb, and conſider, Muſt this Child in ‘ whom I have placed the hopes of mine Age,
‘ ( for omnis in Aſcanio ſtat chari cura parentis )
‘ he that hath been ſo tenderly bred up, muſt he ‘ fall into the rough hands of a Bloody Soldier,
‘ skilful to deſtroy ? It had been well for me,
‘ if God had given me a miſcarrying womb, and ‘ dry beaſts, rather than to bring forth children

‘ unto Murtherers. Or if you could be ſafe, how ‘ could you endure to ſee the evil that ſhall come ‘ upon your people, and the deſtruction of your ‘ kindred? I do not rhetorize and fawn to draw
‘ Affection, your brethren are a ſad Comment
‘ upon what I have ſpoken, and Ireland the Stage
‘ upon which you may ſee this Tagedy acted be‘ fore your eyes.

3. O hate Popery: For it is not only a Bloody, but a Blaſphemous Religion. If we be Chriſtians indeed, the diſhonour of Gods Name ſhould affect us more than the ſhedding of the warmeſt Blood in our veins; this Scarlet Whore is full of the Names of Blaſphemy, Rev. 17. 3. Popery is a meer Rapſodie of Blaſphemies: Luther hath gathered ſeveral of their Blaſphemous Doctrines out of their own Cannons to our hands, of which let a few ſuffice: (1.) Papa & ſui, &c. (i. e.) The Pope and his, are not bound to be ſubject and Obedient to the Commands of God. (2.) Sole ſignificari, &c. (i. e.) By the Sun is ſignified the Papal, and by the Moon the Imperial, or Secular Power in the Chriſtian Commonwealth. (3.) Papam habere in Scrinio pectoris ſui, &c, (i.e.) That all Laws are in the Cofler of the Popes Breaſt, and full power over all Laws. (4.) Si Papa ſuæ, &c. (i. e.) If the Pope be ſo negligent of his own ſalvation, ſo negligent and remiſs in Office, that he ſhould draw innumerable multitudes to hell with him, to be there ever tormented; yet may no mortal man reprove him of any fault in ſo doing. (5.) Papam habere proteſtatem, &c. (i. e.) The Pope hath power to commute and diſſolve vows made to God, and then if any man deferr to pay his vow according to Gods Command, he is not held guilty. (6.) Quod non Papa à Scriptura, &c. (i. e.) That the Pope hath not his Authority from the Scriptures, but the Scriptures from the Pope. (7.) Summa Summarum, &c. (i. e.) The Summe of all their Cannonical Law is this, that the Pope is a God in the Earth, Superiour to all Cœleſtial, Terreſtrial, Spiritual and Secular perſons; that all things are his, and none may ſay unto him, What doſt thou? I am loth to offend Chriſtian ears with more of their Blaſphemous Tenets, this is enough to turn the Stomachs of Chriſtians with indignation againſt them.

2d. Tome. Oper. Luth. Lat. p.125.

4. 'Tis a moſt uncomfortable Religion; 'tis impoſſible to get, or keep true peace of Conſcience in that way. Rev. 9. 5, 6. And their torments was as the torment of a Scorpion when he ſmiteth a man: And in thoſe days, ſhall men ſeek death, and ſhall not find it, but death ſhall flee from them: That is, (ſaith a Worthy Divine) the Conſciences of poor ſinners being ſtung with guilt and horror of ſin, and finding no ſatisfaction nor remedy in their way, ſhall be endleſly perplext and tortured with inward troubles of Spirit, which are like the ſtinging of a Scorpion; ſo that they ſhall chuſe death rather than life: For do but Conſider, (1.) They are Enemies to Free-Grace and all Goſpel-preaching. Gardiner would not have this gap of Free-grace open'd to the people. See (ſaith Contzen a Jeſuit) The fruit of Proteſtantiſm and their Goſpel-preaching. (2.) They deprive the people of the Scriptures, wherein are treaſured up all the Cordial and Soul-reviving Comforts of a poor diſtreſſed ſinner: If thy Law (ſaith David) had not been my delight, I ſhould have periſhed in my affliction; And again, This is my comfort in my affliction, thy word hath quickned me, Pſal. 119. (3.) They lay the ſtreſs of their hopes for ſalvation (as you have heard) upon their own Merits, and the Merits of others like themſelves; ſo that all the comforts they build upon that foundation, muſt needs be looſe and deluſory things: Debile fundamentum fallit opus: Every thing is as its foundation is. Laſtly, They deny the poſſibility of the aſſurance of Salvation in this life; and ſo conſequently, their Conſciences muſt be always cauterized and dead, or fluctuating and dubious; O what a Religion is this!

Contz. in Math. 24.

5. Laſtly, It is a Damnable Religion; we have no ground from Scripture, to conclude the ſalvation of any among them, that know the depths of Satan, and live and dye in thoſe deſtructive Opinions. Hear what the Scriptures ſay, Rev. 17. 8. The beaſt that thou ſaweſt, was, and is not, and ſhall aſcend out of the bottomleſs pit, and go into perdition; and they that dwell on the earth, ſhall wonder (whoſe Names are not written in the Book of Life from the foundation of the World) when they ſee the beaſt that was, and is not, and yet is: And 2 Theſ. 2. 21. And for this cauſe, God ſhall ſend them ſtrong deluſions that they ſhould believe a lye, that they all might be damned that belived not the truth, but had pleaſure in unrighteouſneſs. When their ſoreſt plague ſhall come upon them, they ſhall not have a heart given them to repent; but ſhall blaſpheme the Name of God, becauſe of them, Rev. 16. 9. And therefore to ſhut up this firſt Counſel, you that love the Lord, hate that by which he is ſo much diſhonoured; it will make your blood boil in your veins, to ſee how he is crucified, dethroned, and trampled on by theſe his Enemies.

2. COUNSEL.

Uſe all proper preventive Means to avert this threatning judgment; of which ſort I ſhall recommend theſe three in ſpecial.

Mourn for the abuſe of former light and liberty, and ſay, O [remember not againſt us former iniquities; let thy tender mercy ſpeedily prevent us; for we are brought very low, Pſal. 79. 8. O England! what a day of Mercy haſt thou had! how haſt thou been exalted to Heaven with Capernaum! thou mighteſt once have worſhip'd God as purely as thou would'ſt, you might have been as holy as you would; the lot of this Generation was caſt upon ſuch an happy nick of time as is ſcarce to be found in the hiſtory of Ages paſt; but the moſt glorious Morning hath his Evening, the brighteſt Sun its clouds, and time of ſetting. We knew not the time of our Viſitatation, but were both wanton and barren under thoſe precious Mercies. God is now coming with his Axe in his Hand, to hew down barren Trees. Nothing but unfeigned repentance and ſpeedy reformation can reprieve us. Romanæ leges pœnam pregnanti deferunt. Nothing but thoſe fruits can be a good ſign of Mercy to England. And will you not yet mourn for the loſs of ſuch a day? ſuch peace neglected, and not mourn! ſuch liberties abuſed, and for their abuſes removed, and not a tear! So many flouriſhing Churches broken, and the heart not broken! So many ſhining Lights extinct, and none lay it to heart! Such black clouds of Popiſh darkneſs and blood gathering over us, and none tremble! Lord! what hearts have we? how wonderful is the ſtupifying power of ſin! O ye Profeſſors of England, that ye had known at leaſt in that your day the things of your peace!! but now they are hid from your eyes. You once had thoſe Mercies, now you have them not; and the Lord onely knows whether ever you ſhall ſee them again. I am out of hopes of them, till I ſee the People of God more humbled for the ſins that removed them.

Means. Make up your breaches ſpeedily; 'tis time (I think) when the enemy is entring in at them. Hear me, all ye friends of Chriſt, by what names ſo ever diſtinguiſhed among your ſelves; Will you come and be friends one with another? have you yet enough of your Diviſions? how do the fruits of your Animoſities, Contentions and Reproaches, reliſh now with you? do you ſee who God is ſending to part you? Can't you yet pray together, mourn together, ſtrive with God together? Why then, can you go to Priſon together? will you ſtand quietly at the ſtake together? What ſay you friends? you profeſs to be the children of the God of Peace, and I am ſure Chriſt is the Prince of Peace, and the Goſpel the Goſpel of Peace; and will not you be the Sons of Peace? If you will not yet unite, let the ruin of England lie upon your ſcore. Do you make no more of the Commands of Chriſt, the Credit of Religion, the ſafety of the Nation? Ah! methinks, as Tertullian told Scapula, Si non vis tibi parcere, parce Carthagini. If you have no pity for your ſelves, have pity for the Nation; don't ſacrifice all to your unruly luſts. If you profeſs love to Chriſt, and yet have no love for thoſe in whom is his Image; if you pretend to be Saints, and yet had rather hazard the honour of Chriſt, than deny your paſſions and luſts, pray pull off your Vizards, fall into your places, and appear as you are.

Brethren, I beſeech you ſeriouſly to conſider theſe three Particulars, and if there be any force in them, or tenderneſs in your Conſciences, let them at laſt perſwade you to love one another. 1. That Scripture makes your love to the Brethren a poſitive Mark of your Regeneration; 1 Joh. 3. 14. We know that we are paſſed from death to life, becauſe we love the Brethren: He that loveth not his Brother, abideth in death. And 1 Joh. 5. 1. Every one that loveth him that begat, loveth him alſo that is begotten of him. And to ſpeak truth, it is (ordinarily) the cleareſt ſign that many poor Chriſtians can find in their own breaſts: Upon the hazard therefore of your own peace and Aſſurance be it, if ſtill you continue to bite and devour one another. 2. I will farther add, that this endeared and mutual love of the Sains, is the charge, yea, the dying-charge of Chriſt to them; they were ſome of the laſt words of Chriſt in this World, Joh. 15. 12. This is my Commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you. Dying-charges are commonly received with greateſt Veneration, and men (what ever they neglect) will be ſure to fulfil the will of the Dead. So Gen. 50. 16. when Joſephs Brethren were afraid leſt (his Father being now dead) he would remember the old injuries they had done him, urge this pacifying Argument upon him, Thy Father did command, before he dyed, ſaying, Forgive I pray thee now the treſpaſſes of thy Brethren. And ver. 21. you ſee how it prevail'd with him, He comforted them, and ſpake kindly to them. O my Brethren! will you not fulfil the will of the Dead; your dead friend, even Jeſus that left it as his laſt dying-charge upon you? 3. To conclude, Will you not lay down your private differences and animoſities, when God threatens you with a common ruin? when a common danger is upon you all? In the Year 1607. when by the irruption of the Severn-Sea, the Country in Sommerſetſhire was overflown almoſt 29. miles in length, and four miles in breath, and many perſons drowned: It was then obſervable (ſaith Mr. Fuller) that Creatures of contrary Natures, as Dogs, and Hares, Foxes, and Conies, yea Cats and Mice, getting up to the tops of ſome Hills diſpenſed at that time with their Antipathies, remaining peaceably together, without ſign of fear, or any violence one towards another. My Readers thoughts will doubtleſs anticipate me in the application of this ſtrange paſſage. Our want of love hath cut the banks and let in an inundation of Calamities upon us, and a more fearful flood of Judgments is yet expected; and will not ſuch publick dangers yet cauſe us to depoſe our private Differences? Shall we act below Dogs, Cats, and Foxes? ſhall we prefer private revenge before common ſafety? If ſo, I much doubt God will ſtill us, and part the fray in a more terrible manner than moſt think of. I doubt it may be ſaid of us ere long, as he ſaid who ſaw the dead carkaſſes of Enemies that had been ſlain in a duel lie quietly together, as if they had embraced each other, Quanta amicitia ſe invicem amplectantur, qui mutua implacabili inimicitia perierunt? How lovingly do they embrace each other being dead, who periſhed through their mutual and implacable enmity? How juſtly may the Lord ſweep away this Generation of Profeſſors, and raiſe up others in their room who will agree, and love one another better?.

Worthies of England, in his Farewell to Somerſetſhire.

What ſhall I ſay more? If there be any conſolation in Chriſt, if any comfort of love, if any fellowſhip of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfill ye my joy; that ye be like minded, having the ſame love, being of one accord, and of one mind, Phil. 2. 12.

Strive day and night with God by importunate Prayers, for the prevention of thoſe imminent Judgments, but ſtrive no more one with another; no more of that work I pray. O 'tis a thouſand pities to ſee the ſheep of Chriſt to puſh and gore each other. Non Secus ac,

> Cum duo converſis inimica in prælia tauri
> Frontibus incurrunt.————

O rather put on, as the Elect of God, bowels of mercy and compaſſion; let the People of God be but once heartily united, and then Rome do thy worſt. Aſſociate your ſelves, O ye people, and you ſhall be broken in pieces; and give ear, all ye of far Countreys; gird your ſelves, and ye ſhall be broken in pieces; take Counſel together, and it ſhall come to nought; ſpeak the word, and it ſhall not ſtand; for God is with us.

3 Means. Lye day and night at the Throne of Grace, interceding with God for your ſelves, and for the Nation. What Mr. Perkins ſaid of his times, it is no leſs ſuitable to theſe, Non ſunt iſta litigandi, ſed orandi tempora: Theſe are not times for contention, but Prayer: This will be a good Omen of Mercy and deliverance at hand; we may ſay of the ſpirit of Prayer, as Chriſt ſaid of the budding of the Fig-tree, Mat. 24. When ye ſee the Fig-tree and all the Trees of the Field put forth tender leaves, ye know that Summer is nigh. So the reviving and budding forth of the Spirit of Prayer, is a ſign that Salvation is nigh: The Pſalmiſt knew the time to favour Sion was come, and that God would ariſe and have mercy upon her, becauſe he found a ſpirit of compaſſion and prayer for Sion poured out, Pſ. 102.13, 14. When the decree for judgment is gone forth, and God will not be ſtopt, he uſually ſhuts up and ſtraitens the ſpirits of praying ones, Jer. 7. 16. He never ſhuts out Prayer till the caſe become deſperate, and remedileſs; Jer. 15.1. O friends, great is the efficacy of prayer; Prayer will ruin all your enemies: David put up but one petition againſt Achitophel, Lord turn the Counſel of Achitophel into fooliſhneſs, and it ruined both him and his deſign, 2 Sam. 15. 3. Prayers and tears will do more than Guns or Swords, 2 Chron. 14. 9. 11.

O be not diſcouraged, becauſe you preſently ſee not the effects and returns of your Prayers; your prayers are heard, though their anſwers be ſuſpended, and be confident in due time they ſhall be anſwered alſo. O how many millions of prayers are upon the file in Heaven, as a Memorial before God upon this account! not a good man all the world over but joins with you in this cry, Lord, raſe the foundations of Antichriſt, pull down Babylon, and build up Sion. Yea, the prayers of thouſands, who are now in Heaven, are yet to be anſwer'd in that matter. For though we may ſay of their perſons as the Church ſpeaks of Abraham, they know us not; yet we may ſay of their prayers as the Church ſpeaks of Abel, though they be dead, their prayers are not dead, they live, and yet ſpeak. O then ſtir up your ſelves to take hold of God, weep and make ſupplication.

Two things exceedingly diſcourage our ſpirits in prayer, great guilt in us, and long delayes of anſwers from God; againſt both theſe, the Lord hath laid up encouragements and ſweet ſupports in the word: Are we under great guilt? have we abuſed mercies? So did Iſrael, Pſ. 106. 7, 8, 16, 17, 18, 19, 28. Yet mercy comes triumphing over all their unworthineſs with a non obſtante, ver. 44. Nevertheleſs he regarded their affliction when he heard their cry. What though England like Iſrael be a polluted Nation; yet Iſrael hath not been forſaken, nor Judah of his God; though their Land was filled with ſin againſt the holy one of Iſrael, Jer. 51. 5. Or doth God exerciſe your faith and patience by delaying the returns of prayer; ſo that you are ready to look at your prayers as loſt? See another Nevertheleſs, in that caſe to raiſe up your hearts and hopes, Pſal. 31. 22. I ſaid in my haſte, I am cut off from before thine eyes; Nevertheleſs, thou heardeſt the voice of my ſupplication when I cryed unto thee. Up therefore every one in whom is the ſpirit of prayer, pour out your hearts before him in this time of common danger, your God will hear you; but if you are ſpeechleſs now, 'tis a ſad forerunner of death, and National ruin.

3. COUNSEL.

Prepare your ſelves for the worſt, that if times ſhould alter (for there are changes in the right hand of the Moſt High) yet your hearts may not be turned back, nor your ſteps decline from thoſe paths of truth and holineſs wherein you have been engaged.

O cleave to the Lord with purpoſe of heart, and when fiery Tryals come (whereof moſt ſerious and conſidering Chriſtians are in a trembling expectation) then do not baſely deſert Chriſt in open field. To do evil (ſaith Metellus) where there is neither pain nor danger, is eaſie and common; but to do good in the face of danger, is vertuous and truly noble. It was the ſaying of a Martyr to his Perſecutors, Though you pluck my heart out of my bowels, yet you ſhall never pluck the truth out of my heart. O how is Chriſt honoured, enemies daunted; and your Souls ſecured by your Conſtancy in a time of danger! hold faſt what you have received, and though you loſe your Heads, yet ſave your Crowns. It was a reſolute and noble ſaying of Luther, when hard put to it to defend the Truth of Chriſt againſt ſo many Enemies, Ego Martinus Lutherus, &c. 'I Martin Luther, an unworthy 'Preacher of the Goſpel of Chriſt, do believe and 'hold, that this Article, viz. That we are juſtified before God, by faith alone without works, 'ſhall never be overthrown, neither by the Roman Cæſar, nor by the Turk, Tartar, Perſian, 'Pope, with all his Cardinals, Prieſts, and Monks, 'Kings, Princes, Potentates, and all the Devils in 'Hell, will they, nill they, ſhall leave me this Article unſhaken.

Brethren, I much doubt the wantonneſs, Scepticiſme, and contentions of the Profeſſors of this Age, have ſo weakned the Authority and Reputation of Religion in the World, that God will once more call for Chriſtian blood to ſeal his Truths, and convince the world that there is reality in Godlineſs. And if it ſhould come to that, I even tremble to think what ſhrinking will be among Profeſſors. To prevent which, all that I ſhall add, ſhall be in theſe two words. 1. See the ground you ſtand on be good. I do not ſpeak of the Cauſe, for it is beyond diſpute the moſt glorious Cauſe that was ever ſealed by the blood of any Witneſs; but of your Condition. O ſee that be good alſo! look to it that you die in, as well as for the faith; are you upon ſure and ſafe grounds, as to your eternal ſtate? if not, but that you be ſtill dubious, it's time to make both ſure and quick work. 2. Stand your ground, he deſerves to be hanged in everlaſting chains in Hell, that relinquiſhes ſuch a Cauſe, and ſuch a Chriſt on Earth. Chriſtian, I would fain know, how thou canſt imagine to cloſe up thy life more honourably, or more comfortably, than by offering it up in defence of the precious truths of Chriſt, againſt his bold and blaſpheming enemies? The very Heathens heated with love to their Country, have made many brave, and bold adventures for it; and will you ſhrink? O take unto you the whole Armour of God, that you may be able to withſtand in the evil day; and having done all, to ſtand. Stand therefore, &c. Epheſ. 6. 13.

THE EPISTLE DEDICATORY.

To the Worſhipful Robert Savery, and William Savery, of Slade, Eſquires.

Honoured Friends,

IT hath been long ſince obſerv'd, That the World below, is a Glaſs to diſcover the World above; Seculum eſt ſpeculum. And although I am not of their opinion, that ſay, The Heathens may ſpell Chriſt out of the Sun, Moon and Stars; yet this I know, That the irrational and inanimate, as well as rational Creatures have a Language; and though not by Articulate Speech, yet in a Metaphorical ſenſe, they preach unto Man the Wiſdom, Power and Goodneſs of God, Rom. 1. 20. There is (ſaith the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 19. 3.) no ſpeech, nor language where their voice is not heard. Or (as Junius renders) there is no Speech, nor Words, yet without theſe their voice is underſtood; and their Line (i.e. ſaith Diodate) their writing in groſs and plain draughts, is gone out through all the Earth.

As Man is compounded of a fleſhly and ſpiritual ſubſtance, ſo God hath endowed the Creatures, with a ſpiritual, as well as fleſhly uſefulneſs; they have not only a natural uſe in Alimental and Phyſical reſpects, but alſo a ſpiritual uſe, as they bear the figures and ſimilitudes of many ſublime and heavenly Myſteries. Believe me (ſaith contemplative Bernard) thou ſhalt find more in the Woods, than in a corner; Stones and Trees will teach thee what thou ſhalt not hear from Learned Doctors. By a skilful and induſtrious improvement of the Creatures (ſaith Mr. Baxter excellently) we might have a fuller taſte of Chriſt and Heaven, in every bit of Bread that we eat, and in every Draught of Beer that we drink, than moſt Men have in the uſe of the Sacrament.

And as the Creatures teach divine and excellent things, ſo they teach them in a perſpicuous and taking manner: Duo illa nos maxime movent ſimilitudo, & exemplum, ſaith the Orator; Theſe two things, ſimilitude and example, do eſpecially move us. Notions are more eaſily conveyed to the underſtanding, by being firſt cloathed in ſome apt ſimilitude, and ſo repreſented to the ſenſe. And therefore Jeſus Chriſt the great Prophet, delighted much in teaching by Parables; and the Prophets were much in this way alſo, Hoſ. 12. 10. I have uſed ſimilitudes by the miniſtry of the Prophets. Thoſe that can retain little of a Sermon, yet ordinarily retain an apt ſimilitude.

I confeſs it is an humbling Conſideration, That Man, who at firſt was led by the knowledge of God to the knowledge of the Creature, muſt now by the Creatures learn to know God. That the Creatures (as one ſaith) like Balaam's Aſs, ſhould teach their Maſter. But though this be the unhappineſs of poor Man in his collapſed ſtate, yet it is now his wiſdom to improve ſuch helps; and whilſt others, by the abuſe of the Creatures, are furthering their Perdition, to be, by the Spiritual Improvement of them promoting our own Salvation.

It's an excellent Art to diſcourſe with Birds, Beaſts and Fiſhes, about ſublime and ſpiritual Subjects, and make them anſwer to our queſtions; yet this may be done, Job 12. 7, 8. Ask now the Beaſts, and they ſhall teach thee, and the Fowls of the Air, and they ſhall tell thee; or ſpeak to the Earth, and it ſhall teach thee, and the Fiſhes of the Sea ſhall declare unto thee. That is (ſaith neat and accurate Caryl) the Creatures teach us when we think of them: " They teach us, though not formally, yet virtually; they anſwer and reſolve " the queſtion put to them, though not explicitely to the Ear, yet convincingly to " the Conſcience. So then, we ask the Creatures, when we diligently conſider them, " when we ſearch out the Perfections and " Virtues that God hath put into or ſtampt

Caryl in loc.

“ upon them. To ſet our mind thus upon the Creature, is to diſcourſe with the Creature; the queſtions which Man asks of a Beaſt, are only his own Meditations. Again, the Creatures teach us; when we in Meditation make our Collections, and draw down a demonſtration of the Power, Wiſdom, and Goodneſs of God in making them, or of the frailty of Man in needing them: Such Concluſions and Inferences, are the teachings of the Creatures.

Dr. Manton.

Common objects (ſaith another) may be improved two ways; viz. In an Argumentative, and in a Repreſentive way; by reaſoning from them, and by viewing the reſemblance that is betwixt them and ſpiritual matters.

Firſt, In Meditation argue thus, as in the preſent caſe and ſimilitude of the Apoſtle. If an Husbandman upon the ordinary Principles of Reaſon can wait for the Harveſt, ſhall not I wait for the coming of the Lord? The day of Refreſhing; the Corn is precious to him, and ſo is the coming of Chriſt to me. Shall he be ſo patient, and endure ſo much for a little Corn? and not I for the Kingdom of Heaven? He is willing to ſtay till all cauſes have had their operations, till he hath received the former and the latter Rain, and ſhall not I, till the Divine Decrees be accompliſhed?

Secondly, In Meditation, make the reſemblance, and diſcourſe thus within your ſelves: This is my Seed-time, Heaven is my Harveſt; here I muſt labour and toyl, and there reſt. I ſee the Husbandmans Life is a great toyl: no excellent thing can be obtained without labour, and an obſtinate patience. I ſee the Seed muſt be hidden in the furrows, rotten and corrupted, e'er it can ſpring forth with any encreaſe. Our hopes are hidden, light is ſown for the righteous; all our comforts are buried under the clods, and after all this there muſt be long waiting, we cannot ſow and reap in a day; effects cannot follow, till all neceſſary cauſes have firſt wrought. 'Tis not in the power of Husbandmen to ripen Fruits at pleaſure, our times are in the hands of God, therefore 'tis good to wait; a long-ſuffering patience will reap the deſired Fruit. Thus you have ſome hints of this heavenly Art of improving the Creatures.

Navigation Spiritualized.

The Motives inducing me to this undertakement, was the Lord's owning, with ſome ſucceſs, my labours of a like nature, together with the deſire and inclination (ſtir'd up in me, I hope, by the Spirit of the Lord, to devote my vacant hours to his ſervice in this kind.) I conſidered, that if the Phariſees in a blind Zeal to a Faction, could compaſs Sea and Land to Proſelyte Men to their Party, though thereby they made them ſeven-fold more the Children of the Devil than before: How much more was I obliged, by true love to God, and zeal to the Everlaſting Happineſs of Souls, to uſe my utmoſt endeavours, both with Seamen and Husbandmen to win them to Chriſt, and thereby make them more than ſeventy-ſeven fold happier than before? Not to mention other incouragements to this Work, which I received from the earneſt deſires of ſome Reverend and Worthy Brethren inviting thereunto; all which I hope the event will manifeſt to be a Call from God to this Work.

I confeſs I met with ſome diſcouragement in my firſt attempt, from my unacquaintedneſs with rural Affairs; and becauſe I was to travel in a path (to me) untrodden; but having once engaged in it, thoſe diſcouragements were ſoon overcome; and being now brought to what you here ſee, I offer to your hands theſe firſt Fruits of my ſpare hours.

I preſume you will account it no diſparagement, that I dedicate a Book of Husbandry to Gentlemen of your Quality. This is Spiritual Husbandry, which is here taught you; and yet I muſt tell you, that great Perſons have accounted that Civil Employment (which is much inferiour to this) no diſparagement to them. The King himſelf is ſerved by the field, Eccleſ. 5. 9. Or as Montanus renders the Hebrew Text, Rex agro fit ſervas; The King himſelf is a Servant to the Field. And of King Uzziah it is written, (2 Chron. 26. 10.) That he loved Husbandry. And Amos 7. 1. we read of the Kings Mowings. Yea, Pliny hath obſerved, That Corn was never ſo plentiful at Rome, as when the ſame Men Tilled the Land that Rul'd the Commonwealth. Quaſi gauderet terra laureato vomere, ſcilicet & aratore triumphali; As though the Earth it ſelf rejoyced in the Laurel'd Plow-ſhare, and the Triumphant Plowman.

What pleaſure you will find in reading it, I know not; but to me it hath been a pleaſant path, from firſt to laſt; who yet have been at far greater expence of time and pains in compiling it, than you can be in reading it. The Husbandmans work, you know, is no eaſie work, and the Spiritualizing of it hath greater difficulties attending it; but yet the pleaſure hath abundantly recompenced the pains. I have found Eraſmus his Obſervation experimentally true; Qui litteris addicti ſumus, animi laſſitudinem à ſtudiis gravioribus contractum; ab iiſdem ſtudiis, ſed amænioribus recreamus: Thoſe that are addicted to ſtudy, (ſaith he) when they have wearied their Spirits with ſtudy, can recreate them again with ſtudy, by making a diverſion from that which is ſevere and knotty, to ſome more facile and pleaſant Subject.

But to hear that God hath uſed and honoured theſe Papers to the good of any Soul, will yield me the higheſt content and ſatisfaction imaginable.

May you but learn that Leſſon, which is the general ſcope and deſign of this Book, viz. How to walk with God from day to day, and make the ſeveral objects you behold, Scalæ & alæ, Wings and Ladders to mount your Souls nearer to him, who is the Center of all bleſſed Spirits. How much will it comfort me, and confirm my hope, that it was the Call of God indeed, which put me upon theſe endeavours!

O Sirs! What an excellent thing would it be for you, to make ſuch holy improvements of all theſe earthly Objects which daily occur to your ſenſes, and cauſe them to proclaim and preach to you Divine and Heavenly Myſteries; whilſt others make them groan, by abuſing them to Sin, and ſubjecting them to their Luſts. A man may be caſt into ſuch a condition, wherein he cannot enjoy the bleſſing and benefit of a pious and powerful Miniſtery; but you cannot (ordinarily) fall into ſuch a condition, wherein any thing (except a bad heart) can deprive you of the benefits and comforts of thoſe excellent Sermons, and Divinity Lectures, which the Creatures here offer to preach and read to you.

Content not your ſelves, I beſeech you, with that natural ſweetneſs the Creatures afford; for thereof the Beaſts are capable, as much, if not more, than you; but uſe them to thoſe Spiritual ends you are here directed, and they will yield you a ſweetneſs far tranſcending that natural ſweetneſs you ever reliſhed in them; and indeed, you never uſe the Creatures as their Lord's till you come to ſee your Lord, in and by them. I confeſs the diſcoveries of God in the Word are far more excellent, clear and powerful; He hath magnified his Word above all his Name. And therein are the unſearchable Riches of Chriſt, or rich diſcoveries of that Grace that hath no footſteps in nature, as the Apoſtle's expreſſion ſignifies, Epheſ. 3. 8.

And if that which might be known of God by the Creatures, leave Men without excuſe; as it's manifeſt, Rom. 1. 20. How inexcuſable than will thoſe be, who have received not only the teachings of the Creature, but alſo the Grace of the Goſpel in vain! How ſhall we eſcape, if we neglect ſo great Salvation? They that are careleſs in the day of Grace, ſhall be ſpeechleſs in the Day of Judgment.

I am ſenſible of many defects in theſe Papers, (as well as in my ſelf;) they have doubtleſs a taſte of the diſtractions of the Times wherein they were written; nor was I willing to keep them ſo long under-hand, as the accurateneſs and exactneſs with which ſuch a ſubject ought to be handled, did require. Had I deſigned my own Credit, I ſhould have obſerved that Counſel,—Nonumque prematur in annum, (i.e.) To have kept it much longer under the File, before I had expoſed it to publick view; but I rather inclined to Solomon's Counſel, Whatever thy hand finds out to do, do it with all thy might; for there is no wiſdom, nor knowledge, nor device in the grave, whether thou art going, Eccleſ. 9. 10.

I apprehend a neceſſity of ſome ſuch means to be uſed, for the inſtruction and conviction of Country People; who either are not capable of underſtanding Truth in another Dialect, or at leaſt, are leſs affected with it. The Propoſition in every Chapter conſiſts of an Obſervation in Huſbandry; wherein, if I have failed in uſing any improper expreſſion, your Candour will cover it, and impute it to my unacquaintedneſs in rural Affairs,----In magnis voluiſſe ſat eſt.

The Reddition, or Application, you will find (I hope) both pertinent and cloſe. The Reflections ſerious, and ſuch (as I hope) your Conſciences will faithfully improve. I have ſhut up every Chapter with a Poem, an innocent Bait to catch the Reader's Soul.

That of Herbert is Experimentally true:

> A Verſe may find him that a Sermon flies,
> And turn Delight into a Sacrifice.

I ſhould never have been perſwaded (eſpecially in this ſcribling Age, wherein we may complain with the Poet, > Scribimus indocti, doctiq; poemata paſſim.)

To have ſet my dull Fancy upon the Rack to extort a Poem to entertain my Reader; for I cannot ſay with Ovid, Sponte ſua carmen, &c. but that I have been informed, that many Seamen induced by the pleaſure of a Verſe, have taken much pains to learn the Poems in their Compaſs by heart; and I hope both the Children at home, and the Servants in the Fields, will learn to exerciſe themſelves this way alſo. O, how much better will it be ſo to do, than to ſtuff their Memories with obſcene Ballads, and filthy Songs, which corrupt their Minds, and diſpoſe them to much wickedneſs, by irritating their natural corruption! But theſe are purer Flames, you will find nothing here of ſuch a tendency.

> 'Tis guilt, not Poetry, to be like thoſe
> Whoſe Wit in Verſe, is downright ſin in Proſe.
> Whoſe ſtudies are Prophaneneſs, as if then
> They only were good Poets, when bad men.

D. DIGS.

I ſhall add no more, but to beg that God who inſtructeth the Huſbandman in his Civil Calling, to teach him wiſdom ſpiritually to improve it; and particularly, that you may reap a Crop of much Spiritual Benefit, from that Seed which is here ſown by the hand of the Lord's unprofitable Servant, and in him,

Your very Affectionate

Friend and Servant,

John Flavel.

TO THE # Chriſtian READER.

THere are three things wherein (as it hath been ſaid, long before my day) the Exerciſe of Godlineſs doth chiefly conſiſt: Prayer, Temptation, Meditation: Meditation is the Subject of this following Manuel. The Object of Meditation is twofold. Firſt, The Word. Secondly, The Works of God. The Works of God are twofold. Firſt, Internal. Secondly, External. The External Works of God are twofold. Firſt, of Creation. Secondly, of Providence. The Works of Providence are likewiſe twofold. Firſt, In things Civil, the Lord ordering and over-ruling all the Affairs and Motions of ſingle Perſons, Families and Nations, in a ſubſerviency to his own moſt holy Ends, Deſigns and Purpoſes. Secondly, In things Natural, the Lord inſtructing the Husband-man to diſcretion, and teaching him how to Dreſs and Till the Earth, that it may give Seed to the Sower, and Bread to the Eater; as alſo how to breed up and manage the Beaſts of the Field, both greater and leſſer Cattel, for the uſe and ſervice of Man.

Meditation upon this lower part of the Works of God, and his wonderful Providences about them, may raiſe our Souls very high; and while we wiſely conſider theſe natural things, we may grow more and more wiſe, in and for Spirituals and Eternals.

The worthy and ingenious Author of the enſuing Diſcourſe, hath ſupplied us with an excellent help, for the Spiritualizing of the Providential Works of God in natural things, by Godly Meditations; we chiefly want the help of the Holy Spirit (without which all other helps and helpers are altogether inſufficient) to frame and wind up our hearts, for this both profitable and delightful duty; yet the help which the Lord is pleaſed to give us for our direction in it, by the Miniſtry of Man, is not only not to be refuſed, but thankfully received and improved; and all little enough to bring our minds to, or keep them at this work: The beſt of Saints (on this ſide Heaven) have (though they are not earthly-minded) much Earth in their minds; which like a heavy clog at their heels, or a weight at their hearts, preſſeth them down when they would make an eſſay to mount upward in Meditation. We find it no eaſie matter to keep off earthly thoughts, when we are moſt ſeriouſly engaged in heavenly Work; how hard is it then to get in, and be fixed upon heavenly Thoughts, while we are engaged about earthly Work; yea, are (for ſo is the Husband-man) working the very earth, and raking in the Bowels of it. 'Tis a great part of our holineſs to be ſpiritually minded, while we are converſing with God through Jeſus Chriſt in Spiritual Duties; but to be ſpiritually-minded, and to mind Spiritual Things, when we are converſing with the clods of the Earth, and the Furrows of the Field; when we have to do with Corn and Graſs, with Trees and Plants, with Sheep and Oxen; when we behold the Birds and Fowls of the Air, the Worms, and all that creep upon the ground; then (I ſay) to be ſpiritually minded, and thence to have our Thoughts aſcending and ſoaring up to God, in heart-affecting and quickning Contemplations, witneſſeth an high degree of Holineſs, and of gracious Attainments. To make a Ladder out of earthly materials, for the raiſing of our ſelves in Spirit up to Heaven, is the Art of Arts. Holy and happy indeed are they! who (being taught of God) have learned this Art, and live in the daily practice of it. Earthly Objects uſually hinder us in our way, ſometimes turn us quite out of our way to Heaven. Many plow and ſow, dig and delve the Earth, till their Hearts become as earthly as the Earth it ſelf: Many deal about the Beaſts of the Field, till themſelves become even brutiſh. Is it not then a bleſſed deſign which this Author aims and drives at, ſo to ſpiritualize all ſorts, or the whole compaſs of earthly Husbandry, that all ſorts of Husband-men may become Spiritual and Heavenly? It ſeems to me a token for good, that God hath an intendment of ſome ſpecial good to the Souls of ſuch as are by Profeſſion proper Husband-men, ſeeing he hath lately put it into the Hearts of two faithful Miniſters (who with all of that Profeſſion, are Husband-men in a figure) to undertake, tho' in a different way, this Subject, and to publiſh their Labours in Print, that they may be of uſe, not only for the preſent Age, but for Poſterity.

Mr. Rich-ard Steel, and this Author.

And that the Husband-man may be pleaſed, as well as profited, in peruſing the Labours of this Author; he hath, with ſingular aptneſs and acuteneſs, contrived and contracted the ſum or ſcope of every Chapter into an Elegant Diſtich, or pair of Verſes, placed at the head of it, and concluded it with a choice melodious Poem ſuitable to, and dilating upon the whole matter of it. Theſe the Husband-man, who can but read, may quickly learn and ſing for his ſolace, inſtead of thoſe vain Ballads and corrupting Rhimes, which many of that Rank are apt to buy, and ſolace themſelves withall, without any benefit, yea, much to their hurt, making their hearts more corrupt, carnal and vain thereby.

Let me add one word more to the Reader. This Book of Husbandry Spiritualiz'd, is not calculated only for the common Husband-man; Perſons of any Calling or Condition, may find the Author working out ſuch ſearching reflections and ſtrong Convictions, from almoſt every part and particular of the Husband-mans work, as may prove, if faithfully improved, very uſeful to them; to ſome for their awakening, to conſider the ſtate of their Souls, whether in Grace or in Nature; to others for their Inſtruction, Conſolation and Encouragement in the ways of Grace, as alſo for their proficiency and growth in thoſe ways. That the bleſſing of the Lord, and the breathings of his good Spirit may go out with it, for all thoſe gracious purpoſes, is the heart's deſire and prayer of him, who is,

THE EPISTLE TO THE Intelligent Country READER.

THou haſt here the Fruit of ſome of my ſpare Hours, which were thus imployed, when by a ſad Providence I was thruſt from the Society of many dear Friends, into a ſolitary Countrey dwelling. I hope none will envy me theſe innocent delights, which I made out of my lonely walks, whereby the Lord ſweetned my Solitudes there. 'Tis like thou wilt find ſome paſſages here, that are harmleſly pleaſant; yet, I aſſure thee, I know of none that the moſt Cynical Reader can cenſure, as ſinfully light and vain. I muſt acknowledge, to the Praiſe of God, that I have found ſome of thoſe (which poſſibly ſome of my Readers will call the ſlighteſt and moſt Trifling ſubjects of Meditation) to be the Ordinances for Inſtruction, Caution and Conſolation to my own Soul: yea, ſuch a degree of comfort, I do profeſs to have found by theſe things, as hath much endeared the Countrey Life to me, and made me much better to underſtand that ſaying of Horace, than when I learn'd it at School,

Noviſtine locum potiorem rure beato?
Eſt ubi plus tepeant hymes? ubi gratior aura?
Orus, quando te adſpiciam? quandoque licebit
Nunc veterum libris, nunc ſomno, & inertibus hor-
Ducere ſolicitæ jucunda oblivio vitæ. (i.e.) (tis

What life can with the Country life compare?
Where breath's the pureſt and moſt healthful (Air.
Where undiſturb'd, my ſtudy, I purſue;
And when I ſleep, bid all my cares adieu.

Hor. Sat. 6.

And what I have found ſo beneficial to my ſelf, I cannot but think may be ſo to others. I aſſure thee, Reader, I am not fond of any of theſe conceptions; and yet I think I may modeſtly enough ſay, That the emptieſt leaf in this Book, may ſerve for more and better uſes than a meer diverſion, when thou canſt find leiſure to peruſe it. I know, your Troubles and Cares are many, and though your condition of Life hath many innocent Comforts, and outward Mercies to ſweeten it, yet believe moſt of you have found, that ancient ſaying of Anacreon experimentally true. Ἔχει τὶ πικρὸν τῆς γεωργίας γλυκύ.

Some bitter troubles Countreymen do meet,
Wherewith the Lord doth intermix their ſweet.

The Cares of your Minds, are commonly no leſs than the Pains of your Bodies; it concerns you therefore, to ſweeten what you cannot avoid; and I know no better way for that than what is here directed to. O Friends! What advantages have you for a Spiritual Life? Why may you not have two Harveſts every year? One for your Souls, another for your Bodies; if you could thus learn to husband your Husbandry. Methinks Spiritual Meditations do even put themſelves upon you: Husbandmen of old were generally preſumed to be honeſt and good Men; what elſe means that ſaying of Menander, Ἀγροῖκος εἶναι προσποιῇ πονηρὸς ὤν.

Profeſs thy ſelf an Husbandman,
And wicked too! believ't that can.

What you are, godly or wicked, is not for me (that am a ſtranger to moſt of you) to determine; but if you are not godly, it's my deſire and deſign to make you ſo; and I could not think on a more probable means to accompliſh this honeſt deſign, than what I have here uſed. Methinks it ſhould be a pleaſure to you, when you come weary out of the Fields from Plow, or any other Labour, to ſit down in the Evening, and Read that Chapter which concerns that particular buſineſs, and refreſh your Souls even from that which hath wearied your Bodies. Were your Hearts but Heavenly, and more time allowed for Spiritual Husbandry, your inward Comforts would be much more, and your outward Gains not a jot leſs; for if the ſucceſs of all your Civil Labours and Imployments depend upon the pleaſure and will of God (as all that are not Atheiſts do acknowledge) then certainly, your buſineſs can ſucceed never the worſe, for your endeavours to pleaſe him, upon whoſe pleaſure it ſo entirely depends. I have many times lifted up my Heart to Heaven, whilſt theſe Papers were under my hand, for a ſpecial Bleſſing to accompany them, when they ſhould be in yours. If the Lord accompliſh my deſires by them upon your Souls, you ſhall enjoy two Heavens, avens, one here, and another hereaſter. Would that be ſweet? The Hiſtorian tells us, that Altitius ſowing Corn in the Field, when Q. Cincinnatus ne to him bare-headed, with Letters from the Se-, ſignifying, that he was choſen to the Dictatorſhip. I hope the Lord will ſo bleſs and ſucceed theſe Labours, that many of you will be called from holding the Plow on Earth, to wear the Crown of Glory in Heaven; which is the ſincere deſire of

1 COR. III. 9.

Ye are God's Husbandry.

THE ſcope and deſign of the following Chapters, being the Spiritual Improvement of Husbandry, it will be neceſſary by way of Proem, to acquaint the Reader with the Foundation and general Rules of this Art in the Scriptures, thereby to procure greater reſpect unto, and prevent prejudice againſt Compoſures of this kind.

To this end I ſhall entertain the Reader a little while upon what this Scripture affords us, which will give a fair Introduction to the following Diſcourſe.

The Apoſtle's ſcope in the context being to check and repreſs the vain glory and emulation of the thians, who inſtead of thankfulneſs for, and humble and diligent improvement of the excellent ings of the Miniſtry; turn'd all into vain oſten- n and emulation, one preferring Paul, and an- Apollos, in the mean time depriving themſelves e Choice Bleſſings they might have received them both.

Cure this growing miſchief in the Churches, ecks their vanity, and diſcovers the evil of ſuch ices; by ſeveral Arguments, amongſt which s one,

Ye are God's Husbandry. q. d. at are ye, but a Field, or plod of ground, to be red and cultivated for God? And what are Apollo, and Cephas but ſo many Workmen and Labourers, imployed by God, the great Husbandman, to plant, and water you all?

If then, you ſhall glory in ſome, and diſpiſe others, you take the ready way to deprive your ſelves of the Benefits and Mercies you might receive from the joint Miniſtry of them all. God hath uſed me to plant you, and Apollo to water you; you are obliged to bleſs him for the Miniſtry of both, and it will be your ſin if you diſpiſe either. If the Workmen be diſcouraged in their Labours, 'tis the Field that loſes and ſuffers by it; ſo that the words are a ſimilitude, ſerving to illuſtrate the Relation.

1. Which the Churches have to God.
2. Which God's Miniſters have to the Churches.

1. The relation betwixt God and them, is like that of an Husbandmand to his Ground or Tillage. The Greek word ſignifies God's * Arabe, or that plot of ground which God manures by the Miniſtry of Paſtors and Teachers.

2. It ſerves to illuſtrate the relation that the Miniſters of Chriſt ſuſtain to the Churches which is like that of the Husbands Servants to him, and his Fields, which excellent notition carries in it the perpetual neceſſity of a Goſpel-Miniſtry. (For what Fruit can be expected, where there are none to Till the ground?) As alſo the diligence, accountableneſs, and rewards, which theſe Labourers are to give to, and receive from God, the great Husband-man. All runs into this,

That the Life and Imployment of an Husbandman, excellently ſhadows forth the relation betwixt God and his Church, and the relative Duties betwixt its Miniſters and Members.

Or more briefly thus.

The Church is God's Husbandry, about which his Miniſters are imployed.

I ſhall not here obſerve my uſual method, (intending no more but a Preface to the following Diſcourſe) but only open the particulars wherein the reſemblance conſiſts; and then draw ſome Corrolaries from the whole. The firſt I ſhall diſpatch in theſe Twenty Particulars following.

1. Prop. The Husbandman purchaſes his Fields, and gives a valuable Conſideration for them, Jer. 32.9.10.

Red. So hath God purchaſed his Church with a full valuable price, even the precious Blood of his own Son, Act. 20. 28. Feed the Church of God, which he hath purchaſed, or acquired with his own Blood. O dear-bought Inheritance, how much doth this beſpeak it worth? Or rather, the high eſteem God hath of it, to pay down Blood, and ſuch Blood for it; never was any Inheritance bought at ſuch a rate: Every particular Elect perſon, and none but ſuch are comprehended in this purchaſe, the reſt ſtill remain in the Devils right. Sin made a forfeiture of all to Juſtice, upon which Satan entered and took poſſeſſion, and as a ſtrong man armed, ſtill keeps it in them, Luk. 11.21. but upon payment of this ſum to Juſtice, the Elect (who only are intended in this purchaſe) paſs over into God's right and propriety, and now are neither Satans, Act. 26. 18. nor their own, 1 Cor. 6. 19. but the Lord's peculiar, 1 *Pet.*2.6. And to ſhew how much they are his own, you have two poſſeſſives in one Verſe, Cant. 8. 12. My Vineyard, which is mine is before me. Mine, which is mine.

Prop. Husband-men divide and ſeparate their own Lands from other Mens, they have their Land-marks and Boundaries, by which propriety is preſerved, Deut. 27. 17. Prov. 22. 28.

Red. So are the People of God wonderfully ſeparated, and diſtinguiſht from all the People of the Earth, Pſal. 4.3. The Lord hath ſet apart him that is godly for himſelf, and the Lord knoweth who are his, 2 Tim. 2. 19. It is a ſpecial Act of Grace, to be incloſed by God out of the waſt howling Wilderneſs of the World, Deut. 33. 16. This God did intentionally, in the decree before the World was; which decree is executed in their Sanctification and Adoption.

3. Prop. Corn-fields are carefully fenced by the Husband-man with Hedges and Ditches, to preſerve their Fruits from Beaſts that would otherwiſe over-run and deſtroy them—Non minus eſt virtus quam querere parta tueri. It is as good Husbandry to keep what we have, as to acquire more than we had.

Red. My well-beloved hath a Vineyard in a very fruitful Hill, and he fenced it, Iſa. 5. 1, 2. No Inheritance is better defended and ſecured, than the Lord's Inheritance, Pſal. 125. 2. As the mountains are round about Jeruſalem, ſo the Lord is round about his people. So careful is he for their ſafety, that he createth upon every dwelling place of mount Sion, and upon her Aſſemblies, a cloud and ſmoke by day, and the ſhining of flaming fire by night: for upon all the glory ſhall be a defence, Iſa. 4. 5. Not a particular Saint, but is hedged about and incloſed in arms of power and love, Job 1. 10. Thou haſt made a hedge about him. The Devil fain would, but by his own Confeſſion could not, break over that hedge to touch Job, till God's permiſſion made a gap for him: Yea, he not only makes an hedge, but a wall about them, and that of Fire, Zech. 2.5. Sets a guard of Angels to encamp round about them that fear him, Pſal. 34. 7. And will not truſt them with a ſingle guard of Angels neither, though their power be great, and love to the Saints as great; but watches over them himſelf alſo, Iſa. 27. 2, 3. Sing ye unto her a Vineyard of red wine, I the Lord do keep it, I will water it every moment; leſt any hurt it, I will keep it night and day.

4. Prop. Husband-men carry out their Compoſt, to fertilize their Arable ground, they dung it, dreſs it, and keep it in heart; and in theſe Weſtern parts are at great Charges to bring Lime, and Salt-water Sand to quicken their thin and cold Soil.

Red. Lord, let it alone this year alſo, till I ſhall dig about it and dung it; and if it bear fruit, well, if not, cut it down, Luk. 13. 8. O the rich dreſſing which God beſtows upon his Churches! they are coſtly Fields indeed, dreſt and fertilized, not only by precious Ordinances and Providences, but alſo by the Sweat, yea, Blood of the Diſpenſers of them. "You Londoners (ſaith Mr. Lockier in Coloſ. p. 552.) "are Trees watered choicely indeed; 'tis ſtoried of the Palm-tree, that at its firſt tranſplanting into Italy, 'twas watered with Wine, I cannot ſay (ſaith he) that you have been ſo watered by me, I dare not; but this I can humbly and truly ſay, that if our choiceſt Strength and Spirits may be named inſtead of Water, Wine; or if the bleſſing which hath gone along with theſe Waters, at any time, hath turned them into Wine, in vigour upon your Souls; then hath God by me, watered your Roots with Wine.

5. Prop. The Husband-man builds his Houſe, where he makes his Purchaſe, dwells upon his Land, and frequently viſits it; he knows, that ſuch as dwell far from their Lands, are not far from loſs.

Red. So doth God; where ever he plants a Church, there doth he fix his Habitation, intending there to dwell, Pſal. 46. 5. God is in the midſt of her, ſhe ſhall not be moved. Thus God came to dwell upon his own Fee and Inheritance, in Judea, Levit. 26. 11, 12. And I will ſet my Tabernacle amongſt you, and will be your God, and ye ſhall be my people. Which Promiſe is again renew'd to his Churches of the New Teſtament, 2 Cor. 6. 16. And when the Churches ſhall be in their greateſt flouriſh, and purity, then ſhall there be the fulleſt and moſt glorious manifeſtation of the Divine preſence among them, Rev. 21.3. And I heard a great voice out of Heaven, ſaying, Behold the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and be their God. Hence the Aſſemblies are called, the places of his Feet——And there they behold the beauty of the Lord, Pſal. 27.

6. Prop. Husband-men grudge not at the Coſt they are at for their Tillage; but as they lay out vaſt Sums upon it, ſo, they do it cheerfully.

Red. And now, O inhabitants of Jeruſalem, and men of Judah, judge I pray you, betwixt me and my Vineyard what could have been done more to my Vineyard, that I have not done in it? And as he beſtows upon his Heritage the choiceſt Mercies, ſo he doth it with the greateſt cheerfulneſs; for he ſaith, Jer. 32. 41. I will rejo over them, to do them good; and I will plant them in th Land aſſuredly, with my whole heart, and with my wh ſoul. It is not the giving out of Mercy (ſaith on that grieveth God, but the recoiling of his Merci back again upon him by the Creatures ingratitude.

7. Prop. When Husband-men have been at C and Pains about their Husbandry, they expect fr from it, anſwerable to their pains and expences ab it: Behold (ſaith James) the Husband-man waiteth the precious fruits of the Earth, Jam. 5. 7.

Red. And he looked that it ſhould bring forth fruit, Iſa. 5. 2. This Heavenly Husbandman waits for the Fruits of his Fields alſo; never did any Husbandman long for the deſired Harveſt, more than God doth for the fruits of Holineſs from his Saints: great are the expectations of God from his people: And when the time of the fruit drew near, he ſent his ſervants to the Husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it.

8. Prop. Husbandmen are much delighted, to ſee the ſucceſs of their Labours, it Comforts them over all their hard pains, and many weary days, to ſee a good increaſe.

Red. Much more is God delighted in beholding the flouriſhing Graces of his people; it pleaſes him to ſee his Plants laden with Fruit, and his Valleys ſing with Corn, Cant. 6. 2. My Beloved is gone down to the garden, into his beds of Spices, to feed in the gardens, and to gather Lillies. Theſe Beds of Spices (ſay Expoſitors) are the particular Churches, the Companies of Believers; he goes to feed in theſe Gardens, like as Men go to their Gardens to make merry, or to gather Fruit, Cant. 4. 16. He eats his pleaſant fruit, viz. His peoples holy performances, ſweeter to him than any Ambroſia; thus he feeds in the Gardens, and he gathers Lillies when he tranſlates good Souls into his Kingdom above; For the Lord taketh pleaſure in his Saints, and will beautifie the meek with Salvation.

Paſcitus Chriſtus quando ſuorum virtutes videt, lillia decerpit, quando optimum quemque ex hac vita traducit. Trap. in loc.

9. Prop. The Husbandman is exceedingly grieved, when he ſees the hopes of a good Crop diſappointed, and his Fields prove barren, or blaſted.

Red. So the Lord expreſſes his grief for, and anger againſt his people, when they bring forth no Fruits, or wild Fruits, worſe than none, Hoſ. 9. 16. Ephraim is ſmitten, their root is dried up. Chriſt was exceedingly diſpleaſed with the Figtree, and Curſed it for its barrenneſs, it grieves him to the Heart when his Servants return to him with ſuch Complaints as theſe, We have laboured in vain, we have ſpent our ſtrength for nought.

10. Prop. Husbandmen imploy many Labourers to work in their Fields, there is need of many hands for ſuch a multiplicity of buſineſs.

Red. God hath diverſity of Workmen alſo in the Churches, whom he ſends forth to labour in his Spiritual Fields, Eph. 4. 12. He gave ſome Apoſtles, ſome Prophets, and ſome Evangeliſts; and ſome Paſtors and Teachers, for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the Miniſtry, Amos 3. 7. I have ſent [my ſervants] the Prophets. 'Tis uſual with the Apoſtles to place this Title of Servant among their honourary Titles, though a profane Mouth once called it, Probroſum artificium, a ſordid Artifice. Chriſt hath ſtampt a great deal of dignity upon his Miniſters, in retaining them for the neareſt ſervice to himſelf, 1 Cor. 4. 1. Let a man ſo account of us, as the Miniſters of Chriſt; they are workers together with God: The Husbandman works in the Field among his Labourers, and the great God diſdaineth not to work in and with his poor Servants, in the work of the Miniſtry.

11. Prop. The work about which Husbandmen imploy their Servants in the Field, is toylſome and ſpending. You ſee they come home at night as weary as they can draw their Legs after them.

Red. But Gods workmen have a much harder task than they. Hence are they ſet forth in Scripture by the laborious Ox, 1 Cor. 9. 9. Rev. 4. 7. Some derive the word Διάκονος, ἀ κόνις, Deacon from a word that ſignifies duſt, to ſhew the laboriouſneſs of their imployment, labouring till even choaked with duſt and ſweat. 'Tis ſaid of Epaphroditus, Phil. 2. 13. That for the work of Chriſt he was ſick, and nigh unto death; not regarding his life, to ſupply their lack of ſervice. The Apoſtles expreſſion, Col. 1. ult. is very emphatical, Whereunto I alſo labour, ſtriving according to his working; which worketh in me mightily. The word Ἀγωνιζόμενος ſignifies, ſuch ſpending labour as puts a Man into an agony; and bleſſed is that Servant, whom his Lord when he cometh ſhall find ſo doing.

12. Prop. The immediate end of the Husbandmans labour, and his Servants labour, is for the improvement of his Land, to make it more flouriſhing and fruitful.

Red. The ſcope and end of the Miniſtry is for the Churches benefit and advantage. They muſt not lord it over God's heritage, as if the Church were for them, and not they for the Church; nor ſerve themſelves of it, but be the Churches Servants for Jeſus ſake, 2 Cor. 4. 6. the power they have received being for Edification, and not for Deſtruction, 2 Cor. 10. 8. Chriſt hath given them to the Churches, their Gifts, their Time, their Strength, and all their Miniſterial Talents are not their own, but the Churches Stock and Treaſure.

13. Prop. The Workmen that labour in the Fields, are accountable for their work to him that imploy'd them.

Red. Church-Officers are alſo accountable to God for all the Souls committed to them. They are Stewards of the Myſteries of God, 1 Cor. 4. 1. and Stewards are accountable. We watch for your Souls (ſaith the Apoſtle) as they that muſt give an account, Heb. 13. 7. If theſe Servants be unfaithful in their work and truſt, the Blood of Souls ſhall be required at their hands, Ezek. 3. 17, 18. which are fulmina, non verba, (ſaith Eraſmus) thunder-bolts, rather than words. The guilt of Blood is the greateſt guilt; and of all Blood, the Blood of Souls.

14. Prop. Thoſe that ſpend their time and ſtrength all their days, in manuring and plowing the Fields, do maintain themſelves and their Families by their Labours; their hands are ſufficient for themſelves and theirs.

Red. Even ſo hath God ordained, that they which preach the Goſpel, ſhould live of the Goſpel, 1 Cor. 9. 14. The workman is worthy of his meat, Mat. 10. 10. 'Tis a ſad thing, if thoſe who break the Bread of Life to Souls, ſhould be ſuffered to want Bread themſelves. God would not have the Mouth of the Ox muzled that treads out the Corn, but have liberty to eat as well as work: Yet if any pretender to the Miniſtry be like the Heifer that loves to tread out the Corn, (i. e.) cares to do no work, but ſuch as brings in preſent pay; he therein ſufficiently diſcovers his Beaſt-like diſpoſition. Miniſters muſt be faithful in their Maſters work, and if Men do not, God will reward them. For, He is not unrighteous to forget their work, and labour of love, Heb. 6. 10.

15. Prop. It is a great trouble to Husbandmen in a buſie time, to be put off from their labours by ſtormy Weather, which drives them out of the Fields, and makes them let all lye, till it clear up again; yet, mean while, they are not idle, but imploy themſelves in home-work.

Red. Even ſo in God's Husbandry, 'tis an unſpeakable Affliction to God's Workmen, to be rendred uſeleſs and unſerviceable to the Churches, by thoſe ſtorms of trouble, which drive them from their publick Miniſterial Work. With what a heavy heart did Paul go off from his Work at Epheſus, Acts 20. It ſpends a Miniſter to preach, but more to be ſilent. 'Tis a loud ſpeaking Judgment, when God ſhall ſay to them as to Ezekiel, Son of Man, 'twill make thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth, and thou ſhalt be dumb, Ezek. 3. 26. Such ſilencing Providences, ſpeaking thundring Language to gracious Hearts; yet even then, the keepers of the vineyard have a private Vineyard of their own to look after, they have much home-work when no out-work.

16. Prop. There is a vaſt difference betwixt thoſe Fields which have been well husbanded, and dreſt by a Skilful and diligent Husbandman; and thoſe that have been long out of Husbandry. How fragrant is the one? How dry and barren the other? When you paſs by a Field well dreſſed and fenced, every thing proſperous, and in exquiſite order, you may know without farther enquiry, that a good Husband lives there.

Red. Thus ſtands the caſe betwixt thoſe places which God hath bleſt with a faithful painful Miniſtry, and ſuch as have none, or worſe than none: For as the Husbandmans coſt and pains appears in the verdant, and fragrant hew of his Fields; ſo a Miniſters pains and diligence is (ordinarily) ſeen in the heavenly Lives, and flouriſhing Graces of the People. The Churches of Corinth and Theſſalonica, where Paul and other holy Inſtruments ſpent much of their time and pains, became famous and flouriſhing Churches, 2 Cor. 9. 2. A ſpecial bleſſing comes along with a godly Miniſter, to the place where ſpecial Providence aſſigns him. Such places like Gideon's Fleece, have the Dew of Heaven lying on them, whilſt others round about are dry and barren.

17. Prop. The Husbandman is not diſcouraged, though the Seed lye long under the clods, he knows it will ſpring up at laſt, and reward him, or thoſe that comes after him, for their pains and patience in waiting for it.

Red. Miniſters ſhould not be preſently diſcouraged in their work, becauſe they ſee but little or no appearance of all the Seed they have ſown among the people. The ſervant of the Lord muſt be patient towards all, waiting if at any time God will give them repentance, 2 Tim. 24, 25. And if it never ſpring up in his time, it may after his death; and if ſo, he ſhall not fail of his reward, John 4. 36, 37. And he that reapeth, receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal, that both he that ſoweth, and he that reapeth may rejoice together; and herein is that ſaying true, one ſoweth, and another reapeth. Though Miniſters dye, yet their words live; yea, their words take hold of Men when they are in the duſt, Zech. 1. 6.

18. Prop. Husbandmen find low Grounds and Valleys, moſt fertile. Hills, how loftily ſoever, they over-top the lower grounds, yet anſwer not the Husbandmans pains, as the Valleys do. Theſe are beſt watered and ſecured from the ſcorching heat of the Sun.

Red. Experience ſhews us, that the humbleſt Saints are moſt fruitful under the Goſpel. Theſe are they that receive with meekneſs the ingrafted word, Jam. 1. 21. whoſe influences abide in them, as the Rain doth in the low Valleys. Happy is that Miniſter, whoſe Lot falls in ſuch a pleaſant Valley. Bleſſed are they that ſow beſide all ſuch waters, that ſend forth thither the foot of the ox and the aſs, Iſa. 32. 20. Among theſe Valleys run the pleaſant Springs, and Purling-Brooks, which fertilize the Neighbouring ground. Heavenly Ordinances there, leave fruitful influences.

19. Prop. The firſt Crop is uſually the beſt: and the longer the Husbandman Tills his ground, the leſs it produces. After a few years its vigour and ſtrength is ſpent.

Red. The firſt Entertainment of the Goſpel is commonly the beſt; and what good is done by the Miniſtry, is often done at its firſt entrance. New things are pretty, and very taking. John at firſt was to the Jews a burning and a ſhining light, and they were willing [for a ſeaſon] to rejoice in his light, John 5. 35. Paul was highly valued among the Galatians at firſt: Such was their Zeal, that they could have pluckt out their Eyes, and have given them to him; but how quickly did this full Tide ebb again? For he complains, Gal. 4. 15. Where then is the bleſſedneſs ye ſpake of?

20. Prop. Laſtly, When Fields prove barren, and will not quit the Husbandmans coſt, nor anſwer the Seed he ſows in them, he plucks up the Hedges, and lays it waſte.

Red. So when Churches grow formal and fruitleſs, the Lord removes his Goſpel-preſence from them; plucks up the Hedge of his protection from about them, and lays them open, as waſte ground, to be over-run by their Enemies, Jer. 7. 12. Go to Shiloh, and ſee what I did unto it. What is become of thoſe once famous and flouriſhing Churches of Aſia? Are they not laid waſte, and trodden down by Infidels? And now go to (ſaith the great Husbandman) I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard; I will pull up the hedge thereof, and it ſhall be laid waſte, Iſa. 5. 5.

Thus you ſee the Alegory opened in its particulars: From the whole, I ſhall preſent you with theſe five enſuing Corolaries.

The Firſt Corrolary.

How great then are the dignities and priviledges of the Churches of Jeſus Chriſt, whom he hath appropriated to himſelf, above all the people of the earth, to be his peculiar inheritance? The reſt of the World is a waſte Wilderneſs; all other places, how pleaſant ſoever, in reſpect of their natural amænity and delights, are truly enough called the dark places of the Earth; diſmal, ſolitary Cells, where Ziim and Iim, Bitterns, Cormorants, and every doleful Creature dwells. But the Church is the Paradiſe of the Earth, a Garden encloſed, Cant. 4. 12. in whoſe Hedges the Goſpel-birds chirp and ſing melodiouſly, Cant. 2. 12. Its Beds, are Beds of Spices, Cant. 6. 2. and betwixt its pleaſant Banks, a Chryſtal River of living Water runs, Rev. 22. 1. the Streams whereof make glad the City of God, in the midſt thereof the Lord himſelf delights to walk. O Sion, with what pleaſures doſt thou abound! If Bernard were ſo raviſhed with the delights of his Monaſtery, becauſe of its green Banks, and ſhady Bowers, and Herbs, and Trees, and various Objects to feed his Eyes, and fragrant Smells, and ſweet and various tunes of Birds, together with the opportunities of devout Contemplation, that he cryed out admiringly, Lord! what delight doſt thou provide, even for the poor! How much more ſhould we be raviſhed with Sion's glory? For beautiful for ſcituation, is mount Sion. Of whom it may much more truly be ſaid, what a Chronicler of our own once ſaid of England, That it is the Fortunate Iſland, the Paradiſe of Pleaſure, the Garden of God, whoſe Valleys are like Edon, whoſe Hills are as Lebanon, whoſe Springs are as Piſgah, whoſe Rivers are as Jordan, whoſe Wall is the Ocean, and whoſe Defence is the Lord Jehovah. Happy art thou, O Iſ*rael*, who is like unto thee? Who can count the Priviledges wherewith Chriſt hath inveſted his Churches! O let it never ſeem a light thing in our Eyes, that we grow within his bleſſed incloſure. How ſweet a Promiſe is that, Exod. 19. 5. Ye ſhall be to me a peculiar treaſure, above all people; for all the earth is mine.

Speed's Chron.

The Second Corrolary.

Hence it follows, That Spiritual Barrenneſs is a great reproach and ſhame to Chriſtians.

Husbandry, which is ſo planted, watered, fenced, filled with favours and mercies, be like the barren Heath in the Deſart? Surely it ſhould be ſaid of every Soul that grows here, as the Hiſtorian ſaith of Spain, that there is nihil infructuoſum, nihil ſterile; nothing barren or unfruitful in it. God's Vineyard is planted in a very fruitful Hill, Iſa. 5. 1. And ſurely they that are planted in the houſe of the Lord, ſhould flouriſh in the Court of our God; they ſhould bring forth fruit, even in old age, to ſhew that God is upright, Pſal. 92. 13, 14. They are created in Chriſt Jeſus unto good works, which God hath ordained they ſhould walk in, Eph. 2. 10. They are married unto Chriſt, that they might bring forth fruit to God, Rom. 7. 4. An empty Branch is a diſhonour to the Root that bears it, a barren Field to the Husbandman that own it; God cannot endure that in his Fields, which he ſuffers in the Wilderneſs.

The Third Corrolary.

If the Church be God's Husbandry, then there is ſuch a ſpecial gracious preſence of the Lord in his Churches, as is not to be found in all the World beſide. Where may you expect to find the Husbandman, but in his own Fields? There lyes his buſineſs, and there he delights to be. And where may we expect to find God, but in the Aſſemblies of his Saints? He walks among the golden Candleſticks, Rev. 2. 1. I will walk among you (ſaith he) and be your God, 2 Cor. 6. 16. Upon this account the Church is called Jehovah Shammah, the Lord is there, Ezek. 48. ult. You may ſee the footſteps of God in the Creatures; but the face of God is only to be ſeen in his Ordinances. Hence Pſal. 27. 4. David long'd for the Temple, that he might ſee the beauty of the Lord. Now, what is beauty, but a ſymetry and proportion of parts? In the work of Creation, you ſee one Attribute manifeſted in one thing, and another, in another thing; but in the Sanctuary you may ſee beauty, even all the Attributes of God, diſplayed there: And indeed, we find in Scripture ſuch aſtoniſhing expreſſions about the Viſions of God in his Church, that in reading them, a Man can ſee little difference betwixt it and Heaven; for as the Church is called Heaven, Mat. 25. 1. ſo its deſcription is like that of Heaven, Heb. 12. 22, 23. You are come to the heavenly Jeruſalem, and to an innumerable company of Angels, &c. And Rev. 4. 22. They ſhall ſee his face, and his name ſhall be written in their foreheads. And v. 24. The ſaints are repreſented, ſtanding nearer to the throne of God, than the Angels themſelves. Hence alſo Ordinances are called Galleries, in which both Saints and Angels walk, beholding the glory of him that ſits upon the Throne, Zech. 3. 7. If you will keep my ways, I will give you galleries to walk in, among them that ſtand by.

The Fourth Corrolary.

If the Church be God's Husbandry, then thoſe that be imployed in Miniſterial Work ought to be Men of great Judgment and Experience in Soul Affairs; for theſe are the Labourers whom God, the Myſtical Husbandman imploys and entruſts about his Spiritual Husbandry. Should Husbandmen imploy ignorant Perſons, that neither underſtand the Rules, nor proper Seaſons of Husbandry; how much would ſuch Workmen damnifie and prejudice him? He will not imploy ſuch to weed his Fields, as know not Wheat from Tares; or to prune his Trees, that think Midſummer as fit for that work as December; much leſs will God. He qualifies all that he ſends, with wiſdom for their Work. His workmen approve themſelves workmen indeed, ſuch as need not be aſhamed, rightly dividing the word of truth, 2 Tim. 2. 15. As Bezaleel was furniſhed with wiſdom, before he was imployed in Tabernacle-work; ſo Chriſt inſtructs his Servants, with skill and inſight, before they are imployed in Miniſterial work. He gives them a Mouth and wiſdom, Luke 21. 15. indues them with power from on high: As Chriſt was filled abundantly with the Spirit for his Work, ſo according to proportion, are thoſe that are ſent by him, John 20. 21, 22. As my Father hath ſent me, ſo ſend I you. And as for thoſe that run before they are ſent, and underſtand not the Myſteries of the Goſpel, I ſhall ſay no more of them but this; Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.

The Fifth Corrolary.

To conclude, If the Church be God's Husbandry, that is, if Husbandry have ſo many reſemblances of God's Works about the Church in it; then how inexcuſable is the ignorance of Husbandmen in the things of God, who beſides the Word of the Goſpel, have the teaching of the Creatures; and can hardly turn their hands to any part of their Work, but the Spirit hints one Spiritual uſe or other from it to their Souls? How do the Scriptures abound with Parables, and lively Similitudes taken from Husbandry? From the Field, the Seed, the Plow, the Barn, from threſhing and winnowing; ſimilitudes alſo from planting, grafting, and pruning of Trees; and not a few from the ordering of Cattel. So that to what buſineſs ſoever you turn your hands, in any part of your Calling, ſtill God meets you with one heavenly Inſtruction or other. But alas! How few are able to improve their Civil Imployments to ſuch excellent ends? Theſe things are but briefly hinted in the Scriptures, and thoſe hints ſcattered up and down, that they know not where to find them; and if they could, yet would it be difficult ſo to methodize them, as it is neceſſary they ſhould be, in order to their due Improvement by Meditation.

And therefore I judg'd it neceſſary to collect and prepare them for their uſe; and in this manner to preſent them to you, as you find them in the following Chapters. Read, conſider, and apply; and the Lord make you good Husbands for your own Souls.

THE FIRST PART OF Husbandry Spiritualized.

CHAP. I.

Upon the Induſtry of the Husband-man.

In the laborious Husband-man you ſee,
What all true Chriſtians are, or ought to be.

OBSERVATION.

THE Imployment of the Husbandman is by all acknowledged to be very laborious; there is a multiplicity of Buſineſs incumbent on him. The end of one work, is but the beginning of another. Every Seaſon of the Year brings its proper work with it: Sometimes you find him in his Fields, dreſſing, plowing, ſowing, harrowing, weeding, or reaping; and ſometimes in his Barn, threſhing, or winnowing, ſometimes in his Orchard, planting, grafting or pruning his Trees; and ſometimes among his Cattel: So that he hath no time to be idle. And as he hath a multiplicity of buſineſs, ſo every part of it is full of toyl, and ſpending labour: He eats not the Bread of Idleneſs, but earns it before he eats it; and as it were, dips it in his own ſweat, whereby it becomes the ſweeter to him. Though ſin brought in the Husband-mans ſweat, Gen. 3. 19. yet now not to ſweat would increaſe his ſin, Ezek. 16. 49.

APPLICATION.

Behold here the Life of a ſerious Chriſtian, ſhadowed forth to the Life. As the Life of a Husbandman, ſo the Life of a Chriſtian is no idle, or eaſie Life. They that take up Religion for oſtentation, and not for an occupation; and thoſe that place the buſineſs of it in notions, and idle ſpeculations, in forms, geſtures, and external obſervances, may think, and call it ſo: But ſuch as devote themſelves unto it, and make Religion their buſineſs, will find it no eaſie work, to exerciſe themſelves to godlineſs. Many there are, that affect the reputation and ſweet of it, who cannot endure the labour, and ſweat of it. If Men might be indulged to divide their hearts betwixt God and the World, or to cull out the cheap and eaſie duties of it, and neglect the more difficult and coſtly ones, it were an eaſie thing to be a Chriſtian: But ſurely to have reſpect to all God's Commandments, to live the Life, as well as ſpeak the Language of a Chriſtian; to be holy in all manner of Converſation, is not ſo eaſie. This will be evident, by comparing the Life of a Chriſtian, with the Life of a Husbandman, in theſe five particulars; wherein it will appear, that the work of a Chriſtian, is by much the hardeſt work of the two.

1. The Husband-man hath much to do, many things to look after; but the Chriſtian more: If we reſpect the extenſiveneſs of his work, he hath a large Field indeed to labour in, Pſal. 119. 96. Thy commandment is exceeding broad; of a vaſt extent and latitude, comprizing not only a multitude of external Acts and Duties, and guiding the Offices of the outward Man about them, but alſo taking in every thought and motion of the inner Man within its compaſs.

You find in the Word, a world of work cut out for Chriſtians; there's hearing-work, praying-work, reading, meditating, and ſelf-examining-work; it puts him alſo upon a conſtant watch over all the corruptions of his heart. Oh, what a world of work hath a Chriſtian about him? For of them he may ſay, as the Hiſtorian doth of Hannibal, They are never quiet, whether conquering, or conquered. How many weak languiſhing Graces hath he to recover, improve, and ſtrengthen? There is a weak Faith, a languiſhing Love, dull and faint Deſires to be quickened and invigorated. And when all this is done, what a multitude of work do his ſeveral Relations exact from him? He hath a world of buſineſs incumbent on him, as a Parent, Child, Husband, Wife, Maſter, Servant, or Friend, yea, not only to Friends, but Enemies. And beſides all this, how many difficult things are there to be born and ſuffered for Chriſt? And yet ll not God allow his people in the neglect of any e of them: Neither can he be a Chriſtian that th not reſpect to every command, and is not holy all manner of Converſation, Pſal. 119. 6. 2 Pet. 11. every one of theſe Duties, like the ſeveral okes in a Wheel come to bear in the whole round a Chriſtians Converſation: So that he hath more ork upon his hands than the Husbandman.

2. The Husbandman's work is confeſſed to be ending work, but not like the Chriſtians. What uguſtus ſaid of the young Roman, is verified in the e Chriſtian, Quicquid, vult, valde vult. Whatſoever doth in Religion, he doth to purpoſe. Under the w, God rejected the Snail and the Aſs, Levit. 11. 30. od. 13. 13. And under the Goſpel, he allows no ggiſh lazy Profeſſor, 1 Tim. 5. 11, 13. Sleepy Dus are utterly unſuitable to the Living God; he ll have the very Spirits diſtilled and offered up to m in every Duty, John 4. 24. he beſtows upon his ople, the very ſubſtance and kernel of Mercies, d will not accept from them the ſhells and ſhadows Duties; not the skin, but the inwards, and the that covereth the inwards, was required under e Law, Exod. 29. 30. And every Sacrifice under e Goſpel, muſt be ſacrificium medullatum a Sacrifice ll of Marrow; obſerve the manner in which their ork is to be performed.

Rom. 12. 11. In ſerving God, fervent in Spirit, or ſing hot.

2 Pet. 1. 10. In ſecuring Salvation, diligent; or ing it throughly, and enough.

1 Tim. 4. 7. In godlineſs, exerciſing or ſtripping emſelves; as for a Race.

Luke 13. 24. In the purſuit of happineſs, ſtriving en to an Agony.

Acts 26. 7. In Prayer, ſerving God inſtantly; or a ſtretched out manner; yea, pouring out their arts before him, Pſalm 62. 8. as if the Body were t like a dead Corps upon the knees, whilſt the irit is departed from it, and aſcended to God. This the manner of his work: Judge then how much rder this work is, than to ſpend the ſweat of the ow in manual labour.

3. The Husbandman finds his work as he left it, he n begin one day where he left the other; but it is t ſo with the Chriſtian, a bad heart, and a buſie evil, diſorder and ſpoil his work every day. The riſtian finds not his heart in the morning, as he t it at night; and even when he is about his work, w many ſet-backs doth he meet with? Satan ſtand his right hand (the working-hand) to reſiſt him, ch. 3. 1. when he would do good, evil (the evil of s own heart and nature) is preſent with him.

4. The Husbandman hath ſome reſting days, when throws aſide all his work, and takes his recreation; t the Chriſtian hath no reſting day, till his dying y; and then he ſhall reſt from his labours. Religion ows no idle day, but requires him to be always abound- in the work of the Lord, 1 Cor. 15. 58. When one Duty done, another calls for him; the Lord's day is a day reſt to the Husbandman, but no day in the Week laborious to the Chriſtian. O 'tis a ſpending day him. When he hath gathered in the Crop of one ty, he is not to ſit down ſatisfied therewith, or ſay that rich worldling did, Luke, 12. 19. Soul take e eaſe, thou haſt goods laid up for many years; but muſt plow again, and count it well if the Vintage reach the Seed-time, Levit. 26. 5. I mean, if the ſtrength, luence, and comfort of one Duty, hold out to other Duty; and that it may be ſo, and there be room left for idleneſs, God hath appointed Ejaculatory Prayer, to fill up the intervals, betwixt ſtated and the more ſolemn Duties. Theſe are to keep in the Fire, which kindled the morning Sacrifice, to kindle the evening Sacrifice. When can the Chriſtian ſit down and ſay, Now all my work is ended, I have nothing to do without doors, or within?

Laſtly, There is a time when the labour of the Husbandman is ended; old Age and weakneſs takes him off from all Imployment; they can only look upon their Labourers, but cannot do a ſtroke of work themſelves; they can tell you what they did in their younger years, but now (ſay they) we muſt leave it to younger people: We cannot be young always; but the Chriſtian is never ſuperannuated as to the work of Religion; yea, the longer he lives, the more his Maſter expects from him. When he is full of days, God expects he ſhould be full of fruits, Pſal. 92. 14. They ſhall bring forth fruit in old age, they ſhall be fat and flouriſhing.

REFLECTIONS.

The Wordlings Reflection.

1. How hard have I laboured for the Meat that periſheth? prevented the dawning of the day, and laboured as in the very Fire, and yet is the Chriſtians work harder than mine? I Surely then never yet underſtood the work of Chriſtianity. Alas, my ſleepy Prayers, and formal Duties, even all that ever I performed in my Life, never coſt me that pains, that one hour at plow hath done. I have either wholly neglected, or at beſt, ſo lazily performed Religious Duties, that I may truly ſay, I offer to God what coſt me nothing. Wo is me poor wretch! How is the Judgment of Corah ſpiritually executed upon me? The Earth opened her mouth, and ſwallowed up his Body; but it hath opened its mouth and ſwallowed up my heart, my time, and all my affections. How far am I from the Kingdom of God!

The Formaliſts Reflection.

2. And how little better is my caſe, who have indeed profeſſed Religion, but never made it my buſineſs? Will an empty (though ſplendid) profeſſion ſave me? How many brave Ships have periſhed in the Storms, notwithſtanding their fine Names, the Proſperous, the Succeſs, the Happy Return? A fine Name could not protect them from the Rocks, nor will it ſave me from Hell. I have done by Religion, as I ſhould have done by the World; prayed, as if I prayed not; and heard, as if I heard not. I have given to God but the ſhadow of Duty, and can never expect from him a real Reward.

The Reflection of a ſlothful Chriſtian.

3. How unlike a Chriſtian doſt thou alſo (O my Soul) go about thy work; though upright in the main, yet how little Zeal and Activity doſt thou expreſs in thy Duties? Awake Love and Zeal, ſeeſt thou not the toyl and pains Men take for the world? How do they prevent the dawing of the day? And labour as in the very Fire till night; and all this for a trifle! Should not every drop of Sweat which I ſee trickle from their Brows, fetch (as it were) a drop of Blood from my heart? who am thus convinced and reproved of ſhameful lazineſs, by their indefatigable diligence. Do they pant after the duſt of the Earth? Amos 2. 7. And ſhall not I pant after God? Pſal. 42. 1. Ah, my Soul! it was not wont to be ſo with thee, in the days of my firſt Profeſſion. Should I have had no more Communion with God in Duties then, it would have broken my heart: I ſhould have been weary of my Life. Is this a time for one to ſtand idle, who ſtands at the door of Eternity? What, now ſlack-handed, when ſo near to my Everlaſting Reſt Rom. 13. 11. or haſt thou found the work of God ſo unpleaſant to thee? Prov. 3. 17. Or the Trade of godlineſs ſo unprofitable? Pſal. 19. 11. Or knoweſt thou not, that Millions now in Hell periſhed for want of ſerious diligence in Religion, Luke 13. 34. nor doth my diligence for God, anſwer to that which Chriſt hath done and ſuffered, to purchaſe my Happineſs: Or to the preparations he hath made in Heaven for me? Or doſt thou forget that thy Maſters Eye is always upon thee, whilſt thou art lazing and loytering? Or would the Damned live at this rate as I do if their day of Grace might be recalled? For ſhame (my Soul) for ſhame! rouze up thy ſelf, and fall to thy work, with a diligence anſwerable to the weight thereof; for it is no vain work concerning thee, it is thy Life.

CHAP II.

Upon the Thriſtineſs of the Husbandman.

The hardeſt Labourers, are the thriving Men,
If you'll have thriving Souls, be active then.

OBSERVATION.

INduſtry and diligence is the way to thrive and grow Rich in the World. The Earth muſt be manured, or its increaſe is in vain expected; Qui fugit molam, fuget farinam; he that refuſes the Mill, refuſes the Meal, (ſaith the Proverb) The diligent Soul ſhall be made fat. Solomon hath two Proverbs concerning thriſtneſs and increaſe in the world. In Prov. 10. 4. he ſaith, The hand of the diligent maketh rich. And ver. 22. he ſaith, The bleſſing of the Lord maketh rich. Theſe are not contradictory, but confirmatory each of other; one ſpeaks of the principal, the other of the inſtrumental cauſe. Diligence without God's bleſſing will not do it; and that bleſſing cannot be expected without diligence; therefore Husbandmen ply their buſineſs with unwearied pains, they do even lodge in the midſt of their labours as that good Husband Boaz did, Ruth. 2. 3. They are parſimonious of their time, but prodigal of their ~~ſweat and~~ ſtrength, becauſe they find this to be the thriving way.

APPLICATION.

AS Nature opens her Treaſures to none but the diligent, ſo neither doth Grace. He that will be rich, muſt be a painful Chriſtian; and whoſoever will cloſely ply the Trade of Godlineſs, ſhall comfortably and quickly find, That in keeping Gods commands, there is great reward, Pſal. 19. 11. God is a bountiful rewarder of ſuch as diligently ſeek him, Heb. 11. 6. They muſt not indeed work for wages, nor yet will God ſuffer their work to go unrewarded; yea, it ſufficiently rewards it ſelf, 1 Tim. 6. 6. And its reward is twofold; (1) Preſent, and in part; (2) Future, and in full, Mark 10. 29, 30. Now in this time an hundred fold, even from ſuffering, which ſeems the moſt unprofitable part of the work, and in the world to come Life everlaſting. If you ask what preſent advantage Chriſtians have by their diligence? I anſwer, as much and more than the Husbandman hath from all his toyls and labours. Let us compare the particulars, and ſee what the Husbandman gets, that the Chriſtian gets not alſo. Compare your gains, and you'll quickly ſee the odds.

1. You get Credit and Reputation by your diligence; 'tis a commendation and honour to you, to be active and ſtirring men: But how much more honour doth God put upon his laborious Servants? 'Tis the higheſt honour of a Creature, to be active and uſeful for its God. Saints are called veſſels of honour, as they are fitted for the Maſters uſe, 2 Tim. 2. 21. Wherein conſiſts the honour of Angels but in this; that they are miniſtring Spirits, ſerviceable Creatures? And all the Apoſtles gloried in the Title of Servants. The loweſt office in which a Man can ſerve God, even that of a Nethinim, or Door-keeper, which was the loweſt Order or Rank of Officers in the Houſe of God, Ezek. 44. 10, 11. is yet preferred by David before the ſervice of the greateſt Prince on Earth, Pſal. 84. 10. 'Tis no ſmall honour to be active for God.

2. You have this benefit for your labour, that thereby you avoid looſe and evil Company, which would draw you into miſchief. By diligence for God, the Chriſtian alſo is ſecured from Temptations; God is with them, while they are with him, 2 Chron. 15. 2. Communion with God in the way of Duty, is a great Preſervative againſt Temptations. The Schoolmen put the queſtion, how the Angels and glorified Saints become impeccant? And reſolve it thus: That they are ſecured from ſin, by the Beatifical Viſion; and ſure I am that the Viſions of God, not only in Glory, but now alſo in Duty, are marvellous defences againſt ſin; and they that are moſt active for God, have the fulleſt and cleareſt Viſions of God, John 14. 21.

3. You have this benefit by your labour, that it tends much to the health of your Bodies. The Chriſtian hath this benefit by his labour, that it tends to a healthful ſtate of Soul; The way of the Lord is ſtreng to the upright, Prov. 10. 29. As thoſe that follow the daily labours in the Field, have much more heal than Citizens that live idely, or Scholars that live sedentary Life. So the Active Chriſtian enjoys m Spiritual Health, and is troubled with fewer Complaints than others.

4. By diligence in your Civil Imployments, you preſerve your Eſtates, and are kept from running be-hind-hand in the world. Bayliffs trouble not ſuch Mens doors; they uſually have the fore-foot of their neighbours. And by activity and diiigence for God, Souls are kept from backſliding, and running back in their Graces and Comforts. Remiſſions and intermiſſions in our Duties, are the firſt ſteps and degrees by which a Soul declines and waſtes as to his Spiritual Eſtate.

5. Your pains and diligence in the Fields, makes your Beds ſweet to you at night, Eccleſ. 5. 12. Reſt is ſweet to a labouring man, whether he eat little or much. But the diligent Life of a Chriſtian makes the clods of the Valley, his Grave ſweet to him, 2 Cor. 1. 12. 2 Kings 20. 3. Remember now, O Lord, how I have walked before thee, &c. Think Chriſtian, how ſweet it will be for thee, when thou comeſt to die; to ſay then as thy Redeemer did, when near his death, John 17. 4, 5. I have finiſhed the work that thou gaveſt me to do; and now, O Father, glorifie me with thine own ſelf.

6. The expence of your Sweat fills your Purſes, you get Eſtates by your diligence and labour; but what are your gains to the gains of Chriſtians? They can get in an hour, that which they will not part with for all the Gold and Silver on Earth, Prov. 3. 14.

So that compare theſe Labourers, as to all their advantages, and you ſhall ſee, that there is no Trade like that which the diligent Chriſtian drives.

REFLECTIONS.

Reflections of the ſlothful Soul.

2. Bluſh then, O my Soul, at the conſideration of thy lazineſs and ſloth which is attended with ſo many Spiritual wants! And can I wonder at it, when I refuſe the painful way of Duty, in which the precious fruits of godlineſs, are only to be found? If theſe fruits lay upon the ſurface of Duty, or could be had with wiſhes, I ſhould not want them; but to dig eep and take pains I cannot. My deſires, like thoſe f the ſlothful Man, kill me, becauſe my hands reuſe to labour, Prov. 21. 25. If every duty were to e rewarded preſently with Gold, would I not have een more aſſiduous in them, than I have been? And et I know that a heart full of the Grace and Comort of the Holy Ghoſt, is better than a Houſe full f Gold and Silver. O what a compoſition of ſtupiity and ſloth am I! I have been all for the ſhort cut o comfort, when conſtant experience teacheth, that e further way about, by painful Duty, is the nearſt way to it. What pains do Husbandmen take? hat perils do Seamen run for a little gain? O uggiſh heart! wilt thou do nothing for Eternal reaſures?

Secondly, If there be ſuch great reward attending ligence in Duty, then why art thou ſo apt (O my ul) to caſt off Duty, becauſe thou findeſt not prent Comfort in it? How quickly am I diſcouraged, I preſently find not what I expect in Duty? Wherethe Well is deep, and much pains muſt be taken draw up thoſe Waters of Joy, Iſa. 12. 3. There a Golden Vein in the Mount of Duty, but it lyes ep; and becauſe I meet not with it as ſoon as I pect, my lazy Heart throws by the Shovel, and es, dig I cannot.

e World- s Reflecti-

Thirdly, If this be indeed the rich and thriving Trade, why do I peddle about the poor low things of the World ſo much, neglecting the rich Trade of dlineſs for it? O, how much of my time and ſtrength have theſe things devoured? Had I employed that time in Communion with God, would it not have turn'd to a better account? Think'ſt thou in earneſt, O my Soul, that God hath endowed thee with ſuch excellent Faculties, capable of the moſt Divine and Heavenly Imployments, or that Jeſus Chriſt hath ſhed his invaluable precious Blood, or that he hath ſent forth the glorious Spirit of Holineſs, and all this to fit Men for no higher or nobler Employments than theſe?

Is this the end of thy wonderful Creation? Doth God whirl about the Heavens in endleſs revolutions, to beget time for this? Or doth he not rather expect that the weightieſt work ſhould engroſs thy greateſt ſtrength, and choiceſt hours? O, that I could once conſider, what a good Maſter Chriſtians ſerve, who will not only abundantly reward them at night? but brings them their Food into the Field to incourage them in their labour! What pity is it, that ſo good a Maſter ſhould be ſo badly ſerved as he hath been by me! Hark how he pleads to gain my Heart.

The POEM, by way of Dialogue betwixt Chriſt and the World.

CHRIST.

O Why ſo free of ſweat and time?
For what ere long will not be thine.
Or if it might, thou ſell'ſt to loſs,
A precious Soul, for laſting droſs.
Thoſe weary hands, and toyling brains,
Might be imploy'd for better gains.
Wouldſt thou but work as hard for me,
As for the World, which cozens thee;
Thy gains ſhould be a thouſand fold:
For my Revenu's more than gold.

WORLD.

Soul, I have always found thee willing,
Rather by me to earn a ſhilling;
Than truſt uncertain things which lye,
Beyond thee in Eternity.
Shall things unſeen now tempt thee? tuſh,
A Bird in hand's worth two i' th' buſh.
I pay thy wages down in hand,
This thou canſt feel, taſte, underſtand.
O let not ſuch a vain pretence,
Prevail againſt thy very ſence.

CHRIST.

Thus beaſts are led, thus birds are ſnar'd,
Thus ſouls for ruin are prepar'd.
What? truſt no farther than you ſee,
You'll truſt a thief as far as me.
Deluded wretch, will nought but ſight
And ſence convince thee? O how right,
How juſt is God? whoſe direful ſcourge
Such Arguments in Hell ſhall urge.

WORLD.

Chriſt threatens wrath to come, but I
Do threaten thee with poverty.
And why wilt thou thy ſelf, and thoſe
That are ſo dear, to wants expoſe?
Come, ſee the Saints; for all their brags,
How well they thrive, they'r cloth'd with rags.

CHRIST.

If my dear Saints in rags do go,
'Tis not Religion cloaths them ſo;

But by ſuch wants the Lord prepares
Their Souls, againſt thy killing ſnares.
They all are heirs, though under age,
Expectants of their heritage.
Kept ſhort for preſent, yet contemn
A change with thoſe, that ſcoff at them.

WORLD.

It is in vain to plead, for I
With preſent things charm powerfully.
What e're thou offer'ſt they'll deſpiſe;
I hold them priſoners by their Eyes.

CHRIST.

If they will ſerve no other Lord,
Then let it ſtand upon record
Againſt their Souls, that they refus'd
My wages, and my grace abus'd.

ANOTHER.

NOne will deny but thoſe are bleſſed pains,
which are attended with the richeſt gains.
Grant this, and then moſt clearly 'tis inferr'd,
Soul-work to all deſerves to be preferr'd.
This is an unknown trade, Oh, who can count,
To what the gains of godlineſs amount?
For one poor ſhilling, O, what risks ſome run?
Some toyling as i' th' fire, from Sun to Sun.
Whereas one hour ſpent with God brings in Such heavenly treaſures, that poor ſouls have been
Inrich'd for ever. Even as you ſee
A Princes Favourite upon the knee,
Can in an hours time more wealth obtain,
Than all your lives by labour you can gain.
Prayer-gains are great, and quick returns are made,
Sure then the Chriſtian drive the richeſt Trade.
'Tis true the Hypocrite that never drove
A ſerious trade for Heaven, may Bankrupt prove:
But holy Souls, which mind, and cloſely ply
Their buſineſs, greatly are inrich'd thereby.
The difference 'twixt the one, and t'other's beſt
By ſuch a Simile as this expreſt.
As in a Summers day you often ſee,
The wanton Butterfly, and painful Bee;
On Fragrant Flowers ſix, whence one doth ſtrive
To bear his precious burden to the Hive:
The others pains no profit with it brings,
His time is ſpent in painting of his wings.
When Winter comes the Bee hath full ſupplies,
The other creeps into an hole and dies.
Like different events ſhall be betwixt
The painful Saint, and lazy Notioniſt.

CHAP. III.

Upon the Chearfulneſs of the Husbandman.

The Plowman ſings and whiſtles though he ſweat,
Shall Chriſtians droop becauſe their work is great?

OBSERVATION.

THough the Labours of Husbandmen are very great and toylſome, yet with what chearfulneſs do they go through them? It is very delightful to hear the melody they make by whiſtling, as they follow the Plow; yea, the very Horſes have their Bells, which make a pleaſant noiſe. Horſes (ſaith Mr. Fuller) will do more for a whiſtle, than a whip; and their Bells do, as it were, gingle away their wearineſs. I have been often delighted with this Country Muſick, whereby they ſweeten their hard labours with an innocent Pleaſure, and verifie the ſaying of the Poet;

Tempus in argo rum cultu conſumere dulce eſt. Ovid.

Al'tho they Plow from morning until night,
Time ſteals away with pleaſure and delight.

APPLICATION.

BUT how much greater cauſe have the people of God to addreſs themſelves unto his work with all chearfulneſs of Spirit? And indeed, ſo far as the heart is ſpiritual, it delights in its Duties. 'Tis true, the work of a Chriſtian is painful, and much more ſpending, than the Husbandmans (as was opened Chap. 1.) but then it as much exceeds in the delights and pleaſures that attend it. What is the Chriſtians work, but with joy to draw water out of the wells of ſalvation? Iſa. 12. 3. You may ſee what a pleaſant path the path of Duty is, by the chearfulneſs of thoſe that have walked in them, Pſal. 119. 14. I have rejoiced in the way of thy judgments, as much as in all riches. And by the Promiſes that are made to ſuch, Pſal. 138. 5. Yea, they ſhall ſing in the ways of the Lord, for great is the glory of the Lord. And again, You ſhall have a ſong as in the night, when an holy ſolemnity is kept, and gladneſs of heart, as when one goeth with a pipe, to come to the mountai of the Lord, to the mighty one of Iſrael, Iſa. 30. 29.

And laſtly, By the many commands, whereby joy in the way of the Lord is made the Duty of the Saints. Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous, for praiſe i comely for the upright, Pſal. 97. 12. Rejoice, and agai I ſay rejoice, Philip. 4. 4. Where the command i doubled; yea, not only ſimple rejoycing, but the higheſt degree of that Duty comes within the command, Pſal. 132. 2, 16. Shout for joy all ye that are upright in heart. And Luke 6. 22, 23. they are bid to lea for joy, when about the difficult'ſt part of their wor And that you may ſee there is ſufficient ground fo it, and that it is not like the mad mirth of ſinners, b pleaſed to conſider.

1. The nature of the work about which they a imployed; it is the moſt excellent and heavenl Imployment that ever Souls were acquainted wit O what a raviſhing and delightſome thing it is to wal with God! And yet by this, the whole work of Chriſtian is expreſſed, Gen. 17. 1. Can any Life com pare with this for pleaſure? Can they be chill th walk in the Sun-ſhine? Or ſad, that abide in th Fountain of all delights? And walk with him who Name is the God of all Comfort, 2 Cor. 1. 3. whoſe preſence is the fulneſs of joy, Pſal. 16. 11. O wh an Angelical Life doth a Chriſtian then live?

Or, 2*ly*. If we conſider the variety of Spiritual E ployments varietas delectat. Change of Employme takes off the tediousneſs of labour. Variety of Voic pleaſe the Ear; variety of Colours delight the Ey the ſame Meat prepared ſeveral ways pleaſes the P late more, and clogs it leſs. But O the variety choice Diſhes wherewith God entertains his Peo in a Sabbath! As the Word, Prayer, Sacraments, & Iſa. 58. 13. If thou call the Sabbath thy deligh or, as, Tremelius renders it, thy delicate things. ſoul (ſaith David) ſhall be ſatisfied, as with marrow fatneſs, Pſal. 63. 5.

3. Or laſtly, If we conſider the ſuitableneſs of t work to a regenerate Soul. Is it any pain for a B to fly? Or a Fiſh to ſwim? Is the Eye tyred w beautiful Objects? Or the Ear with melodious ſoun As little can a Spiritual Soul be weaned with Sp tual and Heavenly exerciſes, Rom. 7. 22. I delight i Law of God after the inner man. Gravia non gravit corum loco (ſaith the Philoſopher) weighty things are not heavy in their own Element or Center. And ſurely, God is the Center of all gracious Spirits. A Saint can ſit from morning to night to hear diſcourſes of the love and lovelineſs of Jeſus Chriſt. The ſight of your thriving Flocks, and flouriſhing Fields, cannot yield you that pleaſure which an upright Soul can find in one quarter of an hours Communion with God. They hat are after the fleſh ( ſaith the Apoſtle , Rom. 8. 5.) o mind the things of the fleſh , and they that are after the pirit the things of the ſpirit. But then, look how much Heavenly Objects tranſcend earthly ones , and how much the Soul is more capable of delight in thoſe Objects , than the groſs and duller ſenſes are in heirs ; ſo much doth the pleaſure ariſing from the Duty, excel all ſenſitive delights on Earth.

REFLECTIONS.

The Carnal Hearts Reflection.

How am I caſt and condemned by this, may I ſay ; who never favoured this ſpiritual delight in holy Duties. When I am about my Earthly Employments, can go on unweariedly from day to day ; all the ay is down-hill to my Nature ; and the wheels of y Affections being oiled with carnal delight, runs o faſt, that they have need moſt times of trigging. Here I rather need the Curb than the Spur. O, how eet and nimble are my Spirits in theſe their urſuits ! But O, what a ſlug am in Religious Duties! ure if my Heart were renewed by Grace, I ſhould elight in the Law of God, Rom. 7. 22. All the World is alive in their ways , every Creature enjoys is proper pleaſure ; and is there no delight to be ound in the paths of holineſs ? is godlineſs only a ry Root that bears no pleaſant Fruits ? No , no here are doubtleſs incomparable pleaſures to be found herein ; but ſuch a carnal Heart as mine ſavours hem not.

he Hypocrites eflection.

I cannot ſay but I have found delight in Religious Duties, but they have been only ſuch as rather ſprang from the ſtentation of Gifts and Applauſes of men, than any weet and real Communion I have had with God hrough them ; they have rather proved Food and uel to my Pride, than Food to my Soul. Like the ightingale I can ſing ſweetly, when I obſerve others liſten to me, and be affected with my muſick. O, lſe deceitful Heart, ſuch delight as this will end in owling ! Were my Spirit right, it would as much elight in Retirements for the injoyment of God, as doth in thoſe Duties that are moſt expoſed to the bſervation of man. Will ſuch a ſpring as this mainin a ſtream of Affections, when carnal motives fail? hat wilt thou anſwer (O my Soul) to that queſtion, ob 27. 9, 10. Will God hear his cry when trouble comes on him ? Will he delight himſelf in the Almighty ? Will always call upon God ? What wilt thou reply to this eſtion ? Deceive not thou thy ſelf, O my Soul ! ou wilt doubtleſs be eaſily perſwaded to let go that ou never delighteſt in ; and from an Hypocrite Religion, quickly become an Apoſtate from Reion.

he upright Hearts flection.

From all this, the upright Heart takes advantage to rouze up its delight in God ; and thus it expoſtueth with it ſelf : Doth the plowman ſing amidſt drudging labours , and whiſtle away his weariſs in the Fields , and ſhall I droop amidſt ſuch Heavenly Employment ? O my Soul , what want'ſt thou here, to provoke thy delight ? If there be ſuch an Affection as delight in thee , methinks, ſuch an object as the bleſſed Face of God in Ordinances ſhould excite it. Ah, how would this ennoble all my Services, and make them Angel-like ! How glad are thoſe bleſſed Creatures to be imployed for God ? No ſooner were they created but they ſang together, and ſhouted for Joy, Job 38. 7. How did they fill the Air with heavenly Melody, when ſent to bring the joyful Tydings of a Saviour to the World ? Aſcribing glory to God in the higheſt, of their powers : Yea, this delight would make all my Duties Chriſtlike ; and the nearer that pattern , the more excellent. He delighted to do his Fathers will , it was to him meat and drink, Pſal. 40. 7. John 4. 32, 34.

Yea, it would not only ennoble, but facilitate all my Duties, and be to me as wings to a Bird in flying, or Sails to a Ship in motion. Non tardat uncta rota ; oyled Wheels run freely ; Or ever I was aware, my Soul made me like the Chariots of Aminadab. O ! what is the reaſon ( my God) my delight in thee ſhould be ſo little ? Is it not , becauſe my unbelief is ſo great ? Rouze up my delights, O thou Fountain of Pleaſure ! And let me ſwim down the ſtream of holy Joys in Duty, into the boundleſs Ocean of thoſe immenſe Delights that are in thy preſence, and at thy Right Hand for evermore.

CHAP. IV.

Upon the due quality of Arable Land.

Corn-Land muſt neither be too fat, nor poor;
The middle ſtate ſuits beſt with Chriſtians ſure.

OBSERVATION.

HUsbandmen find by experience, that their Arable Lands may be dreſt too much as well as too little. If the Soil be over-rank, the Seed ſhoots up ſo much into the ſtalk, that it ſeldom ears well; and if too thin and poor, it wants its due nutriment, and comes not to perfection. Therefore their care is to keep it in Heart but not to over-dreſs or under-dreſs it. The end of all their coſt and pains about it is Fruit; and therefore reaſon tells them, that ſuch a ſtate and temperament of it, as beſt fits it for Fruit, is beſt both for it and them.

APPLICATION.

AND doth not Spiritual Experience teach Chriſtians, that a mediocrity and competency of the things of this Life, beſt fits them for the Fruits of obedience, which is the end and excellency of their beings? A man may be overmercied, as well as overafflicted, Rare famant fœlicibus aræ, the Altars of the Rich ſeldome ſmoke. When our outward Enjoyments are by Providence ſhaped and fitted to our condition, as a Suit is to the Body, that ſits cloſe and neat, neither too curt nor long; we cannot deſire a better condition in this World. This was it that wiſe Agur requeſted of God, Prov. 30. 8, 9. Give me neither Poverty nor Riches, but feed me with food convenient for me, leſt I be full and deny thee, and ſay who is the Lord? Or leſt I be poor and ſteal, and take the name of my God in vain. Againſt both he prays equally, not abſolutely; that had been his ſin, but comparitively and ſubmiſſively to the will of God. He had rather, if God ſee it fit, to avoid both of theſe extreams; But what would he have then? why, Food convenient. Or, according to the Hebrew, give me my prey or ſtatute-bread; which is a Metaphor from Birds which fly up and down to prey for their young, and what they get they deſtribute among them; they bring them enough to preſerve their lives, but not more than enough to lye mouldering in the Neſt. Such a proportion Agur deſired; and the reaſon why he deſired it, is drawn from the danger of both the extreams. He meaſured (like a wiſe Chriſtian) the conveniency or inconveniency of his Eſtate in the World, by its ſuitableneſs or unſuitableneſs to the end of his being; which is the ſervice of God. He accounted the true excellency of his Life to conſiſt in its reference and tendency to the glory of his God; and he could not ſee how a redundancy, or too great a penury of earthly comforts, could fit him for that; but a middle ſtate equally removed from both extreams, beſt fitted that end. And this was all that good Jacob, who was led by the ſame Spirit, lookt at, Gen. 28. 20. And Jacob vowed a vow ſaying, if God will be with me, and keep me in the way that I go, and give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, ſo that I come again to my Fathers Houſe in peace, then ſhall the Lord be my God. Poor Jacob, he deſires no great matters in the World, Food and Raiment will ſatisfie him; in Spiritual things his deſires are boundleſs, he is the moſt greedy and unſatisfied Man in the World, Hoſ. 12. 4. but in the matters of this life, if he can get from God but Offam & aquam, a morſel of Meat, and a mouthfull of Water, he will not envy the richeſt Cræſſus or Craſſus upon Earth. Cibus & potus ſunt divitiæ Chriſtianorum. Meat and Drink are the riches of Chriſtians. Divitiæ ſunt ad legem naturæ compoſita paupertas (ſaith Pomponius Atticus) Riches are ſuch a Poverty or Mediocrity, as hath enough for natures uſes; and ſuch a ſtate is beſt accommodated, both to the condition and to the deſires of a Saint.

1. To his condition, For what is a Saint but a Stranger and Pilgrim upon Earth, a Man in a ſtrange Countrey travelling homeward? So David profeſſes himſelf, Pſal. 119. 19. I am a ſtranger in this earth. And ſo thoſe Worthies, who are now at home in Heaven, Heb. 11. 13. they profeſſed themſelves to be Strangers and Pilgrims upon Earth, and to ſeek a Countrey; a viaticum contents a Traveller, he will not cumber himſelf with ſuperfluous things which would rather clog and tire than expedite and help him in his Journey.

2. It ſuits beſt with his deſires, I mean his regular and adviſed deſires. For,

1. A gracious Soul earneſtly deſires a free condition in the World, he is ſenſible he hath much work to do, a race to run, and is loth to be clog'd, or have his Foot in the Snare of the Cares or Pleaſures of this Life. He knows that fulneſs expoſes to wantonneſs and irreligion, Deut. 6. 12. Hoſ. 13. 6. 'Tis hard, in the midſt of ſo many tempting objects, to keep the golden Bridle of moderation upon the Affections. The Heart of a Chriſtian, like the Moon, commonly ſuffers an Eclipſe when it is at the full, and that by the interpoſition of the Earth.

It was Solomon's fulneſs that drew out and diſſolved his Spirits, and brought him to ſuch a low ebb in Spirituals, that it remains a queſtion with ſome, Whether he ever recovered it to his dying day. As it is the miſery of the poor to be neglected of Men, ſo it is the miſery of the rich to neglect God. Who can be poorer, than to have the World, and love it? Or richer, than to enjoy but little of it, and live above it?

And on the other ſide, extream poverty is no leſs expoſed to ſin and danger, Levit. 6. 2, 3, 4. As high and lofty Trees are ſubject to Storms and Tempeſts, ſo the loweſt Shrubs to be brows'd on by every Beaſt; and therefore, a Saint deſires a juſt competency a the fitteſt, becauſe the freeſt ſtate.

2. A gracious Perſon deſires no more but a competency, becauſe there is moſt of God's love and ca diſcovered in giving in our daily Bread, by a dail Providence. It is betwixt ſuch a condition, and fulneſs of Creature-proviſions in our land, as it wa betwixt Egypt and Canaan; Egypt was watered wi the foot from the River Nilus, and little of God w ſeen in that mercy; but Canaan depended upon th dews and ſhowers of Heaven; and ſo every ſhower rain was a refreſhing ſhower to their Souls as well Bodies. Moſt men that have a ſtock of Creatur comforts in their hands look upon all as coming in a ordinary natural courſe, and ſee very little of G in their mercies. Pope Adrian built a Colledge Louvain, and cauſed this inſcription to be written Letters of Gold on the Gates thereof; Traject plantavit, Louvanium rigavit, Cæſer dedit incrementu (i.e.) Utrecht planted me, Louvain water'd me, a Cæſar gave the increaſe. One to reprove his fo wrote underneath, Hic Deus nihil fecit; Here G did nothing. Carnal men, they ſow, and reap, a eat, and look no further.

But now, when a man ſees his mercies come in the ſpecial and aſſiduous care of God for him, th is a double ſweetneſs in thoſe mercies; the natural ſweetneſs which comes from the Creature it ſelf, every one, even the Beaſts can taſte that as well as thee; but beſides that, there is a Spiritual ſweetneſs, far exceeding the former, which none but a believer taſtes; and much of that comes from the manner in which he receives it, becauſe it comes (be it never ſo courſe or little) as a Covenant-mercy to him. He hath given bread to them that fear him, he is ever mindful of his Covenant, Pſal. 111. 5. Luther, who made many a Meal upon a broiled Herring, was wont to ſay, Mendicato pane hic vivamus, an non hoc pulchre ſarcitur in eo, quod paſcimur pane cum angelis & vita æterna, Chriſto & Sacramentis; Let us be content with courſe fare here, have we not the Bread that came down from Heaven? Do we not feed with Angels? A pregnant inſtance of the ſweetneſs of ſuch mercies, is given us by a worthy Divine of our own Mr. Iſaac Ambroſe.

Epiſtle to the Earl of Bedford; ante ultima.

'For mine own part (ſaith he) however the Lord hath ſeen cauſe to give me but a poor pittance of outward things (for which I bleſs his Name) yet in the income thereof, I have many times obſerv'd ſo much of his peculiar Providence, that thereby they have been very much ſweetened, and my Heart hath been raiſed to admire his Grace. When of late under an hard diſpenſation (which I judge not meet to mention, wherein I ſuffered with inward peace conſcientiouſly) all ſtreams of wonted ſupplies being ſtopt, the Waters of relief for my ſelf and Family did run low. I went to Bed with ſome ſtaggerings and doubtings of the Fountains letting out it ſelf for our refreſhing; but ere I did awake in the morning, a Letter was brought to my Bed-ſide, which was ſigned by a choice Friend Mr. Anthony Aſh, which reported ſome unexpected breakings out of God's goodneſs for my comfort. Theſe are ſome of his Lines—Your God, who hath given you an Heart thankfully to record your experiences of his goodneſs, doth renew experiences for your encouragement. Now I ſhall report one which will raiſe your Spirit towards the God of your Mercy, &c. Whereupon he ſweetly concludes, 'One morſel of God's Proviſion, (eſpecially if it come unexpected, and upon Prayer, when wants are moſt) will be more ſweet to a Spiritual reliſh, than all former full Enjoyments were.

Many Mercies come unask'd for, and they require thankfulneſs, but when Mercies come in upon Prayer, and as a return of Prayer, their ſweetneſs more than doubles; for now it's both God's bleſſing upon his own inſtitution, and Seal ſet to his Promiſe at once, Pſal. 66. 16, 17. Doubtleſs Hannah found more comfort in her Samuel, and Rachel in her Naphtali, (the one being ask'd of God, and the other wreſtled for with God, (as their Names import) than Mothers ordinarily do in their Children.

REFLECTIONS.

The Reflection of the deſigning Hypocrite.

Do the people of God deſire only ſo much of the Creature as may fit them for the ſervice of God? What a wretch am I that have deſired only ſo much of Religion as may fit me to gain the Creature! As God's people have ſubjected all their Creature-enjoyments to Religion, ſo oppoſitely, O my Soul, thou haſt ſubjected Religion to thy worldly intereſt and deſigns. Inſtead of eating and drinking to ſerve God, I have ſerved God that I might eat and drink; yea, I have not only acted below Religion, but below reaſon alſo; for reaſon dictates plainly, that the means muſt never be more excellent than the end. Wretch that I am, to make Religion a Slave to my Luſt, a Stirrupt to Advancement, an Artifice to carry on my carnal Deſigns: Verily I have my reward; and this is all the good I am ever like to get by it.

The Worldlings Reflection.

And no leſs ſhould the Worldling tremble, to conſider how he hath caſt off the Duties of Religion, made them ſtand aſide, and give place to the world. Inſtead of deſiring ſo much only as might make him ſerviceable to God, he thruſts aſide the ſervice of God to get as much of the world as he can, who is ſo far from making godlineſs the end of his Creature-comforts, that he rather looks upon it as an obſtacle and hindrance to them. May not the very Heathens make me bluſh? Could Ariſtotle deliver this as a true rule to Proſperity, to make Religion our firſt and chief care? Could Ariſtippus ſay, He would rather neglect his Means than his Mind? His Farm than his Soul? Will the very Mahometans, how urgent ſoever their buſineſs be, lay it all aſide, five times in the day to pray? Yea is it common to a Proverb among the very Papiſts, that Maſs and Meat hinders no Man, and yet I that profeſs my ſelf a Chriſtian, thruſt out Duty for every trifle? O wretched Soul! how hath the God of this world blinded mine Eyes? Can the world indeed do that for me, that Chriſt can do? Hath it ever proved true to them that truſted it and doated on it? Hath it not at laſt turn'd them off as Men turn off a Sumpter Horſe at night, that hath been a drudge to carry their Gold and Silver for them all day, and at laſt is turn'd out with an empty Belly, and a galled Back? O how righteous will that ſentence of God be? Go cry to the Gods whom thou haſt ſerved!

The Gracious Soul's Reflection.

And may not many gracious hearts turn in upon themſelves with ſhame and ſorrow, to conſider how unſatisfied they have heen in that condition, that others have preferr'd and eſteem'd as the greateſt of all outward Mercies? I have indeed been fed with Food convenient, but not contented: Now hath my Heart been tortured from day to day with anxious thoughts, what I ſhall eat and drink, and wherewith I and mine ſhould be cloathed? I pretend indeed that I care but for a competency of the world, but ſure I am, my cares about it have been incompetent. Come my diſtruſtful earthly heart, let me propound a few queſtions to thee about this matter, and anſwer truly to what I ſhall demand of thee.

Queſt. 1. Haſt thou here a continuing City? Art thou at home, or upon thy Journey, that thou art ſo ſollicitous about the world? Thy Profeſſion indeed ſpeaks thee a ſtranger upon Earth, but thy Converſation a home-dweller. Eraſmus ſaid, he deſired Honours and Riches, no more than a weary Horſe doth a heavy Cloak-bag. Wouldſt thou not account him a Fool that would Victual his Ship as much to croſs the Channel to France, as if ſhe were bound for the Eaſt-Indies? Alas! it will be but a little while, and then there will be no more need of any of thoſe things. 'Tis ſad, that a Soul which ſtands at the door of Eternity, ſhould be perplexing it ſelf about Food and Raiment.

Queſt. 2. Which of all the Saints haſt thou known to be the better for much of the world? It hath been ſome Mens utter ruin. Seldom doth God ſuffer Men to be their own Carvers, but they cut their own Fingers. To give Riches and Pleaſure to an evil man (ſaith Ariſtotle) is but to give Wine to one that hath a Fever. Where there is no want, there is uſually much wantonneſs. What a ſad ſtory was that of Pius Quintus ; When I was in a low condition ( ſaid he) I had ſome comfortable hopes of my Salvation, but when I came to be a Cardinal, I greatly doubted of it ; but ſince I came to the Popedom, I have no hope at all. Though this poor undone wretch ſpake it out, and others keep it in, yet doubtleſs he hath many thouſand Fellows in the world that might ſay as much, would they but ſpeak the truth.

And even God's own people, though the world hath not excluded them out of Heaven, yet it hath ſorely clogg'd them in the way thither. Many that have been very humble, holy and heavenly in a low condition, have ſuffered a ſad ebb in a full condition. What a cold blaſt have they felt coming from the Cares and Delights of this Life, to chill both their Graces and Comforts! It had been well for ſome of God's people, if they had never known what proſperity meant.

Queſt. 3. Is not this a ſad Symptom of a declining ſtate of Soul, to be ſo hot, eager, and anxious about the ſuperfluous triſtes of this Life? Think'ſt thou, O my Soul! that one who walks in the views of that Glory above, and maintains a Converſation in Heaven, can be much taken with theſe Vanities? Do not the Viſions of God veil the tempting ſplendor of the Creature! It was the Opinion of ſome of the School-men, that the reaſon why Adam in Paradiſe was not ſenſible of his nakedneſs, was becauſe he was wholly taken up in converſing with God. But this is certain, lively and ſweet Communion with God, blunts and dulls the edge of the Affections to earthly things; and canſt thou be ſatisfied my Soul with ſuch gains as are attended with ſuch Spiritual Loſſes?

Queſt. 4. To conclude, is it not diſhonourable to God, and a juſtification of the way of the world, for me that profeſs my ſelf a Chriſtian to be as eager after Riches as other Men? After all theſe things do the nations ſeek, Mat. 6. 32. If I had no Father in Heaven, nor Promiſe in the Word, it were another matter ; but ſince my heavenly Father knows what I have need of, and hath charged me to be careful in nothing, but only tell him my wants, Phil. 4. 6. How unbecoming a thing is it in me to live and act as I have done! Let me henceforth learn to meaſure and eſtimate my condition, rather by its uſefulneſs to God, than its content and eaſe to my Fleſh.

CHAP. V.

Upon the Improvement of Bad Ground.

Spent barren Land, you can reſtore and nouriſh,
Decayed Chriſtians, God can cauſe to flouriſh.

OBSERVATION.

WHere Land is ſpent out by Tillage, or for want of Manuring, the careful Husbandman hath many ways to recover and bring it in heart again. He lets it lye fallow to give it reſt, and time to recover it ſelf, carries out his Sand, Lime, and Compoſt, to refreſh and quicken it again, and in Paſture and Meadow-ground, will waſh it ( if poſſible) with a current of Water, or the float of the ways after a fall of Rain, which is to the Earth as a Spring of new Blood to a Conſumptive Body. He cuts down and kills the Weeds that ſuck it out and cauſes them to make reſtitution of what they have purloined from it, by rooting upon the place where they grew. As careful are they to recover it when it is ſpent, as an honeſt Phyſician is of his Patient in a languiſhing condition, for he knows his Field will be as grateful to him, and fully requite his Care and Coſt.

APPLICATION.

AS Man's, ſo God's Husbandry is ſometimes out of caſe, not by yielding too many Crops but too few. The Myſtical Husbandman hath ſome Fields, ( I mean particular Societies and Perſons who were once fragrant and fruitful like a Field which God had bleſſed, but are now decayed and grown barren ; whoſe gleanings formerly, were more than their Vintage now ; the things that are in them are ready to dye, Rev. 3. 3. 'Tis poſſible, yea, too common for gracious Souls to be reduced to a very low ebb, both of Graces and Comforts ; how low will not ſay : Our Britiſh Divines tell us, That Grace indeed cannot be totally intermitted, nor finally loſt ; but there may be an omiſſion of the Act, though not an omiſſion of the Habit: The Act may be perverted, though the Faith cannot be ſubverted ; it may be ſhaken in, though not ſhaken out ; its Fruits may fall, but its Sap lyes hid in the Root ; they demerit the loſs of the Kingdom, but loſe it not effectively ; the effect of Juſtification may be ſuſpended, but the ſtate of the Juſtified cannot de diſſolved.

Gates of Death, crying, O wretched man that I am, who ſhall deliver me from the body of this death? One that ath walked in ſweet Communion with God,ſunning himſelf in the light of his Countenance, may afterwards walk in darkneſs, and ſee no light, Iſa. 50. 10. He hat hath caſt Anchor within the Veil and rode ſeurely in the peaceful harbour of aſſurance, may eem to feel his Anchor of Hope come home to him, nd go adrift into the ſtormy Ocean again, crying ith the Church, Lam. 3. 18. My hope is periſhed from be Lord. His calm and clear Air may be over-caſt nd clouded, yea, filled with Storms and Tempeſts, Lightnings and Thunders; his Graces, like underround Flowers in the Winter, may all diſappear,and ide their beautiful heads.

To God he may ſay, I am caſt out of thy ſight; I now thou canſt do much, but wilt thou ſhew wonders to the dead?

To the Promiſes he may ſay, you are ſweet things ndeed, but what have I to do with you? I could nce indeed rejoyce in you as my portion; but now doubt I graſped a ſhadow, a fancy inſtead of you. To Saints he may ſay, turn away from me, labour ot to comfort me, O do not ſpill your precious Ointments of Conſolation upon my Head; for what ave I to do with Comfort. To former Experiences, he ay ſay in his haſte, you are all Liars. To the ght of God's Countenance, he may ſay, farewell ſweet ght, I ſhall behold thee no more. To Satan, he may y, O mine Enemy, thou haſt at laſt prevailed ainſt me, thou art ſtronger than I, and haſt overme. To Duties and Ordinances, he may ſay, where is e ſweetneſs I once found in you? You were once eeter to me than the Honey-comb; but now as ſteleſs as the white of an Egg. O ſad relapſe! deored change! quantum mutatus ab illo?

But will God leave his poor Creatures helpleſs ſuch a caſe as this? Shall their Leaf fall, their anches wither, their Joy, their Life, their Heart part? Will he ſee their Graces fainting, their opes gaſping, the new Creature panting, the things at are in them ready to die, and will he not regard ? Yes, yes, There is hope of a Tree if it be cut down, and root thereof wax old in the earth, yet by the ſcent of ter it will bud, and bring forth boughs like a plant, Job 8, 9. This poor declined Soul, as ſad as it ſits at Gates of Hell, may rouze up it ſelf at laſt, and to Satan that ſtands triumphing over him, Rejoyce over me, O mine Enemy for though I fall, yet I ſhall ariſe; gh I ſit in darkneſs, the Lord ſhall be a light unto me, c. 7. 8. He may raiſe up himſelf upon his Bed of guiſhing for all this, and ſay to God, Though thou chaſtened me ſore, yet haſt thou not given me over unto th. He may turn about to the Saints that have urned for him, and with a lightſome Countence, ſay, I ſhall not die but live, and declare the words be Lord. He may ſay to the Promiſes, you are the true faithfull ſayings of God, my unbelief did belye : I ſaid in my haſte you were Liars, but I eat words, I am aſhamed of my folly. Surely, O Soul, e is yet hope in thine end, thou maiſt be reſtored, 23. 3. thou maiſt yet recover thy verdure, and Dew be as the Dew of Herbs. For,

. Is he not thy Father, and a Father full of Comions and Bowels? And can a Father ſtand by his g Child, ſee his fainting Fits, hear his melting ns, and pity-begging looks; and not help him cially having Reſtoratives by him, that can do Surely, As a Father pities his own Children, ſo will God pity thee, Pſal. 103. 12, 13. He will ſpare thee Father ſpareth his own Son that ſerves him, Mark 3. 17. Hark, how his Bowels yearn! I have ſurely heard Ephraim bemoaning himſelf, is not Ephraim my dear Son? is he not a pleaſant Child? for ſince I ſpake againſt him, I do earneſtly remember him ſtill, I will ſurely have mercy on him, Jer. 31. 20.

2. Doth he not know thy Life would be altogether uſeleſs to him, if he ſhould not reſtore thee? What ſervice art thou fit to perform to him, in ſuch a condition? Thy days will conſume like ſmoke, whilſt thy heart is ſmitten and withered like graſs, Pſal. 102. 3, 4. Thy Months will be Months of Vanity,they will fly away, and ſee no good, Job 7. 3. If he will but quicken thee again, then thou muſt call upon his Name Pſal. 80. 18. but in a dead and languiſhing condition, thou art no more fit for any work of God,than a ſick Man is for manual Labours; and ſurely he hath not put thoſe precious and excellent Graces of his Spirit within thee for nothing; they were planted there for Fruit and Service, and therefore doubtleſs he will revive thee again.

3. Yea, doſt thou not think he ſees thine inability to bear ſuch a condition long? He knows thy Spirit would fail before him, and the Soul which he hath made, Iſa. 57. 16. David told him as much, in the like condition, Pſal. 143. 7, 8. Hear me ſpeedily, O Lord, for my Spirit faileth; hide not thy Face from me, leſt I be like unto thoſe that go down into the Pit; q. d. Lord, make haſte and recover my languiſhing Soul; otherwiſe, whereas thou haſt now a ſick Child, thou wilt ſhortly have a dead Child.

And in like manner Job expoſtulated with him, Job 6, 1. 2. 3, 11, 12. My grief is heavier than the ſand of the Sea, my words are ſwallowed up, for the Arrows of the Almighty are within me; and the poyſon thereof drinks up my ſpirits: The Terrors of God do ſet themſelves in array againſt me, what is my ſtrength that I ſhould hope? is my ſtrength the ſtrength of ſtones? or are my bones of braſs? So Chap. 7. 12. Am I a Sea, or a Whale? &c. Other Troubles a Man may, but this he cannot bear, Prov. 18. 14. And therefore doubtleſs ſeaſonable and gracious revivings will come, He will not ſtir up all his wrath, for he remembers thou art but fleſh, a wind that paſſeth away, and cometh not again, Pſa. 78. 38, 39, He hath ways enough to do it, if he do but unvail his bleſſed Face, and make it ſhine again upon thee, Thou art ſaved, Pſa. 80. 3. The manifeſtations of his love, will be to thy Soul, as ſhowers to the parched Graſs; thy Soul that now droops and hangs the Wing, ſhall then revive and and leap for joy, Iſa. 61. 1. A new Face ſhall come upon thy Graces, they ſhall bud again, and bloſſom as a Roſe if he do but ſend a ſpring of Auxiliary Grace into thy Soul to actuate the dull habits of inherent Grace, the work is done; then ſhalt thou return to thy firſt works again, Rev. 2, 4. 5. and ſing, as in the days of thy youth.

REFLECTIONS.

O this is my very caſe, ſaith many a poor Chriſtian; this my Soul languiſhes and droops from day to day. 'Tis good news indeed, that God both can and will reſtore my Soul, but ſad that I ſhould fall into ſuch a ſtate. How unlike am I to what once I was? Surely, as the old Men wept, when they ſaw how ſhort the ſecond Temple came of the glory of the firſt, ſo may I ſit down and weep bitterly, to conſider how much my firſt Love, and firſt Duties excelled the preſent. For,

1. I

A Convictive Reflection.

1. Is my Heart ſo much in Heaven now, as it was wont to be? Say, O my Soul! doſt thou not remember, when like the beloved Diſciple thou layeſt in Jeſus Boſom? How didſt thou ſweeten Communion with him? How reſtleſs and impatient waſt thou in his abſence! Divine withdrawments were to thee as the Hell of Hell: What a burden was the world to me in thoſe days! Had it not been for Conſcience of my Duty, I could have been willing to let all lye, that Communion with Chriſt might ſuffer no interruption. When I awaked in the night, how was the darkneſs inlightned by the heavenly glimpſes of the Countenance of my God upon me? How did his Company ſhorten thoſe hours, and beguile the tediouſneſs of the night? O my Soul, ſpeak thy experience, is it now as it was then! No, no, thoſe days are paſt and gone, and thou become much a ſtranger to that Heavenly Life. Art thou able with truth to deny this charge; When occaſionally I paſs by thoſe places, which were once to me as Jacob's Bethel to him; I ſigh at the remembrance of former paſſages betwixt me and Heaven there; and ſay with Job, Chap. 29. O that it were with me as in months paſt, as in the days when God preſerved me, when his Candle ſhined upon my head, when by his light I walked through darkneſs, when the Almighty was yet with me, when I put on righteouſneſs and it cloathed me, when my glory was freſh in me! When I remember theſe things, my Soul is poured out within me.

2. Is thy obedience to the commands of Chriſt, and motions to Duty, as free and chearful as they were wont to be? Call to mind, my Soul, the Times when thou waſt born down the ſtream of love to every Duty, if the Spirit did but whiſper to thee, ſaying, Seek my face, How did my Spirit eccho to his calls? ſaying, Thy face Lord will I ſeek, Pſal. 27. 8. If God had any work to be done, How readily did I offer my ſervice? Here am I, Lord, ſend me. My Soul made me like the Chariots of Aminadab; Love oyled the Wheels of my Affections, and his commandments were not grievous, 1 John 5. 3. Non tardat uncta rota. There were no ſuch quarrellings with the command, no ſuch excuſes and delays as there are now. No, ſuch was my Love to Chriſt, and delight to do his will, that I could no more keep back my ſelf from Duty, than a man that's carried away in a Crowd.

Or laſtly, tell me, O my Soul, doſt thou bemoan thy ſelf, or grieve ſo tenderly for Sin, and for grieving the Holy Spirit of God, as thou waſt wont to do? When formerly I had fallen by the hand of a Temptation. How was I wont to lye in Tears at the Lord's Feet, bemoaning my ſelf? How did I haſten to my Cloſet, and there cry, like Ezra, Chap. 9. 6. O my God, I am aſhamed, and bluſh to look up unto thee. How did I ſigh and weep before him, and, like Ephraim, ſmite upon my Thigh, ſaying, What have I done? Ah my Soul! How didſt thou work, ſtrive, and caſt about how to recover thy ſelf again? Haſt thou forgotten how thou wouldſt ſometimes look up and ſigh bitterly? Ah! What a God have I provoked? What Love and Goodneſs have I abuſed? Sometimes look in and weep, Ah! What motions did I withſtand? What a good Spirit have I grieved? Ah, my Soul, thou wouldſt have abhor'd thy ſelf, thou could'ſt never have born it, had thine Heart been as ſtupid and as reſtleſs then as now, if ever a poor Soul had reaſon to diſſolve it ſelf into Tears for its ſad Relapſes, I have.

2. But yet Mourn not, O my Soul, as one without hope. Remember, There is hope in Iſrael concerning this thing. As low as thy condition is, it is not deſperate, it is not a Diſeaſe that ſcorns a Remedy; many a Man that hath been ſtretcht out for dead, hath revived again, and lived many a comfortable day in the World; many a Tree that hath caſt both Leaf and Fruit, by the skill of a prudent Husbandman, hath been recovered again, and made both flouriſh and fruitful. Is it not eaſier think'ſt thou, to recover a languiſhing Man to health, than a dead Man to Life? And yet this God did for me, Eph. 2. 1. Is any thing too hard for the Lord? Tho' my Soul draw nigh to the Pit, and my Life to the deſtroyers, yet he can ſend me a meſſenger, one among a thouſand, that ſhall declare to me my uprightneſs; then ſhall he deliver me from going down into the Pit, my fleſh ſhall be freſher than a Child's, and I ſhall return to the days of my youth, Job 33. 22. Though my flouriſh, and much of my Fruit too be gone, and I am a withering Tree; yet as long as the Root of the matter is in me, there is more hope of ſuch a poor, decayed, withered Tree, than of the Hypocrite that wants ſuch a Root, in all his glory and bravery. His Sun ſhall ſet, and never riſe again; but I live in expectation of a ſweet Morning, after this dark Night.

Rouze up therefore, O my Soul, ſet thy Faith a work on Chriſt for quickning Grace, for he hath Life in himſelf, and quickens whomſoever he will, John 7. 38. Stir up that little which remains, Rev. 3. 2. Haſt thou not ſeen lively flames proceed from glimmering and dying ſparks, when carefully collected and blown up? Get amongſt the moſt lively and quickning Chriſtians; as iron ſharpens iron, ſo will theſe ſet an edge upon thy dull affections, Prov. 27. 17. Acts 18. 15. But above all, cry mightily to the Lord for quickning, he will not deſpiſe thy cry. The moans of a diſtreſſed Child, work upon the Bowels of a tender Father. And be ſure to keep within thy view, the great things of Eternity, which are ready to be revealed; live in the believing and ſerious Contemplations of them, and be dead if thou canſt. 'Tis true, thou haſt reaſon enough from thy condition, to be for ever humbled; but no reaſon at all from thy God, to be in the leaſt diſcouraged.

CHAP. VI.

Upon the Uncurableneſs of ſome Bad Ground.

No skill can mend the Miry Ground, and ſure
Some Souls the Goſpel leaves as paſt a Cure.

OBSERVATION.

ALthough the Induſtry and Skill of the Husbandman can make ſome Ground that was uſeleſs nd bad, good for Tillage or Paſture, and improve at which was barren; and by his coſt and pains ake an Acre worth ten; yet ſuch is the nature of me rocky or miry ground, where the Water ſtands, d there is no way to cleanſe it, that it can never made fruitful. The Husbandman is fain to let it one, as an incurable piece of waſte and worthleſs ound; and though the Sun and Clouds ſhed their fluences on it, as well as upon better Land, yet at doth not at all mend it. Nay, the more Shows it receives, the worſe it proves. For theſe do no ay fecundate or improve it; nothing thrives there, t worthleſs Flags and Ruſhes.

APPLICATION.

MAny alſo there are under the Goſpel, who are given over by God to judicial blindneſs, hard-ſs of heart, a reprobate ſenſe, and perpetual bar-nneſs; ſo that how excellent ſoever the means are ich they enjoy, and how efficacious ſoever to the onverſion, Edification and Salvation of others; t they ſhall never do their Souls good, Ezek. 47. 11. Every thing whereſoever the River comes ſhall live, the miry places thereof, and the Marſhes thereof ſhall ver be healed, but be given to ſalt; (i. e.) given to an obſtinate and everlaſting barrenneſs. Compare Deut. 9. 23. By theſe Waters, ſaith Judicious Mr. Strong, underſtand the Doctrine of the Goſpel, as Rev. 21. a River of Water of Life, clear as Cryſtal. Hic ius eſt uberrima doctrina Chriſti, ſaith Mr. Brightman. is River is the moſt fruitful Doctrine of Chriſt, theſe Waters do not heal the miry Marſh places, e.) men that live unfruitfully under Ordinances, o are compared to miry Marſh places in three pects.

ritual Barneſs. p. 8.

(1.) In miry places the Water hath not free paſſage, but ſtands and ſettles there. So it is with theſe barren Souls; therefore the Apoſtle prays, that the Goſpel may run and be glorified, 2 Theſ. 3. 1. The Word is ſaid to run, when it meets with no ſtop, Cum libere propagator, when it is freely propagated, and runs through the whole Man; when it meets with no ſtop either in the mouth of the Speaker, or Hearts of the Hearers, as it doth in theſe.

(2.) In a miry place, the Earth and Water is mixt together; this mixture makes mire. So when the Truths of God do mix with the Corruptions of Men, that they either hold ſome Truths, and yet live in their Luſts; or elſe when Men do make uſe of the Truths of God to juſtifie and plead for their Sins. Or.

(3.) When as in a Miry place, the longer the Water ſtands in it, the worſe it grows; ſo the longer men abide under Ordinances, the more filthy and polluted they grow: Theſe are the miry places that cannot be healed, their Diſeaſes incurable, deſperate.

O this is a ſad caſe, and yet very common! Many Perſons are thus given over as incorrigible and hopeleſs, Rev. 22. 11. Let him that is filthy, be filthy ſtill. Jer. 6. 29. Reprobate ſilver ſhall men call them, for the Lord hath rejected them. Iſa. 6. Go make the heart of this people fat, their ears dull, &c.

Chriſt executes, by the Goſpel, that Curſe upon many Souls, which he denounced againſt the Figtree, Mat. 21. 19. Let no fruit grow on thee henceforth for ever, and immediately the fig-tree withered away. To be given up to ſuch a condition, is a fearful Judgment indeed, a Curſe with a witneſs; the ſum of all Plagues, miſeries and Judgments, a fatal ſtroke at the Root it ſelf. It's a woe to have a bad Heart, (ſaith one) but its the depth of woe, to have a Heart that ſhall never be made better. To be barren under the Goſpel is a ſore Judgment, but to have that pertinax ſterilitas, a pertinacious barrenneſs; this is to be twice dead, and pluckt up by the Root, as Jude ſpeaks.

And to ſhew you the woful and miſerable ſtate and plight of ſuch Men, let the following particulars be weighed.

(1.) It's a ſtroke at the Soul it ſelf; and inward Spiritual Judgment; and by how much the more inward and ſpiritual any Judgment is, by ſo much the more dreadful and lamentable. As Soul-mercies are the beſt of Mercies; ſo Soul-judgments are the ſaddeſt of all Judgments. If it were but a Temporal ſtroke upon the Body, the loſs of an Eye, an Ear, a Hand, a Foot, tho' in it ſelf it would be a conſiderable loſs; yet it were nothing to this. Omnia Deus dedit auplicta (ſaith Chryſoſtum) ſpeaking of bodily Members; God hath given Men double Members, two Eyes, if one be loſt, the other ſupplies its wants; two Hands, two Ears, two Feet, that the failing of one, may be ſupplied by the help of the other; Animam vero unam; but one Soul, if that periſh, there is not another to ſupply its loſs. The Soul, ſaith a Heathen, is the Man, that which is ſeen is not the Man. The Apoſtle calls the Body, a vile Body, Phil. 3. 21. and ſo it is compared with the Soul; and Daniel calls it the Sheath; which is but a contemptible thing to the Sword, which is in it. O it were far better that many Bodies periſh, than one Soul; that every Member were made the ſeat and ſubject of the moſt exquiſite Torture, than ſuch a Judgment ſhould fall upon the Soul.

'Ουκ ἐϛιν ἄνθρωπος τὸ ὁρώμενον. Plato.

(2.) It's the ſevereſt ſtroke God can inflict upon the Soul in this Life, to give it up to barrenneſs; becauſe becauſe it cuts off all hopes, fruſtrates all means, nothing can be a bleſſing to him. If one come from the dead, if Angels ſhould deſcend from Heaven to preach to him; there is no hope of him. If God ſhut up a Man, who can open? Job 12. 14. As there was none found in Heaven or Earth that could open the Seals of that Book, Rev. 5. 5. ſo is there no opening by the hand of the moſt able and skilful Miniſtry, thoſe Seals of hardneſs, blindneſs, and unbelief, thus impreſſed upon the Spirit. Whom Juſtice ſo locks up, Mercy will never let out. This is that which makes up the Anathema Maranatha, 1 Cor. 16. 22. which is the dreadfulleſt Curſe in all the Book of God, accurſed till the Lord come.

( 3. ) 'Tis the moſt indiſcernable ſtroke to themſelves that can be, and by that ſo much the more deſperate. Hence there is ſaid to be poured out upon them the Spirit of ſlumber, Iſa. 29. 10. The Lord hath poured out upon you the Spirit of deep ſleep, and hath cloſed your Eyes. Montanus renders it, The Lord hath mingled upon you the Spirit of deep ſleep. And ſo it is an Alluſion to a Soporiferous Medicine mingled, and made up of Opium, and ſuch like ſtupifactive Ingredients, which caſts a Man into ſuch a deep ſleep, that do what you will to him, he feels, he knows it not. Make their Eyes heavy, and their ears dull; leſt they ſhould ſee, and hear, and be converted, Iſa. 6. 9, 10. This is the Heart that cannot repent, which is ſpoken of, Rom. 2. 5. For men are not ſenſible at all of this Judgment, they do not in the leaſt ſuſpect it, and that is their miſery. Though they be curſed Trees which ſhall never bear any Fruit to Life, yet many times they bear abundance of other fair and pleaſant Fruits to the Eye, excellent Gifts, and rare Endowments; and theſe deceive and undo them. Mat. 7. 22. We have propheſied in thy name; this makes the Wound deſperate, that there is no finding of it, no probe to ſearch it.

( 4. ) 'Tis a ſtroke that cuts off from the Soul all the comfort and ſweetneſs of Religion. A man may pray, hear, and confer, but all thoſe Duties are dry ſtalks unto him, which yield no meat, no ſolid ſubſtantial nutriment; ſome common touches upon the Affections he may ſometimes find in Duty, the melting Voice or Rhetorick of the Preacher may perhaps ſtrike his natural Affections, as another Tragical Story Pathetically delivered may do; but to have any real Communion with God in Ordinances, any Diſcoveries or Views of the Beauty of the Lord in them, that he cannot have; for theſe are the ſpecial Effects and Operations of the Spirit, which are always reſtrained.

God hath ſaid to ſuch, as he did to them, Gen. 6. 3. My Spirit ſhall no longer ſtrive with them; and then what ſweetneſs is there in Ordinances? What is the Word ſeparated from the Spirit but a dead Letter? It's the Spirit that quickens, 2. Cor. 3. 2. Friend, thou muſt know that the Goſpel works not like a natural Cauſe upon thoſe that hear it; if ſo, the effect would always follow, unleſs miraculouſly ſtopt and hindred; but it works like a moral inſtituted Cauſe, whoſe efficacy and ſucceſs depends upon the arbitrary concurrence of the Spirit with it. The wind blows where it liſteth, ſo is every one that is born of the Spirit, John 3. 8. Of his own will begat he us by the word of truth. Ordinances are as the Pool of Betheſda, which had its healing virtue only when the Angel moved the Waters; but the Spirit never moves ſavingly upon the Waters of Ordinances, for the healing of their Souls, how many years ſoever they lye by them. Though others feel a Divine power in them, yet they ſhall not. As the Men that travelled with Paul, when Chriſt appeared to him from Heaven, they ſaw the light, but heard not the voice, which he heard to Salvation: So it is with theſe, they ſee the Miniſters, hear the words, which are words of Salvation to others, but not ſo to them. Concerning theſe Miſerable Souls, we may ſigh and ſay to Chriſt, as Martha did concerning her Brother Lazarus: Lord, if thou hadſt been here, in this Sermon, or in this Prayer, his Soul had not remained dead. But here is the woe that lyes upon him, God is departed from the means, and none can help him.

( 5. ) 'Tis ſuch a ſtroke upon the Spirit of man, as is a fearful ſign of his Eternal Reprobation. 'Tis true, we cannot poſſitively ſay of a man in this Life, he is a Reprobate, one that God will never ſhew mercy to; but yet there are ſome probable marks of it upon ſome men in this World, and they are of a trembling Conſideration where ever they appear; of which this is one of the ſaddeſt, 2 Cor. 4. 3. If ou Goſpel be hid, 'tis hid to thoſe that are loſt, in whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not; leſt the light of the glorious Goſpel of Chriſt, who is the Image of God, ſhould ſhine unto them. So Ac 13. 48. As many as were ordained unto eternal life believed. Ye believe not, becauſe ye are not of my Sheep, John 10. 26. And again, Mat. 13. 11. To you it is given know the myſteries of the Kingdom, but to them it is n given. There cannot be a more dreadful Characte of a Perſon marked out for wrath, than to continu under the Ordinances, as the Rocks and Miry plac do under the natural influences of Heaven. Wha bleſſed opportunities had Judas? He was unde Chriſt's own Miniſtry, he often heard the graciou words that proceeded out of his Mouth; he was da and night in his Company, yet never the better And why? Becauſe he was the Son of Perdition that is, a Man appointed to Deſtruction and Wrath

(6) And laſtly, To add no more. 'Tis ſuch ſtroke of God upon the Souls of Men, as immediately fore-runs Hell and Damnation, Heb. 6. But that which beareth thorns, and briers is rejected and is nigh unto curſing, whoſe end is to be burnt. that look as ſome Saints in this World, have ha a prelibation or foretaſte of Heaven, which th Scripture calls the earneſt of the Spirit; ſo this is a pr curſor of Hell, a ſign of wrath at the door. W may ſay of it, as 'tis ſaid of the pale Horſe in th Revelation, that Hell follows it. If a man abide in me, (ſaith Chriſt,) John 15. 6. he is caſt forth branch and withered; which is the very ſtate theſe barren, curſed Souls. And what follow Why, ſaith he, men gather them, and caſt th into the Fire, and they are burned. Lo, this the Vengeance which the Goſpel executes upon t barren ground.

REFLECTIONS.

The fi
Soul's Re
ction.

1. Well then, bleſſed be God that made me feel the ſaving power of the Goſpel. O, let God be exalted for ever for this mercy! that how defective ſoever I am in common Gifts, thoug have a dull Underſtanding, a leaking memory ſtammering Tongue; yet I have felt, and do the power of the Goſpel upon my Heart. I b thee (my God) that although I labour under m Spiritual Infirmities, yet I am not ſick of this curable Diſeaſe. I have given thee indeed juſt c to inflict and execute this dreadful Curſe upon m ſo, but thou haſt not dealt with me after my de but according to the riches of thy Mercy. Some tle Fruit I bring forth, and what it is, is by virtu my Union with Jeſus Chriſt, Rom. 7. 4. And this hath more in it as to my comfort, than all the glittering Gifts and ſplended Performances of the moſt glorious Hypocrite can yield to him : If I might have my choice (ſaith one) I would chuſe and prefer the moſt deſpicable and ſordid work of a ruſtick Chriſtian, before all the Victories of Alexander, and Triumphs of Cæſar. Bleſſed therefore be the Lord, who hath abounded unto me, in all ſpiritual bleſſings, in heavenly things in Chriſt Jeſus.

I cannot remember a Sermon as another can, but bleſſed be God that I am able to ſavour it, and feel it; that I have an Heart to love, and a will to obey all that God diſcovers to be my Duty.

The Formal Profeſſors Re-
ection.

2. O, then how little cauſe have I to make my boaſt of Ordinances, and glory in my External Priviledges, who never bear Spiritual Fruit under them? If I will conſider my condition, there is matter of trembling, and not of glorying in theſe things. It may be, while I have been glorying in them, and lifting up my ſecure Heart upon them, the Lord hath been ſecretly blaſting my Soul under them, and inſenſibly executing this horrid Curſe by them. Shall I boaſt, that with Capernaum I am lifted up to Heaven, ſince I may with them at aſt be caſt down to Hell? And if ſo, Lord, what Hell will my Hell be! It will be more tolerable or Sodom and Gomorrah than for me. It drew Tears om the Eyes of Chriſt, when he was looking from eruſalem, under the ſame conſideration that I doubt I have cauſe to look upon my own Soul, Luke 19. 1. He wept over it, ſaying, if thou hadſt known, en thou, at leaſt in this thy day, the things which beng to thy peace; but now they are hid from thine es. So long I have been a Hearer, a Profeſſor f the Goſpel, ſo many years I have enjoyed its iſtinguiſhing Ordinances, but have they not been l dry and empty things to me; hath not the pirit of Formality acted me in them? Have not lf-ends and worldly reſpects lain at the bottom f my beſt Duties? Have not my Diſcourſes in ommunion with the Saints, been Trade words, eaking what I have learnt, but not felt? Sad my condition now, but it would be deſperate d irrecoverable, ſhould'ſt thou execute this urſe upon me.

3. And what may I think of my condition? Lord, I acknowledge my unprofitableneſs under the Means hath been ſhameful; and this hath ade my condition doubtful. I have often tremed for fear, leſt my Root had been blaſted by ch a Curſe; but if ſo, whence is this trembling? hence theſe fears and ſorrows about it? Doth ch Fruit grow in that Soyl which thou haſt Cur? I am told but now, that on whom this Judgent falls, to them thou giveſt an Heart that cant repent. Lord, I bleſs thee for theſe Evidences freedom from the Curſe? for the fruits of fear, ſorrow, and holy jealouſie. 4. To conclude, what a ſerious Reflection ſhould this occaſion in every diſpenſer of the Goſpel? How ſhould he ſay when he goes to preach Goſpel, I am now going to preach that word ich is to be a ſavour of Life or Death to theſe s; upon how many of my poor Hearers may the Curſe of perpetual barrenneſs be executed this day! O how ſhould ſuch a thought melt his Heart into Compaſſion over them, and make him beg hard, and plead earneſtly with God for a better iſſue of the Goſpel than this upon them?

The POEM.

YOU that beſides your pleaſant fruitful Fields,

You no advantage, nor doth quit your coſt,
But all your pains and charges on them's loſt.
Hearken to me, I'll teach you how to get
More profit by them, than if they were ſet
At higher Rents than what your Tenants pay
For your moſt fertile Lands; and here's the way.
Think when you view them, why the Lord hath choſe
Theſe, as the Emblems to deſcipher thoſe
That under Goſpel-grace grow worſe and worſe;
For means are fruitleſs, where the Lord doth curſe:
Sweet Showers deſcend, the Sun his beams reflects
On both alike; but not with like effects.
Obſerve, and ſee how after theſe ſweet Showers
The Graſs and Corn revive; the fragrant Flowers
Shoot forth their beauteous heads, the Valleys ſing,
All freſh, and green as in the verdant Spring.
But Rocks are barren ſtill, and Bogs are ſo;

CHAP. VII.

Upon the Plowing of Corn-land.

The Plowman guides his Plow with care and skill,
So doth the Spirit in ſound Conviction ſtill.

OBSERVATION.

IT requires not only ſtrength, but much skill and judgment, to manage and guide the Plow. The Hebrew word חרשׁ which we Tranſlate to Plow, ſignifies to be intent, as an Artificer is about ſome curious piece of work. The Plow muſt neither go too ſhallow nor too deep in the Earth; it muſt not indent the ground by making crooked Furrows, nor leap and make baulks in good ground; but be guided as to a juſt depth of Earth, ſo to caſt the Furrow in a ſtraight line, that the floor or ſurface of the Field may be made plain. As it is Iſa. 28. 25. And hence that expreſſion, Luke 9. 62. He that puts his hand to the plow, and looks back, is not fit for the Kingdom of heaven. The meaning is, that as he that plows, muſt have his Eyes always forward, to guide and direct his hand in caſting the furrows ſtraight and even; (for his hand will be quickly out when his eye is off.) So he that heartily reſolves for Heaven, muſt addict himſelf wholly and intently to the buſineſs of Religion, and not have his Mind intangled with the things of this World, which he hath left behind him; whereby it appears, that the right management of the Plow, requires as much skill as ſtrength.

APPLICATION.

THis Obſervation in Nature, ſerves excellently to ſhadow forth this Propoſition in Divinity. That the work of the Spirit in convincing and humbling the Heart of a Sinner, is a work wherein much of the wiſdom, as well as power of God is diſcovered. The work of Repentance and ſaving Contrition, is ſet forth in Scripture by this Metaphor of plowing, Jer. 4. 3. Hoſ. 10. 12. Plow up your fallow ground; that is, be convinced, humbled, and broken-hearted for ſin. And the reſemblance betwixt both theſe Works, appears in the following Particulars.

Glaſſius Rhet. ſacra. p. 300.

Caryll in Job Chap. 4. v. 8.

( 1. ) 'Tis a hard and difficult work to plow, it's reekoned one of the painfulleſt manual labours. It is alſo a very hard thing to convince and humble the Heart of a ſecure, ſtout, and proud ſinner, indurate in wickedneſs. What Luther ſaith of a dejected Soul, That it is as eaſie to raiſe the dead, as to comfort ſuch a one. The ſame I may ſay of the ſecure, confident ſinner. 'Tis as eaſie to rend the Rocks, as to work ſaving Contrition upon ſuch a Heart. Citius ex pumice aquam; all the melting Language and earneſt Intreaties of the Goſpel, cannot urge ſuch a Heart to ſhed a Tear: Therefore it's called a Heart of Stone, Ezek. 36. 26. a firm Rock, Amos 6. 12. Shall horſes run upon the rock? will one plow there with Oxen? Yet when the Lord comes in the power of his Spirit, theſe Rocks do rend and yield to the power of the Word.

( 2. ) The Plow pierces deep into the boſom of the Earth, makes (as it were) a deep gaſh or wound in the Heart of it. So doth the Spirit upon the Hearts of Sinners; he pierces their very Souls by Conviction, Acts 2. 37. When they heard this, they were pricked ( or pierced point blank) to the heart. Then the Word divides the Soul and Spirit, Heb. 4. 12. It comes upon the Conſcience with ſuch piercing dilemma's, and tilts the Sword of Conviction ſo deep into their Souls, that there is no ſtenching the Blood, no healing this Wound, till Chriſt himſelf come and undertake the Cure. Hæret lateri lethalis arundo; this barbed Arrow cannnot be pulled out of their Hearts by any, but the hand that ſhot it in. Diſcourſe with ſuch a Soul about his Troubles, and he will tell you, that all the Sorrows that ever he had in this World, loſs of Eſtate, Health, Children, or whatever elſe, are but Flea-bitings to this; this ſwallows up all our Troubles. See how that Chriſtian Niobe, Luke 7. 38. is diſſolved into Tears. Now deep calleth unto deep at the noiſe of his water-ſpouts, when the waves and billows of God go over the Soul. Spiritual ſorrows are deep Waters, in which the ſtouteſt and moſt Magnanimous Soul would ſink and drown, did not Jeſus Chriſt by a ſecret and ſupporting Hand, hold it up by the Chin.

( 3. ) The Plow rends the Earth in parts and pieces, which before was united, and makes thoſe parts hang looſe, which formerly lay cloſe. Thus doth the Spirits of Conviction rend in ſunder the Heart, and its moſt beloved Luſts, Joel 2. 13. Rent your hearts, and not your garments; that is, rather than your Garments; for the ſenſe is comparative, though the expreſſion be negative. And this rending implies not only acute pain; fleſh cannot be rent aſunder withour anguiſh, nor yet only force and violence; the Heart is a ſtubborn and knotty piece, and will not eaſily yield, but it alſo implies a diſunion of parts united: As when a Garment, or the Earth, or any continuous Body is rent; thoſe parts are ſeparated which formerly cleaved together. Sin and the Soul were glewed faſt together before, there was no parting of them, they would as ſoon part with their Lives, as with their Luſts; but now when the Heart is rent for them truly, it is alſo rent from them everlaſtingly, Ez. 7. 15. to 19.

( 4. ) The Plow turns up, and diſcovers ſuch things as lay hid in the Boſom of the Earth before, and were covered under a fair green ſurface, from the Eyes of Men. Thus when the Lord plows up the Heart of a Sinner by Conviction, then the ſecrets of his Heart are made manifeſt, 2 Cor. 14. 24, 25. the moſt ſecret and ſhameful Sins will then out; for the word of God is quick and powerful, ſharper than any two-edged Sword, piercing even to the dividing of the ſoul and ſpirit, the joints and marrow, and is a quick diſcerner of the thoughts and ſecret intents of the heart, Heb. 4. 12. It makes the Fire burn inwardly, ſo that the Soul hath no reſt till Confeſſion give a vent to trouble. Fain would the ſhuffling Sinner conceal and hide his ſhame, but the word follows him through all his ſinful ſhifts, and brings him at laſt to be his own, both accuſer, witneſs, and judge.

( 5. ) The work of the Plow is but opus ordinabile, a preparative work in order to Fruit. Should the Husbandman plow his ground never ſo often, yet if the Seed be not caſt in and quickned, in vain is the Harveſt expected. Thus Conviction alſo is but a preparative to a farther work upon the Soul of a Sinner. If it ſtick there, and go no farther, it proves but an Abortive or untimely Birth. Many have gone thus far, and there they have ſtuck; they have been like a Field plowed, but not ſowed, which is a matter of trembling conſideration: for hereby their Sin is greatly aggravated, and their Eternal Miſery ſo much the more increaſed. O when a poor Damned Crea ture ſhall with horror reflect upon himſelf in Hell how near was I once under ſuch a Sermon to Con verſion? My Sins were ſet in order before me my Conſcience awakened and terrified with th guilt of them; many purpoſes and reſolves I ha then to turn to God, which had they been pe fected by anſwerable Executions, I had neve come to this place of Torment; but there I ſtuc and that was my Eternal undoing. Many Sou have I known ſo terrified with the guilt of ſi that they have come roaring under horrors Conſcience to the Preacher; ſo that one wou think ſuch a breach had been made betwixt the and ſin, as could never be reconciled; and yet angry as they were in that fit with ſin, they ha hug'd and imbraced them again.

(6.) 'Tis beſt plowing when the Earth is p pared and mollified by the Showers of Rain, th the work goes on ſweetly and eaſily. And ne doth the Heart ſo kindly melt, as when the Go

Clo

Clouds diſſolve, and the free Grace and Love of Jeſus Chriſt comes ſweetly ſhowring down upon it; then it relents and mourns ingenuouſly, Ezek. 16. 63. That thou may'ſt remember, and be confounded, and never open thy mouth any more becauſe of thy ſhame, when I am paciſied towards thee for all that thou haſt done. So it was with that poor Penitent, Luke 7. 38. when the Lord Jeſus had diſcovered to her the ſuper-abounding riches of his Grace, in the pardon of her manifold Abominations; her Heart melted within her, ſhe waſhed the Feet of Chriſt with Tears. And indeed, there is as much difference betwixt the Tears which are forced by the Terrors of the Law, and thoſe which are extracted by the Grace of the Goſpel, as there is betwixt thoſe of a CondemnedMalefactor, who weeps to conſider the miſery he is under, and thoſe of a pardoned Malefactor, that receives his pardon at the foot of the Laddar, and is melted by the Mercy and Clemency of his gracious Prince towards him.

(7.) The Plow kills thoſe rank Weeds which grew in the Field, turns them up by the Roots, buries and rots them. So doth ſaving Conviction kill ſin at the Root, makes the Soul ſick of it, begets indignation in the Heart againſt it, 2 Cor. 7. 11. The word 'Αγανάκτησιν there ſignifies the riſing of the Stomach, and being angry even unto ſickneſs, religious wrath is the fierceſt wrath, now the Soul cannot endure Sin, trembles at it. I find a woman more bitter then death, (ſaith penitent Solomon) Eccl. 7. 26. Conviction, like a Surfeit, makes the Soul to loath what it formerly loved and delighted in.

(8.) That Field is not well plowed, where the Plow jumps and skips over good ground; and makes baulks, it muſt run up the whole Field alike; and that Heart is not ſavingly convicted where any Luſt is ſpared and left untouched. Saving Conviction extends it ſelf to all ſins, not only to ſin in general, with this cold confeſſion, I am a ſinner; but to the particulars of ſin, yea, to the particular circumſtances and aggravations of time, place, manner, occaſions, thus and thus have I done; to the ſin of nature, as well as practiſe; Behold I was ſhapen in iniquity, Pſal. 51. 5. There muſt be no baulking of any ſin; the ſparing of one ſin, is a ſure Argument thou art not truly humbled for any ſin. So far is the convinced Soul from a ſtudious concealment of a beloved ſin, that it weeps over that more than over any other actual ſin.

(9.) New ground is much more eaſily plowed than that, which by long lying out of Tillage, is more conſolidated and clung together, by deep-rooted Thorns and Brambles, which render it difficult to the Plowman. This old ground is like an old Sinner, that hath lain a long time hardening under the means of Grace. O the difficulty of convincing ſuch a Perſon! Sin hath got ſuch rooting in his Heart, he is ſo habituated to the reproofs and calls of the Word, that few ſuch are wrought upon. How many young Perſons are called to one obdurate, invetarate Sinner? I do not ſay but God may call home ſuch a Soul at the eleventh Hour, but I may ſay of theſe, compared with others, as Solomon ſpeaks, Ecc. 7. 28. One man among a Thouſand have I found, &c. Few that have long reſiſted the Goſpel, that come afterwards to feel the ſaving efficacy thereof.

REFLECTIONS.

true Con- ts Reflecti-

1. O Grace, for ever to be admired! that God ſhould ſend forth his Word and Spirit to plow up my hard and ſtony Heart! yea, mine, when he hath left ſo many of more tender, ingenuous, ſweet, and melting Tempers, without any Culture, or means of Grace. Oh bleſſed Goſpel: Heart-diſſolving Voice! I have felt thine Efficacy, I have experienced thy Divine and Irreſiſtable Power; thou art indeed ſharper than any two-edged Sword, and woundeſt to the Heart; but thy wounds are the wounds of a Friend. All the wounds thou haſt made in my Soul, were ſo many doors opened to let in Chriſt; all the blows thou gaveſt my Conſcience, were but to beat off my Soul from ſin, which I embraced and had retained to my everlaſting ruin, hadſt thou not ſeperated them and me. O Wiſe and Merciful Phyſician, thou didſt indeed bind me with Cords of Conviction and Sorrow; but it was only to cut out that Stone in my Heart, which had killed me if it had continued there. Oh, how did I ſtruggle and oppoſe thee, as if thou hadſt come with the Sword of an Enemy, rather than the Lance and Probe of a skilful and tender-hearted Phyſician? Bleſſed be the day wherein my ſin was diſcovered and imbittered! O happy Sorrows which prepared for ſuch matchleſs Joys! O bleſſed Hand which turned my Salt Waters into Pleaſant Wine! And after many pangs and ſorrows of Soul didſt bring forth the Manchild of Deliverance and Peace.

The Stubborn Hearts Reflection.

2. But O, what a Rock of Adamant is this Heart of mine! that never yet was wounded and ſavingly pierced for ſin by the Terrors of the Law, or melting voice of the Goſpel! long have I ſate under the Word, but when did I feel a relenting pang? O my Soul! my ſtupified Soul! thou haſt got an Antidote againſt Repentance, but haſt thou any againſt Hell? Thou canſt keep out the ſenſe of ſin now, but art thou able to keep out the Terrors of the Lord hereafter? If thou couldſt turn a deaf Ear to the ſentence of Chriſt in the day of Judgment, as eaſily as thou doſt to the intreaties of Chriſt in the day of Grace, it were ſomewhat; but ſurely there is no defence againſt that. Ah, Fool that I am, to quench theſe Convictions, unleſs I knew how to quench thoſe flames they warn me of.

The Miſcarrying Souls Reflection.

3. And may not I challenge the firſt place among all the Mourners in the World, who have loſt thoſe Convictions which at ſeveral times came upon me under the Word? I have been often awakened by it, and filled with terrors and tremblings under it; but thoſe troubles have ſoon worn off again and my Heart (like Water removed from the Fire) return'd to its native coldneſs. Lord, What a diſmal caſe am I in? Many Convictions have I choaked and ſtrangled, which it may be ſhall never more be reviv'd, until thou revive them againſt me in Judgment. I have been in pangs, and brought forth nothing but Wind; my Troubles have wrought no deliverance, neither have my Luſts fallen before them? My Conſcience indeed hath been ſometimes ſick with ſin, yea, ſo ſick as to vomit them up by an external, partial reformation; but then with the Dog, have I turned again to my Vomit, and now I doubt am given over to an Heart that cannot repent. Oh that thoſe travelling pangs could be quickned again! but alas! they are ceaſed. I am like a Priſoner eſcaped, and again recovered, whom the Jaylor loads with double Irons. Surely, O my Soul! if thy Spiritual Troubles return not again, they are but gone back to bring Eternal Troubles. It is with thee, O my Soul! as with a man whoſe Bones have been broken, and not well-ſet; who muſt, (how terrible ſoever it appear to him) endure the pain of breaking and ſetting them again, if ever he be made a ſound man. O that I might rather chuſe to be the Object of thy wounding mercy, than of thy ſparing Cruelty! If thou plow not up my Heart again by compunction, I know it muſt be rent in pieces at laſt by deſperation.

CHAP. VIII.

Upon the Seed-Corn.

The choiceſt Wheat is ſtill reſerv'd for Seed,
But gracious Principles are choice indeed.

OBSERVATION.

HUsbandmen are very careful and curious about their Seed-Corn, that it may not only be clean and pure, but the beſt and moſt excellent in its kind. Iſa. 28. 25. He caſteth in the principal Wheat. If any be more full and weighty than other, that is reſerved for Seed. 'Tis uſual with Husbandmen to pick and leaſe their Seed-Corn by hand, that they may ſeparate the Cockel and Darnel, and all the lighter and hollow Grains from it, wherein they manifeſt their diſcretion, for according to the vigour and goodneſs of the Seed, the fruit and production is like to be.

APPLICATION.

THe choice and principal Seed-corn with which the Fields are ſowed, after they are prepared for it, doth admirably ſhadow forth thoſe excellent principles of Grace infuſed into the regenerate Soul. Their agreement, as they are both Seed, is obvious in the Ten following Particulars, and their excellency above other Principles in Seven more.

1. The Earth at firſt naturally brought forth Corn, and every Seed yielding Fruit, without human Induſtry; but ſince the Curſe came upon it, it muſt be plowed and ſowed, or no Fruit can be expected. So Man at firſt had all the Principles of Holineſs in his nature, but now they muſt be infuſed by Regeneration, or elſe his nature is as void of holineſs as the barren and untilled Deſart is of Corn.

2. The earlier the Seed is ſown, the better it is rooted and enabled to endure the Aſperities of the Winter; ſo when Grace is early infuſed, when nature is ſanctified in the Bud, Grace is thereby exceedingly advantaged? 'Twas Timothy's ſingular advantage, that he knew the Scriptures of a Child.

3. Froſts and Snows conduce very much to the well-rooting of the Seed, and makes it ſpread, and take Root much the better. So do ſanctified Afflictions, which uſually the People of God meet with after their Calling, and often in their very Seed-time, 1 Theſ. 1. 6. And you became followers of us and of the Lord, having received the Word in much affliction. But if they have fair Weather then, to be ſure they ſhall meet with Weather hard enough afterwards, Heb. 10. 32. But call to remembrance the former days, in which after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great ſight of afflictions.

4. When the Seed is caſt into the Earth, it muſt be covered up by the Harrow; the uſe whereof in Husbandry, is not only to lay a plain floor (as they ſpeak) but to open and let in the Corn to the boſom of the Earth, and there cover it up for its ſecurity, from Birds that would devour it. Thus doth the moſt wiſe God provide for the ſecurity of that Grace, which he at firſt diſſeminated in the Hearts of his people. He is as well the finiſher as the Author of their Grace, Heb. 12. 2. And of this they may be confident, that he that hath begun a good work in them, will perform it unto the day of Chriſt. The care of God over the Graces of his People, is like the covering of the ſeed for ſecurity.

5. Seed-corn is in its own nature, of much more value and worth than other Corn; the Husbandman caſts in the principal Wheat. So are the Seeds of Grace ſown in the renewed Soul; for it's called, The ſeed of God, 1 John 3. 9. The divine nature, 2 Pet. 1. 4. One dram of Grace is far beyond all the glory of this World; it's more precious than Gold which periſhes, 1 Pet. 1. 7. The price of it is above Rubies, and all that thou canſt deſire is not to be compared with it, Prov. 3. 15.

6. There is a great deal of ſpirit and vigour in a little Seed, though it be ſmall in bulk, yet it is great in vertue and efficacy. Gracious habits are alſo vigorous and efficacious things. Such is their efficacy that they overcome the World, 1 John 5. 4. Whatſoever is born of God, overcometh the World. They totally alter and change the Perſon in whom they are. He that perſecuted us in times paſt, no

Preacheth the Faith which once he deſtroyed. They enable the Soul to do and ſuffer great things for God, Heb. 11. 33, 34, 35.

7. The ſtalk and ear are potentially and virtually in a ſmall Grain of Corn. So are all the fruits of obedience which Believers afterwards bring forth to God, virtually contained in thoſe habits or ſeeds of Grace. 'Tis ſtrange to conſider, that from a Muſtard-ſeed (which, as Chriſt ſaith, is the leaſt of all Seeds) ſhould grow ſuch great Branches, that the Birds of the Air may build their Neſts in them. Surely, the Heroical and Famous Acts and Atchievements of the moſt enowned Believers ſprang from ſmall beginnings t firſt, to that eminency and glory.

8. The fruitfulneſs of the Seed depends upon the Sun and Rain, by which they are quickned, as s opened largely in the next Chapter. And the Principles of Grace in us have as neceſſary a dependance upon the aſſiſting and exciting Grace without us. For though it be true, they are Im- ortal Seeds; yet that is not ſo much from their wn ſtrength, as from the Promiſes made to them, nd that conſtant influx from above, by which hey are revived and preſerved from time to ime.

9. The Seed is fruitful in ſome Soyls more than n others, proſpers much better, and comes ſoon- r to maturity. So doth Grace thrive better, and row faſter in ſome Perſons than in others. Your ith groweth exceedingly, 2 Theſ. 1. 3. Whilſt the ings that are in others are ready to dye, Rev. 3. 2. Though no man's Heart be naturally a kind Soyl o Grace, yet doubtleſs Grace is more advantaged n ſome diſpoſitions than in others.

10. And laſtly, their Agreement as Seed ap- ears in this, the Seed-corn is ſcattered into all arts of the Field, as proportionably and equally s may be. So is Grace diffus'd into all the Facul- ies, Judgment, Will, and all the Affections are wed with theſe new Principles. The God of peace nctifie you wholly, 1 Theſ. 5. 23.

And thus you ſee, why Principles of Grace are alled Seed. Now in the next place (which is the econd thing promiſed, and mainly deſigned in is Chapter) to ſhew you the choiceneſs and ex- ellency of theſe holy Principles with which nctified Souls are embelliſht and adorned; and convince you that true Grace excels all other inciples, by which other Perſons are acted, even the principal Wheat doth the Chaff, and refuſe uff, I ſhall here inſtitute a compariſon betwixt race and the moſt ſplendid, common Gifts in e World, and its tranſcendent excellency above em all will evidently appear in theſe ſeven fol- wing particulars.

1. The moſt excellent common Gifts come out the common Treaſury of God's bounty, and t in a natural way. They are but the Improve- nt of a Man's natural Abilities, or (as one calls m) the ſparks of nature blown up by the Wind a more benign and liberal Education; but nciples of Grace are of a Divine and Heavenly ginal and extraction, not enduced or raiſed n Nature, but ſupernaturally infuſed by the rit from on high, John 3. 6. That which is born he fleſh is fleſh, and that which is born of the ſpirit pirit. When a Soul is ſanctified by them, he akes of the divine nature, 2 Pet. 1. 4. Is born not eſh, nor of blood, nor of the will of Man, but of , John 1. 13. In this reſpect they differ from s, as the heavenly Manna which was rained down from Heaven differs from common Bread, which by pains and induſtry the Earth produces in a natural way.

2. The beſt natural Gifts afford not that ſweetneſs and ſolid comfort to the Soul that Grace doth; they are but a dry ſtalk that affords no Meat for a Soul to feed on. A Man may have an underſtanding full of light, and an heart void of comfort at the ſame time; but Grace is a fountain of pureſt living ſtreams of peace and comfort, 1 Pet. 1. 8. Believing we rejoyce with joy unſpeakable and full of glory: Light is ſown for the righteous, and joy for the upright in heart. All true pleaſures and delights are ſeminally in Grace, Pſal. 97. 11. They are ſown for them in theſe Divine and Heavenly Graces, which are glory in the Bud.

3. Gifts adorn the Perſon, but do not ſecure the Soul from wrath. A man may be admired for them among men, and rejected Eternally by God. Who can conſiderately read that ſixth Chapter of the Hebrews, and not tremble to think in what a forlorn caſe a Soul may be, though ſet off and accompliſht with the rareſt Endowments of this kind, Mat. 7. 22. We read, that many ſhall ſay to Chriſt in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not propheſied in thy name, and in thy name caſt out Devils, &c. and yet themſelves at laſt caſt out as a prey to Devils. How Divinely and Rhetorically did a Balaam ſpeak and propheſie, Numb. 23. What rare and excellent Parts had the Scribes and Phariſees? Who upon that account were ſtiled principes ſeculi, the Princes of the World; 1 Cor. 2. 8. What profound and excellent Parts had the Heathen Sages and Philoſophers? Theſe things are ſo far from ſecuring the Soul againſt the wrath to come, that they often expoſe it unto wrath, and are as Oyl to increaſe the Eternal Burnings; but now gracious Principles are the τὰ ἐχόμενα σωτηρίας, as the Apoſtle calls them, Heb. 6. Things that accompany and have ſalvation in them. Theſe are the things on which the Promiſes of Salvation run; and theſe Treaſures are never found but in Elect Veſſels. Glory is by promiſe aſſured and made over to him that poſſeſſes them. There is but a little point of time betwixt him and the glorified Spirits above. And how inconſiderable a matter is a little time, which contracts and winds up apace? For now is our ſalvation nearer than when we believed. And hence the Scriptures ſpeak of them as already ſaved, Rom. 8. 24. We are ſaved by hope, becauſe its as ſure as if we were in Heaven. We are made to ſit in heavenly places.

Like a precious Stone in a Toads Head.

4. Gifts may damnifie the Perſon that poſſeſs them; and it may be better in reſpect of a Mans own condition he had never had them. Knowledge (ſaith the Apoſtle) puffeth up, 1 Cor. 8. 1. makes the Soul proud and flatulent. 'Tis a hard thing to know much, and not to know it too much. The Saints knowledge is better than the Scholars; for he hath his own heart inſtead of a Commentary to help him. Ariſtotle ſaid, A little knowledge about heavenly things, though conjectural, is better than much of earthly things, though certain. The world by wiſdom knew not God, (ſaith the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 1 12.) (i. e.) Their Learning hanged in their light, they were too wiſe to ſubmit to the ſimplicity of the Goſpel. The excellent Parts of the old Hereticks, did but ſerve to Midwife into the World the Monſtrous Birth of Soul-damning Hereſies. Cupit abs te ornari diabolus, as Auſtin ſaid to that ingenious young Scholar; The Devil deſires to be adorned by thee. But now Grace in it ſelf is not ſubject to ſuch abuſes, it cannot be the proper univocal cauſe of any evil effect: It cannot puff up the Heart, but always humbles it; nor ſerve the Devils deſigns, but ever oppoſes them.

5. Gifts may be given a Man for the ſake of others, and not out of love to himſelf, they are but as an excellent Diſh of Meat which a Man ſends to a Nurſe, not for her ſake ſo much as for his Child that ſucks her. God indeed makes uſe of them to do his Children good, the Church is benefited by them, though themſelves are but like Cooks, they prepare excellent Diſhes on which the Saints feed and are nouriſhed, though themſelves taſte them not. They are dona miniſtrantia non ſanctificantia, miniſtring but not ſanctifying Gifts, proceeding not from the good will of God to him that hath them, but to thoſe he benefits by them. And Oh, what a ſad conſideration will this be one day to ſuch a Perſon, to think, I helped ſuch a Soul to Heaven, while I my ſelf muſt lodge in Hell?

6. Sin in the reign and power of it, may cohabit with the moſt excellent natural Gifts under the ſame roof, I mean in the ſame Heart. A Man may have the Tongue of an Angel, and the Heart of a Devil. The wiſdom of the Philoſophers (ſaith Lactantius) non excindit vitia ſed abſcondit, did not root out, but hide their Vices. The Learned Phariſees were but painted Sepulchers: Gifts are but as a fair Glove drawn over a foul hand. But now Grace is incompatible with ſin in dominion; it purifies the Heart, Acts 15. 9. cleanſes the Conſcience, Heb. 9. 14. crucifies the Affections and Luſts of the Fleſh, Gal. 5. 24. is not content with the concealment, but ruin of corruptions.

7. And laſtly, Gifts muſt leave us at laſt. Whether there be knowledge, that ſhall ceaſe. All fleſh is graſs, and the goodlineſs of it as the flower of the graſs; the graſs withers, the flower fadeth, but the word of the Lord abideth for ever, Iſa. 40. 6, 8. Many times they leave a Man before Death. One knock, if it hit right, (as one ſaith) may make a Wiſe man a Fool. But to be ſure, they all leave us at Death. Doth not his excellency which is in him go away? Job 4. 21. yea, then all natural excellency departs. Death ſtrips the Soul of all thoſe ſplendid Ornaments, then the Rhetorical Tongue is ſtruck Dumb; the nimble Wit and curious Fancy ſhall entertain your Ears with no more pleaſant diſcourſes. Nunquam jocos dabis, as Adrian ſaid to his departing Soul; but Grace aſcends with the Soul into Eternity, and there receives its perfection and accompliſhment. Gifts take their leave of the Soul, as Orpha did of Naomi; but Grace ſaith then as Ruth, Where thou goeſt I will go, and where thou lodgeſt I will lodge, and nothing ſhall ſeparate thee and me. Now put all this together, and then judge whether the Apoſtle ſpake Hyperboles, when he ſaid, Covet earneſtly the beſt gifts, and yet I ſhew unto you a more excellent way, 1 Cor. 12. ult. And thus you have the choiceneſs of theſe Principles alſo.

REFLECTIONS.

The Gracious Soul's Reflection.

The Lines are fallen to me in a pleaſant place, may the gracious Soul ſay. How defective ſoever I am in Gifts, yet bleſſed be the Lord, who hath ſown the Seeds of true Grace in my Heart. What though I am not famed and honoured among men, let it ſuffice me that I am precious in the Eyes of the Lord. Though he hath not abounded to me in Gifts of Nature, yet bleſſed be the God and Father of my Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath abounded to me in all ſpiritual bleſſings, in heavenly places, in Chriſt Jeſus, Eph. 1. 3. Is not a true Jewel, though ſpurn'd in the dirt, more precious than a falſe one, though ſet in Gold? Why art thou troubled, O my Soul, for the want of theſe things which Reprobates may have? And are not rather admiring and bleſſing God for thoſe things which none but the Darlings and Favourites of Heaven can have? Is not an Ounce of pure Gold more valuable than many Pounds of gilded Braſs? What though the Dews of Helicon deſcend not upon my Head, if in the mean time the ſweet influences of Sion fall upon my Heart? O my God! how much ſoever others are elated by the light of their knowledge, I have cauſe with humility to adore thee for the heavenly heat with which thou haſt warmed my Affections.

The Deceived Soul's Reflection.

Pauſe a while my Soul upon this point. With what Seed is my Heart ſown, and of what kind are thoſe things wherein I excel others? Are they indeed ſpecial Seeds of Grace, or common Gifts and natural Excellencies? If the latter, little cauſe have I to pride my ſelf in them, were they ten thouſand times more than they are. If theſe things be indeed the things that accompany Salvation, the Seed of God, the true and real work of Grace, then (1.) How comes it to paſs, that I never found any throws or travelling pangs in the production of them? It's affirmed, and generally acknowledged, that the new Creature is never brought forth without ſuch pains and compunctions of heart, Acts 2. 37. I have indeed often felt an aking Head, whilſt I have read and ſtudied to increaſe my knowledge? but when did I feel an aking Heart for ſin? Oh, I begin to ſuſpect, that it is not right. Yea, (2.) And my ſuſpicion increaſes whiles I conſider that Grace is of an humbling nature, 1 Cor. 15. 10. Lord, how have I been elated by my Gifts, and valued my ſelf above what was meet? O how have I delighted in the noiſe of the Phariſees Trumpet! Mat. 6. 2. No Muſick ſo ſweet as that. Say, O my Conſcience, have I not delighted more in the Theater, than the Cloſet? In the praiſe of Men, than the approbation of God? Oh, how many evidences doſt thou produce againſt me? Indeed theſe are ſad ſymptoms that I have ſhewed thee, but there is yet another which renders thy caſe more ſuſpicious yet; yea, that which thou canſt make no rational defence againſt, even the ineffectualneſs of all thy Gifts and Knowledge to mortifie any one of all thy Luſts. It's beyond all diſpute, that Gifts may, but Grace cannot conſiſt without mortification of ſin, Gal. 5. 24. Now what Luſt hath fallen before theſe excellent Parts of mine? Doth not Pride, Paſſion, Covetouſneſs, and indeed the whole body of ſin live and thrive in me as much as ever? Lord, I yield the cauſe, I can defend it no longer againſt my Conſcience, which caſts and condemns me by full proof, to be but in a wretched, curſed, lamentable ſtate, notwithſtanding all my Knowledge and flouriſhing Gifts. O ſhew me a more excellent way. Lord! that I had the ſincerity of the pooreſt Saint; though I ſhould loſe the applauſe of all my Parts: With theſe I ſee I may go to Hell, but without ſome better thing no hope of Heaven.

The POEM.

GReat difference betwixt that Seed is found,
With which you ſow your ſeveral plots of ground.
Seed-wheat doth far excel in dignity,
The cheaper Barley, and the courſer Rye.
Though in themſelves they good and wholſom are;
Yet theſe with choiceſt Wheat may not compare.
Mens hearts like fields are ſow'd with different Grain;
Some baſer, ſome more noble, ſome again
Excelling both the former, more than Wheat
Excels that Grain, your Swine and Horſes eat.
For Principles of meer Mortality,
Like Cummin, Barley, Fitches, Peaſe, or Rye,
In thoſe men's hearts are often to be found,
Whom yet the Scripture calleth curſed ground.
And nobler Principles than theſe ſometime
Call'd common Grace, and Spiritual Gifts which ſhine
In ſome mens heads, where is their habitation;
Yet they are no companions of Salvation.
Theſe purchaſe honour both from great and ſmall;
But I muſt tell thee that if this be all;
Though like an Angel in theſe Gifts thou ſhine,
Among blind Mortals for a little time:
The day's at hand, when ſuch as thou muſt take Thy Lot with Devils in th' infernal Lake.
But Principles of ſpecial ſaving Grace,
Whoſe ſeat is in the heart, not head or face:
Like ſolid Wheat ſown in a fruitful field
Shall ſpring and flouriſh, and at laſt will yield
A glorious Harveſt of Eternal Reſt,
To him that nouriſh'd them within his breaſt.
O Grace! how Orient art thou! how Divine!
What is the glory of all Gifts to thine!
Diſſeminate this Seed within my heart,
My God I pray thee, though thou ſtouldſt impart
The leſs of Gifts; then I may truly ſay,
That thou haſt ſhew'd me the more exc'lent way.

CHAP. IX.

Upon Springing Weather after Seed-time.

By Heavens influence, Corn and Plants do ſpring,
God's ſhowers of Grace do make his Valleys ſing.

OBSERVATION.

THE Earth after that it is plowed and ſowed, muſt be watered and warm'd with the Dews nd Influences of Heaven, or no Fruit can be exected. If God do not open to you his good Treare, the Heavens to give Rain unto the Land in s ſeaſon, and bleſs all the work of your hands, s it is Deut. 28. 12. The Earth cannot yield her ncreaſe. The order and dependance of natural uſes in the productions of Fruit, is excellently eſcribed, Hoſ. 2. 21, 22. I will hear the Heavens, d they ſhall hear the Earth; and the Earth ſhall ar the Corn, and Wine, and Oyl, and they ſhall hear ezreel. Jezreel muſt have Corn, and Wine, and yl, or they cannot live; they cannot have it unſs the Earth bring it forth, the Earth cannot bring forth without the Heavens, the Heavens cannot yield a drop unleſs God hear them; that is, unlock and open them. * Nature and natural Cauſes are nothing elſe but the order in which God works. This ſome Heathens by the light of Nature acknowledged, and therefore when they went to plow in the Morning they did lay one hand upon the Plow (to ſpeak their own part to be painfulneſs) and hold up the other hand to Ceres the Goddeſs of Corn, to ſhew, that their expectation of plenty was from their ſuppoſed Deity. I fear many Chriſtians lay both hands to the Plow, and ſeldom lift up heart or hand to God, when about that work.

Natura nihil ud eſt quam inorum o- um ordo. entius.

Wecm's Cerem. Law.

There was an Husbandman (ſaith Mr. Smith) that always ſowed good Seed, but never had good Corn; at laſt, a Neighbour came to him, and ſaid, I will tell you what probably may be the cauſe of it; it may be (ſaid he) you do not ſteep your Seed; no truly, ſaid the other, nor ever did I hear that Seed muſt be ſteeped; yes ſurely, ſaid his Neighbour, and I will tell you how, it muſt be ſteeped in Prayer. When the party heard this, he thanked him for his Counſel, reformed his fault, and had as good Corn as any Man whatſoever! Surely, it is not the Husbandman's, but God ſteeps that drop fatneſs. Almator terra, the Earth indeed is a fruitful Mother, but the Rain which fecundates and fertilizes it, hath no other Father but God, Job 38. 28.

APPLICATION.

AS impoſſible it is (in an ordinary way) for Souls to be made fruitful in Grace and Holineſs, without the Dews and Influences of Ordinances, and the bleſſing of God upon them, as for the Earth to yield her Fruit without the natural influences of Heaven; for look, what Dews, Showers, and clear ſhinings after Rain are to the Fields, that the Word and Ordinances of God are to the Souls of Men. My doctrine ſhall drop as the rain, my ſpeech ſhall diſtil as the dew, as the ſmall rain upon the tender herb, and as the ſhowers upon the graſs, Deut. 32. 2. For as the rain and ſnow cometh down from heaven, and watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud; ſo ſhall my word be that goeth forth of my mouth, Iſa. 55. 10, 11. And as the Doctrine of the Goſpel is Rain, ſo Goſpel Miniſters are the Clouds in which thoſe heavenly Vapours are bound up. The reſemblance lyes in the following particulars.

1. The Rain comes from Heaven, Acts 14. 17. He gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful ſeaſons, &c. The Doctrine of the Goſpel is alſo of an heavenly extraction and deſcent, they are Heavenly Truths which are brought to you in earthen Veſſels, things that were hid in God, and come from his Boſom, Epheſ. 3. 8, 9. What Nicodemus ſaid of Chriſt, is in a proportion true of every faithful diſpenſer of the Goſpel, Thou art a teacher come from God, John 3. 2. You are not to look upon the Truths which Miniſters deliver, as the meer effects and fruits of their Inventions and Parts, they are but the Conduits through which thoſe Celeſtial waters are conveyed to you. 'Tis all heavenly, the Officers from Heaven, Eph. 4. 12. Their Doctrine from Heaven, Eph. 3. 8, 9. The Efficacy and Succeſs of it from Heaven, 1 Cor. 3. 3. What I received of the Lord (ſaith Paul) that have I delivered unto you, 1 Cor. 11. 23. The ſame may every Goſpel Miniſter ſay too. That's the firſt.

And then (2*dly.*) The Rain falls by Divine direction and appointment; He cauſes it to rain upon one City, and not upon another Amos 4. 7. You ſhall often ſee a Cloud diſſolve and ſpend it ſelf upon one place, when there is not a drop within a few Miles of it. Thus is the Goſpel ſent to ſhed its rich influences upon one place, and not upon another; it powers down ſhowers of bleſſings upon one Town or Pariſh, whilſt others are dry like the ground which lay near to Gideon's wet Fleece. To you is the word of this ſalvation ſent, Acts 13. 26. Sent, it comes not by chance, but by commiſſion and appointment, and it's ſent to you by ſpecial direction. miniſters can no more go whither they pleaſe, then the ſailing Clouds can move againſt the Wind. Paul and Timothy, two fruitful Clouds (that ſent down many ſweet refreſhing ſhowers upon every Place whither they came) the Lord ſent them through Phrygia and Galatia, but forbad them to preach the Word in Aſia, Acts 16. 6. And when they aſſayed to go into Bithynia, the ſpirit ſuffered them not, v. 7. But a Man of Macedonia appears to Paul in a Viſion, and prayed him, ſaying, Come over to Macedonia and help us, v. 9. Thus you ſee how the miſtical, as well as the natural Clouds, are moved according to Divine Counſel; and though Miniſters are not now diſpoſed to their reſpective places, in ſuch an extraordinary way, yet there is ſtill a ſpecial hand of the Spirit guiding their motions, which is ſeen partly in qualifying them for ſuch a people, and partly in drawing out their hearts to elect and call them, and inclining their hearts to accept the Call.

3. There is a great deal of difference in the ſhowers of Rain that fall upon the Earth. Sometimes you have an haſty ſhower, which makes the ways float, and the Streets run, but it's gone preſently, the Earth hath but little benefit by it; and ſometimes you have a ſweet, gentle, ſoaking rain, that moderately ſoaks to the Roots, and refreſhes the Earth abundantly. This is called the ſmall Rain, and the former, the great rain of his ſtrength, Job 37. 6. So it is in theſe Spiritual ſhowers, the effects of ſome Sermons, (like a ſudden ſpout of Rain) are very tranſient, that touch the heart a little for preſent, by way of Conviction or Comfort, but it fleets away immediately, Jam. 1. 23. At other times the Goſpel like a ſetled moderate Rain, ſoaks to the Root, to the very Heart. So did that ſweet ſhower which fell, Acts 2. 37. It ſearched the Root, it went to the Heart; the influences of it are ſometimes abiding, and do much longer remain in, and refreſh the Heart; than the Rain doth the Earth. There be effects left in ſome hearts, by ſome Sermons and Duties, that will never out of it as long as they live, I will never forget thy precepts, for by them thou haſt quickned me, Pſal. 119. 93.

The Rain is moſt beneficial to the Earth, when there come ſweet, warm Sun blaſts with, or after it. This the Scripture calls, a clear ſhining after rain, 2 Sam. 23. 4. by which the ſeminal virtue of the Earth is drawn forth, and then the Herbs and Flowers, and Corn ſprout abundantly. So it is with Goſpel-ſhowers, when the Sun of Righteouſneſs opens upon poor Souls under the Word, darting down the Beams of Grace and Love upon them, whilſt they are attending on it, (juſt as you ſometimes ſee a ſweet ſhower fall while the Sun ſhines out) O how comfortable is this! and effectual to melt the heart! And as the warm Rain is moſt refreſhing, ſo when the word comes warmly, from the melting Affections of the Preacher, who imparts not only the Goſpel, but his own Soul with it 1 Theſ. 2. 8. This doth abundantly more good than that which drops coldly from the Lips of the unaffected Speaker.

5. Showers of Rain do exceedingly refreſh the Earth, as a Man is refreſhed by a draught of Water, when his Spirits are even ſpent. O how welcome is a ſhower to the thirſty ground! Hence the little Hills are ſaid to rejoyce on every ſide, yea to ſhout for joy, and ſing when a ſhower comes. Pſal. 65. 12, 13. But never was ſhower of Rain ſo ſweetly refreſhing to the thirſty Earth, as Goſpel-ſhowers are to gracious Hearts, Col. 4. 8. it comforts their very Hearts. What joy was there in Samaria, when the Goſpel came to that place? Acts 8. 8. It revives the Soul, 'tis mel in ore, melos in aure, jubilum in corde, Honey in the Mouth, Melody in the Ear, and a very Jubilee in the Heart.

6. Rain is neceſſary at Seed time, to make ready the Earth, to receive the Seed, Pſal. 65. 9, 10. Thou viſiteſt the earth, andватereſt it; thou greatly inricheſt it with the River of God, which is full of water; thou prepareſt them Corn, when thou haſt ſo provided for it; thou watereſt the ridges thereof abundantly, thou ſetteſt the furrows thereof, thou makeſt it ſoft with ſhowers, thou bleſſeſt the ſpringing thereof. And this the Scripture calls the former Rain. And as this is neceſſary about Seed-time, ſo the latter Rain is as needful about earing-time, to diſcloſe the ear, and to bring it to perfection; both theſe are great Bleſſings to the Earth, and conduce to a plentiful Harveſt, Joel 2. 23, 24. Be glad then ye children of Sion, and rejoyce in the Lord your God, for he hath given you the former rain moderately, and he will cauſe to come down for you the rain, the former and the latter rain in the firſt month, and the floors ſhall be full of Wheat, and the fates ſhall overflow with Wine and Oyl. Thus the Goſpel hath a double uſe and benefit alſo. It's neceſſary as the former Rain at Seed-time, it cauſes the firſt ſpring of Grace in the Heart. Pſal. 19. 7. And there could be, (in an ordinary way) no ſpring of Grace without it, Prov. 29. 18. And as this former Rain is neceſſary to cauſe the firſt ſpring of Grace, ſo alſo it hath the uſe of the latter Rain to ripen thoſe precious Fruits of the Spirit in the Souls of Believers, Eph. 4. 11, 12, 13. He gave ſome Apoſtles, and ſome Prophets, and ſome Evangeliſts, and ſome Paſtors and Teachers, for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the Miniſtry, for the edifying of the Body of Chriſt, till we all come in the unity of the faith, and the knowledge of the Son of God, to a perfect man, unto the meaſure of the ſtature of the fulneſs of Chriſt. Were all the elect converted unto God, yet ſtill there would be a neceſſity of a Goſpel Miniſtry.

7. After a great glut of Rain, uſually there comes a drought; 'tis a common Countrey Proverb Wet and dry pay one another. And truly when a people are glutted with a fulneſs of Goſpel-mercies, it's uſual with God to ſhut up and reſtrain the Goſpel-clouds, that for a time (at leaſt) there be no Dews upon them, and thereby teach them to prize their deſpiſed (becauſe common) mercies at an higher rate. For as a good man once ſaid, mercies are beſt known by the Back, and moſt prized when moſt wanted. In thoſe days the Wor of the Lord was precious, there was no open Viſi 1 Sam. 3. 1. It is with ſpiritual as with temporal Food, ſlighted when plentuous, but if a Famine once come, then every bit of Bread is preci ous. Jeruſalem remembred in the days of her af fliction, and of her miſery, all her pleaſant thing that ſhe had in the days of old, Lam. 1. 7. 'T both a ſinful and dangerous thing to wantonni with Goſpel-mercies, and deſpiſe the plaineſt ( faithful ) miniſters of the Goſpel. The time ma come when you may be glad of the plaineſt Sermon, from the mouth of the meaneſt Embaſſador of Chriſt.

8. To conclude, the Prayers of Saints are the Keys that open and ſhut the natural Clouds, and cauſe them either to give out, or with-hold their influences, James 5. 18. Elias was a man ſubject to like paſſions as we are, and he prayed earneſtly that it might not rain, and ſix months; and he prayed again, and three years and ſix months; and he prayed again, and the heavens gave rain, and the earth brought forth fruit. God hath ſubjected the works of his hands to the Prayers of his Saints, Iſa. 45. 11.

Prayer is alſo the golden Key which opens theſe Myſtical Goſpel-clouds and diſſolves them into ſweet gracious ſhowers. God will have the whole work of the Miniſtry carried on by the Prayers of his people, they firſt obtain their Miniſters by prayer, Luke 10. 2. Pray ye the Lord of the Harveſt, to ſend forth labourers into the vineyard. It is by the help of Prayer, that they are carried on, and enabled to exerciſe their Miniſtry. They may tell their people as a great General once told his Soldiers, That he Flew upon their wings. Pray for me (ſaith the great Apoſtle) that utterance may be given me, that I may open my mouth boldly, to make known the myſteries of the Goſpel, Eph. 6. 19. Yea by the Saints Prayers it is, that Miniſters obtain the ſucceſs and fruits of their Labours, 2 Theſ. 3. 1. Finally Brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free courſe, and be glorified, even as it is with you. And thus you have the Metaphor opened. Now, Oh! that theſe Truths might come down in ſweet ſhowers upon the Hearts both of Miniſters and People, in the following Reflections.

REFLECTIONS.

1. Reflections for Goſpel-Miniſters.

1. Am I then a Cloud? And is my Doctrine as Rain to water the Lord's Inheritance? And yet do I think it much to be toſſed up and own by the furious Winds and Storms of Perſecution? Do not I ſee the Clouds above me in continual motions and agitations? And ſhall I Dream f a fixed ſetled ſtate? No, falſe Teachers, who are Clouds without Rain, are more likely to enjoy that than I. Which of all the Prophets have not been oſſed and hurried worſe than I? Acts 7. 52. He at will not let Men alone to be quiet in their Luſts, muſt expect but little quiet from Men in this life. But it is enough Lord, that a reſt remaineth r thy Servant, let me be ſo wiſe to ſecure a reſt o come, and not ſo vain to expect it on Earth.

2. And, O that I might ſtudy thoſe inſtructing louds, from which, as from the Bottles of Heaven, God pours down refreſhing ſhowers to uench and ſatisfie the thirſty Earth! In this I may ſemble them, and come amongſt the people of e Lord, in the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the Goſpel of riſt, Rom. 15. 29. O let not thoſe thirſty Souls at wait for me as for the Rain, Job 29. 23. Return like the Troops of Tema, aſhamed, with their heads ered, Job 6. 19. O that my Lips might refreſh any! Let me never be like thoſe empty Clouds, hich deceive the hopes of thirſty Souls; but let Doctrine deſcend as the Rain, and diſtil as the w, and let that plot of thine Inheritance, which u haſt aſſigned to me, be as a Field which the d hath bleſſed.

3. Once more, lift up thine eyes to the Clouds, behold, to how great an height the Sun hath unted them, for by reaſon of their ſublimity it is that they are called the Clouds of Heaven, Mat. 24. 30. Lord, let me be a Cloud of Heaven too! Let my Heart and Converſation be both there! Who is more advantaged for an heavenly Life than I? Heavenly Truths are the ſubjects of my daily ſtudy, and ſhall earthly things be the objects of my daily Delights and Loves? God forbid that ever my earthly Converſation ſhould contradict and ſhame my heavenly Calling and Profeſſion; Shine forth thou glorious Sun of Righteouſneſs, and my Heart ſhall quickly be attracted and mounted above theſe viſible Clouds, yea, and above the aſpectable Heavens.

3. Reflections for private Chriſtians.

For thoſe that want a Goſpel Miniſtry.

1. Is the Goſpel Rain, and its Miniſters Clouds? Wo is me then, that my Habitation is upon the Mountains of Gilboa, where there are no Dews! Ah ſad Lot, that I ſhould be like Gideon's dry Fleece, whilſt the ground round about me is wet with the Dew of Heaven! O thou that commandeſt the Clouds above, and openeſt the Windows of Heaven; remember, and refreſh this parched Wilderneſs, wherein I live, with ſhowers of Grace, that we may not be as the Heath in the Deſart, which ſeeth not when good cometh, nor inhabit the parched places of the Wilderneſs.

For thoſe that enjoy a Goſpel-Miniſtry.

2. O Lord, thou haſt cauſed the Heavens above me to be black with Clouds, thou openeſt the Celeſtial Caſements from above, and daily ſendeſt down ſhowers of Goſpel-bleſſings: O that I might be as the parched Earth under them! not for barrenneſs, but for thirſtineſs. Let me ſay, My ſoul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the Courts of the Lord; that I might there ſee the Beauty of the Lord. Doth the Spungy Earth ſo greedily ſuck up the ſhowers, and open as many Mouths as there are clefts in it, to receive what the Clouds diſpenſe? And ſhall thoſe precious Soul-inriching ſhowers fleet away unprofitably from me? If ſo, then,

For unprofitable Hearers.

3. What an account have I to make for all thoſe Goſpel-bleſſings that I have enjoyed? For all thoſe Goſpel-dews and ſhowers wherewith I have been watered! Should I be found fruitleſs at laſt, it will fare better with the barren and uncultivated Wilderneſs than with me; more tolerable for Indians and Barbarians that never heard the Goſpel, than for me that have been ſo aſſiduouſly and plenteouſly water'd by it. Lord! What a difference wilt thou put in the great day, betwixt ſimple and pertinacious barrenneſs? Surely, if my root be not barrenneſs, ſuch heavenly waterings and influences as theſe, will make it ſprout forth into fruits of obedience.

CHAP. X.

Upon a Dearth through want of Rain.

If God reſtrain the ſhowers, you howl and cry ;
Shall Saints not mourn when Spiritual Clowds are dry ?

OBSERVATION.

'TIS deſervedly accounted a ſad Judgment, when God ſhuts up the Heavens over our Heads, and makes the Earth as Braſs under our Feet, Deut. 28. 23. Then the Husbandmen are called to mourning, Joel 1. 11. All the Fields do languiſh, and the bellowing Cattel are pined with thirſt. Such a ſad ſtate the Prophet Rhetorically deſcribes, Jer. 14. 3, 4, 5, 6. The Nobles have ſent their little ones to the Waters, they came to the Pits and found no Water ; they returned with their Veſſels empty, they were aſhamed and confounded, and covered their heads ; becauſe the ground is chapt, for there was no rain in the Earth, the Plowmen were aſhamed, they covered their heads : Yea, the Hind alſo calved in the field, and forſook it, becauſe there was no graſs ! And the wild Aſſes did ſtand in the high places, they ſnuffed up the wind like Dragons, their Eyes failed becauſe there was no graſs.

And that which makes the want of Rain ſo terrible a Judgment, is the Famine of Bread, which neceſſarily follows theſe extraordinary Droughts, and is one of the soreſt Temporal Judgments which God inflicts upon the World.

APPLICATION.

AND truly, as much cauſe have they to weep and tremble, over whoſe Souls God ſhuts up the Spiritual Clouds of the Goſpel, and thereby ſending a Spiritual Famine upon their Souls. Such a Judgment the Lord threatens in Amos 8. 11. Behold the days come, ſaith the Lord, that I will ſend a famine in the Land, not a famine of Bread, nor a thirſt for Water ; but of hearing the Word of the Lord. The meaning is, I will ſend a more fearful Judgment, than that of the Famine of Bread ; for this Particle [not] is not excluſive, but exceſſive ; implying, that a Famine of Bread is nothing, or but a light Judgment, compared with the Famine of the Word. Parallel to which is that Text, Iſa. 5. 6. I will lay it waſte ( ſaith God of the fruitleſs Church ) it ſhall not be pruned nor digged, but there ſhall come up briars and thorns ; I will alſo command the Clouds, that they rain not upon it. And we find both in Human and Sacred Hiſtories, that when God hath ſhut up the Spiritual Clouds, removing or ſilencing his Miniſters ; ſenſible Chriſtians have ever been deeply affected with it, and reckon'd it a moſt tremendous Judgment. Thus the Chriſtians of Antioch, when Chryſoſtom their Miniſter was baniſhed, * they judged it better to loſe the Sun out of the Firmament, than loſe that, their Miniſter. And when Nazienzen was taking his leave of Conſtantinople, as he was Preaching his Farewel-Sermon, the people were exceedingly affected with his loſs ; and among the reſt, an old man in the Congregation fell into a bitter paſſion, and cryed out, Aude pater, & tecum trinitatem ipſam ejice. ( i. e. ) Go farther, if you dare, and take away the whole Trinity with you ; meaning, that God would not ſtay when he was gone. How did the Chriſtians of Antioch alſo weep and lament, when Paul was taking his farewel of them ? Acts 20. 37, 38. He had been a Cloud of Bleſſings to that place, but now they muſt expect no more ſhowers from him. Oh, they knew not how to give up ſuch a Miniſter ! When the Ark of God (which was the Symbol of the Divine Preſence among the Jews) was taken, all the City cried out, 1 Sam. 4. 13. O, the loſs of a Goſpel-miniſtry is an ineſtimable loſs ! Not to be repaired but by its own return, or by Heaven. Mr. Greenham tells us, that in the Times of Popiſh Perſecution, when godly Miniſters were halled away from their Flocks to Martyrdom, the poor Chriſtians would meet them in the way to the Priſons or Stake, with their little ones in their Arms, and throwing themſelves at their Feet, would thus beſpeak them : " What ſhall be our Eſtate, now you " are gone to Martyrdom ? Who ſhall inſtruct theſe " poor Babes ? Who ſhall eaſe our afflicted Con" ſciences ? Who ſhall lead us in the way of Life ? " Recompence unto them, O Lord ! as they have " deſerved, who are the cauſes of this, Lord gi " them ſad Hearts. Quis talia fando, temper lachrymis ? And to let you ſee there is ſufficien ground for this ſorrow, when God reſtrains th influences of the Goſpel ; ſolemnly conſider th following particulars.

1. That it is a dreadful Token of God's gr anger againſt that People from whom he remov the Goſpel. The anger of God was fearfully i cenſed againſt the Church of Epheſus, when he but threaten to come againſt her, and remove t Candleſtick out of its place, Rev. 2. 5. 'Tis a ſtro at the Soul, a blow at the Root ; uſually the l and therefore the worſt of Judgments. There i Pedigree of Judgments, firſt Gomer bears Je next Loruhama, and at laſt brings forth Lo Hoſ. 1. 6, 8, 9.

2. There is cauſe of mourning, if you conſi the deplorable eſtate in which all the [illegible] Souls are left, after the Goſpel is removed fr them. What will become of theſe ? Or by wh ſhall they be gathered ? It made the Bowel

* Satius eſt ut ſol non luceat, quam ut non doceat. Chryſoſtomus.

Chriſt yearn within him when he looked upon the ſcattered multitude that had no Shepherd, Mat. 9. 36. What an eaſie Conqueſt doth the Devil now make of them? How faſt doth Hell fill in ſuch Times? Poor Souls being driven thither in droves, and none to reſcue them! Matthew Paris tells us, that in the year 1072. when Preaching was ſuppreſt at Rome, Letters were then framed as coming from Hell; wherein the Devil gave them thanks for the multitude of Souls they had ſent to him that year. But truly we need not talk of Letters from Hell, we are told from Heaven, how deplorable the condition of ſuch poor Souls is. See Prov. 28. 19. Hoſ. 4. 6. Or,

3. The judgment will yet appear very heavy, if you conſider the loſs which God's own People ſuſtain by the removal of the Goſpel; for therein they loſe (1.) Their chief glory, Rom. 3. 2. the principal thing in which the peculiar glory of Iſrael conſiſted was this, That unto them was committed the Oracles of God. On that account it was called the glorious Land, Dan. 11. 16. This made them greater than all the Nations round about them, Deut. 4. 7, 8. (2.) By loſing the Ordinances, they loſe their quicknings, comforts, and Soul-refreſhments; for all theſe are ſweet ſtreams from the Goſpel Fountain, Pſal. 119. 50. Col. 4. 8. No wonder then to hear the people of God complain of dead hearts when the Goſpel is removed. (3.) In the loſs of the Goſpel they loſe their defence and ſafety. This is their Hedge, their Wall of protection, Iſa. 5. 5. Walls and Hedges (ſaith Muſculus in loc.) are the Ordinances of God, which ſerved both ad ſeperationem, & munitionem, to diſtinguiſh, and to defend them. When God plucks up this Hedge, and breaks down this Wall, all miſchiefs break in upon us preſently, 2 Chron. 15. 3, 4, 5, 6. Now for a long ſeaſon Iſrael hath been without the true God, and without a teaching Prieſt, and without Law —— And in thoſe times there was no peace to him that went out, nor to him that came in, but great vexations were upon all the inhabitants of the Countries, and Nation was deſtroyed of Nation, and City of City; for God did vex them with all adverſity. How long did Jeruſalem remain, after that voice was heard in the Temple, migremu hinc? Let us be gone? (4.) With the Goſpel, we loſe our Temporal Injoyments and Creature-comforts. Theſe uſually come and go with the Goſpel. When God had once written Loammi upon Iſrael, the next news is this, I will recover my Wool and my Flax, Hoſ. 2. 9. (5.) And laſtly, to come up to the very caſe in hand, they loſe with it their Spiritual Food and Soul-ſubſiſtence, for the Goſpel is their Feaſt of fat things, Iſa. 25. 6. their Spiritual Wells, Iſa. 12. 3. a dole diſtributed among the Lord's poor, Rom. 1. 11. In a word, it is as the Rain and Dews of Heaven, as hath been ſhewed, which being reſtrained, a Spiritual Famine neceſſarily follows; a Famine of all the moſt terrible. Now to ſhew you the Analogy betwixt this and a Temporal Famine, that therein you may ſee what cauſe you have to be deeply affected with it, take it in theſe ſix following Particulars.

1. A Famine is cauſed by the failing of Bread, or that which is in the ſtead, and hath the uſe of Bread. Dainties and ſuperfluous Rarities may fail, and yet Men may ſubſiſt comfortably. As long as People have Bread and Water, they will not famiſh; but take away Bread once, and the Spirit of man faileth. Upon this account Bread is called a Staff, Pſal. 105. 16. becauſe what a Staff is to an aged or feeble man, that Bread is to the faint and feeble Spirits, which even ſo do lean upon it. And look what Bread is to the natural Spirits, that, and more than that, the Word is to gracious Spirits, Job 23. 12. I have eſteemed the words of thy mouth, more than my neceſſary food. If once God break this Staff, the inner man, that hidden man of the Heart, will quickly begin to fail and faulter.

2. It is not every degree of ſcarcity of Bread that preſently makes a Famine, but a general failing of it; when no Bread is to be had, or that which is, yields no nutriment. For a Famine may as well be occaſioned by God's taking away panis nutrimentum, the nouriſhing vertue of Bread, that it ſhall ſignifie no more as to the end of Bread, than a Chip, Hag. 1. 6. as by taking away panem nutrientem, Bread it ſelf, Iſa. 3. 1. And ſo it is in a Spiritual Famine, which is occaſioned either by God's removing all the Ordinances, and making Viſion utterly to fail; or elſe, though there be Preaching, Prayer, and other Ordinances left, (at leaſt, the names and ſhadows of them) yet the preſence of God is not with them. There is no Marrow in the Bone, no Milk in the Breaſt; and ſo, as to Soul-ſubſiſtence, 'tis all one, as if there were no ſuch things.

3. In a Corporeal Famine, mean and courſe things become ſweet and pleaſant; Famine raiſes the price and eſteem of them. That which before you would have thrown to your Dogs, now goes down pleaſantly with your ſelves. To the hungry Soul every bitter thing is ſweet, Prov. 27. 7. 'Tis the Dutch Proverb, and a very true one, Hunger is the beſt Book.

> Jejunus ſtomachus raro vulgaria temnit. Horat.

In time of Famine courſeſt fare contents,
The barking ſtomach ſtrains no complements.

'Tis ſtoried of Artaxerxes Memor, that when he was flying before his Enemies, he fed hungrily upon Barley-bread, and ſaid, Cujuſmodi voluptatis hactenus inexpertus fuit? Oh, what pleaſure have I hitherto been ignorant of? When great Darius drank the puddled Water, that had been defiled with dead Carcaſes, which had been ſlain in that Famous Battel, he profeſſed he never drank more pleaſant Drink. And Famous Hunniades ſaid, He never fared more daintily, than when (in a like exigence) he ſupped upon Bread, Onions, and Water, with a poor Shepherd in his Cottage.

Juſt ſo doth the Famine of the Word raiſe the price and eſteem of vulgar and deſpiſed Truths. O what would we give for one of thoſe Sermons, one of thoſe Sabbaths we formerly enjoyed? In thoſe days the Word of the Lord was precious. When God calls to the Enemy to take away and remove his contemned, but precious Dainties, from his wanton Children, and a Spiritual Famine hath a little pinched them, they will then learn to prize their Spiritual Food at a higher rate.

4. In time of Famine ſome Perſons ſuffer more than others. It falls heavieſt and pincheth hardeſt upon the poorer ſort; as long as any thing is to be had for Money, the Rich will have it. So it falls out in a Spiritual Famine; although the moſt experienced and beſt furniſhed Chriſtian will have enough to do to live in the abſence of Ordinances, yet they are like to ſubſiſt much better, than weak, ignorant, and unexperienced ones.

Some Chriſtians have husbanded their time well, and like Joſeph in the ſeven years plenty, laid up for a ſcarcity. The Word of God dwells richly in them. Some ſuch there are, as John calls young Men, who are ſtrong, and the Word of God remaineth in them, of whom it may be ſaid, as Jerom ſpake of Nepotianus, that by long and aſſiduous meditation of the Scriptures, he had made his Breaſt the very Library of Chriſt. But others are Babes in Chriſt; and though God will preſerve that good work which he hath begun in them, yet thoſe poor Babes will ſooneſt find, and be moſt concerned in the loſs of their Spiritual Fathers and Nurſes.

5. In time of Famine there are pitiful cries, and heart-breaking complaints where-ever you go. O the many pale Faces you ſhall then ſee, and the ſad Language that rings in your Ears in every place! One cries, Bread, Bread, for Chriſt's ſake one bit of Bread; another faints and falls down at your door. All her people ſigh, Lam. 1. 11. Yea, the poor little ones are brought in, v. 12. crying to their Mothers, where is the Corn and Wine? And then pouring out their Souls into their Mothers Boſom. Juſt ſo it is in a Famine of the Word; poor Chriſtians every-where ſighing and crying, O where are our godly Miniſters? Our ſweet Sabbaths, Sermons, Sacraments, my Fathers, my Fathers, the Chariots of Iſrael and the Horſemen thereof? How beautiful were your Feet upon the Mountains! And then weeping, like the people at Paul's departure, to think they ſhall ſee their faces no more.

6. Laſtly, In time of Famine, there is nothing ſo coſtly or precious, but people will part with it to purchaſe Bread. They have given their pleaſant things for meat to relieve their ſouls, Lam. 1. 11. And doubtleſs when a Spiritual Famine ſhall pinch hard, thoſe that have been cloſe-handed to maintain a Goſpel-miniſtry, will account it a choice Mercy to enjoy them again at any rate. Though the Lord feed you with the bread of affliction, and give you the waters of adverſity, yet it will ſweeten that bread and water to you, if your teachers be no more removed into corners, Iſa. 30. 20.

REFLECTIONS.

The Ungrateful Soul's Reflection.

1. Is the Famine of the Word ſuch a fearful Judgment? Then Lord pardon my unthankfulneſs, for the plentiful and long-continued enjoyment of ſuch a precious and invaluable Mercy. How lightly have I eſteemed the great things of the Goſpel? O that with Eyes and Hands lifted up to Heaven, I might bleſs the Lord, that ever I was brought forth in an Age of ſo much light. In a Valley of Viſions, in a Land flowing with Goſpel-mercies. Hath not God made of one Blood all the Nations of Men, to dwell on the face of the Earth? and determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation? Acts 17. 26. Many of theſe great and populous Nations are involved in groſs darkneſs. Now that of all the ſeveral Ages of the World, and places in it; God ſhould eſpy the beſt place for me, and bring me forth into it, in ſuch a happy nick of time, as can hardly be parallel'd in Hiſtory, for the plenty of Goſpel-mercies, that this Age and Nation hath enjoyed; that my Mother did not bring me forth in the Deſarts of Arabia, or waſtes of America, but in England, where God hath made the Sun of the Goſpel to ſtand ſtill, as the natural Sun once did over Gibeon; and that ſuch a Mercy ſhould no more affect my Soul, let ſhame cover my Face for this, and trembling ſeize my Heart.

The deprived Chriſtian's Reflection.

2. Is the Goſpel indeed departed? Its ſweet influences reſtrained? And a Famine worſe than that of Bread come upon us. Alas! for the day, for it is a great day, ſo that none is like it; it is even the day of Jacob's trouble. Woe is me, that ever I ſhould ſurvive the Goſpel, and the precious Liberties and mercies of it! What horrid ſins have been harboured amongſt us, for which the Lord contends by ſuch an unparellel'd Judgment? Lord, let me juſtifie thee even in this ſevere diſpenſation; the provocation of thy Sons, and of thy Daughters have been very great, and amongſt them none greater than mine. May we not this day read our ſin in our puniſhment? O what nice and wanton Appetites, what curious and itching Ears had thy people in the days of plenty? methods, tones and geſtures, were more regarded than the excellent Treaſures of Divine Truths. Ah my Soul! I remember my fault this day, little did I then conſider, that Sermons work not upon Hearts, as they are thus elegant, thus admirable, but as they are Inſtruments in the Hand of God appointed to ſuch an end. Even as Auſtin ſaid of the Conduits of Water, though one be in the ſhape of an Angel, another of a Beaſt, yet the Water refreſhes as it is Water, and not as it comes from ſuch a Conduit; By this alſo, O Lord, thou rebukeſt the ſupineneſs and formality of thy people. How drowſie, dull, and careleſs have they been under the moſt excellent and quickning means? Few more than I. Alas! I have often preſented my Body before the Lord in Ordinances, ἡ δὲ ψυχὴ ἔξω, but my Soul hath been wandring abroad, as Chryſoſtom ſpeaks. I ſhould have come from under every Sermon as a ſheet comes from the Preſs, with all the ſtamps and lively impreſſions of the Truths I heard upon my Heart. But alas, if it had been demanded of me, as once it was of Ariſtotle, after a long and curious Oration, how he liked it, I might have anſwered as he did, truly I did not hear it; for I was all the while minding another matter. Righteous art thou, O Lord, in all that is come upon us.

The Silent Miniſter's Reflection.

3. I am now as a Spring ſhut up, that can yield no refreſhment to thirſty Souls ready to periſh. Thou haſt ſaid to me as once to Ezekiel, Son of Man, behold, I will make thy Tongue cleave to the roof of thy Mouth, and thou ſhalt be dumb. This is a heavy Judgment, but thou muſt be juſtified and cleared in it. Although Men may not, yet God, if he pleaſe, may put a lighted Candle under a Buſhel. And herein I muſt acknowledge thy Righteouſneſs. Many times have I been ſinfully ſilent, when both thy glory and the intereſt of Souls engaged me to ſpeak. Moſt juſtly therefore haſt thou made my Tongue to cleave to its Roof. Little did I conſider the preciouſneſs of Souls, or the tremendous Account to be given for them, at the appearing of the great Shepherd. I have now time enough to ſit down and mourn over former miſcarriages, and loſt opportunities. Lord reſtore me once again to a ſerviceable Capacity, to a larger Sphere of Activity for thee, for I am now become as a broken Veſſel. It grieves me to the Heart, to ſee thy Flock ſcattered, to hear thy People cry to me, as once to Joſeph, Give us Bread, for why ſhould we die in thy preſence? Thy Word is like fire ſhut up in my Bones, and I am weary with forbearing. O, that thou wouldſt once again open the Doors of thine Houſe, that there may be Bread enough in thine Houſe for all thy Children.

CHAP. XI.

Upon the Corrupting of the Seed before it Spring.

Seeds die and rot, and then moſt freſh appear,
Saints Bodies riſe more Orient than they were.

OBSERVATION.

AFter the Seed is committed to the Earth, it ſeems to periſh and die, as our Saviour ſpeaks, John 12. 24. Except a Corn of Wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it brings forth much fruit. The death of the Corn in the Earth is not a total death, but only the corruption or alteration of it: For if once the ſeminal Life and Vertue of it were quite extinguiſht, it could never put forth blade or ear without a Miracle. Yet, becauſe that alteration is a kind of death, therefore Chriſt here uſes it as a fit illuſtration of the Reſurrection. And indeed there is nothing in nature more apt to illuſturate that great Myſtery. What a fragrant, green and beautiful blade do we ſee ſpring up from a corrupted Seed? How black and mouldy is that? How beautiful, and verdant is this?

APPLICATION.

EVen thus ſhall the Bodies of the Saints ariſe in beauty, and glory at the Reſurrection. They are ſown in diſhonour, they are raiſed in glory, they are ſown natural bodies, they are raiſed ſpiritual bodies, 1 Cor. 15. 43, 44. The Husbandman knows, that though the Seed rot in the Earth, yet it will riſe again. And the Believer knows, That though after his skin worms deſtroy his body, yet in his fleſh he ſhall ſee God, Job 19. 25. &c. And the reſemblance betwixt the Seed ſown, and ſpringing up; and the Bodies of the Saints dying, and riſing again, lyes in theſe following Particulars.

Firſt, The Seed is committed to the Earth from whence it came, ſo is the day of a Saint; Earth it was, and to Earth it is again reſolved. Grace exempts not the Body of the beſt man from ſeeing corruption, Rom. 8. 10. Though Chriſt be in him, yet the body is dead; that is, ſentenced to death, becauſe of ſin, Heb. 9. But it is appointed for all men once to die.

Secondly, The Seed is caſt into the Earth in hope, 1 Cor. 9. 10. Were there not a Reſurrection of it expected, the Husbandman would never be willing to caſt away his Corn. The Bodies of Saints are alſo committed to the Grave in hope, 1 Theſ. 4. 13, 14. But I would not have you to be ignorant brethren, concerning thoſe which are aſleep, as them which have no hope; for if we believe that Jeſus died and roſe again, even ſo alſo them which ſleep in Jeſus ſhall the Lord bring with him. This bleſſed hope of a Reſurrection, ſweetens not only the troubles of Life, but the pangs of Death.

Thirdly, The Seed is caſt into the Earth ſeaſonably, in its proper ſeaſon. So are the Bodies of the Saints, Job 5. 26. Thou ſhalt come to thy grave in a full age, as a ſhock of Corn cometh in, in its ſeaſon. They always die in the fitteſt time, though ſometimes they ſeem to die immaturately. The time of their death was from all Eternity prefixt by God, beyond which they cannot go, and ſhort of which they cannot come.

Fourthly, The Seed lyes many days and nights under the Clods, before it riſe and appear again, Even ſo man lyeth down, and riſeth not again till the Heavens be no more, Job 14. 12. The days of darkneſs in the Grave are many.

5. When the time is come for its ſhooting up, the Earth that covered it can hide it no longer, it cannot keep it down a day more; it will find or make way through the Clods. So in that day when the great Trump ſhall ſound, Bone ſhall come to his Bone, and the Graves ſhall not be able to hold them a minute longer. Both Sea and Earth muſt render the dead that are in them, Rev. 20. 13.

6. When the Seed appears above-ground again, it appears much more freſh and orient than when it was caſt into the Earth. God cloaths it with ſuch beauty, that it is not like to what it was before. Thus riſe the Bodies of Saints, marvellouſly improved, beautified, and perfected with Spiritual Qualities and rich Endowments; in reſpect whereof they are called Spiritual Bodies, 1 Cor. 15. 43. not properly, but Analogically Spiritual; for look as Spirits ſubſiſt without Food, Raiment, Sleep, know no laſſitude, wearineſs or pain; ſo our Bodies after the Reſurrection ſhall be above theſe neceſſities and Diſtempers; for we ſhall be as the Angels of God, Mat. 22. 30. Yea, our vile Bodies ſhall be changed, and made like unto Chriſt's glorious Body; which is the higheſt pitch, and aſcent of Glory and Honour, that an human Body is capable of, Phi. 3. 21. Indeed the glory of the Soul ſhall be the greateſt glory; that's the Orient invaluable Jem; but God will beſtow a diſtinct glory upon the Body, and richly Enamel the very Caſe in which that precious Jewel ſhall be kept. In that glorious Morning of the Reſurrection, the Saints ſhall put on their new freſh Suits of Fleſh, richly laid and trimmed with glory. Thoſe Bodies which in the Grave were but duſt and rottenneſs, when it delivers them back again, ſhall be ſhining and excellent pieces, abſolutely and everlaſtingly freed, (1.) From all natural Infirmities and Diſtempers; Death is their good Phyſician, which at once freed them of all Diſeaſes. 'Tis a great affliction now to many of the Lord's people, to be clog'd with ſo many bodily Infirmities which render them very unſerviceable to God. The ſpirit indeed is willing, but the fleſh is weak. A crazy Body retorts and ſhoots back its Diſtempers upon the Soul with which it is ſo cloſely conjoined; but though now the Soul (as Theophraſtus ſpeaks) pays a dear rent for the Tabernacle in which it dwells, yet when Death diſſolves that Tabernacle, all the Diſeaſes and Pains under which it groaned ſhall be buried in the Rubbiſh of its Mortality; and when they come to be re-united again, God will beſtow rich Gifts and Dowries, even upon the Body, in the day of its Re-eſpouſals to the Soul. (2.) It ſhall be freed from all deformities, there are no breaches, flaws, montroſities in glorified Bodies; but of them it may much rather be ſaid, what was once ſaid of Abſolom, 2 Sam. 14. 25. That from the Crown of his head, to the ſole of his foot, there was no blemiſh in him. (3*ly.*) It ſhall be freed from all natural neceſſities, to which it is now ſubjected in this its Animal ſtate. How is the Soul now diſquieted and tortured with cares and troubles, to provide for a periſhing Body? Many unbelieving and unbecoming fears, it is now vexed with. What ſhall it eat? And what ſhall it drink? And wherewithal ſhall it be cloathed? But meats for the belly, and the belly for meats; God ſhall deſtroy both it and them, 1 Cor. 6. 13. (i. e.) as to their preſent uſe and office; for as to its exiſtence, ſo the Belly ſhall not be deſtroyed. But even as the Maſts, Poop and Stern of a Ship abide in the Harbour after the Voyage is ended, ſo ſhall theſe bodily Members, as Tertullian excellently illuſtrates it. (4*ly.*) They ſhall be freed from Death, to which thenceforth they can be ſubject no more; that formidable Adverſary of nature ſhall aſſault it no more. For they which ſhall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the reſurrection from the dead; neither marry, nor are given in marriage, neither can they die any more; for they ſhall be equal to the Angels, and are the Children of God, being the Children of the Reſurrection, Luke 20. 35, 36. Mark it (equal to the Angels) not that they ſhall be ſeperate, and ſingle Spirits without Bodies, as the Angels are, but equal to them in the way and manner of their living and acting. We ſhall then live upon God, and act freely, purely, and delightfully for God; for all kind of living upon, and delighting in Creatures, ſeems in that Text (by a Synecdoche of the part which is ordinarily in Scripture put for all Creature delights, Dependencies, and Neceſſities) to be excluded. Nothing but God ſhall enamour and fill the Soul, and the Body ſhall be perfectly ſubdued to the Spirit. Lord, what haſt thou prepared for them that love thee?

REFLECTIONS.

The Healthful Saints Reflection.

1. If I ſhall receive my Body again ſo dignified and improved in the World to come, then Lord let me never be unwilling to uſe my Body now for the Intereſt of thy Glory, or my own Salvation. Now, O my God, it grieves me to think how many precious opportunities of ſerving and honouring thee, I have loſt under pretence of endangering my Health.

I have been more ſolicitous to live long and healthfully, than to live uſefully and fruitfully; and like enough my Life had been more ſerviceable to thee, if it had not been ſo fondly overvalued by me.

Fooliſh Soul, hath God given thee a Body for a living Tool or Inſtrument? And art thou afraid to uſe it? Wherein is the Mercy of having a Body, if not in ſpending and wearing it out in the Service of God? To have an active vigorous Body, and not to imploy and exerciſe it for God, for fear of endangering its Health, is, as if one ſhould give thee a handſom and ſprightful Horſe, upon condition thou ſhouldſt not ride or work him. O! If ſome of the Saints had enjoyed the bleſſing of ſuch an healthy active Body as mine, what excellent Services would they have performed to God in it?

The Sick Saints Re ction.

2. If my Body ſhall as ſurely riſe again in glory, vigour and excellent endowments, as the Seed which I ſow doth, Why ſhould not this comfort me over all the pains, weakneſſes and dul neſs with which my Soul is now clogged? Tho knoweſt, my God, what a grief it had been my Soul, to be fettered and entangled with the D ſtempers and manifold Indiſpoſitions of this v Body. It hath made me ſigh and ſay, with holy A ſelme, when he ſaw the mounting Bird weigh down by the Stone hanging at her Leg. Lord, th it fares with the Soul of thy Servant! Fain woul

ſerv

rve, glorifie, and enjoy thee, but a diſtempered ody will not let me. However, it is reviving think, that though I am now forced to crawl ke a worm, in the diſcharge of my Duties, I ſhall hortly fly, like a Seraphim, in the execution of hy will. Chear up, drooping Soul, the time is at and, when thou ſhalt be made more willing than hou art, and thy Fleſh not ſo weak as now it is.

The Dying aints Reflection.

3. And is it ſo indeed? Then let the dying Saint, like Jacob, rouze up himſelf upon his Bed, and encourage himſelf againſt the fears of death by his refreſhing Conſideration. Let him ſay with oly dying Muſculus, Why trembleſt thou (O my oul) to go forth of this Tabernacle to the Land f reſt? Hath thy Body been ſuch a pleaſant Habitation, to thee, that thou ſhouldſt be ſo loth to part ith it, though but for a time? And with aſſu- ance of receiving it again with ſuch a glorious Im- rovement? I know (O my Soul) that thou aſt a natural inclination to this Body, reſulting rom the dear and ſtrict union which God himſelf ath made betwixt thee and it? Yea, even the oliest of men do ſometimes ſenſibly feel the like n themſelves, but beware thou love it not im- oderately or inordinately; 'tis but a Creature, ow dear ſoever it be to thee: Yea, a fading reature, and that which now ſtands in the way o the full enjoyment of God. But ſay my Soul, hy are the thoughts of parting with it ſo burdenſom to thee? Why ſo loth to take Death by ts cold Hand? Is this Body thy old and dear riend? True, but yet thou parteſt not with it pon ſuch ſad terms, as ſhould deſerve a Tear at arting. For maiſt thou not ſay of this departure, s Paul at the departure of Oneſimus, Philem. v. 5. It therefore departeth for a ſeaſon that thou maiſt re- ive it for ever. The day of Re-eſpouſals will uickly come, and in the mean time as thy Body hall not be ſenſible of the tedious length of inter- oſing time, ſo neither ſhalt thou be ſolicitous bout thine abſent Friend: For the Fruition f God in thine unbodied ſtate, ſhall fill thee ith infinite ſatisfaction and reſt.

Or is it not ſo much ſimply for parting with it, s for the manner of thy parting, either by the ſlow nd lingring approaches of a natural, or the quick nd terrible approaches of a violent Death: hy, trouble not thy ſelf about that; for if God lead thee through the long dark Lane of a edious Sickneſs, yet at the end of it is thy Fa- hers Houſe. And for a violent death 'tis not ſo aterial, whether Friends or Enemies ſtand eeping or triumphing over thy dead Body. ibil corpus ſentit in nervo cum anima ſit in cœlo. hen thy Soul ſhall be in Heaven, 'twill ot be ſenſible how the Body is uſed on Earth.

he ungodly oul's Reflection.

4. But Oh! What an uncomfortable parting will mine be? And how much more ſad our meeting again! How will this Soul and Body, luſh, yea tremble, when they meet, who have een Co-partners in ſo much guilt? I Damn'd y Soul, to pleaſe my Fleſh, and now have uin'd both thereby: Had I denied my Fleſh to rve Chriſt, worn out my Body in the Service my Soul; I had thereby happily provided r them both, but I began at the wrong end, d ſo have ruin'd both eternally.

CHAP. XII.

Upon the Reſemblance of Wheat and Tares.

As Wheat reſembled is, by viler Tares,
So, vile Hypocriſy, like Grace, appears.

OBSERVATION.

IT is Jerom's Obſervation, that Wheat and Tares are ſo much alike in their firſt ſpringing up, that it is exceeding difficult to diſtinguiſh the one from the other, Theſe are his words, Inter triticum & lolium quamdiu herba eſt, & nondum culmus venit ad ſpicam; grandis ſimilitudo eſt: & indiſcernendo aut nulla, aut per difficilis diſtantia. The difference (ſaith he) between them, is either none at all, or wonderful difficult to diſcern, which thoſe words of Chriſt, Mat. 13. 30. plainly confirm. Let them both alone till the Harveſt; thereby intimating, both the difficulty of diſtinguiſhing the Tares and Wheat; as alſo, the unwarrantable raſhneſs of bold and haſty Cenſures of Men's Sincerity or Hypocriſie, which is thereby ſhadowed by them.

APPLICATION.

HOW difficult ſoever it be to diſcern the difference betwixt Wheat and Tares, yet doubtleſs the Eye of Sence can much eaſier diſcriminate them, than the moſt quick and piercing Eye of Man can diſcern the difference betwixt ſpecial and common Grace; for all ſaving Graces in the Saints have their Counterfeits in Hypocrites. There are ſimilar works in theſe, which a Spiritual and very judicious Eye may eaſily miſtake for the ſaving and genuine effects of the Sanctifying Spirit.

Doth the Spirit of God convince the Conſciences of his People of the evil of ſin? Rom. 7. 9. Hypocrites have their Convictions too, Exod. 10. 16. Then Pharaoh called for Moſes and Aaron in haſte, and he ſaid, I have ſinned againſt the Lord your God, and againſt you. Thus was Saul alſo convicted, 1 Sam. 15. 24.

Doth true Conviction and Compunction work Reformation of Life in the people of God? Even Hypocrites alſo have been famous for their Reformations. The unclean Spirit often goes out of the formal Hypocrite, by an external Reformation; and yet ſtill retains his propriety in them, Mat. 12. 43, 44. For that departure is indeed no more than a politick retreat. Many that ſhall never eſcape the Damnation of Hell, have yet eſcaped the pollutions of the World, and that by the knowledge of the Son of God, 2 Pet. 2. 20.

Doth the Spirit of the Lord produce that glorious and ſupernatural work of Faith in convinced and humble Souls? In this alſo the Hypocrite apes and imitates the Believer, Acts 8. 13. Then Simon himſelf believed alſo, Luke 8. 13. Theſe are they which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away.

Doth the precious Eye of Faith, diſcovering the tranſcendent excellencies that are in Chriſt, inflame the Affections of the believing Soul with vehement deſires and longings after him? Strange motions of Heart have alſo been found in Hypocrites towards Chriſt and Heavenly things, Job 6. 34. Lord, evermore give us this bread, Mat. 25. 8. Give us of your Oyl, for our Lamps are gone out. With what a rapture was Balaam tranſported, when he ſaid, Let me die the death of the righteous, and my laſt end be like his, Numb. 23. 10.

Doth the work of Faith in ſome Believers bear upon its top Branches, the full ripe Fruits of a bleſſed aſſurance? Lo! What ſtrong confidences, and high-built perſwaſions of an intereſt in God, have ſometimes been found even in unſanctified ones? John 8. 54. Of whom you ſay, that he is your God, and yet ye have not known him. To the ſame height of confidence arrived thoſe vain Souls, mentioned in Rom. 2. 19. Yea, ſo ſtrong may this falſe aſſurance be, that they dare boldly venture to go to the Judgment-ſeat of God, and there defend it, Mat. 7. 22. Lord, Lord, have we not propheſied in thy Name?

Doth the Spirit of God fill the Heart of the aſſured Believer with joy unſpeakable and full of glory, giving them, through Faith, a prelibation, or forctaſt of Heaven it ſelf, in thoſe firſt fruits of it? How near to this comes that which the Apoſtle ſuppoſes may be found even in Apoſtates? Heb. 6. 8, 9. who are there ſaid, to taſte the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come. What ſhall I ſay, if real Chriſtians delight in Ordinances, thoſe that are none may alſo delight in approaching to God, Ezek. 33. 32. It may be you will ſay, though the difference be not eaſily diſcernable in their active obedience; yet, when it ſhall come to ſuffering, there every Eye may diſcern it: The falſe Heart will then flinch, and cannot brook that work. And yet even this is no infallible rule neither; for the Apoſtle ſuppoſes, that the Salamander of Hypocriſie may live in the very Flames of Martyrdom, 1 Cor. 13. 3. If I give my body to be burnt, and have not charity. And it was long ſince determined in this caſe, Non pœna, ſed cauſa facit Martyre; ſo that without Controverſie, the difficulty of diſtinguiſhing them is very great.

And this difference will yet be more ſubtle and undiſcernable, if I ſhould tell you, that as in ſo many things, the Hypocrite reſembles the Saint: So there are other things in which a real Chriſtian may act too like a Hypocrite. When we find a Pharaoh confeſſing, an Herod practiſing, as well as hearing, a Judas preaching Chriſt, an Alexander venturing his Life for Paul; and on the other ſide, ſhall find a David condemning that in another, which he practiſed himſelf; an Hezekiah glorying in his Riches, a Peter diſſembling, and even all the Diſciples forſaking Chriſt in an hour of trouble and danger. O then how hard is it for the Eye of Man to diſcern betwixt Chaff and Wheat? How many upright Hearts are now cenſured, whom God will clear? How many falſe Hearts are now approved, whom God will condemn? Men ordinarily have no clear convictive proofs, but only probable ſymptoms, which, at moſt can beget but a conjectural knowledge of anothers ſtate. And they that ſhall peremptorily judge either way, may poſſibly wrong the Generation of the upright; or on the other ſide, abſolve and juſtifie the Wicked. And truly, conſidering what hath been ſaid, it's no great wonder that dangerous miſtakes are ſo frequently made in this matter. But though man cannot, the Lord both can, and will perfectly diſcriminate them. The Lord knoweth who are his, 2 Tim. 2. 19. He will have a day perfectly to ſever the Tares from the Wheat, to melt off the varniſh of the moſt reſplendent and refined Hypocrite, and to blow off the Aſhes of Infirmities, which have covered and obſcured the very ſparks of ſincerity in his People. He will make ſuch a diviſion as was never yet made in the World, how many diviſions ſoever there have been in it. And then ſhall men indeed return, and diſcern betwixt the righteous and the wicked, betwixt him that ſerveth God, and him that ſerveth him not. Mean while (my Soul) thou canſt not better imploy thy ſelf, whether thou be ſound or unſound, than in making theſe Reflections upon thy ſelf.

REFLECTIONS.

The Cenſorious Soul's Reflection.

And is this ſo? Then Lord pardon the raſhneſs and precipitancy of my Cenſorious Spirit; for I have often boldly anticipated thy Judgment, and aſſumed thy Prerogative, although, thou haſt ſaid, Why doſt thou judge thy brother? and why do thou ſet at nought thy brother? we ſhall all ſtand before the Judgment-ſeat of Chriſt; for it is written, as live (ſaith the Lord) every knee ſhall bow to me, and every tongue ſhall confeſs to God. Let us n therefore judge one another any more, Rom. 14. 10, 11, 12, 13. And again, He that judgeth me is the Lor Let us therefore judge nothing before the time until th Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidd things of darkneſs, and make manifeſt the counſels the heart; and then ſhall every man have praiſe God, 1 Cor. 4. 4, 5.

Wh

What if God will own ſome of them for his Sons, to whom I refuſe to give the reſpect of Brethren? I may paſs haſty and headlong Cenſures upon others, but where is my Commiſſion for ſo doing? I want not only a Commiſſion, but fit Qualifications for ſuch a work as this. Can I pierce into the Heart as God? Can I infallibly diſcover the hidden motives, ends, and principles of actions? Beſides, O my Soul! Thou art conſcious of ſo much falſeneſs in thy ſelf, that were there no other conſideration, that alone might reſtrain thee from all uncharitable and haſty Cenſures. If others knew but what I know of my ſelf, would they not judge as ſeverely of me, as I do of others?

The Preſumptuous Soul's Reflection.

2. Though I may not judge the final ſtate of another, yet I may and ought to judge the ſtate of my own Soul; which is doubtleſs a more neceſſary and concerning work to me. For ſince every ſaving Grace in a Chriſtian hath its Counterfeit in the Hypocrite, how needful is it, for thee, (O my Soul) to make a ſtand here, and ſolemnly to ponder this great queſtion; Whether thoſe things whereon I depend as my beſt Evidences for the Life to come, be the real, or only the common works of the Spirit? Whether they be ſuch as can now endure the Teſt of the Word and abide a fair Tryal at the Bar of my own Conſcience?

Come then, my Soul! ſet the Lord before thee, to whom the ſecrets of all Hearts are manifeſt; and in the awful ſence of that great day, make true anſwer to theſe Heart-diſcovering Queries! for though thou canſt not diſcern the difference betwixt theſe things in another, yet thou mayſt and oughteſt to diſcern it in thy ſelf; for what Man knows the things of a Man, ſave the Spirit of Man that is in him?

Firſt, Is my obedience uniform? Am I the ſame Man at all times, Places and Companies? Or rather, am I not exact and curious in open and publick; remiſs and careleſs in private and ſecret Duties? Sincere Souls are uniform Souls, Pſal. 119. the Hypocrite is no Cloſet-man, Mat. 6. 5.

Secondly, Doth that which I call Grace in me, oppoſe and mortifie, or doth it not rather quietly conſiſt with, and protect my Luſts and Corruptions? True Grace tolerates no Luſt, Gal. 5. 17. No, not the Boſom Darling-corruptions, Pſal. 18. 3.

Thirdly, Doth that which I call my Grace, humble, empty, and abaſe my Soul? Or rather, doth it not puff it up with Self-conceitedneſs? All ving Grace is humbling-Grace, 1 Cor. 15. 10. t the Soul which is lifted up, is not upright, Hab. 4.

Laſtly, Canſt thou (my Soul) rejoyce and bleſs d for the Grace imparted to others? And rece, if any deſign for Chriſt be carried on in the orld by other Hands? Or rather, doſt thou not vy thoſe that excel thee, and careſt for no work which thou art not ſeen?

But ſtay my Soul, it is enough: If theſe be the ſtantial differences betwixt ſpecial and common ace, I more than doubt, I ſhall not endure the of his coming, Whoſe Fan is in his Hand. Do thoſe ſpots appear upon me, which are not pots of his Children? Woe is me, poor Wretch, Characters of Death are upon my Soul! Lord, power to the Form, Life to the name to live, ice to the knowledge, or I periſh Eternally! O rather give me the Saints Heart, than the Angels Tongue; the pooreſt breathing of thy Spirit, than the richeſt Ornaments of common Gifts! Let me neither deceive my ſelf or others, in matters of ſo deep and everlaſting conſequence!

CHAP. XIII.

Upon the Dangers incident to Corn from Seed-time to Harveſt.

Fowls, Weeds, and Blaſtings do your Corn annoy;
Even ſo Corruptions would your Grace deſtroy.

OBSERVATION.

There are (amongſt many others) three Critical and dangerous periods betwixt the Seed-time and Harveſt. The firſt, when Corn is newly committed to the Earth, all that lies uncovered is quickly pickt up by the Birds; and much of that which is but ſlightly covered, is ſtockt up as ſoon as it begins to ſprout, by Rooks and other devouring Fowls, Mat. 13. 4. but if it eſcape the Fowls, and gets root in the Earth, yet then it is hazarded by noxious Weeds, which purloin and ſuck away its nouriſhment, whilſt it is yet in the tender blade. If by the care of the vigilant Husbandman it be freed from choaking Weeds; yet laſtly, as great a danger as any of the former ſtill attends it; for oftentimes, whilſt it is blowing in the ear, blaſtings, and mildews ſmite it in the ſtalk, which cuts off the juice and ſap that ſhould aſcend to nouriſh the ear; and ſo ſhrivels and dries up the Grain whilſt it is yet immaturate, whereby it becomes like thoſe Ears of Corn in Pharoah's Viſion, which were thin, and blaſted with the Eaſt-wind; or like the Ears the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks of upon the Houſe-top, wherewith the Reaper filleth not his Arms.

APPLICATION.

TRue Grace from the Infancy to the Perfection thereof, conflicts with far more greater dangers, amongſt which it anſwerably meets with three dangerous periods which marvellouſly hazard it: So that it is a much greater wonder that it ever arrives at its juſt perfection. For, (1.) No ſooner hath the great Husbandman diſſeminated theſe holy Seeds in the regenerate Heart, but multitudes of impetuous Corruptions immediately aſſault, and would certainly devour them like the Fowls of the Air, did not the ſame Arm that ſowed them, alſo protect them. It fares with Grace, as with Chriſt its Author, whom Herod ſought to deſtroy in his very Infancy. The new Creature is ſcarce warm in its ſeat, before it muſt fight to defend it ſelf. This Conflict is excellently ſet forth in that famous Text, Gal. 5. 17. The Fleſh luſteth againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit againſt the Fleſh, and theſe are contrary the one to the other; ſo that ye cannot do the things that ye would.

By Fleſh here, underſtand the corruption of nature by Original Sin, and the ſinful motions thereof; by Spirit, not the Soul, or natural Spirit of man, but the Spirit of God in man, viz. thoſe Graces in man which are the Workmanſhip of the Spirit, and therefore called by his Name. The oppoſition betwixt theſe two is expreſſed by luſting, (i. e.) deſiring the mutual ruin and deſtruction of each other; for even when they are not acting, yet then they are luſting, there is an oppoſite diſpoſition againſt each other; which oppoſition is both a formal and an effective oppoſition. There are two contrary forms, two men in every Saint, Col. 3. 9, 10. From hence an effective oppoſition muſt needs follow; for as things are in their Natures and Principles, ſo they are in their Operations and Effects; Workings always follow Beings; Fire and Water are of contrary qualities, and when they meet, they effectually oppoſe each other. Sin and Grace are ſo oppoſite, that if Sin ſhould ceaſe to oppoſe Grace, it would ceaſe to be Sin; and if Grace ſhould not oppoſe Sin, it would ceaſe to be Grace. And this doth much more endanger the work of Grace, than any other Enemy it hath; becauſe it works againſt it more inwardly, conſtantly, and advantagiouſly, than any thing elſe can do. (1.) More inwardly, for it hath its being and working in the ſame Soul where Grace dwells; yea, in the ſelf-ſame Faculties, ſo that it not only ſets one Faculty againſt another, but the ſame Faculty againſt it ſelf, the Underſtanding againſt the Underſtanding, and the Will againſt the Will; ſo that ye cannot do the Good, nor yet the Evil that ye would; not the good that ye would, becauſe when the Spirit moves to good, and beats upon Heart by Divine Pulſations, exciting it to Duty, the Fleſh croſſes and oppoſes it there; and if it cannot totally hinder the performance of a Duty, yet it lames the Soul upon the working hand; whereby the performance is not ſo Spiritual, free and compoſed, as it deſires; nor yet the evil that you would commit, if Grace were not there, becauſe when Luſt ſtirs in its firſt motions, Grace puts a rub in its way. How can I do this great wickedneſs, and ſin againſt God? Gen. 39. 9. And if it cannot (which for the moſt part it doth) hinder the acting of Sin, yet it ſo engages the Will againſt it, that it is not committed with complacency and full conſent, Rom. 7. 15. What I do I allow not. (2.) It oppoſes it more conſtantly, it's like a continual dropping; a Man can no more fly from this Enemy, than from himſelf. There is a time when the Devil leaves tempting, Mat. 4. 11. but no time when Corruption ceaſes from working. And laſtly, it oppoſes Grace more advantagiouſly than any other Enemy can do, for it is not only always in the ſame Soul with it, but it is there naturally; it hath the advantage of the Soyl which ſuits with it. And yet, Oh the wonder of free Grace! It is not not ſwallowed up in Victory, it eſcapes this hazard.

But (2*ly.*) It ſoon meets with another, though it eſcape this, even by Temptations which ſtrike deſperately at the very Life of it; for theſe, like the Weeds, which ſeemingly loving imbraces, claſp about it; and did not the faithful God now make a way to eſcape, inſtead of an Harveſt, we ſhould have an heap? For alas, what are we! to wreſtle with Principalities and Powers, and Spiritual Wickedneſſes in high Places?

Laſtly, ſad Relapſes, like blaſts and ruſtings, do often fade, and greatly endanger it when it's even ready for the Harveſt. Thus it fell out with David, whoſe laſt ways were not like its firſt; and yet by this, theſe holy Fruits are not utterly deſtroyed, becauſe it is the ſeed of God; and ſo is Immortal, 1 John 5. 4, 5. And alſo becauſe the Promiſes of Perſeverance and Victory made to it, cannot be fruſtrated, amongſt which theſe are excellent, Iſa. 54. 10. Jer. 34. 40. 1 Cor. 1. 8. Pſal. 1. 3. Pſal. 125. 1 John. 4. 14. So that here is matter of unſpeakable Comfort; though the Fleſh ſay, Ego deficiam, I will fail thee; though the World ſay, Ego decipiam, I will deceive thee; though the Devil ſay, Ego eripiam, I will ſnatch thee away; yet as long as Chriſt ſaith, I will never leave thee nor forſake thee; thy Graces are ſecure in the midſt of all theſe Enemies.

REFLECTIONS.

The Apoſta Reflection.

1. This Soul of mine was once plowed up by Conviction, and ſown (as I thought) with the Seed of God. In thoſe days many purpoſes and good reſolutions began to chink and bud forth, prom ſing a bleſſed Harveſt: But O! (with what co ſternation and horror ſhould I ſpeak it?) the Ca and Pleaſures of this Life, the Luſts and Corru tions of my baſe Heart ſpringing up, have qu deſtroyed and choakt it; by which it appears was not the Seed of God, as I then imagined it be; and now my expected Harveſt ſhall be an he in the day of grief and deſperate ſorrow, Iſa. 1 11. I had Convictions, but they are gone: Tro bles for Sin, Conſcience of Duties, but all is bl ed, and my Soul is now as a Barren Field, wh God hath curſed.

Woe is me! I have revolted from God, and that dreadful word, Jer. 17. 5, 9. is evidently filled upon me; For I am like the Heath in the de that ſeeth not when good cometh; my Soul inhabit parched places of the Wilderneſs. Alas! all my formal and heartleſs duties were but as ſo many ſcarecrows in the Field, which could not defend theſe ſlight workings from being devoured by the Infernal Fowls. Had theſe Principles been the Seed of God, no doubt they would have continued and overcome the World, 1 John 2. 19. Wretched Soul! thy Caſe is ſad, it will be better with the uncultivated Wilderneſs, than with ſuch a miſcarrying Soyl, unleſs the great Husbandman plow thee up the ſecond time, and ſow thy Heart with better Seed.

The Careleſs Souls Reflection.

2. And are the Corruptions of my Heart to Grace, what Fowls, Weeds, and Mildews are to the Corn? O what need have I then to watch my Heart, and keep it with all diligence; for in the Life of that Grace is wrapt up the Life of my Soul. He that carries a Candle in his Hand in a bluſtring Stormy Night, had need to cover it cloſe, leſt it be blown out, and he left in darkneſs. O let me never ſay, God hath promiſed it ſhall perſevere, and therefore I need not be ſo ſolicitous to preſerve it; for as this inference is quite oppoſite to the nature of true Grace and Aſſurance, which never incourage to careleſneſs, but provoke the Soul to an induſtrious uſe of Means to preſerve it. So it is in it ſelf an irrational and ſenſleſs Concluſion, which will never follow from any Scripture Promiſe: For although it is readily granted, that God hath made many comfortable and ſweet Promiſes to the Graces of his People, yet we muſt expect to enjoy the Benefits and Bleſſings of all thoſe Promiſes, in that way and order in which God hath promiſed them; and that is in the careful and diligent uſe of thoſe means which he hath preſcribed, Ezek. 36. 36, 37. for Promiſes do not exclude, but imply the uſe of means, Acts 27. 31. I know my Life is determined to a day, to an hour, and I ſhall live out every minute God hath appointed; but yet, I am bound to provide Food, Raiment and Phyſick to preſerve it.

The Doubting Soul's Reflections.

To conclude, Let all doubting Chriſtians reflect ſeriouſly upon this Truth, and ſuck Marrow and Fatneſs out of it to ſtrengthen and eſtabliſh hem againſt all their Fears; your Life, your Spiitual Life, hath for many years hanged in ſuſpence before you; and you have often ſaid with David, I ſhall one day fall by the Hand of Saul. Deſponding, trembling Soul, lift up thine Eyes nd look upon the Fields, the Corn lives ſtill, and grows up; though Birds have watcht to devour it, nows have cover'd it, Beaſts have cropt it, Weeds ave almoſt choakt it, yet it's preſerved. And ath not God more care of that precious Seed of is own Spirit in thee, than any Husbandman hath f his Corn? Hath he not ſaid, That having begun e good work in thee, he will perfect it to the day of hriſt? Phil. 1. 6. Hath he not ſaid, I give unto em eternal Life, and they ſhall never periſh? John 0. 28. Haſt thou not many times ſaid, and ought of it, as thou doſt now, and yet it lives? what matter of unſpeakable Joy and Comfort is is to upright Souls! Well then, be not diſcouged, for thou doſt not run as one uncertain, nor ht as one that beats the Air, 1 Cor. 9. 26. but Foundation of God ſtands ſure, having this l, the Lord knows who are his, 2 Tim. 2. 19. hough thy Grace be weak, thy God is ſtrong; though the Stream ſeem ſometimes to fail, yet it's fed by an ever-flowing Fountain.

CHAP. XIV.

Upon the Patience of the Husbandman for the Harveſt.

Our Husbandmen for Harveſt wait and ſtay,
O let not any Saint do leſs than they.

OBSERVATION.

THE expectation of a good Harveſt at laſt, makes the Husbandman with untired patience to digeſt all his Labours. He that plows, plows in hope, 1 Cor. 6. 19. and they are not ſo irrational to think, they ſhall preſently be partakers of their hope, nor ſo fooliſh to anticipate the Harveſt by cutting down their Corn before it be fully ripened, but are content to plow, ſow and weed it; and when it is fully ripe, then they go forth into their Fields and reap it down with joy.

APPLICATION.

CAN a little Corn cauſe Men to digeſt ſo many difficult labours, and make them wait with invincible patience till the reaping time come; Much more ſhould the expectation of Eternal Glory ſteel and fortifie my Spirit againſt all intercurrent hardſhips and difficulties. It leaſt of all becomes a Chriſtian to be of an haſty and impatient Spirit. Light is ſown for the righteous, and joy for the upright in heart, Pſal. 92. 11. Behold the Husbandman waiteth, &c. Jam. 5. 7. Be patient therefore my Brethren, for the coming of the Lord draws near. There are three great Arguments to perſwade Chriſtians to a long-ſuffering and patient frame under ſufferings. (1.) The example of Chriſt, Iſa. 53. 7. to think how quietly he ſuffered all injuries and difficulties with invincible patience, is ſufficient to ſhame the beſt of Chriſtians, who are of ſuch ſhort Spirits. I have read of one Elezarius, a Nobleman, that when his Wiſe wondered at his exceeding great patience in bearing injuries; he thus anſwered her, You know ſometimes my heart is ready to riſe with indignation againſt ſuch as wrong me, but I preſently begin to think of the wrongs that Chriſt ſuffer'd, and ſay thus to my ſelf, although thy Servant ſhould pluck thy Beard, and ſmite thee on thy Face, this were nothing to what the Lord ſuffered: He ſuffered more and greater things; and aſſure your ſelf (Wiſe) I never leave off thinking on the injuries done to my Saviour, till ſuch time as my mind be ſtill and quiet. To this purpoſe it was well noted by Bernard ſpeaking of Chriſt's Humiliation; Was Chriſt the Lord of glory thus humble and emptied of his fulneſs of Glory? And ſhall ſuch a worm as I ſwell? (2.) The deſert of ſin, Lam. 3. 39. Why doth the living man complain? It was a good ſaying of the bleſſed Greenham: When ſin lyes heavy, affliction lyes light. And it is a famous inſtance which Dr. Taylor gives us of the Duke of Conde; I have read (ſaith he) when the Duke of Conde had voluntarily entered into the Incommodities of a Religious Poverty and Retirement; he was one day ſpyed and pityed by a Lord of Italy, who out of tenderneſs wiſht him to be more careful and nutritive of his Perſon; the good Duke anſwered, Sir, be not troubled, and think not that I am ill provided of Conveniences, for I ſend an Harbinger before me that makes ready my Lodgings, and takes care that I be Royally entertained. The Lord asked him, who was his Harbinger? He anſwered, the knowledge of my ſelf, and the conſideration of what I deſerve for my ſins, which is Eternal Torments; and when with this knowledge I arrive at my Lodgings, how unprovided ſoever I find it, methinks it is ever better than I deſerve; and as the ſenſe of ſin, which merits Hell, ſweetens preſent difficulties; ſo, (to come home to the preſent ſimilitude) do the expectations and hopes of a bleſſed Harveſt and Reward in Heaven. This made Abraham willing to wander up and down many years as a Stranger in the World; for he looked for a City that hath Foundations, whoſe Builder and Maker is God. The hopes of ſuch a Harveſt is encouragement enough to work hard, and wait long; yet ſome Chriſtians are ſo impatient of it, that they would fain be reaping before the time; but as God hath, by an unalterable Law of Nature, appointed both the Seaſons of Seed-time and Harveſt (which are therefore called the appointed Weeks of the Harveſt) Jer. 5. 24. and theſe cannot be haſten'd; but when we have done all that we can on our part, muſt wait till God ſend the former and the latter Rain, and given every natural cauſe its effect. So is it in reference to our Spiritual Harveſt; we are appointed to ſweat in the uſe of all God's appointments, and when we have done all, muſt patiently wait till the Divine Decrees be accompliſhed, and the time of the Promiſe be fully come; In due time we ſhall reap, if we faint not. To which patient expectation, and quiet waiting for the Glory to come, theſe following Conſiderations are of excellent uſe.

Dr. Taylor's Great Exemplar, p. 103.

1. As the Husbandman knows when the Seed-time is paſt, it will not be long to the Harveſt; and the longer he waits, the nearer ſtill it is. So the Chriſtian knows, It is but yet a little while, and he that ſhall come will come, and will not tarry, Heb. 10. 37. And that now his ſalvation is nearer than when he firſt believed, Rom. 13. 11. What a ſmall point of time is our waiting time, compared with Eternity? Yet a few days more, and then comes the long expected and welcome Harveſt.

2. The Husbandman can find other work to do, before the reaping time come; he need not ſtand idle, though he cannot yet reap. And cannot a Chriſtian find any work to do for God, till he come to Heaven? O, there is much work to do, and ſuch work as is only proper to this Seaſon. You may now reprove ſin, exhort to duty, ſuccour the diſtreſſed; this is good work, and this is your only time for ſuch work; the whole of Eternity will be taken up in other Imployments. I think it meet (ſaith Peter) as long as I am in this Tabernacle, to ſtir up your Minds, knowing ſhortly, that I muſt put off this Tabernacle, 2 Pet. 1. 13, 14. q. d. I know I have but a little time to work among you, I am almoſt at Heaven; and therefore am willing to husband this preſent moment as well as I can for you. O Chriſtians! you need not ſtand idle, look round about you upon the multitude of forlorn Sinners, ſpeak now to them for God, ſpeak now to God for them; for ſhortly you ſhall ſo ſpeak no more, you ſhall ſee them no more till you ſee them at Chriſt's Bar; God leaves you here for their ſakes, up and be doing: If you had done all you were to do for your ſelves and them, he would have you to Heaven immediately, you ſhould not wait a moment longer for your Glory.

3. Husbandmen know, though they cannot yet gather in the precious Fruits of the Earth, yet all this while they are ripening and preparing for the Harveſt; they would not houſe it green, or take it before its time. And is not this alſo my preparation time for Glory? As God prepared Heaven for his People, by an Eternal Decree, Mat. 25. 34. by an Act of Creation, Heb. 11. 10. by the death of Chriſt, which made a purchaſe of it, Heb. 10. 19, 20. and by his Aſcenſion into it, John 14. 2, 3. So the reaſon why we are kept here, is in order to our fitting for it. Heaven is ready, but we are not fully ready; the Barn is fit to receive the Corn, but the Corn is not fit to be gathered into it. But f this ſelf-ſame thing God is now working us, 2 Co 5. 5. he is every day at work, by Ordinances, and by Providences, to perfect his work in us; and as ſoon as that is finiſhed, we ſhall hear a voic like that, Rev. 11. 12. Come up hither, and imm diate diately we ſhall be in the Spirit; for how ardently ſoever we long for that deſireable day, Chriſt longs for it more than we can do.

4. The Husbandman is glad of the Firſt-fruits, that incourages him, though the greateſt part be yet out; and have not you received the Firſt-fruits of that Glory? Have you not Earneſts, Pledges, and Firſt-fruits of it? 'Tis your own fault, if every day you feed not upon ſuch bleſſed Comforts of the Spirit, Rom. 8. 23. Rom. 5. 2. Pet. 8. 9. O how might the interpoſing time, even all the days of your patience here, be ſweetned with ſuch prelibations of the Glory to come!

5. Husbandmen know 'tis beſt to reap, when 'tis fit to reap; one handful fully ripe is worth many Sheaves of green Corn. And you know, Heaven will be ſweeteſt to you, when you are fitteſt for it; the Child would pluck the Apple whilſt it's green, but he might gather it eaſier, and taſte it ſweeter, by tarrying longer for it. We would fain be glorified per ſaltum. When we have got a taſte of Heaven, we are all in haſte to be gone. Then, O that I had Wings as a Dove! I would fly away and be at reſt. Then we cry to God for our ſelves, as Moſes for his Siſter Miriam, Heal her [now] O God, I beſeech thee, Numb. 12. 13. Glorifie me now, O Lord, I pray thee! But ſurely, as God hath contrived thy Glory in the beſt of ways, ſo he hath appointed for thee the fitteſt of Seaſons; and whenever thou art gathered into Glory, thou ſhalt come as a ſhock of Corn in its Seaſon.

REFLECTION.

The Longing Soul's Reflection.

I have waited for thy Salvation, O God! Having received thy Firſt-fruits, my Soul longs to fill its Boſom with the full ripe Sheaves of Glory. As the Heart panteth for the Water-brooks, ſo panteth my Soul for thee, O God! O, when ſhall I come and appear before God? I deſire to be diſſolved, and to be with Chriſt. When ſhall I ſee that moſt lovely Face? When ſhall I hear his Soul-tranſporting Voice? Some need Patience to dye, I need it as much to live! Thy ſights, O God, by faith, have made this World a Burden, this Body a burthen, and this Soul to cry like thirſty David, O that one would give me of the Waters of Bethlehem to drink! The Husbandman longs for his Harveſt, becauſe it is the reward of all his Toyl and Labour; but what is his Harveſt to mine? What is a little Corn to the enjoyment of God? What is the joy of Harveſt, to the joy of Heaven? What are the ſhoutings of Men in the Fields, to the acclamations of glorified Spirits in the Kingdom of God? Lord, I have gone forth bearing more precious Seed than they? When ſhall I return rejoycing, bringing my Sheaves with me? Their Harveſt comes when they receive their Corn, mine comes when I leave it. O much deſired Harveſt! O day of the gladneſs of my Heart! How long Lord! How long! Here I wait as the poor Man at Bethſaida's Pool, looking when my turn will come, but every one ſteps into Heaven before me; but Lord, I am content to wait till my time be fully come. I would be content to ſtay for my Glorification, till I have finiſht the work of my Generation; and when I have done the Will of God, and to receive the Promiſe. If thou have any work on Earth to uſe me in, I am content to abide: Behold, the Husbandman waiteth, and ſo will I; for thou art a God of Judgment, and bleſſed are all they that wait for thee.

The Lingring Soul's Reflection.

2. But how doth my ſlothful Soul ſink down into the fleſh, and ſettle it ſelf in the Love of this Animal Life? How doth it hug and wrap up it ſelf in the Garment of this Mortality, not deſiring to be removed hence, to the more perfect and bleſſed ſtate? The Husbandman is indeed content to ſtay till the appointed Weeks of the Harveſt; but would he be content to wait always? O my ſenſual Heart! Is this Life of Hope as contentful to thee, as the Life of Viſion will be? Why doſt thou not groan within thy ſelf, that this Mortality might be ſwallowed up of Life? Doth not the Scripture deſcribe the Saints by their earneſt looking for the Mercy of our Lord Jeſus unto Eternal Life? Jude 21. By their haſtening unto the coming of the day of God, 2 Pet. 3. 12. What is the matter that my Heart hangs back? Doth guilt lye upon my Conſcience? Or have I gotten into a pleaſant condition in the World, which makes me ſay as Peter on the Mount, It's good to be here? Or want I the aſſurance of a better ſtate? Muſt God make all my Earthly Comforts die, before I ſhall be willing to die? Awake Faith, awake my Love; beat up the drowzy deſires of my Soul, that I may ſay, make haſte my Beloved, and come away.

CHAP.

CHAP. XV.

Upon the Harveſt Seaſon.

Corn fully ripe, is reap'd, and gather'd in,
So muſt your Selves, when ripe in Grace or Sin.

OBSERVATION.

WHen the Fields are white to Harveſt, then Husbandmen walk through them, rub the Ears; and finding the grain full and ſolid, they preſently prepare their Scythes and Sickles, ſend for their Harveſt-men, who quickly Reap and Mow them down; and after theſe follow the Binders, who ſtitch it up; from the Field where it grew its carryed to the Barn, where it is thraſhed out; the good Grain gathered into an heap, the Chaff ſeparated and burnt, or thrown to the Dunghil. How bare and naked do the Fields look after Harveſt, which before were pleaſant to behold? When the Harveſt-men enter into the Field, it is (to allude to that, Joel 2. 3.) before them, like the Garden of Eden, and behind them a deſolate Wilderneſs; and in ſome places it's uſual to ſet a Fire to the dry Stubble, when the Corn is houſed; which rages furiouſly, and covers all with Aſhes.

APPLICATION.

THE Application of this, I find made to my Hands by Chriſt himſelf in Mat. 13. 38, 39. The Field is the World; the good Seed are the Children of the Kingdom, the Tares are the Children of the wicked one, the Enemy that ſowed them is the Devil, the Harveſt is the end of the World, the Reapers are the Angels.

The Field is the World; there both the godly and ungodly live and grow together, till they be both ripe, and then they ſhall both be reaped down by Death; Death is the Sickle that reaps down both. I will open this Allegory in the following Particulars.

1. In a catching Harveſt, when the Husbandman ſees the Clouds begin to gather and grow black, he hurries in his Corn with all poſſible haſte, and houſes day and night.

So doth God the great Husbandman, he hurries the Saints into their Graves, when Judgments are coming upon the World, Iſa. 57. 1. The righteous periſh, and no Man layeth it to Heart, and merciful Men are taken away; none conſidering that the righteous is taken away from the Evil to come. Methuſelah died the year before the Flood, Auguſtine a little before the Sacking of Hippo, Pareus juſt before the taking of Heidelberge, Luther a little before the Wars break out in Germany; but what ſpeak I of ſingle Saints? Sometimes the Lord Houſes great numbers together, before ſome ſweeping Judgment comes. How many bright and glorious Stars did ſet almoſt together, within the compaſs of a few years, to the aſtoniſhment of many wiſe and tender Hearts in England. I find ſome of them thus ranked in a Funeral Elegy.

The Learned Twiſſe went firſt (it was his Right)
Then holy Palmer, Burroughs, Love, Gouge, White, Hill, Whitaker, grave Gataker, and Strong,
Perne, Marſhal, Robinſon, all gone along.
I have not nam'd them half, their only Strife
Hath been (of late) who ſhould firſt part with Life.
Theſe few who yet ſurvive, ſick of this Age,
Long to have done their parts and leave the Stage.

The Lord ſees it better for them to be underground than above-ground, and therefore by a merciful Providence ſets them out of harms way.

2. Neither the Corn, or Tares, can poſſibly reſiſt the ſharp and keen Sickle, when it's applyed to them by the Reapers Hand; neither can the godly or ungodly reſiſt the ſtroke of Death when God inflicts it, Eccleſ. 8. 8. No man can keep alive his own Soul in the day of Death, and there is no diſcharge in that War. The frail Body of Man is as unable to withſtand that ſtroke, as the weak Reeds, or feeble Stalks of the Corn are to reſiſt the keen Scythe and ſharp Sickle.

3. The Reapers receive the Wheat which they cut down, into their Arms and Boſome. Hence that expreſſion by way of imprecation upon the wicked, Pſal. 129. 7. Let them be as the Graſs upon the Houſe-top, which withers before it grows up, wherewith the Mower filleth not his Hand, nor he that bindeth Sheaves, his Boſom. Such withered Graſs are the wicked, who are never taken into the Reapers Boſom; but as ſoon as Saints are cut down by Death, they fall into the Hands and Boſoms of the Angels of God, who bear them in their Arms and Boſoms to God their Father, Luke 16. 22. For look, as theſe bleſſed Spirits did exceedingly rejoyce at their Converſion, Luke 15. 10. and thought it no diſhonour to miniſter to them whilſt they ſtood in the Field, Heb. 1. 14. So when they are cut down by death, they will rejoyce to be their Convoy to Heaven.

4. When the Corn and Weeds are reap'd or mowed down, they ſhall never grow any more in that Field; neither ſhall we ever return to live an Animal Life any more after death, Job 7. 9, 10. As the Cloud is conſumed and vaniſheth away; ſo h that goeth down to the Grave, ſhall come up no more; he ſhall return no more to his Houſe, neither ſhall hi place know him any more.

Laſtly, (to come home to the particular ſub-ject of this Chapter) the Reapers are never ſen to cut down the Harveſt, till it be fully ripe; neither will God reap down Saints or Sinners, ti they be come to a maturity of Grace or Wickedneſs. Saints are not reap'd down till their Grac be ripe, Job 5. 26. Thou ſhalt come to thy Grave i a full Age, as a ſhock of Corn cometh in its Seaſo
'Not that every godly Man dies in ſuch a fu
'old Age (ſaith Mr. Caryl on that place) but y
'in one Senſe it is an univerſal Truth, and eve
'fulfilled; for whenſoever they die, they die in 'good Age; yea, though they die in the Sprin
'and flower of their Youth, they die in a goo
'old Age, (i. e.) they are ripe for Death whe
'ever they die, When-ever a godly Man dies, i
'Harveſt time with him, though in a natural c
'pacity he be cut down while he is green, a
'cropt in the bud or bloſſom; yet in his ſpiritu
'Capacity, he never dies before he be ripe. G
'ripens him ſpeedily, when he intends to ta
'them out of the World ſpeedily; he can let o
'ſuch warm Rays and Beams of his Spirit up
'them, as ſhall ſoon maturate the Seeds of Gra
'into a preparedneſs for Glory.

The wicked alſo have their ripening time Hell and Judgment; God doth with much lo ſuffering endure the Veſſels of Wrath prep r Deſtruction. Of their ripeneſs for Judgment e Scripture often ſpeaks, Gen. 15. 16. The ſin of e Amorites is not yet full. And of Babylon it's aid, Jer. 51. 13. O thou that dwelleſt upon many aters, thine end is come, and the meaſure of thy ovetouſneſs.

'Tis worth remarking, that the meaſure of the in, and the end of the Sinner come together. So oel 3. 13. Put ye in the ſickle, for the harveſt of the rth is ripe, for the preſs is full, the fats overflow, r their wickedneſs is great. Where note, Sinners are ot cut down till they be ripe and ready. Indeed, hey are never ripe for death, nor ready for the Grave; that is, fit to die: Yet they are always ipe for wrath, and ready for Hell before they ie. Now as Husbandmen judge of the ripeneſs f their Harveſt, by the colour and hardneſs of he Grain; ſo may we judge of the ripeneſs both f Saints and Sinners, for Heaven or Hell, by heſe following Signs.

Three Signs of the Maturity of Grace.

WHen the Corn is near ripe, it bows the head, and ſtoops lower than when it as green. When the People of God are near ipe for Heaven, they grow more humble and lf-denying, than in the days of their firſt Pro-ſſion. The longer a Saint grows in this World, e better he is ſtill acquainted with his own Heart, and his Obligations to God; both which e very humbling things. Paul had one foot in Heaven, when he called himſelf the chiefeſt of inners, and leaſt of Saints, 1 Tim. 1. 15. Eph. 3. . A Chriſtian in the progreſs of his Knowledge nd Grace, is like a Veſſel caſt into the Sea, the ore it fills, the deeper it ſinks. Thoſe that went Study at Athens (ſaith Plutarch) at firſt coming, eemed to themſelves to be wiſe Men; afterwards, nly Lovers of Wiſdom, and after that, only hetoricians, ſuch as could ſpeak of Wiſdom, but new little of it, and laſt of all, Ideots in their wn Apprehenſions; ſtill with the increaſe of earning, laying aſide their Pride and Arrogancy.

2. When Harveſt is nigh, the Grain is more lid and pithy than ever it was before; green orn is ſoft and ſpungy, but ripe Corn is ſubſtan-al and weighty: So it is with Chriſtians; the ffections of a young Chriſtian perhaps are more rverous and ſprightly, but thoſe of a grown hriſtian are more judicious and ſolid; their Love Chriſt abounds more and more in all Judgment, hil. 1. 9. The Limbs of a Child are more active d pliable, but as he grows up to a perfect ſtate, e parts are more conſolidated and firmly knit. he Fingers of an old Muſician are not ſo nimble, t he hath a more judicious Ear in Muſick, than his Youth.

3. When Corn is dead ripe, it's apt to fall of own accord to the ground, and there ſhed; hereby it doth as it were anticipate the Harveſt-an, and calls upon him to put in the Sickle. Not like to which are the lookings and longings, e groanings and haſtenings of ready Chriſtians their expected Glory; they haſten to the com-g of the Lord, or as Montanus more fitly renders They haſten the coming of the Lord; (i. e.) ey are urgent and inſtant in their deſires, and ies to haſten his coming; their deſires ſally rth to meet the Lord, they willingly take Death the Hand; as the Corn bends to the Earth, ſo theſe Souls to Heaven. This ſhews their Har-ſt to be near.

Six Signs of the Maturity of Sin.

WHen Sinners are even dead ripe for Hell, theſe Signs appear upon them, or by theſe at leaſt, you may conclude thoſe Souls not to be far from wrath, upon whom they appear.

1. When Conſcience is waſted and grown paſt feeling, having no remorſe for ſin; when it ceaſes to check, reprove and ſmite for ſin any more, the day of that Sinner is at hand, his Harveſt is even come. The greateſt violation of Conſcience is the greateſt of ſins; this was the Caſe of the forlorn Gentiles, among whom Satan had ſuch a plentiful Harveſt; the patience of God ſuffered them to grow till their Conſciences were grown ſeared and paſt feeling, Eph. 4. 19. When a Member is ſo mortified, that if you lance and cut it never ſo much, no freſh Blood, or quick Fleſh appears, nor doth the Man feel any pain in all this, then 'tis time to cut it off.

2. When men give themſelves over to the ſatisfaction of their Luſts, to commit ſin with greedineſs, then are they grown to a maturity of Sin; when Men have ſlipt the Reins of Conſcience, and ruſh headlong into all Impiety, then the laſt Sands of God's patience are running down. Thus Sodom and Gomorrah, and the Cities about them, in like manner gave themſelves over to wickedneſs and ſtrange ſins; and then Juſtice quickly truſt them up for an example, ſuffering the vengeance of Eternal Fire.

3. That Man is even ripe for Hell, that is become a Contriver of ſin, a Deſigner, a Student in wickedneſs; one would think it ſtrange, that any Man ſhould ſet his Invention on work, upon ſuch a Subject, as ſin is; that any ſhould ſtudy to become a dextrous Artiſt this way, and yet the Scripture frequently ſpeaks of ſuch, whoſe bellies prepare deceit, Job 15. 35. who travel in pain to bring forth, this deformed Birth, ver. 20. who wink with their eyes, whilſt plodding wickedneſs, as Men uſe to do when they are moſt intent upon the Study of any knotty Problem, Prov. 6. 13. Theſe have ſo much of Hell already in them, that they are more than half in Hell already.

4. He that of a forward Profeſſor, is turn'd a bitter Perſecutor, is alſo within a few rounds of the top of the Ladder; the contempt of their light, the Lord hath already puniſhed upon them, in their obduracy and madneſs againſt the light. Reader, if thou be gone thus far, thou art almoſt gone beyond all hope of recovery. Towards other Sinners, God uſually exerciſes more patience, but with ſuch he makes ſhort work. When Judas turns Traytor to his Lord, he is quickly ſent to his own place. Such as are again intangled and overcome of thoſe Luſts they once ſeemed to have clean eſcaped, theſe bring upon themſelves ſwift Damnation, and their judgment lingers not, 2 Pet. 2. 3, 30.

5. He that can endure no reproof or controul in the way of his ſin, but derides all counſel, and like a ſtrong current rages at, and ſweeps away all obſtacles in his way, will quickly fall into the dead Lake, Prov. 29. 1. He that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, ſhall ſuddenly be deſtroyed, and that without remedy. This is a Death-ſpot, a Hell-ſpot, where-ever it appears. From this very ſymptom the Prophet plainly predicted the approaching ruin of Amaziah, 2 Chron. 25. 16. I know that God hath determined to deſtroy thee, becauſe thou haſt done this, and haſt not hearkened to my Voice. He that will not be timely counſelled, ſhall be quickly deſtroyed.

Laſtly, When a Man comes to glory in his Sin, and boaſt of his Wickedneſs, then it's time to cut him down; whoſe end is deſtruction, whoſe glory is in their ſhame, Phil. 3. 19. This is a braving, a daring of God to his Face, and with whomſoever he bears long, to be ſure theſe are none of them.

You ſee now what are the ſigns of a full ripe Sinner; and when it comes to this, either with a Nation, or with a ſingle Perſon, then ruin is near, Joel 3. 13. Gen. 15. 6. It is in the filling up of the meaſure of Sin, as in the filling of a Veſſel caſt into the Sea, which rowls from ſide to ſide, taking in the Water by little and little, till it be full, and then down it ſinks to the bottom. Mean, while, admirable is divine Patience, which bears with theſe Veſſels of Wrath, whilſt fitting for Deſtruction.

REFLECTION.

The Reflection of a Growing Christian.

1. Chear thy ſelf, O my Soul! with the Heart-ſtrengthening Bread of this Divine Meditation. Let Faith turn every drop of this Truth into a Soul-reviving Cordial. God hath ſown the precious Seed of Grace upon my Soul; and though my Heart hath been an unkind Soyl which hath kept it back, and much hindered its growth, yet bleſſed be the Lord, it ſtill grows on, though by ſlow degrees; and from the ſpringing of the Seed, and ſhootings forth of thoſe gracious habits, I may conclude an approaching Harveſt: Now is my Salvation nearer than when I believed; every day I come nearer to my Salvation, Rom. 13. 11. O that every day I were more active for the God of my Salvation! Grow on my Soul, and add to thy Faith Vertue, to thy Vertue Knowledge, &c. Grow on from Faith to Faith; keep thy ſelf under the ripening influences of heavenly Ordinances; the faſter thou groweſt in Grace, the ſooner thou ſhalt be reaped down in Mercy, and bound up in the bundle of Life, 1 Sam. 25. 29. I have not yet attained the meaſure and proportion of Grace aſſigned to me, neither am I already perfect, but am reaching forth to the things before me, and preſſing towards the mark for the prize of my Heavenly Calling, Phil. 3. 12, 13. O Mercy to be admired! that I who lately had one Foot in Hell, ſtand now with one Foot in Heaven!

The Reflection of the decaying Chriſtian.

2. But the Caſe is far different with me, whilſt others are ripening apace for Heaven, I am withering; many a Soul plowed up by Conviction, and ſown by Sanctification long after me, hath quite over-topt and out-grown me; my ſweet and early Bloſſoms are nipt and blown off, my bright Morning over-caſt and clouded; had I kept on according to the rate of my firſt growth, I had either now been in Heaven, or at leaſt in the Suburbs of it on Earth; but my Graces wither and languiſh, my Heart contracts and cools to heavenly things; the Sun and Rain of Ordinances and Providence improve not my Graces; how ſad therefore is the ſtate of my Soul?

The Reflection of a hardning Sinner.

3. Thy Caſe, O declining Saint, is ſad! but not like mine; thine is but a temporary remiſſion of the Acts of Grace, which is recoverable; but I am judicially hardening, and treaſuring up to my ſelf Wrath againſt the day of Wrath, Rom. 2. 5. Time was, when I had ſome tender ſenſe of Sin, when I could mourn and grieve for it, now I have none at all. My heart is grown ſtupid and ſottiſh. Time was when I had ſome conſcientious care of Duty, and my Heart would ſmite me for the neglect of it; but now none at all. Wretched Soul! what wilt thou do? Thou are gone far indeed, a few ſteps further will put thee beyond hope; hitherto I ſtand in the Field, the long ſuffering God doth yet ſpare me; yea, ſpare me, while he hath cut down many of my Companions in Sin round about me. What doth this admirable Patience, this long-ſuffering drawn out to a wonder, ſpeak concerning me? Doth it not tell me, that the Lord is not willing I ſhould periſh, but rather come to Repentance? 2 Pet. 3. 9. And what Argument is like his Pity and Patience, to lead a Soul to Repentance? Rom. 2. 4. O that I may not fruſtrate at laſt, the end of a long-ſuffering God! leſt he proportion the degrees of his Wrath, according to the length of his Patience.

The POEM.

Its ſtately Fabricks into Aſhes turn'd.
Ceaſe then my Soul, to dote on, or admire
This ſplendid World, which is reſerv'd for Fire.
Decline the company of Sinners here,
As thou wouldſt not be ſhackel'd with them there.

CHAP. XVI.

Upon the Care of Husbandmen to provide for Winter.

Your Winter ſtore in Summer you provide;
To Chriſtian Prudence this muſt be apply'd.

OBSERVATION.

GOod Husbands are careful in Summer to provide for Winter, then they gather in their Winter ſtore; Food and Fewel for themſelves,and fodder for their Cattel. He that gathers in Summer is a wiſe Son, but he that ſleeps in Harveſt is a Son that cauſes Shame, Prov. 10. 5. A well choſen Seaſon is the greateſt advantage of any to Action, which as it is ſeldom found in haſte, ſo it is often loſt by delay. 'Tis a good Proverb which the frugal Dutch have among them; Bonus Servatius, facit Bonum Bonifacium; a good Saver, will make a good Benefactor. And 'tis a good Proverb of our own; he that neglects the occaſion, the occaſion will neglect him. Husbandmen know that Summer will not laſt all the year, neither will they truſt to the hopes of a mild and favourable Winter, but in ſeaſon provide for the worſt.

APPLICATION.

WHat excellent Chriſtians ſhould we be,were we but as provident and thoughtful for our Souls? 'Tis doubtleſs a ſingular point of Chriſtian Wiſdom, to forſee a day of Spiritual Straits and Neceſſities, and during the day of Grace to make proviſion for it. This great Goſpel-truth is excellently ſhadowed forth in this natural Obſervation, which I ſhall branch out into theſe ſeven Particulars.

1. Husbandmen know there is a change and viciſſitude of Seaſons and Weather; though it be pleaſant Summer weather now, yet Winter will ead upon the heel of Summer: Froſts,Snows,and reat falls of Rains muſt be expected. This alter- at courſe of Seaſons in Nature is ſetled by a firm law of the God of Nature, to the end of the World, Gen. 8. 22. Whilſt the Earth remaineth, ſeed- mes and harveſt, cold and heat, winter and ſummer, y and night, ſhall not ceaſe.

And Chriſtians know, that there are changes in e Right-hand of the moſt High, in reference to eir Spiritual Seaſons. If there be a Spring-time the Goſpel, there will alſo be an Autumn; if a y of Proſperity, it will ſet in a Night of Adverſity; God hath ſet the one over againſt the other, Eccleſ.7. 4. In Heaven there is a day of everlaſting ſere- y, in a Hell a night of perfect endleſs horror d darkneſs; on Earth light and darkneſs take eir turns, Proſperity and Adverſity, even to uls as well as Bodies, ſucceed each other. If ere be a Goſpel-day, a day of Grace now cur- nt, it will have its period and determination, n. 3. 6.

2. Common Prudence and Experience inables e Husbandman in the midſt of Summer to fore- a Winter, and provide for it before he feel it; , natural Inſtinct teaches this to the very Birds the Air, and Beaſts of the Field.

And Spiritual Wiſdom ſhould teach Chriſtians exerciſe their foreſeeing Faculties, and not ſuf- them to feel Evil before they fear it. But O the ſtupifying nature of Sin! Though the Stork in the Heavens know her appointed time, and the Turtle, Crane and Swallow the time of their coming, yet Man, whom God hath made wiſer than the Fowls of the Air, in this acts quite below them, Jer. 8. 7.

3. The end of God's ordaining a Summer Seaſon, and ſending warm and pleaſant Weather, is to ripen the Fruits of the Earth,and give the Husbandman fit opportunity to gather them in.

And God's deſign in giving men a day of Grace, is to furniſh them with an opportunity for the everlaſting Happineſs and Salvation of their Souls, Rev. 2. 21. I gave her a ſpace to repent. It is not a meer reprieval of the Soul, or only a delay of the execution of threatned Wrath, though there be much Mercy in that; but the peculiar aim of this patience and bounty of God, is to open for them a way to eſcape the wrath to come, by leading them to Repentance, Rom. 2. 4.

4. The Husbandman doth not find all Harveſt-ſeaſons a like favourable, ſometimes they have much fair weather, and meet with no hindrance in their buſineſs; other times 'tis a catching-harveſt, but now and then a fair day, and then they muſt be nimble, or all is loſt.

There is alſo great difference in Soul-ſeaſons, ſome have had a long and fair ſeaſon of Grace; a hundred and twenty years did God wait upon the old World, in the Miniſtry of Noah. Long did God wait on the gainſaying Iſraelites, Iſa. 42. 14. I have a long time held my Peace, I have been ſtill and refrained my ſelf. Others have a ſhort and catching Seaſon, all lies upon a day, upon a nick of time, Acts 17. 30.

5. A proper ſeaſon neglected and loſt, is irrecoverable. Many things in Husbandry muſt be done in their ſeaſon, or cannot be done at all for that year; if he plow not, and ſow not in the proper time, he loſes the Harveſt of that Year.

'Tis even ſo as to ſpiritual ſeaſons,Chriſt neglected, and Grace deſpiſed, in the Seaſon when God offers them, are irrecoverably loſt, Prov. 1. 28. then (that is, when the ſeaſon is over) they ſhall call upon me, but I will not hear. O, there is a great deal of time in a ſhort opportunity! that may be done or prevented, in an hour rightly timed, which cannot be done or prevented in a Mans Life-time afterwards. There was one reſolved to kill Julius Cæſar ſuch a day; the night before, a Friend ſent him a Letter to acquaint him with it, but he being at Supper, and buſie in Diſcourſe, ſaid, To morrow is a new day, and indeed it was, dies noviſſima, his laſt day to him; whence it became a Proverb in Greece, To morrow is a new day. Our Glaſs runs in Heaven, and we cannot ſee how much or little of the Sand of God's patience is yet to run down; but this is certain,when that Glaſs is run, there is nothing to be done for our Souls, Luke 19. 42. O that thou hadſt known, at leaſt, in this thy day, the things that belong to thy peace, but now they are hid from thine Eyes.

6. Thoſe Husbandmen that are careful and laborious in the Summer, have the comfort and benefit of it in Winter; he that then provides Fewel, ſhall ſit warm in his Habitation, when others blow their Fingers. He that provides Food for his Family, and Fodder for his Cattel in the Harveſt, ſhall eat the Fruit of it, and enjoy the Comfort of his Labours, when others ſhall be expoſed to ſhifts and ſtraits. And he that provides for Eternity, and lays up for his Soul a good Foundation againſt the the time to come, ſhall eat when others are hungry, and ſing when others howl, Iſa. 65. 13. A day of Death will come, and that will be a day of ſtraits to all negligent Souls; but then the diligent Chriſtian ſhall enjoy the Peace and Comfort that ſhall flow in upon his Heart, from his holy Care and ſincere diligence in Duties; as 2 Cor. 1. 12. This is our rejoycing, the teſtimony of our Conſcience, that in all Sincerity and godly Simplicity, we have had our Converſation in this World. So Hezekiah, 2 Kings 20. 3. Remember now, O Lord, how I have walked before thee in Truth, and with a perfect Heart. A day of Judgment will come, and then fooliſh Virgins, who neglected the ſeaſon of getting Oyl in their Lamps, will be put to their ſhifts; then they come to the wiſe, and ſay, Give us of your Oyl, Matt. 25. 8, 9. but they have none to ſpare, and the ſeaſon of buying is then over.

7. No wiſe Husbandman will neglect a fit opportunity of gathering in his Hay and Corn, upon a preſumption of much fair weather to come; he will not ſay, The weather is ſettled, and I need not trouble my ſelf, though my Corn and Hay be fit for the Houſe, yet I may get it in another time as well as now.

And no wiſe Chriſtian will loſe a preſent ſeaſon for his Soul, upon the hopes of much more time, yet to come; but will rather ſay, Now is my time, and I know not what will be hereafter; hereafter I may wiſh to ſee one of the days of the Son of Man, and not ſee it, Luke 17. 22. 'Tis ſad to hear how cunning ſome Men are to diſpute themſelves out of Heaven, as if the Devil had hired them to plead againſt their own Souls; ſometimes urging the example of thoſe that were called at the eleventh hour, Mat. 20. 6. and ſometimes that of the penitent Thief: But, O! to how little purpoſe is the former pleaded; they that were called at the eleventh hour, were never called before, as theſe have been; no man had hired, that is, called or invited them to Chriſt, and for the Thief, (as Mr. Fenner rightly obſerves) it was a ſingular and extraordinary Example. It was done when Chriſt hang'd on the Croſs, and was to be Inaugurated; then Kings manifeſt ſuch Bounty, and pardon ſuch Crimes, as are never pardoned afterwards. Beſides, God was then in a way of working Miracles; then he rent the Rocks, open'd the Graves, raiſed the Dead, and converted this Thief; but God is now out of that way.

REFLECTIONS.

The Careleſs Souls Reflection.

1. I have indeed been a good Husband for the World; with what Care and Providence have I looked out for my ſelf and Family, to provide Food to nouriſh them, and Cloaths to defend them againſt the Aſperities of Winter? Mean while, neglecting to make proviſion for Eternity, or take care for my Soul. O my deſtitute Soul! how much have I ſlighted and undervalued thee? I have taken more care for an Horſe, or an Ox, than for thee; a well-ſtored Barn, but an empty Soul. Will it not ſhortly be with me, as with that careleſs Mother, who, when her Houſe was on fire, buſily beſtir'd her ſelf to ſave the Goods, but forgot the Child? (though it were ſaved by another hand) and then minding her Child, ran up and down like one diſtracted, wringing her Hands, and crying, O my Child, my Child! I have ſaved my Goods, and loſt my Child. Such will be the caſe of thee, my Soul, Mat 16. 26. Beſides, how eaſie will my Conviction be at the bar of Chriſt? Will not my Providence and Care for the things of this Life, leave me ſpeechleſs and ſelf-condemned in that day? What ſhall I anſwer when the Lord ſhall ſay, Thou could'ſt foreſee a Winter, and ſeaſonably provide for it? Yea, thou hadſt ſo much care of thy very Beaſts, to provide for their Neceſſities; And why tookeſt thou no care for thy Soul? Was that only not worth the caring for?

The Preſumptuous Soul's Reflection.

2. Is it ſo dangerous to neglect a preſent proper ſeaſon of Grace? What then have I done, who have ſuffered many ſuch ſeaſons to dye away in my hand, upon a groundleſs hope of future opportunities? Ah, deluded Wretch! what if that ſuppoſition fail? Where am I then? I am not the Lord of time, neither am I ſure, that he who is, will ever vouchſafe an hour of Grace in old Age, to him that hath neglected many ſuch hours in youth; neither indeed is it ordinary for God ſo to do. 'Tis ſtoried of Caius Marius Victorius, who lived about Three hundred years after Chriſt, and to his Old Age continued a Pagan, but at laſt being convinced of the Chriſtian verity, he came to Simplicianus, and told him, He would be a Chriſtian; but neither he, nor the Church could believe it, it being ſo rare an Example for any to be converted at his Age: But at laſt, ſeeing it was real, there was a ſhouting and gladneſs, and ſinging of Pſalms in all Churches, the People crying, Caius Marius Victorius is become a Chriſtian. This was written for a wonder, and what ground have I to think, that God will work ſuch wonders for me, who have neglected his ordinary means of Salvation?

The Induſtrious Soul's Reflection.

3. Bleſs the Lord, O my Soul! who gave thee a ſeaſon, a day for Eternal Life, which is more than he hath done for thouſands; yea, bleſs the Lord for giving thee an Heart to underſtand and improve that ſeaſon. I confeſs I have not improved it as I ought; yet, this I can, (through Mercy) ſay, that however it fare in future times, with my outward Man, tho' I have no Treaſures or Stores laid up on Earth; or if I have, they are but corruptible, yet I have a bleſſed hope laid up in Heaven, Col. 1. 5. I have Bags that wax not old. Whilſt worldlings rejoyce in their ſtores and heaps, I rejoyce in theſe Eternal Treaſures.

OBSERVATION.

GOD gives to every Seed its own Body, 1 Cor. 15. 38. At firſt he Created every Tree and Herb of the Field, having its Seed in it ſelf, for the Conſervation of the ſpices, and they all inviolably obſerve the Law of their Creation. All Fruits naturally riſe out of the Seeds and Roots proper to them. Men do not gather grapes of thorns, nor figs of Thiſtles. Such productions would be monſtrous in Nature; and altho' the Juice or Sap of the Earth be the common matter of all kind of Fruits, yet it is ſpecificated according to the different ſorts of Plants and Seeds it nouriſhes. Where Wheat is ſown, it's turned into Wheat; in an Apple-tree, it becomes an Apple; and ſo in every ſort of Plants or Seeds, it's concocted into Fruit proper to the kind.

APPLICATION.

TRanſlate this into Spiritual, and the Propoſition ſhadowed forth by it, is fully expreſſed by the Apoſtle, Gal. 6. 7. What a man ſows, that ſhall be reap; they that ſow to the fleſh, ſhall of the fleſh reap corruption; and they that ſow to the ſpirit, ſhall of the ſpirit reap life everlaſting. And as ſure s the Harveſt follows the Seed-time, ſo ſure ſhall uch fruits and effects reſult from the Seeds of ſuch ctions. He that ſoweth iniquity, ſhall reap vanity, Prov. 22. 8. And they that now go forth weeping, nd bearing precious ſeed, ſhall doubtleſs come again joycing, bringing their Sheaves with them, Pſal. 1. 26.

. The ſum of all is this, That our preſent actions ave the ſame reſpect and relation to future Reards and Puniſhments, as the Seed we ſow in our ields, hath to the Harveſt we reap from it. Evey gracious action is the Seed of Joy, and every nful action the Seed of anguiſh and ſorrow, to the Soul that ſowed it. Two things are ſenſibly preſented to us in this ſimilitude.

1. That as the Seed ſown is preſently covered from our ſight under the clods, and for ſome time after we ſee no more of it, and yet at laſt it appears again, by which it's evident to us, that it is not finally loſt: So our preſent actions, though Phyſically tranſient, and perhaps forgotten, yet are not loſt, but after a time ſhall appear again, in order to a retribution.

If this were not ſo, all good and holy actions would be to the loſs of him that performed them. All the ſelf-denial, ſpending Duties, and ſharp ſufferings of the People of God, would turn to their damage; though not in point of honeſty, yet in point of perſonal utility; and then alſo, what difference would there be betwixt the actions of a Man and a Beaſt, with reſpect to future good or evil? Yea, Man would then be more feared and obeyed than God, and Souls be ſwayed in all their motions, only by the influence of preſent things; and where then would Religion be found in the World? 'Tis an excellent note of Drexellius; "Our works (ſaith he) "do not paſs away as ſoon as they "are done, but as Seed ſown, ſhall "after a time, riſe up to all Eternity; whatever we think, ſpeak or do, once ſpoken, thought or done, is Eternal, and abides for ever.

Drexellius de æternitate prope fin.

What Zeuxes, the Famous Limner, ſaid of his Work, may be truly ſaid of all our Works; Æternitati pingo, I Paint for Eternity. O, how careful ſhould Men be of what they ſpeak and do, whilſt they are commanded ſo to ſpeak, and ſo to do, as thoſe that ſhall be judged by the perfect Law of liberty, Jam. 2. 12. What more tranſient than a vain word? And yet for ſuch words, Men ſhall give an account in the day of Judgment, Mat. 12. 36. That's the firſt thing; Actions, like Seed, ſhall riſe and appear again in order to a retribution.

2. The other thing held forth in this ſimilitude is, That according to the nature of our actions now, will be the fruit and reward of them then. Though the fruit or conſequence of holy actions, for the preſent may ſeem bitter, and the fruit of ſinful actions ſweet and pleaſant, yet there is nothing more certain, than that their future fruits ſhall be according to their preſent nature and quality, 2 Cor. 5. 10. Then Dioniſius ſhall retract that ſaying, Ecce quam proſpera navigatio à Deo datur ſacrilegis, Behold how God favours our Sacriledges. Sometimes indeed (though but rarely) God cauſes Sinners to reap in this World, the ſame that they have ſown; as hath been their Sin, ſuch hath been their Puniſhment. It was openly confeſſed by Adonibezek, Judg. 1. 7. as I have done, ſo hath God requited me.

Socrates in his Church Hiſtory furniſhes us with a pertinent paſſage to this purpoſe, concerning Valens the Emperor, who was an Arrian, and a bitter Perſecutor of the Chriſtians: This man, when eighty of the Orthodox Chriſtians ſailed from Conſtantinople to Nicomedia, to treat with him about the Points of Arrianiſm, and to ſettle the matter by way of diſpute; the Emperor hearing of their arrival, while they were yet in the Harbour, and not a man landed, cauſed the Ships to be fired wherein they were, and ſo conſumed them all. Not long after, in his Wars againſt the Goths, he was overthrown; and hiding himſelf in a little Cottage, the Enemy coming by, burnt it and him together. Thus this Wretch reap'd what he ſowed, burning for burning, the very ſame in kind paid him again; it is not always ſo in this World, but ſo it ſhall be in that to come; the Table ſhall then be turned, and the Scene altered; for ſhall not the Judge of all the World do righteouſly? Diogenes was tempted to think, that God had caſt off the Government of the World, when he ſaw the wicked proſper in their wickedneſs. On the ſame ground many have been tempted to Atheiſm; but then the World ſhall ſee diſtributive Juſtice ſhining out in its glory. Tribulation, anguiſh and wrath, to every ſoul of man that doth evil; but glory, honour and peace, to every man that worketh good, Rom. 2. 9, 10. Then 'twill appear what Seed we ſowed, what lives we lived; For God ſhall bring every work into judgment, with every ſecret thing, whether it be good or evil, Ecclef. 12. 14.

REFLECTIONS.

The Profane Perſon's Reflection.

1. This Meditation may be to me what the Hand-writing upon the Wall was to that profane Prince, Dan. 5. 5, 6. and a like effect it ſhould have upon me; for if all the actions of this Life be Seed ſown for the next, Lord, what a Crop, what a dreadful Harveſt am I like to have? How many Oaths and Curſes, Lies and vain Words, have I ſown with my Tongue? How have I wronged, oppreſſed, and over-reached in my Dealings? Ruſhed into all Profaneneſs, Drunkenneſs, Uncleanneſs, Sabbath-breaking, &c. as the horſe ruſheth into the battle; and what ſhall I reap from ſuch Seed as this, but vengeance and fury? Theſe ſins ſeemed pleaſant in the Commiſſion, but O, how bitter will they be in their account? What ſhall I do when God riſeth up? and when he viſiteth, what ſhall I anſwer him? Job 31. 14. Is it not reaſonable and juſt, (O my Soul) that thou ſhouldeſt eat the fruit of thine own planting, and reap what thou haſt ſown? I thought nothing but profit and pleaſure would ſpring from my Luſts, but now I ſee 'tis a Root bearing Gall and Wormwood, Deut. 29. 18. Wretched Soul, what ſhall I do? If theſe actions be not, then am I undone. I have been the Author of mine own Ruin, twiſted an Halter with mine own Fingers, for the execution of mine own Soul! O, let me rather taſte the bitterneſs of ſin, by Repentance now, than joy its preſent pleaſures, which betray the Soul to endleſs wrath?

The Moral Man's Reflection.

2. How have I alſo been deceived in this matter? I verily thought that Glory and Immortality would have been the fruit and product of my Moral Honeſty and Righteouſneſs, that joy and peace had been ſeminally contained in thoſe actions; but now I ſee ſuch Fruit can ſpring from no other Root but ſpecial Grace. Glory is diſcloſed from no other Bud but Holineſs. Alas! all my planting and ſowing was to little purpoſe, becauſe I ſowed not the right kind of Seed; the beſt Fruit I can expect from this, is but a leſſer degree of Damnation.

Deluded Soul, thy Seed is no better than what the Moral Heathens ſowed; and do I expect better Fruit than what they reaped? Civility without Chriſt, is but a freer Slavery; and Satan holds me as faſt in Captivity by this, as he doth the prophane by the pleaſure of their Luſts; either I muſt ſow better Seed, or look to reap bitter Fruit.

The Holy Soul's Reflection.

3. Mean while, bleſs the Lord (O my Soul) who inabled thee to ſow better Seed! Who kept thee watching, humbling thy ſelf, and praying, whilſt others have been Swearing, Drinking and Blaſpheming. This will yield thee the Fruit of Joy in the World to come; yea, it already yields preſent peace to thy Conſcience. Theſe Revenues are better than Gold, ſweeter than the Honey, and the Honey-comb; not that ſuch Fruits are meritoriouſly contained in theſe actions, I ſow to my ſelf in Righteouſneſs, but I reap in Mercy, Hoſ. 10. 12. This is the way in which God will ſave and Glorifie me. O then, let me be ever abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that my Labour ſhall not be in vain in the Lord.

The POEM.

'TWould be a ſtrange and monſtrous thing to ſee
Cherries, or Plumbs grow on an Apple-tree.
Whoever gather'd from the Thiſtle, Figs?
Or fruitful Grapes from off the worthleſs Twigs
Of pricking Thorns? in nature ſtill we find
All its productions anſwering to their kind.
As are the Plants we ſet, or Seeds we ſow;
Such is the Fruit we ſhake, and Corn we mow.
And canſt thou think that from Corruptions root,
Thy Soul ſhall pluck the ſweet and pleaſant Fruit
Of ſpiritual peace? who ever that was wiſe,
Abus'd himſelf with ſuch abſurdities?
Look what you ſow, the very ſame you'll reap,
The Fruit of what you plant be ſure you'll eat.
How are they baffled by a ſubtle Devil?
That hopes for Heaven, whilſt their ways are evil.
Such reaſonings here their credulous Souls beguile,
At which in other things themſelves would ſmile.
Our preſent acts though ſlightly paſſed by,
Are ſo much Seed ſown for Eternity.
The Seeds of Prayers, ſecret Groans and Tears?
Will ſhoot at laſt into the full blown ears
Of Peace and Joy. Bleſſed are they that ſow
Beſide theſe Waters, yea, thrice bleſt that go
Bearing ſuch precious Seed; though now they mourn,
With Joyful Sheaves they ſhortly ſhall return.
Needs muſt the full ripe Fruits in Heaven be good,
When as the Seed was glory in the bud.
But O, the bitter, baneful Fruits of ſin!
When all the pleaſure Sinners have therein,
Like faded Bloſſoms to the ground ſhall fall,
Then they will taſte the Wormwood and the Gall.
What God and Conſcience now of ſin report,
You ſlight, and with their dreadful threatnings ſport.
But he'll convince you then your ways were naught,
As Gideon the men of Succoth taught.
If Sermons cannot, Fire and Brimſtone muſt
Teach men how good it is to pamper Luſt.
When Conſcience takes thee by the Throat, and cries,
Now Wretch, now Sinner, thou that didſt deſpiſe
My warnings; learn, and ever learning be
That Leſſon, which thou ne're wouldſt learn of me.
The ſtouteſt Sinner then would howl and roar,
O ſin! I never ſaw thy face before.
Is this the fruit of ſin? is this the place
Where I muſt lye? is this indeed the caſe
Of my poor Soul! muſt I be bound in Chains
With theſe Companions? Oh, is this the gains
I get by ſin? poor Wretch, I that would never See this before, am now undone for ever.

CHAP. XVIII.

Upon the Joy of Harveſt men.

Great is the Joy of Harveſt-men, yet leſs
Than theirs, whom God doth with his favour bleſs.

OBSERVATION.

AMong all Earthly Joys, theſe four ſorts are noted in Scripture, as the moſt excellent and remarkable. (1.) Nuptial Joys, the day of Eſpouſals is the day of the gladneſs of a man's Heart, Cant. 3. 11. (2.) The Joy of Children; Though now it ſeems but a common Mercy to moſt, and a burden to ſome, yet the people of God were wont to eſteem it a choice Mercy, and rejoyced greatly in it, John 16. 21. there's joy that a man is Born into the World. (3.) The Joy of Conqueſts and Victories, when men divide the Spoyl. And laſtly, The Joy of Harveſt; theſe two we find put together as principal matters of joy, Iſa. 9. 3. The joy before thee, according to the joy in Harveſt, and as men rejoyce when they divide the ſpoil. The joy of Harveſt is no ſmall joy; Gaudium meſſis, eſt meſſis gaudii; the joy of Harveſt, is the Harveſt of their joy. 'Tis uſual with men, when they have reaped down their Harveſt, (or cut the neck, as they call it) to demonſtrate their joy by ſhouting, and loud acclamations.

APPLICATION.

THus, and unſpeakable more than thus, do Saints rejoyce and ſhout for joy, when they reap the favour and love of God, for which they laboured in many a weary Duty. This Joy of Harveſt, as great as it is, and as much as carnal hearts are lifted up with it, is but a trifle, a thing of nought, compared with yours; after they have ſown to themſelves in Righteouſneſs, and waited for the effects and returns of their Duties with patience, and at laſt come to reap in Mercy, either the full Harveſt in Heaven, or but the Firſt-fruits of it on Earth, yet rejoyce, with joy unſpeakable and full of glory, 1 Pet. 1. 8. This puts more gladneſs into their hearts, than when Corn and Wine increaſes, Pſal. 4. 7. Carnal Joys are but Soul-Fevers, the Agues of the inner Man; there is a great difference betwixt the unnatural Inflamations of a Feveriſh Body which waſtes the Spirits, and drinks up the Radical moiſture; and the kindly well tempered heat of an healthy Body; and as much between the ſweet, ſerene and heavenly Joys, which flow from the Boſom of Chriſt into the hearts of Believers, and thoſe earthly delights which carnal hearts in a ſenſual way ſuck out of Creature-enjoyments. I will ſhew you the trancendency of ſpiritual Joys, above the Joy of Harveſt, in theſe eight Particulars following.

1. You that Joy with the Joy of Harveſt, are ad, becauſe now you have Food for your ſelves d Families to live upon all the year; but the hriſtian rejoyceth, becauſe he hath Bread to eat t the World knows not of, Rev. 2. 17. Chriſt the Food of his Soul, and his Fleſh is Meat ined, and his Blood drink indeed, John 5. 55. . e.) the moſt real and excellent Food. You d, Pſal. 78. 25. that man did eat Angels Food . e.) Manna, which was ſuch excellent Bread, that if Angels did live upon material Food, this would be choſen for them; and yet this is but a type and dark ſhadow of Jeſus Chriſt, the Food of Believers.

2. You rejoyce when your Harveſt is in, becauſe Corn is virtually many other things beſides Food; you can turn it into Cloaths to keep you warm, and many other neceſſaries may be purchaſed by it: But yet it is not like Chriſt, the object of a Saints Joy; though it anſwers many things, it doth not anſwer all things as Chriſt doth; turn it into what you will, it hath but a limitive and reſpective uſefulneſs: But Jeſus Chriſt is all in all to Believers, and out of him their Faith can fetch all ſupplies; he is their health in ſickneſs, their ſtrength in weakneſs, their eaſe in pain, their honour in reproach, their wealth in poverty, their Friend in Friendleſneſs, their habitation when harbourleſs, their enlargement in bonds, the ſtrength of their hearts, and life of their life. O, he is a full Chriſt, and whatever excellencies are ſcattered among all the Creatures, do meet all in him, and much more.

3. You rejoyce when you have gotten in your Harveſt, becauſe now you can free thoſe Engagements, and pay thoſe Debts which you have contracted. 'Tis a comfort to be out of Debt, and you may lawfully rejoyce that God gives you wherewith to quit your Engagements, that you may owe no Man any thing but love: But ſtill the joy of Harveſt falls ſhort of the Joy of Saints; for you rejoyce that you are, or have wherewith to help your ſelves out of mens Debts: But they rejoyce that they are out of God's Debt; that his Book is cancelled, and their Sins pardoned; that by reaſon of the imputed Righteouſneſs of Chriſt, the Law can demand nothing from them, Rom. 8. 1. O, what matter of Joy is this!

4. You rejoyce, becauſe now your Corn is out of danger, all the while it was abroad it was in hazard, but now it's houſed you fear not the Rain. But Chriſtians rejoyce, not becauſe their Corn is ſafe, but becauſe their Souls are ſo. All the while they abode in an unregenerate ſtate, they were every moment in danger of the ſtorms of wrath; but now being in Chriſt, that danger is over; and what compare is there betwixt the ſafety of a little Corn, and the ſecurity of an Immortal Soul?

5. Your Joy is but in a gift of common Providence. Turks and Heathens can rejoyce with your Joy, but the Joy of a Chriſtian is a peculiar favour and gift of God. Corn is given to all Nations, even the moſt barbarous and wicked have ſtore of it; but Chriſt is the portion but of a few, and thoſe the dearly beloved of God. Luther ſaid of the whole Turkiſh Empire (where is the beſt and greateſt ſtore of Corn) that it is but a Crumb which the Maſter of the Family throws to the Dogs. He that had more Corn than his Barns could hold, now wants a drop of Water to cool his Tongue. Chriſt is a Gift beſtowed only upon God's Elect.

6. Your Joy will have an end; the time is coming, that when you have reaped down your Harveſts, your ſelves muſt be reaped down by death, and then you ſhall rejoyce in theſe things no more; but when your joy is ended, then is the joy of Saints perfected; they reap their Harveſt, when you leave your Harveſt; their Conſolation is everlaſting.

7. God can ſeparate your Joy from theſe Enjoyments, even while you have them, as well as when you leave them. 'Tis one thing for a Man to have Riches and full Barns, and another thing to have comfort in them, Eccleſ. 5. 19, 20. But now the Joy of Chriſtians is a thing inſeperable from their enjoyment of Chriſt; indeed the ſenſe of their intereſt may be loſt, and ſo the Acts of their Joy intermitted; but they always have it in the Seed, if not in the Fruit, Pſal. 97. 11. Joy is ſown for the upright; he hath it ſtill in the Principle, and in the Promiſe.

The Joy of Harveſt-men, for the moſt part, is only in their Harveſt, and in ſuch earthly things; take that away, and their Joy ceaſes. Earthly Hearts are acquainted with no higher Comforts; but the people of God can Joy in him, and take Comfort in their Earthly Injoyments too; and what Comfort they take in theſe things, is much more refined and ſweet than yours; for they enjoy all theſe things in God, and his love in giving them, puts a ſweetneſs into them, that you are unacquainted with. Thus you ſee, how far your Joy falls ſhort of theirs.

REFLECTIONS.

A Reflection for one that hath a full Barn, but no Chriſt.

1. How have I rejoyced in a thing of nought, and pleaſed my ſelf with a vanity? God hath bleſſed me in my Fields, and in my Stores; but not with Spiritual Bleſſings in Heavenly places in Chriſt. My Barns are full of Corn, but my Soul is empty of Grace; common Bounty hath given me a fulneſs of the things of this Life, but what if the meaning of it ſhould be to fat me for the day of ſlaughter? What if this be the whole of my Portion from the Lord? What if the Language of his Providences to my Soul ſhould be this? Lo here I have given thee (with Iſhmael) the fatneſs of the Earth: Thou ſhalt not ſay, but thou haſt taſted of thy Creator's Bounty; but make the moſt of it, for this is all that ever thou ſhalt have from me: There be others in the World, to whom I have denyed theſe things, but for them I have reſerved better; for the moſt part they are poor in this World, but rich in Faith, and Heirs of the Kingdom? Is not this enough to damp all my carnal mirth? Should my Conſcience give me ſuch a momento, as Abraham in the Parable gave to Dives; Remember that thou in thy life-time receivedſt thy good things. Ah, what a cut would that be to all my Comforts? A man in a Fever hath a lively Colour, but a dying Heart. I have an appearance, a ſhadow of Comfort, but a ſad ſtate of Soul.

A Reflection for one that hath Chriſt but no Barn.

2. Bleſſed be the God the Father of my Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath bleſſed me with all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly places in Chriſt, Eph. 1. 3. Though he hath not ſeen fit to give me much of this World in hand, yet it hath pleaſed him to ſettle a Rich Inheritance upon me by Promiſe; the hopes and expectations whereof, yield my Soul more true Comfort than all the preſent Enjoyments of this world could have done. Bleſſed be the Lord, who hath not given me my portion in this Life, that by keeping me from the Enjoyment, hath alſo preſerved me from the Snares of a proſperous Eſtate.

Lord Jeſus, I have no Bags, I have no Barns; but thou ſhalt be to me inſtead of thoſe things. When others rejoyce in the fulneſs of their Earthly Comforts, I will rejoyce in the fulneſs of my Chriſt; they have that which (though I have not) I ſhall not want; and I have that which all their Riches cannot purchaſe. Bleſs the Lord, O my Soul!

But Lord, how am I obliged, above Thouſands, to love and praiſe thee? to bleſs and admire thee, who haſt not only plentifully provided for my Soul, but for my Body too. Who haſt given me both the upper and the neither Springs, Heaven and Earth, things preſent, and things to come: Thou haſt not dealt ſo with all, no, not with all of thy own people; many of them are Strangers to the mercies which I enjoy. God hath done great things for me, O my Soul! What wilt thou do for God? The freer the condition is, he hath placed me in, the more am I both obliged and advantaged for his ſervice; and yet I doubt it will be found, that many a poor Chriſtian that labours with his Hands to get his Bread, redeems more hours for God than I do. Lord, make me wiſe to underſtand, and anſwer the double end of this gracious diſpenſation? Let me beſtow the more of my time on God, and ſtand ready to miniſter to the Neceſſities of his People.

4. Oh! what an unhappy Wretch am I! that have nothing either in hand, or in hope; am miſerable here, and like to be ſo for ever: Had I but an Intereſt in Chriſt, as the godly poor have, that would ſweeten all preſent troubles, and ſhew me the end of them. But alas! I am poor and wicked, contemned of Men, and abhorred of God; an object of contempt both to Heaven and Earth. Lord, look upon ſuch a truly miſerable Object with Compaſſion, give me a portion with thy people in the World to come, if thou never better my outward condition here! O ſanctifie this poverty! bleſs theſe ſtraits and wants, that they may neceſſitate my Soul to go to Chriſt; make this poverty the way to glory, and I ſhall bleſs thee to Eternity that I was poor in this World.

The POEM.

OFT have I ſeen when Harveſt's almoſt in,
The laſt load coming, how ſome Men have bin
Rapt up with joy, as if that welcome Cart
Drew home the very treaſure of their heart.
What joyful ſhoutings! hooping! hollowing noiſe,
With mingled voices both of Men and Boys?
To carnal minds there is no greater mirth,
No higher joy, nor greater heaven on earth.
He ſpeaks pure Paradoxes, that ſhall ſay
Theſe are but trifles to what Saints enjoy.
But they deſpiſe your ſparks, as much as you

CHAP. XIX.

Upon the Thraſhing out of Corn.

More ſolid Grain with greater ſtrength you thraſh,
The ableſt Chriſtians have the hardeſt laſh.

OBSERVATION.

HUsbandmen having to do with divers ſorts of Grain, ſome more tough and ſtubborn, others more free and tender, do not beat all alike in the Threſhing-floor ; but as they have Threſhals of ſeveral ſizes, ſo they beſtow on ſome Grain more, on others fewer ſtrokes, according to the different qualities of the Grain to be threſhed. This obſervation the Prophet Iſaiah hath, chap. 28. v. 27. The Fitches are not threſhed with a threſhing inſtrument, neither is the Cart-wheel turn'd about upon the Cummin, but the Fitches are beaten out with a ſtaff and the Cummin with a rod. The manner of beating out the Corn in ancient times, was far different from that which is now in uſe among us ; they had the Cart-wheel, which was full of Iron Spokes or Teeth, and the Hoofs of Beaſts for the harder ſort of Grain, as Wheat, Rye and Barly ; a Staff or Flail for the Fitches : and a Rod or Twig for the Cummin ; all which Inſtruments were proportioned according to the nature of the Grain.

APPLICATION.

GOD having to do in a way of Correction with divers ſorts of Offenders, doth not uſe the e ſeverity with them all, but proportions his rrection to their abilities and ſtrength. Jer. 30. I will not make a full end of thee, but will rrect thee in meaſure] and will not leave thee ogether unpuniſhed, ( q. d. ) afflicted thou ſt be, my reſpect to my own glory and thy d, puts a neceſſity upon that ; but yet I will it moderately, I will not lay on without meae or mercy, as I intend to do upon the Enemies ; will mete out your ſufferings in a due proportion, even as a careful Phyſician in preſcribing Pills or Potions to his Patient, hath regard as well to the ability of the Patient, as to the nature and quality of the Diſeaſe ; even ſo thy God, O Iſrael, will not afflict thee according to the greatneſs of his power and his wrath anſwerable thereunto, Pſa. 90. 11. that would break thee to pieces, Pſa. 78. 38. Nor yet will he afflict thee according to the demerit' of thy ſin. As it ſhall be much leſs than what I could inflict ; ſo it ſhall be leſs than thine iniquities deſerve, Ezra 9. 13. Neither my power, nor thy deſert, ſhall be the rule of my proceedings ; but I will do it with moderation and mercy, as thou art able to bear. I that have inſtructed the Husbandman to proportion his Inſtrument to the quality of the Grain before him, will exerciſe the like wiſdom and mildneſs towards thee. And the ſimilitude betwixt the Husbandman's threſhing his Corn and the Lord's afflicting his People ſtands in theſe Particulars.

1. The Husbandmans end in threſhing the Corn, is to ſeparate it from the Husks and Chaff, and God's end in afflicting his People, is to ſeparate them from their ſins, Iſa. 27. 9. In meaſure when it ſhooteth forth, he will debate with it, ( i. e. ) he will moderately correct them ; and what the end of thoſe Corrections are, the next words inform us, By this therefore ſhall the iniquity of Jacob be purged, and this is all the fruit to take away his ſin. God uſes Afflictions, as we uſe Soap, to cleanſe away filthineſs, and fetch out ſpots, Dan. 11. 35. he aims not at the deſtruction of their Perſons, but of their Luſts.

2. If the Husbandman have Cockle, Darnel, or pernicious Tares before him in the Floor among his Corn, he little regards whether it be bruiſed and battered to pieces by the Threſhold or no ; 'tis a worthleſs thing, and he ſpares it not. Such Cockle and Tares are the Enemies of God ; and when theſe come under his Flail, he ſtrikes them without mercy ; for theſe the Lord prepares a new ſharp threſhing Inſtrument, having Teeth which ſhall beat them to duſt, Iſa 41. 15. The daughter of Babylon is like a Threſhing-floor, 'tis time to threſh her, Jer. 51. 33. And when that time is come, then ( in alluſion to the Beaſt that was to tread out the Corn ) Sion's horn ſhall be of iron, and her hoofs braſs, Mic. 4. 13. He ſmites not his People, according to the ſtroke of them that ſmote them ; the meaning is, his ſtrokes on them ſhall be deadly ſtrokes. They ſhewed no mercy to Sion, and God will ſhew no mercy to them.

3. When the Husks and Chaff are perfectly ſeparated from the Grain, then the Husbandman beats it no more. When God hath perfectly purged and ſeparated the ſins of his people, then afflictions ſhall come to a perpetual end, he will never ſmite them again ; there is no noiſe of the threſhing Inſtrument in Heaven ; he that beat them with his Flail on Earth, will put them into his Boſom in Heaven.

4. Though the Husbandman lays on, and beats his Corn, as if he were angry with it, yet he loves and highly prizes it ; and though God ſtrike and afflict his people, yet he ſets a great value upon them ; and it is equally abſurd to infer God's hatred to his people from his afflicting of them, as the Husbandman's hatred of his Corn, becauſe he threſhes and beats it, Heb. 12. 6. Whom the Lord loveth he correcteth, and chaſteneth every ſon whom he receiveth.

5. Tho' the Husbandman threſh and beat the Corn, yet he will not bruiſe or hurt it, if he can help it; though ſome require more and harder ſtrokes than others, yet none ſhall have more than it can endure. And tho' the Lord afflict his Servants, yet he will do them no hurt, Jer. 25. 6. Some need more Rods than others, but none ſhall have more than they can bear; the Lord knows the meaſures and degrees of his Servants Faith and Patience, and accordingly ſhall their tryals be, Pſal. 103. 13, 14. Like as a Father pities his children, ſo the Lord pitieth them that fear him; for he knows their frame, he remembers they are but duſt; he makes a way to eſcape, that they may be able to bear it, 1 Cor. 10. 13. This care and tenderneſs of God over his afflicted, is eminently diſcovered in three Particulars.

(1.) In not expoſing them to, till he have prepared them for their tryals, Luke 24. 49. Tarry ye at Jeruſalem, until ye be endued with power from on high. He gives them ſometimes eminent diſcoveries of his love immediately before, and as a preparative to their ſufferings; in the ſtrength whereof, they are carried through all.

(2.) Or if not ſo, then he intermixeth ſupporting Comfort with their Troubles, as you ſometimes ſee the Sun ſhine out while the Rain falls. 'Twas ſo with Paul, Acts 27. 23. This night (and it was a ſad night indeed) there ſtood by me the Angel of the Lord, whoſe I am.

(3.) In taking off the Affliction, when they can bear it no longer, 1 Cor. 10. 13. He makes a way to eſcape, that they may be able to bear it, Pſal. 125. 3. The Rod is taken off, when the righteous is even ready to put forth his hand to iniquity. 'Tis a Jewiſh Proverb, When the Bricks are doubled, then comes Moſes. And it is a Chriſtian experience, When the Spirit is ready to fail, then comes Jeſus; according to that Promiſe, Iſa. 57. 16.

REFLECTIONS.

A Reflection for Perſecutors.

1. How unlike am I to God, in the afflicting of his People? The Lord is pitiful when he ſmites them, but I have been cruel. He is kind to them, when moſt ſevere; but the beſt of my kindneſſes to them, may fitly enough be called ſeverity. God ſmites them in love, I have ſmitten them in hatred. Ah, What have I done? God hath uſed me as his hand, Pſal. 17. 14. or as his Rod to afflict them, Jer. 10. 7. but his end and mine have widely differed in that action, Iſa. 10. 7. I am but the Scullion, or rather the Whiſp to ſcour and cleanſe theſe Veſſels of Glory, and when I have done that dirty work, thoſe bright Souls ſhall be ſet up in Heaven, and I caſt into the Fire. If he ſhall have Judgment without Mercy that ſhewed no Mercy; How can I expect mercy from the Lord, whoſe People I have perſecuted mercileſly for his ſake?

A Reflection for ſuch as meet with no Afflictions.

2. Is the Lord's Wheat thus threſhed in the floor of Afflictions? What then ſhall I think of my condition, who proſper and am let alone in the way of ſin? Surely the Lord looks on me as on a Weed, and not as his Corn; and 'tis too probable, that I am rather reſerved for burning, than threſhing. Some there are whom God loves not ſo well as to ſpend a rod upon them, but ſaith, Let them alone, Hoſ. 4. 17. but miſerable is their condition, notwithſtanding their impunity, For what is the interpretation but this? I will come to a reckoning with them for altogether in Hell. Lord, how much better is thy afflicting mercy, than thy ſparing ſeverity! Better is the condition of an afflicted Child, than of a rejected Baſtard, Heb. 12. 7. O, let me rather feel thy Rod now, as the Rod of a loving Father, than feel thy Wrath hereafter, as the Wrath of an Omnipotent Avenger.

A Reflection for an Afflicted Saint.

3. Well then, deſpond not, O my Soul! Thou heareſt the Huſband-man loves his Corn, tho' he threſheth it; and ſurely the Lord loves thee not the leſs, becauſe he afflicts thee ſo much. If Affliction then be the way to Heaven, bleſſed be God for Affliction. The threſhing ſtrokes of God have come thick upon me, by which I may ſee, what a tough and ſtubborn Heart I have; if one ſtroke would have done the work, he would not have lifted up his hand the ſecond time. I have not had a ſtroke more than I had need of, 1 Pet. 1. 6. and by this means he will purge my ſin, bleſſed be God for that. The Damned have infinitely more and harder ſtrokes than I, and yet their ſin ſhall never be ſeparated by their ſufferings. Ah, ſin, curſed ſin, I am ſo much out of love with thee, that I am willing to endure more than all this to be well rid of thee; all this I ſuffer for thy ſake, but the time is coming when I ſhall be rid of ſin and ſuffering together. Mean while, I am under my own Fathers Hand, ſmite me he may, but hate me he cannot.

CHAP. XX.

Upon the Winnowing of Corn.

The Fan doth cauſe light Chaff to fly away,
So ſhall th' ungodly in God's winnowing day.

OBSERVATION.

WHen the Corn is threſhed out in the Floor where it lyes mingled with empty ears, and worthleſs Chaff, the Husbandman carries it out altogether into ſome open place, where having ſpread his ſheet for the preſervation of the Grain, he expoſes it all to the Wind ; the good, by reaſon of its ſolidity, remains upon the ſheet, but the Chaff being light and empty, is partly carried quite away by the Wind, and all the reſt ſeparated from the good Grain into a diſtinct heap, which is carried away, either to the Fire or the Dunghill as a worthleſs thing.

APPLICATION.

MEN have their winnowing days, and God hath his ; a day to ſeparate the Chaff from the Wheat, the godly from the ungodly, who ſhall be held up to the Wind, but only the wicked ſhall be driven away by it. Such a day God hath in this World, wherein he winnows his Wheat, and ſeparates the Chaff. There is a double fanning or winnowing of Men here in this World ; one is doctrinally, in which ſenſe I underſtand that Scripture, Mat. 3. 12. ſpoken of Chriſt, when he was entring upon his Miniſterial Work. His fan is in his hand, and he ſhall throughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner, but he will burn up the Chaff with unquenchable fire. The preaching of the Goſpel is as a Fan in Chriſt's Hand, and it is as much as if John had thus told the Jews, that tho' there were many hypocritical ones among them, that had now a place and name among the People of God, and gloried in their Church-priviledges, yet there is a purging blaſt of truth coming, which ſhall mall make them fly out of the Church, as faſt as Chaff out of the Floor. Thus Chriſt winnows or fans the World doctrinally : The other is judicially, by bringing ſore and grievous tryals and ſufferings upon the Churches, for this very end, that thoſe which are but Chaff, (i.e.) empty and vain Profeſſors may by ſuch Winds as theſe be ſeparated from his People.

The Church increaſes two ways, and by two divers means, extenſively, in breadth and numbers ; and intenſively, in vigour and power ; peace and proſperity cauſes the firſt, ſufferings and adverſity the laſt ; and well may a day of Perſecution be called a winnowing day, for then are the People of God toſſed to purpoſe, as Corn in the Sieve, though nothing but Chaff be loſt thereby. Of ſuch a winnowing day the Prophet ſpeaks, Amos 9. 9, 10. I will ſift the houſe of Iſrael among all nations, like as Corn is ſifted in a ſieve; yet ſhall not the leaſt grain fall upon the earth ; all the ſinners of my people ſhall die. (q. d.) I will cauſe great agitations and toſſings among you by the hands of the Aſſyrians and Babylonians, into whoſe Countreys you ſhall be diſperſt and ſcattered ; yet I will ſo govern thoſe your diſperſions by my Providence, that not one good grain, one upright Soul ſhall eternally periſh ; but the ſinners of my people, the refuſe ſtuff, that ſhall periſh.

To the ſame purpoſe ſpeaks another Prophet, Zeph. 1. 1, 2. Gather your ſelves together, ( or as ſome read ) fan your ſelves, yea, fan your ſelves, before the decree bring forth, and the day paſs as the Chaff. He doth not mean, that the time ſhall paſs as the Chaff, but there is a day of affliction and diſtreſs coming, in which the wicked ſhall paſs as the Chaff before the Wind ; and yet notwithſtanding, all theſe winnowings upon Earth, much Chaff will ſtill abide among the Corn ; therefore God hath appointed another day for the winnowing of the World, even the day of Judgment, in reference to which it is ſaid, Pſal. 1. 4, 5. The ungodly are not ſo, but are like the chaff which the wind drives away ; therefore the ungodly ſhall not ſtand in judgment, nor ſinners in the congregation of the righteous ; ( i. e.) God hath a day wherein he will ſift the World, like Corn in a Sieve, and then the wicked ſhall appear to be but Chaff, which God will eternally ſeparate from his Wheat. I will not ſtrain the ſimilitude, but fairly diſplay it in theſe Seven Particulars.

1. The Chaff and Wheat grow together in the ſame Field, and upon the ſame Root and Stalk. In this, wicked Men are like Chaff, who not only aſſociate with the people of God, but oftentimes ſpring up with them in the ſame Families, and from the ſame Root, or immediate Parents, Mal. 1. 2. was not Eſau Jacob's brother ? Yet the one was Wheat, the other Chaff. Inſtances of this are infinite.

2. The Husbandman would never endure the Husks, Chaff, and dry Stalks to remain in the Field if it were not for the good Corns ſake, he would quickly ſet fire to it, but that the Corn is among it, which he highly prizeth ; and be aſſured, God would never ſuffer the wicked to abide long in this World, were it not for his own Elect that are diſperſed among them. Except the Lord had ſuch a Remnant diſperſed in the World, he would quickly ſet fire to the four Quarters, and make it like Sodom, Iſa. 1. 9.

3. The Chaff is a very worthleſs thing, the Husbandman cares not what becomes of it, and of as little worth are wicked Men, Prov. 10. 20. The heart of the wicked is little worth. The Heart is the principal part of the Man, and yet that's but Chaff, no worth in it ; his Lands, his Cloaths, &c. are worth ſomewhat, but his Heart is worth nothing.

4. Though Chaff in it ſelf be nothing worth, yet, it is of ſome uſe to the Corn whiles 'tis ſtanding in the Field ; the ſtalk bears up the ear, and the Chaff covers the Grain, and defends it from the injury of the Weather. Thus God makes wicked Men of uſe to his people, in outward ſociety ; they help to ſupport and protect them in this World Rev. 12. 16. The Earth helped the Woman, ( i. e.) worldly Men for carnal ends helpt the Church, when a Flood of Perſecution was poured out. The Church often helps the World, it receives many benefits from the people of God ; and ſometimes God over-rules the World to help his Church.

5. When the Chaff and Wheat are both brought forth and held up to the Wind in one Sieve, they ſall two ways; the Wheat falls down upon the Floor or Sheet, the Chaff is carried quite away: So although for a time godly and ungodly abide together, yet, when this winnowing time comes, God's Wheat ſhall be gathered into his Garner in Heaven, the Chaff ſhall go the other way, Mat. 3. 12.

6. If there be any Chaff among the Corn, it will appear when it is ſifted in a windy day, it cannot poſſibly eſcape if it be well winnowed; much more impoſſible it is for any wicked man to eſcape the critical ſearch of God in that day; the cloſeſt Hypocrite ſhall then be detected, for God will judge the ſecrets of men, 2 Cor. 16. He will then bring to light the hidden things of darkneſs, and make manifeſt the counſels of the heart, 1 Cor. 4. 5.

7. Laſtly, After Corn and Chaff are ſeparated by the winnowing Wind, they ſhall never lye together in one heap any more. The wicked ſhall ſee Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophets in the Kingdom of God, but themſelves thruſt out; there is no Chaff in Heaven.

REFLECTIONS.

A Reflection for a cloſe Hypocrite.

1. Am I an empty vain Profeſſor, that want the pith and ſubſtance of real godlineſs? Then am I but Chaff in God's account, though I grow among his Corn; the Eye of Man cannot diſcern my Hypocriſie, but when he comes whoſe Fan is in his Hand, then how plainly will it be detected? Angels and Men ſhall diſcern it and ſay, Lo, this is the man that made not God his hope; how ſhall I abide the day of his coming? Chriſt is the great Heart-Anatomiſt; things ſhall not be carried then by Names and Parties, as they are now; every one ſhall be weighed in a Juſt ballance, and a Mene Tekel, written upon every falſe Heart; great will be the perſpicuity of that trial: My own Conſcience ſhall joyn with my Judge, and ſhall then acknowledge, that there is not one drop of Injuſtice in all that Sea of wrath; and though I am Damned, yet I am not wronged; the Chaff cannot ſtand before the Wind, nor I before the Judgment of Chriſt.

A Reflection for one that neglects Self-examination.

2. Is there ſuch a fanning time coming? Why do not I then ſift my Heart every day by ſerious Self-examination? No work more important to me, and yet how much have I neglected it? O my Soul! thou hadſt been better imployed, in ſearching thine own Eſtate in reference to that day, than in prying ſinfully into the Hearts, and cenſuring the conditions of other Men: Judge thy ſelf, and thou ſhalt not be condemned with the World; the work indeed is difficult, but the neglect dangerous; Were I within a few days to ſtand at Man's Bar, there to be tryed for my Life, how buſie ſhould I be every hour of the day in writing to any that I thought could befriend me? And ſtudying every advantage to my ſelf? And yet, what a vaſt difference is there betwixt Man's Bar and God's? Betwixt a tryal for my Life, and for my Soul? Lord, rouze up my ſluggiſh Heart by awful and ſolicitous thoughts of that day, leſt I be found among that Chaff which ſhall be burnt up with unquenchable Fire!

A Reflection for a Sincere Soul.

3. Fear not, O my Soul! though there be a blaſt coming which ſhall drive all the Chaff into Hell, yet it ſhall blow thee no harm. I know that when he hath tryed me, I ſhall come forth as Gold, Job 23. 10. I confeſs I have too much Chaff about me, but yet I am not altogether Chaff; there is a ſolid work of Grace upon my Soul that will abide the trial: Let the Judgment to come be as impartial and exact as it's poſſible to be yet a Grain of Sincerity cannot be loſt in it; for God will not caſt away a perfect ( i. e. an upright-hearted ) man, Job 8. 20. He that's appointed to Judge the World is mine; and his imputed Righteouſneſs will make me full weight in the Balance. Bleſs the Lord ( O my Soul ) for ſincerity; this will abide, when common Gifts and empty Names will flee as the Chaff before the Wind.

The POEM.

From ſolid Grain! O let my Soul deteſt
Unſoundneſs, and abide thy ſtricteſt Teſt.

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE SECOND PART OF Husbandry.

HOw is it Reader? have I tired thee? (with me.
Whilſt through theſe pleaſant Fields thou walk'ſt
Our path was pleaſant, but if length of way
Do weary thee we'll ſlack our pace, and ſtay,
Let's ſit a while, under the cooling ſhade
Of fragrant Trees; Trees were for ſhadow made.
Lo here a pleaſant Grove, whoſe ſhade is good;
But more than ſo, 'twill yield us fruit for food.
No dangerous fruits do on theſe branches grow,
No Snakes among the verdant Graſs below.
Here we'll repoſe a while, and then go view
The pleaſant Herds and Flocks; and ſo adieu.

CHAP. I.

Upon the Ingraffing of Fruit-Trees.

Ungrafted Trees can never bear good Fruit,
Nor we, till grafted on a better Root.

OBSERVATION.

A Wild Tree naturally ſpringing up in the Wood or Hedge, and never grafted or removed from its native Soyl, may bear ſome Fruit, and that fair and beautiful to the Eye; but it will give you no content at all in eating, being always harſh, ſower and unpleaſant to the taſte; but if ſuch a ſtock be removed into a good Soyl, and grafted with a better kind, it may become a good Tree, and yield ſtore of choice and pleaſant Fruit.

APPLICATION.

UNregenerate Men who never were acquainted with the Myſtery of Spiritual Union ith Jeſus Chriſt, but ſtill grow upon their natu-l Root, old Adam, may by the force and power natural Principles bring forth ſome Fruit, which like the wild Hedge-fruit we ſpake of) ay indeed be fair and pleaſant to the Eyes of en, but God takes no pleaſure at all in it; it's wer, harſh, and diſtaſteful to him, becauſe it rings not from the Spirit of Chriſt, Iſa. 1. 13. annot away with it, it is iniquity, &c. But that I y not intangle the Thread of my Diſcourſe, I ll (as in the former Chapters) ſet before you parallel betwixt the beſt Fruits of natural men, d thoſe of a wild ungrafted Tree.

1. The Root that bears this wild Fruit is a de-nerate Root, and that's the cauſe of all this ſow-neſs and harſhneſs in the Fruit it bears; it's the Seed of ſome better Tree accidentally blown, or caſt into ſome waſte and bad Soyl, where not being manured and ordered aright, it's turned wild: So all the Fruits of unregerate men flow from the firſt Adam, a corrupt and degenerate Root; he was indeed planted a right Seed, but ſoon turned a wild and degenerate Plant; he being the Root from which every man naturally ſprings, corrupts all the Fruit that any man bears from him: It's obſerved by Gregory, pertinent to my preſent purpoſe Genus humanum in parente primo, velut in radice putruit? Mankind was putrified in the Root of his firſt Parent. Mat. 7. 18. A corrupt tree cannot bring forth good fruit.

This corrupt Root ſpoils the Fruit, by the tranſmiſſion of its ſower and naughty Sap into all the Branches and Fruits that grow on them; they ſuck no other nouriſhment, but what the Root affords them, and that being bad ſpoils all: For the ſame cauſe and reaſon, no meer natural or unregenerate man can ever do one holy or acceptable action, becauſe the corruption of the Root is in all thoſe actions. The neceſſity of our drawing corruption into all our actions, from this curſed Root Adam, is expreſſed by a quick and ſmart Interrogation, Job 14. 4. Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? not one. The ſenſe of it is well delivered us (by Mr. Caryl in loc.) This queſtion (ſaith he) may undergo a threefold Conſtruction; Firſt, thus: Who can bring a morally clean Perſon, out of a Perſon originally unclean? And ſo he lays his Hand upon his Birth-ſin. Or, Secondly, (which ſpeaks to my purpoſe) it may refer to the action of the ſame man, man being unclean, cannot bring forth a clean thing; (i. e.) a clean or holy action; that which is originated, is like its original. And that this ſower Sap of the firſt ſtock (I mean Adam's ſin) is tranſmitted into all Mankind, not only corrupting their Fruit, but ruining and withering all the Branches; the Apoſtle ſhews us in that excellent parallel betwixt the two Adams, Rom. 5. 12. Wherefore as by one man [one, not only in individuo, ſed in ſpecie, one repreſenting the whole Root or Stock,] ſin entred into the world. Not by imitation only, but by propagation; and this brought Death and Ruin upon all the Branches.

3. Although theſe wild Hedge-fruits be unwholſom and unpleaſant to the taſte, yet they are fair and beautiful to the Eye; a man that looks upon them, and doth not know what Fruit it is, would Judge it by its ſhew and colour to be excellent Fruit, for it makes a fairer ſhew oftentimes than the beſt and moſt wholeſom Fruit doth: Even ſo, thoſe natural Gifts and Endowments which ſome unregenerate Perſons have, ſeem exceeding fair to the Eye, and a Fruit to be deſired. What excellent qualities have ſome meer natural men and women? What a winning Affability, humble Condeſcention, Meekneſs, Righteouſneſs, ingenious Tenderneſs and Sweetneſs of Nature! As it was (Hyperbolically enough) ſaid of one, In hoc homine, non peccavit Adam; Adam never ſinned in this Man; meaning that he excelled the generality of Adam's Children in ſweetneſs of Temper and natural Endowments. What curious Phantaſies, nimble Wits, ſolid Judgments, tenacious Memories, rare Elocution, &c. are to be found among meer natural Men? By which they are aſſiſted in diſcourſing, praying, preaching and writing to the admiration of ſuch as know them! But that which is highly eſteemed of men, is abomination to God, Luke 16. 15. It finds no acceptance with him, becauſe it ſprings from that curſed Root of Nature, and is not the production of his own Spirit.

4. If ſuch a ſtock were removed into a better Soyl, and grafted with a better kind, it might bring forth Fruit, pleaſant and grateful to the Huſbandman; and if ſuch Perſons (before deſcribed) were but regenerated and changed in their Spirits and Principles, what excellent and uſeful Perſons would they be in the Church of God? And then their Fruits would be in ſweet and acceptable to him. One obſerves of Tertullian, Origen and Jerom, that they came into Canaan laden with Egyptian Gold, (i. e.) they came into the Church full of excellent humane Learning, which did Chriſt much Service.

5. When the Husbandman cuts down his Woods or Hedges, he cuts down theſe Crab-ſtocks with the reſt, becauſe he values them not any more than the Thorns and Brambles among which they grow; and as little will God regard or ſpare theſe natural Branches, how much ſoever they are laden with ſuch Fruit, The threatning is univerſal, John 3. 3. Except you be regenerate and born again, you cannot enter into the Kingdom of heaven. And again, Heb. 12. 14. Without holineſs, no man (be his natural Gifts never ſo excellent) ſhall ſee God. Imbelliſhed nature, is nature ſtill; That which is born of the fleſh, is but fleſh, however it be ſet off with advantage to the Eye of man.

REFLECTIONS.

A Reflection for an Accompliſhed Naturaliſt.

1. To what purpoſe then do I glory in my natural Accompliſhments? Though I have a better nature than ſome others have, yet it is a curſed nature ſtill. Theſe ſweet Qualities and excellent Gifts, do only hide, but not kill the corruption of nature. I am but a rotten Poſt gilded over, and all my Duties but Hedge-fruit, which God makes no account of. O cutting thought! that the unlearned ſhall riſe and take Heaven, when I with all my excellent Gifts ſhall deſcend into Hell. Heaven was not made for Scholars, as ſuch, but for Believers; as one ſaid, when they comforted him upon his Death-bed, that he was a knowing man, a Doctor of Divinity: O, ſaid he, I ſhall not appear before God as a Doctor, but as a man; I ſhall ſtand upon a level with the moſt Illiterate in the Day of Judgment; what doth it avail me that I have a nimble Wit, whilſt I have none to do my ſelf good? Will my Judge be charm'd with a Rhetorical Tongue? Things will not be carried in that World as they are in this. If I could with Berengarius diſcourſe de omni ſcibile,* of every thing that is knowable; or with Solomon unravel Nature, from the Cedar to the Hyſop, what would this advantage me, as long as I am ignorant of Chriſt, and the Myſtery of Regeneration? my head hath often aked with Study, but when did my Heart ake for ſin? Methinks, O my Soul, thou trimmeſt up thy ſelf in theſe natural Ornaments to appear before God, much as that delicate Agag did, when he was to come before Samuel, and fondly conceited that theſe things will procure favour or (at leaſt) pity from him; but yet, think not for all that, the bitterneſs of Death is paſt; ſay not within thy ſelf, Will God caſt ſuch a one as I into Hell? Shall a man of ſuch parts be Damned? Alas! Juſtice will hew thee to pieces, as Samuel did that ſpruce King, and not abate thee the leaſt, for theſe things; many Thouſand Branches of Nature, as fair and fruitful as thy ſelf, are now blazing in Hell, becauſe not tranſplanted by Regeneration into Chriſt; and if he ſpared not them, neither will he ſpare thee.

A Reflection for a true, but weak Believer.

2. I am a poor deſpiſed Shrub, which have no beauty at all in me and yet ſuch a one hath the Lord choſen to tranſplant into Chriſt, whilſt he left many fragrant Branches ſtanding on their native ſtock, to be fuel of his wrath to all Eternity! O Grace! for ever to be admired! Ah, what cauſe have I to be thankful to free Grace, and for ever to walk humbly with my God; the Lord hath therefore choſen an unlikely, rugged, unpoliſht Creature as I am, that Pride may for ever be hid from mine Eyes, and that I may never glory in his preſence, 1 Cor. 1. 29. I now have the advantage of a better Root and Soyl than any carnal Perſon hath, it will therefore be a greater ſhame to me, and a reproach to the Root that bears me, if I ſhould be out-ſtript and excelled by them; yet Lord, how often do I find it ſo? I ſee ſome of them meek and patient, whilſt I am proud and paſſionate; gentle and affable, whilſt I am rough and ſurly; generous and noble, whilſt I am baſe and penurious. Truly, ſuch a Branch as I am, is no honour to the Root that bears it.

The POEM.

CHAP. II.

Upon the Union of the Graff with the Stock.

When'ere you Bud or Graft, therein you ſee,
How Chriſt and Souls muſt here united be.

OBSERVATION.

WHen the Husbandman hath prepared his Graffs in the Seaſon of the year, he carries them, with the Tools that are neceſſary for that work, to the Tree or Stock he intends to ingraft, and having cut off the top of the Limb, in ſome ſtraight ſmooth part, he cleaves it with his Knife or Chiſſel a little beſide the pith, knocks in his Wedge to keep it open, then (having prepared the Graff, he carefully ſets it into the cleſt, joining the inner ſide of the Barks, of Graff or Stock together (there being the main current of the Sap) then pulls out his wedg, binds both together (as in Barking) and Clays it up, to defend the tender Graff and wounded Stock from the injuries of the Sun and Rain.

Theſe tender Ciens quickly take hold of the Stock, and having immediate Coalition with it, drinks in its Sap, concoct it into their own nouriſhment, thrive better, and bear more and better Fruits than ever they would have done upon their natural Root; yea, the ſmalleſt Bud, being carefully inoculated and bound cloſe to the Stock, will in ſhort time become a flouriſhing and fruitful Limb.

APPLICATION.

THis carries a moſt ſweet and lively reſemblance of the Souls Union with Chriſt by Faith; and indeed there is nothing in nature that ſhadows forth this great Goſpel-myſtery like it: 'Tis a Thouſand pities that any who are imployed about, or are but Spectators of ſuch an action, ſhould terminate their thoughts (as too many do) in that natural object, and not raiſe up their Hearts to theſe Heavenly meditations, which it ſo fairly offers them.

1. When a Twig is to be ingrafted, or a Bud inoculated, it's firſt cut off by a keen Knife from the Tree on which it naturally grew.

And when the Lord intends to graft a Soul into Chriſt, the firſt work about it is cutting work, s 2. 37. their Hearts were cut by Conviction deep Compunction; no Cyen is ingrafted hout cutting, no Soul united with Chriſt hout a cutting ſenſe of ſin and miſery, John 8, 9.

. When the tender ſhoot is cut off from the e, there are (ordinarily) many more left ind upon the ſame Tree, as promiſing and rous as that which is taken; but it pleaſeth the bandman to chuſe this, and leave them.

ven ſo it is in the removing or tranſplanting Soul by Converſion, it leaves many behind it he ſtate of Nature, as likely and promiſing as it ; but ſo it pleaſeth God to take this Soul, and leave many others; yea, often ſuch as grew upon the ſame Root; I mean, the immediate Parent, Mal. 1. 2. Was not Eſau Jacob*'s brother (ſaith the Lord) yet I loved* Jacob, and I hated Eſau.

3. When the Graffs are cut off, in order to this work, 'tis a Critical Seaſon with them; if they lye too long before they are ingrafted, or take not with the ſtock, they die, and are never more to be recovered; they may ſtand in the ſtock a while, but are no part of the Tree.

So when Souls are under a work of Conviction, it is a Critical time with them; many a one have I known then to miſcarry, and never recovered again; they have indeed for a time ſtood like dead Graffs in the ſtock, by an external dead-hearted Profeſſion, but never came to any thing; and as ſuch dead Graffs, either fall off from the ſtock, or moulder away upon it, ſo do theſe, 1 John 2. 19.

4. The Husbandman when he hath cut off Graffs or tender Buds, makes all the convenient ſpeed he can to cloſe them with the ſtock; the ſooner that's done, the better; they got no good by remaining as they are. And truly it concerns the Servants of the Lord, who are imployed in this work of ingraffing Souls into Chriſt, to make all the haſte they can, to bring the convicted Sinner to a cloſure with Chriſt. As ſoon as ever the trembling Jaylor cried, What ſhall I do to be ſaved? Paul and Silas immediately direct him to Chriſt, Acts 16. 30, 31. They do not ſay, it's too ſoon for thee to act Faith on Chriſt, thou art not yet humbled enough, but believe in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and thou ſhalt be ſaved.

5. There muſt be an inciſſion made in the ſtock before any Bud can be inocculated, or the ſtock muſt be cut and cleaved, before the Cyen can be ingrafted, according to that in the Poet. Venerit inſitio, fac ramum ramus ad optet. (i. e.)

To Graffs, no living Sap the ſtocks impart,
Unleſs you wound and cut them near the Heart.

Such an Inciſſion or wound was made upon Chriſt, in order to our ingrafting into him, John 19. 34. the opening of that deadly Wound gives Life to the Souls of Believers.

6. The Graff is intimately united, and cloſely conjoyned with the ſtock, the conjunction is ſo cloſe, that they become one Tree.

There is alſo a moſt cloſe and intimate union betwixt Chriſt and the Soul that believeth in him. It is emphatically expreſſed by the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 6. 17. He that is joyned to the Lord, is one Spirit. The word imports the neareſt, cloſeſt and ſtricteſt union. Chriſt and the Soul cleave together in a bleſſed oneneſs, as thoſe things do that are glued one to another; ſo that, looks as the Graff is really in the ſtock, and the Spirit or Sap of the ſtock is really in the Graff; ſo a Believer is really (though myſtically) in Chriſt; and the Spirit of Chriſt is really communicated to a Believer. I live, ſaith Paul, yet not I, but Chriſt liveth in me, Gal. 2. 20. He that dwelleth in Love, dwelleth in God, and God in him, 1 John 4. 16.

7. Graffs are bound to the ſtock by Bonds made of Hay or Flags; theſe keep it ſteddy, elſe the Wind would loſe it out of the ſtock.

The Believing Soul is alſo faſtened to Chriſt by Bands, which will ſecure it from all danger of being looſed off from him any more. There are two Bands of this Union; the Spirit on God's part, this is the firm Bond of Union, without which we could never be made one with Chriſt, Rom. 8. 9. If any man have not the Spirit of Chriſt, he is none of his; and Faith on our part, Eph. 3. 17. That Chriſt may dwell in your Hearts by Faith. Theſe hold ſtrongly.

8. Tho' the ſtock be one and the ſame, yet all Grafts do not thrive and flouriſh alike in it, ſome out-grow the reſt; and thoſe that grow not ſo well as the others do, the fault is in them, and not in the ſtock: So it is with Souls really united to Chriſt; all do not flouriſh alike in him, the Faith of ſome grows exceedingly, 2 Theſ. 1. 3. the things that be in others are ready to die, Rev. 3. 2. and ſuch Souls muſt charge the fault upon themſelves. Chriſt ſends up living Sap enough, not only to make all that are in him living, but fruitful Branches.

REFLECTIONS.

Four Comfortable Reflections for a Regenerate Soul.

1. Is it ſo indeed betwixt Chriſt and my Soul, as it is betwixt the ingraſted Cyen and the Stock? What Honour and Glory then hath Chriſt conferred upon me, a poor unworthy Creature? What! to be made one with him, to be a living Branch of him, to be joyned thus to the Lord. Oh! what a preferment is this! It is but a little while ſince I was a wild and curſed Plant, growing in the Wilderneſs amongſt them that ſhall ſhortly be cut down and faggotted up for Hell, for me to be taken from amongſt them, and planted into Chriſt, O my Soul! fall down and kiſs the Feet of Free Grace, that moved ſo freely towards ſo vile a Creature! The Dignities and Honours of the Kings and Nobles of the Earth, are nothing to mine; 'twas truly confeſſed by one of them, that it is a greater Honour to be a Member of Chriſt, than the Head of an Empire. Do I ſay, a greater Honour than is put upon the Kings of the Earth? I might have ſaid, it's a greater Honour than is put upon the Angels of Heaven; for to which of them ſaid Chriſt at any time, thou art Bone of my Bone, and Fleſh of my Fleſh? Behold! what manner of Love is this! 1 John 3. 1.

2. Look again upon the ingraſted Cyens, O my my Soul! and thou ſhalt find, that when once they have taken hold of the ſtock, they live as long as there is any Sap in the Root; and becauſe he liveth, I ſhall live alſo, for my Life is hid with Chriſt in God, Col. 3. 3. The Graff is preſerved in the ſtock, and my Soul is even ſo preſerved in Chriſt Jeſus, Jude 1.

3. Am I joined to the Lord as a Myſtical part or Branch of him? How dear art thou then, O my Soul, to the God and Father of my Lord Jeſus Chriſt! what! a Branch of his dear Son! What can God with-hold from one ſo ingratiated? Eph. 1. 6. All is yours (ſaith my God) for ye are Chriſt's, and Chriſt is God's, 1 Cor. 3. 23.

4. Once more, draw matter of Inſtruction, as well as Comfort from this ſweet Obſervation. Seeing God hath put all this Honour upon thee, by this moſt intimiate Union with his Chriſt, look to it (my Soul) that thou live and walk as becomes a Soul, thus one with the Lord; be thou tender over his Glory; doth not that which ſtrikes at the Root, ſtrike at the very Life of the Graff? And ſhall not that which ſtrikes at the very Glory of Chriſt, tenderly touch and affect thee? Yea, be thou tenderly affected with all the Reproaches that fall upon him from abroad but eſpecially with thoſe that redound to him from thine own unfruitfulneſs. O, diſgrace not the Root that bears thee; let it never be ſaid, that any Evil Fruit ſhall be found upon a Branch that lives and is fed by ſuch a Root.

The POEM.

OH what conſidering ſerious Man can ſee
The cloſe conjunction of the Graff and Tree;
And whilſt he contemplates, he doth not find
This Meditation grafted on his Mind?
I am the Branch, and Chriſt the Vine,
Thy gracious hand did pluck
Me from that native ſtock of mine,
That I his Sap might ſuck.
The bloody Spear did in his Heart
A deep Inciſion make,
That Grace to me he might impart,
And I thereof partake.
The Spirit and Faith is that firm Band
Which binds us faſt together,
Thus we are claſped Hand in Hand,
And nothing can us ſever.
Bleſs'd be that Hand which did remove Me from my native place,
This was the wonder of thy Love,
The triumph of thy Grace.
That I a wild and curſed Plant
Should thus preferred be,
Who all thoſe Ornaments do want,
Thou mayſt in others ſee.
As long as e're the Root doth live,
The Branches are not dry;
Whilſt Chriſt hath Grace and Life to give,
My Soul can never die.
O Bleſſed Saviour! never could
A Graff cleave to the Tree,
More cloſe than thy poor Creature would
United be with thee.
My Soul, diſhonour not thy Root,
'Twill be a ſhame for thee,
To want the choiceſt ſorts of Fruit,
And yet thus grafted be.

Thus you may ſhake from Grafts before they blow,
More precious Fruit than e're on Trees did grow.

CHAP. III.

Upon the Gathering in of Fruits in Autumn.

When Trees are ſhak'd, but little Fruit remains,
Juſt ſuch a remnant to the Lord pertains.

OBSERVATION.

IT is a pleaſant ſight in Autumn to ſee the fruitful Branches hanging full of Cluſters, which weigh the Boughs to the Ground.

Aſpice curvatos pomorum pondere ramos
Ut ſua quod peperit vix ferat arbor onus.
Which I may thus Engliſh;
O what a pleaſant ſight it is to ſee,
The fruitful Cluſters bowing down the Tree.

But theſe laden Branches are ſoon eaſed of the burden, for as ſoon as they are ripe, the Husbandman aſcends the Tree, and ſhaking the Limbs ll his might, cauſe a fruitful ſhower to fall like Hailſtones upon the Ground below, which being gather'd to a heap, are carried to the Pound, broken all to pieces in a Trough, and ſqueez'd to a dry lump in the Preſs, whence all their juice and moiſture runs into the Fat. How few eſcape this Fat, of all thoſe multitudes that grew in the Orchard? If you now look upon the Trees, you may poſſibly ſee here one, and there another, two or three upon the utmoſt Branches, but nothing in compariſon to the vaſt numbers that are thus uſed.

APPLICATION.

THis ſmall remains of Fruit, which are either left upon the Tree, or gather'd in for an hoard, do well reſemble that ſmall number of God's Elect in the World, which Free-Grace hath reſerved out of the general ruin of Mankind. Four things are excellently ſhadowed forth to us by this ſimilitude.

1. You ſee in a fruitful Autumn, the Tree even oppreſt and over-laden with the weight of their own Fruits before the ſhaking time come, and then they are eaſed of their burden. Thus, the whole Creation groans under the weight of their Sins who inhabit it, Rom. 8. 22. the Creatures are in Bondage, and by an Elegant Proſopeia, are ſaid, both to groan and wait for deliverance. The Original Sin of Man brought an Original Curſe, which burthens the Creature, Gen. 3. 17. Curſed is the Ground for thy ſake; and the Actual Sin of Man brings Actual Curſes upon the Creature, Pſal. 107. 34. Thus the Inhabitants of the World load and burden it, as the Limbs of a Tree are burthened, and ſometimes broken with the weight of their own Fruit.

2. You may obſerve in your Orchards every Year, what abundance of Fruits daily fall, either by Storms, or of their own accord; but when the ſhaking time comes, then the Ground is covered all over with Fruit. Thus it is with the World, that Myſtical Tree, with reſpect to Men that inhabit it; there is not a Year, a Day or Hour, in which ſome drop not, as it were, of their own accord by a natural Death; and ſometimes Wars, and Epidemical Plagues blow down thouſands together into their Graves; theſe are as high Winds in a fruitful Orchard, but when the ſhaking time, the Autumn of the World comes, then all its Inhabitants ſhall be ſhaken down together, either by Death, or a Tranſlation equivolent thereunto.

3. When Fruits are ſhaken down from their ees, then the Husbandman ſeparates them; the greater part for the Pound, and ſome few he rves for an hoard, which are brought to his ble, and eaten with Pleaſure. This excellently lows forth that great ſeparation, which Chriſt make in the end of the World, when ſome l be caſt into the Wine-preſs of the Almighty's ath, and others preſerved for Glory.

. Thoſe Fruits which are preſerved on the e, or in the hoard, are comparitively but an dful to thoſe that are broken in the Pound. s! 'tis ſcarce one of a thouſand, and ſuch a ll remnant of Elected Souls hath God reſerved Glory.

look upon the World as a great Tree, conſiſt- of four large Limbs or Branches; this Branch Diviſion of it on which we grow, hath doubtleſs eater number of God's Elect upon it, than the r three; and yet when I look with a ſerious and conſidering Eye upon this fruitful European Branch, and ſee how much rotten and withered Fruit there grows upon it, it makes me ſay as Chryſoſtom did of his populous Antioch. Ah, how ſmall a remnant hath Jeſus Chriſt among theſe vaſt numbers! Many indeed are called, but, ah, how few are choſen! Mat. 20. 16. Alas! they are but as the gleanings when the Vintage is done; here and there one upon its outmoſt Branches. To allude to that, Iſa. 17. 6. It was a ſad Obſervation which that ſearching Scholar (Mr. Brierwood) long ſince made upon the World, that dividing it into thirty equal parts, he found no leſs than nineteen of them wholly over-ſpread with Idolatry and Heatheniſh darkneſs; and of the eleven remaining parts, no leſs than ſix are Mahometans; ſo that there remains but five of thirty, which profeſs the Chriſtian Religion at large; and the far greater part of theſe remaining five, are invellop'd and drowned in Popiſh Darkneſs; ſo that you ſee the Reformed Proteſtant Religion is confined to a ſmall ſpot of Ground indeed. Now, if from theſe we ſubſtract all the groſly ignorant, openly profane, meerly civil, and ſecretly hypocritical; judge then in your ſelves, how ſmall a ſcantling of the World falls to Chriſt's ſhare.

Well might Chriſt ſay, Mat. 7. 14. Narrow is the way, and ſtrait is the gate, that leadeth unto Life, and few there be that find it. And again, Luke 12. 32. Fear not, little, little flock. The large piece goes to the Devil, a little remnant is Chriſt's, Rom. 9. 27. Saints in Scripture are called Jewels, Mal. 3. 17. Precious Pearls and Diamonds, which the Latines call Uniones. Quia nulli duo ſimul reperiuntur (ſaith Pliny) becauſe Nature gives them not by pairs, but one by one. How many Pebbles to one Pearl? Suitable to this notion, is that complaint of the Prophet, Mic. 7. 1, 2. Wo is me, for I am as when they have gathered the Summer Fruits, as the Grape gleanings of the Vintage, there is no cluſter to eat; my Soul deſired the firſt ripe Fruits; the good man is periſhed out of the Earth, and there is none, (i.e. none comparitively) upright among men. The Prophet alludes to a poor hungry man, that after the gathering time is paſt, comes into an Orchard deſiring ſome choice Fruits to eat, but alas! he finds none; there is no Cluſter; poſſibly here and there a ſingle Saint, like a ſingle Apple, here and there one after the ſhaking time. True Saints are the World's Rarities.

REFLECTIONS.

A Reflection for one that follows the example of the multitude.

1. What then will be my Lot, when that great ſhaking time ſhall come, who have followed the multitude, and gone with the Tyde of the World? How even when I have been preſſed to ſtrictneſs and ſingular diligence in the matters of Salvation, and told what a narrow way the way of Life is, have I put it off with this; if it be ſo, then wo to Thouſands. Ah, fooliſh Heart! Thouſands and ten Thouſands ſhall be woful and miſerable indeed to all Eternity. Will it be any mitigation to my Miſery, that I ſhall have Thouſands of miſerable Companions with me in Hell? Or will it be admitted for a good Plea at the Judgment-ſeat; Lord, I did as the generality of my Neighbours in the World did; except it were here and there a more Preciſe Perſon, I ſaw none, but lived as I lived. Ah, fooliſh Sinner! Is it not better to go to Heaven alone, than to Hell with Company? The worſt Courſes, have always the moſt Imitators, and the Road to Deſtruction is thronged with Paſſengers.

A Reflection for an abuſer of Mercy.

2. And how little better is my Condition? Who have often fathered the wickedneſs of my own Heart, upon the Incouragement of Mercy. Thus hath my Heart pleaded againſt Strictneſs and Duty. God is a merciful God, and will not be ſo ſevere with the World to damn ſo many Thouſands as are in my Condition; deluded Soul, if God had damned the whole Race of Adam; he had done them no wrong; yea, there is more Mercy in ſaving but one Man, than there is of ſeverity and rigour in Damning all: How many Drunkards and Adulterers have lived and dyed with thy Plea in their Mouths? God is a merciful God; but yet his Word expreſly ſaith, Be not deceived, ſuch ſhall not inherit the Kingdom of God, 1 Cor. 6. 9. God indeed, is a God of infinite Mercy; but he will never exerciſe his Mercy to the prejudice of his Truth.

A Reflection for an Elect Soul.

3. O, what rich Grace is here! That in a general Shipwrack Mercy ſhould caſt forth a Line or Plank to ſave me! That when Millions periſh, I with a few more ſhould eſcape that Perdition. Was it the Father's good Pleaſure to beſtow the Kingdom upon a little Flock, and to make me one of that Number? What ſingular Obligations hath Mercy put upon my Soul! The fewer are ſaved, the more cauſe have they that are, to admire their Saviour! If but one of a Thouſand had been Damned, yet my Salvation would have been an act of infinite Grace; but when ſcarce one of a Thouſand are ſaved, what ſhall I call that Grace, that caſt my Lot among them!

The POEM.

He that with ſpiritual Eyes in Autumn ſees
The heaps of Fruit that falls from ſhaken Trees,
Like ſtorms of Hail-ſtones; and can hardly find

But if my Name he pleaſe to let me ſee
Enroll'd among thoſe few that ſaved be,
What admiration ſhould ſuch Mercy move!
What thanks, and Praiſe, and everlaſting Love.

CHAP. IV.

Upon the cutting down of Dead Trees.

Dead barren Trees you for the Fire prepare,
In ſuch a Caſe all fruitleſs Perſons are.

OBSERVATION.

After many years patience, in the uſe of al means to recover a Fruit-Tree, if the Hu bandman ſee it be quite dead, and that there ca be no more expectation of any Fruit from it, h brings his Axe, and hews it down by the Roo and from the Orchard it's carried to the Fire, i being then fit for nothing elſe; he reckons it im prudent to let ſuch a uſeleſs Tree abide in goo Ground, where another may be planted in it Room that will better pay for the ground it ſtand in. I my ſelf once ſaw a large Orchard of Fa but fruitleſs Trees, all rooted up, rived abroa and ricked up for the Fire.

APPLICATION.

Thus deals the Lord by uſeleſs and barren Pro feſſors, who do but cumber his Ground, Ma 3. 10. And now alſo the Axe is laid to the Root of th Trees; therefore every Tree that brings not forth g Fruit, is hewn down and caſt into the Fire. And Luk 13. 7. Then ſaid the dreſſer of the Vineyard, Behol this three years I came ſeeking Fruit on this Fig-tree, find none; cut it down, why cumbreth it the Groun Theſe three years, alluding to the time of his Mi niſtry, he being at that time entring upon his la half year, as one obſerves, by harmonizing the E vangeliſts; ſo long he had waited for the Fru of his Miniſtry among thoſe dead hearted Jew now his Patience is even at an end, cut them do (ſaith he) why cumber they the Ground? I wi plant others, (viz. the Gentiles) in their Roo This hewing down of the barren Tree doth in lively manner ſhadow forth God's judicial Pr ceedings againſt formal and empty Profeſſors u der the Goſpel; and the reſemblance clearly ho in theſe following particulars.

1. The Tree that is to be hewn down for t Fire, ſtands in the Orchard among other flour ing Trees, where it hath enjoyed the benefit o good Soyl, a ſtrong Fence, and much Cultu but being barren, theſe Priviledges ſecure it from the Fire. It is not our ſtanding in the ble Church by a powerleſs Profeſſion among Saints with whom we have been aſſociated, enjoyed the rich and excellent waterings of Ordinances, that can ſecure us from the wrath of God, Mat. 3. 8, 9. Bring forth fruits meet for repentance, and think not to ſay within your ſelves, we have Abraham to our father. Neither Abraham, nor Abraham's God, will acknowledge ſuch degenerate Children; if Abraham's Faith be not in your Hearts, it will be no advantage that Abraham's Blood runs in your Veins. 'Twill be a poor plea for Judas, when he ſhall ſtand before Chriſt in Judgment, to ſay, Lord I was one of thy Family, I Preached for thee, I did eat and drink in thy preſence. Let theſe Scriptures be conſulted, Mat. 7. 22. Mat. 25. 11, 12. Rom. 2. 17. and 25.

2. The Husbandman doth not preſently cut down the Tree, becauſe it puts not forth as ſoon as other Trees do, but waits as long as there is any hope, and then cuts it down. Thus doth God wait upon barren dead-hearted Perſons, from Sabbath to Sabbath, and from Year to Year; for the Lord is long-ſuffering to us-ward, and not willing that any ſhould periſh, but all come to Repentance, 2 Pet. 3. 9. Thus the long-ſuffering of God waited in the days of Noah upon thoſe dry Trees, who are now ſmoaking and flaming in Hell, 1 Pet. 3. 20. He waits long on Sinners, but keeps exact accounts of every year and day of his patience, Luke 13. 7. Theſe three years. And Jer. 25. 3. Theſe Twenty three years.

3. When the time is come to cut it down, the dead Tree cannot poſſibly reſiſt the ſtroke of the Axe, but receives the blow, and falls before it. No more can the ſtouteſt Sinner reſiſt the fatal ſtroke of death, by which the Lord hews him down, Eccl. 8. 8. There is no man that hath power over the Spirit, to retain the Spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death, and there is no diſcharge in that war. When the pale Horſe comes, away you muſt into the Land of Darkneſs: Though thou cry with Adrian, O my poor Soul, whither art thou going! Die thou muſt, thou barren Profeſſor; though it were better for thee to do any thing elſe than to die. What a dreadful ſcreech will thy Conſcience give, when it ſees the Axe at thy Root! And ſay to thee as it is, Ezek. 7. 6. An end is come, the end is come; it watcheth for thee, behold it is come. O ſaid Henry Beauford, (that rich and wretched Cardinal, Biſhop of Winceſter, and Chancellor of England, when he perceived whereto he muſt) wherefore muſt I die? If the whole Realm would ſave my life, I am able either by Policy to get it, or by Riches to buy it, Fye, (quoth he) will not death be hired? Will Riches do nothing? No, neither Riches nor Policy can then avail.

4. That ſide to which the Tree leaned moſt while it ſtood, that way it will fall when it is cut down; and as it falls ſo it lyes, whether to the South or North, Eccleſ. 11. 3. So it fares with theſe Myſtical Trees, I mean fruitleſs Profeſſors. Had their Hearts and Affections inclined and bended Heaven-ward whilſt they lived, that way no doubt they had fallen at their death; but as their Hearts inclined to ſin, and even bended to the World, ſo when God gives the fatal ſtroke, they muſt fall Hell-ward and Wrath-ward; and how dreadful will ſuch a fall be?

5. When the dead Tree is carried out of the Orchard, it ſhall never be among the living Trees of the Orchard any more; many years it grew among them, but now it ſhall never have a place there again. And when the barren Profeſſor is carried out of the Word by death, he ſhall never be aſſociated with the Saints any more. He may then ſay, Farewell all ye Saints among whom I lived, and with whom I ſo often heard, faſted, prayed. I ſhall never ſee your Face more, Mat. 8. 11, 12. I ſay unto you, that many ſhall come from the Eaſt, and Weſt, and North, and South, and ſhall ſit down with Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, in the kingdom of Heaven; but the Children of the Kingdom ſhall be caſt forth into outer darkneſs, there ſhall be weeping, and wailing, and gnaſhing of Teeth.

6. When the dead Tree is carried out of the Orchard, the Husbandman cuts off his Branches, and rives him aſunder with his Wedges. This alſo is the Lot of barren Profeſſors. The Lord of that Servant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and will cut him aſunder; he ſhall be diſſected, or cut abroad Luke 12. 46.

Now therefore conſider this, ye that forget God, leſt I tear (or rend) you in pieces, Pſa. 50. 22. O direful day! when the ſame hand which planted, pruned, and watered thee ſo long, and ſo tenderly, ſhall now ſtrike mortal ſtrokes at thee, and that without pity: For he that made them will not have mercy on them, and he that formed them will ſhew them no favour. Iſa. 27. 11. For the day of mercy is over, and the day of his Wrath is fully come.

7. When this Tree is cleav'd abroad, then it's rotten, hollow inſide appears, which was the cauſe of its barrenneſs; it looked like a fair and ſound, bodied Tree, but now all may ſee how rotten it is at the heart: So will God in that day, when he ſhall diſſect the barren Profeſſor, diſcover the rottenneſs of his Heart, and unſoundneſs of his Principles and End; then they who never ſuſpected him before, ſhall ſee what a hollow and rotten-hearted Profeſſor he was.

8. Laſtly, The fruitleſs Tree is caſt into the Fire. This alſo is the end and ſad iſſue of formality, John 15. 6. He is caſt forth as a branch, and is withered, and men gather them and caſt them into the fire, and they are burned. This is an undoubted truth, that there is no Plant in God's Vineyard, but he will have glory from it by bearing Fruit, or glory on it by burning in the Fire. In this Fire ſhall they lye gnaſhing their teeth, Luke 13. 38. and that both in indignation againſt the Saints, whom they ſhall ſee in glory, and againſt Jeſus Chriſt, who would not ſave them; and againſt themſelves, for loſing ſo fooliſhly the opportunities of Salvation. Do you behold when you ſit by the Fire, the froth that boyls out of thoſe flaming Logs? O think of that foam and rage of theſe undone Creatures, foaming and gnaſhing their Teeth in that Fire which is not quenched, Mark 9. 44.

REFLECTION.

How often have I paſſed by ſuch barren Trees with a more barren Heart? As little thinking ſuch a Tree to be the Emblem of my ſelf, as Nebuchadnezzar did, when he ſaw that Tree in a Dream which repreſented himſelf, and ſhadowed forth to him his enſuing miſery, Dan. 4. 13. But Oh my Conſcience! my drouzy, ſleepy Conſcience! wert thou but tender and faithful to me, thou wouldſt make as round and terrible an Application of ſuch a Spectacle to me, as the faithful Prophet did to him. v. 22. And thus wouldſt thou, O my Soul, bemoan thy condition!

A Reflection for a formal Hypocrite.

Poor wretch, here I grow for a little time, among the Trees of Righteouſneſs, the Plants of Renown; but I am none of them, I was never planted a right Seed; ſome green and flouriſhing Leaves of Profeſſion indeed I have, which deceive others, but God cannot be deceived; he ſees I am fruitleſs and rotten at the heart. Poor Soul, what will thine end be but burning! Behold, the Axe lyeth by thy Root, and wonder it is, that there it ſhould lye ſo long, and I yet ſtanding! ſtill mercy pleads for a fruitleſs Creature; Lord, ſpare it one year longer. Alas! he need ſtrike no great blow to ruin me, his very Breath blows to deſtruction, Job 4. 9. A frown of his Face can blaſt and ruin me, Pſa. 80. 6. He is daily ſollicited by his Juſtice to hew me down, and yet I ſtand. Lord, cure my Barrenneſs; I know thou hadſt rather ſee Fruit than Fire upon me.

The POEM.

IF after pains and patience you can ſee
No hopes of Fruit, down goes the barren Tree.
You will not ſuffer Trees that are unſound,
And barren too, to cumber uſeful ground.
The fatal Axe is laid unto the root,
Its fit for fire, when unfit for fruit
But though this be a dead and barren Tree,
Reader, I would not have it ſo to thee.
May it to thee this ſerious thought ſuggeſt,
In all the Orchard this dead Trees the beſt;
Think on it ſadly, lay it cloſe to heart,
This is the caſe in which thou waſt, or art.
If ſo thou waſt, but now doſt live and grow
And bring forth fruit, what praiſe and thanks doſt owe
To that wiſe Husbandman that made thee ſo!
O think when Juſtice lifted up its hand,
How mercy did then interceeding ſtand!
How pity did on thy behalf appear,
To beg reprival for another year.
Stop Lord, forbear him; all hope is not paſt,
He can but be for fire at the laſt.
Though many Sermons, many a gracious call
He hath reſiſted like a brazen Wall.
The next may win him, when thy Grace ſhall raiſe
Unto it ſelf a Monument of praiſe.
How ſhould this Meditation thaw and melt
The heart of him that hath ſuch mercy felt.
But if thou ſtill remain a barren Tree,
Then here, as in a mirrour, thou maiſt ſee
Thy wretched ſtate, when Juſtice at a blow,
Requites God's patience in thine overthow.
And canſt thou bear it, can thy heart indure
To think of everlaſting burnings? ſure
This muſt thy lot, thy fearful portion be,
If thou continue ſtill a barren Tree.

CHAP. I.

Upon the Husbandman's Care for his Cattel.

More care for Horſe and Oxen many take
Than for their Souls, or deareſt Childrens ſake.

OBSERVATION.

MAny Husbandmen are exceſſively careful about their Cattel, riſing themſelves early, or cauſing their Servants to riſe betimes to provinder and dreſs them. Much time is ſpent in ſome Countries, in trimming and adorning their Horſes with curious Trappings and plumes of Feathers; and if at any time a beaſt be ſick, what care is taken to recover and heal them? You will be ſure they ſhall want nothing that is neceſſary for them; yea, many will chuſe rather to want themſelves, than ſuffer their Horſes ſo to do; and take a great deal of Comfort to ſee them thrive and proſper under their hands.

APPLICATION.

WHat one ſaid of Bloody Herod, who ſlew ſo many Children at Bethlehem, That it were better to be his Swine, than his Son, may be truly enough applyed to ſome Parents and Maſters, who take leſs care for the ſaving the Souls of their Children and Servants, than they do for the Bodies of thoſe Beaſts which daily feed at their Stalls and Cribs. Many there be who do in reference to their Souls, as Jacob did, with reſpect to the preſervation of their Bodies, when he put all the Herds of Cattel before, and his wives and little ones behind, as he went to meet his Brother Eſau. 'Tis a weighty ſaying of a grave Author; It's vile ingratitude to rejoyce when Cattel multiply, and repine when Children increaſe; its Heatheniſh diſtruſtfulneſs to fear, that he who provides for your Beaſts, will not provide for your Children; and it's no leſs than unnatural cruelty to be careful of the Bodies of Beaſts, and careleſs of the Souls of Children. Let us but a little compare your care and diligence in both reſpects, and ſee in a few Particulars, whether you do indeed value your own, or your Children and Servants Souls, as you do the Life and Health of a Beaſt.

Jenk. on Jude part. 2. p. 170.

1. Your care for your very Horſes is expreſſed early, whilſt they are but Colts, and not come to do you any Service; you are willing to be at pains and coſt, to have them broken and brought to their way. This is more then ever many of them did for their Children; they can ſee them wild and profane, naturally taking a ſtroke or way of wickedneſs, but yet never were at any pains or coſt to break them; theſe muſt be fondl'd and cockered up in the natural way of their own corruption and wickedneſs, and not a Rod or Reproof uſed to break them of it.

Th

Clark's Mir. p. 506.

'Tis obſerved of the Perſians, that they put out their Children to School as ſoon as they could ſpeak, and would not ſee them in ſeven years after, leſt their Indulgence ſhould do them hurt.

2. You keep your conſtant ſet times, Morning and Evening, to feed, water, and dreſs your Cattel, and will by no means neglect it once; but how many times have you neglected Morning and Evening Duties in your Families! Yea, how many be there, whoſe very Tables, in reſpect of any Worſhip God hath there, do very little differ from the very Cribs and Mangers at which their Horſes feed? As ſoon as you are up in a Morning, you are with your Beaſts before you have been with your God; how little do ſuch differ from Beaſts? And happy were it, if they were no more accountable to God than their Beaſts are?

The end of your care, coſt and pains about your Cattel is, that they may be ſtrong for labour, and the more ſerviceable to you; thus you comply with the end of their Beings. But how rare a thing is it to find theſe men as careful to fit their Poſterity to be uſeful and ſerviceable to God in their Generations, which is the end of their Beings? If you can make them rich, and provide good matches for them, you reckon that you have fully diſcharched the Duty of Parents; if they will learn to hole the Plow, that you are willing to teach them; but when did you ſpend an hour to teach them the way of Salvation?

Now to convince ſuch careleſs Parents of the heinouſneſs of their Sin, let theſe four Queries be ſolemnly conſidered.

Qu. 1. Whether this be a ſufficient diſcharge of that great Duty which God hath laid upon Chriſtian Parents, in reference to their Families? That God hath charged them with the Souls of their Families is undeniable, Deut. 6. 6, 7. Eph. 6. 4. If God had not cloathed you with his Authority to command them in the way of the Lord, he would never have charged them ſo ſtrictly to yield you obedience as he hath done, Eph. 6. 1. Col. 3. 20. Well, a great truſt is repoſed in you, look to your Duty, for, without diſpute, you ſhall anſwer for it.

Qu. 2. Whether it be likely, if the time of Youth ( which is the moulding Age) be neglected, they will be wrought upon to any good afterwards? Husbandmen, let me put a ſenſible Caſe to you? Do not you ſee in your very Horſes, that whilſt they are young, you can bring them to any way; but if once they have got a falſe ſtroke, and by long cuſtom it be grown natural to them, then there is no breaking them of it: Yea, you ſee it in your very Orchards, you may bring a tender twig to grow in what form you pleaſe; but when its grown to a ſturdy limb, there is no bending it afterwards to any other form than what it naturally took. Thus it is with Children, Prov. 22. 6. Train up a Child in the way he ſhould go, and when he is old he will not depart from it.

Qu. 3. Whether if you neglect to inſtruct them in the way of the Lord, Satan, and their own natural Corruptions will not inſtruct them in the way to Hell? Conſider this ye careleſs Parents; if you will not teach your Children, the Devil will teach them; if you ſhew them not how to Pray, he will ſhew them how to Curſe and Swear, and take the Name of the Lord in vain; if you grudge time and pains about their Souls, the Devil doth not. Oh, 'tis a ſad conſideration, that ſo many Children ſhould be put to School to the Devil!

Qu. 4. What comfort are you like to have from them when they are old, if you bring them not up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord when they are young? Many Parents have lived to reap in their old Age, the fruit of their own folly and careleſsneſs, in the looſe and vain Education of their Children. By Licurgus his Law, no Parent was to be relieved by his Children in Age, if he gave them not good Education in their Youth; and it is a Law at this day among the Switzers, That if any Child be condemned to die for a Capital Offence, the Parents of that Child are to be his Executioners; theſe Laws were made to provoke Parents to look better to their Charge. Believe this as an undoubted Truth; That that Child which becomes (through thy default) an Inſtrument to diſhonour God, ſhall prove ſooner or later a Son or Daughter of Sorrow to thee.

REFLECTIONS.

A Reflection for Careleſs Parents.

1. God hath found out my ſin this day. This hath been my practice ever ſince I had a Family committed to my Charge; I have ſpent more time and pains about the Bodies of my Beaſts, than the Souls of my Children; Beaſt that I am for ſo doing; little have I conſidered the preciouſneſs of my own, or their Immortal Souls. How careful have I been to provide Fodder to preſerve my Cattel in the Winter, whilſt I leave my own and their Souls to periſh to Eternity, and make no proviſion for them? Surely my Children will one day Curſe the time that ever they were born unto ſuch a cruel Father, or of ſuch a merciless Mother. Should I bring home the Plague into my Family, and live to ſee all my poor Children lie dead by the Walls, if I had not the heart of a Tyger, ſuch a ſight would melt my Heart; and yet the death of their Souls, by the Sin which I propagated to them, affects me not! Ah, that I could ſay, I had done as much for them, as I have done for a Beaſt that periſheth!

A Reflection for the Diſobedient Child of a Gracious Parent.
